SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—An agreeable change is provided here this week in a strong variety company, headed by the Waldrons, the principal item being a musical absurdity, The Silly Burglars, whose antics cause much merriment. The Three Romars give a really clever and funny triple bar act; the Albano Troupe present a refined and entertaining musical act; Miss Iris Banfield is heard to advantage in a couple of smart songs; and other good items include the Apollo Trio, acrobats and statueseques; the Waldrons, in their well-known burlesques; Leo Vincent, a smart ventriloquist; Sadie Seymour, comedienne; Doris Jeffs, child vocalist and quick-change artist; Will Lemmie, comedian; Terry and Snowdon, in their song, dance, and patter act; Frank Coyle, topical comedian; and an excellent display of living pictures by the Royal Bioscope.

SHEERNESS.—Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Raymond.—A capital company here this week includes Mr. Nick Ohlson, eccentric comedian, who is voted very funny, and Miss Josie Watson, a popular serio and burlesque actress. The Zigzags cause roars of laughter with their clever pot-pourri act, including their marvellous "second sight" business. Mr. Phil Reymond, the ever-popular comedian, scores nightly with his well-rendered comedy songs, and Miss Topsy Levane continues a firm favourite with songs and dances. The Holroydes conclude with All Aboard, which causes no end of amusement.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The successful comic opera Amasis was presented for the first time to a local audience on Monday, under the direction of Mr. Louis Calvert. Mr. Rutland Barrington acted with his well-known geniality and humour as Pharaoh; Mr. Roland Cunningham, as Prince Anhotep, sang with dramatic feeling; and the part of Cheiro was ably sustained by Mr. Whitworth Mitton, whose voice was heard to advantage; roars of laughter and hearty applause rewarded the efforts of Mr. Reginald White and Mr. Lauri de Frece, as the two eccentric court officials; Mr. Frank Perfit made an imposing Captain of the Guard, and Mr. Norman Salmond was admirable as the High Priest; Miss Constance Drever made a beautiful picture of feminine grace as Amasis, and the charm of her voice completed her speedy conquest of the audience; Miss Winifred Hart-Dyke's dancing was a perfect realisation of the "poetry of motion"; Miss Madge Vincent was a bright and vivacious Natis. The chorus contributed greatly to the general success.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Coal King was played to a demonstrative audience on Monday by Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts, played with rugged sincerity, and the villainous Walter Harford was depicted in strong colours by Mr. Escott Robson; Mr. Alfred Terriss made an amusing Jim Williamson, and well-played characters were Mr. Frank Dalton's Dick Shirley, Mr. Charles Whitlock's Sir Reginald, and Mr. John Coghlan's Seth Baker. Miss Gertrude Valentine was a graceful Miss Shirley; Miss Sinna St. Clair's Mad Ann was a strong and interesting character study; and the humours of Araminta were cleverly portrayed by Miss Enid Ross.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Bulmar's company is here this week in the favourite comedy-drama, When Woman Hates. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is a handsome and talented representative of Cora, and she receives excellent support. East Lynne was billed for Friday with Miss Dunbar as the unfortunate Lady Isabel.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The splendid programme this week is headed by Mr. Fred Karno's pantomime company in the screaming melodramatic absurdity, Early Birds, which on Monday kept the large audience in a continuous state of hilarity; Mr. Walter Bellonini and his amusing page were loudly applauded in their smart juggling act; the Three Amaranthes did a clever acrobatic-terpsichorean speciality, which brought down the house; Linden's vaudeville quartet did a refined and humorous sketch, called The Jolly Monks; the Howards are amusing comic instrumentalists; and other good turns are Miss Edie King, vocalist and dancer; Miss Ruth Doris, serio; Mr. Harry Drew, vocalist; and the American Bioscope.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—The Wilfords, acrobats; Sword and Robb, comic sketch artists; Mr. Fred Southern's sketch company; the Brothers Mills, novelty performers; R. C. Note, comedian; Pallister's popular biograph, with up-to-date pictures; and Miss Daisy Devonport, are doing well at this cosy hall.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company are here this week with The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Chas. Mackey is clever and amusing as Barney O'Hea, and his songs are spiritedly given; Mr. Mansell Fane acts and sings well as Shamus M'Dermott; Mr. David M'Farlane is successful as Connor Martin, Sheriff; Mr. H. Sainsbury makes a smart military officer as Sir Geo. Courtney, and acquits himself creditably in the part; Mr. John S. Chamberlain as the evilly-disposed Michael Kenny, acts well, and calls forth execrations. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey performs the part of Norah M'Grath with grace and talent; Miss Nana Flensberg is a vivacious and pleasing Biddy M'Ginn; Miss Adele Liddon plays with expression the part of Mrs. M'Dermott; the Misses Nellie Moore and Mona Russell both merit praise as Edith and Gladys Astruther respectively, and Miss Kathleen Clare makes a capital servant as Ellen Fitzgerald.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is this week proving a big attraction in The Christian. In the part of Glory Quayle Miss Vashti Wellborne gives an admirable impersonation, and achieves a great success; Miss Grace Chalmers is prevented from playing by illness, but Miss Wellborne is an efficient substitute; Mr. Frank Tennant's John Storm is highly dramatic; Mr. Frederick Scarth is excellent as Lord Robert Ure; and Miss Molly Weir acts well as Mrs. Callender; Mr. Charles E. Dering cleverly handles the part of Archdeacon Wealthy; and Mr. W. Brisco Owen, as Horatio Drake, is conspicuously good.

Palace, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Miss Lois du Cane and company provide the star attraction with their sketch, A Prodigal Wife, which is exceedingly well played. Austin Rudd is as droll as of yore; Brüll and Hemsley score a success in a novel singing and dancing speciality, Fun in a Music Shop; Lillie Langtry is as lively as ever; and the Maples, comedy duo, sing and dance with acceptance; Dan Robans, a very fine singer; Les Frasettis, musical soloists; and Culpitt, a smart comedy juggler, &c., all win golden opinions.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Fred Ginnett and Co. are topping the bill with Turpin's Ride to York, an equestrian episode which successfully appeals to the audience; Holden's Comic Mannikins is another well appreciated turn; and Bert Williams is a smart ventriloquist; Selby and Myers dance excellently; and others who do well are the Four Hearns, eccentric acrobats; Fred Villars, light comedian; and Maud Esmond, comedienne. Mr. Shackleton's overture of the various styles of playing "The Old Bull and Bush" is both novel and clever.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—A return visit of Baron H. Harriss's company in The Prince of Pilsen is proving highly popular. Mr. Harry Kilburn makes the part of Hans Wagner, the Cincinnati brewer, stand out, his never-failing humour always having effect; the Mrs. Maddison Crocker of Miss Sophie Harriss is a creditable performance, and Mr. F. Crimp sings and acts well as the Prince; Miss Alice Nixon is pleasing as Nellie Wagner, and Mr. Bernard Russell hits off the Earl of Shrimpton to perfection. Mr. R. Sydney is seen to advantage as Lieut. Tom Wagner; Miss Ada Watson makes an impression as Edith Adams, and Miss Connie Leon is a charming Sidonie. Mr. Ernest Gifford creates laughter as Francois, and Miss Mollie Wynne is satisfactory as Jimmie; Mr. Albert Vernon ably conducts an excellent chorus and augmented orchestra.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. F. Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—A laughable sketch, entitled Moving In, is presented by Herbert Darnley's company; the Three Missouris, acrobats, maintain the high reputation which they have gained; clever illusions are submitted by Morimura, assisted by the Japanese lady Miaka. Boy Dryden as a mimic of popular artists is well received; and the Knick-Knacks are smart dancers. Other turns are those of Hurley and Cole in a song-scena, the Fitzroys, gymnasts, and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney.—Will Letters, the popular comedian, gets a great reception; Douglas and Jack, acrobatic comedians, are very successful in their efforts to please; a highly enjoyable musical turn with electrical effects is submitted by Handel and Lee; Syd Morris, banjoist, makes an impression. The remaining popular items, Elsie Earle (comedienne), Norah Bremner (expert dancer), and the Tivoli Bioscope, conclude the bill.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The Edlscope and Barnum Animated Picture and Variety Company, under the management of Mr. J. B. Kennedy, are here this week. The pictures include some of the latest novelties of the photographer's art, and are both amusing and interesting. A series of slides depicting scenes illustrative of popular songs and ballads are also highly appreciated. Filling in the breaks between one series of pictures and another a number of speciality turns are contributed. Amongst those deserving of special notice are the Cedrics, Vic Verney, Stilvo, the Two Ver Vains, Vela, the Oldham Singing Mill Girl, and M. Reni and his clever dog.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fiori; Resident-Managers, Messrs. W. A. Jackson and Eugene E. Hardie.—The company this week comprises Harle and Harle, speciality artists; the Three Sisters Lee, acrobats, vocalists, and dancers; Nellie Cotter, comedienne; Elton and Elma, triple bar grotesques; the Belzacs, burlesque team; W. G. Webber, bass; Bros. Hannaway, comedians and dancers; J. W. Hall, the Lancashire comedian; and several extra turns.

ST. HELENS. — Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader. — Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are paying their annual visit. Othello was the attraction on Monday evening, Miss Esther Tearle being conspicuous for a fine rendering of Desdemona. Mr. Tearle's assumption of the Moor was powerful. During the week The Three Musketeers, Jeannie Deans, Ingomar, Hamlet, It's Never Too Late to Mend, and Julius Cæsar were to be given.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic. Carnell.—Haley's Prize Juveniles head the bill here. Clarke and Glenny, Harry Rogerson, Andy Fagan, Jimson's Dogs, Frank Maura, Harry Luck, Bertha Winder, and Dell and Hall are also among the attractions of a strong bill.

STOCKPORT. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—Large audiences have been interested in the America drama, A Fight for Millions, capitally played by Mr. Robt. Perris's company. Mr. Robt. Perris in the chief character of Tom Manley acts effectively, and Mr. Alex. C. Grant impersonates the villain Richard Dudley with much power and ability. Most efficient is Mr. Karl H. Edwards as Willie Neverwork, and Solomon Moses is an amusing character in the hands of Mr. Harold Turner. Pearl Rivers has a charming representative in Miss Eva Purcell, Miss Elma C. Turner acts sympathetically as Helen Dudley, and Miss Isabel Edbrook is pleasing as Mrs. Hudson Rivers.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The Lorch Family are here this week, and delight their audience with their acrobatic feats. Miss Nellie Stevens and company present an historical sketch, entitled My Lady Betty, which is greatly enjoyed; Spencer and Marks, in their sketch, Stage-struck Waifs, are very amusing; and Doody and Wright cause roars of laughter with their impersonations; Queenie May, a young and promising vocalist, is well received; Les Marsumas as comedians on wheels are exceedingly clever; and Poole and Poole are unique in their pedestal dancing act. The pictures are very amusing.

Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Mike Whallen heads the bill this week, and is greatly appreciated in his humorous patter; Sisters McNulty create a favourable impression with their dancing; the equilibristic feats of the Three Ferganos are highly appreciated; Lilian Lowe is a sweet and artistic singer; and Carlotta Levey renders popular songs with great success; Harry Nelson, a Tyneside comedian and an old favourite here, is very amusing; and the Bros. Ralston, excellent vocalists, are popular. The pictures, as usual, are very interesting.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—A sensational illusion is performed by the Venturinis. A sensational sketch is provided in Jealousy, in which Miss Constance Elgin, Miss Evelyn Vaudray, and Mr. A. Bartlett are specially successful. A smart acrobatic display is provided by the Seven Wulfrunas. The dancing of Phillips and Merritt is excellent. Robert Dohn as a manipulator of cannon balls, &c., provides a notable turn. Myra Love sings nicely. The Bros. Levett introduce some clever vaulting. Tom E. Cliffe is a good comedian, and the Pictures are diverting.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in The Blue Moon drew a crowded house here on Monday night. Mr. Alfred Clark is highly amusing as Major Vivian Callabone, and is entirely in his element; the same may be said of Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor. Captain Jack Ormesby is in the able hands of Mr. J. Edward Fraser; the Moolraj of Mr. Alfred Beers is excellent, and Mr. George Mudie is well placed as Bobbie Scott; Mr. Thomas Holding is conspicuous as the Prince; Miss Ethel Callanan is a pleasing Evelyn Ormsby, whilst Miss Florence Imeson is entrusted with the rôle of Millicent Leroy, who scores by her songs and dances. The title-rôle is portrayed by Miss Clarice Lockstone, a vocalist of considerable ability.

Avenue Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood is the attraction here. Robin Hood finds an apt exponent in Mr. Robert Minster, and Mr. Bellenden Clarke gives a capital rendering of Prince John; Hugo de Longespee is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Elliott Ball; Mr. Augustus Wheatman is highly WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company hold the boards here this week with the evergreen drama Driven From Home. The play is well put on, and the acting is of a high standard. Mr. Felix Pitt is well placed as Anthony Raybrook, handling the part with skill and artistic restraint; Mr. Herbert Young does all that is possible with that of Walter Hatherleigh; and Mr. Frederick Sandy is responsible for a finished piece of characterisation as Geoffrey Waring. The Peter Pettifer of Mr. E. Lawrence is a performance which it would be difficult to improve; Mr. Leonard Aardale is an admirable Willie, playing with fine pathos; Miss Beatrice Western, who has a capital reputation locally, is seen to great advantage as Laura Raybrook, and also doubles the part of the younger Hatherleigh. She is indeed an acquisition to the cast. Miss Lizzie Ingles is an actress of resource, and does fine work as Barbara. Miss Amy Wilson is a charmingly sympathetic Mrs. McCarthy. The Saw Mill scene is wonderfully realistic.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in The Village Blacksmith (G. Carlton Wallace) has attracted full houses nightly. Mr. Sam Livesey, as John Strong, the Village Blacksmith, plays the part naturally and with great power. The wrestling scene between him and Mr. Joseph Carter (Capt. Leo) is a realistic piece of acting. Mr. Geo. V. Campbell as Billy Twigg, a country lad, is an exceedingly humorous rustic who greatly delights the audiences. Miss Maggie Edwards impersonates Kate Strong the blacksmith's wife, and, together with Miss Bertha Hanbury, who takes the part of Harry Strong, the blacksmith's son, creates a most effective scene as the latter is supposed to be in a dying condition.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are smart trick cyclists, and Tate and Tate are marvellously clever acrobats. Ce-Me-Maree is a contortionist of the first order; and Gus Harris is a fine Hebrew character delineator with an excellent voice. Keir and Kempton, vocal soloists, pay a welcome return visit; and Jack Neil, Scots pattering comedian, is recalled nightly. Nellie Farrell, an extremely popular singer; Massona, a good juggler; Three of a Kind, a pleasing sketch; Mark Merry, comedian; and the Diable Rouge, ventriloquist, complete a good list of artists. On Wednesday afternoon a special benefit performance was given in aid of the Wigan Infirmary, when, in addition to the above-named artists, the following gave their services: Miss Florrie Gallimore, Miss Ada Cerito, Miss Gracie Bard, and Jack Pleasants.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—A return visit by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in that powerful stage representation of Mr. Hall Caine's charming story The Christian is being much appreciated by a large section of the playgoing public this week. The play is admirably presented, and prominent in a most capable company are Mr. Rawson Buckley (John Storm) and Miss Laura Walker (Glory Quayle), whose powerful impersonations have received gratifying acknowledgment nightly. As Horatio Drake Mr. Ernest Sitwell shows unlimited resource; and Mr. P. Gadge Twynam's Lord Robert Ure is distinctly artistic. Miss Constance Stephens as Mrs. Callendar displays commendable restraint.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and company opened here on Monday, presenting The Master Builder. Mr. Lovel gives an excellent impersonation of Halvard Solness; and Miss Ethel Caryllon scores as Aline Solness. Mr. Bruce Lindley does well as Dr. Herdal; Mr. A. Collins Rolfe is very fine as Knut Brovik; while Mr. Wilton Ross deserves praise as Ragnar Brovik. Miss Dora Levis is well placed as Kaia Fosli; Miss Octavia Kenmore is good as Hilda Wangel.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week Jake and Emilie, society entertainers, provide a most interesting performance; Walter Leslie and Lilian Player, comedy duettists, render some excellent songs; Mr. Tom Hulme's comic songs are well received; Miss Elsie Kenward, acrobatic dancer, contributes a pleasing turn; and Mr. Hyam Long, with his comedy musical show, also does well.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. Allan Wilkie, supported by his own company, is appearing this week with success in a series of Shakespeare's plays. In Hamlet, on Monday, Mr. Wilkie gave a fine rendering of the Danish prince; indeed, he astonished all by the fire with which he endowed the part. Miss Ine Cameron acted capably as Ophelia; Mr. G. Alexander Marsh was a picturesque Laertes; and Mr. George Munro manifested versatility by playing the parts of the Gravedigger and Poloni in excellent style.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Harry Roxbury and his excellent company are making merry this week in The Prince of Monte Carlo, a trifle specially suited to the inimitable style of Mr. Roxbury, who fairly convulses the audiences by his clever eccentricities. Clito poses marvellously, and is well received. The favourite, Fanny Robina, is heartily received nightly, and, in conjunction with that sweet singer, Florry Cooper, is a decided success. The Moxons, Tiny Arnold, Billie Burt, Clelland, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled

"A GAMBLER'S DAUGHTER."

The return visit of A Gambler's Daughter has been very successful in Marylebone, the West Londoners thoroughly enjoying the piece and the capable acting shown. As the genial Irishman, Desmond O'Dare, Mr. Robert Ayrton has a part that fits him like the proverbial glove, and his easy, suave methods win frequent applause. Mr. Alfred Sanders impersonates the wily Hebrew, Solomon Solomons, in typical fashion; Mr. Victor portrays the vacillating Jack Grant suitably; Mr. Milton proffers a robust rendering of the American capitalist, Ralph Gillman; Mr. Harry Barham is energetic as Captain Stanhope; whilst Mr. Chas. Stirling brings the villainies of Stephen Brand well to the fore, his representation of the character being full of merit. Miss Harriett Lloydall as the negress Auntie Zeb, puts in plenty of good work, and scores accordingly; Miss Maggie Hobart and Miss Annie Broughton do well as Mrs. Sam and Mrs. Jake respectively; and Miss Adria Hill, in the dual rôle of Mildred and Miriam Grant, plays with plenty of spirit, marked with skilful effect, her efforts calling for high praise. The piece is well mounted and staged, the whole production being most satisfactory.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 4, the Musical Comedy, entitled

"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

Mr. Frank Curzon's latest musical comedy success was presented by Mr. F. Mouillot's Co. here on Monday, and was enthusiastically received. Miss Nora Brocklebank invests the character of Winnie Willoughby with a dainty freshness and charm that are very attractive; Miss Rose Helene as Susie is delightfully entertaining; Miss Olivia Eltone is a very pleasing Millie Mostyn; Miss Doris Langdon is a charming Ninette; and the numerous smaller parts are capably filled by their attractive and clever representatives. Mr. Arthur Cartwright's fine voice is heard to the greatest possible advantage in "The land where the best man wins," and he is excellent as Charles Chetwyn. The other pretty and taking numbers receive full justice at the hands of the various artists responsible for their rendering. M. Duval, proprietor of the Maison Duval, is capitally represented by Mr. Jules Charmettes; Mr. Clarke Chadwick is very good as Sir Wilkie Willoughby, whose better half is well impersonated by Miss Winifred Knightly; Mr. A. M. Moore is very amusing as the waiter, as are Mr. Frederick Park as Adolphus Dudds and Mr. Howard Cridland as Viscount Gushington. The other male parts are well filled; the chorus look very pretty and sing well, and the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Hubert Sullivan Brooke.

"SIR GEORGE OF ALMACK'S."

A New Costume Comedy of the Eighteenth Century, in Four Acts, by H. F. Maltby, produced for the first time at the Theatre Royal, Dover, on Thursday, Feb. 28.

Walter Inman ..... MR. H. F. MALTBY
Sir George Wimbledon .... MR. WYN WEAVER
The Duke of Porchester.... MR. HARRIS FRASER
James Briarley ..... MR. REGINALD FAVELL
Sir Christopher Chiselhurst ..... MR. LYNDON C. IRWIN
Sir Montague Huntley.... MR. R. SEETH INNES
Colonel Wodehouse ..... MR. FRANC STONEY
Joseph ..... MR. GEORGE LAIDLAW
Lady Clare Houseby ..... MISS MARA MALTBY
Betty Price-Cordiner .. MISS GRACE RICHARDSON
Lady Whenow ..... MISS JANET HODSON
Mary ..... MISS DOROTHY COUSINS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The delightful theme which secured for Mr. Maltby's former comedy, The Younger of Three, so favourable a reception is replaced in this play by a stronger and entirely different interest. The genuinely witty lines, the amusing, and at times powerful scenes, well worked up, and the distinct characterisation, all contributed to the undoubted success which was achieved. The fine scenery, procured from the Carlyle Scenic Studio, lends itself admirably to the pretty costumes of the period, and with effective grouping some very pretty stage pictures are secured.

The first act serves principally to introduce Sir George and his friends. We learn that Lady Clare Houseby, a young and fascinating widow, is living with her sister Betty Price-Cordiner, under the guardianship of their uncle, Walter Inman. He has made a will leaving his money to his nieces on the condition that one of them becomes the wife of his stepson, Sir George Wimbledon. Though engaged to Betty, George has given his love to the elder sister Clare. The fair Betty six months ago was secretly married to James Briarley, a man with an income of but £100 a year. For fear of incurring her uncle's anger, and thus losing all chance of inheriting his money, the young lady has prevailed on her husband to keep their marriage secret, for a time at least. The Duke of Porchester, a man of doubtful reputation, returns to London and endeavours to pick up the thread of his amorous discourse of two years ago with Lady Houseby, but she is a wiser woman now, and merely laughs at his ardour. Sir Christopher Chiselhurst is another visitor who brings news of an "affair of honour" between a certain Colonel Granville and Sir George Wimbledon, commonly known as Sir George of Almack's, the smartest and most exclusive club in town, who is mockingly referred to as the champion swordsman of England. The curtain falls on this most exquisite specimen of dandyhood acknowledging the polite greetings of his friends with one of his famous bows. In the second act—the Pantiles, Tunbridge Wells—an erstwhile companion of the duke, Colonel Wodehouse by name, a man of many aliases, and with none too scrupulous a sense of honour, makes his appearance. Sir George proposes to Lady Clare, and is rejected. He and the Duke of Porchester quarrel, and a challenge is given and accepted.

The Green Man, near Tunbridge Wells, is the scene of the third act. Hither come Sir George and his second, Montague Huntley, and a strange interview takes place between the friends. Sir Montague implores Wimbledon to depart before the duke arrives, and to leave the country for a time. Sir George, amazed by such advice, presses Huntley for an explanation. Reluctantly the latter speaks, and for the first time in his life the dandy hears the world's real opinion of the man they have flattered and courted. The reason why his previous opponents have offered extravagant apologies instead of fighting him is not because they fear his skill as a swordsman, but because they know he is incapable even of defending himself with success; that, like the rest of the world, his fencing master has been laughing at him for a conceited coxcomb. Sir Montague adds that the loudest to laugh was the lovely Lady Houseby, and Wimbledon, who is hardly convinced that Huntley is not jesting with him, takes exception at the use of the lady's name, and draws his sword on his friend. That his words are true as regards Sir George's lack of skill at fencing is proved by the rapidity with which he is disarmed, and the equally speedy surrender he is forced into by Sir Montague's greater knowledge of wrestling. However, his manhood asserts itself, and he goes forth bravely to meet his fate at the hands of one of the most experienced swordsmen in England. Before his departure he writes a line to Lady Houseby, imploring her forgiveness for his egoism, and stating that he is trying to make amends. Porchester enters, fully determined to kill his man. He informs Colonel Wodehouse that he is anticipating the arrival of Lady Clare, who has heard where the duel is to take place, and who is coming to try and stop the fight. Wodehouse receives instructions and a bribe to detain the lady on any pretence until it is too late for her to interfere. This he succeeds in doing. However, Wimbledon, by a lucky thrust, disables the sword arm of his opponent; but the very humble young man who enters Mr. Inman's apartments later in the day is indeed a contrast to the dashing "young blood" of the morning, and when he, with genuine modesty this time, begs the honour of Betty's hand in marriage, her answer is not difficult to guess. On his finding that Clare is willing to take her sister's place and marry his stepson, Inman's anger cools, and there is nothing left to do but stick together again the will in the girls' favour he destroyed in his frenzy.

The character of Sir George Wimbledon, the exquisite dandy, with his striking mannerisms and unbounded conceit, is a most difficult one to impersonate, and it was much to Mr. Wyn Weaver's credit that he made Sir George, in spite of all, a lovable fellow. The genuine spirit of comedy in the first part of the play, and later the absolute sincerity of his acting, made a deep impression on the audience. Walter Inman is another part with strong characterisation. Possessed of a keen sense of humour, a slight testiness of temper, and a heart tender as a woman's, the portrait sketched by Mr. Maltby is complete. A fine stage presence assisted Mr. Harris Fraser materially in his assumption of the rôle of the Duke of Porchester. The unscrupulous nature of the man was exceedingly well suggested by the artist, who certainly made the most of an unthankful part. On Mr. Franc Stoney unstinted praise must be bestowed for a really fine piece of acting as Colonel Wodehouse. Two character sketches, entirely dissimilar, were the Sir Christopher Chiselhurst of Mr. Lyndon C. Irwin, and the Sir Montague Huntley of Mr. R. Seeth Innes. The affectation of the former was well contrasted by the manliness of the latter, and special praise is due to Mr. Innes for his meritorious portrayal. The ardent James Briarley had a capable exponent in Mr. Reginald Favell. Miss Price-Cordiner was played by Miss Grace Richardson, and this clever young lady scored a great success in the part. The charm of Miss Mara Maltby's exquisitely-modulated voice, and the general gracefulness of her former impersonations, have won for her a warm place in the hearts of local playgoers, but rarely has she had such scope for her undoubted talent as in her brother's latest production. From grave to gay, from laughter to tears, she carried the audience with her, and the proud and imperious Lady Houseby, when endowed with the charm of her own personality, became entirely irresistible. The part of Lady Whenow, effective in its intense vivacity, was cleverly acted by Miss Janet Hodson; and an amusing rendering of a country waiting maid was the work of Miss Dorothy Cousins. The new comedy was received with much enthusiasm.

ENGLISH ARTISTS' "BERLIN" FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you be so kind as to draw attention in your columns to the above-mentioned fund, which has been started with a view to enabling all British singers to express their feelings of sympathy and comradeship towards the dependents of the German opera singers who were involved in the wreck of the Berlin?

According to present information, thirteen of these artists were drowned, twelve of them being chorus singers; and this sad fact makes a more eloquent appeal to us than any amount of words. Here is an opportunity for all British singers to show that they are colleagues in reality, and whilst the most substantial subscriptions of principal singers are necessary, it is hoped to receive a general response also from chorus singers in small contributions—to make the fund, in fact, a representative message from the whole of the singing profession.

The following have already joined the committee which is being formed:—Mme. Marie Brema, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Mr. John Coates, Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. D. Ffrangcon-Davies, Mr. Gervase Elwes, Mr. Robert Hilton, Dr. Theo Lierhammer, and Mr. Robert Radford.

An account has been opened at the London and South-Western Bank, Ltd., 451, Oxford-street, London, W., and subscriptions may be sent there; to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, care of The Era; or to the undersigned, who would be glad to send subscription-cards to responsible managers of singing companies.—Yours faithfully, JOHN COATES.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reference to your article, "Pessimism and the Provinces," I should like to say a few words. Drama has been dangerously weakened by bad writers who call themselves "authors"; men who have no talent for writing, who do not understand the art of characterisation; to whom real human nature, high aspirations, nobility of character and sentiment, are unknown qualities, as far as their dramatic efforts go. They are poor copyists. One good human play is repeated innumerable times, with this or that alteration, by men who have no ability to "create." A series of situations, careworn and old, parts played by the usual "lines," who are sick of the monotonous tasks given to them; a plot that seldom varies, scenes that never do; a critical pit and gallery, stalls and circle, waiting for something good to elevate and inspire them, instead of which they are left indifferent. They know it all, and are tired of it; so they go where they can get variety.

Drama should elevate, variety amuse; both can hold their own if springing from the right sources. Anyone, it seems, can write a drama nowadays; but how few "inspire" one?

If a drama goes badly, perhaps the manager will introduce a song or two, and these happening to go well, will lull the manager into the belief that his play is strengthened thereby; whereas it shows only weakness when the audience will welcome something quite outside the story as a relief. Let the author go to the heart of things: learn that he can't write, or, if he can, more shame for him to debase natural talents by writing to order, thinking to please the public, and afraid to show the world himself, for fear they might not approve.

If drama is to do good, it must be as an art, not a mechanism. Let the theatre be large or small, good or bad, controlled by syndicate or working man, human nature and intelligence remain the same all over, and can be appealed to, if the appeal is genuine.

As a result of bad plays we get bad artists. One can't feed a child on husks and expect it to thrive. How many actors and actresses of the present day are striving for something above these much-worn and conventional dramas? How many go on year after year in the hope that each fresh part will bring something good, something real? The ambitions with which they started are slowly and surely crushed, until they, like the so-called "authors," work by mechanism, not art.

Those few who have never played any but well-written parts cannot realise what this means to some. It's like forcing an artist to daub out "pot-boilers" for a living, when the longing is for better and nobler inspiring work.

Those who can write put aside conventionality and other men's works, and write for the love of art, and from their own convictions.

Citing Moody-Manners Opera Company in your leading article, what higher form of art can we judge by? Then, some say, the public want trash. They insult the intelligence of the working orders to such a degree that it is a wonder they tolerate bad drama even as well as they do.

Let authors, both "would-be" and "have been," "go back to the source and find divinity." The fault lies in the produce, not the market.—Yours faithfully, A PROVINCIAL ACTRESS.

"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I note in your last issue a letter from Mr. Chas. Ross, in which he contends that the idea on which When Knights Were Bold is founded belongs to a fairy play of his own, produced three years since.

May I be permitted to point out to Mr. Ross that I wrote, and produced at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, on Nov. 13, 1903, "a musical fantasy," in which I took the central character (also attired in modern costume), 3,000 years back; and, strange to say, I also "ignited a match," to the discomfiture of the pre-historics, and not only smoked a cigarette, but presented the box to an "ancient ancestor," together with the coupon!—Yours faithfully, ARTHUR STIGANT.

Theatre Royal, Manchester, March 3, 1907.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reference to the letter of Mr. Charles Ross re the above play in your last issue, I beg to point out that Charles Marlowe's play was in my possession ten years ago. That is seven years before My Fairy Fanciful was produced.—Yours faithfully, WILLIAM HOLLES.

DEATH OF MR. W. B. BROADHEAD.

With regret, we announce the death of Mr. William Birch Broadhead, who was for some three years a member of the Manchester City Council, and was well known in Lancashire as the proprietor of several theatres and music halls. Mr. Broadhead, who was only thirty-four years old, died at his residence, Park-road, Whalley Range, Manchester, on Sunday night, after only a week's illness.

He was present at the Town Hall on the occasion of the theatre licensing by the Watch Committee on Feb. 21, but caught a cold while motoring from London, and succumbed to an acute attack of pneumonia, accompanied by heart failure.

Mr. Broadhead, who is the eldest son of Councillor W. H. Broadhead, last year's Mayor of Blackpool, was intimately concerned in the theatrical life of Lancashire. About a dozen years ago he headed a concern which started with the object of developing the entertainment business outside the centre of the city. The first theatre opened was the Osborne, in Oldham-road, and so successful did the venture prove that in a few years Messrs. Broadhead built the Metropole and the Junction Theatres. The firm took a prominent part in the development of local music halls some years ago, and they now own, in addition to the theatres mentioned, the hippodromes in Hulme, Queen's Park, and Salford, and a variety theatre, the King's, Longsight. The theatre undertakings of the firm have extended to other Lancashire towns, notably Preston and Bury.

Mr. Broadhead was a hard worker, and personally conducted the most important business with the theatres. The news of his untimely end almost at the beginning of a promising career has been received by his numerous friends with sincere regret.

The cremation of the late Mr. Broadhead took place at Manchester Crematorium. The cortège left the late residence of the deceased in Park-road on Wednesday about half an hour before noon. A short service had previously been held in the house.

The principal mourners were:—Councillor W. H. Broadhead and Mrs. Broadhead, of Blackpool, father and mother; Mrs. W. B. Broadhead, widow; Mr. Percy B. Broadhead, only surviving brother; Miss Broadhead, sister; Miss H. Broadhead, sister; Rev. G. O. Bainton and Mrs. Bainton, of Blackpool; brother-in-law and sister; Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Thompson, of London, brother-in-law and sister; Mr. H. Winstanley, secretary to Mr. Broadhead; and Mr. Sylvester Smith, a life-long friend.

Awaiting their arrival at Chorlton, the managers and members of the general staffs from all the Broadhead theatres at Manchester, Salford, Bury, Ashton-under-Lyne, and Preston, together with the artists appearing at the theatres, assembled to the number of about 300. Headed by a band, consisting of musicians from the various theatres, they marched four abreast to the Crematorium, the band playing Chopin's "Funeral March." The managers present were:—Messrs. E. T. Kay, H. Hearn, W. S. Leech, E. Lindsell, J. B. Taylor, T. W. Meek, C. H. Wentworth, J. Mason, F. Dry, and A. Evanson. Many nationalities were represented among the employees and artists. Chief among them was a troupe of Chinese. Two omnibuses were required to convey the wreaths and floral emblems to the Crematorium. Among the senders were the members of the family and other relatives, and the staffs of the various theatres under the control of Messrs. Broadhead.

The burial service was read by the Rev. G. O. Bainton. The committal to earth took place at Blackpool on Thursday, when all the ten Broadhead halls remained closed.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

There have been numerous and appreciative audiences at the Royal County Theatre this week to witness this interesting play, which had so favourable a reception on the occasion of its first presentation in the riverside town some time ago, and there could be no doubt from the manner of its reception that the exciting events of the story were as keenly appreciated as before. The title-rôle is ably filled by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart; and Mr. W. Pemberton gives a fine portrayal of the part of Dr. Watson. Mr. James Skea gives a good account of himself in the part of Prof. Moriarty; and valuable assistance is rendered by Mr. James Hall as James Larrabee. Master Leslie Hall makes many friends by his impersonation of the part of Billy. Amongst the ladies of the company, the performance of Miss Gladys Harvey as Alice Faulkner, and of Miss Georgina Wynter as Madge Larrabee, were much appreciated. The play was admirably staged in every respect.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Friday, March 1, when there were present: Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Henry Warburton (counsel); Mesdames Georgina Hamilton and Kate Phillips; and Messrs. Henry Ainley, H. Granville Barker, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, H. Athol Forde, Alfred Kendrick, Kenyon Musgrave, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). A matter placed before the Council, after a lengthy discussion, was disposed of.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday last, when there were present: Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Henry Warburton (counsel); Mesdames Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, Edith Wynne Matthison, Maud Milton, and Kate Phillips; and Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, Lewis Casson, H. Athol Forde, C. V. France, Alfred Kendrick, Norman McKinnel, Fredk. Morley, Spencer Trevor, Frank Vernon, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). A case of alleged bogus management was considered, and the hon. solicitors were requested to look into the matter, and, if necessary, take proceedings to recover the amount due to the member lodging the complaint. The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised members on points submitted.

It was agreed by the majority present that the Council recommend: "That acting-managers transacting business for a company in which they have no proprietary interest shall be eligible for election as members of the Actors' Association, subject to a record as to past work, corresponding to that supplied by actor applicants, being satisfactory to the Council." Miss Eugenie Vernie and Miss Cecile Anson were elected as commissioners. Two cases of alleged insanitation at provincial theatres were considered, and the explanations given by the authorities were deemed satisfactory. Dr. F. K. Kerr, 57, Easter-road, Leith, was elected as an hon. medical officer to the Association. Robert Horton and P. Perceval Clark were nominated for election as members of the A.A.

The following proposition was put to the meeting: "That a special general meeting be called, not later than March 30 next, to make the following changes in the articles of association: Delete article 11, and substitute for it, 'The Association shall be governed by a Council consisting of a president, eight vice-presidents, and twenty-five ordinary members, who shall be elected annually at the general meeting in accordance with article 25, sections 2 and 3, and shall hold office for one year. Any retiring member shall be eligible for re-election. The Council shall have power to transact all the business of the Association. Five to form a quorum.'" The proposition having been seconded, it was discussed at considerable length, and upon being put to the vote was declared lost.

The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. The Suggestion Book was considered, and entries made. The meeting opened at 2.30, and closed at 6 p.m.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present: Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, Lewis Casson, A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). An expenditure on behalf of the social meetings was authorised. Questions in connection with the internal decoration of the premises, together with necessary repairs, were considered, and instructions were given for the obtaining of estimates.

The Commissioners' Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present: Mesdames Georgina Hamilton, Rose Mathews, and Lucy Sibley; Messrs. Burton Cooke, Ralph Roberts, Edmond T. Sayers, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Miss Rose Mathews was elected chairman of this committee for the year 1907-8. Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn was elected a member of the committee. A complaint made by a late member of the A.A. was placed before the meeting by a member of the committee, and, the secretary having stated that the matter had already been dealt with by the Council, it was resolved that this committee could not go into it.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Geo. E. Carleton, the business-manager for Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, with The Village Blacksmith, was presented on his birthday, the 28th ult., by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Livesey with a handsome solid silver cigar-case, suitably inscribed. The gentlemen of the company also took occasion to present Mr. Carleton with a genuine cowhide kit bag.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 4, the Musical Comedy
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

"The Belle" pays a return visit to the King's this week, and large houses testify to the enduring popularity of this most popular of the musical comedy importations from the land of the stars and stripes. The piece appears to lose nothing of its freshness, and is as attractive now as when it first caught the fancy of the English public on the production at the Shaftesbury years ago. The present company, under the management of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, is exceptionally strong, and helps to make the play go with a swing and a dash that are distinctly exhilarating. Mr. Paddy Dupres makes a very quaint and quietly effective Ichabod Bronson, and keeps the audience in evident good humour. Harry Bronson is ably rendered by Mr. John Doran, who sings very pleasantly. Mr. Max Copeland is an exceedingly droll "Polite Lunatic," and roars of laughter reward his clever acting. Mr. A. Sandoe is a substantial Doc Smifkins, and Kenneth Mugg is played very comically by Mr. Walter Uridge. Blinky Bill is undertaken by Mr. Frank Lawton, whose whistling and dancing are invariably encored. The twin Counts Ratsi and Patsi are amusingly portrayed by Mr. Yeoman and Mr. Cody; Fricot and Snooper are capably handled by Mr. C. W. Anson and Mr. Owen O'Brien. Miss Empsie Bowman is a bewitchingly demure Violet Grey, and fully deserves the many plaudits she receives for her singing and acting. As Fifi Fricot, Miss Lily Maxwell scores a well-merited success; she makes a characteristic Parisienne, and looks fascinating. Kissie Fitzgarter and Mamie Clancy find a clever representative in Miss Florence Hersee, whose liveliness is just what is required. Miss Winnie Browne is a handsome and dashing Cora Angelique. The ladies of the chorus are exceedingly attractive in new costumes, and act very animatedly, and the gentlemen of the chorus sing tunefully. The orchestra is under the judicious control of Mr. B. J. Patterson.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

The reception accorded the second return visit of Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in The Gay Parisienne on Monday was of the most enthusiastic nature, principals and chorus alike coming in for their full share of appreciation. In the personnel of Mr. Macdonna's company it is pleasing to notice several old favourites who have done him yeoman service. As Ebenezer Honeycombe, the "shining light," the genial and clever comedian Mr. Will Harman has capital material, which he uses with skill. His eccentricity is delightfully spontaneous and his humour infectious, and that he makes the most of his many admirable opportunities goes without saying. Miss Lilian Talbot is an ideal Mlle. Julie Bon-bon. She is graceful in every movement, and her tasteful dancing and singing enhance in no small degree the effect of the rôle. Major Fossdyke, of the Battersea Butterfly Shooters, has a capital exponent in Mr. Squire Day, who infuses plenty of life into the part and acquits himself with credit vocally. The rôle of Tom Everleigh is wisely entrusted to Mr. Philip Moore, who proves himself equal to the call made upon him; his rendering of "In Dreamland" is one of the hits of the evening. Miss Holford Beringer, a lady possessing a voice of no little culture, gives an artistic portrayal of Mrs. Honeycombe, and is in every way suited to the part, displaying undoubted vocal ability, of which she makes full use in her satirical song on "Man." Miss Nance O'Neill fills the part of Norah with much charm both in acting and singing; and the characters of Angela, Maud, Ethel, and Gladys, the Major's daughters, are pleasingly rendered by the Misses Kathleen O'Mally, E. McHardy, Gertrude Davies, and Lucie Donato. Praise is due to Mr. Douglas Howard for his impersonation of Amos Dingle; and Mr. Leslie Waller makes the most of the part of Algernon Ducie. Mr. Fitz-James and Mr. Bloomfield Jones' long association with the parts of Hans and Fritz make their work admirably natural, and gain them hearty recognition. Mr. Clifford Seyler as M. Pompier abounds with humour, and his song "Gertie on the go," with an eccentric dance, is one of the features of the piece. Miss Madge Soutter, who undertakes the part of Ruth, has a humorous style which well accords with the character, and scores a success with her number "Sister Mary Jane's top note." All the other parts are capably represented, the work of the chorus is praiseworthy, and the score is smoothly and very well treated by the augmented orchestra, under the skilful direction of Mr. C. Encyl Lewis. The rendering of various quartettes by the Imperial Glee Singers is highly appreciated; and praise is also due to Mr. Cecil Lawrence for his whistling medley.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 4, the Musical Play, entitled
"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

That merry musical comedy, A Chinese Honeymoon, is proving a big attraction at the Camden this week, where large audiences are being vastly amused by the adventures of the gay Mr. Pineapple and his lively bride. Mr. George Dance's company includes many versatile artists, who make the play go with a great swing. As Princess Soo-Soo Miss Nancy Rossiter sings delightfully, her song, "Egypt," being a pretty number. Another song, with a dainty umbrella dance, is also much appreciated. Mr. George Rydon, an energetic comedian, is in capital form as Mr. Pineapple, scoring heavily with the popular "Happy Land" verses. A most engaging Mrs. Pineapple is found in Miss Gladys Ward, who plays with great spirit and has some very good songs, notably the "A la Girl," which she renders in chic style. Miss Ward also contributes a pretty coon lilt, which concludes with a neatly-executed dance. The Lord High Admiral, Hi Lung, becomes a most diverting personage as portrayed by Mr. Leonard May, and his efforts to secure a wife for the Emperor cause endless hilarity. The chief honours in the lighter vein, however, undoubtedly fall to Miss Gwennie Harcourt, who is quite one of the best lady comedians to be found. She has a genuine sense of drollery, and as Fi Fi she is a tremendous success. Her song, "I want to be a lady," is given with rare point and humour, and in "When I make my début" she fairly brings down the house by her droll skits on the Gibson Girl and Sousa. The Emperor, Hang Chow, is depicted by Mr. Rudolph Kloss in a stately manner. He has a fine voice, which he uses to advantage. Mr. P. Allerton Turner, with a clever make-up, is good as Chippie Chop, the Lord Chancellor; Mr. Harry Jennings makes a smart and dashing Tom Hatherton, playing in finished style; Miss Brown, the official mother-in-law, finds an able representative in Miss Maud Adams, who adds considerably to the enjoyment of the audience; the Misses Dorothy Radcliffe, Iris Roy, Kathleen Kerr, and Elsie Skillings make bewitching bridesmaids; and Miss Ada Booth and Miss Daisy Moule are a couple of dainty maids-of-honour. The orchestra and chorus work well under the bâton of Mr. W. J. Damant; and the stage is under Mr. P. O. Turner's direction. Mr. Alfred Munro is the general-manager for the company.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 4,
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company, in the merry farcical musical play, The Dairymaids, is furnishing fun and frolic here this week. The piece is very prettily mounted and staged, the scene of Lady Brudenell's model dairy farm at Hindstead wafting the fragrance of the meadow and the scent of the hedgerows across the footlights. A large assortment of pretty and shapely girls brighten and beautify the stage, while the gymnasium at Miss Penelope Pychase's academy is a realistic set. Miss Violet Lloyd, a bright, intelligent, and wholly charming representative of the part of Peggy, scores considerably in her lively and exhilarating "Tinker, tailor" song, and in her "Sandow girl" ditty, with its chorus of charming representatives of the "getting stronger" sex, she also duly emphasises all the points. Miss Rhoda Gordon looks smart in her dairymaid's dress, and her song, "Hullo, little stranger," with the clever child exponents of the chorus chiming in, earns encomiums galore. Miss Beryl Vaudrey, in the small part of Helene (their half-sister), has in "My own little Rose" one of the prettiest songs of the piece. Miss Cissie Sephton is full of life and animation as Eliza, the bucolic maid-of-all-work at Pychase's, and has a capital song in "Mary kept a dairy," almost equally good being her ditty, "Why do they want to grumble?" With two such capable comedians as Mr. E. Statham Staples as Sam Brudenell and Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivens, needless to say the ball of fun is kept rolling at a terrific pace throughout. Their combined efforts in the "Poacher" duet are excruciatingly funny; while in "Jane and Mary" Mr. Staples (with Mr. Geo. Desmond as Lieut. Frank Brudenell) gets in some good "business," and he is very effective in his song of the ladies' club "In Dover Street." Mr. Forbes Dawson brings a ripe judgment and an easy manner to bear upon the part of Dr. O'Byrne, R.N.; and Miss Edith Blanche gives a very pleasing and discreet rendering of that of Lady Brudenell. Mr. Alec Fraser as Captain Fred Leverton has a pretty song, "Dear little girl of dreamland"; Miss Madge Avery is duly acrimonious and unprepossessing as Penelope Pychase; and some exceedingly pretty girls figure in the chorus. Mr. J. B. Gordon is general-manager to the company, and Mr. Arthur Paterson stage-manager for Mr. Courtneidge; whilst Mr. Albert Bartlett conducts the augmented orchestra.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, March 4, the Comic Opera,
"THE LITTLE MICHUS."

Those winsome damsels, the two little Michus, are paying a return visit to Peckham this week, and are being deservedly accorded a very hearty welcome. Mr. George Dance's premier company gives an interpretation of the piece which leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Alice Coverick has a very tuneful voice, and acts with much intelligence as Marie Blanche; and Miss Gipsy Dale provides a fascinating portrait of the demure little Blanche Marie. Both ladies bring down the house with their delightful rendering of the duet, "The prayer to St. Valentine." Mr. Foster Courtenay provides a character-sketch of great ability and comic force as the choleric General Des Ifs, and his narrative concerning the quaint habits of the Gazeka causes roars of laughter. Mr. William Everard makes a comely lover as Gaston Rigaud, and his singing is excellent. Mr. Gilbert Childs materially aids the fun, and dances very neatly as the eccentric Bagnolet. Mr. Leon Simkin contributes a good character-sketch as the old farmer, Pierre Michu. Mlle. Marjorie, in the rôle of Mlle. St. Cyr, does some graceful dances. Mr. Robert C. Harcourt causes considerable amusement as the foolish young bumpkin, Aristide Vert; Miss Mary Young is well placed as the shewish Mme. Michu; and Mr. Edwin Stanley extracts a good deal of fun out of the part of the Market Man. Mr. Otto Manns ably conducts the orchestra, and the large chorus work hard and successfully. The scenery and effects are beyond reproach, and the production is received with great favour.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 3, the Comedy entitled
"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

The fascination which Mr. Pinero's delightful comedy His House In Order still possesses for the playgoing public, despite its lengthy and successful run at St. James's Theatre, was amply demonstrated by the large and appreciative audience which assembled at the Kennington Theatre on Monday to witness its first production in the Southern suburbs. The enterprise which Mr. Robert Arthur has shown in securing this first-class attraction has, furthermore, been rewarded by excellent business throughout the week. The play is certainly admirably presented, for Mr. Geo. Alexander's company includes the names of several artists of high standing, who have added to their reputations by the sympathetic manner in which they present the various characters entrusted to them. The piece does not give much scope for staging, but the scene at Overbury Towers is well put on. Mr. Frank Fenton gave a careful and complete study of the character of Hilary Jesson, around whom the story is woven. His happy treatment of the many difficult situations which arise stamped him as an actor of fine artistic perception, and he made himself first favourite with everyone present. Miss Auriol Lee was a pretty and impulsive Nina. She acted with fine feeling, and in several of the trying situations in which she was placed appealed to the susceptibilities of the audience by the charming grace of her personality. Mr. Cyril Harcourt gave a remarkably fine representation of the part of Filmer Jesson, M.P., being seen with especial advantage in Act IV., when he discovers how he has been deceived, and has, consequently, misjudged Nina. As Major Maurewarde, Mr. Lloyd Lowndes scores a great triumph, the part giving him excellent scope for displaying his high histrionic powers. Miss Audrey Campbell was very fine as the passionless Geraldine Ridgeley; while Mrs. Kemmis as the overbearing Lady Ridgeley was all that could be desired. Mr. George Fitzgerald made a big hit as Sir Daniel Ridgeley, and Mr. A. E. Benedict created a great deal of amusement as Dr. Dilnott; while Miss Maisie Richardson was an interesting and attractive figure as Derek Jesson. Mr. Geo. Silver gave a clever impersonation of the not easy character of Pryce Ridgeley; and Mr. Reginald Besant deserves a good word for his delineation of the rôle of Harding. As Mlle. Thomé Miss Lille Kerr was seen at her best; while the minor parts of the reporter and the servants were creditably taken by Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. Barnett Parker, and Mr. Frank Elton.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled
"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

Mr. J. M. East's stock company this week has revived the famous drama, Driven from Home, in which sentiment and humour are combined in equal parts with episodes of the most exciting kind, one scene revealing the interior of a saw-mill with machinery in motion. Each member of the popular company receives a hearty greeting as he or she appears. Mr. Albert Ward, who is accorded a specially cordial reception, is seen as Willie, the outcast—a complex character, the difficulties of which are many and varied, but the favourite actor surmounts them easily. Mr. Ward plays throughout with distinction, his fine declamatory powers drawing forth frequent cheers for the vigorous lines he has to deliver. The tribulations of Laura Raybrook, the young wife, who is turned ruthlessly from the parental roof, are borne with becoming fortitude by Miss Lilly Hammersley. She obtains in a constantly-increasing degree the deepest sympathies of all, being especially affecting in the poignant scene in the snow-laden streets, and in every phase of the part the actress's dramatic gifts are fully apparent. Miss Hammersley cleverly doubles the part with that of Walter Hatherleigh the younger. Mr. C. Groves, jun., plays admirably as Walter Hatherleigh, Laura's unfortunate husband, who is shot for poaching. Manly and confident, Mr. Groves makes Walter a favourite throughout his career—brought prematurely to a close. Anthony Raybrook, the inflexible father, is strikingly depicted by Mr. H. W. Hatchman, who puts the cast-iron nature of the man realistically before the audience. As Barbara Ashdown, Raybrook's servant, who afterwards becomes his wife, Miss Hettie Godfrey rouses the audience to a high degree of resentment; Mr. Horace Hunter as Geoffrey Waring is again seen in the rôle of villainy, of which there is a liberal allowance in the piece, and by his expressive delivery and varied action give full value to the part; Mr. Brian Daly as the faithful old servitor, Jabez Thomas, is successful throughout. Comedy relief is supplied in profusion by Mr. Teddy Coleman, who makes John Anderson a blythe and cheery personage; and Miss Marie Wright ably assists the fun as his sweetheart, Margaret. Humour is also furnished by Mr. George Thorne, jun., who, as Tom Mortlakes, makes the most of the scene in which the bellringer and his mates (played by Mr. S. Feversham and Mr. E. Hudson) cause a drunken diversion. Mr. J. M. East gives a really clever character-sketch as Saunders, "a bad sample of the British workman"; Mr. Frank Harrison as the solicitor, Adam Marley, gains applause for his delivery of many effective lines; Miss Gladys Anderson gives a characteristic rendering of a well-disposed slavey; and other parts in a long cast are satisfactorily sustained. The orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Albert A. Forshaw, ably supplies the incidental music.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 4, the Farcical Comedy, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Mr. Brandon Thomas is appearing with great success this week at the Dalston Theatre in his world-famous farcical comedy, Charley's Aunt. As Colonel Sir Francis Chesney Mr. Thomas continues to demonstrate his capability for acting a popular part, as well as writing one. Mr. Walter Beaumont's Stephen Spettigue is a noteworthy specimen of broad comedy, and the bumptious and fussy type of provincial lawyer has here an actual counterpart. An excellent view of the days of college life is afforded by Mr. Hastings Lynn as Jack Chesney, Mr. Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham, and Mr. Spencer Trevor as Lord Fancourt Babberley. The latter individual, during the greater part of the piece, impersonates Charley's Aunt, and his vagaries keep the audience in a roar. Mr. Sydney Compton's Brassett, a college scout, is a true sketch of the subservient and self-constrained manservant. Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez (the real Charley's Aunt), as represented by Miss Lena MacNaughton, is a most effective contrast to the bogus relative, whom the legitimate relation is pleased to allude to as "a frump." Miss Bertha Northam as Kitty Verdun, Miss Ida Vynall as Amy Spettigue, and Miss Ruth Nightingale as Ela Delahay, are bright and bewitching, and add materially to the life of the piece. The one-act play, A Highland Legacy, by the same gifted author, in which he plays the part of Tammy Tamson MacDonnel, and is very ably supported by Mr. Hastings Lynn, Mr. Sydney Compton, Mr. Walter Beaumont, Mr. M. A. Wetherall, Miss Katherine Vereker, and Miss Elsie Robertson, is of itself a delightful little entertainment.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 4, the Opera, by S. Feinman, entitled
"THE JEWS IN MOROCCO."

Mr. S. Feinman's successful barbaric opera, The Jews in Morocco, was repeated on Monday night by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, to a house crowded in every part. The piece has an interesting story, dealing with love, intrigue, and persecution of the Jews by a treacherous Pasha, while the music, by Prof. F. Staub, is at times very tuneful, the final march being an instance of good orchestration. Some magnificent scenery has been specially painted, which, with the gorgeous dresses, the superb mounting, and the extra large chorus and dancers, make this production one of the most noteworthy during the present engagement. Mr. S. Feinman brings to the interpretation of the part of Raphael great gifts of elocution and stage art; while Mr. M. Gusofsky plays with distinctive grace, ease, and power the character of Joseph. An exceedingly clever and picturesque representation of Miriam comes from Mme. F. Epshtein. That clever artist, Mr. J. Scherman, is well suited as Yull, and gives a performance that is marked with all his quaint and humorous characteristics. The sensual and passionate Nadar Pasha is rendered with vigour by Mr. J. Fineberg; and Mr. N. Hamburger is energetic as Kamill. Mr. J. Goldsmith supplies an admirable picture of the persecuted and venerable Reb Shabsie; and Mr. Isaacowitch enacts with force and dignity the Sultan of Morocco. Miss R. Bryh is delightful as Chane, her vocal numbers gaining much applause; and a splendid exposition of the Princess Medina is given by Mme. J. Kayzer, whose portrayal is of unusual skill and impressiveness, being seen to advantage in the Forest scene. Mr. S. Feinman must be congratulated for his excellent stage-management, particularly the Combat in the Arena, and the Assembling of the Court in the Palace, which were splendidly arranged.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled
"A WARNING TO WOMEN."

Once again has the Grand, in spite of many vicissitudes, opened its doors as a theatre, Messrs. W. and F. Melville, the proprietors of the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, having acquired the controlling interest. Few better directors of a temple of melodrama could be imagined, and the theatre reopens with everything in its favour. A very large audience was present on Monday, standing room in the pit and gallery being at a premium. The opening attraction is one that contains all the elements necessary to ensure popularity, and the impression made on the audience by Mr. C. Watson Mill's powerful play was deep and lasting. The Messrs. Melville have selected one of the strongest stock companies seen here, and the scenery and mounting are on that lavish scale that is associated with their name. Mr. Ernest E. Norris as Shaun submits a particularly clever character-study. Pathetic, intense, and humorous in turn, every phase of the part is admirably portrayed, and the actor may be congratulated on the success he achieved. Mr. T. C. Aubrey as Marcus Drens is also entitled to warm praise. He has to portray something different from the conventional stage villain, and he comes through the ordeal with flying colours. Mr. Charles Craston as Fergus M'Naughton plays the young Irish squire with discretion and effect, his acting in the second act being especially good. Mr. Jack Denton as Eversleigh is amusing in a part of which he made the most, and he is also entitled to a word for his efficient direction of the stage. Mr. A. P. Kaye as Squire Kennion presents a sound reading; Mr. A. Fellowes Bassett as the Irish Priest is altogether excellent as the sympathetic clergyman; Mr. George Earlsworthy as De Joules is responsible for some amusement in the third act, his performance being very commendable. Messrs. E. Harvey White, Lionel Russell, and John Willeston, in smaller parts, are all satisfactory. Miss Maude Stewart Drewry as Sheila gives a natural and bright performance as the younger sister, and gains a most cordial reception. Miss Kate Browning as Molly O'More, an old Irish wise woman, does everything possible with the rôle; Miss Grace Lester as Hildred submits a realistic and repulsive picture of a degraded woman, her acting reaching a high level; Miss Beaumont Collins as Moira Kennion represents the character from which is derived the title of the play. Her depiction of the woman, the slave of drink and morphia, more sinned against than sinning, is clever, and held the closest attention of the audience, a call being accorded her and Mr. Norris at the end of the third act. Miss Ida Taylor as Myles plays sympathetically as the cripple without overdoing the part. Numerous smaller parts are all in good hands. Mr. Tom H. Taylor is the acting-manager for W. and F. Melville, and is very attentive in the discharge of his onerous duties.

Mr. William P. Gliddon, who has been for so many years chef d'orchestre at the Grand Theatre, retains that position under the new management.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 4, Auber's Opera, entitled
"FRA DIAVOLO."

The third week of Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera season at the Standard was opened on Monday by a performance of Fra Diavolo. Every effort had been used to make the representation a conspicuous success, and the large audience emphasised its appreciation of the good work done by loud and continued applause. Mr. J. W. Turner supplied an admirable portrait of Fra Diavolo, and quickly sang himself into public favour. Mr. F. J. Hargrave rendered an excellent account of himself as Lorenzo. He tunefully sang the pieces of music falling to his share, and proved of considerable value all through. As Lord Allcash, Mr. John Ridding deserves praise for an admirable portrayal, which scored for him a decided success. Mr. Sidney Clifford, with his fine voice, ably rendered the various numbers allotted to him, and his performance as Giacomo was received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Richard Cummings made good use of his ability in the character of Beppo; whilst Mr. George Ridding played the part of Matteo with considerable effect. The rôle of Lady Allcash received satisfactory support at the hands of Miss Grace Parish; and Miss Kitty Brownless was everything that could be desired as Zerlina, her singing of several pleasing numbers being much appreciated. During the week successful performances have been given of Il Trovatore, Maritana, Nigel, The Daughter of the Regiment, Satanella, and Faust.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 4, Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton, in Shakespeare's Comedy,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton have gathered round them a good all-round company of artists, and are delighting Fulham audiences with The Taming of the Shrew, and with Othello. Mr. Asche has retained the "induction," in which Christopher Sly, tinker, &c., figures largely. The connection of this with the play proper seems, to modern eyes, to be of the slightest, but it gives Mr. Asche an opportunity of displaying great talent as a low comedian. In The Taming of the Shrew, Mr. Asche and Miss Brayton repeat their excellent performances in the leading rôles, and they are admirably supported. The part of Petruchio, the determined and masterful lover, suits Mr. Asche down to the ground, and he plays it with rich humour and inimitable strength and assurance. Miss Lily Brayton, as before, astonishes one with the volcanic energy she puts into her outbursts of temper, while the tender and charming way in which she plays the loving wife in the final scene, shows her capacity as an actress of real power, and in the same scene her elocution is beautiful. Mr. Alfred Brydone, as her father, Baptista, is a delightfully dignified and courtly old gentleman. Mr. Caleb Porter again plays the amorous old Gremio, with a thorough appreciation of the part and plenty of humour. Mr. FitzRussell does well all that is required of Vincentio. Mr. H. R. Hignett's handsome person and graceful bearing are seen to advantage as the successful lover, Lucentio. Mr. Reginald Penny does well as Hortensio; and Mr. G. Kay Souper shows plenty of dramatic skill as the servant, Tranio. Mr. R. F. Anson scores a success as the servant, Biondello, and shows considerable power as a comedian in that eccentric part. Mr. Henry Kitts repeats his successful performance as Grumio, and the careful point he gave to his speeches and his mock-heroic attitudes, gave rise to much hearty laughter. Mr. W. R. Staveley played the "Pedant" with broad humour; while Miss Constance Robertson as Curtis, Mr. S. B. Farbridge as the Steward, Mr. Gordon Harker as the Tailor, and Miss Leila Norris as the widow, acquit themselves satisfactorily in their respective parts. A new Bianca appears in the person of Miss Agnes Brayton, who acts charmingly as a foil to her energetic sister, and the good looks and demure grace of this Bianca quite justify the ardour of her numerous lovers. There are some very pretty sets of scenery by W. T. Hemsley and Joseph Harker, and the dresses are excellent. Mr. W. R. Staveley is an efficient stage-manager, and Mr. Christopher Wilson wields the conductor's bâton.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 4, the Musical Play
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

Mr. George Dance's company has been playing here this week with the above-named popular musical play, and has proved a strong attraction. Miss Chrissie Ralland is well suited as Rosalie, and, throwing herself heart and soul into her work, soon dances and sings her way into the hearts of her audience. Her gay, insouciant style is just the thing for the part, and her rendering of several charming numbers is much appreciated. Mrs. Girdle finds a very efficient representative in Miss Nellie Kavanagh, who, while playing the part broadly on the lines laid down by its original exponent, yet infuses sufficient originality to make her performance both interesting and distinctive. Miss Clarice Cartner puts in some good work as the Baroness Papouche; Miss Florence Wix makes the most of Dulcie Babori; and Miss Lilian Errol is amusing as Emmy Lou. As Gustave Babori, Mr. J. S. Durant has a part after his own heart, and plays with wonderful agility and good spirits. His excellent singing is as much appreciated as his clever acting, and several of his songs are loudly re-demanded. Mr. Fred Payne is responsible for a most amusing rendering of Mr. Girdle, and his sayings and doings are followed with the keenest interest. He is perhaps at his best in the scene in the Malmaison Restaurant, but all through his grotesque worries and his comical expression thereof keep the audience in a ripple of laughter. Mr. Harry Averell plays Boniface with a good deal of distinction, and sings in excellent style; Mr. Edwin Dodds's amusing rendering of the head waiter is provocative of much laughter; Mr. C. Brierley makes the utmost of his few chances as Stephen-Henry; and Mr. E. C. Moylan does as well as possible in the small part of the restaurant proprietor. The chorus is decidedly tuneful and the mounting in good taste.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 4, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

At the Shakespeare Theatre on Monday a cordial greeting was extended to Mr. Robert Crossman's principal company, who presented the sparkling musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. The visit was rendered the more interesting by the fact that several of the company had appeared, with great success, in the recent pantomime here. Mr. Arthur Reynolds scored a decided hit in the title-rôle, and his clever acting kept the audience in continual laughter. A fine character study of Crookey Scrubs was given by Mr. Clarence Ibbotson, whose most successful numbers were "George Washington" and "Put me in my little cell." In the latter he was ably assisted by Mr. Arnold Forrester as Mr. Lamb and Mr. Tom Robertson as Captain Bay. The talents of Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy were well employed in the part of Michael Brue, and he gained much applause for his songs. Mr. C. Sims was thoroughly satisfactory as Mr. Crank; and Mr. Cecil Hood as Inspector Gorringe also rendered good support. Mr. H. Soutar as Matthew Habisham, and Mr. E. Mozar as Gerald Treherne, were seen to advantage in their respective parts. Miss Cissy Raymond was well suited in the rôle of Lady Bickenhall, and rendered her songs with marked effect. Miss Mary Hay made a charming appearance in the part of Aurora Brue, and was accorded an encore for her excellent singing of "Under a Panama." Miss Marion Hargrave was amusing as Daisy; and commendation is due to Miss Ethel Ivimey for an attractive presentation of Mabel Widget. Amongst others giving good support mention may be made of Miss Lilian Leslie, Miss Ethel Ford, Miss Kitty Rawlinson, and Miss Mabel Keith. The chorus is very efficient, and the dresses, scenery, and effects are alike of the best. The augmented orchestra is ably directed by Mr. Sidney Shaw.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled
"THE GRIP OF IRON."

It is now over twenty years since this play first went on tour, and, like Tennyson's brook, seems as though it will go on for ever, judging from the reception it nightly obtains. It is natural, therefore, to seek for the reason of this long-continued popularity, and it is easily found. The interest of the audience is attracted within a few minutes of the rise of the curtain by the murder of Captain Guerin by Simmonet the Strangler, and from then till the end of the play Simmonet is hardly off the stage for ten minutes. This character is the attraction, and the incidents of his double life as Jagon, the lawyer's clerk, and as the Strangler, keep the audience absorbed in the play until the final curtain, when he commits his last murder by strangling his partner in crime, Lorentz de Ribas, and then gives himself up to the police. In the play, too, there is plenty of comedy, for which Loustalot the Smiler is chiefly responsible. Almost from the earliest days of The Grip of Iron, Jagon (alias Simmonet) has been played by Mr. Fred Powell. It would, therefore, seem probable that his performance by this time would show some signs of weariness, but one looks for these signs in vain. He is as good as ever. It is a most exacting part, but Mr. Fred Powell is excellent in it all through. Excellent also is Mr. George Denham as the Smiler. At the Lyric he is a great favourite, and roars of laughter greet him throughout. Mr. Denham's make-up is very clever. Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner is exceedingly good as Lorentz de Ribas, the Spanish Adventurer; and Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood as Alphonse de Coucou, the detective of the new school type, gives a good imitation of the deliberate ways of Sherlock Holmes. As Dobet, the detective of the old school type, Mr. John Brittain is very funny; Mr. Wallace Curnock effectively plays the part of the falsely-accused Paul Blanchard; Robert de Belfort, the lawyer, is well portrayed by Mr. Norman Tracey; Miss Rosabel Dodd is good as Cora Simmonet, the daughter of Jagon; and as Sophie Blanchard Miss Muriel Inglis wins the sympathy of the house. Miss Maggie Stewart is a dainty Marie Guerin, and sings her song well. The other characters are all ably embodied, and the play is splendidly mounted, the last scene, Drawing-room of Lorentz de Ribas' Villa, being very effective.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, by Geo. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled
"THE TRUMPET CALL."

Messrs. Geo. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan's play, The Trumpet Call, is the attraction for the current week at the Prince's, which was well filled on Monday by an audience who carefully followed the many exciting incidents in this interesting drama. Mr. Chas. F. Cooke has brought together a company of considerable talent, who, by their powerful acting and general attention to detail, present the piece in finished style. The scenery is effective, especially the exterior of the Angler's Delight and the Barrack Yard, and the mechanical changes are well arranged. Mr. Leonard Yorke did full justice to the part of Cuthbert Cuthbertson, his performance being marked by great intensity and ability. The unthankful character of Richard Featherstone has an admirable exponent in Mr. John Dennys, who knows well what is required of him, and makes every line tell. Mr. Joe Bracewell has plenty of scope in the rôle of Prof. Ginnifer, his rendition causing much amusement, while his make-up was very good. As the warm-hearted Sergt.-Major Milligan Mr. Chas. F. Cooke succeeds in every way; and Mr. J. Betterton is satisfactory as Sir William Barton. Mr. W. G. Blunt acquitted himself well as the frenzied James Redruth; and Mr. Freddie Bentley was right to the front with his humorous impersonation of Tommy Dutton; while Mr. G. Hastings as Colonel Engleheart, Mr. J. B. Glover as Captain Sparks, Mr. Frank G. Kent as Flash Bob, and Mr. Alec Murray as a Doss House Keeper were performances of much merit. Miss Doris Gilham is to be highly congratulated for her successful portrayal of the difficult part of Astrea, the brilliancy of her acting at the close of the third act rousing the house to enthusiasm. Miss Helena Millais gives a tender and sympathetic delineation of the much-tried Constance, full of talent and entirely successful; and a dainty and winsome Lavinia Ginnifer is found in Miss May Foster, who captivates her hearers by her song, "Tale of a stroll." Miss Helena Rigby is seen to advantage as Mrs. Wicklow; and Little Cuthbert is made the most of by Miss Ethel Glyde; the remaining characters of a long cast being in the competent hands of Messrs. A. Cecil, B. Snowden, George Wilton, S. Lindsey, T. Scott, Miss F. Heys, Miss M. Bowyer, and Miss Jessie Dene.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled
"THE SIN OF HER CHILDHOOD."

Mr. J. A. Campbell, the writer of the above play, is an author whose dramatic effusions are always appreciated by the good folk of Rotherhithe, and accordingly a return visit from The Sin of Her Childhood meets with the cordial reception that an old friend deserves. The members of the talented stock company are afforded plenty of opportunity of showing their capabilities in the production, and they avail themselves of the chances to the full. Mr. Ashley Page, in the rôle of the handsome, chivalrous young clergyman, the Rev. Allan Grey, has a part that fits him like a glove, and he enlists from the outset the sympathies of the audience by his manly and impassioned acting. Miss Marion Denvil wins all hearts by her artistic rendering of Mary Haysel, the young girl who suffers secretly for the sin of her youth. Little Marie is sympathetically enacted by Miss Lulu Bowes; and Hannah Spry, as represented by Miss Alic Bowes, soon becomes a warm favourite. Eric Dugdale is capitally played by Miss Elsie Jezzard; Mr. Clinton Baddeley brings out successfully the unmitigated villainy of Stephen Haysel; and Miss East Robertson supplies an exceptionally clever character-sketch as the malignant Marie Haysel. Mr. Johnny Chippendale acts with much humour as the rollicking, good-hearted Irishman, Barry O'Reilley; and Miss Mattie Everett ably enacts the rôle of Eliza Muggins, causing much amusement. Mr. Cecil G. Calvert is good as Captain Thornton; and Mr. John Sargent does all that is possible with the somewhat limited opportunities afforded him by the part of Thomas Haysel. Mr. Tom Taylor is a duly dignified Sergeant of Police; and the remaining characters are all adequately played. The scenery and effects are well up to the mark.

The in-patients of the Cancer Hospital, Fulham-road, were entertained on Monday by the Butterflies. The first part of the programme consisted of songs, dances, and recitations, and the second of the pantomimic skit entitled Aladdin. The whole programme was excellently carried out and much enjoyed. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. Fred W. Howell, the secretary, was heartily accorded.

"THE ANGEL OF UNREST."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The large audience in the Brighton Theatre Royal, on Monday last, gave a very enthusiastic reception to The Angel of Unrest, on the occasion of its production by Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company. At the close of the performance there were loud calls for the author, who, in a short and graceful speech, expressed his thanks to the audience for their very cordial appreciation of the play. Unstinted commendation must be given to the scenery, painted by Mr Walter P. Warren and Mr. Archibald Middlemass; the set by the latter artist, descriptive of "The Morning after Beresina, on the Retreat from Moscow," is particularly commendable.

The play itself is written in excellent style. The Angel of Unrest is the Emperor Napoleon I., and the play deals with incidents associated with the march of Napoleon and his legions from Dantzic to Moscow, and the compulsory and appalling retreat of the Emperor from the latter city. The scene of the first act is laid in "A Room in the House of Mons. Lepine" at Dantzic. Lepine, known as the President of the League and Council of 33, for the removal of Napoleon, is making preparations for entertaining a few friends in celebration of the marriage of his daughter Julie with Captain Lemesnil. Papa Bompasse, a private in the Imperial Guards, arrives to take up his quarters in Lepine's house, for the Emperor and his army have reached Dantzic. The bluff veteran, Bompasse, noticing the nervousness of two of Lepine's friends—members of the League—begins to scent mystery. The bride and bridegroom return from the wedding, and Bompasse is soon captivated by the winsome and graceful bearing of the bride. The old Guardsman joins in the festivities. A visitor is announced, and Paul Brandt, a French Bourbonist in the English Naval Service, appears. In a quiet interview with Lepine, Brandt informs the latter that his life is in danger, for the Emperor has given orders for his capture. Brandt and Lepine make a hurried departure for Antwerp, and soon afterwards Colonel Bernaise, of the Headquarters' Staff, comes in, and, announcing that the Emperor needs the attendance of Captain Lemesnil, bride and bridegroom are parted, and the curtain falls, with Julie in tears. In the second act, in "A Farmhouse near the Borodino," three months later, it is seen that the Russians have been defeated. Bompasse, who has been slightly wounded, arrives, with his head bandaged. Brandt, accompanied by Julie and her maid Lisette, enter. Hugle, the Russian peasant, in charge of the farmhouse, places a bedroom at the service of Julie and Lisette, but not before the young wife, after expressing her gratitude to Brandt for his kind assistance, begs him to leave the place, and thus avoid being captured. Three disorderly soldiers arrive, and drag Julie and Lisette from their room, but Bompasse comes to the rescue. Napoleon, accompanied by some of his staff, now appears upon the scene, and hearing of the escapades of the ruffianly soldiers, orders them to be shot. Then, in spirited scenes, he confronts Brandt and Captain Lemesnil. The latter, it is soon evident, has acted the part of spy, and explains to the Emperor that he married Julie in order to be the better enabled to arrest her father. Brandt, on his part, defies the Emperor, and refuses to reveal Lepine's hiding-place. Brandt's punishment seems certain; but in a scuffle with those deputed to take him away, Julie's young husband, Captain Lemesnil, is struck down by Brandt, and Bompasse, realising the captain's perfidy, kills the hated spy. In the third act, at the "Quarters of General Renaudot on the Petrovka, Moscow," Julie receives a visit from the Emperor. She believes Brandt to be guilty of the death of her husband; and, acting under the influence of Napoleon, writes to him asking him to come to her. Bompasse delivers the letter, and at night he and Brandt arrive. In a powerful scene Bompasse denounces Captain Lemesnil, exposes his treachery, and acknowledges that he killed him. Again confronted by the Emperor, Brandt refuses to make any terms with him, and his death is ordered, and as the window from which he is to be hanged is being opened, it is seen that the city is in flames. The Emperor leaves the burning house hurriedly, and Bompasse rescues the pinioned Brandt. In the opening of the last act the Emperor is summoned away by a messenger, who announces that the army is on the march, flanked by Russian troops. The faithful Bompasse arranges a meeting of Brandt and Julie in the forest. The young widow, who now fully realises the sincerity and love of Brandt, consents to become his wife, and they resolve to find an asylum in England. Shots are heard—for the opposing troops have met—and old Bompasse, struck by a stray bullet, falls, and quietly passes away.

The performance, on the whole, ran very smoothly. Mr. Alec Flood, upon whom devolved the anxious duties of producing the play, admirably looked his part as Napoleon, and acted with earnestness, and at times with telling vigour. As the strong-willed Emperor he was seen at his best in the second act, when demanding explanations from his spy, Captain Lemesnil, and the defiant Paul Brandt. He was also effective in his scene with Julie in the third act. As the breezy, warm-hearted Bompasse Mr. Henry Beldam merits distinct praise. The amorous nature of the old Guardsman was admirably portrayed in his scenes with Julie's maid Lisette, and he was powerfully effective in many phases of the character. Captain Lemesnil, in the third act, evoked the most enthusiastic outburst of applause heard during the entire performance. Mr. Creagh Henry achieved complete success as Paul Brandt. His acting was easy, polished, and convincing, and he gave his lines with great elocutionary skill. Miss Florence Tressilian was refined and winsome as Julie, and secured the sympathy of the audience by the sincerity of her acting. Miss Rita Imeson made a vivacious and attractive Lisette; and Miss Patti March made the most of her few opportunities as Mme. Renaudot. In the two characters of Herr Kolsch and Hugle Mr. James Chippendale acquitted himself admirably. Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's General Renaudot and Mr. Richard A. Greene's Colonel Bernaise were well played; Mr. Alexander Bradley was effective in the thankless part of the spy, Captain Lemesnil; Mr. Laurence Vining was successful as Mons. Lepine; Mr. Gerald Clarke was suited as the nervous Herr Grondwetter; and satisfactory support was rendered by Mr. George Chase (Captain Leblanc) and Mr. L. P. Danks (Captain Beaupré). The incidental music of the play is by Mr. H. Henderson, Mus.Bac.; the electrical effects by J. C. Robertson and Co., Glasgow; the costumes are designed by Hyman and Sons, London; and the wigs are by Gustave.

DEATH OF EMILY STAFFORD.

We regret to record the death of Miss Emily Stafford (Mrs. Albert Bernard). The deceased lady died quite suddenly on Wednesday at 35, Lansdowne-gardens, Stockwell, at the age of fifty-nine. The daughter of a well-known artist, Miss Emily Stafford was educated at Queen's College, and commenced her stage career in the late Captain Disney Roebuck's company, playing the juveniles in the old comedies, modern pieces, and burlesques. She was soon engaged for leading business, and had engagements in stock seasons in Liverpool, Manchester, Bradford, Birmingham, &c. While staying in Liverpool, after a stock engagement, she played her first part in farcical comedy. Owing to the illness of a lady in Charles Wyndham's company, Miss Stafford went on at a few hours' in the part of Mrs. Grahame, in The Great Divorce Case. The following year found her supporting the late Charles Mathews as Mrs. Weddagain, in My Awful Dad. Later she toured with her husband's company in Geo. R. Sims's first comedy, Crutch and Toothpick. In 1887 she went for a season to America, playing the aristocratic and character parts in the late Miss Rosina Vokes's celebrated triple bill. Since then she has played nearly all the best modern comedy old women—Mrs. Fitzjohn, The Balloon; Mrs. Gillebrand, The Arabian Nights; Mrs. Tubbs,, Pink Dominos; Mrs. Birkett, Betsy; Mrs. Rollit, Woodbarrow Farm; Mrs. Pannell, Turned Up; Lady Darby, The Case of Rebellious Susan; Lady Wargrave, The New Woman; and Mrs. Pinglet, A Night Out. She also played a clever little character sketch of an old servant in My Innocent Boy.

MISS EMILY STAFFORD.

The funeral is fixed to take place to-day at Nunhead Cemetery.

A.A. SOCIAL.

Mr. Lawrence Grant addressed the members of the Actors' Association at the social gathering on Friday afternoon last week on the subject of acting as an art. Mr. H. B. Irving occupied the chair.

Mr. Grant, in his speech, stated that acting as an art laboured under great difficulties. It was, for instance, impossible to make the art side of acting coincide with the economic side. He then went on to explain what economy really was—it was not a question of saving money. Ruskin had said that economy was an art, and Mr. Grant therefore thought that acting and economy should be synonymous terms. The manager's art should be the art of managing the art of his theatre. The manager, however, was lacking in artistic attributes. Instead of looking for a great artist, he satisfied himself with an intelligent automaton. Comparing the different conditions under which the painter and the actor pursued each his art, Mr. Grant remarked that the former took his own time over a picture, and when he had finished it, it was done for all time. The case of the actor, on the other hand, was very different. He had to submit to criticism at the very worst time—under the strain and amid all the accidents of a first night. The painter could always see his picture, whereas the actor never could, and in that respect, at least, the artist of the brush and palette had an advantage over the artist of the drama. But, for all that, dramatic art, in its true sense, meant commerce in its highest sense.

Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Mayne Young, Mr. F. H. De Quincey, and Mr. Cremlin briefly addressed the meeting during the debate which followed.

The chairman made a few remarks, which he prefaced by stating that the social gatherings would do much to interest actors and actresses in the work of the Association. Everyone would be glad to see that there had been started a reform party in the Association. It was a good sign that the members of that body were fighting about something. Coming to the address they had listened to that afternoon, he thought that Mr. Grant was on a hopeless quest when he tried to convince them that economy was disassociated with money. Mr. De Quincey, a previous speaker, had said that art was only receptive by those who could appreciate its beauties; but it had been shown over and over again that some of their greatest actors had been most popular with what were known as the common people. Where would Shakespeare's plays have been but for the common people of his day? Fortunately, art made its great appeal, an appeal which could be understood and fully appreciated by all classes, and if it failed to make that appeal, art would disappear. The greatest writers in the world had treated acting as an important art; and the ebullitions against acting which were manifested from time to time should not weaken the faith of the actor in the nobility of the art he practised. Acting in its highest manifestations held as great a place as any other art. Had not Kean, Betterton, Macready, Robertson, and others demonstrated the qualifications of acting to be considered an art? If it was merely the art or business of a mimic, they could go into the street and find plenty of people quite capable of that kind of art. It had to be remembered that the actor was called upon to create something which was not to be found in Nature.

A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Grant for his lecture.

A CONCERT will be given at the Constitutional Hall, Harlesden, on Tuesday next, in aid of the Balaclava Light Brigade Charge Survivors' Relief Fund. Amongst other prominent "turns" will be the Foxes, comedy sketch artists; the Boltons, in their knockabout act; the Lindens' dramatic company; and Prof. Bert Jackson, in his ventriloquial entertainment. A group of Balaclava heroes will be present, and "The Charge of the Light Brigade," will be recited by one of the "boys of the old brigade," Sergeant John Ford.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AN ADAPTATION OF "ANNA."

On Monday, March 4, at the Crystal Palace Theatre, the Play, in Four Acts, adapted by H. A. Saintsbury from the Novel by Alice and Claude Askew, entitled

"ANNA OF THE PLAINS."

Matthew Kerrins .....MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY
Michael O'Donaghan .....MR. HILLIARD VOX
Piet Van Heller .....MR. C. H. CROKER-KING
Sarah Kerrins .....MISS V. VIVIAN
Anna .....MISS DOROTHEA DESMOND

The hand of an expert is evident in the adaptation of "Anna of the Plains," the interesting novel of Boer life and character, which was introduced in its dramatic form to London on Monday, having been originally produced at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, on Jan. 28. In preparing the story for the stage, Mr. H. A. Saintsbury has weaved the dramatic fibre of the novel into a play which is full of effective situations. The resemblance to The Shulamite, adapted from the same source, is only of the faintest kind, and the drama has a power of its own which never fails. Peace reigns, at the opening of the play, over the home of Matthew Kerrins, a typical figure of the veldt, whose farm is established by the "well of the plains." His daughter, Anna, has just nursed through a dangerous illness a farm hand named Piet Van Heller, who develops an illicit love for her. She returns his affection, and gives him as a keepsake a lock of her hair. Piet, however, is a married man, and, making excuses for his departure, takes farewell of Anna outside the house during a thunderstorm, when he clasps her in a passionate embrace.

Anna's secret is penetrated in the second act by Tante Sarah, Matthew's second wife, who has hated the girl from her first acquaintance with her. She loses no time in revealing the child's dishonour to her father, whose stern sense of justice can only be appeased by turning his daughter from his door. He is about to flog her, but is prevented by his overseer, a young Irishman named Michael O'Donaghan, who declares that it is he who is responsible for Anna's shame. The father consents to a belated wedding, which takes place with due celebration, after Anna's child has been born and buried; but eventually Anna confesses her duplicity to her father, who, moved by the nobility of the young Irishman, relents, and bids his daughter dwell in peace with her husband. Of his little hoard of savings the old man gives half to Michael, who proudly produces the lock of hair which Anna had given to her betrayer. Anna is a witness of the scene, and demands to know how he became possessed of the keepsake, and Michael is obliged to admit that he had had a conflict with Piet, and left him bleeding and senseless, probably dead. Anna has conceived a love for Michael, but the conviction that he is the murderer of her child's father is sufficient for her to determine that they must sever, and, after receiving Matthew's blessing, they go out together, only to part at the door.

Overtaken by age and infirmity, Matthew yearns in the last act for news of his child. At last he is visited by Michael, who tells him of Anna's resolve and of their parting. Michael is closely followed by Piet, alive and well, who, having lost his wife, says he comes to repair his wrong to Anna. Matthew, however, realises that it is his money that Piet wants, and orders him from the house. The villain meets with no better reception from Anna, who reappears after her lonely exile, and loads her betrayer with scorn. Anna's objection to sharing Michael's home having thus been removed, husband and wife are united, and Matthew dies, blessing them with his last breath.

Five characters only are included in the cast, but the play is none the less engrossing, no lack of colour being apparent. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury has a fine part in that of Oom Matthew, whom he invested with all the leonine qualities requisite. Stalwart in appearance, and wearing a venerable beard, he was magnificent in his wrath, but in the later portions of the play he presented a piteous picture of the patriarchal old man, broken with age and infirmity, and pining for a sight of his child. There is grim humour, too, in his references to his wife, of whom, despite the attitude adopted by the Boer nation towards their womenfolk, Matthew stands in some awe. The difficulties of the title-rôle are many and various, but Miss Dorothea Desmond surmounted them with the certainty born of talent and experience. She has the appearance, fair-haired and frail, exactly suited to the part, and the utter despair of the young girl was suggested in the tones of her voice and in the intensity of expression. Mr. Hilliard Vox clothed Michael O'Donaghan with all the attributes of manliness and vigour consistent with the part. He should guard, however, against a clipping of the consonants which mars his delivery; but the spirit and fire which he imparted into the impersonation are deserving of warm commendation. The unscrupulous Piet Van Heller was invested with passionate energy by Mr. C. H. Croker-King, who put the situation of the first act realistically before the audience, and in his subsequent scene acted with due ferocity. The gleams of humour which are permitted to lighten the piece are due to "Tante" Sarah, played with a sense of drollery by Miss V. Vivian, who was also very intense in the depiction of her hatred towards Anna. The piece was realistically mounted, even the pipe with which Matthew soothes his ruffled feelings being of native make, and curtain calls were frequent and hearty. The evening was concluded by a new comedietta, by Ronald Macdonald, first produced on Thursday last week at the Theatre Royal, Bath, entitled

"JOCELYN THE JESTER."

Jocelyn Savage .....MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY
Sir Giles Wedderburn..MR. C. H. CROKER-KING
Percival Kingston, Esq. ..MR. HILLIARD VOX
Joe Chirrup .....MR. LOUIS SCOTT
Martha Wumpling .....MISS V. VIVIAN
Lucinda .....MISS DOROTHEA DESMOND

Frivolity is the theme of the above little piece, which deals with the elopement of Lucinda, daughter of Sir Giles Wedderburn, with a young gallant. The runaway couple are pursued by the stern parent, but on the very morning of the wedding, Lucinda and her husband have a "quarrel," and the young bride runs away, loses her purse, and takes refuge in a country inn, where the scene is laid. She finds a benefactor in Jocelyn Savage, another traveller, who entertains her with luncheon and levity, and prevails upon the landlady to provide her with a room. The arrival of the angry father and the equally irate husband results in a duel with swords between the latter gentleman and Jocelyn, who soon disarms his opponent. Eventually he is allowed to explain that his interest in the young lady arose from the fact that he is Sir Giles's long-absent brother, and is able to secure the reconciliation of the Baronet and the newly-married pair. The little piece is brightly written, and boasts some neatly-turned dialogue, in which there is no little humour. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury played the Jingle-like character of Jocelyn in a buoyant and devil-may-care fashion, which was in remarkable contrast with his former impersonation. Despite the rapid delivery characteristic of the part, the drollery of the lines was completely preserved, and the house was kept in constant laughter. Miss Dorothea Desmond made a pretty picture of the dainty and dimpled Lucinda, and played with captivating demureness. The buxom landlady was grotesquely embodied by Miss V. Vivian; Mr. Louis Scott gave a quaint impersonation of a waiter; Mr. C. H. Croker-King was a typical exponent of an enraged paterfamilias; and Mr. Hilliard Vox gave an admirable rendering of her young husband. Both plays had the advantage of admirable mounting, the storm scene in the former in particular being weirdly impressive

DEATH OF MISS EMILY THORNE.

We regret to announce the death of Miss Emily Thorne (Mrs. Gillmore), who passed away on Tuesday at her residence in Abbey-road, St. John's Wood, after an illness lasting about a fortnight. She was sixty-nine years of age. The sister of Sarah and Thomas Thorne, Emily Thorne made her first appearance on the English stage at the Strand Theatre (then Punch's Playhouse), in a benefit performance, in the part of Sally Scraggs, in Stage Struck, and with such success that she was induced to enter the dramatic profession. Her first engagements were at the Theatres Royal, Manchester and Bristol. Miss Emily Thorne made her London début on Easter Monday, 1859, at the Adelphi Theatre, in the title-rôle of The Fair One with the Golden Locks. She remained at the Adelphi for three years. In 1862 she visited the United States, opening at the Winter Garden, New York, as Miranda, in The Tempest. She remained in America for seven years, and travelled there extensively as an English ballad singer. She took her leave of the American stage in Chicago in the spring of 1869 at the Opera House, and shortly after sailed for England. On her return to London she fulfilled engagements at St. James's, Opéra Comique, the Criterion, and later, the Haymarket theatres, where she appeared in May, 1879, as Mrs. Malaprop in The Rivals. Miss Thorne joined Mr. Toole soon after his opening of the Folly Theatre, appearing in all the pieces during his tenancy of the house—The Butler, The Don, Walker, London, and Paw Claudian. Her last appearance was in a piece called Teddy's Wires, at the Strand. Many years ago she married Mr. John Parker Gillmore, better known as Captain Cavendish. She has two sons living, one of them being Mr. Frank Gillmore, now in America with Miss Crossman, the other a successful orange-planter in California. Her funeral will take place at Kensal Green Cemetery to-day, at 2.45.

ACTORS' UNION.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh will preside at the meeting of actors and actresses which will be held at the Criterion Restaurant on Monday afternoon to form an Actors' Union, and to discuss its rules and constitution. The following circular has been sent out:—

1. The title of this body is to be the Actors' Union.

2. That this Union is being formed for the object of safeguarding the interest and welfare of all those who earn their living by acting or singing in musical or dramatic plays.

3. The Union will be governed and developed on strictly democratic lines—by actors for actors.

4. Qualifications for membership: That all entering the profession can be admitted as probationary members, but no one to be allowed to vote or sit on the Council under five years' actual experience on the stage, or five years' membership of the Union. That each candidate for election shall be proposed by one and seconded by two fellows of the Union, who from personal knowledge can vouch that, in their opinion, the candidate is professionally and socially fit for membership.

5. That the entrance fee be 2s. 6d., and a subscription of 6d. per week to be paid for forty weeks of the year. Members to be in full benefit must not allow their weekly subscriptions to fall in arrears. Those who are desirous of doing so can pay their subscriptions quarterly 5s., half-yearly 10s., or annually 20s.

6. That any member of the Union becoming a manager or acting-manager, shall, during the period of his management, forfeit his right of vote and cease to hold executive powers in the Union.

7. That the Union be governed by a Council of twenty-four fellows annually elected, all being allowed to offer themselves for re-election.

8. That branches of the Union at the earliest date possible shall be formed in other centres, such as are already forming in London and Manchester.

9. Members shall be known by a number, and each shall have a card to which special stamps issued by the Union shall be affixed, thus denoting their weekly payments.

The objects of the Union are:—

1. To establish and maintain an honest living minimum salary.

2. To abolish the unfair competition of unpaid or premium-paying amateurs on the professional stage.

3. To insist on the decent and healthy structural condition of theatres.

4. To found a Provident Fund, Loan Fund, and Old Age Pension Fund so soon as the Union is on a sound financial footing.

5. To give free legal advice to all members.

6. To grant free legal protection to all members.

7. To collect a levy of 6d. per member in the event of the death of any member, to defray the funeral expenses and assist the widow, widower, children, or next-of-kin.

8. To form an honourable, solid, and united body of actresses and actors whose decisions will be accepted with respect, and whose protests will be made with authority when directed towards the reform or abolition of any abuses that are detrimental to the interest of the stage.

THE Mayor of Coventry, Alderman Lee, is to preside shortly at a meeting of representative citizens to discuss arrangements for holding a "Lady Godiva" procession early in August. The scheme to be submitted includes the grouping of historical characters so as to form a pageant representing some of the most notable events connected with the Saxon and Norman associations of the city of Coventry.

THE annual dinner of the Hibernian Society, of which Mr. James Macready Chute, of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, is president, will take place on the 19th of this month at the Royal Hotel, Bristol.

"NELLY NEIL"—REVISED EDITION.

When a musical play has reached its half-century it may be said to have turned from the by-lane of doubt into the broad road of success; and the demeanour of the audience at the launching of the second edition on Tuesday evening proclaimed that all is well with Nelly Neil. In the first place, the lady has the placid loveliness of Edna May to recommend her, and we are thinking that the hearts of susceptible playgoing manhood will be racked with disappointment when the fair actress, who belongs almost as much to John Bull as to Uncle Sam, leaves the footlights on her marriage. May the pronounced success of Nelly Neil postpone the date of that event for months is the earnest wish of Miss May's legion of admirers. It was difficult for her to improve upon her first-night rendering of the title-rôle of the McLellan-Caryll piece. Her apostleship of the simple life is as sweet, suave, and as convincing as ever. She now shares the success of a new duet, "Kiss, kiss," into which she puts much arch coquetry.

Mr. Joseph Coyne also adds to his score in the same duet, and his quiet, unobtrusive method—highly appreciated by Londoners from the first—grows on one. In the second act he is endowed with a new number, resembling in a slight degree the famous selection from The Mikado, "They never would be missed." In the Gilbert-Sullivan work the references were mostly to statesmen. In Mr. Coyne's song he describes the kind of ditties in musical comedy that could very well be done without. Of the excellent opportunities afforded by this number the American comedian makes the very most, and is deservedly cheered.

Since the opening night Mr. E. Dagnall—who made such a hit as Inspector Bott in The Amateur Socialist—has relinquished the part of Nordheim, and his successor is Mr. Fred Wright, jun., whose reading of the character has breeziness and alertness. These are the recognised factors in his success. His numbers are "Poor Bobby," in which the lot of a melancholy policeman on his lonely beat is cleverly treated in humorous verse by the author, and "Demon," the latter fashioned somewhat on poor E. J. Lonnen's "Bogie Man" song. His most laughable item is found in "Jane, the Suffragette," a subject that has been very broadly treated of late by Mr. Tom Costello in the halls. Mr. Wright is supported in the song by lady disciples of female franchise, and the scene is made exceedingly laughable. Mr. Wright is certainly like his more celebrated brother; but this counts as a decided advantage, and he has a part now that gives him a real chance, of which he avails himself to the full.

Miss Kitty Gordon looks exceedingly handsome as the Princess Rasslova, and her acting has all the needful vivacity and resolution of a fair Russian revolutionist. The part is not lacking in romance, and Miss Gordon's impersonation is certainly picturesque.

Miss Mary Brough as the motherly Mrs. Neil puts a deal of comedy into the part, and works up some droll business with Mr. Joseph Coyne in the quartet "Girls, be girls for ever." So good a comedienne might have further opportunities.

Miss Molly Lowell has but little chance of distinguishing herself, but contrives to present a picturesque embodiment of the romantic Countess of Rokeby. Miss Gertrude Lester sings exceedingly well as the Hon. Muriel Vickery, her number in the second act—"The Butterfly"—being the musical gem of the piece.

Mr. Robb Harwood, a sound comedian, plays the police-sergeant Pink with a welcome amount of comic detail, and, as a slave to duty, his upbraidings of Nordheim add much to the merriment of the piece.

Mr. J. J. Dallas as Mr. Tizzle puts no little comicality into the terror of the bomb-haunted manager of the fruit shop, and though the part is sketchy, this capital farceur gives it a firm outline.

Mr. Langford Kirby, who appears as the Viscount Larktonbigh, the head of the disciples of Nelly Neil, cuts an amusing figure as a coster-aristocrat who eschews the smart set and dotes on the simple life, and sings and acts agreeably.

Miss Flossie Hope and Miss Carrie Bowman, two clever young ladies from the States, may be singled out for special praise in their "ikey" song as costers. It is entitled "Harriet of the Strand." The impersonation of one of them reeks of the Borough Market, and is positively lifelike.

The work of the minor characters is of much importance to the ensemble, and in this connection may be mentioned Messrs. A. T. Gullifer, Henry Warren, Frank Walsh (as the chauffeur with aristocratic hauteur), and Akerman May (a picturesque Orloff); Misses Edith Neville, Kathleen Warren, Manon Margottine, Louie Lynton, Gertrude Thornton, and Gerty Latchford. Miss Madge Hodgkinson, who appears as the dairymaid, does not have a word to say, but is expressive and dainty, and knows how to act. Excellent dancers are found in Misses Beatrice Grenville, Edith Kelly, Ethel Badham, Dolly Corke, Lena Leibrandt, and Amie Payne.

Mr. B A. Meyer, the business-manager, adds much to the pleasure of a visit to the beautiful Aldwych Theatre, where the entertainment is blessed with two important essentials—daintiness and diversion. Nelly Neil always possessed considerable merit as a piece in the lighter vein, and it is so vastly improved that it should easily pass the century. Mr. Sydney Ellison has a keen eye for artistic effect, and Walter Johnstone, Hugo Baruch, and W. Helmsley give us a series of stage pictures that could hardly be excelled.

SMART

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

Sir Charles Wyndham is now at Naples, on his way home from Egypt. He contemplates beginning his season at the Criterion on the 8th of next month, when The Liars will be revived. Sir Charles has also in hand several new plays, the production of which will give a welcome impetus in the forthcoming seasons.

Our warmest congratulations are offered to Mr. George Alexander, whose hard fight for a seat on the County Council was crowned with victory on Saturday, when he was returned at the head of the poll for South St. Pancras. Mr. Alexander's oratorical abilities and appreciation of municipal problems, as well as his great popularity, are reflected in the substantial majority by which he was elected, the number of votes recorded for him exceeding by 1,350 those of his opponent. Felicitations are also due to Mr. Walter Reynolds, another representative of the profession, and a staunch municipal reformer, who was successful in the contest at Hampstead, obtaining second place with the formidable majority of 2,630.

Certain misleading and inaccurate statements have been published concerning the future management of the Lyceum Theatre. The real facts are as follows. The property was sold by auction last summer, and was repurchased by the debenture-holder, Mrs. Arnold, for the sum of £119,500, the bidding starting at £100,000. From Mrs. Arnold, Mr. Henry R. Smith has secured a lease of the theatre, and a syndicate is being formed under the title Popular Playhouses, Ltd., Mr. Henry R. Smith and Mr. Ernest Carpenter being appointed joint managing directors.

Under this arrangement Mr. Smith, who is the actual leaseholder, will undertake the entire management of the theatre, and Mr. Carpenter will fulfil the duties of producer of plays and stage manager. It is intended to run the house at popular prices, and strong, healthy melodrama of the old Adelphi type will be the fare. New plays by Mr. Geo. R. Sims, Mr. Arthur Shirley, Mr. Ben Landeck, and Miss Harriett Joy, written singly and in collaboration, will in due course be produced. The prices fixed will be—stalls, 5s.; dress circle, 2s. 6d.; pit, 1s.; and gallery, 6d.; this scale being just half that of any other West End house. The management will be enabled to offer a comfortable seat at a strictly low price owing to the immense holding capacity of the theatre.

The theatre is at present undergoing a complete renovation, both externally and internally. The decorations are being carried out by Messrs. Boekbinder and Co., and the new electric installation is by Messrs. Buchanan and Co., while the new fire curtain, &c., will be supplied by Messrs. Merryweather. The front of the house will be brilliantly illuminated by the new Mercurial arc lamps.

All the requirements of the London County Council have been complied with, and the licence of the Lord Chamberlain has been issued to Mr. Smith. The Lyceum will reopen on Saturday, the 30th inst., with Mr. Walter Howard's romantic play, Her Love Against the World, for which production special scenery is being painted by Messrs. Ryan, D. Young, and W. R. Cox. A strong company has been engaged, including Mr. Norman Partridge and Miss Nora Kerin in the leading rôles.

The New Theatre, now in course of construction in Central Park West, New York, is one of the most important enterprises ever undertaken in connection with the stage in that city. Efforts to interest the better class of New York theatre-goers in the "elevation of the stage" have hitherto failed for want of money; but there will be no such drawback this time. A sufficient number of boxes for the Tuesday and Thursday performances have been sold, in perpetuity, for $25,000 each. The persons who have bought these will occupy the same relation to the house that the box-holders do towards the management of the New York Metropolitan Opera House, and it is expected that the boxes will greatly increase in value as time goes on. Only about 300 seats in the stalls and balcony for these nights are to be sold, and applications are already numerous. An "orchestra" seat for these two performance may be bought outright for $3750, and seats in the first row of the balcony may be purchased for $3000. Only the first ten rows of the orchestra stalls, and the first row of the balcony are to be distributed in this manner. The owners of the seats are not assessable under any circumstances, and no seats for other evenings than Tuesdays and Thursdays will be sold outright. The performances on "owners' nights" will be invariably a presentation of opera comique on Tuesday, and some dramatic production on Thursday. The operatic performances will not be of such a nature as to compete with performances of grand opera.

The late Mr. Richard Mansell (Richard Roberts Maitland), whose death we recorded in our last issue, was buried on Tuesday at Acton Old Churchyard. The funeral service took place at St. Mary's Church, Acton, and was attended by several actors and actresses. Wreaths were sent by the following:—Widow and Brothers, Sir William Ball, the Hammersmith Conservative Association, the Yorick Club, the employees of the Coronet Theatre, Mrs. Brandon, Mr. Jocelyn Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. Allberry, Eade and Guy Stenning, Laurie and Gertie Maitland, Mr. Polini, and Mr. Leishman. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr. Theo Dunkley.

Mr. Martin Harvey, who has been playing to enormous audiences at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, this week—creating a new record on the opening night for a Monday—was entertained by the New Club on Tuesday at a supper, which was very largely attended. In response to the toast of his health, which was pledged amid great enthusiasm, Mr. Harvey made an interesting speech, setting forth tersely and with much effect some new reflections concerning the Drama and the varied extent of its appeal. The function was especially notable for its geniality and bonhomie, and was quite a success.

Donations from unusual, but no less acceptable, sources have been received by the Actors' Benevolent Fund this week. A lady, having won a bet of two guineas over Mr. George Alexander's election to the London County Council, forwarded a cheque for that amount to Mr. Alexander, who at once passed it on to Mr. Coltson. Similarly, a sum of £3 10s., received by Mr. Charles Manners from St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Glasgow, in appreciation of the assistance given to the morning and evening services at that church on the 3rd inst. by Mme. De Vere and Mr. Manners, has also been generously devoted to the fund.

Mr. Lionel Brough's condition, according to our latest bulletin, was critical. He was sleeping under morphia, and very weak.

"Salome" has been prohibited at the Budapest Opera House, despite the fact that rehearsals had been going on for some weeks. The Minister Andrassy has given it as his opinion that there is nothing detrimental to either religion or morals in Strauss's opera; but the prohibition has gone forth from high quarters, and he can do nothing against it.

Mr. John Coates, who owes much of the success of his career to the encouragement he received in Germany, has taken the initiative in raising a fund for the relief of the dependants of the opera singers who were involved in the recent calamitous wreck of the Berlin. Mr. Coates calls his project the British Singers' Berlin Fund, and his appeal to all his colleagues, from the highest to the lowest, is one that in such a necessitous case will assuredly bear fruit. As will be seen by a letter from Mr. Coates which we print in another column, a representative committee, including Mme. Marie Brema, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Ffrangcon-Davies has already been formed, and additions are being constantly made. An account has been opened at the London and South-Western Bank, Oxford-street, and subscriptions, which will be duly acknowledged in our columns, may be sent there; to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, care of The Era; or to Mr. Coates, at 9M, Hyde Park Mansions, N.W.

Mrs. Langtry made her début in England as Lady De Bathe on Wednesday. The popular actress has had a most gratifying tour of the United States, her engagements, originally arranged for ten weeks, extending to five months. Lady De Bathe, it is pleasant to learn, has no intention of retiring from the stage with her new-found honours, but will prosecute her brilliant career indefinitely. She will rest for a while, but has in preparation a new society play by Mr. Graham Hill, which is to be produced by Mr. David Belasco in New York prior to its appearance in London.

The will of the late Mr. Lucas D'Oyly Carte, elder son of the late Mr. Richard D'Oyly Carte, was proved on Wednesday, the value of the estate being £59,366. The testator left all his personal effects, motors, boats, gear, &c., to his brother Rupert absolutely, and he bequeathed £2,500 to Mr. W. J. Fanning, of the Kelling Open Air Sanatorium, Holt, Norfolk, and £1,000 to Dr. W. F. Burton-Fanning, M.D., of Norwich, £1,500 to his god-daughter, Daphne Burton-Fanning, daughter of the said Dr. W. F. Burton-Fanning, and £5,000 to the Kelling Open Air Sanatorium at Holt, Norfolk. All his other property he left to his brother Rupert.

Miss Marie Tempest will end her too-protracted absence from the West End stage at Easter, when she will make her appearance at the Comedy in a four-act play, entitled The Truth, by Clyde Fitch, the prolific American dramatist. In the company will also be Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Dawson Milward, Miss Sybil Carlisle, and Miss Rosina Filippi. The piece, it may be remembered, was originally produced in New York last January.

Mr. Cyril Maude and Miss Winifred Emery will be again happily associated in the comedy Her Son, by Horace Annesley Vachell, which will be introduced to London at the first of a series of matinées at the Playhouse on Tuesday. Mr. Alfred Bishop will have the part of a baronet, and the accomplished young actress Miss Wynne Matthison will have a striking character part. Master Bobbie Andrews, who made a distinct hit in the original production at Glasgow last November, has been retained for the rôle of the boy Min, and the cast will be completed by Miss Florence Haydon, Miss Emma Chambers, and Miss Kate Harwood.

Mr. Charles Manners gave "A Little Chat on Music" to the members of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution in the large Synod Hall on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Manners said temperament in singing, as in other walks of life, was one of the principal aids to success. It was necessary that one should convince oneself, and in convincing oneself one convinced everybody else who was listening. The doctor, the barrister, the clergyman was most successful who was able to carry conviction with him There had been a good deal of talk about church services not being made interesting enough. He had opportunities of hearing different preachers on Sunday evenings, and he felt that while the preachers were intensely interested and earnest, they were not all able to keep the people interested. Earnest and religious men could be found who rattled off the grandest and greatest words that one could imagine as if these words meant nothing at all. If only our clergymen were to study elocution the services would be fifty per cent. more interesting. Temperament, of course, was the thing that was final, and education had much to do with it.

Mr. Manners concluded his lecture with some interesting remarks on the subject of voice production, and gave an illustration of the practical value of his observations by a dramatic rendering of the song "To-morrow will be Friday." Supplementary to the lecture was a programme of music by the following ladies and gentlemen of the Moody-Manners company: Miss Ross Stewart, Miss Weir, Miss Alvard—who sang the charming air "The briefest glance," from Rossini's Cinderella—Mr. Brindle, Mr. Renshaw, Mr. J. Johnston, and Mr. Gulland. Signor Safio played the accompaniment in a brilliant style. Mr. Manners, who was cordially applauded throughout, received something in the nature of an ovation at the close of his lecture.

The halo which surrounds the brilliant author of The School for Scandal has not been dispelled by the very interesting play which Miss Gladys Unger has written around Richard Brinsley Sheridan. As everyone knows, the real career of Sheridan was so adventurous and romantic that an authoress may be allowed the greatest licence of invention. When Major Mathews, an ungallant libertine, harassed the young Bath concert-singer, Miss Linley, with his unwelcome attentions, Sheridan called him out, disarmed him after a few passes, and made him sign an apology. In a second duel, which was forced on him by Mathews, Sheridan's foot slipped, and he fell on the ground, with his opponent on top of him. Both their swords were broken, and Mathews, while keeping Sheridan down, and "uttering horrid curses," stabbed him in the body, face, and throat, leaving him for dead on Claverton Downs, near Bath, where the encounter took place. Sheridan's whole life was indeed a romance.

Baron Harriss's No. 1 Prince of Pilsen company entered upon its first series of return visits at the Theatre Royal, South Shields, this week. Despite the fact that the prices have been raised, the business has been excellent, and a special matinée has had to be arranged to meet the demand for seats. Miss Sophie Harriss, the "star" of the company, has been the recipient of many bouquets and baskets of flowers nightly, a special feature of these floral tributes being one each evening from Messrs. John and Fred Coulson, the lessees of the theatre, designed with much ingenuity, the name of the fair prima donna on each occasion being inscribed in mimosa, her favourite flower.

Mr. Harcourt Williams, who followed Mr. Matheson Lang in the part of Othello at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, will himself have to leave the cast after March 16 to rejoin Mr. H. B. Irving as his leading man.

Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker will next month devote the Court Theatre to the dramatic consideration of woman suffrage, having secured from Miss Elizabeth Robins a play in which the rights of the fair sex are asserted. The new piece, which is described as "a dramatic tract in three acts," and is at present without a title, will be played at a series of Tuesday and Friday matinées, beginning on April 9. The action takes place in the present year on a Sunday afternoon, and the second act will represent a meeting of Suffragettes in Trafalgar-square.

Mr. Bannister Howard's attraction at the Crystal Palace Theatre next week will be Mr. Milton Bode's company in A Chinese Honeymoon. Patrons of the Palace have been so largely on the increase that two matinées each week—namely, on Wednesday and Saturday—are found necessary to meet requirements.

Mr. Edward Marris, who has disposed of the Theatre Royal at Grantham on lease to enable him to devote his attention to a more important enterprise, was accorded a complimentary benefit on the 28th ult., when a packed house was the result. The programme was an exceptionally good one, and included the first act of the musical play, Somebody's Sweetheart, in which Mr. and Mrs. Marris appeared. The farcical interlude from The Dandy Doctor was also presented, and in this Mr. Marris, with the aid of Mr. Walter Nugent and Miss Norah Melton, kept the audience in a constant state of merriment. Members of Mr. Marris's companies also contributed to the programme.

Before the fall of the curtain Mr. and Mrs. Marris came forward to say farewell. Mr. Marris, in a short speech, thanked the public for their friendship and support, and introduced the new manager, Mr. Campbell. A basket of flowers laden with chocolates was presented to Mrs. Marris, who was also the delighted recipient at the hands of "a few friends" of a dainty leather hand satchel. Mr. Jack Parker, the stage-manager, who has served Mr. Marris so well for the past six years, was presented by him with a gold watch.

A dramatised version of Part 1 of The Pilgrim's Progress, adapted by Mrs. Hadley and Miss E. Ouless, will be given at the Imperial Theatre on Saturday afternoon and evening next. The proceeds of the performance will be divided between the London Hospital and the Diocesan Church Funds. One of the most notable dramatisations of Bunyan's famous work was that produced at the Olympic at the Christmas of 1896, when Mr. W. L. Abingdon appeared in the rôle of Apollyon.

Mr. Alfred Cuthbert, who is touring in America as stage-director for Miss Olga Nethersole, has been the recipient of a handsome scarf-pin from that lady, as a mark of appreciation of his work in taking up and playing, at a very short notice, the long and important part of the Prince de Bouillon in Adrienne Lecouvreur, at Salt Lake City. Mr. Cuthbert, during his stay in the States, has secured the rights of two plays, of which he has great hopes in this country.

Miss Phyllis Dare, Miss Marie Dainton, Mr. Lewis Sydney, and a large concert party will appear on Monday at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. This temple of the drama, under the new management of Murray King and Clark, is rapidly becoming one of the "plum" provincial dates. An equally attractive programme is promised for Easter week, which will be followed by Mr. Albert Chevalier in his new triple bill and by Messrs. Charles Cartwright and Gerald Lawrence with their company, supported by Mr. Charles Collette and Miss Fay Davis.

Proof of the continued vitality of The Prodigal Parson was forthcoming last week at the Osborne Theatre, Manchester, when Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company played to £60 more than on the last visit of the piece, despite the fact that it was the play's sixth appearance in the town within the last twelve months. The present tour has lasted fifty-six weeks without a break, and the piece is practically booked up for another year.

The pantomime of Mother Goose at the Royal Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, will terminate its season on Saturday next, having by that time run into its fourteenth week, thus establishing a record at the theatre. The author of the pantomime is Mr. J. James Hewson.

Messrs. Armitage and Leigh, with their Lucky Durham company, are making their third trip to Hanley this week, and opened to over £10 in excess of their previous visits, despite the fact that Paderewski had a concert at the Town Hall on Monday night. The houses during the week have surpassed their best records, and a return visit (the fourth) has been booked. Leah Kleschna has won golden opinions in Gateshead, and return visits have already been arranged. Mr. Bacon has also booked Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's new play, With Edged Tools, adapted from Henry Seton Merriman's famous novel, the cast for which will be found to be an "all-star" one.

Miss Decima Moore is among the distinguished arrivals this week from abroad, and on Tuesday returned from a jaunt to Africa, where she has had thrilling adventures. She has been carried ninety miles in a hammock, bitten by a wild horse, entertained by native kings and chiefs, and assisted at a native law case. Miss Mooore, nevertheless, duly appeared at the special matinée of All-of-a-Sudden Peggy at the Crystal Palace in the afternoon of her arrival, and is now on a tour of the merry comedy.

Arrangements have been made for Miss Wynne Matthison to appear in her creation of Everyman, in the old morality play of the same name, for a series of special matinées, to be given at the Coronet Theatre on Wednesdays and Thursdays, 20th and 21st, and the 27th and 28th inst.; while on Saturday afternoon, the 23rd inst., Miss Matthison will be seen in the same remarkable impersonation at the Kennington Theatre. With the exception of a single week at the Shaftesbury two years ago, Miss Wynne Matthison will thus make her first reappearance in this character, which she has made peculiarly her own, since her triumphs in America.

Miss Maude E. Ward concludes this week at West Bromwich her successful performances of Marcelle, in Man and Wife. After a week's rest and recuperation Miss Ward begins rehearsals of Nell Greystone in the new production, Second to None, written by Walter Howard.

The Theatrical Managers' Association has decided to address a circular to the London papers requesting that details of the plots of forthcoming productions shall not be given. It is thought that the premature revelation of the story conduces to the benefit neither of the producer nor of the author of a piece, and it is by reason of this conviction that the appeal is to be made.

An extensive building site at Ilford, admirably adapted for the purposes of a theatre, was offered for sale at auction by Messrs. A. E. Williams and Co., at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, on Thursday. The property was bought in at £1,800.

The Vaudeville Theatre is to revert to comedy pure and simple at the conclusion of the run of The Belle of Mayfair—when that apparently far-off event shall occur. A new costume play in three acts, by Mr. Louis N. Parker, will inaugurate the fresh procedure. It was at the Vaudeville, it is interesting to recall, that Mr. Parker's first dramatic effort, a small piece called The Buried Talent, received recognition.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey (Miss N. de Silva) have been in considerable distress during the last few days owing to the illness of their daughter. As a consequence, Miss de Silva has been unable to play several nights this week, and has been in Brighton, nursing Miss Harvey. Happily, however, her patient is now somewhat better, and Miss de Silva will, all being well, make her reappearance as "the red-haired girl" in Rosamond Langbridge's The Spell at Glasgow on Monday.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has been drawing crowded houses this week at the Theatre Royal, Halifax. On Monday the performance of Robin Hood was under the patronage of the Regular and Volunteer Forces in Halifax, on Wednesday of the Friendly Societies, and on Saturday of the Worshipful Master and Freemasons of Probity Lodge.

Mr. Norman, we regret to learn, met with a painful accident last week, when he fractured the middle finger of his right hand while playing hockey against Lancaster Grammar School. Though this does not prevent Mr. Norman's acting at night, it will keep him away from his favourite sport for some little time. Mr. Norman's hockey team has met with a good deal of success lately. Two of the local clubs in Barrow-in-Furness were met last week, the result of one match being a draw, while the other team was defeated by six goals to nil.

A most successful Bohemian concert was given on Wednesday by the chorus gentlemen of the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, pantomime. Mr. Harry Lewis was in the chair, and amongst those who contributed songs were Misses Millie Lindon, Ethel Haydon, Valli-Valli, Messrs. Geo. Robey, Edward Lewis, T. A. Shale, and Stanley Liston, recitations being given by Miss Helene Cecile and Mr. Frank Roy.

Paul Lincke, the composer of "Glow-worm," has finished another operetta, which is being adapted for the English stage by a well-known adaptor. Judging by the popularity attained by "Glow-worm," Paul Lincke's operetta should have a warm reception.

The next Actors' Association social will be held on Friday next, when Miss Gertrude Kingston will give an address, entitled "The Truth About English Acting."

In consequence of the marvellous success of Sherlock Holmes on the last two tours, Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart has decided to extend his spring tour a few weeks.

Miss Sophie Harriss, the leading lady of Baron Harriss's Prince of Pilsen company has been singularly fortunate since joining the ranks of lady automobilists in escaping mishaps, until last Sunday, on her journey from Huddersfield to South Shields, when a breakdown happened, leaving her with her maid, her jewel case, her husband's advance director, and a lady companion on a desolate Durham Moor, within a few hours of theatre time. Not a soul was to be found to glean information from; so Miss Harriss and her party were obliged to tramp through a pitiless snowstorm along the highway for nearly five miles, when a timber waggon loomed in sight, the driver of which, amply compensated, was induced to convey Miss Harriss and her drenched companions to Ferryhill Junction, where a special train awaited them to carry them to their destination.

The British Empire Shakespeare Society gave a greatly appreciated reading of Richard III. on Thursday afternoon at Queen's Gate Hall, before an audience which, despite the inclemency of the weather, taxed the seating capacity of the hall well-nigh to the utmost. In the course of some remarks at the commencement of the proceedings, Mr. Acton Bond (one of the honorary directors of the society) read the following telegram from Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein: "Am so sorry prevented from attending to-day's reading. Had so hoped to be present." Mr. Bond emphasised the satisfaction felt by the society that the interest taken by Her Royal Highness in their proceedings was of such a very active nature. Mr. Acton Bond, under whose direction the reading was given, appeared in the title-rôle, and in the cast were also Mr. Athol Stewart, as Richmond; Mr. Arthur Burne, Clarence; Mr. C. Leveson Lane, Buckingham; Mr. Philip Knox, Hastings; Mr. Herbert Hewetson, Edward IV.; Mr. Carlton Brough, Stanley; Mr. Douglas Alington, Rivers; Mr. Lawrence Grove, Brakenbury; Mr. Charles Staite, Dorset; Mr. Theodore A. Hill and Mr. Ivan Berlyn, the two murderers; Miss Gertrude Scott, Margaret; Miss Eily Malyon, Elizabeth; Miss Beatrice Irwin, Anne; Miss M. Davies Webster, Duchess of York; Miss Marguerite Adamson, Prince of Wales; and Miss Ruby Feetum, Duke of York. Miss Enid Rose read the stage directions.

Miss Pauline Chase, whose succession to the part of Peter Pan has had such agreeable results, is to appear next autumn in another play from the pen of Mr. J. M. Barrie, which he is writing for Mr. Charles Frohman. Mr. Barrie is now at work upon the new piece, which will be presented in the autumn—in all probability at the Duke of York's Theatre.

Miss Violet Osmund, who is playing the Lady Journalist in The New Barmaid, had a trying experience last Monday. Having paid a visit to town on Sunday, she missed her train the following morning, and had to leave by the 3.35 from Paddington, which got her into Cardiff at 6.30. There she found nothing by which she could get to Ton-y-pandy, where the company was playing, but after an hour of worry and anxiety at length succeeded in obtaining a motor-car, which conveyed her to the theatre just in time to take up her second entrance. It is a very rough road from Cardiff to Ton-y-pandy, and at some points of the journey the travelling reached the rate of fifty miles an hour. Miss Osmund says the cold was intense.

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison will at Easter start another tour of Peter's Mother, for which an exceptionally powerful company has been engaged. The title-rôle will be played by Miss Lilias Earle, who has for many years sustained the leading parts under the above management in The Liars, Mrs. Dane's Defence, Mrs. Goringe's Necklace, and other high-class plays. Mr. Renouf, whose success in Mons. Beaucaire, The Christian, Sherlock Holmes, &c., will be pleasantly remembered, has been secured for the exacting part of John Crewys. Mr. F. C. Meads, a rising young actor, has been cast for Peter, a character which he has already played with great success. The entire production made specially for the "command" performance at Sandringham has been secured by Mr. Hutchison, and will be utilised on this tour.

"Patience" is to be the next revival at the Savoy Theatre, where Mrs. D'Oyly Carte hopes to produce it during Easter week. The quaint opera was among the earliest of the Gilbert and Sullivan successes, and the cast at its production at the Opera Comique on April 23, 1881, included Miss Leonora Braham, Miss Jessie Bond, Miss Alice Barnett, Miss Julia Gwynne, Miss Fortescue, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Richard Temple, and Mr. Durward Lely.

Messrs. Ernest Martin and Fewlass Llewellyn were fortunate enough to have three of their plays performed simultaneously in the suburbs last week. The Coal King formed the attraction at Poplar and the Elephant and Castle, and Matrimony, Ltd., and Her Wedding Dress furnished the programme at Putney.

Miss Maimie Brickwell is achieving a triumph in South Africa in musical comedy. Her impersonations of the heroines of The Beauty of Bath, The White Chrysanthemum, and The Dairymaids have been especially admired by the playgoers of the Rand, her singing and acting forming the subject of the warmest eulogy.

During the engagement of the Moody-Manners Opera Company at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, last week, the chorus of Tannhäuser was augmented by 65 members of the Glasgow Grand Opera Society, which came into existence about a year ago. The experiment was so successful that Mr. Manners has decided to import the entire chorus to Edinburgh, to appear in Tannhäuser this afternoon. A special train will be provided to carry them to Edinburgh and back to Glasgow, and they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manners at dinner en route.

Similar societies already exist in Middlesbrough, Dublin, and Sheffield, the last-named being the parent one. Last year the members appeared in Lohengrin and Tannhäuser, and when the company revisits Sheffield in a few weeks' time the local chorus will appear in the two operas named and also in Faust and Aida. Mr. Manners hopes that these societies will in due course be able to give their own performances of grand opera, in which case he has promised to lend principal artists entirely free of cost, and encourage them by the loan of band parts, costumes, and by personally supervising rehearsals or sending one of his stage managers to do so.

Mr. William Bailey, of the West London Theatre, did not seek re-election for the West Marylebone Division on the London County Council. During the time he served on the Council Mr. Bailey was considered by the London Theatre Managers' Association, to which he belonged, as their representative at Spring Gardens.

Miss Tita Brand has been engaged to play her original part of Knowledge in the production of Everyman at the Coronet Theatre on March 20 and subsequent dates, and at the Kennington Theatre on March 25.

The closing of the Liverpool pantomimes last Saturday was marked by much enthusiasm. At the Royal Court Theatre, where Mr. Robert Arthur recorded the biggest success he has ever had in Liverpool, presentations to the principal artists were numerous. Miss Hetty King was given a stick of a most valuable character. The handle was in the form of an elephant, carved in ivory, and encrusted with diamonds, rubies, pearls, and other precious stones; in addition the artist received some fifteen bouquets, one of which, standing 6ft. high, had the words "Our Hetty" arranged in flowers. Happy Fanny Fields came in for a pair of clogs filled with flowers, and Harry Tate was the recipient of a bearskin rug. When the Shakespeare pantomime closed a number of complimentary speeches were made, and Mr. Herbert Cottesmore presented Mr. George M. Saker, the conductor of the orchestra, with a case of pipes.

Mlle. Camilla D'Alberg's latest novelty, In at the Finish, is almost ready for production, and may be shortly expected. Mlle. D'Alberg will not herself take part in In at the Finish, as she is under contract to appear in La Main at the end of May in New York, where she has already made a name for herself as leading lady under Mr. H. Conried. The chief parts in In at the Finish are the two men's rôles.

Plans have been passed in committee for the proposed new Empire Theatre at Devonport, which is to be built for Mr. George Dance from the designs of Mr. Frank Matcham, and it is understood that a dramatic licence will be granted in the event of the building being completed in accordance with the plans. The building will have a very fine frontage of 80ft. in length, and the depth will be 130ft. The floor of the theatre will provide for pit, stalls, and orchestra stalls, above which there will be a commodious balcony and a gallery. Each part of the house will have a separate entrance and exit, and waiting-rooms are also to be provided in the event of the house being used for two performances. It is expected that the theatre will be completed by the beginning of September.

Miss Lena Ashwell, whose tour of America was brought to a premature close at Chicago through illness, has returned to London, happily restored to health. After taking a prolonged rest Miss Ashwell purposes introducing to London several new plays which she acquired in America. One of the novelties that may be expected will be found in The Undercurrent, a piece which the popular actress produced with every promise in the States.

An event of much interest to the musical world occurred on Tuesday, when Mr. Mark Hambourg, the popular Russian pianist, was married to Miss Dorothea Muir Mackenzie, daughter of Sir Kenneth Muir Mackenzie, Permanent Secretary to the Lord Chancellor. The happy couple became acquainted about a year ago in Brussels, where Mr. Jan Hambourg, the bridegroom's brother, was studying under M. Ysaye. Miss Mackenzie was also a pupil of M. Ysaye, and thus met the brother of her future husband. Later, Mr. Mark Hambourg went to Brussels to give a pianoforte recital, and the two fell in love with each other at their first introduction. The honeymoon will be spent in the South of France, but the holiday will be brief, in view of Mr. Hambourg's professional engagements.

Interesting theatrical mementoes were disposed of by Messrs. Puttick and Simpson on Monday, when a silver-mounted goblet, made from Shakespeare's mulberry tree, fetched 52 guineas. Engraved upon the mount is the following inscription: "This cup is a piece of a Mulberry Tree set by the Hand of the Immortal Shakespeare in his garden at Stratford-upon-Avon in Warwickshire." A carved casket, made of oak taken from Shakespeare's birthplace during the time of its restoration, following its purchase for the nation in the year 1847, was sold for 5 guineas.

Among other lots was a gold fob-seal, engraved with portrait of David Garrick, said to have belonged to the great actor, which realised £3 7s. 6d., An original document, dated March 9, 1805, signed by the Master Trustees and Committee for the Fund for Decayed Actors belonging to the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, suggesting that Master Betty shall "exert his transcendent Talents for us One Night, for his poor, aged, and infirm Brethren," &c., which went for £1 15s.

A great treat is in store for the patrons of this afternoon's concert at the Crystal Palace, where Harold Bauer and Jean Gerardy will give a joint recital. The programme will include Sonata in A minor (Greig) for piano and 'cello, piano solos of Schumann, "Air de Ballet" (Gluck-Saint-Saëns), a Scherzo of Mendelssohn, Liszt's Rhapsodie No. 13, and other attractive selections. The vocalist will be Mr. Walter Wheatley and the accompanist Mr. Charlton Keith. For the evening promenade concerts at the Crystal Palace the artists engaged by Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock are Misses Evelyn Vernham, Helen Blair, Annie Bartle, and Carrie James, and Messrs. J. A. Bovett, Robert Dennant, Arthur Grover, and others.

The Committee of the Actors' Benevolent Fund for 1907 and 1908 is now in process of constitution. All subscribers of a guinea and upwards are entitled to nominate and vote in the election of the Executive, which must be composed of fourteen members of £5 and upwards, and seven members of not less than one guinea. Gentlemen qualified as above, and who are willing to serve on the Committee, are requested to send in their names not later than Thursday, April 4. In the event of there being more than twenty-one candidates an election will take place on Thursday, April 11, at 4 p.m., at 8, Adam-street, Adelphi, when the voting papers will be examined and recorded by the scrutineers appointed at the annual general meeting.

John .....MR. LAWSON BUTT
Messenger .....MR. ALFRED BRISTOWE
Tim .....MR. EDWARD RIGBY
Sliver .....MR. WILLIAM BURCHILL
A Sheriff's Officer .....MR. CHARLES GOODHART
Another Sheriff's Officer .....MR. FRANK LACY
Curate .....MR. HARRISON CARTER
A Country Squire .....MR. DOUGLAS IMBERT
Kitty Montmorency .....MISS NANCY PRICE
Prudence Rundle .....MISS PAMELA GAYTHORNE
Mrs. Ogle .....MISS HELEN ROUS
Esther .....MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE

Mr. Sheridan, which was first performed at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, in the August of 1904, is brightly written, and is full of interesting and amusing incident. Sheridan was troubled a good deal by his relations—his father always depreciated him, and even found fault with The School for Scandal; and, in Mr. Sheridan, his son Tom gives him "very great uneasiness." It is hoped that Tom Sheridan will win the hand of the charming Miss Esther Ogle; but his father has news of the youth's having entangled himself with a married lady at Cambridge. When Miss Ogle arrives at Sheridan's house at Wanstead, Tom's head is too full of his Cambridge flame for him to do himself justice as a suitor; and his rival, Lord Wilfred Cray, finds that the lady will not favour his suit. In retaliation, his Lordship schemes to buy up Sheridan's debts, throw the embarrassed author into prison, and thus disgust Esther with the idea of a union with Tom.

In the second act Sheridan is visited by Kitty Montmorency, an actress, who has been badly treated by Lord Cray. The good-natured dramatist gets Kitty to accept an offer of marriage which is made to her by an honest inn-keeper. Then Sheridan is pestered by a Mr. Rundle, who accuses him of paying attentions to his—Rundle's—wife at Cambridge, while he was absent in Jamaica. Rundle, in proof, produces a letter from Tom to the lady; and the affectionate father, making himself the scapegoat for his offspring's imprudence, does not deny the impeachment, and consents to meet Rundle "with pistols for two" next morning.

Miss Ogle has now conceived an affection for Sheridan père, who gives a ball in her honour. He also is enamoured. Mrs. Rundle, the wife of Sheridan's previous visitor, arrives, and Sheridan conceals her to prevent her meeting the troublesome Tom. The dramatist now proposes to Miss Ogle; but she, having misconstrued his action with regard to Mrs. Rundle, refuses him, and accepts Lord Cray. Rundle arrives, pugnacious. In the encounter which follows Rundle is wounded by Sheridan, who releases Mrs. Rundle, and advises her to ask her husband's forgiveness, and then hurries off with Miss Ogle, after an explanation, to get married. He is followed by Sheriff's officers to the inn now kept by Kitty and her husband. He dexterously deceives his pursuers, who arrest Lord Cray by mistake. He is, however, eventually released, and the dramatist receives, most opportunely, a cheque for £15,000, which he has been expecting, and which relieves him of his difficulties.

Naturally, the figure of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, poet and dramatist, manager, and Member of Parliament, dominates the play, and Mr. Bourchier makes a very lovable personality—with a most engaging brogue—of the impulsive, emotional Irishman. We have grown so accustomed to seeing Mr. Bourchier in character parts that it must have been something of a surprise, even to his most enthusiastic admirers, to note the quiet ease with which he played the part of the simple, unassuming genius, the Sheridan as shown us in Miss Unger's play. Mr. Bourchier realises to the full the underlying pathos, the quick flashes of wit, the boyish irresponsibility of the famous Irishman, and he invests the character with a charm and a simplicity which, we frankly acknowledge, we had hardly expected from him, versatile as he has proved himself to be. In the scene where Esther, seated at the spinet, facing the portrait of his dead wife, sings the old English song, "How could you leave me?" what varied emotions flit across Sheridan's face! He is conscious, first of a vague, elusive memory, then of a sudden realisation, as he catches sight of his wife's picture, that it was from her lips that he had last heard the song; and, lastly, he fixes a look of unutterable sadness and longing on the likeness of his dead wife, the glance being followed by a hurried exit, with the murmured words, "I must be alone!" All this shows Mr. Bourchier in the light of an actor who can appeal to the emotions as well as to the intelligence. However small the part may be which Mr. Sydney Valentine plays, he invariably manages to invest it with character and feeling; and in this case his performance of the injured husband, who has every reason to believe himself more wronged than is the case, is marked by a dignity of bearing and an incisive style which make the character stand out, although it is comparatively insignificant. Nature has aided Mr. Valentine's art by endowing him with a fine voice, which arrests the attention and charms the ear of the listener. The part of Sheridan's prig of a son is played by Mr. Walter Pearce in a manner which makes it an excellent foil to the genial, light-hearted father; and the rôle of the unscrupulous young scoundrel, Lord Cray, is enacted with commendable restraint by Mr. Cyril Keightley. Mr. Charles V. France gives a first-rate performance as an old servant who has lived long enough with his master to have acquired a superficial resemblance to him in more ways than one. Mr. Arthur Whitby makes the moneylender, Minzes, a Jew of the approved stage type. The Messenger from Morland's Bank, with an impediment in his speech, is represented very humorously by Mr. Alfred Bristowe; and Mr. Edward Rigby, as Tim, the "boots," gives a clever little character-sketch. Mr. Leonard Calvert makes a very determined creditor; and Mr. William Burchill strikes a good note as Sliver, who may be more aptly described as Lord Cray's "creature" than as his servant. Mr. Charles Goodhart is excellent as a stupid country bumpkin of a Sheriff's Officer; and is ably seconded by Mr. Frank Lacy as another "of that ilk." Mr. Lawson Butt as Honest John, the innkeeper, is very successful as the manly husband and lover of pretty Kitty Montmorency. Mr. Douglas Imbert is a typical Country Squire; and Mr. Harrison Carter an amiable Curate. As Esther, the heroine of the play, Miss Alexandra Carlisle deepens the good impression which she made in The Morals of Marcus. Her Esther is an altogether delightful little person, fresh and sweet, with dainty little ways and a rippling laugh. The transition from frank admiration of the genius Sheridan to love of the man is shown by very delicate touches; and the curtain, at the end of the second act, falls on a charming picture of Esther gazing, with a face full of wistful absorption, at the picture of the first wife, the Miss Linley of history. The airs and graces of Kitty Montmorency are engagingly presented by Miss Nancy Price, who, in the last act, conveys very prettily the love she bears to her "honest John," under all the affectations of the actress. Miss Helen Rous plays Mrs. Ogle with all her usual ability, and is very funny in the last act, when she overhears Lord Cray referring to her as "Old Ogle." Miss Pamela Gaythorne gives a pretty little picture of the repentant wife, Prudence Rundle. Mr. Sheridan was very favourably received.

DRURY LANE THEATRE.

MATINEE FOR LONDON'S CRIPPLES.

More than one thousand pounds was realised at the performance given at Drury Lane Theatre on Tuesday afternoon in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripples' Fund. An altogether admirable programme was presented, and it can be said at once that the audience had an unusually good bargain in return for what they paid for their seats. Miss Winifred Emery, with an eloquence which could not be surpassed, and could not be denied, delivered a touching appeal for assistance to the Fund, the address having been written by Captain Robert Marshall.

Lady Bancroft, in announcing the amount of the donations and the sum netted by the matinée, and thanking the audience for their liberal support of the Lord Mayor's scheme, said:—"It must afford the Lord Mayor the utmost measure of happiness to see the great desire of his life thus approaching nearer and nearer to completion, and I sincerely hope and trust that the institution for which he has worked so hard and so long will soon come into existence. I only wish I could give him what is wanted to make up the requisite sum, for in that case he would not have long to wait. Such a home as is contemplated by him will serve to reconcile these poor hopeless and helpless little ones in their sad affliction. For just think how doubly hard it must be for them to endure pain in a miserable home, amid squalid surroundings, bad air, bad food, bad everything. This home, with all its splendid advantages, will bring sunshine into their lives, will soothe and alleviate their sufferings, and make their little world look ever so much brighter. Trades and industries of a skilled character will be open to these children, who in this way will be provided with an object in life, and thus be enabled to gain a livelihood for themselves."

As to the entertainment, Mr. Tree, aided by members of His Majesty's Theatre company, presented his striking performance of The Man Who Was; and Mr. Cyril Maude was seen in The Beauty and the Barge, supported by actors and actresses who formed part of the original cast. Mr. H. B. Irving and Mr. Lewis Waller delivered recitations in superb style. Mr. Huntley Wright entertained the house with his rendering of the song "It's only a question of time," and Mlle. Genée delighted all by her execution of a pretty dance. Mr. Alfred Lester gave "The Scene-shifter's Lament," in his gently humorous way; and Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Harry Randall, Mr. Harry Fragson (who obliged with several ballads), Mr. Fred Emney, Miss Queenie Leighton, and Miss Marie George and other members of the Drury Lane company, appeared in a pot-pourri from Sindbad, Mr. Randall and Mr. Emney, as usual, provoking an outburst of uncontrollable laughter by their comic business in the afternoon tea scene. Mr. Ben Davies was heard to fine effect in "Mother o' Mine," words by Kipling and music by Mr. Frank Tours; to Miss Margaret Cooper praise is due for her very pleasing rendering of "My heart's at your feet." The most novel feature of the matinée was A Prehistoric Lord Mayor's Show, arranged by Mr. E. T. Reed and Mr. Edmund Payne. This "show," into which a good deal of knockabout fun was introduced, proved exceedingly diverting.

The trial scene from Pickwick was performed by a cast of stars. The immortal Buzfuz found a flamboyantly eloquent exponent in Mr. Edward Terry. Mr. Harry Nicholls played the irritable Justice Stareleigh with a realism that seemed to have been begotten of years spent on the judicial bench. Of course, in person, face, and manner one could scarcely wish for a better representative of the great Pickwick than Mr. J. J. Dallas, who treated the house to a delightful performance. Serjeant Snubbin has a very uphill fight against the robustious Buzfuz, and Mr. Terry Hurst acted extremely well as the defender of the unfortunate Pickwick. Miss Fanny Brough played the sympathetic Mrs. Cluppins with exquisite humour, and Mr. Arthur Williams was a very entertaining Sam Weller; while others taking part in the scene were Mr. Fred Wright, jun. (Nathaniel Winkle), Mr. George Byrne (Mr. Fogg), Miss Carlotta Addison (Mrs. Bardell), Miss Georgie Esmond (Mrs. Saunders), Mr. Ackerman May (Associate), Miss Iris Hawkins (Master Bardell), Mr. Robt. Pateman (Old Weller), Mr. Wm. Dexter, and Mr. T. P. Haynes.

FUNERAL OF MISS BRANDRAM.

The funeral of Miss Rosina Brandram, one of the Savoy favourites of former days, took place on Tuesday. The body was first conveyed to St. Mark's Church, Southend, where a choral service was conducted by the Rev. G. J. Lodge. Subsequently the remains were conveyed to the City of London Cemetery, at Ilford, for cremation. The funeral cortège, consisting of a hearse and two mourning carriages, arrived at the cemetery at 1.30 p.m. The chief mourners were the brother and nephew, Messrs. Wm. Moult and Aubrey Moult, Mrs. W. Moult, Mr. George Papps, Mr. R. B. Creak, and Miss E. A. Tidd, cousin. The coffin, which was covered with floral tokens of affection and regard, was taken into the chapel adjoining the crematorium, and the choral service was concluded, the officiating minister being the Rev. G. J. Lodge. The inscription on the coffin ran:—"Rosina Butcher (Rosina Brandram), died Feb. 28, 1907, aged 61 years." The wreath sent by the author of so many Savoy Theatre operas had attached to it a card, bearing the following inscription:—"In affectionate remembrance and much gratitude.—W. S. Gilbert." "In affectionate memory of my dear and faithful friend, Rosina," were the words on the card which accompanied Mr. George Grossmith's wreath; and Mrs. R. D'Oyly Carte's affectionate appreciation was expressed by the inscription, "With deepest regret from her old friend." Another wreath was forwarded as "A tribute of regard from the new Savoy Company"; and there were similar tributes, over thirty altogether, to the memory of the deceased from the Savoy Orchestra and the Southend Operatic Society, and many personal friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Moult, Aubrey and Baba, Mrs. Tidd and family, Mr. Herbert Sullivan, Mr. and Miss Bennett, Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Fellowes, Mrs. Dickson, Miss Rooke, Mr. and Mrs. Tomkins, Ernest, Mrs. Crombie, Miss Clara Jecks, Mrs. Frederick Tidd, Miss Lorrimer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cellier, Cousin George, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Corlis, Harriet, R. B. Creak, Rosie Nixon, and "In Loving Memory of a very great artist and a very dear friend.—E. A. E."

A RARE chance to would-be automobilists is offered by Messrs. Warrilow and Co., of Weston-super-Mare, who have 150 motor-cars on hand to dispose of at great bargains, in addition to 6500 cycles, new and secondhand, from 25s. each. A 100-page illustrated catalogue, giving full details, may be had free on application to the firm named, who guarantee a saving of 50 per cent.

M. Pierre Berton's piece, La Belle Marseillaise, which was produced at the Ambigu Theatre in the March of 1905, is a skilful bit of theatrical craftsmanship. At times it is rather too theatrical; especially when an explosion—a double-barrelled one—shakes the house, and fills the stage and auditorium with the odour of gunpowder. The introduction of a poisoned snuff-box verges on the absurd, and the peremptory way in which the villain is put out of his misery in the last act is decidedly quaint. But, withal, the shuttlecock of interest is always in the air. We are ever palpitating on the verge of a discovery, and, if some of us have lost the power to palpitate at M. Berton's simple, but effective, inventions, it only shows that we have lost other things as well.

The action opens in a Paris restaurant, kept by a ci-devant Marquis de Tallemont, under the name of Lacaussade. The Marquis married a young girl of good family when she was only twelve, in order to settle a family dispute; and, as he is much her senior, and his mind is given entirely to the projected blowing-up of the hated Bonaparte, the connection between them is purely platonic. The void thus left in the heart of Jeanne is soon filled by Roger Crisenoy, a young officer, one of Napoleon's aides-de-camp, who adores the Emperor. As Crisenoy is one of the devoted adherents who watch in turns over Bonaparte's safety, it is desirable that he should be kept out of the way while the conspirators carry out their plan; so De Tallemont tells Jeanne to detain her admirer at dinner till the clock strikes seven—the hour for which the explosion is fixed. Thus is provided a very tantalising scene, ending in a declaration of passion, two tremendous bangs, and the front of the restaurant being smashed in. We are informed immediately afterwards that De Tallemont's head has been blown off; but this is a mistake—it is Bernard, one of the conspirators, who has been decapitated, while disguised in De Tallemont's coat. The Marquis is very much alive, and binds Jeanne over to keep the secret.

This secret it becomes the object of Napoleon to drag from her in the next act; for the Marquis is at his old game of assassination again, and his existence is suspected by Fouché, who is anxious to expose the incapacity of his successor, Regnier. There is a long, but adroitly-handled, scene, in which Napoleon, showing talent as a cross-examiner worthy of the late Sir Henry Hawkins, turns poor little Jeanne's evidence inside out. She, true to her promise, maintains that De Tallemont is dead. She confesses, however, that she loves Crisenoy. "Then, why not marry him?" asks Napoleon; and, driven up into a corner, the alleged widow consents to commit bigamy rather than be false to her word, the scene ending with the civil marriage of the parties. Jeanne tells Crisenoy the truth, and, as he stoutly maintains his ignorance when questioned by Napoleon, he is put under arrest. In the last act, De Tallemont turns up in disguise, as the trusted agent of the idiotic Regnier, and tries to poison Napoleon with medicated snuff, placed in a box which is a duplicate of Bonaparte's own. Jeanne recognises her legal husband, and manages to change the boxes, so that Napoleon retains the harmless one. Hearing from Fouché of the intended trick, Napoleon orders her to take a pinch from the box, which, of course, she does very boldly. Croisenoy recognises De Tallemont, and challenges him to a duel; but, in the young man's absence, and by De Tallemont's special request, Colonel Rapp "takes on the job," and the Marquis perishes by the Colonel's trusty blade.

Mr. John Hare's Emperor had the most important factor of a Napoleonic embodiment—active, acute intelligence. He gave an admirable idea of Bonaparte in one of the irritable, energetic moods which are described by De Bourrienne as being of frequent occurrence. The piercing eyes, flashing fire under the pent-house brows, the alert movements, and the sharp staccato delivery, were amply characteristic. It should be remembered that it was only late in life that Napoleon developed the corpulence which is one of the "points" in our imaginary creation of the famous Corsican; when young he was notoriously small and thin. In early life he might have been described as a saturnine little rat. Mr. Hare's Napoleon is the Napoleon of the English caricaturists, which certainly had foundation in fact. His acting in the scenes with Jeanne was marvellously crisp and telling, and the complete mastery of the Emperor's genius over his surroundings was emphasised with striking skill. Mr. Henry Ainley was all that could be desired in the way of good looks, gallant bearing, and dramatic effectiveness, as Captain Roger Crisenoy; and Mr. Lyall Swete gave a full-bodied and duly important embodiment of Colonel Rapp. Mr. Aubrey Smith played the part of the Marquis de Tallemont for all that it was worth, and made the most of his scanty opportunities; and Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw was an excellent Fouché—smooth, easy, and persistent. Mr. E. Dagnall was comically conceited and silly as Regnier, and performed his task very judiciously; and the panic terror of the conspirator, Bernard, was graphically shown by Mr. Arthur Wontner. Miss Irene Vanbrugh won all hearts, and made a delightfully dainty Jeanne de Briantes. Whether coquetting with Crisenoy in the first act, or quivering under the attacks of Bonaparte in the second, she was equally clever and charming. Miss Madge McIntosh realised Josephine happily, if contemporary portraits may be trusted; and Miss Janet Alexander was a pretty and pleasing Hortense. The members of the Napoleonic Court all had careful and conscientious representatives; and the piece was liberally and tastefully dressed, Messrs. Bruce Smith, W. Hann, Ernest Hann, and McCleery's scenery being excellent. M. Charles Bianchini and Mr. Tom Heslewood's designs for the costumes were capably carried out; and Mr. Dion Boucicault's direction ensured the smoothness of the production. The piece had a cordial reception from an appreciative audience, Mr. Hare being received with especial enthusiasm.

Scenes of daintiness, costumes of supreme loveliness, beautiful girls, comedy broad and effective, and a sincere and convincing dramatic scene, are among the distinguishing features of the latest musical comedy arranged and planned by Mr. Seymour Hicks, who, in productions of a similar kind, has won name and fame. It is not exactly what My Darling is at the present moment, it is what she will become in the hands of an ever-watchful management, who will prune and elaborate, delete and amend, until as a piece of attractive and harmless frivolity the new production will answer all the requirements of an ever-growing public, who insist on a judicious mixture of frivolity and fun, and who, as long as they have plenty of incidental song and dance, do not trouble in the least about a plot. This essential, however, is supplied.

We have no fin de siècle treatment of a nursery legend, but an imbroglio that reminds the old playgoer of the very successful Pink Dominos. Sir Henry Heldon is a distant relation of Joskin Tubbs, the naughty old gentleman of the Criterion farce mentioned. He is proprietor of a newspaper called the Daily Butterfly. Being in Paris, which always spells impropriety on the English stage, Sir Henry determines to have what is called in the vernacular of Bohemia a real good time. Lady Heldon is rather suspicious than submissive, and also takes a little excursion abroad. The meeting of the old couple and all and sundry of the characters supplies the comic interest. The heroine, an English girl from the convent, unsophisticated and sweet, as a matter of course—is she not named Joy Blossom?—is loved by the Hon. Jack Hylton, a typical young scion of the English aristocracy, who, during his salad days, has had love passages with Sylvaine, a diva of the Folies-Bergères, with the usual result, a packet of compromising letters. These she will surrender only at a heavy price. Meetings are arranged at the Hôtel D'Ontelle, and in the end the Frenchwoman capitulates to the appeal of Joy Blossom, and gives up the records of the foolish and dangerous infatuation of Hylton. He, too, suffers no little mental trepidation through the misunderstandings of which he is the victim. The blasé woman of the world surrenders the prospect of blackmail for "a kiss of the pure lips" of the English maiden. Jack Hylton's goodnature, we should add, leads him into considerable trouble, and when he takes the place of his friend, M. Maurice Le Blanc, an opera tenor—indisposed through having dined and wined too freely—the result is an "embarrassment" of cross-purposes all round, in which Daphne Bell, the fiancée of Le Blanc, has a share. This is all we need say of the plot.

Mr. J. F. McArdle's title to be considered a low comedian of the first rank was established by him when he created last May at Wyndham's the character of General Sir Wilkie Willoughby, in The Girl Behind the Counter. His Sir Henry Heldon presents a ludicrous appearance in the second act, and the gay old dog's appreciation of the beauty and chic of the "Butterfly Girls" is quite excusable and comically expressed. Compromising situations are treated by Mr. McArdle with all the droll resource of an accomplished actor, and he scores most unmistakably throughout. Miss Marie Studholme realises the demure prettiness and unsophisticated charm of Joy Blossom, singing with sufficient sincerity, too, to make the "Glow-worm" ballad acceptable. She has a chance later in the piece, wherein the heart of the English girl is touched by the unexpected self-sacrifice of the French adventuress, and herein Miss Studholme plays with a pretty sincerity that gets at the hearts of her hearers. Miss Beryl Faber, an actress of considerable gifts, as Londoners have been admitting since she graduated with honours as the cold-blooded Miss Geraldine Ridgeley in His House in Order, finds herself in musical comedy in a part more flamboyant than the one she has been playing with so much success for a twelvemonth. As Sylvaine she portrays the chagrin of the disappointed diva with no little picturesqueness and power, and in the little scene to which we have referred she holds the house by the dramatic significance of her acting. Mr. H. A. Lytton, the Savoyard, has a part after his own heart in Jack Hylton, and scores a very great hit in the patriotic and military number "Hats off to the King," in which representatives of a Scotch corps of the British Army are in evidence, a touch of sentiment being given by Mr. Lytton's appearance as an aged and decrepit Chelsea pensioner. Mr. Lytton also scores with Miss Studholme in a pretty duet at a luncheon table. Mr. Armand Kalisz, a newcomer to the London stage, appears as M. Maurice Le Blanc, and is fortunate indeed in having so interesting a scena as "The shady side of Bond-street," a dainty concerted number, in which both sexes adopt the costumes of the sixties with very novel effect. Miss Barbara Deane as Daphne Bell sings with power and volume, but forces her notes in the number, "The songs my mother sang," which includes excerpts from Killarney" and "Home, Sweet Home." Miss Helen Kinnaird is imposing and amusing as the American widow, Mrs. Pomeroy Green, a new edition of Mrs. Shimmering Black in The Earl and the Girl, and is broadly comic when Mrs. Green disguises herself as Joan of Arc, the maid of Orleans. Miss Ethel Nash makes a sprightly Lisette; Miss Alice Hollander, from the Tivoli, who plays Gabriel Reeve, a French singer, gives with good effect a song concerning "women and wine"; Miss Clare Greet has no lack of ludicrous situations in which to display her well known drollery; Master Archie McCaig is a pert and saucy page-boy as Squib; Mr. Tom Graves is responsible for an amusingly effective impersonation of Oddy, the proprietor of the hotel; Mr. Charles Childerstone is seen to advantage as The MacSporan; and Mr. Mervyn Dene is smart and soldier-like as the Hon. Mutty Farrell.

"PETER'S MOTHER" AT THE HAYMARKET.

The traditions of the Haymarket will in no way suffer by the appearance on its stage of Peter's Mother, which on Saturday went into residence at the theatre so ably governed by Mr. Frederick Harrison. Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's delightful piece, which has already borne several removals without injury, may not remain long in its present home, as the new play, The Palace of Puck, is only waiting the complete restoration to health of Mr. Charles Hawtrey for production; but the favour bestowed on Peter's Mother might well justify its reproduction at still another West-end house, where its stay would be more permanent. The fragrance of Miss Marion Terry's performance of the title-rôle has been little disturbed in the transition from place to place, and the grace and refinement of her acting extert their customary influence, and serve to give Miss Terry's embodiment of Lady Mary Crewys a high place among her most artistic achievements. Mr. A. E. Mathews is fortunately retained for the selfish son, Peter, and his reputation is greatly enhanced by the representation. His assumption of the youth's arrogance and invincible egoism, so far as his mother is concerned, is superb, but by a touch of real cleverness he manages to give sufficient character to the part to secure it a position in favour, and the audience are fain to admire the plucky young soldier, so smartly presented by Mr. Mathews. As Sir Timothy Crewys, Mr. Norman McKinnell again presents his vivid study of the invalid, soured by pain and suffering, which finds expression in look, word, and action. Miss Beatrice Ferrar makes a girlish and comely figure of the youthful Sarah Hewel, and delivers her lines with the utmost point. Another newcomer to the cast is Miss Gwynne Herbert, whose embodiment of the self-approving Mrs. Hewel is a conspicuous success. Miss Herbert's presence on the stage is brief, but she makes it notable for a performance full of vivacity and charm. Mr. E. W. Garden gives to Canon Birch a clerical cut that does not finish with his coat, and to his quiet and unassertive drollery much of the laughter that arises is due. The manifest difficulties of the part of John Crewys, Q.C., are artistically surmounted by Mr. Dawson Milward who imparts all the requisite tenderness to the rôle, while his delivery of the little lecture to Peter which precedes the close of the play, was so neatly done that the cheers of the audience on Saturday broke out enthusiastically. Mr. Alfred Bucklaw gives a commendable sketch of Dr. Blundell, and skilfully moulds his sonorous voice, which has declaimed the stirring lines of many a strenuous character, to the necessities of the part of the fashionable medical man. The oddities of the widowed Lady Belstone and Miss Georgina Crewys are shared by Miss Dolores Drummond and Miss Alice Beet, who are both richly humorous in their impersonations. Messrs. Eric Lennard and Montague Elphinstone undertake with credit the duties of butler and footman respectively. Peter's Mother is preceded by Keble Howard's comedietta, Compromising Martha, the revival of which is fully justified by the amusement it affords. Miss Dagmar Wiehe is most attractive as the young lady who combines sweethearting with philanthropy, and as her coadjutor Mr. E. W. Tarver skilfully reconciles the dignity of the cloth with the ardour of the lover. Miss Florence Haydon's representation of Martha is a piece of work in which expert facial play is not the least prominent of a clever impersonation; and Miss Lydia Rachel's embodiment of a country housewife is a marvel of quaintness.

"HEDDA GABLER" AT THE COURT.

A houseful of enthusiasts assembled at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon when the first of a series of matinées of Ibsen's play, Hedda Gabler, was given. Justice was rendered to the piece by a skilfully-selected cast, of which Mrs. Patrick Campbell was the prominent figure, and the performance afforded keen enjoyment, although the plaintive requests to "speak up" which came occasionally from the gallery were not wholly unwarranted. Hedda Gabler is a creditable specimen of Ibsen's constructive ability, and the satisfaction with which it was received in London some sixteen years ago, when the title-rôle was played by Miss Elizabeth Robbins, was renewed with marked intensity on Tuesday. As the play is one of Ibsen's most dramatically effective, so is its leading character one of his most complex, and if Mrs. Campbell did not rise to supreme heights in her portrayal, she presented a clever study of the class of part for the interpretation of which she is justly renowned. Mrs. Campbell yields to none in her depiction of utter boredom, and to this phase of the character she was true in every detail, especially when Hedda's ailment took the form of a candid contempt for her husband. It was in conveying the exact intention of the rôle that Mrs. Campbell's hold of the part weakened, and Hedda's attitude towards Mrs. Elvsted, her interest in Lövborg, and her feeling for Judge Brack were suggested with scarcely sufficient weight. Mrs. Campbell has at command much deeper effects of light and shade, and that she did not put them into the picture is due only to the fact that she slightly misjudged her aim. It was nevertheless a performance on a high artistic scale, and Mrs. Campbell's fine presence and measured tones were of incalculable value in the achievement. Mr. Laurence Irving, who was loaned by Mr. Charles Frohman, gave character to Eilert Lövborg. With meaning in every word and look, the actor played upon the emotions of the audience by many well-studied tricks of gesture, facial expression, and delivery, and supplied in the rugged, dissipated young essayist an impersonation that was weirdly fascinating. The tête-à-tête with Hedda Gabler was unmistakably the most impressive in his performance, and the conduct of the scene in which the ingenuity of the playwright is vividly displayed was a masterly piece of dramatic finesse. Mr. James Hearn was insidiously effective as Judge Brack, who aspires to make the Hedda's family triangle complete. He pursued his sinister purpose with all the sagacity of a skilled financier building up his gains, and his discomfiture at the end was very pronounced. The silly and self-sufficient spouse was played to perfection by Mr. Trevor Lowe, who made George Tesman the very ideal of a good-natured bookworm, whose affection for his wife does not mar his enthusiasm for his work. Tesman's attitudes and expressions were always in tune with the part, and Mr. Lowe's performance was clever and evenly balanced throughout. The part of the ill-advised Mrs. Elvsted present many difficulties, but Miss Evelyn Weeden surmounted them in a way that reflected creditably on her ability. She is gifted with a prepossessing appearance and a pleasingly impulsive style, and it was little wonder that sympathy was extended to the warm-hearted young lady. An impersonation full of charm and serenity was given by Miss Adela Measor, who beamed through the part of Miss Juliana Tesman, and shed a welcome gleam of comedy on the scene whenever she appeared. The cast was completed by Miss Mary Raby, who was a properly sedate Berta. A distinguished audience gave evidence of complete approval, and warmly recalled the chief performers at every curtain.

"THE ANGEL OF UNREST," which was produced with gratifying success last Monday at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, will not wait long before being performed in London, Mr. Fred Fredericks having secured it for the Borough Theatre, Stratford, the week commencing March 25.

STOCK COMPANIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—There can be no shadow of doubt that the travelling company does not now enjoy that popularity extended on its inception. Whether it be that the performers have had no opportunities of "making a name," and thus do not individually attract the public, the reason does not seem necessary to argue in this letter, but if the provincial theatre is to maintain its prestige as an amusement provider to the masses, it would appear politic to hearken to the voice echoing public sentiment.

At this period there is only one city in Great Britain possessing a number of stock companies, and the following are the names of the theatres where the principal companies perform:—His Majesty's, Haymarket, Playhouse, Gaiety, St. James's, Garrick, Daly's, and Court. Possibly experts infer that the success of these combinations depends on individuality, which individuality secures a "following," and as this said "following" increases week by week, it seems to be, in the ordinary progress of things, for respective performers to become well known and popular, or develop gradually into West-end favourites or stars. Thus, it will be admitted that the "favourite" is made by long seasons at one place; he becomes known, people speak of him as "great" in this and that, he "draws" the public on his particular line of business, his peculiar mannerisms, his drawl, his singing, his dancing, or whatever other speciality he exhibits, and by his permanency in one theatre he takes root, and may speedily be termed part and parcel of the theatrical business.

With the touring actor it is altogether different. His stay in a town is limited to one week only, and as the public visit the theatre more with the object of seeing the "London success" than anything else, it is but reasonable to state that the name of the individual actor is forgotten when he departs from a theatre; and herein would appear to be the stumbling-block in the way of the performer's progress, for it must be conceded that every actor—and this general term includes the actress—has personal mannerisms and "tricks" which must be continuously demonstrated to gain any degree of notoriety, and the mere fact of exercising his talents in one place for any length of time adds materially to his opportunities for making that headway borne of serious ambition, which latter is the true instinct of every earnest worker in all departments of the human beehive.

It might, therefore, with sound logic, be prognosticated that the leading resident-managers of provincial theatres will in due course consider carefully the policy of emulating the system of the London stock companies, whether for musical plays or otherwise, and organise their own combinations of talented people, drawn both from the market and from the ranks of clever "locals." Let us take Liverpool, Birmingham, Manchester, Glasgow, and Edinburgh as examples of cities for treatment under such a régime. In all these important national centres there must be lying dormant local talent of the first quality, which fact can be proved by visiting the popular amateur concerts or dramatic representations. The local manager-producer may in course of time set himself to find these people, who would naturally have some little "following" at the onset, and by judiciously bolstering them up with experienced talent from the London or central market, and keeping the crowd well before his patrons, build and develop companies as satisfactory in comparison as any in the metropolis, and such a course would obviate the modern tendency of turning on variety shows at slack intervals of dramatic seasons. Moreover, as there are smaller theatre towns all round the larger cities, it is easily argued that after a season at the so-and-so centre the company could take a trip to the outlying places, where it is apprehended their performances have already been discussed by native patrons and are awaited with keen anticipation and pleasure.

Then, again, it can be taken into consideration that the established entertainments at the several centres would attract the London managers, and in all probability not only the plays themselves would be taken en bloc to the larger area of London, but the artists also would have a broader and finer field for their endeavours which would improve their chances of gaining a place in London; and authors, composers, and responsible producers would find a wide and open market for the exercise of their natural attainments. So it would seem that the whole business, from beginning to end, would employ more people and the most deserving workers, and in its transitory stages prove of immense importance in elevating the British theatre, and raising them from their present somewhat desultory apathy and indecision.

Experts may be inclined to favour the opinion that, when the above state of affairs develops itself then will come more propitious times for formulating such schemes as the proposed Actors' Union, if such an organisation is then considered essential to the interests of the worker. But many might say with some truth that when a business is prosperous, and everybody is satisfied, then the necessities of unions and such-like combinations becomes a secondary consideration, and the chances of organising very remote.—Yours faithfully,

March 5, '07. WAT. W. ESSPEA.

DEATH OF SIR AUGUST MANNS.

We regret to record the death of Sir August Manns, the eminent musician, which occurred at his residence, White Lodge, Beulah Hill, on the evening of the 1st inst. He was born on March 12, 1825, in a village near Stettin, in Pomerania, and when quite a young man became a member of a regimental band at Dantzig. Then, after gaining orchestral experience in Berlin, and publishing some compositions which attained a certain popularity, he became bandmaster of a regiment commanded by Colonel Von Roon, afterwards the famous German War Minister. In 1854 he accepted the offer of the position of sub-conductor of the Crystal Palace band. The nucleus for a subsequently famous orchestra was then only a wind band under Herr Schallehn. It was not till Oct. 14, 1855, after he had accepted engagements in Leamington, Edinburgh, and Amsterdam, that he became conductor-in-chief, added other instruments to his band, and induced the directors to support a full orchestra and provide a special concert hall. The celebrated Saturday Concerts were then established. The influence these important concerts have had upon the history of music in England is a matter of common knowledge. In spite of his exacting duties at Sydenham Hill, he concluded a season of promenade concerts at Drury Lane in 1859, and a winter series in Glasgow for some years following. Shortly before the death of Sir Michael Costa, Manns succeeded him as conductor of the Handel Festival in 1883, which post he held till 1900. During this time he also conducted the Sheffield Festivals of 1896 and 1899. The honour of knighthood was conferred upon him in 1903, and he also received the degree of Doctor of Music by Oxford University.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, when the remains were laid to rest in West Norwood Cemetery. The service was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Taylor, Vicar of All Saints', Upper Norwood. The wreaths and other floral tributes which accompanied the coffin to the grave spoke eloquently of the affection in which the late conductor was held by the musical profession throughout the country.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Owing to pressure on our space, we have been compelled to hold over the weekly instalment of the above. The series will be continued next week.

BRIXTON THEATRE RE-OPENED.

The standard of the drama has once again been raised in Brixton, and the handsome house which was erected for the purpose in the autumn of 1896, returned on Monday to its allegiance. Since the theatre closed its doors last October the house has been renovated in preparation for its reopening as a music hall, but its service in the cause of variety was brief, and the redecorations now serve to brighten the building for its dramatic patrons. Mr. R. W. Allum, who was formerly connected with the administration, has been retained as manager, and his energy and personal popularity will do much to influence the return of good business.

Pantomime, which has in the past always been a leading feature at the Brixton Theatre, has been chosen for the opening attraction, and the selection has been justified by excellent houses throughout the week. The pantomime is that of Aladdin, as written, invented, and produced by Mr. Dan Thomas, a popular comedian, and from the laughter that has been aroused its purpose has been well served. The piece is amply furnished with fun and frolic, and is also admirably equipped with music by Carl Hamlin. Among the chief scenes is that of Pekin, where a "feast of lanterns" is celebrated, and a ballet of jewels performed by half a hundred local children figures in the cave scene, from which Aladdin escapes in an electric airship. A well-painted cloth depicts Brighton beach, whereon ladies in elegant bathing costumes disport, and the pantomime terminates in grand fashion with Aladdin's Garden Party—a scene of dazzling effect.

The comic features of the production, many of which are novel, are supplied chiefly by Mr. Dan Thomas, whose whimsicalities in the part of Widow Twankey are unbounded. He is indefatigable in the creation of mirth, and his merry jesting, his singing, and his dancing well deserve the hearty recognition obtained. Especially evident is his low comedy in the song "The wedding walk," in which the marriage of the widow is celebrated, and his share in the duets and interpolated items shows him to be a remarkably resourceful and alert comedian. Assistance in the entertainment is obtained from Miss Daisy Yates, a bright and animated Aladdin, who acts vivaciously and sings and dances in most exhilarating style. Particularly effective is a series of music hall travesties in which the pair indulge, the specimens of Irish comedians, sister serios, and coon performers being the cause of uncontrollable laughter. A prepossessing brunette is found for the part of the Princess Badroulbadour in Miss Amy Bellwood, who acts with refinement and sings agreeably. Her rendering of "Snowflakes," aided by a comely chorus, is an effective feature of the production. Two droll policemen are forthcoming in Messrs. Haverley and Homer, who are responsible for many comic exchanges, and supply some smart dancing. They are associated with Mr. Thomas and Mr. Chas. Dore in a quartet with the quaint refrain, "What! what! what!" Mr. Arthur Mordant makes an impressive personage of the Magician, and delivers his lines with more than ordinary excellence; and Mr. Chas. Dore, who plays the Vizier, shares Mr. Thomas's success in a burlesque of the Zancigs and of the retentive Datas. The formidable stature of Mr. Arthur Jenner lends dignity to the rôle of the Emperor; and Miss Ethel Robinson and Miss Rosie Conroy make a captivating pair as Pekoe and his sweetheart. The duties of the Slave of the Lamp and the Genie of the Ring are undertaken respectively by Miss Minnie Saunders and Miss Marie Lewis.

Numerous specialities are provided in the course of the pantomime, and to the Four Dandies, a clever quartet of danseuses, much applause is rightly devoted. Many familiar subjects are artistically realised by the A Be-Be Postcards, of which a comely young lady forms the centrepiece. The Valdos give a clever tumbling exhibition on Brighton beach; and Selvini does some deft card-palming, and proves his ability to produce rabbits from empty saucepans and flower-pots with real blooms from hollow cones.

C.C.C. ANNUAL SUPPER.

The annual supper of the Compton Comedy Company, in celebration of the twenty-sixth anniversary of its foundation, took place on the evening of the 1st inst. at Blythswood House, Greenock. The occasion was graced by the presence of Mrs. Edward Compton and family, who had travelled North for the production at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, of Mr. Compton's eldest son's new comedy, The Gentleman in Grey, and the success achieved by this interesting production added much to the pleasant atmosphere which invariably pervades these gatherings.

After the usual loyal toasts had been honoured, Mr. J. H. Savile, of the Perth and Paisley Theatres, in a felicitously-worded speech, referred to his early association with the now celebrated company, and the gratification it afforded him to be present on this occasion and see the numerous members of the Compton family with them. He proposed the toast of "Mr. and Mrs. Compton and Family's good health, and continued prosperity to the C.C.C.," which was drunk with enthusiasm, the company subsequently joining in "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Mr. Compton responded in a neat and happy speech, in which he dwelt on some memories and some members of the company during the twenty-six years of its existence. He spoke feelingly of the pride and satisfaction he felt in the success of his elder son in the rôle of a dramatist, to which his company had so materially contributed.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation to each guest of an art reproduction of the picture painted by Mr. Herman G. Herkomer of Mr. Edward Compton as David Garrick, with a suitable inscription on each. An interesting entertainment was subsequently provided, contributions being made by Miss Le Strange, Mr. Montague Lane, Mr. Vernon Crabtree, Mr. Edward Compton, Miss Pigot, Mr. Philip Gordon, Miss Mackenzie, Mr. Montague Compton, Miss Phyllis Relph, Mr. Wallace Johnston, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Henry Crocker, and Mr. J. H. Savile. A sketch was performed by Mesdames Viola and Katie Compton, Mrs. E. M. C. Mackenzie, Miss Marie Hassell, and Mr. Brett, and the evening concluded with the time-honoured customary recitations by Mr. Edward Compton of "The Country Fair" and "The Irish Schoolmaster."

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 4, the Comic Opera, entitled

"VERONIQUE."

Mr. George Dance's company is fulfilling a week's engagement at the Borough Theatre with Veronique, and this bright and exceedingly tuneful musical composition is meeting with the hearty approval of local playgoers, despite the fact that the piece has previously visited Stratford. Helene de Solanges (Veronique), as impersonated by Miss Ethel Negretti, is a vivacious and dainty damsel who wins all hearts and Miss Negretti's singing, especially in the "Swing" song, is greatly enjoyed. Mr. Rowland Bottomley makes a handsome and gallant Florestan de Vallancourt, and sings with excellent judgment. Mr. Tom Seymour plays Monsieur Coquenard on broadly comical lines, and is decidedly successful in the part; Mr. Percival Knight is very droll and drily humorous as Monsieur Loustot; and Mr. Scott Cullen portrays Seraphin in genial vein. Miss Doris Grenville is seen to advantage as Mme. Coquenard; and Miss Edith Devonshire plays Mme. de Champe d'Azar very appropriately. Aunt Benoit has a sound exponent in Miss Maud Leonard; and Miss Neste Laurel makes a pretty and petite Denise. Minor parts are all in capable hands, and the concerted numbers are well rendered by the large and efficient chorus under the bâton of Mr. Clement Locknane.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 4, the Drama, entitled

"THE PRODIGAL PARSON."

The patrons of the Stratford Theatre Royal are finding The Prodigal Parson much to their liking, and the piece is playing to excellent audiences. Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company interpret the piece with entire credit, and the staging and mounting is most appropriate. Mr. W. V. Garrod makes a manly and interesting figure of the Rev. Tom Godley, and is extremely popular; and Mr. Alfred Northway plays with sound judgment as Enoch Jaggins. Mr. Wm. Hayward submits a most convincing performance as Ben Jaggins; and Mr. W. Vincent portrays Ned Kettlepin with much ability. Mr. Owen Redmonde does exceedingly well as Phil Drive; Mr. T. Edward Evans smartly enacts George Markby; Mr. H. Fredericks plays appropriately as Kaston; and Mr. E. Ashton is well placed as Fritz. Miss Gwen Stewart very charmingly impersonates Fern Godley, and enlists the sympathies of the audience throughout; Miss Lydia Hart capitally impersonates Gretchen Van Crans; and Miss Dot Russell scores heavily as Fraulein Koralle. Miss E. Fredericks is a satisfactory Pomeroy; and Miss Violet Jeffries submits an intelligent performance of the child, Myrtle Godley. On Friday night Still Waters Run Deep was the attraction, with Delicate Ground as a curtain-raiser.

An application for a licence for a new theatre for Long Eaton was made at the local Petty Sessions on Tuesday by Mr. E. Williams on behalf of Mrs. Agnes Anne Bell Barnes of Liverpool. It was stated the building would have ample means of ingress and egress, and careful attention had been given to the safety of the public. The auditorium would be 60ft. by 48ft., and the stage 48ft. by 35ft., and the seating accommodation would be 1100. Mr. Lindsay Edwards, manager of the Theatre Royal, Loughborough, would be lessee. The plans had been passed by the District Council. Opposition was entered by the Rev. J. C. Bevington on behalf of the Free Church Council, on the ground that the licence carried with it a permit to sell drink. Mr. Williams said it was not proposed to ask for a licence for the sale of intoxicating liquors that day. The Bench granted the application on condition that no drink licence was sought for.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Miss Helen S. Gall's piano solo of Liszt's "Rhapsodie, No. 2" was the first item in the programme of Wednesday evening's concert, and certainly one of the most attractive of the instrumental pieces; and next in point of technical skill was the piano solo of Miss Ethel Richardson, who chose for her example Chopin's "Nocturne, Op. 62, No. 2," in which the young lady displayed much of the delicacy of touch required for this composer's works. A first performance of an "Andante" and "Allegretto," by Miss Margery Hope, was most skilfully played on the violin by the composer. The second movement ("Allegretto") was by far the more original and interesting, and the young composer was warmly applauded. In the "Scherzo," for piano, by Emmeline Brooke, Miss Emmeline Forster's playing may be commended; and Mr. Anissim Tschaikov greatly pleased the audience by his clever clarionet solo, "Concertino," by Weber. The vocal portion of the concert consisted of well-selected and not too difficult songs. Miss Celia Hills sang "Sweet June," by Landon Ronald, pleasingly, but was not quite certain in her intonation; while Miss Violet Oppenshaw did justice to Finden's pretty song, "Temple Bells." The two male vocalists of the concert, Mr. A. Chappell-Harverson and Mr. Fred Thomson, greatly distinguished themselves, the first in Mozart's "Qui Sdegno" (Il Flauto Magico), and the latter in "Winter" and "The Letter," from Sullivan's "Songs of the Wrens," Mr. Thomson singing in quite a professional style. Other clever students were Miss Dorothy Freeman, heard in Goetz's song, "Melisande," and Miss Gertrude Gill, in Randegger's Canzone, "Ben è Ridicolo." An effective recitation, by Mr. E. F. Crome, of Philpotts' "The Sandwiches," a fishing story, closed the proceedings. Miss Jenny Hyman was the accompanist.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 28, the pupils of Mme. Montem Smith held a most successful vocal recital in the concert room of the school. The executants were the lady pupils of Mme. Smith, Master Cecil Hay being the only representative of the male sex present, and with one or two exceptions the programme consisted of songs. The concert began with Godard's two-part song, "The Shepherd's Song." Miss Frances Cohen was heard in "O were it always spring"; and Miss Ida Hilton skilfully sang "A Folk Song," by G. H. Clutsam. In default of readily finding a more difficult example, Miss Grace Cole sang Meyerbeer's famous aria, "Roberto, o tu che adoro," in which, of course, success for a student was impossible, no matter how clever the teacher or apt the pupil. Miss Cole may, however, be credited with the intelligent use of a bright and flexible voice. The same remarks also apply to Miss Elsie Haughton's singing of the beautiful, but difficult, "Ave Maria" of Max Bruch, although in this case the vocalist showed a keen sense of the devotional feeling required. Another ambitious effort, though not quite so exacting, was the air, "Oh love, from thy power," from Saint-Saëns's Samson and Delilah, sung by Miss Fanny Cuthbert. Miss Alice Brooker may be commended for her rendering of three songs, "Where the Abana flows," "Beloved in your absence," and "How many a lonely caravan," from Amy Woodforde-Finden's A Lover in Damascus; and Miss Catharine Baker displayed an excellent contralto voice in "Mine Enemy" (Olga Rudd), a gloomy, but simple and effective, song; while Miss Beatrice Weatherley, a very young soloist, was admirably suited in Liszt's "Thou'rt like a flower" and Schubert's "Who is Sylvia?" both of which were sung with considerable finish and clear intonation, very promising in so young a singer. Master Cecil Hay was also much applauded for his singing of Robert Batten's vocal waltz, "The Nightingale." Other clever pupils of Mme. Smith's were Miss Bertha Lansdell, Miss Jennie Baker, who sang three songs from 'Liza Lehmann's "The Life of a Rose," and Miss Elsie Kimpton; while the duet, "What is love but folly," by F. Aylward, was brightly sung by Misses Grace Cole and Fanny Cuthbert.

MR. A. SARGA'S CONCERT.

At Queen's (Small) Hall on Thursday evening, March 7, Mr. A. Sarga, composer and lyrist, gave, under most distinguished patronage, a highly-successful and well-attended concert. The artists included Mr. Joseph O'Mara, the famous tenor; Mr. A. H. Gee, an Australian baritone; Miss Carrie Tubb, Miss Adelaide Watts, and Master E. Gubbins. Señor Gomez was the solo violin, and Mr. Ernest Meads and Mme. Marian May gave some humorous and dramatic recitations; the band also of H.M. Irish Guards, by kind permission of Col. R. J. Cooper, M.V.O., under the conductorship of Mr. C. H. Hassell, greatly added to the attractiveness of the concert. The entire proceeds of the programmes sold were given to the Lord Mayor's Crippled Children Fund, and before the commencement of the concert his Worship the Mayor of St. Pancras, Alderman D. McGregor, in a few eloquent words, earnestly desired the audience to do all in their power in so good a cause. The first item in the programme was the "Introduction to Act III." of Wagner's Lohengrin, admirably played by the Irish Guards. In Bishop's song "Tell me, my heart," Master E. Gubbins was loudly applauded. A recitation, "Selected," by Mme. Marian May, was also greatly to the taste of the audience. The first of Mr. A. Sarga's compositions, a dramatic song entitled "The Bastinado," was splendidly sung by Mr. Joseph O'Mara, and happy indeed is the composer who can have his works sung by so fine a tenor. Both song and singer were so warmly greeted that an encore was inevitable, and Mr. O'Mara responded by singing the last verse. Mr. A. Sarga, who seems equally at home in writing song or recitation, had his "Babylonish Patriot" (with a violin accompaniment composed and played by Señor Gomez) finely recited by Mr. Ernest Meads. The order of the programme was not quite adhered to, as Señor Gomez, having another engagement, played his violin solos, "Romance" (Wieniawski) and "Polonaise" (Vieuxtemps), in the first part of the concert. Miss Carrie Tubb, who has a pure and brilliant soprano voice, sang "Till God comes," a devotional song by Mr. Sarga, and, being encored, repeated the last verse. A pleasing piano solo, "Romance in F," was cleverly played by its versatile composer; and Mr. A. H. Gee, who has a fine baritone voice, gave great effect to Mr. Sarga's "King Shahregar" (an Arabian Humoresque). "Sekah Allah" (a Tartar song of drought) was Mr. O'Mara's second rendering of Mr. Sarga's compositions, and pleased the audience no less than the others; while Mr. Ernest Meads was very dramatic in his recitation of Mr. Sarga's "The Vulture." Miss Adelaide Watts, a contralto, was set down for two songs by Sanderson and Liddle; and the band of the Irish Guards gave capital effect to a "Slavische Rhapsody" by Friedmann. The accompanists were Mr. Sarga, Miss Amy Simmonds and Miss Katherine Stuart.

Miss Lilian Dundas and company open at Richmond and Hammersmith on Monday next in Cecil Raleigh's successful sketch, The Doom of Delilah.

Mr. W. Payne Seddon has purchased for early production a dramatic episode, in one act, entitled No Other Way, by Ernest Bliss.

The complete production of the Drury-lane pantomime, Cinderella, which was such a success at the National Theatre at Christmas, 1905, is for sale at the theatre. Upwards of 600 dresses, properties, scenery, the Cinderella coach (specially made in Paris for this production), revolving platform for ponies, and the magnificent panorama, "On the Road to the Ball," all in perfect condition, are offered at a reasonable price.

Or the sound of the voice that is gone.

SCARD.—In loving and affectionate memory of Mary Ann Hannah Scard, who passed away March 9, 1906, after a long and painful illness. Never forgotten by her ever loving husband and children.

SCARD.—In ever loving memory of our dear sister, Mary Ann Hannah Scard, who passed away March 9, 1906. Gone, but not forgotten by her loving brothers and sisters.

MR. FRANK HARWOOD has just purchased from Maurice Scott and A. E. Rick a new light comedy song, entitled "Matches and Love," which he intends to produce shortly. Mr. Harwood thinks he has got a winner in this number.

MISS MARIE EMPRESS, who is a descendant of the famous Edmund Kean, has been on the Moss and Stoll tour since last November. Provincial audiences have highly appreciated the charm of her songs and the beauty of her costly Parisian gowns. She returns to town on April 15, and sails for South Africa in September under engagement to the Messrs. Hyman.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. E. R. Beaumont, the business-manager for Messrs. Bodé and Compton at the Theatre Royal, Leicester, who produced one of the most charming pantomimes that has ever been placed on the "Old Royal" stage, has been the recipient of a handsome present from members of the company in the shape of a complete smoker's companion, which stands 3ft. high, and contains every requisite. Accompanying the presentation was the following letter, bearing the signatures of the principal artists:—"Milton Bode, Esq.'s, pantomime, Aladdin, 1906-7. Dear Mr. Beaumont,—We ask your acceptance of the accompanying small token of our appreciation, and trust that for many years to come, when sitting in the comfort of your fireside, it will remind you that the undersigned (who thoroughly recognise that the office of pantomime producer is no sinecure) recognised as artists that you did your best for their individual comfort."

IT will be remembered that a matinée performance was given in the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Belfast, last April, and on that occasion a sum of £130 was realised. At a meeting of the committee on Monday, 4th inst., that amount was allocated as follows:—£50 to the Royal Victoria Hospital, to qualify Mr. William Laird (one of the committee) as a life governor; £20 to the Mater Infirmorum Hospital; £5 to the Forster Green Hospital; £5 to the Maternity Hospital; and £50 to be divided amongst four theatrical charities as follows: £15 to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, £10 to the Actors' Orphanage, £15 to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and £10 to the Music Hall Home. Mr. Fred W. Warden occupied the chair at the meeting. It was decided to have a benefit matinée performance at the Palace this year on or about April 20.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.
For Sustaining the Voice.
Invaluable for ACTORS and SINGERS.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS

GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROZE MAPLESON.

Using the "Nutshell" Stropper.

Can YOU Strop a Razor?
Not one man in twenty-five gets satisfactory results from an ordinary strop. It's the bugbear of self-shaving. It drives men to the barber—it even makes them buy "Safety" Razors, sometimes.
The "NUTSHELL" AUTOMATIC STROPPER
is a British invention which entirely disposes of this difficulty. Users have no trouble with their blades. Half-a-minute in the "Nutshell" before shaving keeps the razor in perfect condition. Regular use lengthens a blade's life.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1907.

MANAGERS IN COUNCIL.

Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S triumph at the polls on Saturday is in its way unique. Mr. ALEXANDER is the first actor-manager who has contested an election as County Councillor while retaining his position as actor and manager, and actually rehearsing a piece. We read of correspondence in connection with the struggle arriving even in the midst of rehearsals, and of Mr. ALEXANDER displaying marvellous powers of endurance in combining the functions of orator and canvasser. The exploit is certainly extraordinary. Mr. WALTER REYNOLDS is also to be congratulated on the ease with which he has turned from writing plays and managing theatres to making speeches and soliciting votes.

The solitary instance of a theatrical manager entering Parliament is a brilliant one. SHERIDAN'S political career was as successful as were his plays. The management of Drury Lane Theatre, on which he entered in 1776, was by no means a sinecure. In 1777 he produced The School for Scandal, which narrowly escaped suppression by the Lord Chamberlain on the ground that Moses was intended for one HOPKINS, a candidate in the famous City contest for the office of Chamberlain. At the age of twenty-eight SHERIDAN had reached the pinnacle of theatrical triumph. He was manager of Drury Lane Theatre, and he had written the cleverest comedy of his day.

But this was not sufficient for SHERIDAN'S ardent enterprise. He determined to become a Member of Parliament, and preferred to adopt the method of appealing to the electors for their suffrages rather than be nominated by a patron for a pocket borough or purchase a seat. He put up for Stafford, for which constituency he was duly returned. On the first night on which he spoke in the House, SHERIDAN came up to the gallery after his speech, and asked WOODFALL, of the Chronicle, what he thought of his—SHERIDAN'S—maiden attempt. The reply was, "I think this is not in your line. No, SHERIDAN, you had much better stick to those pursuits you are so much more fitted for." Upon which SHERIDAN, leaning his forehead on his hand for a few seconds, exclaimed, "It is in me, and, by God, it shall come out!" How splendidly it did "come out" was shown when he made his eloquent oration in favour of the impeachment of WARREN HASTINGS. But SHERIDAN was not only a brilliant speaker; he was unflagging in his attendance at the sittings of the House, and was thoroughly practical in all his views.

It should not be forgotten, however, that SHERIDAN, though a manager, was not an actor-manager. It was possible for him to devote part of his day to the affairs of Drury Lane Theatre and part to the debates in Parliament. It would be difficult for a modern actor-manager to do this owing to the times of theatrical performances "clashing" with those of the sittings of the House. Even in the case of an actor-manager performing at the Imperial Theatre, and having a division-bell in his dressing-room, he could hardly, without unseemly haste, slip across the road and into a "lobby" between the acts.

Owing to the sittings of the County Council taking place in the afternoon, and on Tuesdays, Mr. ALEXANDER will find it easy to combine his functions. By a happy accident, the assemblies of our civic parliament are not held on either of the two days in the week which are devoted to matinées.

The modern actor-manager, even without this latest field for his energies, is a living prodigy. Still the wonder grows how he manages to perform duties so many and so various as those which attach to his position. As a Popular Idol, he can hardly evade the claims made upon his time by Society. He must keep up an establishment, entertain, receive visits, and return them. As a man of business, he must keep a sharp eye upon the financial side of his enterprise, watching carefully his incomings and outgoings, and, while never shrinking from expenditure when required by policy, carefully guarding against waste and extravagance. As a "producer," he must have a natural pictorial taste and the power of inventing and ordering "effects"; an eye for colour and grouping, and a thorough practical knowledge of the machinery of the stage. As a chooser of plays, he must be endowed with the flair which can detect the grain of wheat in the bushels of chaff which are represented by the hundreds of worthless MSS. sent to him for perusal; and as a discoverer and enlister of talent, he must be able to select his "support" as NAPOLEON selected his generals—by instinct. And with all this he must never lose sight of the fact that he is the central attraction of each new production; that on his analysis and exposition of the principal part hangs the success of the production; that "the play's the thing," and his "creation" only second to the drama itself in importance. With so many distractions, it is almost incomprehensible how the actor-manager is able to concentrate himself on the study of his rôle, to place it in the crucible of his clear and keen mind, and submit it to the fire of his genius. The explanation is that our actor-managers are exceptional men. They are able, by sheer force of energy and intellect, to concentrate their powers of thought on the matter immediately under their attention; to do in a few moments, by instinctive penetration, what lesser men have to attain to by hours of study; to "toil terribly" at business, at art, and at social ambition. They have, in short, the qualities which make NAPOLEON'S universality the marvel of history. We are told of JULIUS CÆSAR—and, at this distance of time, we have no means of disproving the assertion—that he was accustomed to read, write, and dictate all at the same time. The manager who, in addition to the responsibilities which we have enumerated, has the civic welfare to attend to, is indeed an astonishing product of our modern civilisation.

THE ACTORS' UNION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The first general meeting of the Actors' Union will be held on Monday, March 11, at 2 p.m., in the Grand Hall, Criterion Restaurant, when it is to be hoped all those who can possibly attend will do so. Those who cannot, and would like to join, are requested to send their names and addresses to the Hon. Sec., 49, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.

We do not think it necessary to offer an apology for initiating this movement, as we do not believe any actor or actress can say that it is not required. Doubtless there are many others better qualified to start such an organisation, but they have not come forward, and thus it has been left to us to carry it to its present stage.

It is hoped that branches of the Union will be formed in the more important centres of the United Kingdom.—Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR BAWTREE.
(On behalf of the Provisional Committee.)
49, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C., March 8, '07.

MISS BRADLEY'S XI.: Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Alice Gibbs and Miss Jessie Lewis, backs; Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Nellie Lawrence, and Miss Gertrude Thomas, half-backs; Miss Winifred Bradley (captain), Miss Alice Mitchell, Miss Maude Burgess, Miss Kit Montgomery, and Miss Irene Bradley, forwards.

Referee: Miss Gracie Leonard. Result: Miss Fowler's team, nil; Miss Bradley's team, 2 goals. Miss Jessie Lewis scored the two goals for Miss Bradley's side.

THE Prudential Assurance Company's fifty-eighth annual report, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1906, has just been issued. In the ordinary branch the number of policies issued during the year was 79,942, assuring the sum of £7,529,031, and producing a new annual premium income of £424,145. The premiums received during the year were £4,290,971, being an increase of £167,653 over the year 1905. The claims of the year amounted to £1,947,444. The number of policies in force at the end of the year was 807,218. In the Industrial Branch the premiums received during the year were £6,499,028, being an increase of £359,978; while the claims of the year amounted to £2,376,863. The total number of policies in force at the end of the year was 16,764,654. The assets of the company in both branches, as shown in the balance-sheet, are £63,887,008, being an increase of £4,422,632 over those of 1905. The valuation has, as usual, been made by Mr. F. Schooling. For each of the past ten years a reversionary bonus at the rate of £1 10s. per cent. on the original sums assured has been added to all classes of participating policies in the ordinary branch issued since the year 1876. The directors are now pleased to announce a reversionary bonus at the rate of £1 12s. per cent.

PARTICULARS are now to hand of the designs of Mr. F. Bennett Smith, F.R.I.B.A., architect, of Manchester, under whose superintendence the building of the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, which was burnt down last Christmas, is being rapidly pushed forward. A new entrance will be made to the pit, and an entrance to the second tier or gallery, which is to be erected in addition to the grand circle, will be provided. The vestibule and crush-room are to have a mosaic pavement, and the walls mahogany dados with doors to match. The auditorium will contain pit, circle, and gallery, with boxes on either side, and will have a coved ceiling with eliptic dome. At the stage end the arrangements will be brought thoroughly up to date, and be capable of accommodating the best dramatic productions. A fireproof curtain will shut off the stage from the auditorium in case of fire, and a fire-resisting staircase will give access to the dressing-rooms. It is intended to adopt a complete system for heating the whole of the theatre, and the electric light will be employed throughout.

AMIEL, the well-known bender, V. L. Granville, actor-impersonator, and Techow's cat show have left this week for Australia, under engagement to Mr. Harry Rickards. They were booked through Pacey and Reeves' agency.

MR. HARRY GRIBBEN, who, it will be remembered, was so successful in the Paisley pantomime, has undergone a painful nasal operation at the hands of Mr. Stanley Turner and Dr. D. G. Munro. We are pleased to say that Mr. Gribben is swiftly recovering.

MISS MAUDE STEWART DREWRY has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke to play Thora and Elin in his autumn tour of The Prodigal Son

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LES JACOBINES."
Comedy, in Four Acts, by M. Abel Hermant, produced at the Vaudeville on Feb. 22.

Germaine ..... MLLE. GABRIELLE DORZIAT
Mme. Le Mesnil ..... MLLE. CECILE CARON
Nini ..... MLLE. JEANNE HELLER
Catherine ..... MLLE. HARLAY
Mme. Dupont-Genest .... MLLE. ANTONIA HUART
Le Marquis d'Esparon ..... M. LERAND
Lucien Drouart ..... M. LOUIS GAUTHIER
Le Général Pravdine ..... M. BARON FILS
Dupont-Genest ..... M. JOFFRE
Barnett ..... M. ANDRE DUBOSC
Loupiau ..... M. VICTOR BOUCHER
Dominique Bernier ..... M. A. HALL

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 28.—M. Abel Hermant, the most observant of our young playwrights, had a happy inspiration when he started writing Les Jacobines. He had a splendid field before him, but, apparently, the daring nature of the subject frightened him, and, timidly, he only gave us a story indifferently told. In the personages of the piece we recognise—or think we do—some of the members of a well-known family in Paris. The "Jacobines" are not, as might be thought, the wives of the "Jacobins" of 1793. They are women—not of the highest breeding—who have secured a certain position in society. Germaine, the daughter of Mme. Le Mesnil, the widow of a politician, is married to Lucien Drouart, a barrister. Brought up in a queer milieu that holds peculiar views on things in general, Germaine's ideas are what we call "advanced." According to her, if husband and wife do not get on well, the best thing for them to do is to divorce at once, and enjoy life the best way they can. Having fallen in love with Dominique Bernier, a married man, but anything but a model husband, Germaine does not hesitate a moment. As she does not want to deceive the man whose name she bears, she decides to divorce Lucien and marry Dominique, who will then also divorce his wife. When, however, Germaine, in the coolest manner possible, lays her scheme before Lucien, the latter, who holds different views on marriage, remonstrates with her, and points out the immorality of such a proceeding. Lucien's attitude places Germaine in an awkward position. Lucien has in no way convinced her, but she was anxious to do things in a straightforward manner. As to Dominique, he has no such scruples. If Lucien is obstinate, so much the worse for him; and under those conditions the only course open to them is to run away. Germaine consents, but when she tries to steal out of the house she unexpectedly stands face to face with her husband. The conversation is rather stormy, but in the end Lucien consents to withdraw his opposition to the divorce, on condition that Germaine stays one more night in his house—in a separate room. In the meantime Dominique has been waiting in vain for Germaine, and tries to find out what has become of her. He, too, runs into Lucien's arms, who tells him what has taken place. The meeting of the two men, of course, leads to no result, for only Germaine can disentangle the situation. She will have to choose between her husband and the other man. She hesitates, and Dominique is smart enough to understand that he has lost the game. And, as he and his wife have agreed to part company, he marries Nini Loupiau, a curiously unprincipled girl, with no scruples of any kind. They will be a well-assorted couple. The work was capitally played, especially by Mlle. Jeanne Heller, who was intensely funny as the impossible Nini.

"LA MAISON D'ARGILE."
Play, in Three Acts, by M. Emile Fabre, produced at the Comédie-Française on Feb. 25.

Valentine ..... MLLE. LARA
Mme. Henri Armières .... MME. SEGOND-WEBER
Mme. de Rehy ..... MLLE. PERSOONS
Marguerite ..... MLLE. MAILLE
Mme. Armières ..... MME. MADELEINE ROCH
Julie ..... MLLE. FAYLIS
Ternand ..... M. LEITNER
Henri Armières ..... M. JACQUES FENOUX
Jean ..... M. GRAND

IN his new piece M. Emile Fabre shows himself as great an antagonist of divorce as M. Hermant. He, too, does not admit the selfishness of those who want "to live their own life." In other words, he tries to prove that mariage involves duties, and does not merely confer rights. According to him, money is the enemy, the cause of trouble and family dissensions; and in these three acts we hear much—a little too much, perhaps—of money, of dowries, of legacies. Mme. Armières has obtained a divorce from her first husband, M. Rouchon, a brutal and vulgar individual, and has married a man she loved. M. Rouchon has gone to Tunis with his son Jean; whilst Valentine, the daughter, has remained with the mother. M. Armières, the second husband, manages the factory his wife inherited from her parents, and they have another daughter called Marguerite. Unfortunately, Armières does not prove himself an able manager. He loses money over the factory, he speculates, and his ruin soon is complete. All this happens while the negotiations concerning Marguerite's dowry are in progress. The only way to save the situation and not jeopardise the girl's chances is to sell the factory, whereupon a buyer presents himself — Jean Rouchon. Jean and his father have made a fortune in Tunis, and when the former calls on his mother he says: "I know there is a buyer prepared to pay £32,000. I have only £24,000. I therefore ask you to advance me the balance on the money due to me after your death, and give me the preference." But Mme. Armières cannot accede to this request. The greater part of her private fortune has been lost by her second husband, and she can only make that advance by sacrificing her husband's honour and her daughter's interests. The scene that ensues is painful in the extreme. Jean overwhelms his mother with reproaches; and Valentine joins in the fray, pointing out that she is being entirely overlooked for the sake of her step-sister. Marguerite then comes to the rescue. She refuses to accept a dowry under these conditions, and decides to follow her father to Tiflis, where a post of engineer has been offered him. As to Mme. Armières, she will remain behind in her wrecked home, a proceeding more than incomprehensible. The second act—by far the best in the play—was admirably interpreted by Mme. Segond-Weber and Mlle. Lara. M. Fenoux was also much applauded in the rôle of M. Armières.

M. POREL has taken a partner. The gentleman is M. Peter Carin, the director of the Théâtre des Capucines. Their partnership will only begin on Sept. 1, but MM. Porel and Peter Carin are already now making their arrangements for the coming season, and engaging new artists. The fact of having joined M. Porel will not prevent M. Carin from remaining at the head of the Capucines, which under his direction has become a thriving undertaking.

IN a few days the rehearsals will begin at the Comédie-Française of Le Gendre de M. Poirier, wherein Mlle. Piérat will impersonate Antoinette. The play is somewhat old-fashioned, but it is always popular with the public, who were glad to hear M. Claretie decided to replace it on the répertoire.

THE Opéra announces for Monday the performance of Gluck's Armide, with Mme. Félia Litvinne in the title-rôle.

THE news brought by a London paper that an English company intends to give a series of English operettes at the Gaîté during the summer months is without foundation. Some little while ago a gentleman came to Paris to talk the matter over, but as he could not offer sufficient guarantees the negotiations dropped, and were not renewed.

"LA FAUTE DE L'ABBE MOURET,"
Play in four acts and twelve tableaux, by M. Alfred Bruneau, founded on Zola's novel, produced at the Odéon on Feb. 28.

Albine ..... MLLE. SYLVIE.
Désirée ..... MLLE. JEANNE LION.
Le Teuse ..... MLLE. LUCE COLAS.
Rosalie ..... MME. BARJAC.
La Rousse ..... MME. KERWICH.
Lisa ..... MLLE. RENEE MAUPIN.
Serge Mouret ..... M. VARGAS.
Frère Archangias ..... M. PERRIN.
Le Docteur Pascal ..... M. MOSNIER.

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 7.—"Le Faute de l'Abbe Mouret" is the least realistic of Zola's novels, and as such differs widely from the long series that describes the history of the Rougon-Macquart family. It is, perhaps, for this very reason that it appealed strongly to the author, who had sketched the scenario with the view of having it produced in the course of the year. But Zola died suddenly, and M. Bruneau, who has already dramatised several of the great writer's novels, undertook the task of finishing the work of his departed friend. He performed it with loving care, and was well aided by M. Antoine, who, like a true artist, understood that unless the piece was elaborately staged no justice whatsoever could be done to it. M. Antoine certainly did wonders, and to him is due the success which the play secured. The story of the young priest in the small village, who lives with his sister and an old servant, is known to most people. Serge Mouret, the priest, loves his calling. Sincere in his belief, scrupulous in the performance of his duties, his life has always been above suspicion. In an unfortunate hour, however, he makes the acquaintance of Jeanbernat, an eccentric fellow, keeper to a magnificent, but deserted, estate near the village. This Jeanbernat has adopted his orphan niece, the sixteen-year-old Albine, a beautiful girl, whom he has allowed to run wild on the property. The priest, whose health has been undermined by mystic dreams, remains for a while with Jeanbernat, and is nursed by Albine, who takes him for long walks in the garden—in the "Paradou," as they call it. And it is obvious that it refers to the Garden of Eden, where the first man fell a victim to temptation. An indescribable feeling comes over Serge, against which he is not proof, and ere long the young couple fall into each other's arms. The sin has been committed, and the priest awakes to the enormity of it. The only way for him to atone is to leave the woman he loves, and to devote himself heart and soul to the work of his sacred office. For all that, he is continually haunted by a vision of Albine, and when the girl asks him to go back with her to the "Paradou," to the beautiful flowers, and the mystic retreats he has not the strength to resist, and follows her. But when they reach the tree where he and Albine first spoke to one another of their love, he tells her that he has banished her from his heart and that he is only listening to the voice of duty. Albine understands. Her sweetheart is gone, and the "Paradou," once beautiful and bright, has now become gloomy and sad. Gathering large numbers of wild roses, she returns to the room where she nursed the sick priest, and dies, poisoned by the overpowering scent of the flowers. M. Bruneau's music is well suited to the work, which was well interpreted. Special praise is due to Mlle. Sylvie, a delightful Albine.

"LA PUCE A L'OREILLE."
Farcical comedy in three acts, by Georges Feydeau, produced at the Nouveautés on March 2.

Raymonde ..... MLLE. CASSIVE.
Lucienne ..... MLLE. SUZANNE CARLIX.
Olympe ..... MME. ROSINE MAUREL.
Eugénie ..... MME. JENNY ROSE.
Victor-Emmanuel Chantebise / Poche ..... M. GERMAIN.
Camille Chantebise ..... M. TORIN.
Vinache ..... M. MATRAT.
Feraillon ..... M. LANDRIN.
Tournel ..... M. MARCEL SIMON.
Homenidès de Histangua .. M. MILO DE MEYER.

M. Feydeau's farce is on the time-honoured lines. He has given free scope to his wonderful fancy, and the easily-amused Nouveautés audience rewarded him by receiving the new piece with roars of laughter that augur well for its future success. Victor Chandebise and his wife, Raymonde, are a model couple. Raymonde has absolute confidence in her husband, and he is worthy of her trust. One day, however, a small parcel arrives by post addressed to Victor-Emmanuel, and his wife, on opening it, sees that it contains a pair of braces. Worse still, it has been forwarded to him by the manager of the Hotel du Minet Galant, at Montretout, well known in the world "où l'on s'amuse." Raymonde at once has the "puce à l'oreille"—French slang for having suspicion—and she resolves to lay a terrible trap for her erring husband. The truth is that the poor man is quite innocent. One of his nephews, Camille Chantebise, is staying with him—an impossible creature, who, afflicted with an impediment of speech, cannot pronounce consonants, which does not prevent him from courting the fair sex. The tell-tale braces are his property; but this Raymonde does not know. She wants to catch Victor-Emmanuel in flagrante delicto, and punish him afterwards. She asks her friend Lucienne to write him that she has fallen violently in love with him, making an appointment with him at the Hotel du Minet Galant. Victor, who does not know the lady's writing, cannot believe his eyes. In his excitement he shows the letter to everybody, and also to Homenidès de Histangua, Lucienne's husband, a fiery, jealous South-American Spaniard, who recognises his wife's writing, and swears to murder her, her lover, the manager of the hotel, the waiters—in fact, everybody. And then the trouble begins, for we meet all the personages at the hotel. Raymonde, eager to "catch" her husband, goes there accompanied by young Tournel, secretly in love with her. We see there Camille, who has an appointment with Raymonde's maid. Lucienne, her terrible husband, and other personages also appear on the scene; and, to make matters worse, Boche, one of the waiters in the hotel, bears a striking likeness to Victor-Emmanuel. It is impossible to distinguish one from the other. The trick to make an actor play a double rôle is an old one; but, be it said in the author's praise, he dealt cleverly with it, and brings about some shriekingly funny situations. At one time we began to fear that M. Feydeau would never be able to disentangle the plot; but this clever playwright knows his business, and in the last act—a very good one, by the way—order is once more restored. In the hands of an ordinary company the farce might have fallen flat; but with men like Germain, Torin, Matrat, etc., the play was in safe hands, and they acted it brilliantly. M. Feydeau owes them a debt of gratitude.

THE Variétés has commemorated the centenary of its foundation by the production of La Revue du Centenaire, a revue in three acts and ten tableaux, by MM. Paul Gavault, P. L. Flers, and Eugène Héros. This theatre really came to life in 1790, under the auspices of the famous Mlle. Montansier, when it bore the name of Théâtre de la Demoiselle Montansier. In the course of time the house kept changing its name, until in 1807 it called itself "Les Variétés," and has never since been rechristened. A dangerous year for playhouses was 1807. Napoleon did not care for theatres—although he liked classical dramas—and during that year only seven houses were allowed to keep open. The Variétés also figured on the condemned list, but owing to the protection of the Minister Cambacérès, the friend of one of the actresses there, they were allowed to continue their performances. M. Samuel, the manager, has done wonders in the way of staging, and I do not remember ever having seen such magnificent scenery in any Paris house, whilst the costumes, etc., are on an equally grand scale. The great Napoleon is, of course, introduced; but we also had up-to-date personages like the Lord Mayor's coachman, Clémenceau, Caruso, the King of Naples, M. Claretie, etc. The revue is not remarkable for its wit, but, with its strong cast and the treat it affords to the eye it supplies a pleasant night's entertainment.

THERE is, unfortunately, no necessity to devote much space to Vive l'amour! the three-act vaudeville by MM. Albin Valabrègue and Wulfram Canaple, produced at the Palais Royal. The authors have tried to amuse us, but their jokes fell painfully flat. Nobody felt interested in Mme. Aristide Bouffard, nor in Ferdinand Durandol, her admirer, nor in the means the latter gentleman employs to prove to the lady that her husband is not a paragon of virtue. The capital cast, including Mme. Jeanne Cheirel, Mlle. Marthe Lutzi, Mlle. Lucienne Delmay, M. Galipaux, M. Hamilton, and the other artists, made heroic efforts to save the piece, but the odds were too heavy against them. We had the right to expect better things from that able farce writer, M. Valabrègue.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Feb. 28.—This was somewhat of a new departure for the Komische Oper, the work having few pretensions to operatic rank. That the reception was cordial to the verge of enthusiasm was entirely due to the beautiful mounting. This was another triumph for Director Gregor, and deservedly so, picture after picture unfolding itself before us, each more effective than the last, the culminating scene being a field of scarlet poppies, brilliantly true to life. The libretto has been drawn by Herr Delius from a book of the same name by the German poet, Gottfried Keller, and those who have not read the latter find a difficulty in comprehending the former. In the prologue we see a couple of peasants, Manz and Marti, eating their mid-day meal in the fields peacefully enough, their children, Sali and Brenchen, playing together. A wandering fiddler breaks the harmony, an old question of a right-of-way cropping up. Manz and Marti quarrel furiously, and retire from the scene sworn foes, while the children are forbidden ever to speak to each other again. In the following acts we see the young people—scions of the village Montecchi and Capuletti—drawn together by their mutual love. Both families have been plunged into poverty and misery by the foolish quarrel, and the youthful lovers must suffer in consequence. After dreaming dreams of bliss that can never be realised, they come to the conclusion that the only thing to do is to die together. The music is very uneven, being in parts lyrical and effective, at other times inadequately expressive. The interpretation was the customary good one of the Komische Oper. Fräulein Artot de Padilla made a very charming village Juliet, delighting her audience as much by her natural, winning acting as by her singing. To Herren Pröll, Merkel, and Zador must be accorded unstinted praise for their respective renderings; and chorus and orchestra, under Kapellmeister Cassirer's direction, were satisfactory. Artists, composer, and Dr. Gregor were "called" repeatedly.

BY the Kaiser's special wish Mme. Suzanne Desprès gave a performance of Racine's Phèdre at the Neues on Saturday, supported by the L'Œuvre company. Although cordially received, the spontaneous ovations which rewarded the star at some previous performances were lacking; there was at times a certain stiffness in the acting, the general opinion being that the rôle did not suit Mme. Desprès as well as the others—notably Nora—in which we had occasion to admire her some weeks ago. The Kaiser and Kaiserin, who were present with friends and a large suite, followed the play with deep interest, expressing their appreciation to the manager during one of the entr'actes.

WE have another famous artist within our gates at the present time—Herr Josef Kainz, formerly of the Berlin Lessing company, now member of the Imperial Burg at Vienna. Herr Kainz has been engaged at the New Schauspielhaus for twenty-five performances, at an unusually high salary for Berlin, amounting to £90 a night, English money. The opening play—on Monday evening—was Goethe's fine drama Torquarto Tasso, the title-rôle of which is one of the great actor's best parts. That Herr Kainz was welcomed with a degree of enthusiasm seldom seen here goes without saying. As regards the interpretation, the "guest" was at his very best; it was a masterpiece of acting, and to remember the number of times Herr Kainz was called and cheered would be a difficult task. The New Schauspielhaus company did well on the whole, Fräulein Fehdmer giving an interesting account of the Princess.

A NEW operetta, entitled Der Schwerenöter von Anno Tobak, by Gustav Wanda, was announced for first production at the Theatre des Westens on Friday last. Owing, however, to the indisposition of one of the principal artists it had to be postponed, and Der Bettelstudent took its place in the bill at the last moment. There were few signs of disappointment apparent in consequence of the alteration, Millöcker's bright little work being capitally interpreted.

THE military farce, Im bunten Rock, by MM. von Schönthan and Schlicht, which enjoyed a long run some years ago at the Royal Schauspielhaus, met with a very cordial reception on its production at the Schiller O. last week. It was not quite satisfactorily acted, the whole dragging somewhat, and several of the chief actors being less good than usual.

HERR MAX KRETZER has just completed a new drama—Leo Lasso entitled—which will be produced here shortly.

SIGNOR MASCAGNI will conduct a concert in the Philharmonic in the middle of April, and Edward Grieg in the same hall a few nights earlier.

THE death is announced of Herr Aloys Prasch, former lessee and manager of the Theatre des Westens and—at an earlier period—of the Berliner Theatre. He was some dozen years ago Intendant of the Court Theatre at Mannheim, and was known for excellent taste in stage matters. Notwithstanding his indefatigable business capacities, Herr Prasch was pursued by ill-fortune during the past few years, and became bankrupt. His misfortunes preyed upon his mind till his removal to a sanitorium became imperative, and there, at the early age of forty-nine, he passed away on Friday last.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Walter Gibbons, as we anticipated, has added the Putney Hippodrome to his circuit, and will reopen the house on Monday on the two-houses-a-night plan. Mr. Clifford King, who was appointed manager by Mr. William Grimes, will be succeeded by Mr. Chris Marner, recently at the Duchess Palace, Balham. He is brother to Mr. Claude Marner, of the Holborn Empire.

Mr. Eugene Stratton by the time these lines are in print will have commenced his homeward journey, after scoring a remarkable success at the Hyman establishments in South Africa, and reaches these shores on Saturday, March 23. At the Empire, Johannesburg, the "dandy coon" was the recipient of handsome presents—a silver salver and a silver cigarette-box.

Mr. Dick Knowles is utilising his globe-trotting experiences, and recently gave his new illustrated lecture, entitled "Old Worlds Through New Eyes," at the Carnegie Lyceum, New York. There was a large attendance, and Mr. Knowles showed some beautiful views, with an entertaining description of them. Dick, as we all know, is a fellow of infinite jest, and he would have long since become a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society had the quidnuncs of that worthy corporation not been such sticklers for facts.

The Dutch boom is upon us again in the theatres and halls. At the Prince of Wales's Theatre Miss Isabel Jay as Miss Hook of Holland frames her pretty face in sabots, and both Miss Madge Lessing and Miss Annie Purcell, the girl who sings "By the side of the Zuyder Zee" successfully, are scoring great successes in Dutch business. The American variety became popular when "Fritz" Emmett first visited us, and Mr. Jake Friedman, one of its exponents, is introducing it once again in his sketch Happy Holland at the Empire, Hackney.

Miss Ada Alexandra, who was the first "Dutch girl" to make a name in the halls, is lying very seriously ill at her residence, 30, Carlton-mansions, Portsdown-road, Maida Vale, and it is with much regret that we learn that she is suffering from the last stages of cancer. Her medical adviser has given up all hopes of recovery. Miss Alexander would like to hear from some of her old friends in the profession.

Mr. George Edwardes, who was successful in securing the music-hall licence for the Empire, has resigned the chairmanship of the company and his seat on the board of directors. He has taken this step because he desires to give all his attention to Daly's and the Gaiety Theatres. It was in July, 1887, that Mr. Edwardes leased the Empire from the late Daniel Nicols, of the Café Royal, and with Sir Augustus (then Mr.) Harris, and opened it as a variety house on Dec. 23. Since then, on a paid-up capital of £31,250, it has earned more money than any other theatre run as a limited liability company in the West End. The shareholders on one occasion received as much as 84 per cent.

Mr. Charles Jesson, London Secretary of the Musicians' Union, whose work for the National Alliance during the strike was so conspicuous, was again returned on Saturday a member of the L.C.C. by a large majority for Walworth. Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Maurice Hoffman, Mr. Harry Mountford, and Mr. Frank Gerald gave him considerable assistance both previous to and on the day of the election.

Messrs. Hana, Ltd., to whom we were indebted for the excellent Conciliation Board group—otherwise known as the Peacemakers—which adorned our issue last week, now inform us that permanent prints of the photograph can be had at the rate of 7s. 6d. each by applying to them at 22, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C. No doubt many of our readers will secure a copy of this excellent souvenir by the artists' photographer of a momentous event in the history of the halls.

The Oxford anniversary is somewhat later this year, probably on account of the strike. The function, which is one of the pleasantest of the kind, is announced for Friday, March 22, and will be the first annual under Mr. Blyth Pratt as manager. The élite of the profession will be on the stage and the aristocracy of syndicates and circuits in the stalls.

Minnie Duncan and Arthur E. Godfrey, of Me and 'Er fame, have concluded a most successful engagement in Australia with Mr. Harry Rickards, have returned to England by the Orient Royal Mail liner Ormuz, and open at the Oxford and Empire, Islington, on Monday. During their stay in Australia they successfully produced two new coster acts, entitled The Coster's Baby and The Coster's Courtship, both written by Murray and Everard. They also produced The Sceneshifter's Lament, by arrangement with the author, Mr. Alfred Lester, of the Palace and Gaiety Theatres.

Mr. W. H. Kirby, a new recruit to the variety stage, has proved such a success that this week he is playing three halls, namely, the Bedford, Middlesex, and Granville. The Moss and Stoll tour follows. It will be remembered that Mr. Kirby made a hit as the Page in Cinderella, at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, last Christmas.

Mr. Ted E. Box, comedian, was on Sunday last initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Association, Terrier Leon Bassett performing the ceremony.

The latest quotations of music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅛; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1½; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4¾; London Pavilion Preference, 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss' Empire, 4⅞; Moss' Empire 5 per cent. Preference, 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅝; Palace, 10/6; Tivoli, 6¼; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13/0.

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the York Hotel on Wednesday next, at 2 o'clock.

The Balham Empire, 75, High-road, Balham, was offered at the Mart on Tuesday by Messrs. George Head and Co. in conjunction with Messrs. Stimson and Co. The property was bought in at £2,850.

Miss Belle Travers, who has recently concluded a very successful engagement with Mr. Gar Kiddie's pantomime company, is about to produce a farcical sketch, entitled Unmentionables, expressly written for her by Mr. F. F. Smiles. Miss Travers has recently returned from a long tour of South Africa. It is of interest to note that she was the first professional to appear in Johannesburg under Mr. Edgar Hyman's management after the late war.

The 502nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the following members were present:—Messrs. Joe O'Gorman (chairman of committee), W. H. Clemart (president), Fred Herbert (vice-chairman), A. Borelli, W. Welsh, Pat Carey, Albert Le Fre (V.P.), John Alexander, J. W. Cragg (hon. trustee), Harry Bancroft, Fred W. Millis (V.P.), Wal Pink, Walter Munroe, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes having been confirmed, a number of matters of importance were brought before the meeting and discussed at length. The weekly statement of receipts and expenditure was submitted, and was passed as read.

Mr. Walter de Frece has arranged to take over two theatres now controlled by Mr. John Hart, which will bring up his circuit of halls to a total of eighteen. It is his intention to gather the best possible talent around him.

A complimentary dinner was given last week to Mr. Charles Bush, to mark his eight years' association with the Leeds Queen's Theatre, and his appointment as acting-manager of the new Palace. The gathering was held at the Grand Central Hotel—Mr. Arthur Willey in the chair—and in handing over a cheque for 30 guineas, subscribed by a number of Mr. Bush's friends, Mr. Willey paid a glowing tribute to the popularity of the recipient.

The New Palace, Leeds (late the Queen's Theatre) opened its doors as a music hall on the twice-nightly system on Monday, and two crowded houses were in evidence for the inauguration. Mr. Walter de Frece, who is now in control, was well received in an opening speech from the stage; and Mr. Charles Bush, the popular acting-manager, also came in for a warm welcome. Great improvements have been effected in the interior, including a lavish scheme of redecoration and upholstery, and the comfort of patrons has been studied and catered for in every particular. Mr. de Frece will bring to the Leeds Palace Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Miss Ada Reeve, and —immediately she has fulfilled her other contracts —Miss Vesta Tilley.

The capital of the company formed to run the "White City," an American amusement park, at the Manchester Botanical Gardens, is given at £40,000. There are, however, no shares on the market, the whole of the money having been promptly found by the promoters of the movement. The work of construction is going on with remarkable rapidity, and the electricity supply will be obtained from a plant to be erected on the site. The new venture will probably open in May.

On Monday Mr. Acton applied to the Manchester County Licensing Justices on behalf of Mr. John Calvin Brown, acting on behalf of the syndicate promoting the "White City," for a six days' music and dancing licence. There had been, counsel said, music for some considerable time past at the Botanical Gardens, Manchester, and now an influential company, with a substantial board of directors, had been formed, and they were going to turn the Gardens into what they hoped would be a great success as a place of public entertainment. They asked for a licence from noon till midnight in the application form, but the hours would, of course, be in the discretion of the Bench. The Bench granted the licence till 11 p.m.

Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, proprietor of the Empire Theatre, Rochdale, applied at the adjourned General Annual Licensing Sessions, Bolton, on Monday, for a licence for a proposed Empire Theatre to be erected (from plans already passed by the Bolton Corporation) in Deansgate, Bolton. Something like £5000 is proposed to be spent on the building, to accommodate about 1200 or 1300 people. The chairman, in granting the licence, spoke of the good impression made by Mr. Hargreaves, who, he said, was just the sort of person to whom they would entrust the erection and conduct of such a place. Mr. William Duncan, of Rochdale, is the architect.

Mr. Sinclair Neill, who has just been appointed manager of the New Alhambra Theatre, Belfast, has had a long experience of theatrical matters, having been with Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. F. R. Benson, Mr. Wm. Mollison, and Mr. Chas. Warner's companies. His appointment has given the greatest possible satisfaction to his host of admirers in Belfast, of which city he is a native.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas have just concluded a second most successful Moss' Empires tour, receiving great praise from all the provincial Press for their scenes from "The Old Curiosity Shop." They have also been offered a lucrative pantomime engagement, which they are unable to accept, as their arrangements for the next eighteen months are complete. At the Palace, Manchester, recently, Mrs. Lucas was presented with a beautiful bouquet bearing the inscription "A token of welcome from the Manchester Dickens Society."

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Warden, Ltd., was held on the 28th ult. at the Palace Theatre, Belfast. The chairman (Mr. S. C. Allen), in moving the adoption of the directors' report and statement of accounts for the year ended Jan. 26, 1907, stated that the profits had been sufficient to pay the previous half-year's dividend on the preference shares, 5 per cent. on the preference share capital, and 4 per cent. on the ordinary share capital, and to transfer to the reserve accounts £1394, and carry forward to the next account £376. Mr. H. C. Kelly was re-elected a director, and Messrs. Craig, Gardiner, and Co. were reappointed auditors.

Rather a novel souvenir is on view in the windows of that well-known theatrical resort in Glasgow, popularly known as Johnny Crichton's. This is the collar, tie, and dress shirt (or, at least, the starched portion thereof), worn by Mr. Fred Kitchen at a recent theatrical dinner in Glasgow. On these Mr. Kitchen secured at the time the autographs in pencil of all the guests present, and the result is an ingenious memento of the occasion, the signatures including most of the ladies and gentlemen appearing in the pantomimes at the Royal, Grand, and Princess's this year, with, in some cases, their catch-words or gags appended.

A remarkable incident occurred in the Coliseum, Glasgow, on Saturday night during the progress of Fred Karno's Football Match sketch, in which several well-known professional footballers appear. A man occupying one of the boxes became so enthusiastic that while leaning far forward he suddenly overbalanced himself and fell over the edge of the box into the stalls below, a distance of 12ft. His startled cry immediately drew the attention of the audience from the stage, and for a time the most intense excitement prevailed. The man was found to be practically unhurt, however, his fall having been broken by his landing upon the head of an unfortunate clerk, William Forsyth, who was sitting in one of the stalls. The latter came off much worse, being most severely bruised and shaken, and he was immediately conveyed home in a cab.

A scene unprecendented in the annals of pantomime in Dublin was witnessed outside the stage-door of the Gaiety Theatre on the last night of the pantomime. A crowd numbering about four hundred awaited the appearance of several of the prominent artists. The first to emerge was Tom E. Finglas (Pompey), admittedly "the" success of the production. He was promptly seized by a number of admirers and carried shoulder high into Grafton-street, a distance of 300 yards. Fred Arthur (the Sultan), who followed, was similarly treated. A speech being demanded, Mr. Finglas addressed the bhoys and colleens, Mr. Arthur also having to respond. In his few words he informed the warm-hearted Dubliners that it was "Tom's" last appearance in Ireland previous to his departure for Australia. There was then a general desire expressed to shake the hand of their favourite, on whose memory the scene will be indelibly engraved.

Mr. H. Griff and Mr. Charlie Stevens had a record send-off from Waterloo last Saturday, when they started on their journey to South Africa. Quite a crowd of brother Terriers assembled, and sang the joyous strains of their anthem, which, by one consent, was many times encored. Not only Terriers, but Water Rats and other friends added to the heartiness and jollity of the gathering.

Amongst those assembled on the platform we noticed Messrs. G. P. R. Burgess and Son, Joe Lawrence, F. H. Kohler, Leon Bassett, George Cooper, Ben Whiteley, Will Edelsten, E. C. Webb, M. McDowall, Billy Moss, Pat Carey, Jesse Sparrow, Charlie Cornish, Teddy Giles, Wal Pink, Frank Gerald, H. E. High, Ted E. Box, Miss Leslie, Kitty Clare, Jessie Burnette, Mr. and Mrs. Horace White, Tom E. Cliffe, Fred Hughes, Ben Woodger, H. Davis, E. E. Cooke, G. V. O'Connolly, C. C. Bartram, and Harry Lester. Both Mr. Stevens and the famous clown received many wires from absent friends.

The Terriers on Sunday gave their fifth social concert of the season at their headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel. About eighty, including friends, were present. Amongst those who contributed to the evening's entertainment, were Tom Packer, W. L. Murray, Ada Norman, the Three Coopers, Guy Ryder, Elsie Baker, Miss Salter, Mrs. Arthur Dainton, Miss Edie Godfrey, Mrs. Beatie Godfrey, Catherine Leslie, F. W. Millis, Ted E. Box, and Mrs. Croxson. Mr. J. C. Moore presided at the piano; Mr. Leon Bassett occupied the chair; Mr. Ben Woodger acted as M.C.; and the complete arrangements were in the hands of the secretary, Harry Lester.

Fresh from his pantomime successes in the provinces, Mr. Bransby Williams, who has done so much to spread the knowledge of Charles Dickens among the masses, reopens at the Empire on Monday with a new entertainment, entitled Mephisto à la Mode. This will embrace some amusing imitations of popular actors.

One of the biggest successes in comedy sketches has, by all reports, just been achieved by Mr. Chas. M. Daly, the popular comedian, who, until just lately, has been touring suburban London and principal provincial towns with the Apollo and Shaftesbury Theatres' success, Mr. Popple, of Ippleton, playing the comedy part of Platt, with that prince of musical comedy comedians Mr. G. P. Huntley, who is at present making such a hit in Miss Hook of Holland.

Mr. Daly's success is with a screaming short, pithy comedy, entitled I Must Have It, in which he portrays a dude tramp, resembling somewhat Percy de Vere, Esq., in The Lights o' London—a part peculiarly suitable to his style. He is supported by a good company, among others being Miss Maggie Byron, who was so long associated with Three of a Kind. Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, after seeing I Must Have It on Monday at the Palace, Stoke Newington, immediately offered Mr. Daly twelve weeks.

The Canterbury, during the early régime of the father of the halls, Charles Morton, was dubbed by George Augustus Sala the "Academy over the Water," and the Empire will shortly be designated the Tate Gallery in Leicester Square. So successful have the new living pictures been that the directors have decided to constantly add new works of art to the collection. Next week's changes will include Leslie's well-known picture, "Uncle Toby and Widow Wadman," "The Knight Errant," by Sir J. E. Millais; "Hit," by Lord Leighton; a nocturne and two fresh bronzes—"Perseus"—by Brough; and "The Eagle Slayer." In another branch of pictorial art there will also be a novelty next Monday on the Biograph—a series of pictures showing the laying of the Brooklands Automobile Race Track.

Mr. Mark Melford's fiftieth sketch was produced last week with the utmost success. The Lawyer's Letter; or, Once a Year, eclipses the majority of this author's best sketches, and was received with enthusiasm at Collins's. Seeing no prospect of his return to the legitimate stage, Mr. Melford's plays are to be disposed of, with copyright, plants, and pictorials, commencing with the four-act drama, The Hidden Terror.

Mr. George Barclay, always on the look-out for novelties, saw one of the funniest Scotch sketches possible at the Zoo Hippodrome, Glasgow, last week, and in less than twenty-four hours had it booked up eighteen months ahead. The title is The Egyptian Mummy, and it is humorously played by Sandy McNab and company. It has never been seen out of Scotland; but now, owing to Mr. Barclay's astuteness, we shall soon be laughing at it in London.

Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann considers he has made a great discovery in India in Professor Grossi and Mme. Roux. Mr. Bandmann claims that Grossi, as mind reader and wonder worker, absolutely stands alone. Mr. Bandmann discovered him quite by chance, and immediately engaged him to appear in one of his Calcutta theatres, where the impression made was so profound that Mr. Bandmann secured him for three years, and is now making arrangements for his appearance in London. Unlike others, Grossi, who is an Italian, goes through all his feats in absolute silence. Not a word is spoken or a sound uttered to his medium. He has completely taken Calcutta by storm.

Mr. Edwin Brett and Miss Emmeline Orford, the popular vaudeville artists, have in preparation a musical comedy, entitled The New Star, for six principals, chorus, and ballet, which they intend to produce on their return to the London halls this spring. They have already settled their Christmas season as principal comedian and principal boy.

A deputation of the Grand, Clapham, Cycling Club waited on Mr. Harry Bawn at the Camberwell Empire on Saturday, and presented him with an enamelled gold medal, as a small recognition of services rendered to the club during the three years of his presidency.

Charles Collette finishes a long and most successful tour in the London and provincial halls with his sketch, Tea for Two, and rejoins Mr. Charles Cartwright, to repeat his famous impersonation of Micawber in the revival of Dan'l Peggotty, at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday next. It will be remembered that Mr. Collette, who has played Micawber in Little Em'ly for many years in the provinces, made a big hit in the part in the mid-seventies, at the Standard and now defunct Park Theatres, under the management of Messrs. John and Richard Douglass.

Mr. Malcolm Scott, who, during the week, has proved a big success at the Liverpool Tivoli, leaves the Mersey to-day (Saturday) for Las Palmas on a holiday.

Miniature Marie writes us from Cape Town to say she is recovering nicely from her terrible illness of enteric fever. She has made a great success with Messrs. Hyman and Co. in Africa, and it was during her last three weeks at the Tivoli, Cape Town, that she was taken ill and removed to Somerset Hospital, where she received all the care that was possible. Marie says she does not know how to thank her brother and sister artists for their great kindness to her. It will be June before her return, when we shall see her at the West-end halls in some novel numbers.

Brown, Le Clercq, and Co. have just concluded another successful pantomime engagement, and open in London next week in Black Justice. They have recently refused a very tempting offer from America.

We feel sure that Mrs. Fred Karno's numerous friends will be glad to hear that she has recovered from her serious illness, which was caused by ptomaine poisoning.

At the Palace Theatre, Stoke Newington, on Thursday next, a grand matinée will be given under distinguished patronage in aid of the funds of the Metropolitan Hospital. Many well-known London artists have kindly promised their services.

Mrs. John Lawson has been drawing tremendous houses this week at the Islington Empire with The Devil's Sunday. A particularly gorgeous scene was used, and the accomplished lady, in her part of Fay Faber, has been scoring her usual success. Next week this clever sketch will be seen at the Palace, Manchester.

John Lawson will produce at the Camberwell Palace on April 1 a new episode, entitled The Unwritten Law, the plot being somewhat on the lines of the Thaw tragedy. Scene 1 shows the House of Glass; Scene 2, The Roof Garden. Between the changes will be exhibited a special Biograph film, portraying "The Downfall." Something startling is promised both in the way of mounting and effects.

Miss Lil Hawthorne played her first engagement since her return from America at the Empire, Bristol. She was accorded a magnificent reception, and received numerous bouquets and packets of chocolates from her many admirers. The business during the week has been enormous, hundreds being turned away. Miss Hawthorne starts her annual Moss and Stoll tour on Monday, March 18. Miss Hawthorne experienced very rough weather on her journey from New York, and was afloat on the night of the great storm which wrecked the Berlin.

Mr. Bob Hutt, who is topping the bill this week at the Middlesex with his Welcome Home company, appeared at the historic Drury-lane house on Monday, but has been unable to play since in consequence of an attack of laryngitis.

Mr. Charlie Rich (Rich and Rich) will resume work on Monday at the Hippodrome, Brighton, after an enforced rest of two weeks by order of his physician, Dr. Stuar-Low, under whose care he has been during that time, and at whose hands he has undergone two operations on the throat, both fortunately successful.

Mr. James Wynes has been again appointed manager of the Grand, Hanley, after an absence of two years. Mr. Wynes inaugurated the two-shows-a-night system in Hanley, previous to his engagement with Mr. Oswald Stoll, which lasted nine years.

Miss Florrie Bray, who is appearing this week at the Palace, Chelsea, and the Metropolitan, has scored an immense success. Mr. Hugh J. Didcott saw Miss Florrie Bray at the first-mentioned hall, and now, as her sole agent, is securing for her many dates.

Owing to the loss of his mother Mr. Sam Mayo was unable to answer to his number on Monday at the opening of the New Palace, Leeds. Mr. Fred Land was sent on from the City Varieties, an act of courtesy on the part of Mr. Wood that Mr. Walter de Frece must have appreciated most heartily.

From the same cause, Mr. Ted Cowan, Mr. Sam Mayo's brother, has been absent from his engagement at the Islington Empire, where he received the wire containing the sad news on coming off the stage at the Monday matinée.

The friends of Miss Carlotta Lunn will be pleased to hear that she is now recovering from her recent illness. She owes her recovery to the care and kindness of Nurse Cliff and the skill of Dr. Couan, of Stockton. She will resume business on March 25, with new numbers and an elegant wardrobe. Her latest song is entitled "Poverty parts good company."

Mr. Bert H. Delmar, whose success as a topical patterist was so marked some weeks back, is being rapidly booked up. As a writer and composer he has also demonstrated his ability in Miss Gracie Grahame's number "Fishing" (Shapiro, Von Tilzer), Frank Lynne's "Can't make it out" (Francis and Day), Harry Grey's "Carrie" (Price and Reynolds), and Charles Cardle's great hit "Iona" (Price and Reynolds).

The Six Æolians, under the direction of Mr. Charles Parker, are now in their third week of success at the Palace, and this refined act is one of the brightest gems of Mr. Butt's programme. They have been secured by every prominent management for some time ahead.

An interesting case under the Music Copyright Act came up at the Bromley, Kent, Police Court on Monday. Susan Puriago was charged with having in her possession a number of copies of pirated music at Chislehurst. The prisoner pleaded that she was "no scolard," and did not know the difference. She sold it as "piloted" music, and obtained it by sending through the post. Prisoner's husband said they got the music at New Cross. Anybody could get it, and hundreds of people sold it as "piloted" music. A fine of 10s. and 5s. 6d. costs was imposed, and the copies of music taken from prisoner were ordered to be destroyed.

Mr. Ernie Mayne has just finished pantomime, and is now in town for three months. As usual, he is meeting with great success.

The New Royal Hippodrome, Belfast, of which Mr. Harry Downs, of the New Alhambra, Belfast, has just been appointed manager, is fast approaching completion, and it is confidently expected will be ready for opening on Easter Monday. Mr. Downs has just appointed quite an army of officials, stage-manager, and bill inspectors.

Captain Sperling and Captain Jansen, the gallant lifeboatmen who performed such noble service in the saving of lives from the wreck of the steamship Berlin, were honoured as heroes at the Palace Theatre on Thursday afternoon, when a matinée was given by the directors in aid of the relief fund started by the Mayor of Harwich. Earlier in the day—to be precise, at 9 a.m.—Mr. Miller, of the Palace Theatre, had met Captains Sperling and Jansen on their arrival at Liverpool-street Station, and driven off with them in a motor car. At the Mansion House the car was held up by a policeman, and Mr. Miller took the opportunity of pointing out the historic building to the visitors. This, however, hardly seemed to interest them. It was the mass of traffic and people that caused their great astonishment. "Where do they come from?" was the ever-repeated question. It being explained that the people were going to work, they asked, "Where do they live?" "Outside London," was the reply. "Then, where does your London end?" But Mr. Miller gave it up. In due course they arrived at the Queen's Hotel, where Mr. E. A. Pickering, the assistant-manager of the Palace, and Mr. T. Bailey, the manager of the hotel, were waiting to receive them.

Eight hundred shillings have been received this week for the benefit of the Music Hall Home Fund. They have been sent to us by Mr. Walter P. Wells, the hon. treasurer of the Edinburgh Theatrical Sports, which are given annually in the cause of charity.

Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, the managing-director of the Bedford, has fixed Thursday next, March 14, for his annual matinée on behalf of the much-depleted funds of the North-West London Hospital in Kentish Town-road. The entertainment will be under distinguished patronage, and the Mayor and Borough Council of St. Pancras will be in attendance. Mr. Lucas hopes to hand over £250 to the Hospital secretary.

Miss Agnes Nolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Nolan, made her first appearance on any stage at the London, Shoreditch, on Thursday, Feb. 28, with such good results that Mr. Richards, the manager of that cosy hall, immediately kept her in the programme for the present week.

The latest recruit to the music hall stage is Miss Isabelle Dillon, whom Messrs. Blackmore have booked to appear at the Richmond Music Hall on March 18. Miss Dillon's experience in musical comedy and pantomime should stand her in good stead.

Sylvester's Hippodromes, Ltd., a new company, is just being registered. Several well-known gentlemen are financially interested, some acting as directors. On sites that have been secured in several towns a new style of hall will be erected. A fine position has been secured in the centre of Crewe, and plans are now being prepared by Woodhouse and Co., Nottingham, who have also the contract for the building. Plans have also been approved by the authorities at Peterborough, where the building operations are now about to commence.

Mr. Lempriere Pringle and Mr. J. C. Piddock will produce an entirely and original whimsical operatic trifle entitled The Musical Burglar, written by Bertrand Davies, music by Clement Locknane. The cast will include Miss Ethel Negretti, Mr. E. W. Colman, and Mr. J. C. Piddock; also a quartette of male voices. The production will take place on March 18 at the Hippodrome, Huddersfield. Messrs. G. and F. Peel have got the booking arrangements. The sketch will be conducted by the composer.

"Valentine the Boneless," a curious character whom English visitors to Paris knew well by sight some fifteen years ago, died on Wednesday. His name was Jules Renaudin, and he was the greatest male dancer that Paris has ever known. He was old enough to remember Mabille, and had danced with the famous Clodoche, but his own principal successes were scored at the Jardin de Paris and the Moulin Rouge.

Mr. Harry Liston, in whose well-known entertainments Miss Lord Lumley is a prominent figure, has received numerous inquiries concerning his associate. Miss Lord Lumley bears the same name as a young lady found drowned in the river at Fulford, York. In a satchel attached to the waistbelt of the deceased was a card which bore the name, "Miss Lumley, The Holmes, Scarborough." Strange to say, Miss Lord Lumley invariably wears jewellery very similar in all respects to that found on the body, and the fact that she has made numerous appearances at Scarborough has doubtless strengthened the impression that she might be the Miss Lumley mentioned in the paragraph. Mr. Liston writes to assure the public that the deceased was not Miss Lord Lumley, who is still associated with his entertainments.

The crowd that is likely to visit Sydenham to witness the football match between Crystal Palace and Everton will afterwards have an opportunity of seeing Peter Bannon, the official premier champion wrestler. On this occasion he is offering £25 to each of the following men if he cannot throw them all within one hour:—W. Kline, the champion of London; James Waller, the 12st champion of Essex; and S. Scholl, the 12st. champion of Germany. An interesting match, particularly to the Everton visitors to the Palace, will be one for £25 between Reece, of Everton, and Philip Gotz, 11st. champion of London, for the best of three falls. Last, but not least, Peter Bannon will wrestle Max Minion, the Canadian 16st. champion, for £50, the best two falls in three.

Mr. Harry Lauder returned to the Tivoli on Monday night, after his pantomime engagement, and rarely indeed does one have the opportunity of witnessing such enthusiastic scenes in a music hall as those which testified to the popularity of the Scotch comedian. He was heard in three familiar numbers, "She's ma' daisie," "The Kilt," and "My Scotch Bluebell," and each of these he sang with his customary effectiveness.

At the conclusion of his turn Mr. Lauder heartily thanked all present for their gracious welcome. "I am extremely grateful," said Mr. Lauder, "for this very marked tribute of your esteem, and the memory of this scene will not readily be forgotten. It is pleasing to know that one is not forgotten though absent from London. I have not prepared any more ballads for this evening, but during my six weeks' stay at this house I hope to introduce several new songs to your kind consideration, and, in the meanwhile, I remain your very grateful servant."

Mr. Harry Downs was the recipient of some marks of esteem at the New Alhambra Theatre, Belfast, on Saturday evening. Mr. T. H. Solly, on behalf of the Alhambra Dramatic Company, presented Mr. Downs with a gold-mounted walking-stick; and Mr. Sinclair Neill, the new manager, handed to him as a gift from the orchestra, staff, and a few friends, a beautiful diamond and pearl breast-pin. Mr. Downs, in his reply, referred to the happy relations that had always existed between the company, the staff, and himself. Although he was leaving the Alhambra, he was not leaving the city, and would always be pleased to see their faces at the new Hippodrome. In introducing Mr. Sinclair Neill, the new manager, he assured them he was succeeded by a gentleman of high personal qualities, and one that would always be anxious to afford them the utmost satisfaction.

Mr. W. B. Broadhead's sudden death came as a great shock to his numerous friends in Blackpool and Manchester, and a very promising career has thus been cut off at the early age of thirty-four. Mr. Broadhead married Miss Edith Moore, only daughter of the late Mr. A. Moore, of Hornby-road, Blackpool, whom, with four young children, he leaves to mourn their loss.

He was born at Stockport, and came to Blackpool in his school days, receiving part of his education at the Grammar School. Upon leaving school he assisted in the management of the old Prince of Wales Baths, Blackpool, which stood on the site of the Palace, and frequently took part in the water shows, which were such a popular feature, and won many prizes. Mr. W. B. Broadhead afterwards went to Manchester, and took up the management of various theatres. In 1902 he won a seat on the City Council, representing New Cross Ward, but was defeated in 1905. On Wednesday, the day of the funeral, all the ten Broadhead halls were closed. Mr. Percy Honri (brother-in-law) was among the mourners.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

DITTIES of a smart, humorous, and refined nature issued by Mr. David Day's firm, are now being studied with avidity by hosts of artists who are equipping themselves for the coming season. One greatly favoured by the gentlemen is "Round the clock; or, the strenuous life," by Redmond and Thurban, and the intelligence that that gifted and delightful artist Miss Margaret Cooper is about to add to her répertoire H. E. Pether's "farmyard fantasy," entitled "My sweet bird of paradise," has caused many smart feminine artists to do likewise.

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE made, at the Hippodrome, St. Helens, a few nights since, a great and instantaneous success with a new song, entitled "You wonder why I love you?" which tells of an elderly man's affection for a young girl because she is so like her mother, whom once he had hoped to make his bride. The words and music—the first from his pen for the popular artist—are by Henry F. Greenfield.

MISS DAISY DORMER will exploit a charming new "Rocky Mountains" romance by that clever trio of song-writing experts, Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, entitled "Don't go back to Carolina," at all her forthcoming engagements in town and country; whilst Mr. G. H. Elliott will also feature the same tuneful number on the expiry of his engagement at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, where he is still nightly creating a furore with the same writer's "Bamboo bungalow." Both songs are published by the same firm—the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE, who scored so heavily during her engagement at the London Coliseum last year, will shortly appear at a leading West End music hall in a new production of a sweet Milesian ballad, entitled "Kitty Brady, my Irish lady," by Mr. J. F. Lambe (author-composer of "Queen of Old Samara"), a lilting number racy of the soil, which in Miss Temple's experienced hands is predestined to great and lasting success. The song will be published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "Sixpenny Successes" series at an early late.

MR. EDGAR CURTIS is engaging an efficient company to support him during the forthcoming summer at the Bandstand Concerts at the well-known and important situations at Ramsgate, on the East and West Cliffs. His humorous song "I'm a little bit deaf to-day" has been enquired for by entertainers all over Great Britain, and will be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day on Saturday next.

MISS MARY MARS, the dashing principal boy from Fred Karno's successful Glasgow pantomime, has this week made a hit at the Tivoli and Empress, Brixton, with Castling and Godfrey's romantic Indian song, "You shall have a shalimar" (Indian garden). Miss Mars is to be congratulated on the introduction of a number that is sure to be among the successes of the year. The Star Co. have secured this winner.

AMONG the novelties the Star Co. have in the press are the following:—"Where the North-road leaves the Minster City," by Harry Staunton; "When the wedding bells rang out for you and me," by A. E. Richards and Maurice Scott; "Wallflower," by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule; Florrie Gallimore's latest stormer, "You wonder why I love you?" by H. F. Greenfield; and "Has anyone seen a German band?" by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. The writers are confident this number will rival their famous "Zuyder Zee" in popularity.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have secured a new song, entitled "Why does a lady," written by George Arthurs and composed by Mr. Ernest Shand, who has been featuring it with great success on the Stoll tour. The publishers will shortly issue it in their popular "Sixpenny Edition."

MISS PEGGY PRYDE will shortly produce a new song written and composed by Miss Gladys Mavius, entitled "Just those three words." The publishing rights are vested in the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

A NEW song, entitled "Primrose," arranged as a scena, was produced at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Thursday. It is by the popular providers A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, and has a catchy refrain.

AMONG the many purchases acquired from leading song-writers by Francis, Day, and Hunter during the last few days are no fewer than four songs from the joint pens of Harry Castling and Fred Godfrey, viz.: "In Demerera," "My 'Are-you-there?' girl," "Two little wooden shoes," and "The day you became my bride."

HERMANN E. DAREWSKI, JUN., has set to music a pretty song, the words by F. R. Westbarr, and named "The north wind and the rose." It has been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day.

A FRESH impression of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's comic song "Birdseed" is being struck off by the printers, and constitutes the fourth edition.

NEW songs which Messrs. Francis and Day will shortly issue, in addition to others, include "She haunts me," by Murphy and Lipton; "Just say good-bye to the days that are gone" (sung by Miss Josie Mooney), by Fred Fey; "If I can't come round to your house" (George D'Albert), by Chas. Collins; "Since Father started gardening" (Little Cliff), by Harry Heath and Will Hyde; "Mabel, I'll send you a cable" and "There's a dear little house that Jack's built," by Worton David and Kenneth Lyle; and "All that I want is a cosy cot and you," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

THE clever song, "I ain't nobody in particular," which has attracted much attention in the hands of Mr. Alec Hurley, is from the pens of Scott Mackenzie and Fred W. Leigh.

MISS NELL COTTER is making a big success with her popular coon song, "I'm going to leave you." It is written and composed by her brother, Chas. Collins, who was also responsible for the "Little wooden hut," and is published by Feldman and Co.

AN erroneous impression having got abroad that Mr. J. F. Lambe's charming song, "Queen of Old Samara," belongs to the "free" variety, the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. wish it to be distinctly understood that prior singing rights for the G. Adney Payne Syndicate halls have been allocated by them to Miss Lilian Lea, whilst Mr. Fred Elton holds prior rights for the Moss and Stoll tour until further notice. A few rights for halls outside these have, however, been granted.

IN consequence of the great success Miss Daisy Mayer has won with her quaint rag-time coon song "Ain't you gwine to let me say good-bye?" written and composed by Paul Knox, wherein the singer narrates the story of a coon who, upon being arrested and arraigned for petty larceny, pleads eloquently with the judge for the privilege of just one last word with his only "pal," a "dog of the mongrel kind," it has been accepted for early publication by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., who anticipate a big sale for the number in "Sixpenny Successes" form.

HEROES AT THE PALACE.

How readily the members of the theatrical profession respond to a call for help for any deserving charitable purpose has been fully demonstrated this week, during which several benefit performances have been given in aid of one good cause or another. On Thursday afternoon at the Palace Theatre an entertainment was presented, the total receipts going to swell the Mayor of Harwich's fund for the widows and orphans of the crew of the ill-fated S.S. Berlin. Captains Sperling and Jansen, two of the sailors who distinguished themselves in the work of rescue in connection with the disaster, occupied a box, and were the centre of interest whenever the eyes of the audience were not riveted upon what was going on on the stage.

During the afternoon the two lifeboatmen were presented with gold medals, which the directors of the Palace Theatre had specially struck. The medals, the decoration of which consisted of laurel wreaths, bore on one side the inscription, "Presented by the Directors of the Palace Theatre," and on the reverse side, "For bravery in connection with the S.S. Berlin Disaster, off the Hook of Holland, Feb. 21, 1907."

The Mayor of Harwich, in making the presentation, thanked the directors of the Palace Theatre, Mr. Alfred Butt, the artists, and all who had assisted to make the matinée a success. He (the Mayor) had received a telegram from the Queen of Holland, expressing her sympathy with the sufferers, and intimating that she was sending £25 towards the fund. A telegram of acknowledgment had been despatched to her in the name of the Palace audience. It was hoped that the result of the matinée would be an addition of £500 to the £5,000 already in hand. It was regrettable that, owing to the sudden illness of another of the heroes, Captain Berkhout, it was not possible that afternoon to present the third gold medal.

At the invitation of the Mayor, rousing cheers were given for Captains Sperling and Jansen, and the Dutch National Anthem was played by the band, partly in honour of the presence of the Dutch Ambassador.

There were twenty-five items on the programme, but time did not admit of the appearance of all the artists. Miss Vesta Tilley gave her delightful rendering of "Following in father's footsteps," concluding with her amusingly characteristic soldier study. Mr. Hayden Coffin was heard to advantage in "Tommy Atkins"; and Mr. Henry Lytton delivered in fine style the song, "First and last appearance on the stage," from My Darling. Mr. Harry Fragson treated the audience to his piano entertainment, which included that popular number of his concerning the misfortunes of an ambitious playwright; and Miss Gertie Millar, assisted by a chorus of little girls, created a good deal of amusement with her "Grandmamma" ditty. Mr. Courtice Pounds gave a further demonstration of his vocal attainments by a splendid rendering of "I'll sing thee songs of Araby." Mr. Harry Lauder kept the house in a state of merriment with his recital of the experiences of one McKay, his singing of Scottish comic and serious songs being altogether admirable. Miss Evie Greene captivated all hearts by her expressive performance of her "Honeymoon" song; and Miss Marie Dainton submitted a number of imitations of well-known artists. Miss Margaret Cooper accompanied herself at the piano in the singing of some capital verses, the burden of which concerned the yearning of a domestic to be a grand lady. Miss Camille Clifford and Mr. Leslie Stiles, with the assistance of eight prettily-dressed girls, appeared in the attractive Gibson Girl scena; and Miss Ada Reeve told in amusing fashion what would happen if the world were governed by girls, both this song and that concerning a stage-struck lassie proving among the most agreeable features of the programme. The McBans were seen in an exceedingly skilful juggling act; and the Palace Girls sang and danced themselves into favour. The Æolians also won applause for their smart dancing and pleasing melodies; and the Bioscope appropriately enough exhibited pictures of the Berlin wreck.

MUSIC HALL ARBITRATION.

THE CASE OF THE STAGE HANDS.

Mr. G. R. Askwith, the arbitrator, in a further interim award in connection with the music hall dispute, says:—"In further arrangement of the music hall dispute, and in addition to awards published by me on Feb. 14 and 21, 1907, I award and declare with regard to the stage hands that I concur in the agreement between the parties not to examine at the present time the question of the justice or injustice of the strike. I award that stage hands who, in consequence of the strike, are without employment, may apply for engagements, and shall be entitled to vacancies now existing or arising (agreed at 50 per cent. of those who are out of employment), such vacancies to be filled up on or before March 11, and those employed to receive payment at such rate as the arbitrator may subsequently decide to be payable to each class as and from March 11, but pending such decision temporarily at the rate paid in the first week of January, 1907. The remaining stage hands shall be given preference for employment in respect of vacancies arising before the publication of my first award. Any balance not absorbed in obtaining work before the end of the proceedings and prior to the publication of an award upon wages and other questions in dispute shall be referred to me for consideration. The stage hands may themselves choose and select by whom application may be made for the aforesaid vacancies."

BARNARD'S PALACE, GREENWICH.

A large and well-pleased audience assembled on Monday night in this bright and comfortable hall—where their wants are so well catered for by popular Mr. Bert Dent—prepared to do full justice to the excellent fare provided by the management for their amusement. Miss Belle Elmore, a charming comedienne, contributed two catchy songs, entitled "Such a good young man" and "Charlie," which were well received. Miss Doris Dare sang pleasingly of "Mary." Myrtle and Grove were successful with "I am an American girl" and "I'm the guv'nor." Dave Wallace had a flattering reception for his rendering of "Off to Canada" and "The old apple tree" (parody). The imitations of Bandoni were excellent, and his concertina solos admirable. Miss Lily Esplin was very successful in her contributions, entitled "Suffragette," "Wrestling Mad," and a coon song. The Horsley Brothers were warmly applauded in Goldberg's Fighting Ring. Chris Masters sang very quaintly "Somebody's waiting for me." The Geary Trio, barrel organ dancers, made a decided hit with their sand and step dances. Miss Marie Tilley, comedienne and top-boot dancer, was well applauded for her song, "On Saturday," and a clever dance. Mr. Fred Hanlon's patter is smart and novel, and he scored with his song entitled "Proverbs." Miss Clara Waly sang pleasingly "Everybody knew he'd been to town." Messrs. Prentice and Brite did well in their comedy duologue, "Jimmy," and also in "Call and see me sometimes." Miss Connie Levara, the charming soubrette, is also in the programme. A most attractive feature is the exhibition by Ruffell's Bioscope of a new and interesting series of animated pictures. The band, under the direction of Mr. William Skerry, play some bright and up-to-date selections.

WIRELESS music is one of the possibilities of the future. The results may occasion startling changes, and economy in entertainment must certainly be one outcome. With the establishment of communication between the Syndicate halls a comedian—at the end of this century, perhaps—would be able to sing at one house and be applauded in six.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

Miss Marie Lloyd is back again at the Oxford, and Mr. Blyth Pratt smiles once again as he looks round the house, which is now resuming its appearance of prosperity to which we were accustomed in the ante-strike days. The favourite comedienne, after her holiday in Madeira, returns in excellent fettle, and it was patent to her admirers on Monday that she rejoiced at her reappearance at a house where her success was never in doubt. The feeling was mutual, and the magnetism of sympathy evidently inspired her as the stepped on to the stage in a beautiful gown of white satin and chiffon to sing of "The custom of the country," to give us in inimitable fashion a monologue on the racy and romantic incidents of Lady Jane's train journey, and to inspire us with the Castilian brio of her Spanish song. Nothing new can be said of these numbers, unless it be noted that they afford the popular Marie the necessary opportunities of showing her many-sided genius. Early in the evening Miss Jessie Preston, who was born nearer the Clyde than the Thames, raised shouts of laughter when she appeared as the Scotch lassie of Mr. Harry Lauder's celebrated song, which she sings by permission of the comedian from o'er the border. Signor and Mme. Borelli combine refinement with fun and music in their turn at the piano, for which they secure the unstinted approval of their kind friends in front; Mr. W. H. Clemart, one of our most popular ventriloquists, has been afflicted with catarrh, but in spite of this misfortune he has been able to afford considerable diversion by his figures, the crying baby being as realistic as ever.

The absence of one of the turns let in Mr. Jay Laurier, from the Tivoli, and that comedian scored a most gratifying success with his humorous song and patter, "Silly Billy Brown." Another deputy, Mr. Dion Wade, took the place of Mr. Dutch Daly, absent through indisposition, and favoured the house with some capital imitations of George Robey and R. G. Knowles, both of whom are immense favourites at this house. Mr. Wade is evidently a close observer, and has caught the mannerisms and voices of both stars to a nicety. Mr. Dan Crawley, who has just returned from a successful pantomime engagement, gives an eccentric dance that is intensely amusing, and rounds off a triumphant appearance by the broad extravagance of a dame impersonation. An interesting appearance is made by the Eight Stars of Holland, who are heard and seen in the songs and dances of Zeeland in fair time, and in other Dutch scenes. Miss Amber Austa gives originality to the coon business by her eccentricity of movement and her clever dancing; the Ernesto Sisters, in a wire act, do many startling things, among them being a well-executed cake walk on the two filaments of steel; and Dandy George and his dog Rosie submit an act that seems to grow in popularity, the canine doing exactly what is expected of her, and that with the greatest alacrity. Herr Grais' baboons include a Blondin performer, who on removing his garments stands forth in all the glory of a gymnast's costume. His greatest feat is when he loops the loop on a bicycle. His companion has a sly sense of fun, and causes considerable laughter.

As statuary representations are just now the rage, Mr. Blyth-Pratt has been fortunate in securing Mlle. Henriette Marcel de Serris' bas-reliefs and representations of celebrated pictures. Among the latter is Millet's "Gleaners," an artistic realisation of a famous work by the great French painter.

Mr. Joe Elvin comes late in the programme, but is very welcome in the farcical absurdity Trespassers Beware! The only Joe, in a trip up the river, loses his rudder, and gets mixed up with the people who are posing for a faked cinematograph picture, of which an assassination forms the chief sensation. One can easily imagine the Cockney comedian in a series of "tremulous" situations, and the sketch is continually punctuated with laughter. Other turns announced on the bill are Mr. John Kurkamp, Miss Madge Lessing, Mr. Jack Camp, and the Great Northern Troupe, who dance as delightfully as ever.

THE HIPPODROME.

The latest novelty—sensation would be probably a more appropriate word—at the Hippodrome is Bud Snyder's new cycle act, which was seen for the first time on Monday evening. Next to the dangerous looping the loop performances which excited so much attention a few years ago, Mr. Snyder's feats are the most daring things we have seen. His magnum opus consists of his mounting a flight of stairs of sixteen steps, jumping with his bicycle over a man on each alternate step, and, arrived at the top, executing various tricks without dismounting from his machine. Finally, still on the cycle, he jumps from one table to another fixed on the platform erection, and then falls sheer on to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. The audience watch his progress in breathless silence, and the applause on the successful consummation of the trick is simply deafening. Another feat is almost as interesting, and gives us a cycling see-saw, in the centre of which is a tall pedestal, on which is perched Snyder's assistant on a bicycle. Snyder rests on the low-level end of the saw, his man drops on to the saw, and Snyder flies into the air, turning a complete somersault, with his feet still on the pedals. The Hippodrome management are to be congratulated on another "find." It is an advertising device, eminently adaptable for stage purpose, and which should become exceedingly popular, which enables one, by throwing two lights alternately on a modelled surface, to obtain two distinct effects of the pictures. One of the most striking instances of this is afforded when, by a manipulation of the electric lights, the face of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is made to represent that of his chief political opponent, Mr. Balfour. In the same way a thin cat is changed into a fat one—probably an idea for a famous brand of condensed milk; while another example is given when a young and pretty girl becomes a railway porter.

What is called a Japanese pot-pourri act is furnished by the Lukushimas, a troupe of really talented performers. These people certainly seem to have mastered the possibilities of centrifugal force, as is evidenced by their skilful juggling with pans filled with water. Not less wonderful are their balancing and gymnastic feats with the aid of a pole, and the somersaulting of one of the junior members of the troupe from the upturned feet of another. The domestic life of the poultry-run is realistically portrayed by Mr. Walter Stanton, who, artistically "made up" as a giant rooster, struts about the ring in a characteristically avian manner. He is, indeed, "a quaint old bird," and with the assistance of a highly-trained specimen of the real article, succeeds in presenting a turn at once novel and mirth-provoking. In Hale and Francis we have a couple of smart hoop manipulators; and the Mezzettis are responsible for an exceedingly interesting and neatly performed comedy bar act. There is an old saying that it takes a wise man to play the fool, and Cruickshank, who dubs himself "the fool of the family," displays an unusual sense of the ludicrous. Lavater Lee is as droll as ever; and Prince Kokin continues his entertaining Japanese jugglery. His balancing tricks are remarkable for the neatness and precision with which they are accomplished.

The Chrono-Megaphone may now be considered a distinctive and popular feature of the Hippodrome programme. We are shown an animated picture of a scene from The Mikado, and the gramophone rendition of "Tit Willow" is commendably distinct, the words of the song synchronising with the movements of the actor in the picture. The same remark applies to another series, depicting a recruiting sergeant appealing to a youth, "Come, my boy, and be a soldier"; while another film, unaccompanied by vocalisation, but extremely laughable, represents an aged woman, "Granny," whose features assume a variety of expressions indicative of ever-changing mental attitudes. Tina Clementina submits an attractive shooting act; and Mlle. Von Etta distinguishes herself as an illusionist. Mr. Sam Elton is a riotously funny individual. What with rolling about the stage in all manner of postures, meeting with a multitude of accidents, rollicking with piles of china plates, and engaging in antics which one would associate with an inebriate condition, he contrives to keep the audience in an uproariously merry frame of mind and a disturbed frame of body. Boris Lensky treats the house to his scholarly violin interpretations of the works of the famous composers; and the contortionist display of Genaro and Theol help one to realise to what a marvellous degree of flexibility the human body can attain. The beautiful spectacle The Treasure Ship in Fairy Seas maintains its pleasing influence, Miss Simeta Marsden as the hero, the Misses Annette Kellermann and Gladys and Maud Finney as the Mermaids in their swimming exhibition, Tiller's Eight Snowdrops as the dancing sea nymphs, and Herr Heidenreich's flying ballet, all contributing to the success of the production, under the able supervision of Mr. Frank Parker.

PARAGON.

The Paragon programme is usually well varied and interesting; it is particularly so this week, all tastes being carefully and judiciously catered for. Those who take great delight in rollicking fun may be recommended to direct their special attention to a production by the Piccad American pantomime company, entitled Burglars of New York. In spite of the vigilant care of an old man three thieves, making their burglarious way over a wall, break into a house, and this is the prelude to a highly diverting piece of business, which keeps the audience well amused during its progress. The veteran caretaker gives the alarm, and after the burglars come three policemen, one of them being a comically fat representative of the law. When he falls on his back his attempts to recover his upright position are suggestive of the efforts of a blackbeetle similarly placed; and cause roars of laughter. But previous to the arrival of the constables, the robbers have reared a plank against one of the windows of the house, and down this are slid in quick succession various articles of furniture, which are received by a burglar stationed below for this express purpose. Then the comic chase of the thieves by the police proves most amusing, the latter always getting the worst of it in the hurried scramble through doors and windows. All the members of the company work exceedingly hard in keeping up their reputation as fun-makers, and their untiring efforts are crowned with complete success. It is only skilful acrobatic performers who could so easily achieve such laughable results from their doings, and the company thoroughly deserves the liberal applause with which they are greeted at the close. Novelty is also represented by Mlle. Clasen's "Living Art Bronzes." This unique exhibition is given by two ladies and four gentlemen who pose as bronze replicas of some of the most beautiful and interesting statuary in the world of art. Amongst the most notable are Ishmael dying of thirst in the desert, the Angelus, Eros, the God of Love, the Last Gunners, and Pro Patria. The artistic beauty and merits of this show are evident to all beholders.

Mr. Harry Lauder, who is engaged at the Paragon this week, appears to be rapidly developing his ability as a comedian pure and simple, apart from his excellent qualities as a comic singer. His latest successes warrant the assumption that he would be a valuable acquisition to the stage proper in humorous character parts should he ever care to make the experiment. In one of his new songs he comes on wearing a kilt, and gives a remarkably clever impersonation of a man suffering from extreme cold. The back cloth represents a dreary snow-clad landscape, and this gives an appropriate setting to Mr. Lauder's shivery old man. The burden of the song is that the wearer of the kilt has given up trousers because his wife was in the habit of going through his pockets every night while he was fast asleep. Another clever piece of work is Mr. Lauder's burlesque Highland soldier, who wears Wellington boots and does a funny trot round the stage. The accompanying ditty is in praise of "My Daisy," and the representative of the military hero introduces much laughable patter. Mr. Lauder concludes with his "Mary, my Highland belle" song, that much-praised lassie being represented by a young lady who dances gracefully.

The ladies known as the Eight Stars of Holland give their characteristic native songs and dances with much acceptance; and Signor and Mme. Borelli are as successful and amusing as ever in their musical and humorous "tit-bits," concluding with their realistic feline imitations. Miss Winifred Hare has a couple of pleasing new songs in "Just 'cos the bee loves honey" and "Cheer up, Mary." She sings both these novelties in her usual artistic and attractive style, and in the last-mentioned she presents a strikingly handsome appearance in a pretty blue uniform and cocked hat. On the night of our visit Mr. Billy Hobbs, coloured comedian, deputised for Mr. Pat Rafferty; and Mr. George Bendon also contributed a couple of songs. The programme includes Mr. Charles Whittle, a comedian of genuine ability; Mr. David Poole, a clever ventriloquist; Miss Daisy James, a comedienne who is always well received; and Miss Abbie Mitchell, creole singer of plantation songs. Other attractions are Herr Grais' baboons and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. Mr. Chas. Beecham's managerial duties are admirably carried out, and a word of praise is due to the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Arthur Grimmett.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

This week the bill at this house is topped by Mr. J. G. Grahame and company, in the dramatic sketch, The Yellow Fang. The sketch is founded on the crimes alleged to be committed in San Francisco opium dens by the Chinese proprietors. Mr. Grahame, as the keeper of the den, Hung Kow, is excellent, presenting an admirable portrayal of the bullying, cowardly Chinese opium dealer. His assistant, Sun-Ku, is well played by Mr. Cyril Rawdon. Mr. Charles Seguin is a good Jim Nares, Hung Kow's decoy; the drunken sportsman, who is murdered in the den, is in the safe hands of Mr. E. Beresford; Mr. G. Lane is capital as the Policeman; and the most important character is Judith Beck, a white opium slave, played by Miss Lascelles. Her performance as the half-mad opium slave is admirable. The sketch is well staged, and the incidental music by Harold Austin is appropriate.

Mr. Tom Costello has an exceedingly humorous song on the suffragette subject, and is assisted in his patter by two cleverly made-up "would-be voters." Another star comedian is Mr. Phil Ray, the peculiar patterer, and the way he clips his words appeals greatly to the audience. Miss Ethel Dove is a pretty and clever comedienne. A novel sketch is introduced by Lambert and Hans, entitled Visiting Day. Mr. Herbert La Martine sings "I'm a Yankee Doodle boy," performs some clever bâton manipulations, and dances well. Kenneth and Kant are clever vaudeville artists; Kenneth does some excellent "knockabout" business and plays a violin skilfully, whilst Kant is a pretty and neat dancer.

Miss Elsie Roby, in The Slavey's At Home, introduces a novel method of playing the piano with the aid of a dusting-brush. Miss Roby also gives a sand dance, playing the piano at the same time. The Valescoe's Circus consists of a remarkably clever pony, two dogs, and a monkey. All the animals have been well trained, and do their tricks very smartly. Mr. Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, has a humorous song, with some very funny patter, and is also a good concertina player. His imitations of a church organ and the bagpipes are excellent. Mr. Hal Forde's song, "Don't you worry if you lose your girl" is a tuneful ditty, and his other song, "Buy my book," is exceedingly funny. The juggling with Indian clubs by Hanvarr and Anna Lee is clever. Hanvarr juggles with a table and two chairs, and also with a hat, several tennis balls and bat. Miss Maude Prenton has a chic manner and sings well "She is such a classy girl"; and Mr. George Leonard sings "Sailing in my balloon," the chorus of which is quickly taken up by the gallery. The programme is completed by some interesting animated pictures by the Edisonograph.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

An excellent and varied programme is provided this week for the patrons of this popular temple of amusement, which is so ably presided over by the courteous resident-manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Louis La Rondelle, render the overture to Don Juan (by Mozart) in the brilliant style which makes the band here one of the most enjoyable items of the evening's programme. The most interesting turn this week to the majority of the audience is that of Lockhart's Elephants. These well-trained quadrupeds excite wonder and admiration by their clever performances, and by the intelligence and docility with which they respond to every word of Captain Taylor, who introduces them. They pose, dance, play musical instruments, and do many other clever tricks, which were greeted with loud and enthusiastic applause. Another novel and interesting contribution is that of Gaumont's Chronophone, by which we not only see the animated pictures of popular artists, but actually hear their voices in some of their most attractive songs, notably Mr. Frank Rowe and Miss Margaret Carter, who are heard in the "Miserere," from Il Trovatore, and three members of Mr. George Edwardes's company are seen and heard in "This little girl and that." Messrs. Johnson and Bert are well received in a novel comedy act, entitled A Queer Customer. Mr. Clarence C. Corri presents a musical farcical comedietta, in one scene, entitled Office Hours, which is interpreted by an exceptionally clever all-round company, including Messrs. Arthur White, Johnnie Schofield, jun., George Danvers, jun., George Delaforce, Harry Monkhouse, Miss Violet Hicks, also Miss Florence Leigard and Mr. Frank A. Wood, both late of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, who use their pleasing, well-trained voices with much effect. The chorus is attractive and tuneful, and the Coralie Troupe of dancers are a pleasing feature of the entertainment, which brims over with knockabout fun and humorous situations. Mr. Charles Coverdale, who is billed as "writer, composer, and singer of his own songs," possesses a quaintly funny style that makes him very popular. Mr. Willie Gardener wins admiration for his wonderful exhibition of skill as a skate-dancer. Mr. J. W. Rickaby sings a couple of amusing songs entirely to the taste of his audience. Miss Ruby Dahl wins well-deserved applause for her latest novelty, entitled Merry Mannikins. The Meymotts (Harry and Ada) appear with considerable success in a smartly-written and well-acted trifle, called Semi-Detached, which deals with the tenants of two adjoining flats, who, after many quarrels, ultimately agree to marry and make the two flats into one.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Stratfordians are being deeply mystified this week by the wonderful feats of Mr. Horace Goldin. He might rightly be described as the prince of prestidigitators, so bewildering and so dexterous is his performance, trick succeeding trick with such rapidity that the audience are kept in one gasp of astonishment. Perhaps the most sensational—or theatrical—effect is produced when Goldin places a young lady inside a cannon, which is fired in the direction of the roof, above the audience, and lo, a large trunk is hauled therefrom to the stage, and from an inner trunk there steps the damsel. There is no mistaking it is the same lady, and rounds of applause greet the feat. The multitudinous things which Goldin conjures from apparently nowhere, include even ducks and rabbits; while a fully-furnished bedchamber, with its sleeping occupant, is materialised from within four empty curtains, and a lady is raised into space with absolutely no visible means of support, the performer walking to another part of the stage. Hall and Earle provide abundance of amusement during their acrobatic turn, the combination being very welcome, and the expert jumping of one of the duo into a series of tubs arouses plenty of applause. Ernest Torrance sings in excellent style "Somewhere," and the song is illustrated with a fine selection of pictures thrown on to a screen. Eily Adair wins favour with her singing and clever step-dancing; and Rex King, described as "The One-Man Programme," contributes a versatile entertainment which is much enjoyed. The McConnel Trio, in the musical medley sketch, Mrs. Skinner's Lodgers, supply some merry moments. Mrs. Skinner's two gentlemen boarders are in arrears with their rent, but she would be willing to forego this if either would become "her second." Arriving home late one night penniless, after a day at the races, they decide that their only chance is for one of them to marry Mrs. Skinner, and the amusing complications which ensue are provocative of endless laughter, added to which the trio are vocalists of no mean order.

That well-known sketch, The Little Stowaway, in two tableaux, treats of a very popular theme. The title-rôle is well impersonated by Miss Eva Lumley, and able assistance is rendered by Mr. John K. Walton, Mr. H. S. Shaw, Mr. Hugh Metcalfe, and Mr. Lawrence Stevenson. The American Comedy Four present a strikingly grotesque appearance, and the mixture of drollery and high-class vocalism is in high favour. Harry Bedford is very successful in "A little bit of sugar on the top," and afterwards appears in a sort of tramp's soliloquy, "There's no Bow Bells ever ringing out for me," which meets with ready approval. The Bioscope pictures are always in favour, and this week's series, including "The Little Blind Girl," are received with acclamation. Mr. T. S. Mayne is deservedly popular in his managerial capacity, and he has an assiduous lieutenant in Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.

"JUST IN TIME."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. H. W. Scott's communication in last week's issue of your esteemed paper concerning my sketch, Just in Time, produced at the Empress Theatre of Varieties, Brixton, I must at once disclaim any knowledge of such title having been used, and can only suggest that "Two great minds," &c. I have also been informed since seeing your correspondent's letter that many years ago the late Mr. John S. Clarke produced a piece at the Avenue Theatre bearing the same title, which, I believe, ran only three nights, so that I am afraid both Mr. Scott and myself are not "Just in time."—Yours faithfully,

ERIC ALBURY.

5, Portsdown-road, W. March 4.

GITTINS'S condensed version of Maritana, in two scenes, has topped the bill during the past three weeks at Collins's, the Hippodrome, Crouch End, and the London, Shoreditch, where the people's favourite numbers, "Scenes that are brightest," "Sainted mother," and "In happy moments," have been encored at each performance. Mr. Gittins, like Mr. John Lawson, with whom he was associated for so many years, takes a special pride in dressing his operas.

"THE ERA"

SHILLING FUND

FOR THE

MUSIC HALL HOME

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

Subscribed to date, 1567½ shillings.

NOVELTIES AT ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant have this week introduced some new and attractive items into their programme at St. George's Hall. Quite in keeping with the traditions of the "Home of Mystery" is the performance given by Joad Heteb, an Egyptian necromancer, who invents his own tricks, and preserves complete silence during the time he has possession of the stage. He begins by thrusting into his mouth strips of flaming paper, which strange meal he apparently enjoys. Four pieces of cardboard have printed on them the figures 1, 2, 3, and 4. These are mixed together, and placed one beneath the other on a stand. Then the conjurer, removing a cover from a duplicate set of figures, they are found to be in precisely the same order as the figures arranged on the other stand. With his thumbs tied securely together he also performs astonishing tricks with small hoops, and with a brightly-coloured sushade, which, after being reduced to a dilapidated condition, is restored to its original state in a most mysterious manner. There can be no doubt that Joad Heteb is a remarkably clever wizard. In the performance of his tricks he has the assistance of a graceful young lady. A little later the audience watch with mingled feelings of wonderment and admiration the "experiments in sleight-of-hand" introduced by Mr. Karl Germain, an American magician with a pleasant manner. It would be tedious to describe in detail how this expert conjurer does extraordinary things in the way of quick changes with coloured silk handkerchiefs. He also has his own peculiar and altogether original method of making coffee, cups of which, hot and steaming, are handed to lady members of the audience. Then a youth is induced to go on the stage, a watch is borrowed from a lady, and presently a real live rabbit is found concealed beneath the lad's jacket, with the watch attached to a ribbon fastened round the animal's neck. There are also inexplicable tricks which involve the marvellous changing of a vase filled with confetti into a pigeon, which mysteriously disappears. A rose tree grows in a few minutes, and the flowers distributed amongst the audience; and Mr. Germain brings his excellent entertainment to a conclusion by the instantaneous production of the flags of all nations, with the Union Jack conspicuously in the front. With regard to the rest of the programme, Mr. Harry May Hemsley is still affording delight with his exceedingly clever, humorous drawings, and his realistic imitations of children of various ages. Mr. J. N. Maskelyne introduces his new and mysterious effect, entitled The New Page, explaining that the gentleman who plays that part does not in the least mind being made the subject of Mr. Maskelyne's experiment, but rather enjoys it. The perplexing playlet, entitled The Enchanted Hive, is well worth seeing; and Mr. Barclay Gammon is successful with his humorous musical interlude, entitled Snippets. Mention should also be made of the selections played by the orchestra under the able direction of Mr. F. Cramer. These musical performances agreeably fill up the brief intervals in an exceptionally attractive and interesting programme.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

VARIETIES AT KING'S LYNN.

Last Monday saw the inception of an interesting innovation at the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, when a variety programme was presented for the first time in the history of the house. King's Lynn Theatre has from time to time welcomed many famous actors and actresses upon its boards, including Charles Kemble, both the Keans, Eliza Brunton and Fanny Kemble, Gustavus V. Brooke and Robson, besides a host of others. Since the present lessees—Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.—took it over, the theatre has been renovated and the seating accommodation renewed, so that it now occupies a position equal with the better provincial theatres. The promise made by Mr. Bannister Howard in 1904 to give to Lynn performances of real merit has been amply fulfilled, and now that the lessees have recently been granted an open licence they have decided to vary their attractions by presenting good music-hall programmes. Judging by the patronage accorded to the theatre this week the new form of entertainment is likely to prove a matter of mutual satisfaction to the lessees of the theatre and its patrons. It is intended to give two performances nightly at seven and nine o'clock for three nights a week, booking the company for the remainder of the week with Bury St. Edmunds, where Mr. Eadie Montefiore is also the lucky possessor of an open licence.

This week's programme includes many excellent turns. Blanche and Diacoff, in their amazing cycle whizz, give an exhibition of much skill and daring; Arthur Melrose proves himself master of the art of whistling; the Dunvilles are responsible for a clever musical comedy act; and Fred Charles is popular as the laughing comedian. Jury's Imperial Pictures include the latest of the Hook of Holland disaster; and the Wy's Comic Pantomime company are funny in the extreme.

Mr. Howard, in a few explanatory remarks on Monday night, said he thought the new form of entertainment he was introducing would prove popular in King's Lynn. He would ensure a good and new programme each week, and for the autumn had again an excellent list of bookings in prospect.

The changes necessary in the theatre and the stage-management have been capably carried out by Herr B. Pareezer, the business-manager.

"An Electrified Film" is a fitting sobriquet for L. Gaumont and Co.'s new picture, "The wonderful Electric Belt," for it is, as the proprietors claim it to be, "a continuous current of fun (not alternating)." Everyone is familiar with those striking advertisements setting forth the marvellous invigorating properties of electricity when applied to the vertebral column through the medium of a belt placed in such a manner that it immediately has a resurrecting effect on the nervous system. The plot of the picture centres round one of these advertisements. A lazy and lacksdaisical fellow is, unknown to himself, fitted with one of these "belts," and the potential force at once makes itself evident in such a way that he attracts everything with which he comes into contact. An enterprising tramp appropriates the coat, and at once a series of galvanic shocks set in, and the "passing current" gets too great for the conductor, and results in a disastrous overflow of energy. "The Wonderful Electric Belt" has proved itself a "magnet" of no mean power at several houses of note where it is a great "attractor."

VARIETY IN AMERICA.

Vaudeville is making great strides in America. The popularity of the variety houses there has never been comparable with the popularity of the music halls of London and the provinces, but new vaudeville houses are being opened, new "combines" are being formed, and almost every day the newspapers announce the outbreak of a new vaudeville "war" between the various cliques of rival managers, all of which denotes extraordinary activity in this field of amusement, and would seem to indicate that vaudeville is steadily advancing in the good graces of the American public. A short while ago Mr. B. F. Keith and Mr. F. F. Proctor were in competition with each other. Mr. Keith had only one theatre in New York while Mr. Proctor had four; but Mr. Keith's importance in the vaudeville field was by no means in the same ratio. He was a "magnate," and the time came when Mr. Proctor, despite his four houses, evidently thought that a partnership or alliance with Mr. Keith would conduce to their mutual advantage. And so it came to pass that the Fifth-avenue Theatre and the vaudeville theatres situated in Twenty-third, Fifty-eighth, and One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth streets were dubbed "Keith-Proctor houses." Mr. Tony Pastor, who has a faithful following of his own, has always pursued the even tenor of his way and let "wars" and "combines" severely alone. Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, who has lately blossomed out as an operatic entrepreneur, has always been quite a personage in the vaudeville world, but he was not in the "Trust." He was an "Independent," and always asserted that he intended to be one till the end of his days. His house, the Victoria, has grown in popularity during the last year or two. Mr. Hammerstein imported a large number of European "acts," and, being a mighty factor in vaudeville, was a thorn in the flesh of the new "combine." Then there was Mr. Percy G. Williams, who brought over such shining lights as Chevalier, Vesta Tilley, and Vesta Victoria, to say nothing of a score of others of lesser note. A few years ago Mr. Williams was known in New York as the proprietor of the Orpheum, in Brooklyn, which borough is practically as far away as Chicago as far as the theatregoers of New York proper are concerned. Mr. Williams, when he invaded New York, soon made things "hum." His two theatres, the Colonial and Alhambra, have proved a boon to amusement-seekers living "uptown," being noted for the excellence of their programmes and being handsomely and comfortably appointed. Mr. Williams, like Mr. Hammerstein, was an "Independent"; in fact, there was a sort of working agreement between these two managers whereby they stood side by side with their backs to the wall and dared their enemy, the voracious "Vaudeville Trust," to "come on." But the trust idea is rampant in America, and whether the commodity be lamp-oil, meat, tobacco, or vaudeville the dealer doing business "on his own" usually finds pretty soon that the battle is to the strong. Recently the inevitable happened. The "combine" took Messrs. Williams and Hammerstein into the fold, and a new company was formed, to be known as the United Booking Offices of America. The active management of the company is to be vested in Mr. Edward F. Albee, general-manager, and Mr. Percy G. Williams, as business-manager. Mr. B. F. Keith is president of the company, Mr. F. F. Proctor vice-president, and Mr. A. Paul Keith secretary and treasurer. The board of directors will include, in addition to the gentlemen already mentioned, Messrs Victor G. Williams, John J. Maloney, and William Hammerstein. The new agreement makes no change in the management of any of the theatres concerned; they are merely joined for booking purposes and for the convenience of the various people interested. There will be no "pool" or mutual sharing of profits and losses, but each manager will take care of his own interests as heretofore, except that his bookings will be done from the general offices.

Another important factor in vaudeville was left out in the cold by the new arrangement. Mr. William Morris, who for many seasons has booked the principal attractions for the theatres of Mr. Hammerstein and Mr. Williams, is the leading vaudeville agent in the United States. He has always been "Independent," and it is said that he refused the offer of an enormous salary to run the new booking concern. He was not to be out in the cold very long. It soon developed that he was to be the nucleus of a rival "combine" of which the principals are those active and militant members of the big theatrical syndicate, Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, against whom and their partners an indictment has just been found alleging conspiracy and restraint of trade. The scene of the operations of the rival camp is to be the New York Theatre, which is to be remodelled and converted into "the handsomest vaudeville house in the world." Mr. Erlanger is quoted in the newspapers as saying that he means to provide entirely new material for the entertainment of the public, and that he knows where it can be obtained. He promises that his bills will open the eyes of those who have been applauding vaudeville shows here and elsewhere during the last ten years. Many new "acts" are to be imported from Europe, where a number of agents will be constantly on the watch for novelties. It is officially announced that there will be no reduction of the present salaries of performers, but there is no doubt that a number of agents will have to take to some other line of business, as the majority of the performers will book direct.

Mr. B. F. Keith, the "father of continuous vaudeville," believes that the new arrangement will benefit the performers, and work for the best interests of the public.

"As the situation exists to-day," he says, "a vaudeville performer of a meritorious character can have employment fifty-two weeks in the year; he can be sure of his pay; he can know in advance just what his treatment is to be with respect to the special provisions for his comfort. Instead of booking ten weeks here, a dozen weeks there, and half a dozen somewhere else, with probably weeks intervening between his engagements, we can give him a contract for fifty-two weeks, or even longer if we agree on the terms, and thus end all the worry of the business for the performer.

"What is even more important—certainly from the point of view of the public, who want varied attractions—is the fact that we are now in a position, owing to the extensive circuit formed, to place the very best vaudeville performers in such a way that they will not have to appear in the same house twice in the same year, and may even spend a year and a half in other theatres before playing a return engagement.

"This is made possible by the fact that in our Eastern booking office we provide shows for about sixty theatres, and when the Western circuit is included the theatres under the control of the combination extend from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore.; literally, I mean, stretch across the continent.

"To mention Percy G. Williams, F. F. Proctor, and Oscar Hammerstein, of this city; S. Z. Poli, with his circuit of theatres in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, Hartford, Springfield, and Worcester; Plympton B. Close, of Washington; James Kernan, of Baltimore; Michael Shea, of Buffalo; Harry Davis, of Pittsburg; the Bennett Theatrical Company, of Canada; James E. Moore, of Portland; James Moore, of Detroit; John Brugerman, of Paterson and Hoboken; Hyde and Behman, of Brooklyn; George E. Ketchum, of Toledo; Hurtig and Seamon, and the managers in Columbus, Cleveland, and Trenton, is to name only a few of the men who have pooled their interests so far as the booking is concerned.

"To illustrate the magnitude of the undertaking, the booking figures for next week aggregate $175,000 in our office. Before the combination was effected the figures were quite as large, of course, but there was a knocking together of heads which could not go on for ever without somebody getting his head broken.

"Something had to be done to place the vaudeville business on the same sort of footing as any well-conducted business."

FUNERAL OF MR. CHARLES BERTRAM.

The sun glittered on the bewilderingly multitudinous tombstones of the Necropolis at Norwood on Tuesday afternoon last as the remains of Charles Bertram were borne to their last resting-place. A considerable number of people assembled in the cemetery to pay a final tribute of respect to one who in his life had contributed so largely to the enjoyment of others.

The funeral cortège left the residence of the deceased in Christ Church-road, Streatham, shortly after half-past twelve, arriving at the cemetery about one o'clock. In the first carriage there were Mr. James Bassett (the only son), Mr. William Bassett (brother), and Mr. Charles Bassett (cousin). The second was occupied by Mr. Walter Palmer and Mr. Chas. J. Vollhardt (brothers-in-law), and Dr. Ross Sinclair, one of the medical attendants to the family; while in the third there were the Rev. Southey Nicholl, Mr. H. C. Turner, and Mr. George Ashton. Carriages which followed contained Mr. Under-Sheriff J. D. Langdon, Mr. William Whiteley, and Mr. Harry Preston.

The ceremony, both in the church and at the graveside, was conducted by the Rev. Southey Nicholl, Vicar of Christ Church, Streatham, and there were many affecting scenes among the bystanders as the coffin was being lowered. The coffin, which was of plain polished oak, bore the inscription:—

JAMES BASSETT
(Charles Bertram),
Died Feb. 28, 1907,
Aged 53 Years.

The grave, it may be mentioned, is next to that of Angela Godfrey, the wife of Mr. Herbert Godfrey, the well-known musician and bandmaster. That lady was laid to rest only a few months ago, and Mr. Godfrey, who was present at Mr. Bertram's obsequies, little dreamt that he would be so soon called to the same plot of ground to do honour to the memory of an old friend. And the graves of Mr. Bertram and Mrs. Godfrey are only divided by a strip of pathway from that of Sir August Manns, who was interred on Wednesday afternoon.

Among those who assembled in the cemetery were Mr. Paul Cinquevalli, Mr. Arthur Weston, Mr. Charles Garratt, Mr. Robert Peart, Mr. James Chilcott, Dr. Byrd-Page, Mr. Herbert Godfrey, Mr. Edward H. Peacock, Mr. George Robins, Mr. Arthur Helmore, Mr. Barclay Gammon, Mr. J. W. Ivimey, Mr. Bellingham, Mr. Burgess Brown, Mr. Lorne Wallett, Mr. E. W. Linging, Mr. E. T. Mills, Mr. Charles Capper, Mr. F. Lawson, Mr. Charley Moore, Mr. Sydney Gandy, and Mr. James Chilcott.

The floral tributes were as beautiful as they were numerous. That from the widow consisted of a magnificent harp, 4ft. high, composed of lilies of the valley and white roses, surmounted by a bunch of pink roses, tied with white ribbon, with gold strings, one being broken. A pathetic message said:—"In sweet and loving memory of my dearly-loved husband, from his heart-broken wife, March 5, 1907." A pretty wreath of white lilac, hyacinths, and lilies of the valley was addressed, "To our darling dad, from his sorrowing children." The Lyric Lodge of Freemasons sent a lovely wreath, bound with heliotrope ribbon, of arum lilies, lilies of the valley, hyacinths, blue violets, camelias and mimosa; while a fine anchor came from "The Boys at Ashton's." "A Memento from the Savage Club" consisted of white carnations, tulips, white azaleas, and lilies of the valley; and accompanying "A message of deepest sympathy, from the members of the Bons Frères Club," was a large wreath of laurel, orchids, arum lilies, and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Kennerley Rumford forwarded a handsome wreath of arum lilies, lilies of the valley, white lilac, and white roses. Lilies of the valley, the favourite flowers of the deceased, formed part of nearly every floral token. Other wreaths were sent by Mr. W. S. Penley, Mr. J. Morrison McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peacock, Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Langton, Mr. J. N. Maskelyne, Mrs. F. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Limes, Mrs. Peart and family, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan, "Westminster Pals," Staff Hay's Agency, "The Magic Circle," Concert Artists' Benevolent Association, Mrs. Corrie Jackson and sons, Mr. Charles Garratt, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lyell, Gillett Family, Mr. Charles Capper, Dr. and Mrs. Ross Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cinquevalli, Mr. Malcolm R. Aird, Miss Van Wart, Mr. Charles Urban, Dr. Byrd-Page, Mr. Charles and Miss Sis Bassett, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Turner, Miss Fisher and Captain Blanch, "Sam and Gerty," Mr. Tom Field, "Nonnie and Dave," Mr. George Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. H. Goodwin Bailey, Mr. Neville Maskelyne, Mr. and Mrs. Stratford Jolly, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whiteley, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Gandy, Miss Whiteley, Mr. Wm. Whiteley, Mr. and Mrs. James de Lara Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Potter, Miss Lockyer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Helmore, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Norman and sons.

The funeral arrangements were undertaken by Messrs. Crabb and Son, of 100, Brixton-hill, S.W.

"FRED LOCKE" FUND.

The recent highly-successful benefit matinée given by Mr. Rich. Waldon at the Royal Princess's, Glasgow, has been the means of giving a decided impetus to the subscriptions on behalf of this deserving case. Friends and sympathisers in all parts of the country have been sending donations, and the following are gratefully acknowledged by the hon. treasurer, Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow:—

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE fairs ahead for next week are:—Stamford, on the Great Western, North-Western, and Midland Railways; Stockport, on the London and North-Western, Midland, Cheshire lines, Great Western, Great Central, and Great Northern; Wadebridge, on the Great Western and South-Western; and Alston (Cumb.), on the North-Eastern. Penmorfa (Wales), on the Cambrian Railway; Haddington (Scotland), on the North British Railway.

THE principal cattle markets and horse fairs for the month of March are:—Market Rasen, on the 12th; Knaresboro', Morpeth, and Drogheda, on the 13th; Horncastle, on the 14th; Preston and Newark, on the 15th; Alston (Cumb.), Hertford, Ballybay, on the 16th; Oakham, Grantham, Athlone, Northampton, Malton, on the 18th; Congleton and East Ilsley, on the 20th; Chester, on the 21st; Caistor (Lincs.), on the 22nd; Pontefract, Leicester, and Retford, on the 23rd; Clitheroe, Rugby, Stockport, and Morpeth, on the 25th; Durham, on the 26th; Preston and Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the 27th; Nottingham, Horncastle, Clones, and Norwich on the 28th; and Grantham, on the 30th.

OUR Welsh correspondent supplies us with the following interesting items of news:—Alexander's circus visited Brecon; Wadbroke's cinématograph is at Aberavon; Dooner's cinématograph theatre is at Ystalyfera; E. Danter, with roundabout and varieties, is at Maesteg; John Studt is open at Cardiff; J. T. Danter is at Leith with ostriches, shooting gallery, and varieties; and with him is Thomas Danter, with fair-ground novelties. J. North, jun., is at Maesteg with his big boats and high fliers.

ALF. BALL, with his electric bioscope and theatre of varieties, continues his successful season at West Ealing. W. Biddall, with electric exhibition, is having an excellent season at Acton Green.

THROUGHOUT the whole of showland we are quite certain that Mr. and Mrs. P. Collins and their son, Mr. Patrick Ross Collins, will be the recipients of the most hearty and sincere congratulations this week, on the occasion of the coming of age of Mr. Patrick Ross Collins. This interesting event took place on March 7. We join our warmest congratulations with the whole of the show world community; in the first place to the mother and father, and in the second place to the subject of the auspicious occasion. We gladly publish the following letter:—

To the Rev. T. Horne, "The Era," London.

REV. SIR,—An interesting meeting was held by the employees of Mr. and Mrs. P. Collins, at Oswestry, on Sunday last, to decide some form of a testimonial to be presented to Mr. Patrick Ross Collins, on the occasion of his gaining his majority on March 7, 1907. Mr. John Tinney presided, and Mr. George Bailey was appointed secretary, with the following gentlemen as committee:—Messrs. John Gordon, Samuel Freeman, H. C. Humphries, "Little Titch," F. Sherwood, and W. Kelly. It was proposed by Mr. J. Gordon, and seconded by "Little Titch," and unanimously decided, that the testimonial should take the form of an illuminated address, to be presented to him on Thursday. The committee were given full powers to procure the best testimonial possible, as the funds subscribed by the employees present at the meeting exceeded all expectations.—Yours truly,

GEORGE BAILEY, Hon. Sec.

WITH regard to the failure of the Brentford District Council to carry through their scheme for the abolition of the markets and fairs, a great deal of ill-tempered disappointment is being expressed by the defeated abolitionists, and all manner of suggestions made with a view to re-open the question. One suggestion is that a poll be taken, in order, it is said, that a better expression of opinion on the part of the whole community may be obtained. We do not think that showmen who are interested in retaining Brentford fairs have the least cause to fear a straight vote of the people of Brentford, but it must not be forgotten that two meetings legally called have been already held, and that at the last of these meetings a ratepayer very pertinently asked the chairman, "If this meeting was a failure, how many more the District Council intended to call?" The chairman's answer was clear and decided. "None at all. This will be taken as final." We do not see how a poll can be honestly demanded after that official declaration from the chair.

WE regret to announce the sudden death of Mr. George Brewer, a well-known West of England showman. Mr. Brewer was in charge of his fair-ground novelties, and located in the district of St. Thomas, Exeter, when he had a sudden seizure of the heart, and, before medical aid could arrive, death took place. Mr. Brewer was forty-nine years of age, and highly esteemed amongst the showmen of the West of England. His specialities were roundabouts, shooting galleries, and variety stalls. He made Exeter his headquarters, and always wintered there. We tender to the bereaved family our sincerest sympathy.

WE are not at all certain whether the American notion of Amusement Parks is likely to be a success in the Mother Land. We are told that in America there are over four hundred such parks, and that only one has turned out a failure. We have reason to believe that the Tramway Company at Wakefield intend opening an Amusement Park at the end of one of their tram routes, and to combine the business of an Amusement Park with that of electric tram traction. We also hear of a big scheme for turning the Botanical Gardens, Manchester, into an Amusement Park. To be a success in a district like Manchester, it must be a big scheme.

WE understand that Mr. Charles Heathcote, of Manchester, is to be the architect of the scheme, and that the side shows and the more permanent amusements are to be under the direction of the famous American showman, John Calvin Brown. The scheme is an ambitious one, and the capital that the company is asking for (rumour says between fifty and sixty thousand pounds), is not too much to undertake the transformation of so vast an area as the Manchester Botanical Gardens. Amongst other things, it is proposed to concert the existing sunken circular flower garden into a lagoon, to be connected with a series of small lakes and winding waterways, and taking in the existing ornamental lake. It is proposed to erect a tower 250ft. high in the centre of the Gardens, the lower portion of the tower to serve as refreshment rooms, and the first floor to be utilised as a bandstand.

IN fine summer weather refreshments will be served in the open air, on the greensward around the tower. At night the tower will be illuminated, and, indeed, the whole of the gardens and promenades, with electric lights. A feature of the promenade will of course be the side shows. There will be a ball-room and a skating-rink. Other attractions contemplated are a Japanese tea garden, a Ferris wheel, Chinese helter-skelter, a captive balloon, a novel switchback, constructed in the form of a figure eight, and an American toboggan, known as "Bumps." There are to be boating on the lakes, scenes of Venice, caves, and a hall of mirrors. A large new building is to be erected for the purpose of holding various exhibitions. If the scheme is carried through, arrangements will be made for the continuance of the various horticultural shows of the Royal Botanical and Horticultural Society, as heretofore.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

President, Lord George Sanger.

Hon. Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne.
Hon. Treasurers: W. M. Mitchell, Esq., Manchester Centre; F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., London Centre.
Hon. Secretary, T. Hurst, Esq.
Office of the Guild: The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London, W.C.

OBJECTS OF THE GUILD.

1. To conserve the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers and entertainers, whether menaced by faddist legislation or by public bodies.

2. To vindicate the character and the avocation in life of the showman whenever unjustly maligned or attacked.

3. To defend the fairs and holidays of the people whenever and wherever threatened, and to encourage all legitimate efforts for uplifting and betterment of the entertainments of the people.

Further subscriptions, whether from members, traders, or friends, may be sent to either of the hon. treasurers, the hon. secretary, or to the Guild secretary, The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

OSWESTRY March Fair was held in two fields, and was attended by P. Collins's motor-cars, wheeley-whirley, slipping-the-slip, steam yachts, and the great show, which was drawing crowded houses by aid of the chronophone. Stalls by Hall, Beaumont, Fossett, and Turner; juvenile horses by Chaplin; Winchester ranges by Turner, Hall, Fossett, and Wright—all did record business in the recreation grounds. In the White Lion Croft, C. Farrell's motors, racing cockerels, jumping horses, and the great Coliseum, whose pictures were the latest, did capital business; as also did C. Farrell's Winchester repeating ranges, and throwing stalls by Curry, Shaw, Bennett, and others.

OWING to the large increase in orders for his Animatograph films, machines, and accessories, Mr. Robert W. Paul has found it imperative to enlarge his works at Muswell Hill, and has already placed a contract for the work, which is to be proceeded with forthwith. Customers may, therefore, be sure that, despite the big increase in the demand for Mr. Paul's pictures, no delay will occur in the execution of orders.

MR. GEORGE BREWER, a Bath showman, whose caravans are now at Exeter, had a seizure on Tuesday evening. A doctor was at once sent for, but on his arrival Mr. Brewer was found to be dead. The deceased, who was only about fifty years of age, had a sudden attack of illness a short time ago while on a visit to Truro.

FIVE wolves were born in Purchase's Menagerie, at Lavender-hill, S.W., last Wednesday. Mother and cubs are doing well.

FOSSETT'S circus visited Merthyr Tydfil last Saturday, and attracted large audiences at both afternoon and evening shows.

AT the Empress, Hartlepool, Schiavonis, acrobats, give a marvellous performance; Witty Walton is as fresh and funny as ever. The Tennessee Guards' military manœuvres are well executed. An effective performance is given by Montaldo's cockatoos. The company includes Rose Sylvester, Dan Paulton, and Alice Blandford.

AT the Palace, West Hartlepool, Casey's Circus is a very amusing show. Johnny Holland's company and Stewart and Morgan take well; Andy Burn is a capital dancer; and the Sisters West, Vowles and Bryde, and Minnie Fenton are appreciated.

THAT juvenile prodigy, Little Cliff, is now busily engaged in rehearsing, for immediate London production, one of the quaintest coon songs Messrs. R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes have yet been responsible for. This ditty, which bears the title "The coon's conscience," tells of the theft of a chicken by a "nig," who, after killing it and nursing his guilt and the dead chicken for a whole fortnight, feels the pangs of conscience too much for him, and returns the bird to its lawful owner, who is, however, somewhat reluctant, for sufficiently obvious reasons, to accept the dubiously-fresh conscience-offering. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. are publishing this number.

STORIES OF THE ROAD.

BY THE REV. T. HORNE.

BILLY MANDERS' SERMON.

(Copyright.)

You remember the great Billy Manders,
The king of the fair and the feast,
The rival and peer of the Wombwells,
With his fifty horse-load of wild beast.

Then, hear ye, a tale of the Manders,
Of Billy, of Rosie, his wife,
That well may answer some slanders
Brought against shows and show life.

I tell you this story to prove you
That life, as it's lived in a van,
Has its power and its pathos to move you,
As only true life stories can.

They were working the West Coast of Ireland,
And had taken the Paddies by storm,
Who crowded from bogland and mireland
To see great Maccomo perform.

One night, when workworn and tired,
Sweet sleep from Manders had fled;
He heard the sound of the lock being wired,
And he gripped his pistol o'er head.

The burglar a moment stood by the fire,
The curtains hid Manders from view;
Though masked, the man's whole attire
Told Bill of a tradesman he knew.

The intruder was no common thief,
But a dealer, he had twice seen that day,
With a face he had noticed deep lined with grief,
As he stood at his door o'er the way.

The midnight robber gazed quickly around,
Eagerly seeking the likeliest place
Where the cash-box could be found,
When his eye caught Manders' stern face.

Pointing to the door, Bill said, "Scoundrel, go!"
In a whisper that chilled the man's heart,
The burglar retreated with footsteps slow,
Then Rosie woke up with a start.

"What is it? Who is it?" cried she—
Billy told her the tale, and his guess
Who the thief might turn out to be,
How he knew him at once by his dress.

They talked it out, and relented
Of their first mind to punish the thief;
"Poor chap!" said Bill, "he seems quite demented,
Or like someone quite broken by grief."

Next day a sad story came to the show
Of a tradesman found shot in his bed;
It was suicide, through misfortune and woe,
"'Tis our visitor," was all Billy said.

He went to the shop and saw the dead man,
Who was still in the same tell-tale dress;
At once he determined to find out a plan
To help in the widow's distress.

A weeping mother and sweet children three
Touched dear old Bill to the heart;
So he gave her ten pounds—and taught you and me
How we might play "life's better part."

To give good for evil is a hard thing to learn,
Though a lesson quite easy to teach;
So when my heart's bitter, in quick thought I turn
To the sermon Bill Manders did preach.

I've told you this story to prove you
That life, as it's lived in a van,
Hath its power and its pathos to move you
As only true life's stories can.

AT the invitation of Hepworth M.F.G., Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co.'s employees paid a visit on Saturday to Walton-on-Thames to play a friendly game of football, with Mr. Houghes of the New Norwoof Film Co., as referee. The weather was ideal, and there was not a single hitch to mar the show. Kemplen, Gaumont's centre-forward, kicked off at 4 o'clock, and a game, characterised right through by vigour and vim, was commenced. At half-time the score stood, Hepworth 1, Gaumont 0, Fisher (inside-right) having got a fine goal for Hepworths. In the second half it was soon evident that Gaumont's were determined to equalise points if nothing more. Long kicking appeared to be the order of the day, the backs being in excellent form. Sumpter, Gaumont's inside-left, soon scored a goal at short range, and Primer immediately after scored a very awkward goal for the same side. Saunders, Hepworth's inside-right, soon followed suit, and when the whistle went the score stood 2 all. The teams afterwards adjourned to the Swan Hotel for tea, after which harmony was indulged in. Mr. Parfrey, secretary to Messrs. Hepworth, speaking for the hosts of the evening, expressed the pleasure it gave them to entertain their visitors; and Mr. T. A. Welsh, assistant-manager to Messrs. Gaumont, made an appropriate reply. Mr. Houghes, chairman, made some humorous remarks on some aspects of the game, and a very pleasant evening terminated with "Auld lang syne."

MR. WILLIAM HENRY COMBES, of Crediton-road, West Hampstead, who died on Jan. 13, left estate of the gross value of £60,484, with net personalty £60,203. The deceased gentleman was the proprietor of the Entr'acte until 1904, when that paper was sold. That he was a man of the widest sympathies and the kindliest nature is proved by the following bequests:—£1,000 to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, £1,000 to Dr. Barnardo's Homes, £1,000 to the Charity Organisation Society, £1,000 to the Hospital for Incurables at Putney, £1,000 to St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, £1,000 to the Salisbury Infirmary, £1,000 for the benefit of the poor of the parish of Tilsbury, Wilts, £500 to the Forget-Me-Not Society, £250 to the Sisters of Nazareth, Hammersmith, £250 to King Edward's Hospital Fund, £250 to the London Hospital, £250 to the London Fever Hospital, £250 to the West London Hospital, £250 to the British Home for Incurables at Streatham, £250 to the Mount Vernon Hospital for Consumption, Hampstead, £250 for the benefit of the poor attending the Congregational Chapel at Tisbury, £200 to St. Luke's Home for the Dying Poor, £200 to Dr. Campbell's School for the Blind, Norwood, £200 to the Sussex County Hospital, £300 for repairing the fabric of the parish church at Tisbury, £200 for the purpose of establishing a club-room at Tisbury, and £100 to the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, for the benefit of the poor attending there.

ALEXANDER FERGUSON (31) and Alma Waller (25), music hall artists, were charged before the Salford Stipendiary on Tuesday with causing a disturbance in the Regent Theatre, Salford, by inciting the audience to hoot Miss Evelyn Taylor. Mr. H. Raymond, the manager, on Monday explained that Miss Taylor, during the music hall dispute, made a tour of a number of the proscribed London houses, and her action was resented by the members of the Variety Artists' Federation. Those working in the same "show" at the Regent this week were against her. When Miss Taylor appeared on the stage on Monday evening the two defendants behaved in a disorderly manner, but left the theatre when spoken to by a constable.

BOTH defendants stated that they were guilty of indiscretion, and were extremely sorry. Mr. Makinson said it was a serious matter for people to take the law into their own hands in this way, and such conduct could not be tolerated in England; but as the defendants appeared to regret their action, he would bind them over to be of good behaviour. They must, of course, pay the costs, and he hoped that this would put a stop to such conduct.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, FEB. 27.—Brewster's Millions, a comedy in four acts, adapted from George Barr McCutcheon's story, by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley, scored a pronounced success at the New Amsterdam Theatre recently, and having grown in popularity, has just been transferred to the Hudson Theatre for a longer run. Montgomery Brewster, familiarly known as "Monty," is left a million dollars by his grandfather, and is celebrating the event when he is informed that a forgotten uncle has willed him seven times that amount provided he spends the original fortune within a year, and keeps the secret to himself. He must not even confide in the girl he loves, or propose marriage to her until the million is gone. "Monty" accepts the proviso, and plunges in, and the difficulties and complications that ensue are highly interesting and amusing. He hires a cab at midnight to wait until he goes to keep an appointment at nine o'clock on the following morning; he tries to bet on the wrong horses and make foolish investments; he opens a business-office for the express purpose of going bankrupt; he pays enormous salaries to people who make frantic efforts to restrain him and save his money; he even backs a comic opera, and makes a star of a chorus girl. All to no purpose! The worst horse wins, the bank that should have failed is saved by his making an extra deposit in trying to get rid of more money; his investments pay big dividends; and the chorus girl scores an immense success. In sheer desperation "Monty" abandons New York, and takes a score of guests on a trip around the world in a luxurious yacht, chartered at a fabulous figure. The scene showing the yacht Flitter, at first lying at anchor in the Mediterranean, and afterwards in the midst of a storm, is the finest illusion of its kind seen here for a long time. After he has visited Monte Carlo, where he "breaks the bank," and has financed an Italian carnival at an expense of two million francs, his friends lock him up in his cabin, and order the captain to sail for New York. Only one month remains, and "Monty" is still encumbered with half a million dollars. To dissipate this sum he violates one of the laws of the ocean in regard to distress signals, and pays an enormous fine. Finally, he finds himself penniless half an hour before the expiration of the year. The former chorus girl tries to lend him money, and his friends conspire together to give him a fine birthday present, but he succeeds in keeping them away. Just as he feels that he has won, a friend comes to repay a loan—a fortune in itself. "Monty" discovers that he needs this amount to pay the executors' fees, and he hands over the money to the lawyers as the clock strikes twelve. The love interest is created by the fact that "Monty's" sweetheart, Peggy Gray, to whom the young spendthrift cannot explain his peculiar behaviour, suspects him of undue friendship with the chorus lady.

Mr. Edward Abeles as Montgomery Brewster is earnest and convincing, and his performance of the part has won unanimous praise.

As Dick Crawford, in the three-act farce comedy, Caught in the Rain, Mr. William Collier is dispensing dry humour of the sort that might seem inane in cold print, but which is, nevertheless, responsible for much laughter and other manifestations of enjoyment nightly at the Garrick Theatre. He says the funniest things in the most matter-of-fact way, which makes them the more effective, and is certainly pastmaster of the art of quick repartee. The piece was written by Mr. Collier and Grant Stewart. Dick Crawford begins with being a woman-hater, but tumbles head over heels in love with Muriel Mason, whom he meets under an awning during a heavy rain. With characteristic blundering he mistakes her identity, and when James Maxwell, his mining partner, wants him to marry the girl in order to gain control of some valuable property, he indignantly refuses, believing that Muriel Mason is the name of a girl he detests. Muriel overhears a remark which makes her believe that Dick loves another, and when Maxwell proposes to her she accepts him, although she really loves Dick. She is not married to Dick's partner, however, and the game of cross purposes ends with the ruin of Maxwell, who is a sordid schemer, and a happy understanding between the lovers.

IN aid of the funds of the Printers' Pension, Almshouses, and Orphan Asylum Corporation, the staffs of the London and County Printing Works (printers of The Era) and Bazaar have arranged a smoking concert, which will take place at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, E.C., on Monday evening next. Mr. Ernest A. Mynott (works manager) will preside. A capital programme has been secured, among those who have kindly consented to give their services (in addition to members of the staffs and their friends in the trade) being Misses E. J. Bidwell, Elsie Lisle, Aline Sudbury (a rising young soprano), Daisy Pullen (the "Somerset" reciter), Captain Adams (prestidigitateur), Messrs. Will Draper (siffleur), H. Bullen Saunders, Fred Clements, Fred Edwards, Benn Hogg, Harry Good, and Fred Cooper. The accompanists will be Messrs. G. Hardy, S. J. Price, and A. L. Walter. The promoters will welcome the presence of friends of a good cause at the concert.

THE third annual dinner of the Railway Passenger Canvassers was held on Saturday evening at the Criterion Restaurant, when nearly 100 representatives of the various railway companies in the United Kingdom were present. Mr. W. Charles Simpson (Great Western Railway) occupied the chair, Mr. W. Bratt (Midland Railway) being in the vice-chair, and they were supported by Mr. James Wright (L. and N.W.), Mr. Crang (Great Northern), Mr. A. H. Hoyle (L. and S.W.), and Mr W. Barton (Great Central). The chairman, in his felicitous speech, outlined the history of the movement, associating the names of Messrs. Frank Lunnon and R. W. Tye, the energetic hon. secretaries, as the originators. Amongst those present were representatives from the following towns:—Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Newcastle, York, Chester, Manchester, Liverpool, Plymouth, Cardiff, Exeter, Londonderry, Lowestoft, Cambridge, Birmingham, Brighton, &c. The visitors included Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (secretary Music Hall Artists' Railway Association) and Mr. Bass (Great Southern Railway, Buenos Ayres, South America). During the evening was given an interesting concert, which was contributed to by many of those present.

THE late Mr. August William Petrie, whose sudden death at the beginning of February deprived the Cape Town Opera House orchestra of its successful manager and double bass player, was born at Frankfort-on-Maine in 1851. His parents settled in England, at York, and he was brought up in that city. The first part of his musical career was with the noted Sanger's Circus, with whom he travelled throughout England, Scotland, and Wales, visiting all the principal towns and many of the minor ones also. He came out first to Cape Colony in 1883, with the late William Leslie's American Minstrel Company, and travelled through the country with them. In 1886 he returned to England, and for eight years he was associated with a good deal of concert work in London, principally as double bass player with Meyer Lutz, the well-known Gaiety conductor. He was also one of the founders of the London County Council band. He returned to Cape Town in 1894.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

Prompted by the announcement that this was the last but one of the series of balls for the season, a large gathering of dancers attended to enjoy the good things provided by Mr. Frank Rendle. The fancy costumes were more numerous than usual, and originality marked the success of many of the productions. The first prize, a Stanhope canteen, fitted with service of electro-plate cutlery, was taken by a beautiful dress, "Only a Bunch of Grapes." A lady in green satin dress, covered with rocks and ferns, and named "My Rockery," was awarded the second prize—a silver Louis XIV. tea set. The twelve other prizes were taken by the following dresses:—"£1,000 Reward" (a topical allusion to the recent theft of pictures at Park-lane), "Sweet Songsters," "A Girl at the Well" (an Egyptian study), "All Stained Glass," "Waiting at the Church," "Little Miss Muffet," "Lilac," "A Thing of the Past," "A Snow Storm," "Kisses" (a Dutch girl), "The Treasure of the Sea," and "Chrysanthemum." A particularly elaborate and effective dress bore the title of "Forbidden Fruit," while a handsome "Goddess of the Earth" promenaded the auditorium in a classic robe, artfully arranged to represent corn and wheat and barley. There were a fair proportion of gentlemen in fancy dress, amongst others being "Gollywogs," "Jesters," "I've Blued My Money," and the "Toreadors." Dan Godfrey's band delighted the company with a popular selection of music. The last dance is announced for the 15th inst., Boat Race Eve.

NEW MUSIC.

"The House of the Presence," song, by Miss Robson, music by Adolph Mann, with organ obbligato, published by J. B. Cramer and Co., Oxford-street. The writer of the verses of this song is the daughter of the famous comedian, Robson, one of the most remarkable men of genius that ever adorned the English stage. It is singular how differently the children of these wonderful stage favourites look upon life. For example, the son of Charles Matthews became a celebrated King's Counsel, and this very week has been knighted by His Majesty. Miss Robson seems to have taken a hint from Hood's famous poem, "The Haunted House," for "The House of the Presence" is in one sense haunted by memories of a beloved one. Miss Robson says,

"At eve, in the falling twilight,
When the moths of the night take wing,
There has fallen the far, faint echo,
Of the songs you used to sing."

The song is dedicated to Mme. Rosa Bird, and the music of Adolph Mann has considerable merit; while, as a song of sentiment, "The House of the Presence" will be sure to find a host of admirers, for, if well sung and well accompanied, it will be extremely effective. The organ obbligato is also introduced with much skill.

"THE WINDOW-CLEANER."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With reference to Mr. Henry Carlton's communication in The Era for March 2, I hasten to assure him that, until I read his letter, I was ignorant of the fact that the title, The Window-Cleaner, had been used prior to the production of my sketch at the Tivoli, Liverpool. I shall, of course, change the title. May I ask you to publish this explanation of what must have appeared to Mr. Carlton to be a misappropriation of a title to which he had prior claim?—Yours faithfully,

HERBERT C. SARGENT.

4, Whitehall-court, S.W., March 5.

ONE of Harry Tate's Motoring companies, under the managership of Mr. George Manton, started from London last July for Australia, appearing at Melbourne, Sydney, Perth, &c. The tour, which was very successful, lasted about seventeen weeks. The company returned to Tilbury Docks on Sunday, the 17th ult., at 12.30 p.m., leaving the same day for the Hippodrome, Hull, where they opened on the Monday. On Sunday, the 24th ult., they came to Liverpool, departing again on the Monday for South Shields, where they played for four nights. When in Liverpool the manager and company were surprised to hear that they were expected to proceed on Saturday, by the Kenilworth Castle, to South Africa, for a tour of twelve weeks' duration, opening at Cape Town, and then visiting Johannesburg, Kimberley, and Durban. The total distance during this "run" from one end of the world and back, including inland journeys, will be about 43,800 miles. This is said to be one of the longest, as well as the smartest, "tours" on record.

MESSRS. PAUL PELHAM AND HERBERT RULE have supplied the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. with yet another melodious waltz-chorus song, in the shape of a number they have this week placed with the Berners-street firm, entitled "Sweet, sweet bells of Shandon." A great success has been achieved by the same firm and writers' charming "domestic" song, "I'm thinking always of you," in America, where it is issued by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter (by arrangement with the Monte Carlo Co.).

M. CLEMENCEAU has by circular abolished the collection system in French music halls. Entertainers have frequently been paid not more than a franc a day, and must make up a more or less living wage by handing the plate round among the customers drinking. We never descended to this sort of thing even in the forgotten days of the obscure sing-songs. These country town café-concerts are full of bitter little tragedies, says the Daily Telegraph, and the most pathetic experience of all is to watch and hear an artist's grateful amazement when anyone in the café behaves like a gentleman towards her. The system is simply a form of white-slave trade, of which, unfortunately, English girls have sometimes been the victims.

HENCEFORWARD proprietors will be strictly forbidden ever to let their singers go among the audience under any pretext. Moreover, the premises must be closed immediately after the performance, and the common practice of running supper-rooms in connection with the so-called music hall is to be stopped. The reform might be extended to Holland with the greatest advantage.

MR. BERT GILBERT, having finished his pantomime engagement, starts on the Stoll tour at the Hackney Empire on Monday. He was born and reared an actor, by parents who had been likewise born and reared actors, themselves the children of actors; in fact, Mr. Gilbert represents a fourth generation of actors. Mr. Gilbert in private life is Gilbert Hazlewood, son of the late Mr. H. C. Hazlewood, playwriter and theatre proprietor, of Wolverhampton, the town where Mr. Gilbert was born during his father's lesseeship of the Theatre Royal and Prince of Wales's Theatre there, the latter being under Mr. Hazlewood's control for thirty-seven years. Mr. Gilbert's mother was one of the most popular members of the famous Birmingham Theatre Royal stock companies, performing a great variety of parts, from Portia, Juliet, and the Lady of Lyons, to Tony in My Sweetheart, and principal boy in pantomime. Mr. Gilbert's grandfather was a famous actor of the Old Drury stock company, and his speciality, like that of Miss Winifred Emery's grandfather, was Yorkshire and quaint characters.

CARL AND CARR, comedians, have been granted the use of the Band Stand, Victoria Park, Plymouth, for pierrot entertainments during the summer months.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
Another book which calls for attention is that excellent and almost indispensable work of reference, "The Era" Almanack and Annual. In this handy shillingsworth one has a complete record of the past dramatic year, and the arrangement is so admirable that no time is lost in finding the desired subject, title of play, revival, or new production, and all that appertains to the drama of the year. The same remark applies to the information concerning the stages of Paris and Berlin; and I should like to see next year the American stage included, because it is becoming so intimately allied with our own, by reason of the production of plays, the interchange of actors, and the comprehensive interests of managers. In addition to the solid pages of facts, there are included short tales and stories by well-known actors and actresses, and altogether the book is one which should find its way into the hands of all genuine lovers of the drama.—Morning Advertiser, Feb. 23, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual deservedly ranks high as a record of the passing theatrical show. The new issue, in a comprehensive survey of the drama, mentions in proper order all the productions and revivals of the year, both at home and abroad and gives a list of the theatres and music halls of the United Kingdom, with the names of their respective managers. The lighter side of the publication, to which many well-known managers and performers contribute, is of exceptionally high literary merit.—Morning Leader, Jan. 21, '07.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MR. ALAN W. YOUNG.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

A VISIT FROM A MOTHER-IN-LAW.
Code Word, CHIC.

The young husband determines that as he does not want his mother-in-law to stay with them, he will get rid of her quickly. Bribes the servants, and they each, without seeming to do so, cause her some trouble. Finally, he takes her out in his car and bumps her out. She, in disgust, returns home again, to the intense joy of the husband. A very amusing subject, and some very funny effects.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

The COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.
Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c., &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.
Colouring extra, £3.

BOB SLEIGHING.
Code Word, CALOMEL.

This delightful winter sport shown in all its varieties amidst gorgeous scenery. Some terrific speeds are obtained on the sleighs.

346ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.

"SKI" COMPETITION.
Code Word, CITADELLE.

More winter sports of Norway. Driving horses on skis, jumping great heights, and obstacle races. Perfect panoramas, and most exciting.

510ft. The Subject £8 10s.

LADIES OF THE WHIP.
Code Word, CARNIVORE.

An excellent comic film, depicting the rivalry between the old-fashioned cabby and the up-to-date lady Jehu. The situations are exceedingly funny, and is a laughter-provoking film from beginning to end.

577ft. The Subject £9 12s. 3d.

A GOOD CIGAR.
Code Word, BYRRH.

A beggar follows a swell to try and get the stump of his cigar. The swell thinks he is a robber and calls the police. The beggar picks up the cigar thrown down through the confusion of the swell. Disgust of the police at not being able to make an arrest. Very amusing.

215ft. The Subject £3 11s. 8d.

TOMMY AT PLAY.
Code Word, CAHIER.

A little boy plays all kinds of practical jokes on unoffending people, and causes shouts of laughter from people in the pictures as well as the audience.

248ft. The Subject £4 2s 8d.

INDIANS AND COWBOYS OF THE FAR WEST.
Code Word, CIREUR.

Cowboys v. Indians. The capture of horses. Exciting scenes when the Indians steal the horses. A wild chase. The cowboys are saved by the timely intelligence of one of their faithful animals. Charming pictures throughout. Specially recommended.

643ft. The Subject £10 14s. 4d.
Tinting extra, 14s 6d.

CARNIVAL AT NICE, 1907.
Code Word, CALOMNIE.

The most perfect and realistic scenes of the gay fête which has just take place at Nice. Really brilliant scenes.

595ft. The Subject £9 18s. 4d.

TWO LITTLE SCAMPS.
Code Word, CABOULOT.

A very amusing film, showing the adventures of a little baker's boy and sweep. They ring bells, jump on to motor cars and cabs, pull off the table cloths from a restaurant table, and generally annoy everybody—finally arrested by the police. Absolutely perfect quality.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

THE YAWNER.
Code Word, CABOSSER.

This is ridiculously funny. A poor man has a tendency to yawn on every occasion, and being very infectious, every one who meets him catches the complaint. Very droll.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

POLICEMEN'S RUN.
Code Word, CABANE.

This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

A SMART CAPTURE.

A couple of most evil-looking men hanging about a butcher's shop await their opportunity for theft. One seizes a joint and runs away, the other, who is leading a dog, quickly following his example. The shopkeeper, coming out, calls a policeman and points out the men rushing away. The bobby gives chase and keeps up a hot pursuit. The thieves, finding the policeman so persistent, enter a granary where they mount the ladder into the loft above. The policeman enters and, seeing where his men are, smiles confidently to himself and, setting the machinery of the shoot and cutter in motion, awaits events. The result is somewhat more than anticipated as the men and dog are shot down with rapidity and cut to pieces, their legs, arms, etc., being thrown out upon the floor. The bobby is in somewhat of a dilemma at this unlooked for incident, but soon settles upon a course of action. He sorts out and replaces the portions of the different men into two receivers, and, reversing the action of the shoot he laughs heartily as the men and animal come up ready to his hands. He marches them all off with due satisfaction and self-congratulation.

UNIVERSAL WINTER SPORTS.

A Grand Series, exciting and exhilarating, of Ice and Snow Pictures and Sports taken during the present season. Our "International Winter Sports" of three years ago, and our "Northern Ice Sports," two years ago, were enthusiastically received wherever shown, and are still popular. For the convenience of our customers we have rearranged these famous and favourite series by retaining from each only the most absolutely perfect and beautiful. These, added to the pictures obtained during the present season, now form the best illustrations of Universal Winter Sports ever produced. The New Series now includes all the most thrilling contests of World Champions in Canada, U.S.A., Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland, and many amateur performances of equal merit and skill.

A SUBLIME, PICTURESQUE, AND ENTHRALLING SUBJECT OF SPLENDID PHOTOGRAPHIC QUALITY. Descriptive Circulars on application.

No. 1958. Code "UNIVERSAL." Length 840 feet. Price £14.

SHERIFF OF LONDON'S FOOTBALL CHARITY SHIELD.

Match to be played this day (March 9th), at Craven Cotlage, between "CORINTHIANS" and "NEWCASTLE UNITED." Length and price on application.

THE GREAT MOIR-SMITH BOXING MATCH

For the Heavy-weight Championship of England, between GUNNER MOIR Champion of England. & TIGER SMITH Champion of India.

AT THE NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB, LONDON, ON MONDAY, FEB. 25, 1907.

Every detail of the fierce contest is shown, and, though the match lasted only 2 min. 49 secs., the hitting was fast and furious from first to last. More vigour and hard work are compressed into this 300 feet of film than is shown in any previous record of 1,000 feet. The whole forms a nerve-thrilling and most exciting subject, without a slow moment in the display.

Owing to the heavy expenses entailed in the installation of the Powerful Special Electric Light System by which this Great Contest was photographed, with an effect equal to the best daylight exposure, and to the royalties paid for the privileges accorded to us, we are obliged slightly to increase our charges for this superb series only.

A BRILLIANT PICTURE, PERFECTLY PHOTOGRAPHED. EVERY MOVEMENT PLAINLY VISIBLE.

No. 1960. Code "GUNNER." Length 300 feet. Price £10.

THE TRAINING OF A CHAMPION.

Gunner Moir in Training. This film depicts the Champion at practice with skipping rope and punching ball, a vigorous and agile display. Moir also poses to show his methods of defence and delivery and his splendid muscular development. A Grand Subject, suitable as a preliminary to the Great Champion Contest Exhibition.

No. 1959. Code "TRAINING." Length 200 feet. Price £3 6s. 8d.

BUTCHER'S EMPIRE CINEMATOGRAPH.

MODEL No. 1.

PRICE (Complete without illuminant) ... £16 16s.

There is no Machine on the market to compete with the Empire No. 1 in price, reliability, and up-to-date features.

The Body is mounted in runners on a solid oak base, in which it slides to focus automatically for projecting films or slides.

The Mechanism is mounted on a solid casting, with steel spindles and well-finished brass rollers, with the shutter working between the film stage and lens.

The Eccentric Film Adjuster spaces the pictures without altering the optical centres, and by the roller on this adjuster the noise caused by the "dog" beating on the film is reduced.

Two Spools. Two Lenses. Travelling Case.

WE HIRE FILMS.

Very few showmen can afford to exhibit new films every week. To keep thoroughly up-to-date they must hire. We have thousands of feet of film available, and showmen come to us because they can rely upon us, and know that the film sent will be in good condition. We are always adding to our list. Let us quote you for supplying the film to make your Exhibition a success during the season.

APPLICATIONS FOR POSITIONS on the FRONT PAGE of "The Era" should be addressed to the PUBLISHER.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy conmbination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, S.W. 24th January, 1907

Dear Sir,—I enclose you cheque in payment of your account for cleaning dresses. I may say that I consider it perfectly marvellous that you should take away at 9.30 p.m. sixty-two elaborate Pantomime dresses from Clapham Junction and return them perfectly cleaned by 3 p.m. the following day. I am sending you about 150 dresses next week which will have to be done at lightning speed, feeling perfectly confident that they will be returned at the time promised. You are at liberty to make any use you like of this letter.

Yours very faithfully, ROBERT CROSSMAN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Geo. W. Denton; Stage-Manager, Fred Thomas.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is here this week in The Traitor Prince. Mr. George M. Montanini is powerful in the name-part, and is well supported by Miss Kate Walford, as Vashti; Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe gives a pleasing interpretation of Lieut. Frank Derrick; Miss Rose Routledge does well as Lola Dane; and Mr. A. Hallman, as Billy Bright, Mr. L. Musgrove as the Hon. Bobby, and Miss Netta Mitchell as Pansy Blossom well sustain the lighter vein of the piece

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday night Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company presented for the first time here the powerful and romantic Venetian drama entitled The Tyrant. Mr. C. F. Somerfield gave a capital portrayal of Homodie; Mr. Roy Fortescue submitted an admirable impersonation of Angelo; Mr. Lionel Atwil as Rudolph was all that could be desired; Mr. Percy Brown must be complimented on his humorous reading of Victor; Mr. Alec Findlater was good as Lieut. Tasker; Messrs. Geary and Wade were excellent in their respective parts of Abrossi and Roderic; Mr. C. E. Warne was an ideal priest; Miss Millie Ford gave a charming portrayal of Lady Katherine; Miss Lallah Shelton scored as Eulie; the part of Reginella was in the capable hands of Miss Olive Lloyd; and Miss Dagmar gained many admirers for her finished impersonation of Fisbe.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker.—Countess Romanow has been accorded a splendid reception for her series of poses entitled "Nature Unadorned." Mr. T. E. Hughes is a finished artist with a good voice; the Sisters Russell are amusing in their sketch, Napoleon; Ray and Miles are good in their juggling act; the Primrose Quartette score in their vocal scena; Conan and Doyle are well received; Clark and Glennie are very amusing; Craig, Rose, and Craig give a novel gymnastic act; Claire Greta is well received; and the Hippo pictures complete a good bill.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. Milton Bode's company in The Belle of Mayfair gives a performance of an excellent order, the dressing and general spectacular effect being particularly good. Mr. Harry Parker as Sir John exploits a continuous vein of humour; Miss May Yates is successful in the "courting" scenes as Julia with Mr. Hugonnet (Raymond); Miss Agnes Tandy uses her rich, well-balanced voice to advantage in the part of the princess; Miss Emily Stevens (an old favourite here) is capital as Lady Chaldicott; Miss Auralie de Loriere scores heavily as the Gibson Girl in a chorus that is one of the best features of the performance; Mr. Haddon Cave, Mr. Glyn Alwyn, and Lauri Lisle are fine exponents of their respective rôles; and there are many in minor parts who help materially towards the success.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. W. Maclaren and Miss Lily Bandmann and company are here again with Wilson Barrett's play Claudian. In Mr. Maclaren's impersonation of the title-rôle we get the qualities of dignity, power, and astuteness excellently portrayed. Miss Lily Bandmann is admirable as Almida; Mr. F. Owen Chambers as the Tetrarch of Charydos gives an excellent impression of the crafty Oriental; Mr. C. T. Chaloner is amusing as Belos, whose sweetheart, Edessa, is played with a good deal of comic ability by Miss Maud Garth. As Agazil Mr. Douglas Earle finds scope for plenty of vigorous acting. Other characters of a minor description were satisfactorily filled by Messrs. W. Hubbard, C. Gerrard, W. Nixon, B. Elliott, D. Murray, G. F. Floyd, Misses Rosa Webster, Geraldine Meredith, and Violet Barclay.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—This week's bill includes the Four Maisanos, four funny Frenchmen; Florry Cooper is a charming singer of popular ditties; Fanny Robina gives her songs in good style; George Rapley displays talent as a burlesque singing comedian; Leon and Williams are diverting acrobats; and Pueblo and Cropp are Creole artists with attractive American specialities. The feature of the week's programme, however, is the musical comedy burlesque The Belle of Barcelona, in which appear Mr. Jack McKenzie and upwards of twenty artists, including the Barcelona troupe of dancers.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. A. Wordsworth.—Pictures are still the popular attraction here, and a number of illustrated songs are given by Miss Ivy Nelson.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—A programme of average merit is submitted here this week. Those clever comedians and dancers, Downes and Langford, contribute a mirth-provoking turn; Mr. Charles Lestree is a smart juggler with up-to-date methods; a welcome return visit of the Watson Family, high-class vocalists and instrumentalists, is a strong item, and their efforts are deservedly recognised; Miss Edith Muir and Mr. Hubert Bartlett and company present a laughable comedietta entitled The Collar Stud; Mr. Clayton's Attergraph pictures include a dramatic episode, "The Indian's Revenge"; the Sisters Walmsley, full of vivacity, are pleasing in song and dance; Maston is a mimic of ability; and Mr. Tom E. Cliffe is a good comedian and dancer.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company opened a three nights' and matinée engagement here on Monday night with The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Henry Herbert as Shylock made a great impression with his clear enunciation and masterful reserve; Miss Dorothy Green was the Portia, and she delighted the audience with her admirable acting in the Court scene; Miss Louise Graeme was excellent as Jessica; and as Lorenzo Mr. Reginald Owen made the most of the part. The Prince was well played by Mr. Philip Merivale; and nothing could have been finer than the Antonio of Mr. Gereld Ames. Mr. Ross Shore was the Lancelot, and he gave a capital embodiment of the part. The other members of the company were equally successful.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is here this week with The Convict. Mr. William Vane gives a powerful and realistic representation of the title-rôle; Mr. Leonard S. Harrison is effective as Mr. Britton; and Mr. W. Bradford as Captain Hurley is an unscrupulous schemer of the deepest dye. Mr. Victor Du Cane depicts the dual rôles of Sergeant Holmes and Alphonse Godin with grim humour; Mr. W. E. Simpson does justice to the part of Noro, and Mr. Frederick Gerratt is amusing as Mike Larne; Miss Winifred Maude wins sympathy as Nellie Seaforth; and Miss Ethel Tinsley does well as Miriam Goldberg. Miss Marion Holly as Harry Seaforth is very natural, and as Jenny Wright Miss Jenny Hackett is eminently successful.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Miss Maud Hildyard and company are here in The Great Awakening.—As Lola Selby Miss Hildyard distinguishes herself greatly by an artistic portrayal; Mr. A. C. Hardie gives a good performance of James Selby; Mr. Frank Liston shows his versatility in the rôles of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton; Mr. Stephen Langton is an efficient Guy Rogan; and Messrs. Gordon McLeod, Willie Scott, and J. H. Booth are good respectively as Captain Harry Lambert, Billy Brass, and Richard Wilson. Miss Doris Digby is a sympathetic Molly Merton.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Lydia Donovan and company in Her One Great Sin are here. Miss Donovan as Grace Warhurst plays with considerable distinction; Mr. Claude H. Seaton as Reuben Warhurst acts in good style; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford makes an excellent Arnold Thornhill; and Miss Maude Lambert as the child is very good. Excellent comedy is contributed by Miss Nellie Lambert and Mr. Fred Hodson.

TIVOLI.—Lessees, Messrs. Laban and Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Edgar Laban.—Ross and Grayson are at the top of the bill here this week as a musical mélange, which is exceedingly well received; Sandford and Lyons are droll comedians and clever dancers; and the Brothers Redmond create roars of laughter. Irene Rose is a really first-class comedienne; Fancourt and Ruby give a smart and well-staged comedy act; Stidder and Dunbar are very humorous in a musical pot-pourri; and Marion Scott sings some pleasing songs in a tasteful manner.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—A return visit of Lucky Durham is proving popular here. Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh maintain the strength of their company. Miss Alice Esther Belmore now impersonates Helen Vallerton and Mr. Robert Forsyth undertakes the rôle of Lord Mountfallen, and both are good successors to the previous representatives; Mr. Edmund Kennedy continues to give his sound and impressive portrayal of John Durham; and the Reggie Steighton of Mr. Arthur Leigh remains a capital piece of comedy acting.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The Ju-jitsu wrestling bouts with Yukio Tani are proving interesting and exciting this week; a capital interlude is that supplied by Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, American comedy artists, in The Dancing Master. Brull and Hemsley likewise present an amusing turn, Fun in a Music Shop; a farcical sketch, After the Races, is rattled off cleverly by Madge Morley and two associates; J. P. Selph is a good character vocalist; a young ballad singer that gains plenty of admirers is Marion Fletcher; Walter Keating, coon singer, also appears; Raymond's Bio-tableaux form, as usual, an agreeable wind up.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The Shulamite commenced a week's sojourn here on Monday. The part of Simeon Krillett was taken by Mr. Algernon J. Hicks; in the rôle of Deborah Krillett Miss Ruth Shepherd thoroughly deserved the warm applause evoked by her sympathetic rendering; Mr. Charles Fancourt submitted a clever impersonation of Robert Waring; Mr. George Rammell was an effective Jan Vanderberg, Miss Emily Levettez a capital Tante Anna Vanderberg, and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff an obedient slave-girl.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Loie Esmond's company opened here on Monday with The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Edward Neville must be commended for his remarkably fine conception of the difficult rôle of Prince Lucio; Miss Cecilia Dare, a charming actress, presented a convincing impersonation of Lady Sybil; Miss Loie Esmond was the American heiress, Diana Cheaney, to the life; and a skilful impersonation of Geoffrey Tempest was presented by Mr. J. McCaig; Mr. Coleman Davies played the rôle of Lord Lynton with much distinction; Miss Cecil Bryne was amusing as the garrulous lodging-house keeper, Mrs. Grimbes; and Miss Rosie Neville was all that could be desired as Mary Clare.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The Three Golden Graces, although billed here, did not appear on Monday, having missed the connection from the Continent. Matthew Brodie and company appear to great advantage in a comedy dramatic episode, entitled A Drummer of the 76th, by Louis Cohen, in which Mr. Brodie's acting as Napoleon Bonaparte and Miss D. Vivian's impersonation of the Drummer were excellent. Mr. Alfred Trentanovi's troupe of mules, baboons, and dogs perform some remarkable tricks; and the feats of strength by Mr. Luis Hardt have created quite a sensation; Mr. Laurence Barclay is a capital comedian with good songs; and also here are the Three Zaracs, comedians on the bars; Miss Constance Mori, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Lloyd Morgan, comedian, and the Ladderites.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The celebrated Hungarian violinist, Mr. Jan Rudenyi, heads the bill here, and is supported by Miss Dora De Winton and Mr. John Saunders in a musical romance, entitled The Power of Music; the extraordinary acrobatic feats of the Kremo family have evoked loud enthusiasm; and France and Stewart appear in their clever American racing comedy, The 100 to 1 Chance, which has created much merriment. Mr. James Brady's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed, and the extraordinary feats of Sylvesta, assisted by Miss Vera De Courtnay, have created much amazement. Miss Blanche Vincent is a delightful comedienne; and also here are Mr. Chas. Vincent, comedian; and Miss Jeannie Mackay, vocalist.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, is presenting this week the sensational drama, The Unknown. Mr. Horace Denton is responsible for a clever impersonation of Harold Merrybright; Miss Nina Blake Adams presents a skilful impersonation of Bessie; the villainies of Arnold Tyson are realistically depicted by Mr. E. H. M. Heanley; Mr. Cyril Grier sustains the difficult rôle of Jack Salt with no little credit; and Mr. Elmore Frith is an admirable Dr. Brinkton. The humour of the piece is in the safe hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly, irresistibly funny as Pat; and Miss Mattie Crawford, a droll Jimmy. Mr. Ed. Smythe as Albert Stormking is all that can be desired; and Miss Alice Clarke in the part of Louise acquits herself well. Mr. Tom H. Solly is responsible for the stage arrangements. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, exhibits a very humorous film, "A motor-car race for a wife."

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Baron H. Harriss and his very capable company are doing excellent business with The Prince of Pilsen, a musical comedy new to this town. Mr. Harry Kilburn is well suited as Hans Wagner, a part to which he does the fullest justice; and Miss Sophie Harriss gives a spirited and faultless rendering of Mrs. Maddison Croker; Mr. Frank Crimp as Carl Otto acquits himself with marked ability; Lieutenant Tom Wagner is well embodied by Mr. Roy Sydney; Arthur de Willoughby Rossmore is cleverly sustained by Mr. Bernard Russell; and Francois is admirably presented by Mr. Ernest Gifford. Sidonie, the French maid, is cleverly played by Miss Connie Léon, whose dances are one of the features of the performance. Miss Ada Watson is a charming Edith Adams, and Nellie Wagner is suitably enacted by Miss Alice Nixon; Miss K. Albert is particularly successful in the rôle of Maisie Manhatton, the Gibson girl; and the cast generally is irreproachable. Furnished with a numerous and efficient chorus and a wealth of accessories, the comedy has produced a most favourable impression here.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. T. E. Dunville, the popular comedian, heads a capital company, and is again scoring heavily. Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe in their sketch, My Burglar, have caught on immensely; and a liberal programme also includes Miss Georgina Leonard, an accomplished burlesque actress; the Haytors, in an entertaining sketch, Cabby Knows His Fare; Mr. Victor Travers, eccentric comedian; Sandy and Carl, knockabout comedians; Mr. Ned Lincoln, character-comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Queen of Hearts terminates its enormously successful twelve weeks' run to-night, when it will have achieved just a hundred performances. Last night Mr. Geo. Robey took a benefit, Mr. Wilkie Bard, among others, being down to swell the attractions.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Lady Dandies, otherwise Les Merveilleuses, is presented here by Mr. George Edwardes's company. That favourite burlesque comedian, Mr. Eric Thorne, gets a great reception for his clever and droll assumption of St. Amour; Mr. Robert J. Hale, who is always welcome in any piece, improves his popularity as the dandy, Lagorille; Mr. Talleur Andrews vocalises with much success as Dorlis; and Messrs. Jack Cannot and Lennox Pawle are in the forefront with some clever business as the police agents Malicorne and Tournesal. Miss Anna Hickisch has the audience under her thrall as La Merveilleuse, singing and acting with the utmost ease and charm; Miss Deborah Volar endows the rôle of Illyrine and the lyrics pertaining thereto with consummate art and expression; Miss Dorah Langham plays the part of Egle to full advantage; and Miss Vivien Talleur as the dancer, St. Cyr, gives a saltatorial display which brings down the house.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella still pursues the even tenor of its success, and the artists, who have all built solid reputations for themselves, have lost none of their spontaneity or enthusiasm. The various societies, as well as the general public, continue their support, and on Friday, last week, the Woolpack Musical Society attended the pantomime, headed by Mr. Harold Wallace, who brought his forces up two hundred strong.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Woman and Wine forms the attraction here, played by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company. The rôle of "the woman," Marcel Rigadout, is acted with much dramatic skill and effect by Miss Cissie St. Elmo; while with softer and sympathetic touch Miss Violet Sims scores as Mary Andrews. Miss Joan Pereira as La Colombe makes a hit; and Miss Ethel Vinroy is well equipped for the rôle of Jane Marlow. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds adorns the character of the student Seymour with many excellent traits; Mr. Fred W. Goddard supplies a powerful contrast as Beaudet, the bully; Mr. John S. Haydon gives clever effect to the rôle of Hugh Seymour; Mr. George Child provides a fine personation of the professor; and the subsidiary characters are in good keeping. The Bal Masqué scene is embellished with the clever specialities of the Lottie Stone troupe of Whirlwind Dancers.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Scales of Justice is being acted here by Mr. Andrew Melville's well-known company. Miss Rose Ralph embodies the double rôle of Mary and Jenny Maxwell, and infuses much charm and sympathy therein; Mr. Percy Dawsone acts with acceptable vigour as Harry Maxwell; Mr. Francis Everard is well liked for his manly acting as Tom Duncan; Mr. Fred A. Marston is appropriately breezy as Jack Breeze; Mr. Austen Milroy accounts for the villain's rôle. Antonia Cordova, in the most skilful and satisfactory manner; Mr. Edward Finlay does excellent work in the rôle of Mendoza; Mr. Andrew Emm is the life and soul of the humorous element as Tony Wilkins; Miss Amy Corelli makes a fascinating Polly; Miss Florence Nelson gives a clever representation of Inez Cordova; and Little Elsie is meritorious as Jenny.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is playing In Holy (?) Russia, which pleases Astonians well. Mr. Cassidy appears in his inimitable impersonation of Michy Nolan, which sets the audience in frequent roars of laughter; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy figures as the heroine, Renee Rubinoff, in her usual clever and charming style; Mr. Frank Copeland delights the audience with his fine acting as Sir Harry Beresford; Mr. Martin Sands makes a popular rôle of Count Gregori; Mr. Carl Rovinelli acts in an exceptionally able way as Steragoff; Mr. Jo Cuthbertson's acting as Baron von Pleve is vigorous and impressive; Mr. Frederick Loyd is most able as Michael Natolski; Mr. Arthur Stratton scores immensely as Col. Richard Forrest; Miss Florence Creagh acts powerfully as Catska Lavotski; and Miss Annie Dudley as Mrs. Forrest and Miss Alice Marsden as Madame Natolski do well.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—George Lashwood, who tops the bill, delights the audience with his songs; he also gives his well-known scena Oh for a Night in the West. The Enchanted Iona, a sketch given by Mr. Chas. Frazer and company, is capitally produced; Walter Bellonini is a decidedly novel juggler; the Coloured Meisters rightly have an interesting turn; the performance of the Leslie Brothers, comedy musicians, is greatly appreciated; Les Uniques give an exciting ladder display; Sinclair and Whiteford are seen to advantage in a comedy sketch; and James Kurry, eccentric comedian, and the Three Careys, Australian entertainers, complete a varied programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford. — John Tiller's Christmas extravaganza Dick Whittington is retained for another week. Other excellent turns are provided by Jock and Evelyn, whose humour and vivacity always ensure success; Miss Zetta, who performs a cake-walk on the wire; and May Fallowfield and Dan Robans, vocalists.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The principal item this week is a dramatic episode entitled On Parole, presented by Bellew and Stock's company. Miss Edie Sweeter acts touchingly as the drummer boy. Lauri and Beatty give an entertaining musical comedy turn; Arabella Allen submits clever impersonations of characters from Dickens; Ted and May Hopkins are amusing Welsh humorists; and Frank Darwin and Harry Drew are also responsible for interesting items. The Bioscope pictures of the wreck of the ill-fated Berlin are greatly appreciated.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company in The Master Criminal is here this week. Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Telford Lestage and Miss Chalmers as Cecile submit some powerful acting and thrilling scenes. Mr. John C. Carlyle is also very effective as Ben Beaudy. The comic side of the piece has the adequate services of Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale and Miss Mabel Tremere as Peggy Perks.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—After a lapse of between eleven and twelve years, patrons of the Eden are again enjoying a return visit of The Silver King, which is being presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Mr. Horace B. Herbert as Wilfred Denver gives an impressive rendering of the title-rôle; whilst Miss B. Doyle presents a sympathetic conception of the character of Nellie Denver. The faithful servant, Daniel Jaikes, is admirably played by Mr. William Allison; Mr. Paul Beckett is a powerful Captain Herbert Skinner; Mr. Laurie Hunter scores as Geoffrey Ware; Messrs. Wm. Dempsey and Seton Bernard are capable exponents of their respective parts, Elijah Coombe and Cripps; Samuel Baxter, a detective, is well acted by Mr. Alex. Begbie, and Mr. Ralph Lee is conspicuous as Henry Corkett; Miss Dorothy Love is a pleasing Cissie, and as Olive Skinner Miss Dorothea Black is all that can be desired.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and Mr. Walter Howard's company is drawing crowded houses in the drama, Her Love Against the World. Mr. Walter Howard himself appears in the principal character of Eric, Earl of Strathmere, with great effect, his acting being extremely good. Miss Ellen Snow acts forcefully as Ivie, Princess of Idalia; while Miss Rossie St. John does some good work as Nello, the youthful brother of Eric; Mr. Mayar Cook is sufficiently villainous as Ulric, while Mr. W. H. Hallatt as Prince Othmar is also good. The necessary comedy relief was well introduced by Mr. Henry B. Lewis (Heinrich), Mr. Richard Webb (Fritz), Miss Lizzie Lennon (Katinka), and Miss Hettie Ferguson (Gretchen). The play is well staged, and the costumes and uniforms are of the best.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company are appearing here in Two Little Drummer Boys.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The artists this week are Lilian Lea, songstress; Gillin, ventriloquist; Story and Trigg, eccentric comedians; John Macaulay, vocalist; Lise Roland, equilibrist; the Krags, acrobats; and the Mahatmas, thought readers.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Night of the Party is being played here this week by a capable company under the direction of Mr. Charles H. Williams. The brunt of the work falls on the shoulders of Mr. Sebastian Smith, who plays the part of Crosbie in a manner that wins for him the warmest encomiums. Mr. Frank H. Denton makes an excellent Frank Frayne, and Mr. Douglas Munro gives a capital representation of Flamber. Mr. Charles F. Bruce as Mr. Roundle and Mr. Stanley Arthur as Mr. Boyle likewise contribute clever studies. Miss Beatrice Mervyn acts the part of Lady Hampshire with grace and naturalness; Miss Marion Lewis gives a good account of herself as Mrs. Young, and Miss Florence French is well suited to the rôle of Gipsy Vandelier.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is in possession here this week with A Broken Heart. Mr. Henry Wolston presents a vigorous portrayal of John Barnard, which wins well-merited recognition; and Mr. Henry Earlesmere effectively plays Stephen Rayiton. A very clever impersonation of Tony Tibbets is supplied by Mr. Will Lindsay, and Cash Gills is successfully delineated by Mr. Charles Vivian; Mr. Roy Gordon creditably portrays the Rev. Mr. Staunton, the village curate. Undoubted histrionic skill is exhibited by Miss Sheila Walsh in the dual rôle of Grace Fanshawe and Mrs. Kellett; whilst Miss Vera Fordyce as May Barnard and Miss Julia Calcraft as Mrs. Barnard make the most of their respective parts.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A very fine spectacular act, entitled Electra's Bower, produced by Abdullah and La Superbe, meets with the most cordial reception here nightly. The Brothers Heyes find favour in a humorous sketch, and J. A. Willson is a clever comedian who possesses a well-trained dog; Edwards and Espinosa appear in a musical and dancing act; Johnny Holland and company supply a sketch that pleases well; Fielding and Hull are tuneful vocalists; Gus Garrick contributes a laughable turn; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden appear in a ludicrous farce, and J. W. Ellison proves himself to be a clever comedian. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope winds up the show as usual.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Charles H. Phelps and Mr. Harry Tilbury, supported by a capable company, have appeared during the week in the domestic drama, entitled His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Phelps as the village blacksmith, Frank Lindon, plays well throughout; and Mr. Harry Tilbury as Mickey Doolan causes much fun. In the important part of Florence Lindon Miss Belle Tilbury soon becomes a favourite.

THE GAIETY.—Lessee, Mr. George E. Good.—Li-Chang-Hi heads the bill here, and gives a marvellous, mystifying turn; Miss Ada Clare in song and dance has proved a warm favourite; Mr. J. Hegarty, comedian and sifflеur, is a capital turn The Gaiety Bioscope shows some good pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. William Tudor.—Varieties and pictures are proving a good draw here.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Cinderella, presented by Mr. Gus Levaine's company, is the attraction here this week. Miss Lizzie Levaine appears in the title-rôle with success, her singing being well received; Miss Dora Denmark makes a dashing Prince Charming; and Miss Fanny Collins gives a spirited performance of Dandini. Miss Ada Conway is seen to advantage as Dorothy; Lord Tom Doddy is a clever Pepper, the page; and the ugly sisters, Evelina and Grisella, are humorously portrayed by Mr. Cecil Webb and Mr. D'Arcy Mould. Mr. Arthur Collins is well placed as Baron Hardup; and Messrs. Ashby and Anderson are amusing as Ping and Pong. Specialities are introduced by the Ruby Quartette, acrobats; and the topical duet, entitled "1910," by Mr. Cecil Webb and Lord Tom Doddy is deservedly encored.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Some splendid poses in animated sculpture are presented by Chas. Raymond's Clito; Billy Williams, the popular parodist, is a great favourite; Selby and Myers, comedians and patterers, are a pair of exceptionally clever dancers; Tom Collins excels as a topical vocalist; Beattie Kent is a pleasing comedienne and clever dancer; Maud Esmond (serio) is also well received; Kopski was unable to appear, but a satisfactory deputy was found in Arthur Ball. The Hippodrome pictures maintain their usual good standard.

BOSTON. — PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. Saphrini.—A welcome return visit of the Zerbinis troupe, in their gorgeous spectacular musical act, introducing many new features, is made here; a good performance is given by Capita with his up-to-date mannikins; the comedy oddity H. J. Kemble greatly pleases the audience; M. and Mme. Sardou give an amusing and puzzling magical act, introducing their cabinet illusion; Miss Katie Moore has proved a great favourite with her catchy songs; La Belle Rosa, the Royal mandolinist, gives pleasing solos; a neat second-sight exhibition is given by Collin and Irene, who also introduce the box trick; Sands and Vincent are amusing in their grotesque comedy act; an old favourite, Marie Rivers, is on a welcome return visit; Ernest Heathcote, eccentric comedian, has a peculiar style of his own; and a laughable pantomime sketch is given by Mr. Harry Wys and company.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A large audience on Monday heartily greeted The Walls of Jericho, which is on a return visit. The company is Mr. Arthur Bourchier's by arrangement with Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux, and it is entirely changed from that which last brought the play here, but is of all-round excellence, and a fine representation is witnessed. Mr. A. E. Anson gives a vigorous and thoroughly artistic performance of the part of Jack Frobisher, and is well supported. As his wife, Lady Alethea, Miss Gladys Mason acts with considerable power and charm; Mr. G. A. Brandram's Hankey Bannister is an excellent effort; Miss Nona Wynne as the girlish and frivolous Lady Lucy Derenham is piquant and altogether admirable. The eccentric Marquis of Steventon is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Cyril Baleine; and Mr. A. Casey, Mr. A. W. Tyrer, Mr. G. Percy, Mr. J. Herbert, Mr. W. S. Lane, Miss Marguerite Collier, Miss Edith Cuthbert, Miss Leonora Thomas, Miss Evelyn Maxwell, Miss Muriel Mason, and Miss Millie L. Emden contribute impersonations which leave little to be desired. The dresses are exceptionally fine.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The successful run of Cinderella was brought to a close here on Saturday. Eleven weeks constitute a record for pantomime at this theatre, and the final performance was witnessed amidst much enthusiasm. The theatre was packed, the utmost good humour prevailed, and the ladies of the company were literally besieged with floral tributes. Mr. Laidler, in a neat and telling speech, tendered his thanks to the audience for the support accorded during the pantomime season, and to the company for their united efforts in contributing to the phenomenal success of the production, and on behalf of the company he presented to Mr. Butler, the stage-manager, a gold watch chain and pendant, and on behalf of himself he also handed to Mr. Butler a case of fish carvers. To Mr. Walter Scott, the conductor, the company presented silver-mounted hair-brushes; Mr. Laidler supplemented these gifts with a silver-mounted bâton; and the popular lessee also handed to Mrs. Claridge a hand-bag, the gift of the dressers. On Monday night last Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians commenced the regular dramatic season with His Majesty's Guests, a production familiar to Mr. Laidler's patrons. There was a large audience, who roared with laughter at the eccentricities of the comedians, amongst whom Mr. George Hestor is again to the fore as Sergeant Lightning. Lord Easem (Flash Jack) is once more a success in the hands of Mr. Frank Morton. Mr. Sid Kearns is the begging Minks, Mr. C. Usher Miffing, and Miss Leonora Castelle the shoplifter.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—George Leyton, the actor-vocalist, in a stirring scena, The Wreck of the Birkenhead, is most dramatic and impressive here this week; and Harry Ford, the quaint comedian, who elicits hearty laughter, is a striking contrast. The Celtic Comedy Trio are responsible for some excellent harmony; Kelly and Ashby, "the bounding billiardists," are clever and exceedingly funny; the Mexican mimic, Harold Hugman, submits some clever imitations; male impersonations by Hettie Chattell, character vocalist, are excellent; a smart trapeze performance by the graceful Geretti Sisters wins applause; Billy Farrell, with his capital coon songs and dancing, and Dan Conroy, with acceptable comedy, also contribute; and the American Bioscope shows some fine pictures.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster.—Harry Vardon, an amusing ventriloquist, opens a fine programme here this week, and Madoline Rees, a charming comedienne, contributes acceptably. Those "electric wonders," the Marconis, submit a truly marvellous performance, and a most diverting turn, viz., The Studio, by Mulvey and Miriam, elicits hearty laughter. In a smart musical comedy turn the Bensons are very successful; the Matweef Hugoston troupe of Russian acrobats and dancers in a clever performance win unstinted applause; Edie Endon submits good sand-dancing; classical poses by the Three Graces are artistic and charmingly accomplished; and some entertaining pictures are shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON. — NEW SPA AND GARDENS. — Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—In consequence of the fire last autumn the Spa company are unable to hold their usual annual exhibition in their own buildings, so have secured the Palace for the week, where Mr. Hague has drawn together a good show. For his entertainment programme he has secured Mr. Chas. H. Allan's talented exhibition orchestra, who give great delight by their excellent performances. The variety talent includes the Four Sisters Sligo, a good quartette of instrumentalists, vocalists, &c., and Mr. Oliver Conroy, character comedian.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here this week with Are You a Mason? Mr. E. H. Paterson gives an amusing impersonation of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Havard L. Tracy as Frank Perry and Mr. Ernest Cossart as George Fisher are very entertaining; Mr. Buchanan Wake adds to the fun as the breezy Yorkshireman, John Halton; and Mr. Victor Kerr acquits himself admirably as Ernest Morrison. Miss Adelaide Grace submits a good enactment of Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; Miss Margaret Fareleigh is a pleasing Eva; and Mr. George R. J. Austin as Hamilton Travers, the veteran actor, and Miss Dora Gregory as the Irish servant, Lotti, are distinctly clever. Able support is given by Miss Babs Stuart, Miss Madge Merique, and Miss Dora Frank Harvey. The farce is preceded Mueller and Coyne provide an up-to-date singing, dancing, and tumbling act; and the performance concludes with a good display of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Wm. Greet's principal company entered on its second week here on Monday, and continues to draw good houses with The Earl and the Girl. A highly trained chorus and full opera orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker, add much to the success of the delightful entertainment.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The excellent play, Sunday, is again presented at this house this week by Mr. Louis Calvert's able company. A charming actress is Miss Emilie Polini, who undertakes the title-rôle; Miss Muriel Pope makes a pleasing Nun; and Miss Rosalind Ross is very good as Mrs. Naresby. Mr. William Lockart as the rough, good-hearted Towzer and Mr. Sydney Rennef as Davy are to be complimented. Mr. Ernest A. Douglas is a natural Tom Oxley, and Mr. Leonard Pagden is admirable as Colonel Brinthorpe. Lively is well played by Mr. Cecil Yapp; Mr. Arthur Vezin is good as Jacky, and Mr. Max Montesole as Arthur Brinthorpe is most praiseworthy.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Rosina Casselli tops the bill here this week with her troupe of cute little Chihuahua dogs from Mexico. Vanola is a smart risley performer, and his turn evokes much applause. Frank Haywood, actor-vocalist, is very fine in a song-scena, My Pipe; and the Macdonald Trio in a musical garden are both tuneful and laughable. The Brothers Adderley are smart mimics in a sketch, An Officer's Servant; the Sisters Brenton are clever dancers; much hilarity is created by Stanley and Vandyke with a comedy act, Mr. Penwiper; and the Empire Theatroscope illustrates "A trip across the Atlantic."

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Exceptionally good turns are the order here this week. Lil Hartley (comedienne) gives her songs in capital style; Adelina cleverly impersonates celebrities; Lilian Warren with her pleasing vocal pictures is an immense favourite; Mlle. Fontainbleau's highly-trained dogs are amusing; Maxey and Pete excel as trick and comedy cyclists; Harry Leatori's topical songs are well received; the gyrations of the mysterious Lilith are watched with intense interest; and the entertainment concludes with the Bio-tableaux.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—This week a dramatic treat is provided by the Ian Maclaren Shakespearean Company in Hamlet. Mr. Maclaren's fine rendering of the Danish Prince leaves nothing to be desired; the Polonius of Mr. Arthur Fayne is praiseworthy; and Mr. Frank Royde (Laertes), Mr. W. Hartford (the King), and Mr. J. Bryant (Horatio) may be singled out from a cast of all-round excellence. Miss Katherine Harrington plays Ophelia with intense pathos, and Miss Edith Coleman's powerful acting as the Queen draws forth repeated applause.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L. — Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Three Little Maids paid a welcome return visit here on Monday. Miss Mabel Kerridge, Miss Daisy Sylverton, and Miss Eva Neigh played the Sisters Branscombe in most becoming style; Mr. Frank Henderson made the most possible of Lord Cheyne; Miss Kate Graham-Beck was good as Lady St. Mallory; Mr. Bert Burton as Cupid was very funny; Gretchen was well rendered by Miss Laura Wright, as was Miss Price by Miss Maud Maale. The theatre was occupied on Thursday and Friday by the Bijou Amateurs in The Bells, in which Mr. Redfern was announced to play his favourite part of Matthias.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Redford.—That amusing musical play The Dairymaids is attracting large audiences here. Miss Rhoda Gordon as Winifred and Miss Violet Lloyd as Peggy are certainly two very charming ladies; Miss Beryl Vaudrey, who fills with much credit the rôle of Helene, displays her sweet voice to great advantage; Miss Cissie Sephton's impersonation of the country maid-of-all-work is smart; and as Lady Brudenell Miss Edith Blanche is admirable. Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivens causes peals of laughter; Mr. E. Statham Staples is hardly less amusing in his clever delienation of Sam Brudenell; Mr. Geo. Desmond is a free-and-easy Lieut. Brudenell; and Dr. O'Bryne is capitally acted by Mr. Forbes Dawson. Mr. Alec Fraser, who sings well, makes a handsome Capt. Fred Leverton.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—A Girl's Cross Roads is the name of the stirring drama presented at this theatre on Monday night. Mr. Charles Franmore is to be complimented upon his rendering of John Meadows; Mr. Wilson Gunning makes a capital hero of Jack Livingstone; Mr. Gerald Jordan, in the rôle of Cuthbert Lumley, is well placed; Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade is clever; the part of Constance Cornell is capably undertaken by Miss Jessica Black; Miss Florence Zillwood is an interesting Nellie Meadows; the comedy of Mr. Fred Ingram (Toby Turvey) and Miss Mabel Scudamore (Tilly Vane) is acceptable.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—On top of the programme we have George Gilbey, a capital comedian, his song and patter concerning "The Goalkeeper" being exceedingly humorous. Another clever comedian on the bill is Tom Owen, who appeals greatly to Cardiff audiences with his Welsh comedy; the Hadj Abdullah troupe of genuine Arabian acrobats are indeed sensational; the Hartley Wonders give a marvellous jumping speciality; a mimic of the first water is Chas. Norton; and Tennyson and Wallis cause many a laugh during their turn. Marie Santoi renders a delightful Japanese musical comedy; the Musical Jees, in their latest comedy sketch The Scarecrow, are good; and another fine turn is that of Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire Singing Mill Girl.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mr. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice. — The Lady of Ostend is here on a return visit. Mr. Lawrence Brough has again brought a most capable company. Mr. Henry Hampson's Dick Whortles is in every respect a fine performance; the ripe experience of Mr. Percy Marshall is distinctly notable in his clever handling of the Father-in-Law; Mr. Lawrence Brough scores his usual success as the Baron; and Mr. Dalziel Heron looks and acts the prize-fighter to the life. In the title-rôle Miss Marion Ripley gains warm and well-deserved approval; Miss Kate Milford again contributes a finished portraiture of Dorothy Whortles; and Miss Muriel Harding as the niece and Miss Bessie Harrison as the mother-in-law are also much in evidence. At the Risin' of the Moon, a romantic Irish play, precedes the comedy. The Saucy Sally was billed for the three last nights of the engagement.

THE PALACE. — Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls. Park's Eton Boys are paying a first visit here, and render popular songs in a telling and effective manner; Harry Leybourne, also here for the first time, is responsible for clever and versatile business; a marionette circus is wonderfully well worked by the Petrams, their stage fit-up being quite novel; Millie Howell sings well; the Elgars are refined and spirited in their Irish song scena; Charles Ulrick gives a daring performance with a huge barrel; and the Sisters Thurban, vocalists and instrumentalists, and the Pepiscope, with new pictures, complete a nicely varied entertainment.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS. — Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week Mr. T. R. Nugent's dramatic company has appeared here. On Monday evening The Streets of London was presented. Mr. W. Pimm was very good as Gideon Bloodgood; Mr. W. Dewhurst as Mark Livingstone, Mr. H. Proctor as Puffy, and Mr. A. Martin as Edwards also did well; while Mr. H. Compton in the dual rôle of Capt. Fairweather and Paul (his son) gave a clever representation to the respective parts. Master Sidney was excellent in his impersonation of the part of Dan, and the same may be said of Mr. T. R. Nugent as Badger; Miss Maggie Gardiner as Alida Bloodgood, Miss Gladys Greet as Lucy Fairweather, and Miss E. Woodleigh as Mrs. Puffy were likewise a success. On Tuesday evening The Colleen Bawn was presented, and on Wednesday The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—The new and stirring military drama A Soldier's Honour, produced only so recently as a fortnight ago at the Junction Theatre, Manchester, by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, is here this week. The principal interest is centred in Cora Lee, a notorious thief, capitally played by the authoress, Miss Lottie Addison (Mrs. Kimberley). Miss Ada M. Ryder is exceptionally pleasing as Doreen Illingsworth; Mr. John B. Shinton is a clever actor, and his impersonation of Capt. Deane is excellent; Mr. Clavering Craig plays the villainous Henry Thornton with his usual conspicuous success; Jemima Eliza gives Miss Edie Macklin ample scope in which to show her abilities, and she is screamingly funny; Miss Isa Lyndon makes a charming Queenie Deane; the Fanchette of Miss Eva Elwes is a capital performance; Sub-Lieut. Percy Brattle and Gwendoline Temple are amusingly played by Mr. Frank Howard and Miss Dora Taylor; Mr. Ed. Warden acquits himself with success as Captain Gerald Temple; a creditable portrayal of General Rochester comes from Mr. Arthur Keand; while Mr. Fred Teneur gives a capital character-study of Holly. Smarty and Joe Philpots are well played by Messrs. Franklin and Cooper.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; Business-Manager, Mr. W. H. Emerson.—An interesting programme has again been arranged here. J. Aitkin Wright and company, in their sensational episode Beneath a Mask, are excellent; a very dexterous performance on the silver rings is contributed by Akbar; the Royal Quintette, presenting a picturesque appearance, are clever dancers, vocalists, and pipers; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, as singing cardboard box makers, are thoroughly entertaining; a highly diverting sketch, How to be Happy though Married, is briskly performed by Miss Eunice Wright and company; Miss Bella Leaburn is a vivacious comedienne; the Sisters Clare, tastefully costumed, sing and dance with much naïveté; D. W. Watson does excellent work, and is well received as a vocalist and cornet and coach-horn player. The Loyal Dominion company's animated pictures conclude a most enjoyable evening.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is appearing here in the latter's new romantic play, entitled The Midnight Wedding. Miss Annie Saker gives a powerful impersonation of Princess Astrea Von Strelsburg, and receives excellent support from Mr. Alfred Paumier, a fine Paul Valmar. Messrs. Edward Fletcher and Ernest Imeson do well in the rôles of Lieut. Von Strelsburg and Capt. Von Scarsbruck respectively. The Crown Prince Leopold has a skilful representative in Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman. Messrs. James E. Page, Vernon Vane, and Algie Spalding succeed in causing plenty of merriment as the Three Red Hussars, Max, Otto, and Bobo; and Miss Ada Champion makes a lively Kathie.

THE GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—Here we have Ida Brophy, a neat dancer; Allsopp and Beckwith, an amusing couple; Mark Leslie, who scores with his dancing coon impersonations; The Royal Korries, with novel musical instruments; Austin Rudd, an old favourite, who gets a splendid reception nightly. The Sisters Ford give character duets; and the Edisonograph has a laughter-provoking film entitled The Wonderful Hair Restorer; but the tit-bit of the programme is Miss Kate Carney, who sings in her own telling style, "I'm Coming Back, Love," and "On the Good Old Surrey Side," and, supported by a hard-working company, appears later in The Brighton Promenade, which proves most popular.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Poluski Brothers top the bill, and easily maintain their position in the front rank of patter comedians; Lottie Govell's singing and dancing are greatly enjoyed; Lambert and Hans display originality in their vocal scena, entitled Visiting Day; Tom E. Conover and company's farcical sketch, The Drink Cure, proves highly amusing; Lacey's Erascope has a capital film, depicting the doings of the Hooligans of the West; Metz and Metz, comedians and dancers; the Bros. Curran, in a boxing act; and Tom Dunmore, comedian, complete the company.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—This week Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company in The Electric Man is the attraction here. Mr. Stanley Cooke, in the dual rôles of Walter Everest and Prometheus Frankenstein, submits a finished piece of acting; Mr. Archie Selwyn makes a bright and breezy Jack Strange; a neat sketch of Mr. Jobbins, the stupid detective, is furnished by Mr. Lloyd Townrow; Mr. Richard Purdon does well as the explosive General Pomeroy; Miss Sybil Brooke appears to advantage as Mrs. Everest; Miss Evelyn Shelley is a typical landlady as Mrs. Anderson; Miss Gladys Jesson deserves praise for her Stella Pomeroy; and Miss Amy Francis is well suited as Mary Everest. The chief piece is preceded by a curtain-raiser, entitled A Matrimonial Advertisement.

CHORLEY (Lancs.). — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company is presenting A Chinese Honeymoon here. The company includes Mr. Ernest Sefton, who as Mr. Pineapple is a tremendous success; and Mr. J. Maxwell Edwardes also is exceptionally good as Tom Hatherton. Miss Kitty Clayton admirably depicts the droll Fi-Fi; Mrs. Pineapple is well rendered by Miss May Davis; and Soo-Soo most charmingly presented by Miss May Stevenson.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague. — The attraction here this week is the drama Napoleon the Great, presented by Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a fine interpretation of Napoleon; Mr. Oliver Birrell a convincing rendition of the unscrupulous Colonel Lavarennes; Mr. Phil Harper makes a manly Jules Nouron; Paul Laczinska is smartly acted by Mr. Bartlett Garth; Mr. Frank M. Thorne is an entertaining Pierre Pompennet; Mr. Albert Sinclair a good Sergeant Choupin; and Fouche is safe in the hands of Mr. G. Acton Dix. Miss Leslie Warner looks and acts charmingly as Marie Walewska; Miss Maud Russell does excellent work as Leonie Marbœuf; Miss Marie Harcourt is a vivacious Marcelle Choupin; and Miss Florence Thorne is well placed as Mère Dumont. The staging and dresses are excellent.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton. — Mr. Bulmer's Sentenced for Life company opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Mr. Ernest Dare played the exacting rôle of Roy Stillwell in a meritorious manner; and Mr. J. C. Glenville also did well as the Rev. Mr. Orriss. Mr. Tom Robertson was conspicuous as the treacherous Paul Derrick; and quite a fund of humour was displayed in the characters of Percy McGentle, The Tadpole, and Bill Sharkey by Mr. Dan Agar, Mr. Reg Oldroyd, and Mr. Charles Conway respectively. Miss Hilda Merriless was a very witty Adele Grey; and Miss Violet Wentworth was prominent throughout as Kate Rennel.

HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The Herald Comedy Four, who are no strangers here, are nightly meeting with a flattering reception, which is thoroughly deserved. Bert Williams displays considerable ingenuity in his ventriloquial feats, and is a popular turn; Grace Langley, the chic comedienne, appeals strongly with her really supple movements and agile dancing, and is loudly applauded; the Sivames, comedy artists, Henry Harris, vocal impersonator, and Lew Loman, comedian, contribute to the entertainment. A special feature this week is a series on the screen depicting the "Hook of Holland" disaster and accompanying rescues, and it is a big draw, many of the lost men belonging to this vicinity.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—There is a capital programme submitted here this week. The Three Royal Dreadnoughts (Lilian, Vera, and Major Charles) give a clever exhibition of rifle-shooting; the Three Farcanas provide a remarkably good acrobatic turn; Katie La Blanche and La Belle Sylvia are smart comediennes; an enjoyable turn is given by Burnetti, a quick change character musician; Frank Sylvo is a clever juggler; Frank Harrison, comedian, contributes capital songs; and the Indian Maids remain over from last week.

COVENTRY. — THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—An exceptionally good programme is being submitted here. Mr. Hymack, the chameleon comedian, proves very entertaining and most mystifying; the Six Imris Girls are clever in a pleasing display of racquet and club juggling; Baker and Balfe are expert xylophonists; Vay's Juveniles appear in a graphic realisation of life in the slums; the Vasilescu Troupe (four in number) are clever eccentric horizontal bar performers; Belrose and De Velin give a couple of charming duets; and Gracie Moore is heard in a couple of well-known songs illustrated by lantern slides. The Bioscope pictures are up to date.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Girl who Lost Her Character, by Mr. Walter Melville, is gaining popularity here. Captain Caversham is well portrayed by Mr. Frank Adair; Miss Ethel Bracewell comes in for a capital reception as Molly Vernon; Mr. W. Vincent Carlyle makes an admirable clergyman; Mr. Stanley Gordon is successful as Jack England; Miss Lydia Mannington is seen to advantage as Marion Franklin; and Miss Emmie Barton does well as Rose Seymour.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Herbert Barr's pantomime company is here this week with Aladdin. Mr. Carl Fredericks plays the part of the Emperor of China, and makes the most of it; Miss Maudie Vincent is a capital Aladdin; Mr. David Phillips is responsible for a life-like Widow Twankey; Mr. Will Sherlock as Abanazar has a part to his liking; Miss Dorothy Wilson is smart as Pekoe; Mr. Wilfred Dane is first-class as the Vizier; Miss Lora Lyndon makes a winsome Princess; Mr. Alf. Selwood is funny as Washee; Messrs. Duncan and Marton as the Chinese police cause much merriment; Mr. Barton is well-chosen for the part of Chow Choh; Mr. Ernest Pattison and Little Della as the Genii of the Lamp and Ring fill their respective parts satisfactorily; Miss G. Dale is a sweet princess attendant; Miss Lily Burgess deserves mention for her So-Shi; and Miss Marie Desmond is well-placed as captain of the guard.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P. — Mr. Harry Starr's company is playing to good houses here. For the first three nights The Unseen Power was presented, and Mr. Harry Starr as Fred Granville appeared with his usual success. Mr. William Miller was a capable exponent of Harry Granville; Mr. Edwin Firth gave a performance of Antonio Romano; Mr. Fred W. Graham as Horatio Crakleaby was responsible for the humour; Mr. Will Hee gave a meritorious representation of George Granville; Miss Kate Norris excellently sustained the difficult rôle of Lucretia Granville; Miss Madge Blundell was successful as Anita Romano; and Miss Lye Jeffries (LucyRomano), Miss Lizzie Jacobs (Jennie Shrub), and Miss Dolly Starr (Chris) deserve a word of comment. On Thursday Carl the Clockmaker was played, and on Friday Otto the Outcast.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. Russell Rosse is presenting Captain Swift and A Happy Pair at the Grand this week. In the drama, Mr. Edward Sorley is excellent as Wilding; Mr. Albert Bernard is commendable as Mr. Seabrook; Mr. Marlyn Roland does well as Harry Seabrook; Mr. Charles Boult makes a manly Gardiner; Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone acts with power as Marshall; and useful work is put in by Messrs. W. E. Chewd and Clarence Pelham as Ryan and Bates. Miss E. Nolan O'Connor makes a womanly Mrs. Seabrook; Miss Beatrice Marsdene is a charming Mabel Seabrook; Miss Lillian Revell is capital in the rôle of Lady Staunton; and Miss Adah Barton plays with telling effect as Stella.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company in The Grip of Iron is proving attractive here this week. Mr. Fredk. Powell's acting of Jagon is worthy of high praise; Mr. Wallace Curnock as Paul Blanchard is capital; Mr. A. G. Polson Turner gives a good representation of Lorentz de Ribas; Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood as Alphonse de Concou is received with favour; Mr. John Brittain as Dodot is a prominent figure; Mr. Norman Tracey as Robert de Belfort is effective, and Mr. G. Denham as Loustalot creates much merriment. Miss Rosabel Dodd as Cora Simonnet does exceedingly well; Miss Muriel Inglis as Sophie Blanchard acts with sincerity, and Miss Maggie Stewart as Marie Guerin deserves praise.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Joe Elvin and company are meeting with a big reception here in Forester's Day; Fred Clements is an interesting light comedian; Mamie Iris is a dainty comedienne and dancer; the Brothers Bright are great in their act, Gymnasts du Salon; Arthur Reece, comedian, is a warm favourite; Frances Scorer, comedienne and dancer, is pleasing; Osborn and Brooks are a clever comedy duo; the Carlyles bring down the house with their whirlwind dances; Walton and Lester the comical wizards, are a big attraction; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is worth waiting for.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with the musical comedy Mr. Popple. In the title-rôle Mr. Arthur Longley causes unbounded merriment by his quaint style; Mr. L. Bullock Webster makes a capital Norman Popple, his dancing being very clever; the part of La Bolero, played by Miss Millie Hylton, is everything that could be desired; Miss Nellie Hodson is charming as Louise; and Miss Cora Lingard is excellent as Violet Brinton. Miss Alice Rene as Mrs. Doring is artistic; Miss Stella St. Audrie gives a finished rendering of Mrs. Hennay; Mr. Tom May is well up to the part of Platt, servant to Freddy Popple. There is an effective chorus, and some excellent dancing is done by other members of the company.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—This week Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren's No. 1 company is appearing in Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gives a capital rendering of Pierre Lorance; as Lazare, Mr. W. J. Butler is all that could be desired; the genial Chamboran is well played by Mr. Wilford Bailey; as Duke D'Aubeterre, Mr. Carl Beechley is prominent; and Victor de Launey is in the capable hands of Mr. G. Ridgeway Thorne. Miss May Grimshaw is excellent as Valentine; as also is Miss Beatrice Shirley in the dual parts of Madeleine and Adrienne; Miss Phena Powell makes a pleasing Mme. Deprets, and Miss Avron a charming Duchesse D'Aubeterre.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is this week appearing in Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold in the title-rôle submits a thoroughly artistic presentment, and creates an excellent impression all through. Mr. Wm. F. Grant as Paul Sylvaine achieves an unqualified success, his performance being conspicuously clever and effective. Raoul is played by Mr. Hamilton Dean, who makes a detestable character histrionically attractive; Schram is played with dramatic force and effect by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Miss Ethel Russell capably accounts for Mme. Berton; Mr. Roland Daniel acquits himself well in the dual part of General Berton and Valentine Fayne. Other characterisations that might be mentioned are the Claire Berton of Miss Helene Belgrave and the Sophia Chaponniere of Miss Violet Thorold.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Harry Tate's No. 1 company is starring here this week in that mirth-provoking sketch Fishing, which is thoroughly appreciated. The Hypocrite, a dramatic incident, introducing some clever sword play, is powerfully treated by Fred S. Peake and company. A charming item is that of the Cymros, Welsh duettiste, who deserve special mention; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, in song and dance are a great success; Charlton, conjurer, submits an interesting turn; Lola Patey, burlesque actress, pleases with her songs; Carson Hicks, coon singer and dancer, gains deserved applause. The Bioscope adds greatly to a good programme.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Sapho is the strong attraction for the week, and principal interest naturally centres in Fanny Legrand. This difficult part is undertaken in first-class fashion by Miss Ada Abbott, who presents a highly creditable character study of the many-sided woman, and reaps hearty applause for her clever performance. Others parts are played by Mr. E. R. Abbott, a capable actor; Mr. Douglas Phelps, an old Devonport favourite, who is accorded a hearty welcome, Miss Marjorie Tennant, Miss Doris Dew, and Messrs. John Lester, Weedon Ross, and Davis-Brown.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—There was much that was delightful in the variety combination that appeared here on Monday, and among the whole of the turns, the last one, Dinah Morris and her famous troupe of Southern Belles, including Bessie Morris in the speciality, "The Lost Coon," was the most warmly recognised. Miss Cissy Lambeth, operatic vocalist, was well received; Messrs. George Vaset, the celebrated tenor, and James Millbrook, the coloured tenor, gave great delight; Lulo Franks, acrobatic dancer, was clever; Harry Wright's topical and popular songs were appreciated; and Master Langden proved that the use of the words "champion boy dancer" was not a meaningless form. Other popular artists were Nellie Gannon, the descriptive vocalist; Peggy Fame, comedienne, and Bob Hartley, comedian and dancer.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew. —Once again that sensational drama, The 10.30 Down Express is drawing good houses nightly. Mr. Horace Stanley still makes Sam Wagstaffe a most popular personage; Mr. George Beverley enacts with praiseworthy zeal the part of Jack O'Malley; a clever rendering of the infamous James Inderwick is contributed by Mr. Chas. Burdon; Seth Coombes is powerfully portrayed by Mr. Tom Roydon; an admirable study of an old country gentleman is given by Mr. Alaric Burton; Mr. Edwin Clarke delivers the lines of Huntley Mason, the detective, with force and precision; and a most amusing sketch of Bletherby Baggs is presented by Mr. Arthur E. Francis, and Mr. John Morgan succeeds in raising a laugh by his drollery as Hodge. The pleasing portrait of Bessie Leigh given by Miss Elsie Capell is an excellent contrast to the vivacity of Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts. Letitia Leigh is a highly amusing maiden lady as played on broad comedy lines by Miss Evelyn M. Walton; and Miss Josephine Lee makes the most of her somewhat limited opportunities as Olive Coombes.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—An excellent array of talent is appearing here this week. An old Dublin favourite is Charles Coborn, and his songs are heartily enjoyed; Zaro and Arno do some clever feats on the horizontal bar; the acrobatic display given by the Creo Brothers is particularly smart; and the Three Demons appear most successfully in their sensational cycle act of racing on the devil's table, suspended in mid-air; the Three Romas, described as the Herculean Gladiators, give an excellent and effective exhibition; John Deering is a most acceptable vocalist and instrumentalist; and Mike Cray causes no end of amusement by his eccentric juggling, and his canine assistant proves a clever and novel addition to his performance. A Trip to Coontown is splendidly played by a company of coloured artists, their songs and dances being warmly appreciated. Another capital turn is the Tokio Troupe of Japanese Marvels, in their acrobatic and equilibristic pot-pourri; May Rawlinson's vocalism is greatly admired; and the Royal pictures are up to the usual standard.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. H. B. Irving's version of the German military play, Lights Out, was presented here on Monday night by Mr. J. Maundy Gregory's company, and met with a good reception from the large audience present. Mr. Lionel D'Arragon as Sergeant Volkhardt acted with great force and convincing sincerity; Miss Frances Davie portrayed with charm and feeling the rôle of the ill-fated heroine, Klara Volkhardt; and Mr. Charles Esdaile as Von Lauffen, and Mr. Richard Fielding as Helbig, were both commendable in their respective parts. Praise is also due to Mr. Kenneth Brampton for his excellent impersonation of Von Howen; and the comedy element was well sustained by Lambert Plummer as Captain Lebdenburg. The part of Captain von B. Bannewitz had an able exponent in Mr. Arthur Stone; and the rôles of Corporal Queiss and Privates Michael and Speiss were well filled by Messrs. Francis J. Bithell, Frederick Clifton, and F. Higton respectively. A fantastic play, entitled A Hundred Years Ago, preceded, and was well received.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh. — This week big houses are attracted by the wrestling act by W. A. Allan; the Brothers Corcoran do a clever musical turn; and Kathleen Coghan sings and dances in a pleasing style. Burns and Burns cause much merriment in their speciality act, "Fun in a Museum"; Ed. E. Forde is most original, and is warmly appreciated; Boy Glenn is a capital Raconteur; and Billy McClain and Co., including Mdlle. Cordelia, are particularly good in a southern scena, "The Hottest Coon in Dixie." Ryder Slone also appears with success, and the Empire pictures are up to date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy. — Herr Fritz, assisted by Mlle. Jeanette, in a clever and mysterious illusion act, is the centre of attraction here; George Reeves scores a success with his mirth-provoking songs; the Ramlos, whirling comedians, in a remarkably smart and humorous comedy act, are deservedly applauded; Miss Daisy Devonport, comedienne and dancer, sings and dances in capital style; the Brothers Pim afford great amusement in "A Pierrot's Nightmare"; the Roman statuary act of The Olmars is a praiseworthy performance; Miss Frances Drew, comedienne, has many admirers; Polo and Florence, in their speciality act, are very good; R. C. Note, with popular songs, is well received; and the bioscope is particularly good, with an interesting film of the wreck of the steamship "Berlin."

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles A. James.—The company engaged here this week includes Jack Danby, comedian; Howard Callor, actor-vocalist; Miss Annie, serio and mandolinist; and Little Prince, comedian and dancer.

DUMFRIES. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne-Seddon.—For three nights this week, commencing Monday, we had Mr. Stanley Carlton's company in A Marriage of Vengeance. The principal part was sustained by Mr. Arthur Dudley in an able manner; Mr. Stanley Carlton as Geoffrey Vannock was well placed; Mr. F. Bulmer Pitt did capable work as Max Rheinhardt; Miss Rubie Maud as Stella was all that could be desired; Miss Lottie Pearce as Amelia was very smart, and Miss Georgina Thames as Elsie Dean was very charming.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The chief turn on the bill is Casey's Circus, which proves most amusing, the burlesque on Dick Turpin's Ride to York being a capital bit of fooling. Edie Gray and her Boys sing delightfully, and get a very warm reception; as does also Mons. Slippere, the clever blind pianist and vocalist. Stave, electric comedy artist, contributes a decidedly novel turn; the Four Poole Pelhams, acrobats; the Zednas Trio, comediennes and dancers; Little Pete, patter comedian; and Reed and Stevens, in their duologue, Married or Photographed, are well received, and the Bioscope, as usual, completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Schilling, the man who walked round the world for a wager, is proving a big draw here. Ghita Corrie, dramatic soprano, is also a trump card; and Spencer and Marks, comedians, likewise score a decided success. Jimmy Charters, in song and dance, and the Farrows, in a well-worked sketch, contribute enjoyable items. Some capital new films are exhibited on the Bioscope. The Original Lancashire Harmony Boys, assisted by Mr. Cliff Dover, appear with great success in their vocal scena, Home for the Holidays. Daisy De Roy has been retained, and is repeating her success of last week. A capital sketch, entitled What Will Happen Next, in which quite an array of talent appears, is a strong item.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A very strong bill is presented here this week, Fred Karno's troupe of acrobats and comedians appearing in that laughable burlesque, The Early Birds and the equally funny Mumming Birds. The other turns appearing are of a high-class order, and include Lillie Stuart, a dashing comedienne and dancer, who scores a terrific hit; Charles Denion, eccentric comedian; Lincoln and Warren, trick cyclists; the Sisters Lavender, and the Miltons, a smart comedy duo.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE. —Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Company; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—On Monday a successful flying matinée was given here. Miss Phyllis Dare proved a great favourite, and gave her songs in her light, graceful manner. Miss Marie Dainton very charmingly imitated popular artists; Cazabon delighted the audience with his fine violin-playing; Miss Gwendolin Hart held the audience with her recitations; and Mr. Lewis King was highly amusing in his tales and sketches. The stage was occupied during the latter part of the week by Mr. H. B. Maltby's company in Sir George of Almack's and The Youngest of Three.

PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes. — Mr. Alec. Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company is apearing here in The Angel of Unrest. Premier honours must be awarded to Mr. Henry Belding for his fine work as Papa Bombasse; Mr. Alec. Flood is a realistic Napoleon; Mr. Creagh Henry as Paul Brandt gives a refined and finished performance; Mr. Alexander Bradley is a smart Captain Lemesnil; and Mr. Richard A. Greene, the author, is a capital Colonel Bernaise. Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice is a fine General Renaudot; Mr. James Chippendale is an interesting Herr Kolsch; and Mr. Laurence Vining and Mr. Gerald Clarke lend able assistance as Lepine and Gronwetter. Miss Florence Tressilian is a pretty and dramatic Julie, Miss Rita Imeson a bright and pert Lisette, and Miss Patti March an effective Madame Renaudot.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—The attraction here is Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Love that Women Desire. Mr. J. G. Stewart plays a strong part as Squire Abingdon; the character of Richard Abingdon is capably undertaken by Mr. Alfred Brandon; the Philip Carnaby of Mr. Jerrold Heather is good; Dr. Brandreth is well depicted by Mr.

The Four Royal Welshmen give a very enjoyable rendering of glees and part-songs; Miss Kate Traill is an acceptable entertainer at the piano; Mr. George Ridgwell appears as a versatile vocalist; the Fitzroys show skill on the trapeze; the Three Missouris put in some really hard knockabout work; Ben Harris's Nippers provide singing, dancing, and boxing varieties; the Knick-Knacks introduce several catchy duets; the Bioscope shows some interesting and amusing films; and Hurley and Cole contribute their appropriate scena, Let Bygones Be Bygones.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—This place of entertainment, after having undergone many changes of fortune, seems, under the present management, to have, at last, settled down to a period of prosperity. The programme this week is of a pleasantly-diversified character, and includes, amongst other clever artists, the Five Abadoroffs, in a genuinely-funny act entitled Prehistoric Times. The Sisters Poole are great favourites, and dance and sing in an exhilarating style; Miss Elsie Earle is a tasteful vocalist, and her songs are heartily applauded. Mr. Fred Yates, an effective baritone singer, Messrs. Hennessey and Martell, humorists and dancers, Mr. Percy Floyd, descriptive vocalist, and the Alhambrascope are also on the bill.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Little Red Riding Hood, produced by Mr. John A. Thomson's company, continues to draw large and appreciative audiences. Miss Ella Willmer in the title-rôle, and Miss Beatrice Varley as the Prince are great favourites; Mr. Fred Latimer as the Dame and Mr. George Newham as the Baron greatly enhance their reputation; while Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Green and Mr. Lovell Rowland as Simple Simon continue to amuse with their smart gags and local topical allusions. Miss Fay Desmond proves herself to be a fine operatic vocalist; the Boultons are smart burlesque artists; and Pulo is a clever boy juggler. Mlle. Bartenelli is a marvellous lady bender and gymnast.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Held Apart; or, The Painted Woman, was the title of the drama presented on the first three nights of the week by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company. Mr. H. K. Ayliff, as the adventurer, played admirably. He has a fine stage presence and a capital voice. Miss Ethel Murray took the part of Countess de Castro, and acted very well; Miss Ruby Loncraine as Sybil Grey was very pleasing, both in voice and manner; Mr. Leonard Lawrence, as the Laird of Glen Ross, played excellently; Mr. Robert B. Drysdale appeared as the Scottish shepherd, a character he represented with marked ability; as Lady Grant, Miss Winifred Love was charming; Mr. E. G. Batley proved irresistible in his light comedy work.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is here in Home, Sweet Home this week. On Friday The Sorrows of Satan was played. Miss Zeila Zillwood gives a pleasing and sympathetic reading of Joan; Mr. Arthur Hinton as Stephen Armitage displays excellent abilities; Mr. Frank Hudspeth as David Armitage is a typical old "salt"; Mr. Arthur Lowry's Duke of Ancaster is good; Mr. Tom G. Warren as the Hon. Percy Ashfield causes amusement; Mr. Travis Green is all that can be desired as Lucas Lyle; Mr. W. Graham Walters plays Dick Redmayne excellently; Sal has a suitable representative in Miss Constance Cluer; Miss Jennie Clare is especially good as Sybil Fay, and scores a success in a song and dance; Little Dolly Turner is a sweet and natural Dora; and Mr. Lester Aims is well chosen for the part of Solomon Keary.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Large and enthusiastic audiences have given Ada Colley a hearty welcome on her third visit here within twelve months. There is no more popular artiste visits this town. Leo Dryden is also accorded much applause for his excellent songs; H. O. Wills is as quaint a personage as we have seen here; McCann's performing Irish terriers provide an enjoyable "turn"; Johnson and Devere win praise for a clever cycle act; Carl Howard, with his bluff conjuring, causes great amusement; Lily Foy, comedienne, and pictures by Vernon's bioscope make up a good entertainment.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company, in the drama, The Manxman, have drawn large audiences here this week. Mr. Cross, in the part of Pete, which, by the way, he has played over 1,500 times, acts with his usual success; Miss M. Watersford depicts in a clever manner Kate Cregeen; Philip Christian receives excellent treatment at the hands of Mr. Sydney D. Kearns; Cæsar Cregeen is successfully portrayed by Mr. Frank Etheridge; Miss Nellie Freeland does exceedingly well in the part of Nancy.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company, in As Midnight Chimes, provides the fare at this house. Mr. Percy Maitland's impersonation of Luke Dezzard is a good piece of work; a capital Dave Stannard emanates from Mr. C. B. Williams; Mr. Herbert Pearce is seen to advantage as Ezra Gamble; a humorous Tat Spavvin is presented by Mr. James Salter; Miss Maud Hastings supplies an effective portrayal of Maud Stannard; and Miss Madge Beresford is highly diverting as Suzette. Special mention should be made of Miss Marion Ryder's Little Davy.

GLASGOW.—King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—A crowded house welcomed Mr. Martin Harvey on Monday, and followed with interest his acting as the twin Dei Franchis in The Corsican Brothers. The play was no doubt a novelty to most of the audience, as it has not been played in Glasgow for many years. The performance was a very fine one, and Mr. Harvey was equally happy as the impulsive Fabien dei Franchi or as the more dreamy Louis. The vision scenes were wonderfully well done, and the duel in the last act was powerfully realistic as to acting; while as an example of stage-setting it was most picturesque. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd as Chateau Renaud played the cool man of the world with incisive effect, and his share in the duel scene was particularly fine. Miss Mary Rorke acted with quiet pathos as the mother of the twin Corsicans; and Miss Coleridge ably filled the part of Emilie de Lesparre. Mr. Albert E. Raynor was well placed as the Baron de Montgiron; and Mr. George Cooke gave dramatic force to the part of Baron Martelli. The rival heads of the two families, who have a vendetta to settle, were amusingly played by Mr. Fred Wright, sen., as Colonna, and Mr. Philip Hewland as Orlando. Mr. Alfred Mansfield as Meynard, Mr. P. Alexander as Boissec, and the ladies in the bal masque scene, lent able support. At the conclusion of the play Mr. Martin Harvey had to respond to the warmth of his reception in a few words of thanks.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company commenced a two weeks' engagement on Monday with the fairy-dream play Bluebell in Fairyland. The part of Bluebell is taken by Miss Mamie Finbow, who gives a pleasing depiction of the little flower girl; Mr. Lawrence Emery, a promising young actor, does well as Dickie, the crossing-sweeper; the parts of Mr. Toplin and the Sleepy King form an effective contrast as played by Mr. Frank Lennard; Mr. Harry Douglas extracts a deal of fun from the two characters he impersonates (Policeman and Reigning King); two hard-working comedians, Messrs. T. H. Bishop and Charles Resti, successfully undertake the parts of footmen in the play and the schoolboys in the dream; in the agreeable rôle of the Good Fairy Miss Vera Visard makes a hit with the song "Moon, dear!"; as the Queen and the Water Lily, Miss Constance St. Bride sings in good style; the cat, Peter, is well represented by Mr. W. Blincoe; while some smart dancing is done by the San Remo Girls.

Grand, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—This week, beginning on Tuesday, performances of Offenbach's famous comic opera The Grand Duchess are being given by the Glasgow College of Music Operatic Society, one of the best of our local organisations. The proceeds are devoted to charity.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—After a highly-successful run of over thirteen weeks, the pantomime of Mother Goose is now on its last days, and is as popular as ever. The Sisters Hall had a benefit on Monday, when they were assisted by a number of artistic friends, and Mr. Waldon's benefit took place on Thursday, when more extraneous talent was forthcoming. But after Saturday the pantomime must be withdrawn, to make room for other engagements.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—This week Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company is appearing at the Metropole in that well-known detective play The Bank of England. As Sherlock Holmes, Mr. Lester himself appears, and holds the audience right through with his powerful and capable acting; Mr. G. Clifton Boyne has a heavy part as Stephen Hartley, and plays it with much zest; Mr. J. H. Firman makes a capital Sir Sydney Barraclough; much amusement is caused by Mr. F. C. Berridge as the dude, the Hon. Bertie Burlington; Mr. F. Ernstone does exceptionally well as Godfrey Dane; Mr. Harry Wood as Eric Dane acts in an able manner; while as Gordon Isaacs, Mr. Edmond O'Grady makes himself a favourite. Much of the fun of the play comes from Tommy Sprouts (a racing man), and in this rôle Mr. Edwin Helm is untiring. Miss Lallah Davis is a capital Aminta Beane, and to this talented actress much of the play's success is due; as Sylvia Barraclough, Miss Dorothy Riddell does excellently; while the Misses Davenport and Thomas appear successfully as Margaret Dane and Lucy Lockett respectively. The whistling of Mr. Will Whittaker is also much appreciated.

Lyceum.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company opened on Monday in Driven from Home. The cast is a very long one, but we may single out for special notice Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook, Mr. Frederick Sandy as Geoffrey Waring, Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez, Mr. Leonard Aardale as Willie, Miss Enid Wilde as Margaret Bailey, and Miss Beatrice Western as Laura Raybrook and Walter the younger. These principals were repeatedly recalled, and the drama as a whole was much enjoyed.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—A good all-round company is billed here this week, the chief attraction being the engagement of Peter Bannon, wrestler. Auto-Atlas gives a wonderful exhibition of strength; a clever turn is contributed by Albert Whelan, Australian comedian; and the trick violin playing of Chas. Menard met with great success. Other accentable turns include the Robertys, expert dancers; H. C. Barry, comedian; Schenk Bros., hand-balancers; Barrett and Knowles, comedians; the Punch and Judy company of juvenile artists; and the American Bioscope, with new pictures.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The principal turn this week is Pschernoff's trained dogs and ponies; the Arthur Saxon Trio show many astonishing feats of strength and endurance; Dare's Minstrels render some effective harmonised songs, intermixed with comic patter; the De Breans are jugglers of a high class, besides showing surprising facility as shadowgraphists; the Wyffs submit an amusing sketch; Azella Wilson is a daintily graceful performer on the horizontal bar; the Tupps are a pair of funny acrobats, who do daring feats in a comical way; Frank Cass is a clever comedian who is well received; and Johnny Dyer is also a favourite.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Annie Purcell tops the bill here, and this sweet singer contributes several attractive songs. Robert Perris and company cause roars of laughter in a sketch consisting of the Café Riche scene from A Trip to Chinatown; José Collins is a pleasing vocalist; Musical Silvo, on a number of novel and tuneful instruments, contributes some excellent items; Sisters Terry are great favourites here, and their Scotch and Irish medleys take extremely well; Tate and Tate are clever acrobats, with many novel tricks; Kit Keen, coon vocalist, is well received; Larola is an extremely smart juggler and knockabout; Kathleen Gray sings effectively; Fed Box is an eccentric comedian from Australia; Rose Cabani, vocalist and dancer, completing a well diversified programme.

Coliseum. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette. — Fred Karno's sketch Mumming Birds is the principal item in a lengthy programme, and the fun in this lively piece never flags for one instant; Alburtus and Bessie Miller give their smart turn, with cornet playing, club swinging, and some most accurate "dolly" hitting; the Three Prestons, in their Liftman's Rise sketch, are, if possible, funnier than before; Ergotti and King Luis, in their Risley act, deserve the highest praise for their skill and daring; Fernee's Juveniles are a clever crowd of youngsters: Imro Fox, the magician, proves as mystifying as ever; the Students, in a studio scene, contribute some smart songs, &c.; the Garganis are clever acrobats; and J. H. Anthony, Scotch comedian, also deserves mention.

Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Regan and Ryan, comedians and dancers, are the principal attraction here, and are excellent entertainers; Meir and Mora, variety artists, submit a performance that is deservedly applauded. The programme also includes Gertie Douglas, comedienne; the Three De Veres, comedy acrobats; the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; the Sisters Lotus, operatic vocalists; the Danbys, comedians and dancers; Dan Whiteley, eccentric comedian; Raymond and Colby, comedy artists; and the Biograph, with a new set of pictures.

Gaiety, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. H. Bowerman.—Hall and Wilson are smart in their bicycle race; and Barney Noble's songs and patter are vigorously encored. The St. Johns present a musical act both novel and amusing; Ted Curtis and his Piccaninnies are cake-walkers and sand-dancers of ability; Rodin exhibits wonderful skill as a comedy cyclist; Magna elicits much applause for her classical poses; W. H. Smart, comedian, Kitty Lavinge, top-boot dancer, Olive Veno, clog-dancer, and the Bioscope, complete the programme.

GLOSSOP. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Cissy, presented by Miss Gladys Silvester and Mr. Fletcher Sansome's company, is here this week. Miss Hetty Lind, in the rôles of Cissy Vere, Florine, and Mike, is exceedingly successful, also singing in good style; Miss Silvester as Mary Hopps is most praiseworthy, her songs, backed up by a good chorus, being much applauded; Miss Dora E. Eastlake represents Olive Temple, an adventuress, in a capable manner; Miss Kitty Vernum (Kitty), Miss Daisy Towers (Sally), Miss Maisie Mills (Daisy), and Miss Kitty Lea (Polly) score a success with songs and dances. Mr. Fletcher Sansome is a droll Titus Thomas, B.A., receiving applause for his song, "Daughters of Eve"; Mr. Harry Vernon gives a fine portrayal of Victor Carleton; Mr. Sydney Humphries gains much favour as Dossy Bowers; and Mr. Basil Mitchell does well as Gilbert Temple.

GLOUCESTER. — Palace. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—A capital programme is provided this week. Clown Barker, with his performing dogs, cats, monkeys, pony, and donkey, has a good reception; the Four Herberts, who bottom the bill, work hard in their acrobatic act to achieve success; Messrs. Ford and Hanson give a musical turn of much merit; and Lorne and Rene, in a singing sketch "Capital and Labour" are in favour. The Sisters Hypatia are smart duettists and dancers; Will Wye, comedian, contributes a couple of eccentric songs; the Paul Hesse Trio, equilibrists and wire-walkers, are wonderfully clever, the juvenile member of the team being entitled to great praise; Carl and Carr are a pair of entertaining comedians; and Miss Billie Burford renders some taking songs. The Bioscope is always worthy of notice.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. J. E. Tomlinson.—Mr. William Campbell's company is presenting here this week the drama A Woman's Constancy. In the principal rôle (Mona Brayton) Miss Alice Defoe gives a very touching and finished representation. Mr. W. Campbell Maxwell makes Stephen Hayes a capital villain; Mr. Albert H. Clarke is well placed as Robert Brayton; Mr. Ernest Foster gives a manly and highly effective portrayal of Lieut. Frank Carlton; Mr. Arthur Weston is clever as Phillip Darcio; Miss Susie Campbell is a pleasing Mrs. Crawford; Miss Phyllis is successful as Bessie White; and Miss May Cross does well as Mabel Joyce. Mr. Ernest Turner as Sam Mudd and Mr. T. Lewis as Tom Meddows are highly successful in their respective parts.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here this week with The Little Breadwinner. Mr. Eugene Santley is excellent as Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Matthew Boulton effective as Richard Lawrance, and the two brothers, Joseph and Charles Prior, are well played by Mr. Alfred Maurice and Mr. Stanley Leedham. Miss Margaret Fulton is sympathetic as Margaret Daventry; Kate and Ruth Cherry find able exponents in Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam and Miss Kitty Melville; and Little Emmie Thomas prettily and cleverly portrays Meg.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, the Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company is here this week. On Monday evening Lôhengrin was presented to a crowded house, and evoked considerable enthusiasm. Mr. Julius Walther appeared as Lôhengrin; his vocalism was particularly fine, and he acted with great ability; Mr. Dillon Shallard was highly successful as Teiramund; Mr. John Ebbeles, as Henry the Fowler, filled the part with great credit, and sang his music excellently; and as the Herald, Mr. Fredk. Clendon deserves mention. For the part of Elsa, a highly accomplished actress and vocalist was found in Miss Grace Nicoll; and Madame Marie Alexander was the Ortrud, and gave an excellent account of herself, both vocally and histrionically. The choruses are sung in praiseworthy style, and the orchestra was all that could be desired. On Tuesday evening The Marriage of Figaro was presented, and received well-merited applause from a large audience. The week's répertoire includes Carmen, Fidelio, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Tannhäuser, and Faust.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The programme this week is headed by Welda and Wynne, speciality artists, who provide an interesting show. An attractive vocalist is seen in Miss Anita Wayman; Helm and Cozens appear in a mirth-provoking sketch, entitled The Doctor and the Patient; Corman's Juveniles, a troupe of attractive young ladies, sing sweetly and dance neatly; Cullen and Carthy, comedy artists and dancers, are exceedingly clever; and the animated pictures conclude.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—This week's attractions include Hardeen, the well-known handcuff manipulator, who submits a clever turn; Bert Dansie, character vocalist, is good; Ada Martine, comedienne and dancer, is favourably received; James A. Reilly, assisted by Miss May Templeton, in The Dutchman and his Girl, are successful; a scene from Davy Garrick, as presented by Ronald Bayne and Evelyn Hope, secures well-merited applause; Robins and Collier, in a musical comedy scena, entitled The Lady and the Porter, please immensely; and the Paviscope pictures complete.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The melodrama, No Wedding Bells for Her, presents many attractive features. The central character of Lola Delaspierre is taken by Miss Lizzie Montague, and her portrayal of the adventuress is very realistic; Lola's companion in crime, Abney Stone, is vividly represented by Mr. Charles Liddon. Mr. Stuart Lomath is a popular figure as the clergyman, Frank Hatherleigh; Mr. Percy Show is sufficiently keen and resolute as the detective, Dick Delver; Mr. Percy Beresford is well adapted to the part of Harold Trevelyn; Mr. George Herbert offers a neat study in character as the old actor, Horatio Fane; Mr. Fred Vaughan is a breezy exponent of the excitable theatre manager, Adonis Tightfist; and Miss Dora Pass is altogether charming as Doris Fane. Mr. Will Skelton and Miss Bessie Franks, in the comedy parts of Simpkins and Peggy, introduce good songs and dances.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—A capital exposition of the mysteries of Ju-jitsu is given by Tarro Myaki, the champion professor of the art. Competitions are being held in connection with this turn. Another popular turn is that given by the Leonard Trio, who are musicians of considerable ability; a sketch, Cockie, by Picton Roxborough and Fanny Wright, is extremely laughable; Bert Harrow sings good comic songs; Ross and Lewis accomplish attractive dancing; and Barney Armstrong, comedian, and Herbert Gunn, a singing collier, complete a good programme.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Hackenschmidt is drawing crowded houses at each performance. The exhibition of the prowess of the world-renowned Russian wrestler is greatly appreciated, and various wrestlers have tried their skill against the champion. Kioto, a Japanese equilibrist, is smart; Lauri Wylie's mannikins are capital imitations of well-known artists; the Seven Wulfrunas give a clever acrobatic performance; and the Kimberley Bros., comedians; the Bros. Levett, vaulters; and Harry Albery, comedian and dancer, also contribute good turns.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Enthusiasm was manifested here on Monday when, after a lengthy absence, the Moody-Manners Opera company opened with Cavalleriana Rusticana and I'Pagliacci to a delighted and crowded house. A magnificent reception was accorded Miss Enriqueta Crighton, whose assumption of Santuzza was admirable; Mr. Seth Hughes achieved distinction as Turiddu; as did Mr. Marshall Vincent as Alfio, the singing of both being superb. Miss C. Oxley was successful in the small rôle of Lola. In I'Pagliacci the acting and tenor singing of Mr. Chas. Carter as Beppe made a marked impression, and Mr. George Neilson came in for well-earned applause for his interpretation of the clown Tonio; and Miss Lucie Lever proved quite a favourite as Nedda. The specially-augmented orchestra gave an excellent rendering of the music, and Mr. Harrison Frewin conducted skilfully.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—A strong company is again here, Miss Belle Davis and her "chicks" keeping the audience well amused, the singing and antics of the juveniles being indeed smart; Athelstane Lee, a well-known baritone, delights with excellent songs; Belle Greene scores well with clever imitations of juveniles; Little Don causes roars of laughter with his whimsical portrayal of a Life Guardsman; George C. Doughty and company in Captain Cupid, a refined comedy, is proving attractive; Derenda and Green in a club-swinging act are also enthusiastically received; H. E. High, a grotesque comedian, and the Whitworth Cycling Girls are exceptionally brilliant in their respective lines.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Miss Alexandra Dagmar, the popular comedienne, is applauded in unmistakable fashion; Charles Vandyke and company in Nicodemus are up-to-date in every detail; G. W. Hunter is to be relied upon as a raconteur; the Maitland Trio in "The Picture," Les Frasettis, Minnie Fenton, and Gladys Witton participate in a good bill.

HANLEY. — Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company opened here on Monday in The Blue Moon. As Private Taylor Mr. Reginald Switz is irresistibly amusing; Moolraj finds a capital exponent in Mr. Alfred Bees; Mr. Alfred Clark as Major Callabone plays with excellent effect; Mr. J. E. Fraser is well placed as Captain Jack Ormsby; as Bobbie Scott Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., does well; Mr. T. Holding contributes a capital performance as the Prince; as Chandra Nil Miss Clarice Lockstone is all that could be desired; Miss Florence Imeson works admirably as Millicent Leroy; Miss Callanan and Miss Mabel Lorrell are well suited to their respective parts. The mounting and dressing are first-class.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—Mark Sheridan returns once more, and, as usual, is a great success. The Lindon Vaudevilles' artistic vocalism and dancing is admirable; the Sisters Onetti contribute a gymnastic turn which is novel and exceedingly clever; Barrington plays the piano skilfully in difficult positions; Renson and Waite are effective comedy artists and patterers; Paulinetti and Piquo are a pair of entertaining and clever gymnasts; Odeyne Spark is a chic comedienne, with good songs; Frank Leslie has a capital song in "I've been dreaming"; and the Bioscope shows some entertaining pictures.

Victoria Hall.—Two capital audiences on Tuesday welcomed the Zancigs in their mystifying thought-reading performance. Included in the programme is Miss Ethel Grimes, a charming light soprano, whose songs with own violin obbligatos were a great feature of the entertainment, her "Ave Maria" being vociferously encored; Miss Clara Alexander in her plantation songs was most successful; Mr. Sydney Jarvis rendered "A corporal's ditty" well; "The Prologue" from Pagliacci was admirably sung by Mr. David Brazell; Mr. E. Thornley-Dodge is diverting in his sketches, and Mr. Harold Scott is an excellent solo pianist and accompanist.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—Hardie and Von Leer's company came here on Monday for three nights in the ever-popular drama Two Little Vagabonds. George Thornton was well played by Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne; and Captain Darville had an able exponent in Mr. Sidney Vautier. Miss Grace Heywood as the sorrowful Mrs. Thornton was excellent throughout; Miss Rosslyn Vane was good as Mrs. Scarth; Miss Edie Martin as Dick and Miss Josie Beltram as Wally were both well placed; Miss Shaw made a good Biddy Mullins; and Mr. Lionel Ellis an efficient Bill Mullins. Mr. Harry F. Wright in the small part of Leeson was excellent.

HARTLEPOOL. — Empress. — Proprietors, Messrs. Everton and J. W. Cragg; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The programme submitted for this week is resulting in houses filled at every performance. The principal attraction is the Lorch Family, risley acrobats, whose exhibition is carried out with wonderful dexterity and precision. Bob Selridge, a pantomime favourite, has a warm welcome; Selma Braatz, a talented young lady, performs some astounding juggling feats; sweet Mollie Woolstenholme is gaining numerous new admirers; the contortions of Burley and Burley take well; Joe Cookson's ventriloquial act is somewhat novel and decidedly clever, and some pretty dancing is done by dainty Bertha Norwood.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company occupy the boards this week. A good beginning to the evening is made by the comedietta, Obliging a Friend, in which Mr. Sydney Lynn, playing as Frank Dutton, is well supported by Mr. Legal Robinson as Julius Wopper. Miss Amy Fanchette makes much merriment as Mrs. Wopper, and Miss Gertrude Tate is pretty and merry as Ellen Audrey, and Miss Dorothy Hullah does well as the perplexed Susan. This is followed by the very fantastical farce, The Electric Man, and here Mr. Bernard Copping plays very cleverly as Walter Everest, the scientist inventor, and assumes the rôle of his invention—the electric man—the dual rôle so perplexing to his friends, and which he plays with much alertness. He has able support from Mr. Sydney Lynn as Jack Strange, Mr. L. Robinson as Mr. Jobbins, Mr. Chris Grose as General Pomeroy, and Miss Amy Fanchette as the buxom landlady, Mrs. Anderson. The Misses Dorothy Hullah, Gertrude Tate, and Isa Bellington complete the cast. All do their best with the incongruous improbabilities of the story.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Miss Maude Fergusson and company are appearing here in the military drama, His Excellency the Governor. In the title-rôle Mr. W. Kirkwood is quite at home, and gives a natural impersonation of the part; Mr. Wentworth Fane puts plenty of healthy vigour into his embodiment of Captain Carew; Mr. Ellis Carlyle gives a characteristic sketch of Bavenstock, the secretary. A sturdy and convincing rendering of Captain Rivers is submitted by Mr. George Marriott, jun.; Miss Maude Fergusson is delightful as Stella de Gex; Miss Violet Agnew makes a charming Ethel Carlton; a touch of distinction is given to the part of Mrs. Bolingbroke by Miss M. Souter.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The programme this week is drawing a host of admirers, and is opened by the versatile comedienne Miss Sadie Stanley. Cline and Clair engage in a laughable sketch which is much applauded; the eccentric comedian, J. C. Morris, gives another well-appreciated turn; Maitland and Homer are associated in a musical and novel comedy act; Mr. Dudley Hayes as a character-comedian is accorded a hearty reception; the Sisters Richmond's Californian Girls are graceful dancers, and achieve a great success. A remarkable exhibition of thought transmission is shown by the Two Howards: it is a truly wonderful performance; an excellent vocalist is seen in Miss Ethel Arundel; the Brontes conclude a good entertainment by a delightfully-rendered comedy duologue.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Barnsley.—Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk's company in Wep-ton-No-Mah made a welcome appearance on Monday, and met with marked approval from a packed house. Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk plays admirably in the title-rôle; Mr. C. W. Charles sustains the part of Colonel Stockton with good effect; Mr Edward Leroy gives a capable rendering of Manuel Lopes; Messrs. Guy Hackney and Dan Ryan as Sam White and Curry Cullen cause roars of laughter.

HOYLAND.—Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company opened on Monday night with The Silent Witness. Mr. Aubrey Carrington gave an excellent interpretation of Philip Meredith; and Mr. F. H. Neville as Ian Vedder was all that could be desired. Mr. W. H. Irving as Mr. Meredith and Mr. J. Holt as Tom Lockwood were very good; Mr. Fawcett Lomax as Joe Jorum caused great hilarity; Miss Marie King is an admirable Polly Lockwood; Anita was played with spirit by Miss Dolly Bell; and Miss Ethel Whitely as Estelle Meredith gave a good account of herself.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company, playing His House in Order, is a thoroughly capable combination. First place must be ceded to Miss Dorothy Grimston, whose Nina is conspicuous for the delicate yet entirely firm touch called for by the character. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart's agreeable stage presence, added to his ripe experience, make Hilary Jesson the dominant individuality he is intended to be; Mr. J. Edward Pearce is successful as Filmer Jesson; Miss Doris Champion is natural as the boy Derek; Miss Jean Cadell makes a most vivacious Mlle. Thomè; and the Ridgeleys, father and mother, son and daughter, are capably represented by Mr. Herbert Lomas, Miss Augusta Haviland, Mr. Ernest R. Hollway, and Miss Elaine Sleddal. The comedy is very completely staged.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The famous musical family, the Savonas, are putting the holding capacity of the hall to its severest test, crowds attending nightly to show the appreciation they feel for the musical treat provided by the Temple of Orpheus. Six of the same troupe as the Cycling Elliotts show a wonderful skill in this accomplishment. Other turns on the excellent bill are Miss Florence in her popular illustrated songs; Jack Martin, actor vocalist; the Four Colonials, in a prettily-arranged song scena; Edwin Brett and Emmeline Orford in their merry duologue, The Two Lovebirds; Senorita Eloma, a graceful trapeze artist; Miss Rose Harvey, comedienne; Milner Verren, tenor; and some new pictures on the biograph.

HULL. — Theatre Royal. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The latest success at this house is All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. Its complications, cleverly contrived by its author, are such as to keep the audience amused through the whole of the play. No better Peggy could be found than Miss Decima Moore, whose naturalness is well worthy of imitation by other artists; she realises every phase of the rôle. The Jimmy of Mr. Lionel Glenister is a splendid companion picture, and he is seen to the best advantage in the pretty little love episodes. As Lady Crackanthorpe Miss Kate Wingfield has all the attributes of the society lady; the Mrs. O'Mara of Miss Naomi Neilson discloses all the raciness of the Emerald Isle. The Lady who Dwelt in the Dark, a dramatic episode, precedes the comedy.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Muller.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy, now in the eighth year of its tour, is proving attractive at the Grand this week. Being something out of the common, it catches on to the taste of the audience, who do not care for stereotype conventional entertainment. The dainty dances and sweet songs of Miss Nellie Harcourt (Judith) and the sparkling wit of Mr. Bert Edwards (Silas Crump) are notable features. The plantation scena with the children is also much admired. The variety turns and the atmosphere of Bosco's circus are all admirable in themselves. Miss Marie Vere is a soprano vocalist of no small power.

Alexandra Theatre. — Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Spider and the Fly, from the pen of those talented collaborators Tatton Vane and Arthur Shirley, is a play above the average; its incidents are exciting, its episodes interesting. As the hero Mr. Benson North is well suited; Miss Amy Venimore gave a subtle rendering of the Spider; whilst as the heroine Miss Nina Vaughton was most charming. The comedy rôles were successfully filled by Mesdames Ada Palmer and Lucy Murray and Messrs. Charles Preece and Charles Russell.

The Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Fred Ginnett's company of boy cavalrymen, whose display of horsemanship is very smart; Arthur Leonard is as popular as ever; and the reappearance of Chris Richards is very welcome. The Three Amaranths give an expert exhibition of acrobatic dancing; and other artists include Cliff Ryland, Edie King, Jimmy Shields, Lizzie Fletcher, and the Howards.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Stingsby.—Will May and Theresa, very clever performers, top the bill; Blanche and Diacott go through a thrilling performance; comic vocalists are well represented by George Hyam, Nellie Rose, and Allen Amber. Gettmah, a mystifying magician, and Kelly and Kelly complete an excellent programme.

The Hippodrome.—Lessees, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Tom Foy and company appear in two of their celebrated sketches; J. A. Hall, the popular eccentric comedian, makes a big hit; the Dancing Gilberts are good exponents of the terpsichorean art; and other good turns include Harry Levaine and Toney and Novel.

The Circus.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are still drawing record houses.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. F. F. A. Rogers.—The drama £1000 Reward is being played here for five nights by the company of Messrs. Pitt and Halling, the remaining evening being set apart for the production of The Robe of Righteousness.

Queen's Palace of Varieties.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Sterling and Cashen, duettists, head the bill, and win admiration; Knoto, contortionist, is good in his line; Flo Varley, serio, secures marked attention; Frank Sterling, comedian, Neil Hardy, comedian, and Eric Kino, comedian, also appear.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Miss Elaine Verner and Mr. Harding Thomas and company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, when the Middleman was played. Mr. Thomas appeared to great advantage in the title-part, and was repeatedly applauded throughout. Miss Ver

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Fred Ginnett and Co. are presenting the new equestrian sketch, Dick Turpin's Ride to York, in bright and attractive style; Russell Wallett, who made a big hit as the dame in the recent Royal pantomime, continues his success here; a big reception is accorded Andrew Roy, a tenor vocalist of more than average ability; Simms and Simms, the comedy instrumentalists, furnish ten minutes of uproarious merriment; and broad comedy is also the feature of a burlesque sketch by the Two Bostons. The Neilson Sisters make a successful appearance with a novel specialty; Ailsa Douglas sings in charming style; Charles Dillon is a comedian of merit; and Gogin and Davis, with comic acrobatics, prove vastly amusing.

NEW PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—There is a generous programme of good things here, Herbert Lloyd, leading with his grotesque comedy turn, which is productive of uproarious merriment; effective classical groupings by the Three Olympiers form an artistic and enjoyable turn; a dramatic sketch, by Grahame and Harrington, makes a big impression; a couple of favourite comedians, Morny Cash and Ernest Rees, are in the bill. The Westwoods are a couple of exceedingly clever trick cyclists; Lyric and Austin please in eccentric comedy; a smart comedy juggling turn by Burnetti and Corrie is well received; and Maud Wilton, comedienne, is also a popular contributor.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Mr. John Tiller's admirable production of Aladdin again takes up the major portion of the evening. In addition, capital variety turns are submitted with considerable success by The Juanitas, wonderful Spanish acrobats; Myra Love, comedienne; Katie Marsh, vocalist and dancer; and the Society Quartette in vocal entertainment.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is here this week in The Beauty of Bath, In the title-rôle Miss Gladys Guy is seen to great advantage; Mr. Leslie Holland, a very clever artist, scores as Lieutenant Richard Alington, R.N.; Mr. Jack Crichton is most amusing as Sir Timothy Bun; Mr. Reggie Grey, as Lord Quorn, is to be complimented on a clever performance; Mr. Sheriff Clunes as the actor, Beverley, makes an excellent impression; and vivacious Miss Jessie Fraser as the actress, Miss Truly St. Cyr, is a smart dancer. Mr. Sydney Grata is very good as Lemon Goodge; and Mr. Frederick C. Leister is capital as Viscount Bellingham. Miss Edith Cruikshanks plays extremely well as Mrs. Alington; Miss Ida Laurie, as Mrs. Goodge, is a success; Miss Maggie White is popular and clever as the Hon. Dorothy Bun; Mr. John Valentine as the Earl of Orpington, and Miss Florence Hylton as Lady Bun, are also deserving of much praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's capable company in the military play, Revenge, is the attraction here this week. A fine performance of the part of Prince Orloff is given by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson; Mr. George Daiper is all that can be desired as Captain Loris Vanessa; Mr. Lancelot Usher, as Captain David Carr, R.N., merits praise; Miss Amy Ellam plays well as Draga Vanessa; and Miss Violet Carlyle makes a good impression as the Queen. Rogues and Vagabonds was underlined for Friday.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—A most welcome reappearance of Hetty King, the clever and versatile male impersonator, is the chief item in this week's programme. A well-played dramatic episode, entitled The Mystery of the Cliff, by Will Evans and Tom Craven, is another enjoyable and interesting feature; Gladys Mavius has a delightful song-scena entitled "Rosie is Waiting," being assisted by a clever youngster called Dot; Orpheus delights all with his musical scena; Newhouse and Ward create great merriment with their clever and humorous cycle act; Harry Welldon, comedian, whose name does not appear on the programme, evokes the heartiest of laughter; Clarence C. Corri's company presents a pathetic musical episode, entitled Heart Strings, introducing the clever violinist, Miss Gladys Hooley; Ike Scott and Son are funny comedians; and Nora and Flora in a vocal and musical quick-change act also appear. The bioscope depicts "The Wreck of the 'Berlin,'" &c.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Frank Hardie and company, in the exciting dramatic episode, The Turn of the Tide, take the lead here this week. The sketch is most cordially received. The variety part of the programme is contributed to by Madge Daley, a smart burlesque actress; the Brothers Mills, clever acrobats; Johnny Worman, a mirth-provoking character comedian; Simosa San, in her pretty juggling act, introducing pigeons; Mlle. Sylvester, in a clever speciality act; and Dave McNiel, comedian. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, depicting "The Wreck of the 'Berlin,'" and other pictures, well maintains its immense popularity here.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. Chas. Harrington and company are this week paying a welcome return visit with the evergreen Uncle Tom's Cabin. Uncle Tom has a faithful exponent in Mr. J. Carr; Mr. Leslie Beaufort gives a good account of George Harris; and Phineas Fletcher, the Quaker, receives careful treatment from Mr. J. H. Renney; Mr. J. H. Rogers submits an effective rendering of Legree, the slave-owner; Mr. Chas. Harrington is an efficient Mr. St. Clair; Mr. W. Langford creates much amusement as Marks; Miss Sylvia Stella quickly scores a success as Topsy; and Miss Holly Haslewood as Little Eva is very creditable. The specialities in the Plantation scene are greatly enjoyed.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—A strong company, organised by Mr. Fred Benton, gives a good rendering of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's absorbing drama, The French Spy In his original part of Fritz, Mr. Benton repeats an interesting and successful impersonation; Miss Madge Devereux, in the name-part, and Miss Harrison Tate, as an adventuress, sustain their respective rôles with conspicuous ability; the hero, Captain Sommers, is well represented by Mr. Beresford Lovett; and the Count Romanoff of Mr. Max Coutts lacks nothing of requisite stage villainy. A refreshing vein of humour running through the piece is effectively worked by Mr. Charles Digby as a Russian dude, Mr. Seymour Perry as a waiter, and Miss Ella Seton as Julie of the halls

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—An admirable company, under the direction of Mr. M. V. Leveaux, is appearing here this week in The Morals of Marcus. Mr. Locke's brilliant work met with ready acceptance, and the crisp, telling dialogue in it was richly enjoyed. To Mr. H. Nye Chart was extended a flattering reception for his fine and finished picture of the bachelor philanthropist; Miss Hilda Antony readily gained the favour of her audience for what was an excellent idea of the adventurous Carlotta, an exacting rôle; every praise is due to Mr. H. Nye Chart, whose talents were seen to advantage in the part of Mrs. Mainwaring; the characters of Mrs. Ordeyne and Miss Dora were ably undertaken by Miss Mary Weigall and Miss Gladys Purnell respectively; Mr. David Domville did the most with Sebastian; a praiseworthy Antoinette comes from Miss Eleanor Gilbart; and other members of the company who distinguished themselves were Mr. A. H. Leveaux (Hamdi), Mr. Cecil Brooking (Stenson), Miss Mary O'Neill (Lady Wynn), and Miss Conyers Radcliffe (Mrs. McMurray).

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Village Blacksmith pays a return visit here this week, Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's able company staging it in good style. Mr. Sam Livesey repeated his effective representation of John Strong, earning loud applause; Mr. Joseph Carter's picture of the scoundrel, Captain Leo, was as excellent as ever; Miss Maggie Edwards made a tender Kate Strong; the child Harry found in Miss Bertha Hanbury an intelligent exponent; and a deal of humour was provided by Mr. George V. Campbell, as Billy Twigg, Mr. T. E. Marshall (Parkins), and Mrs. T. C. Livesey (Sal).

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Excellent business is being done here with The Beauty of Bath, which puts in a second week. Mr. Seymour Hicks and his charming wife must feel highly pleased at the cordiality of the welcome that has been extended to them.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The programme of considerable attraction is headed by E. Hoggan Armadale in a piece entitled The Sleigh Bells, which draws forth commendable and deserved applause, the acting being most dramatic, displaying the histrionic abilities of E. Hoggan Armadale to advantage; Mlle. Roza's troupe of dogs greatly pleases the audience, for a finer exhibition of animal training would be hard to meet with; the peculiar and original equilibristic movements of Frank Maura are applauded; Harry Rogerson is the cause of much amusement; the Smythsons, in their sketch, Love Germs, also assist in this line; other turns well worthy of mention being by Lottie D'Abley, T. E. Johnson, Bake. and Lindsay, and the Lorrisons.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—As on its previous visit here, At Cripple Creek has done capital business, the "house full" boards being used during the week. Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company presented the work. Mr. Stanley Bedwell played well as Joe Mayfield; Miss Agnes Verity handled the part of Dynamite Ann with credit; and other well-represented characters were those of Martin Mason (Mr. Eric Hudson), Manuel Alvarez (Mr. Oscar Power), Belle Gordon (Miss Lily Beagle), while pretty songs and dances were introduced by Miss Daisy Carlton and Mr. Will Hook, who as Leander, was particularly funny. Little Rosie Hopkins proved delightful as Little Tatto.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Gunner Moir, a champion boxer, is top of the bill here this week, and his severa. bouts with opponents have proved a strong attraction; the posing of "The Modern Venus" has been much admired; Harwood's Juveniles provided a pretty scena, A Children's Christmas Eve: some particularly clever samples of club juggling and hoop rolling come from the Four Geraldos; William Gourlay aroused much laughter with his sketch, The Return of Hamlet; Keen and Waller, eccentric comedians, provided food for merriment; as did the Bros. Ashley, with their boxing act, Next, Please; and also in the list were Mlle. Pollo, gymnast; Robbie Roy, dancer and comedian; Mabel La Blanche, vocalist; and Julian Mack, with plenty of capital patter.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Royal stock company were this week presenting On Circumstantial Evidence. Strickland, Francis E. Wybert, H. G. Brandon, Miss Lina Nazeby, Miss Florence Barnes, and Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate, Ltd.; General Director, Mr. Walter De Frece.—The Park Palace stock company here is doing good business, the drama presented this week being What Women Suffer. Mr. Albert Sember takes the parts of John and Wilfred Coventry with credit; and other principal characters are in the keeping of Messrs. Walter Foster, Albert Guyon, and Will Percy; Miss Lilian Burns, Miss Nelson Ramsay, and Miss Violet Barley Clarke.

WESTMINSTER. — Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—N. C. Bostock, a favourite here, heads the bill, and sings some of his latest songs; a smart ventriloquial act is provided by La Diable Rouge; Lillie Le Breton goes through some graceful trapeze work; the McKays are an amusing pair of comedians and clever lightning oil painters; Joe Conway, the "pocket comedian" proves very diverting; Ted Waite has several taking songs; and Nellie Elaine sings and dances very daintily.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Foremost here this week is Van Biene with his clever playlet, The Master Musician, which has proved very enjoyable; Kreamer and Brawn's American racing act, which includes a test of speed between a ridden horse and a cyclist, caused some sensation; Carney and Armstrong entertained immensely with their singing, dancing, and whistling act; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas exhibited their fine vocal powers in Her Birthday; the Sisters Grovini are graceful acrobats; Bijou Russell dances in admirable style; and also in the list were Sybil St. Elmo, vocalist; Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne and speciality dancer; and Harry Marte, comedian and dancer.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Top of the bill this week are Arthur Rigby and company with the comic opera, The Isle of Ooma, which has afforded general pleasure; Mike S. Whallen has kept his audience in roars of laughter with his merry stories; the hand jumping of the Steineretto troupe has caused surprise; King Kingston, possessor of a capital tenor voice, rendered several pieces, including the picture song, "Doreen," with pleasing effect; as acrobatic dancers the Three Consol Girls want a lot of beating; Barney Fox was as humorous as ever with his ventriloquial show; Lily Tiso proved herself a clever dancer and sweet singer; and the Sisters McNulty, duettists and dancers, with their southern pastimes, and Harry Clifford, comedian, also appeared.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—Hill and Whitaker, a smart couple, pay a return visit here with their scena of music and song; James Fawn brings his latest successes; Gertie Gitana, a versatile young comedienne, has a good reception; R. T. Meikle renders several capital Scotch baritone songs; Oakley and James prove very diverting; the remarkable dancing of the Ongars is loudly applauded; as a mimic of animals Carl Lynn is to be commended; Little Salvino gives an able turn as a juvenile instrumentalist; and Harry Cotton, comedian, is also in the list.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee, Mr. J. S. Childs.—Harry Calden and company remain another week playing the dramatic sketch A Heart of Gold; the Two Kings, American speciality artists, prove a good turn; Billy Renton is a smart comedian and dancer; and the Sisters Ely show talent as duettists.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Top of the programme here this week is the "great" Vincent, acrobat and tumbler, whose work is good; Walker and Lake have a budget of funny sayings; Joe Dale renders some taking chorus songs; Leo Cromo shows a deal of skill as a paper manipulator, smoke painter, cartoonist, &c.; the Three Behans have a smart show as vocalists, dancers, and comedy quick change arists; and the roller skate dancing of J. H. McCann is much enjoyed.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—This theatre reopened on Monday under entirely new management, the lessee being Mr. Albert E. Vaughan and general-manager Mr. J. Ritson. An orchestra has also been added. Mr. Broadbent Bell's company appeared in the musical farcical comedy Captain Blarney. In the title-rôle Mr. Sam S. Wilford does himself great credit; Mr. Bernard Lovett as Frank O'Driscol acts and sings well, and is ably supported by Miss Ethel Lovett in the part of Emily Banks, her numerous songs being received with applause. Mr. Broadbent Bell as the Rev. Horatio Kneebone evokes uproarious laughter; Miss Norah Coronne as Mrs. Banks plays with much feeling throughout. Miss Louie Lonora (Bella) and Mr. F. Denary (Sam Brown) both do well.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—This week Mr. Hilliard Vox's company is appearing here in the spectacular play, Alaska. Mr. Percy Ballard as Skookum Jim takes the part exceedingly well; Mr. Arthur Rogers as Pompey Cæsar also does remarkably well; Father Bernard is capitally undertaken by Mr. James Fox; as Ned Larson Mr. H. Naylor Grimson gives a fine representation; and Mr. Gilbert James as Malumite Kid is also very good. Miss Maud Wilson in the part of Nelly Samarintha is decidedly clever; Miss Muriel Vox, as Jessie Dalton is most charming and effective; and Miss Violet Crawford as Alaska, an Indian, merits much praise.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Under the Czar, played by Mr. Fred Jarman's able company, has met with acceptance. Mr. Wilson Howard did justice to the character of Nicholas Teroslaff; and Mis Nellie Bonsor exercised much judgment as Sonia Gregorovitch; Captain Johnson had an able exponent in Mr. Gerald Smythe; Miss Beatrice Annesley was an excellent Siomka; Mr. George H. Doyle a capital Zakhar Kovesky; and the rôle of Zara was well acted by Miss Madge Clare. As Michael Granoviski Mr R. Merring was admirable; and Mr. Louis Weston was good as Paul Ignad.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Smith.—A strong attraction this week is Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in The Beast and the Beauty. Mr. Herbert Ford is well placed as Jack Barrymore (the Beast); Miss Lydia Andre as Violet (the Beauty) also appears to advantage; Miss W. E. Passmore submits a careful study of the Earl of Loman; and Messrs. Bernard Mervyn (Harry Denver) and Will Corrie (Tom Chicken) are both very good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. F. Freeland.—In addition to the excellent series of pictures we have Thompson's Juvenile Athletes; Friskey, eccentric juggler; Nelly Duval, American comedienne; and the Smalleys, in their comedy act.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., are at this theatre this week. On Monday they opened with Romeo and Juliet, in which Miss Harris made a fascinating Juliet; and Mr. Cellier gave a romantic rendering of Romeo, the balcony scene being especially good. Miss Turner as the Nurse was capital; Mr. Halford caused some merriment as Peter; and Mr. Stanley Roberts, Mr. A. Cotton Holmes, and Mr. David Santley were excellent as Benvolio, Tybalt, and Friar Lawrence respectively. Much Ado About Nothing, Carmen, and Camille are also in the répertoire.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—A capital variety company is occupying the boards here this week. The Dayton Family give a fine acrobatic performance, and their latest production, Le Rendez-Vous, is refined, clever, and comical. Geo. Gulliver, ventriloquist, gives a turn which pleases everyone; the Cecilian Family, in a musical act, are well received; Frank Coyle, comedian, is amusing; Mlle. Fontain's mannikins cause roars of laughter; the Lauriers give a good turn; and the Percys, statue dancers, are well received.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A good programme is made up of the following: Cline and Clark, duettists and dancers, on a popular return visit; Bromley and Fontein, in their musical sketch A Musical Birthday; Miss Marie Blythe, a popular contralto; Theodore Jones and company, in the operatic scena Jack Sheppard; Arthur Goodman, a clever and funny tramp juggler; the Sisters Edwardes, who dance well; Harry Desmond, comedian; George Davis and company, in a sketch, and the Bioscope.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonston Shirra.—The reappearance of The White Chrysanthemum in Manchester was enjoyed by a fairly good audience at this theatre on Monday. The piece was presented with much vivacity by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, Miss Muriel George being seen to excellent effect in the title-rôle, Mr. Richard Telford playing with capital humour the part of Sin Chong, and Mr. Jamie Dallas sustaining in highly capable style the lively character of Private Perks; while as Lieut. Reggie Armitage Mr. H. Langdon Bruce sang and acted well, Mr. H. E. Garden made an acceptable Chippendale Belmont, and Mr. Shirley Lea gave a good account of himself as the Admiral; Miss Wilmot Karkeek offered a distinctly characteristic interpretation of Cornelia Vanderdecken, and Miss Dorothy Sephton added a pleasing embodiment of Betty Kenyon. A full chorus and an augmented orchestra are among the strong features of the production, which is throughout brilliant, tuneful, and entertaining.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—It is not always that the first appearance in Manchester of a new musical piece is heralded by so enthusiastic a receptpon as that which was accorded to Mr. George Edwardes's See-See, staged at this theatre on Monday night before a crowded house. Whether See-See can be accurately termed a comic opera or not does not seriously matter; the quality of the music and the vocal renderings, together with the brilliance of the staging and the indefatigable spirit of fun which accompanied the action, more than satisfied expectations—it sent the audience into repeated outbursts of delight, which ended finally in a rousing climax of applause as the curtain fell. In the title-part Miss Lily Elsie contributed much to the success by her pleasing personality and vocal talents; a great hit was made by Miss Amy Augarde in a cultured vocal and comedy rendering of Mai-Yai; and Miss Octavia Barry gave proof of her excellent voice as one of the wives of Cheoo; while Miss Topsy Sinden danced with exceeding grace and activity, and smart impersonations of Lee, Humming Bird, and Mrs. Hoang-Wang were given by Miss Alice Hatton, Miss Daisy Wallace, and Miss Adeline Lester respectively. As Yen, Mr. Leonard MacKay gave evidence of his fine voice to such effect that, in one song—"I'm the man of the moment," to wit—the audience was scarcely satisfied after three encores, and his general delivery and perfect ease of expression will be remembered as a triumph. Added to all these, Mr. Frank Danby scored tremendously by his comic rendering of Hang-Kee, and Mr. W. H. Rawlins was at his very best in the part of Cheoo; while a performance of distinct merit was the Hoang-Wang of Mr. Myles Clifton, and all the remaining parts were in good hands.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—A very pleasing performance of The Freedom of Suzanne is the nightly attraction here this week, with Miss Mabel Love in the title-rôle. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is a capable one, providing, in addition to Miss Mabel Love's admirable depiction of Suzanne Trevor, a capital Charles Trevor in the person of Mr. Templar Powell, and excellent interpretations of Fitzroy Harding and Sir Horace Hatton by Mr. F. G. Thurstans and Mr. Patrick Quill; while among the ladies Miss Annie Stalman is an effective Lady Charlotte, Miss Violet Ley is good as Lady Isabel Bury, and Miss Florence Harwood does well as Lady Fanny Minching. Among the remainder of the cast Mr. Richard Neville is amusing as Tommy Keston. The comedy is preceded by a nice little playlet called Her Dearest Friend, which is invariably well received.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company is here this week in the successful drama A Gambler's Daughter, which deals dramatically with gambling and the drink habit, and the redemption of the gambler's daughter from the evil influences of her father's life. Miss Adria Hill has a strong part as the daughter, and fills it admirably, while as the honest Irishman, Desmond O'Dare, Mr. Robert Ayrton is highly successful; Mr. H. Barham gives a manly depiction of Dick, "the Weasel," and Mr. Charles Stirling presents a powerful picture of Stephen Brand, and much amusement is provided by Mr. Alfred Sanders as the Jew, Solomons, and Miss Harriet Lloydall as Auntie Zeb. Others worthy of mention are Mr. Fred Dobell, Mr. Richard Pitt, and Miss Lizzie Gordon.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A capital programme here this week is headed by Amy Anderson and company in A Coster's Honeymoon, and the excellent musical turn of the Five M.P.'s. Other good turns are given by Edwin Garth, a clever comedian; Fred Casburn, novelty comedian; Daisy Palmer, a smart serio and dancer; George Duval, an amusing stump orator; Bruce and Ross, novelty comedy couple; the Edgertons, in a sensational act; Hallam and Stanton, in their smart musical sketch A Broken Journey; and Lily Arthur, the clever "toy" comedienne. The Pictures complete.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Bulmer presents here this week a strong company in a comedy drama entitled When Woman Hates. The cast includes Miss Cissie Dunbar, who gives a powerful depiction of the sinister and deceitful character of Cora Daintry, whose interests dominate the action. Mr. Leslie Lingham adds a bold delineation of Lieut. Fred Rokeby, R.N.; and an outstanding impersonation is that of the child, Nellie, by little Zara Dare.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A popular attraction is here in the shape of Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's drama The Assassin, which is excellently played by Mr. Augustine Knight's company. Mr. Augustine Knight is particularly good as Prince Demetri, whose rival, Ipanoff, is depicted with considerable skill by Mr. Edward E. Ashby; Miss Ella Vane as the Countess Wanda is a strong force in the success of the play, and Miss Hettie Senior is fine as the American girl; while Mr. Tom J. Taylor and Mr. Jack H. Smiths provide humorous interest cleverly. The cast, however, is good throughout, and the staging elaborate and effective.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—This week local audiences have the opportunity of seeing Fred Kitchen in the "Dame" part in Fred Karno's pantomime The House that Jack Built, after its winter success at Glasgow. Needless to say, the fun is of the best kind, and the production generally is worthy of its place in the bill. A smart turn is that of Seeley and West, the black and white musical comedians; and other excellent business is supplied by Stylo, the hoop manipulator; the Rinaldo trio of comedy acrobats; the Australian Twin Andersons, singers and speciality dancers; Chas. Robinson, a capital vocalist, in an illustrated song; Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; and Jessie Buckle, vocalist. The pictures as as good as usual.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Florence St. John tops the bill here this week in a neat comedy interlude, Quits. Frank and Jen Latona make a great hit in their delightful musical comedy act; the Selbins are sensational trick cyclists of a high order; Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten Juveniles are successful in their clever and amusing entertainment; and the Three Tauberts are extraordinary xylophonists; the Collier and his Child are exceedingly smart in their thought-reading performance; Fred Elton, in his speciality, On Board an Ocean Liner, is good; Tom Terris's company, including Mildred Devere, are seen to advantage in a sensational scena, A Night in Montmartre; and Sadie Simpson sings and dances acceptably; Beatrice Vere, of the choir, sings "A picture no artist can paint" (illustrated song) with success; the choir render "The Miller" effectively; and the Bioscope Pictures are good.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—La Belle Tortajada, the celebrated Spanish dancer, is the star attraction here this week, and her singing and dancing are much appreciated. A very fine sketch, The Devil's Sunday (described as a "Tirade") is provided by Cissie Lawson, supported by a capable cast; and G. H. Elliott, fresh from his success at the Theatre Royal, gives a popular turn in his best style. Good turns are added by John Le Hay, in a farcical musical episode; Ethel Walker, entertainer at the piano; Nellie Moore, a clever little lady in character studies from well-known works; Will Van Allen, musician and raconteur; Rose Hamilton, comedienne; Harry Russon, light comedian; and Gregson and Goodfellow, a smart comedy duo. The pictures also are interesting.

GRAND.—Jasper Redfern's animated pictures are excellent and unique. Capital turns are given by Los Granadas on the horizontal bars, and Percy Curry, the "candy man," in a capable vaudeville company.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT. — General Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead.—A Japanese Love Story, presented in capital style by Fred Cooper and a strong company, is here this week. The Tennessee Guards are particularly good in their lightning military manœuvres, and are well received; Lady Julia is a remarkably clever ape· J. W. Gallagher, eccentric comedian, causes much laughter; Phern and Phern, in a delightful musical act, are deservedly applauded; and good turns are also contributed by Sam Redfern, the "Black Emperor"; Nellie Voltaire, comedienne, mimic, and dancer; and Cribb and Cribb in comedy scena; Robert Dohn, as an extra turn, gave a well-received weight-lifting performance. "Love Wins Out" is the subject shown on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—General Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead.—The Smart Set (under the direction of Walter George), including Hilda Light, soprano, and Georgie Martin, comedienne, are to the front here this week in an exceedingly pleasing vocal entertainment; Gus Harris, the Hebrew delineator, in "The Synagogue," is good; Huline and Le May are clever musical clowns; and the Three Royal Temples sing well; Yorkshire Tom is a clever mimic; Billy Richardson, stump orator, is extremely popular; and Harris and Worth are smart sporting comedians and patterers; Bessie Travis is a good musical ventriloquist; and T. C. Edwards, the Australian baritone, sings in good style. "Black and White" and "The Tramp's Revenge" are amusing films shown on the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Florrie Gallimore, the ever-popular comedienne, is the top star here this week, and meets with a flattering reception, her songs being catchy and artistically rendered, as usual; another successful turn is that of the Two Bees (Harry and Flora Blake) in their smart comedy scena, The Man in the Moon; Barbara Babington is a charming vocalist, who sings nicely; Correze and Keith present an amusing and exceedingly clever equilibristic act; and Renee Grahame, a refined vocalist, renders "Mother" in a decidedly effective and pleasing manner; Alf Chester is a capital comedian; and the Passmore Brothers are funny comedians and dancers; the Howes, in their triumph of mental telegraphy, and La Rochelle in new poses, remain here still another week; Josie Delaine did not appear on the occasion of our visit. Raymond's Vivagraph Pictures are good.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—General Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead.—Charles Majilton and a company of forty artists head an excellent programme here this week with a screamingly funny sketch entitled The Trippers, which causes no end of merriment. An exceptionally clever gymnastic turn is given by the Four Rio Brothers; Harry Morris is a capital character comedian; the Saxonias contribute a charming musical mélange and are repeatedly recalled; whilst entertaining items are offered by Frazer and Haley, duettists; Bert and Dora, comedy artists; Nell Cotter, comedienne; and, last, but not least, the Three Coopers, harmonising vocalists. "Oh, that Hat" is the amusing subject shown on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—During this week Mr. Henry Leigh's company has presented The Varsity Belle to good houses. Mr. James Danvers as Professor Stoney enacts his part in an excellent manner; in the parts of Mr. Paton and Gaye Sparkleton, Miss Josephine Ellis is quite at home; Mr. Frank Lilliput in the rôle of Runyard creates laughter; Miss Tessa Myers is charming in the rôle of Maud Stoney; Mr. Edward Chester's interpretation of the part of Theocritus Sparkleton is much appreciated; Eve Stoney is capably played by Miss J. Sullivan; Miss Emma Rainbow is a typical mother-in-law. The one-act play, The Last Hour, precedes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Cecil Clayton.—This week Mr. Robert Perris's company is here in A Fight for Millions. Mr. Roland Kent admirably portrays the character of Tom Manley; in the part of Willie Neverwork Mr. Karl H. Edwards is successful; the heavy part of Richard Dudley is in the capable hands of Mr. Alex. C. Grant; Mr. Harold Turner is well placed as Solomon Moses; Miss Eva Purcell gives a life-like rendition of the part of Pearl Rivers; as Helen Dudley Miss Elma C. Turner plays sympathetically; and Miss Isabel Edbrook is appreciated in the rôle of Mrs. Hudson Rivers. The play is greatly appreciated by the good houses. As usual, the staging was all that could be desired.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Fox.—The Royal Alexander and Vaudeville and Bioscope Company are here this week with an up-to-date series of pictures. In addition to the pictures, good turns are given by Arthur James, versatile artist; Max and Leo, in comedy sketches; and Erni Stuart, light comedy merchant.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Stage and Business Manager, Mr. A. Austin Leigh.—Produced under the stage-direction of Mr. A. Austin Leigh, the Irish play, The Colleen Bawn, has this week been performed by the Margate stock company, and the revival of so old a favourite has been received with enthusiasm. Mr. A. Austin Leigh sustains the rôle of Hardress Cregan successfully; Mr. Robert Grey has been good as Kyrle Daly, and Mr. J. P. Lallen has excellently portrayed the part of the parish priest, Father Tom; Mr. Richard Trieve has done well as Corrigan, the lawyer; and Mr. Hyland Shea has been conspicuous as Myles-na-Coppaleen; Mr. Wallis Clark has been in evidence as Danny Mann, and Miss Emmie O'Reilly has been in her element as Mrs. Cregan. Miss Belle Travers has made a delightful Colleen as Eily O'Connor; and Miss Mabel Archdall has most successfully assumed the rôle of Anne Chute, the heiress. Miss Mary Ford as Sheelah Mann, Miss May Halloran as Ducie Blennerhassett and Miss Gladys Howitt as Kathleen Creagh were each satisfactory in their respective parts. Mr. H. G. Mason as Mr. O'Moore and Mr. Arthur Moyne as Hyland Creagh completed an all-round efficient cast.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—There has been a departure this week from the ordinary variety programme by the introduction of drama sufficiently condensed to permit of two representations each evening. Mr. Arnold Bell's company has been appearing in the stirring drama, Called Back, with Mr. Dave Clark as Dr. Ceneri, Mr. Roy Jackson as Macari, and Miss Lilian Earle as Pauline, who have been conspicuously successful in their respective parts. The principals have been ably supported by Mr. Bernard Mortimer as Gilbert Vaughan, Mr. Jack Graydon as Anthony March, Mr. Sydney Pearson as Captain Kenyon, Mr. Scott Holmes as Captain Varnloff, Mr. Joe Bardsley as the Perisher, Miss S. O. Chisman as Ellen Vaughan, and Miss Kitty Douglas as Priscilla.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—The Harry and Fred Poole's Myriorama has been showing here this week, and depicting in brief the leading events of the world. In addition to the pictures, there is an excellent variety entertainment, which includes George French's troupe of acrobatic cyclists; Mr. Bert Gates, guide and entertainer; Harry Dowsett, eccentric comedian; the Snow Family, knockabout and expert skaters; Learto and his clever dog Babs; Miss Florence Hamilton, soprano; and Houston, magician and illusionist, whose turn is a remarkably smart one. A number of amusing animated pictures add to the interest of the programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis Gilbert.—King's College Boys top the bill here, and supply a pleasing musical turn; Harry Barclay is well received; the Three Firmans afford endless amusement in their pot-pourri act; the Royal Delvines are clever; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, in a comedy sketch, Coming Home, delight their audiences; the Boston Twins are exceedingly amus is effective as Nell Radford; Miss Kate Sylvester is amusing as Sukie; Miss Francis Giddings scores as Laura Rustly. Tuesday was set apart for the benefit of Mr. Neville Courtnay, late of Messrs. Johnson's Theatre, who is about to undergo a serious operation at the Swansea Hospital. An interesting presentation took place on Saturday evening, when the Seven Sisters Collier gave Mr. Haggar a silver-mounted walking-stick suitably inscribed for his kindness in allowing them the use of his theatre for their meetings.

NELSON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Another of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's military dramas, The Traitor, is being played here this week by a capable company. The title-rôle is in the hands of Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon, who as Chief of the Police and No. 1 of the society of anarchists shows powerful acting; Zula, "the avenger," is given a charming delineation by Miss Effie Bartlett; whilst Miss Gwynne Warren represents the important character of Countess Zicha with considerable effect. As Prince Rudolph, the Crown Prince, Mr. Bensley Evans is eminently successful; and the part of Elsie Dupres, the French detective, is attractively played by Miss Lilian Mathews. Miss Isabel Hunt pleasingly portrays Lieut. Nicholas, the Little Martyr; Mr. W. T. Hurst sustains strongly the character of Captain Ross; and amongst other notable players should be mentioned Miss Olive Wanty, who as Cen-Cen, the Japanese, is quite charming; General Hertz, Zoff, and Jack Boult, sustained respectively by Mr. Arthur McColloch, Mr. Edward Lowrie, and Mr. Fred Haming are highly amusing.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal. Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham. — Mr. William Mollison is appearing here this week, in a répertoire of plays comprising Macbeth, The Merchant of Venice, Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, As You Like It, and Richard III. On Monday, Macbeth was staged, the production being in every respect in keeping with Mr. Mollison's reputation as an actor-manager. His interpretation of the title-rôle revealed him as not only an actor worthy of taking a leading place in the most distinguished company, but as a profound and cultured student of Shakespeare. Mr. Mollison must be counted most fortunate in having in Miss Evelyn McNay, who took the part of Lady Macbeth, a feminine counterpart, maintaining to the life the strength of the tragic story. At every drop of the curtain, both artists were accorded a most flattering reception. Other parts were ably taken by Mr. W. A. Mackersy, Mr. Henry Deas, Mr. Hugh Shaw, Mr. Whitford Kane, Mr. B. A. Pittar, Mr. W. Walton Palmer, Mr. Henry Worrall, Mr. Harold Neville, Miss E. Hermina Black, Mr. Eric Dane, Mr. Roy Cushing, Mr. Fred Ellis, Mr. Alec F. Thompson, Mr. William Hughes, Mr. Kendal Chalmers, Miss M. Roberts, Miss E. Blair-Staples, Miss Josephine Woodward, and Miss Elsie Vron. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was presented.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—In the bright and wholesome play, Dr. Wake's Patient, Mr. Charles Macdona's company is appearing at this theatre this week. Mr. Thalbert-Corbett as the Doctor is manly, tactful, and sympathetic; a sweet and graceful impersonation of the Lady Patient is given by Miss Fyfe Alexander; and others in the cast deserving commendation are Mr. Ivan Cleveland, Mr. George Howard, Mr. Allan Pollock, Mr. Adam Alexander, Miss Georgie Trewman, Miss Kate Osborne, and Miss Clara Earle.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Good entertainment is provided at this theatre this week by Messrs. Garside and Knowles's company, in The London Fireman, a joint production of Arthur Shirley and George Conquest. In the leading part, Mr. J. Forbes Knowles scores a decided success; and Mr. Herbert Humble also gives a capital character sketch. Others prominent in a capital production are Mr. Edward L. Garside, Mr. Philip Renouf, Mr. Lionel Thomson, Miss Beatrice Sinclair, Miss Nellie Shirley, Miss Nellie Waddington, and Miss Nellie Garside.

Pavilion Theatre. — Managing - Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Old favourites are found here in the Harvey Boys, whose boxing act forms the chief feature of their highly amusing sketch; Miss Beatrice Lindley, a refined vocalist, who plays her own accompaniments, contributes a couple of songs in pleasing style; Miss Ada Fawn is a capable comedienne; the kaleidoscopic dances of Miss Effie White prove a triumph of arrangement and bewildering movement; Miss Rose Elliott's songs prove popular; Charlie Williams, negroistic comedian, dances with good effect; and Frank Leon, the world's champion clog dancer, gains great applause. Other turns are Dave O'Toole, comedian, and Austin and Cowan, vocal entertainers. A popular new series of pictures on the Barrascope is found in "The Fox Hunt."

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Yamato, champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world; Tacko, boy champion; and O-Fugi-San, an attractive young lady, born of English parents, in Japan, and the lady champion of ju-jitsu wrestling, are giving interesting exhibitions here. Alice May and company submit a laughable sketch, entitled Tranquillity; and in a picturesque scena, Lennie and Hast present a novel and amusing entertainment; Stephens and Rennior are good comedians and sand-dancers; Allan Hanbury is a new comedian, who scored well; and Lidden and Hayward contribute a clever musical act; the Vetter Brothers and Forest and King provide excellent acrobatic acts; and a strong feature of the good all-round entertainment provided is the excerpt from The Lily of Killarney, given by Edward Arthur and company, the capital efforts of the talented vocalists calling forth hearty rounds of applause; "The Loafer's Lucky Day," shown by the Bioscope, proved very amusing, the pictures being unusually clear.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper. — Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, with Under Two Flags, is delighting good houses here this week. Miss Amy Maitland, an excellent actress, portrays Cigarette with a gaiety, passion, and self-sacrifice that commend itself to the house; while Mr. Wellesley Draper is a dignified Bertie Cecil, playing with earnestness which is convincing throughout. Miss Mabel Ormonde is a charming Princess Venelia; Miss Ella Dixon is bright as Lavinia; and Mr. Chas. West is eminently successful as Barklie Cecil. Mr. Chas. Brooke's Lord Royellieu is vigorous; Mr. Robert Faulkner does well as Lord Rockingham; and Mr. Arthur Elwyn's Colonel Chanteroy is acceptable. Mr. Jos. Cowell's Captain Claud de Chanrellon is particularly breezy; Ezra Barone, by Mr. Fred Beck, and Mr. Harry Benson as Rake, who sing and dance admirably, provide a very entertaining bit of comedy.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—Heading the bill here this week are Fred Eustace and company, in Our Curate, a sketch that is proving popular; Mr. and Miss D'Arc's Marionettes give remarkable impersonations of various music hall stars; Nellie Coleman is a lady comedian of merit; and the Trapnell Family are exceedingly smart in acrobatic tricks. Dome, the clay modeller, is comical; Fanny Erris, as a character comedian, sings a couple of good songs; and the Cumbrian Trio of lady vocalists are deservedly popular. The Bioscope, showing a very amusing set of pictures, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing this week in The Little Michus, in which Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Gipsy Dale give delightful presentments of the name parts. Mr. William Everard as Gaston Rigaud is highly successful in his singing and acting; Miss Mary Young sings well in the part of Mme. Michu; Mr. Foster Courtenay is immensely funny in the character of General Des Ifs; Mr. Gilbert Childs is truly comic as Bagnolet; and Mr. Leon Simkin as Pierre Michu, Mr. Robert C. Harcourt as Aristide Vert, and Mr. Edwin Stanley as the Market Man are distinctly good. Mlle. Marjorie contributes some pretty dancing; Otto Manns ably directs the orchestra.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Great sympathy with Leoni Clarke was expressed by his fellow-townspeople at his non-appearance on account of his father's sudden death on Monday morning. The management promptly secured the engagement of Marguerite Ismay and her four White Coons to fill the gap, which they did with success. A very pretty and effective turn is Maurin's Marvellous Fountains, concluding with pretty groups of statuary; the Onyx Duo present some good quick-change dancing with success; the Four Jumels are clever in their musical act; Nat Watkins amuses with his comic singing; Clara Sefton commands attention as a clever dancer; the Le Gren Trio of eccentric burlesque artists furnish an amusing acrobatic display; the Orchids bloom in mirth, song, and harmony; and C. Vincent depicts with success the "Tour of a Menagerie" on the Bioscope.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Large audiences have assembled here this week to witness Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's juvenile company with The Sleeping Beauty. In the title-rôle Miss Dolly Dodds gives an admirable impersonation; Miss Kitty Trewhitt makes an excellent Prince Florizell; Miss Mona Townshend is an attractive Sir Alphonso, Miss Addie Gibson a good Bluebell, and as Berty Dalrimple, Wee George Wood makes a hit. As the Queen and Asbestos the Brothers Armstrong score a well-deserved success.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The star here this week is Mr. Johnny Danvers, the popular comedian, who has had a cordial reception; the Arnos, comedy artists, are clever; and the Sisters Volbecque, comedy couple, go well; the Amborites, in their musical act, are well received; Mr. Charles Ousley, comedian and dancer, is a great favourite; Wincarnis, speciality artist, meets with favour; and the Bio-photoscope is still a special feature.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. P. M. Foster's company in Sergeant Brue is here this week. Mr. E. Russell in the title-rôle is very amusing; Mr. Tom Shelford is good as Michael Brue, while Mr. Arthur Stroud does excellently as Gerald Treherne; Mr. Chas. McLagen is amusing as Crookie Scrubbs, and Mr. Henry Chichester creates fun as Mr. Crank. Miss Edith Houseley deserves praise as Lady Beckenhall; Miss Mabel Keith scores as Aurora Brue; Miss Ailsen Macdonald pleasingly represents Mabel Widgett; Miss Constance Berkeley is delightful as Daisy.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Gotham Comedy Quartette head the bill, and are well received; Harry Grey, the Australian Nugget, pleases with his unique performance; the Pines (Vesta and Minnie) are amusing in their musical comedy Maggie's Day Out. The Gladenbacks are clever hand-balancers and ring speciality act; Olive Armidale as a comedienne is well received; the Leonards are successful in their sketch, Point Duty; while Venie Clements as a comedian and dancer, and Bill Hobbs, coon comedian and dancer, have good receptions. The Hippo. Biograph is very entertaining.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—An excellent company, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister-Howard, is producing that evergreen favourite The Belle of New York. Miss Empsie Bowman makes an ideal Violet Gray, her appearance, singing, and acting being all that could be desired; and she is ably assisted by Mr. John Doran as Harry Bronson. Miss Lily Maxwell looks very charming as Fifi, and her singing is received with rounds of applause. The dancing of Miss Winnie Browne is provocative of enthusiasm, especially in "La Kraquette," which she dances together with Mr. Lionel Yeoman. One can scarcely conceive the piece without Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill, and his whistling loses none of its power to interest and amuse. Several topical songs are introduced with great effect by Mr. Paddy Dupres, who very successfully essays the rôle of the elder Bronson; and much amusement is caused by Mr. Alfred Sandoe as Snifkins and Mr. Walter Uridge as Kenneth Mugg. As indispensable to success as anyone is Mr. Max Copeland, who again and again compels the audience to roars of laughter by his vagaries as the Polite Lunatic; and the quaint dancing of Miss Florence Hersee deserves mention. Under the bâton of Mr. B. J. Paterson the chorus numbers are capitally rendered.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Trumpet Call proves a strong attraction here, and the company of Mr. C. F. Cooke work up the exciting incidents in a capital manner. Mr. Leonard Yorke gives a careful and able study of Cuthbertson; Mr. C. F. Cooke brings out the genial nature of Sergeant-major Milligan; Mr. John Dennys plays the part of the scoundrelly Richard Featherstone with incisive force; and as officers of the Royal Artillery Messrs. J. Betterton, G. Hastings, and J. B. Glover do admirable work. Miss Doris Gilham gives the fullest expression to the powerful emotions of Astrea; and Miss Helena Millais imparts an attractiveness to the piece by her sympathetic embodiment of Constance. Miss May Foster makes a charming Lavinia Ginnifer; and Miss Helena Rigby supplies a natural touch as Mrs. Wicklow. Praise is also earned by Mr. Freddie Bentley, whose mercurial humour infects the audience, and Messrs. W. G. Blunt and Alec Murray.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The marvellous illusions of Carl Hertz are drawing immense houses this week, who accord this clever artist a mighty reception. The Carina Sisters submit a charming musical entertainment of piano, violin, and flute, which draws vociferous applause. The vivacious methods of Peggy Pryde are always welcome, and her exuberant humour compels the heartiest of laughter. The knockabout business of the Four Karnos and the distinctly American turn of Phil and Nettie Peters maintain the fun at a high pitch. The ventriloquial item of Lieutenant Travis is artistic and amusing; the Wartenberg Brothers show skill as Risley acrobats. Fred Poplar and Kitty Wager also appear. The American Bioscope, with animated pictures, completes an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened for three nights on Monday with The Gay Parisienne. There was a crowded and appreciative audience each night. Miss Lilian Talbot in the title-rôle scores a decided success; Mr. Clifford Seyler makes an ideal Mons. Pompier; Mr. Will Harman as Ebenezer Honeycombe is excruciatingly funny, and produces roars of merriment as Major Fossdyke; Mr. Squire-Day is good; Miss Holford Beringer fills the part of the dignified Mrs. Honeycombe in capital style; Miss Madge Soutter does excellent work as Ruth, and is responsible for an amount of fun; Mr. Philip Moore as Tom Everleigh wins applause; and Miss Nance O'Neill makes a charming Norah. Deserving of praise are Mr. Douglas Howard as Amos Dingle and Mr. Leslie Waller as Algernon Ducie. Some pretty numbers are given by the Imperial Glee Singers; and Mr. Cecil Lawrence supplies an amusing whistling medley. For Thursday, Friday, and to-night (Saturday) Mr. J. Bannister-Howard's company, in The Christian, is billed.

OLDHAM. — Empire. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme. — Mr. Arthur Hardy's company, in Beauty and the Barge, is paying a first visit here. Mr. Blake Adams as Capt. Barley keeps the merriment going; Lieut. Seton is played in good style by Mr. Ed. Coventry; the part of Herbert Manners is well handled by Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu; Mr. Chas. A. White makes the part of John Dibbs humorous; and Mr. Walter Pemberton is a good Major Smedley. Miss Dido Drake is a dainty Ethel Smedley; Miss Mary Pemberton is very good as Lucy Dallas; Miss Ruby Wyndham helps to keep the fun going as Mrs. Baldwin; and Miss Mona Robin, and Mrs. Braithwaite, are excellent as Mrs. Smedley and Mrs. Porter respectively; Mr. Forester Harvey is a capable Augustus; and Mr. Ewart Drake an effective George Porter.

Colosseum. — Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood. — Mrs. Morton Powell is paying a return visit here, with When It Was Dark. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee as the Rev. Basil Gortre is excellent; Miss Elizabeth Watson gives a capital portrayal of Gertrude Hunt; Mr. George H. Pitt as Constantine Schuabe is distinctly good; and Mr. Arthur B. Murray as Sir Robert Llewellyn highly successful; Mrs. Morton Powell invests the part of Helena Byars with much interest.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Kelly and Gillette, in Fun on a Billiard Table, cause roars of laughter; Carlotta Levey's songs are much enjoyed; the Three Sisters Macarte are graceful in a novel act; Edith Marion, contralto, sings well; the Harrison Bros. are droll comedians; Frank Lynne is funny; the Columbia Comedy Trio are excellent in an operatic absurdity; the Three Merrils are clever trick cyclists; and the Dottoscope shows a humorous picture.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—R. Pender's Troupe of Continental Stilt-walkers head the bill here, and also appear in a smart sketch, Hands Up; Evelyn Taylor obtains a good reception for her well rendered songs; Leo Trainor, vocal comedian, has some amusing songs; Les Montaldos, on the slack wire, introduce some well trained parrots and cockatoos; Primavesi, juggler, performs some smart feats; and the Bros. Lavelle are energetic comedy acrobats; the Dottoscope shows a very interesting picture.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—The latter half of last week Mr. George Dance's excellent company in The Beauty of Bath drew crowded and appreciative houses. This week Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is here with The Lion and the Mouse, which met with a cordial reception. Mr. Leslie Carter achieves a complete success as John Ryder, his robust, forcible acting just fitting the part; Jefferson finds a pleasing exponent in Mr. L. Edgard; Mr. H. Chown is highly amusing as the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley; while Rossmore, Stott, and Roberts find capable representatives in Messrs. D. West, A. Roland, and J. Wheatman. Miss Christine Silver again wins all hearts here by her delicate and refined performance of Shirley Rossmore; Miss Maude Townsend gives a clever sketch of Mrs. Ryder; and Miss Margaret Nybloc is a bright and pleasing Kate Roberts.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, Winifred Stuart and Mr. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company, including Miss Marie Daventry, is here with Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. T. Arthur Jones gives a finished and careful portrayal of the hero, Captain Harold Marston; the villain, Dr. Colbrooke, is powerfully represented by Mr. Oswald Douglas. The villain's accomplices, Kimberley Coutts and the Rev. Edward Grey, find able exponents in Messrs. Robert Sawin and Clem Horlock; Mr. Alexander Wills makes a genteel Ernie Wodstone, and Mr. Ernest Hamilton is good as Martin; Mr. Edgar Morgan, a delightful Bob Tanner, convulses his audience by his whimsicalities; Miss Elsie Walton makes the most of her opportunities as Bess Grayson; and Miss Mary Ainslie is full of vigour as Fay Colbrooke. Miss Marie Daventry enlists sympathy from the very beginning of the play by her charming and winsome interpretation of Doreen Rivers.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—In possession this week is the Paisley Opera Club, this amateur combination performing very successfully Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, The Yeomen of the Guard. Mr. Herbert Marchmont, an old Savoyard, has acted as instructor to the amateurs, and is stage-managing the performances.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Tom Toy.—Animated pictures are a distinctive feature in this week's programme, inculding fine films of the wreck of the s.s. Berlin. Jardine, eccentric acrobat; Madge Pollard, coon singer and dancer; and George Rae, comedian and dancer, furnish excellent turns.

PETERBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—This week Mr. Charles Carey, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Vantage, presents the musical comedy, The Pick of the Bunch. Mr. Charles Carey is an excellent Halliwell Menit; Mr. Buckstone Clair as Colonel Joseph Menit plays the part creditably; Mr. Harold Wantage ably sustains the character of Dick Seymour; Miss M. Sadie scores a success as Nancy; Miss Eva Ellis is a charming Ruth Gay; and Miss Madge Christopher is all that can be desired as Nellie Mather; Miss Nellie James is well placed as Wilhelmeina.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Perfect Lover is the attraction here this week. As Joseph Tremblett, Mr. Harold V. Neilson gives a capital representation of the character; Mr. W. Lemmon Warde as William Tremblett presents a life-like embodiment of a mercenary company promoter; Mr. Frank Beresford is a manly Lord Cardew; and Mr. John Detliv furnishes a careful, and, at times, very amusing study of an impecunious relation. Miss Amy Sangster is quite at home in the difficult part of Lillian Tremblett; Miss Gertrude Sterroll as the Hon. Susan Lesson represents an austere society woman; Miss Dorothy Milne is highly creditable as the somewhat vacillating Martha Tremblett; and Miss Renee L'Estrade is a girlish May Tremblett. Smaller parts are capably filled by Miss L. K. Davis (Mrs. Morphitt), Miss E. Dent (Mrs. Barter), and Miss E. Savile (Mrs. Bonham).

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant. — The romantic Servian drama, entitled A Destroyer of Men, is being staged here this week. Miss Irma Farington undertakes the part of Olga Mischla, and performs her arduous duty in commendable fashion; Mr. Edward Beecher gives a clever impersonation of Count Starevitch; Messrs. Dunlop Stewart and Cecil Melton, as Karl Mischla and Michael Mischla respectively, earn the sympathy of the audience; and Miss Beatrice Hudson as Nina Pattakake is aptly termed "All Smiles." Other parts are taken by Mr. Larry Clements and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mr. Harry Roxbury and company, in his diverting musical mélange, entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, form the principal turn here, and are received with rounds of applause; Valazzi, Canadian athlete and juggler, gives a unique exhibition of the difficult art of jugglery; Messrs. Carter and Mason and Miss L. Roseberry extract heaps of fun out of their skit on embryo actors; the Maples present an attractive comedy act and dance; Mr. J. W. Winton is an accomplished ventriloquial entertainer; and Miss Pattie Bella an engaging comedienne. Vernon's pictures and Mr. Bert Weston complete the programme.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. William Greet's company is presenting this week The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Frank E. Petley as Marcus Superbus proves himself an artist of great ability; Nero is in the able hands of Mr. C. Yorke; Tigellinus is admirably portrayed by Mr. Charles Aldred; Mr. J. Wetherall is conspicuous as Licinius; Miss Mary Newcombe wins all hearts as Poppœa; Miss Gertrude Price as Berenice is a great success; Favius is ably assumed by Mr. Walter Fleet; Titus and Meles are carefully characterised by Messrs. Clifton Yates and R. Chapman respectively; Stephanus is capably delineated by Miss Dulcie Greatwich; Mercia is admirably played by Miss Marie Leonhard.

PORTH.—The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The programme this week includes the latest sensation, Man v. Motor; the Davis and Gledhill Trio, roller champions; Vera Mayne, Canadian comedienne; George and Edwards, patter comedians and dancers; the Original Cecils, lady instrumentalists; Robert Gilbert's dogs' and cats' circus; Hector and Sultan, eccentric comedy grotesques; Fred Cary, comedian; Marquis and Mignonette, in a comedy act, entitled Little Willie; and the Palace pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Miss Annie Hughes, supported by her talented company, is appearing here this week in the play Tommy. Miss Hughes plays Jane "Tommy" with delightful crispness as the Sub, and gives a charming and intense womanly portrayal in the second and third acts, receiving enthusiastic calls at the end of each. Mr. Rupert Lister is a most convincing lover, and plays the generous young Irishman with conspicuous success. Peter Hope is taken by Mr. Evelyn Vernon, who gives a really fine performance as the old Editor of "Good Humour." The manager, William Clodd, is sustained by Mr. Willie Hartill in a brisk and shrewd business manner that is most effective; and Mr. Reginald F. Beach is very good as the office boy Flipp. Mr. Morrison is excellently acted by Miss Winifred Pearson, who makes her points very neatly. Honour, who only appears in one scene, is undertaken by Miss Ida Richardson in a praiseworthy and natural manner. The piece is preceded each evening by Good for Nothing Nan, in which Miss Hughes plays Nan most artistically.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's No. 1 company is here this week with the powerful domestic drama Man and Wife. Miss Kate Hallam as Marcelle is most intensely realistic in her portrayal, and wins much applause; Mr. John F. Traynor as Paul Revere, a conscript, gives a powerful rendering of a rather trying part; Mr. Wilson Coleman as the villainous Captain D'Esparre is clever and suitably callous in his performance; Messrs. Edward Van Biene and Ambrose Horton are distinctly good in their respective parts of Colonel Latour and Sergeant Jacques; Bimbo and Bambo the twin brothers, are most divertingly embodied by Messrs. Sydney Bryant and Van Gully. They are well suported in their humour by Miss Polly Denville as Rosette. The blind Ruth Revere and the cripple boy Jean are pathetically sustained by Miss Violet Temple and Miss Ethel F. Greene.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—An excellent programme is submitted here this week. The Kellinos with their acrobatic pot-pourri "Venetia" win great applause for their exceedingly clever performance; Walter Levetto, the dancing wonder, is an exceptionally expert exponent of the art; the Raymond Trio, instrumentalists and dancers, give a refined and versatile entertainment; Geo. Brook, comedian, is an able and eccentric singer of taking songs; Roze and Calvert in a refined comedy act present a smart turn; Woolmer Young, vocal comedian, has a capital voice, and uses it to advantage; the Three Luna Girls, vocal and Terpsichorean trio, are well received; and the bill also includes Baroux and Bion, speciality artists, Lizzie Daniels, a dainty soubrette, and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is on a return visit with The Face at the Window. Mr. Scott Leighton gives a fine performance of Lucio Delgado: the dramatic ability of Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is seen to advantage in the rôle of Paul Gouffet; Mr. C. Alan Hineson is heartily applauded for his comedy as Peter Pottleberry; and he is effectively supported by Miss Gladys Newcombe as Babette. Mr. F. C. Raphael submits a good character study of Jean Barbelon; and Miss Marie Barrett acts with pathos as Marie de Brisson.

RAMSGATE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bowman.—On the first four nights of the week these boards were occupied by Miss Emily Huby's capable company in The Price of Pleasure. Mr. Howell Webb scored heavily as Sir James Feather stone; Miss Helen Raymond contributed an effective piece of acting as Alice Rivers; Mr. C. Howell did well as Charles Mordaunt; and Mr. F Bentley was excellent as Gilbert D'Armant.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Messrs. E. A'Dell and F. Chabot's company is here this week with the musical comedy, His Sister's Honour. Miss Kathleen Eckhardt gives a sympathetic and artistic impersonation of Dora Stanley; as Ivy Merton Miss Ethel Ashleigh is most successful; Mr. E. A'Dell is clever in the character of Frank Stanley; and Mr. H. C. Robinson makes an admirable Sir Richard Redvers. Miss Bessie Dean as Maria and Mr. Sydney Dean as Timothy keep the audience in continual roars of laughter.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. Wenman.—A special attraction is being provided this week by the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who are appearing in several of their favourite characters. The répertoire for the week comprises The Ironmaster, The Elder Miss Blossom, and The Housekeeper.

ROCHDALE. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—A Royal Divorce is the attraction here this week. Mr. Frederick Victor submits a powerful impersonation of Napoleon; Mr. Claud Agnew cleverly portrays the intriguing Talleyrand; Mr. Graham Woods speaks his lines with telling effect in the rôle of Marquis de Beaumont; Miss Agnes Imlay makes an impressive Marie Louise; Miss Helen Richmond as the light-hearted Stephanie de Beauharnais is quite a favourite; and Miss Edith Cole sustains the part of Josephine with her accustomed power.

Circus and Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—Dr. Carl Hermann, described as an electrician and scientist, mystifies his audience with his clever tricks and illusions; he also creates roars of laughter with his hypnotised subjects. A sketch entitled The Red Letter, by the H. Leslie Bell and Lilly Pearl company, and produced for the first time, is creating unusual interest. Other items on the programme include Steve Cooke, comedian; Three Bostonians, singers and dancers; James Ward, the Yorkshire Paderewski; Clyo and Rochelle, in comedy effusion; Vosco, mad magician; and pictures by the Hermascope.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Jack Pleasants, comedian, tops the bill here; his quaint vocalism and mannerisms create roars of laughter. The Picquays give a refined and pleasing exhibition of balancing; Cremator (Mr. Arthur Schofield) shows some clever tricks and illusions. Other artists include Little Bobbie, mimic; Maude Kaye, coon vocalist and dancer; Eric, ventriloquist; The Vekeys, banjoists; Percy Farimond, singing collier; Ruby Emmerton, comedienne; and the Empire Bioscope.

Mr. Arthur Armfield is seen to advantage as Mr. Chichester, and Mr. Ernest R. Allen gives a capital portrayal of Tom Chichester. Mr. W. H. Domoney is a smart Harry Chichester; and Mr. Herbert Cecil scores as John Gridston. Mr. Henry Gilpin as Bildstein and Mr. Edward Valentine as Fretley Burnside are also deserving of mention. Miss Cissie Bellamy is very pleasing as Aileen Miller; and Miss Sybil Hammersley scores as Becky Vetch; Miss Gussie Everitt gives a highly finished portrayal of Cynthia Dell; and Miss Louie Valentine is seen to advantage as Beatrice.

RUGBY. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company on the first three nights of the week presented The Christian. Miss Laura Walker as Glory Quayle gives a rendering full of passion and power and of great artistic merit; Miss Constance Stevens is very good as Mrs. Callender; and as Polly Love Miss Edith M. Savery does well. As the Hon. John Storm Mr. Rawson Buckley is an unqualified success; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman as Lord Robert Ure gives a first-rate rendering; Mr. Ernest Stedwell is excellent in his presentment of Horatio Drake; Mr. Anthony Rawles as the Faro King and Mr. Arthur Beverley as Lorimer are both good. Mr. Harry Colbeck is effective as Father Lamplugh; and Mr. Phipps Stanley as Archdeacon Wealthy is well placed.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is paying a return visit to this theatre with the successful domestic drama Honour Thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron makes an interesting study of the pathetic character of Gabriel Garth, assisted by Miss K. Newton as Gertrude Garth; Duncan Bly is cleverly presented by Mr. W. R. Winning. Comedy is sustained by Mr. W. H. Melrose as Ned Pennycomquick; Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike Copplestone, and Miss Ada Salmon as Poppy Cornleigh. Jack Halyard is a satisfactory piece of work by Mr. Bertram H. Ross; Job Merry and George Bloggs are both well portrayed by Mr. Claude Merton; Violet Wilfred and Mercy Merry are respectively ably played by Miss Maud Green and Miss M. Dean.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—A Scotch Marriage; or, a Trip to the Highlands, a farcical musical comedy incident, produced by Harry Fischer and E. Norton Folgate, occupies a considerable portion of the programme, the principal parts being well sustained by Mr. Wellesley Smith, Mr. Billy Holmes, Mr. Harry Fischer, Miss Julia Bassett, Miss Louie Danby, and Mr. Peter Bermingham. The Tricky Trio do some smart acrobatic dancing. The Gibson Girls and other specialities are much appreciated. Acceptable turns include some very amusing business by Doody (Sid) and Wright (Edie), Australian comiques; the Sisters Varley, duettists; Childe Stuart, refined comedian; Terry (Marie) and Bentley (J. S.), refined comedy artists; Dolly Denvers, smart lady buck dancer; Helen Martin, operatic vocalist, and Charles Bignell, comedian.

Miss Gwen Clifford gives a clever impersonation of Mrs. Malton Hoppings.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Joe Carroll, champion wrestler, heads the bill this week, and proves a great attraction. Miss Florence Hilton, male impersonator, scores a hit; Nelson and Thomas, sketch artists, prove amusing; Mr. T. C. Callaghan, comedian, is applauded; and Agnes and Arthur Lynch, song-illustrators, provide a capital turn.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A capital programme is presented here this week, the principal turn being La Milo, the enamelled Venus. Her classical poses are remarkably faithful, especially the Venus de Milo. Her manager (Cruickshanks) gives an exhibition of his marvellous gifts in lightning pictures; Frank Cough, patter comedian, is well received; the Lupino Brothers are exceedingly good in their comic speciality act; and Stelling and his canine comedian, Kiswaski; Lozelle, in an elegantly-dressed act; Myan and Hall, an acrobatic comedy team; Nipper Lupino Lane, a clever boy comedian; and the American Bioscope complete the bill.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—A delightful entertainment is provided here this week by Haley's Juveniles, whose dancing and singing are alike excellent; Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munro, is seen to advantage in the quick-change duologue, The Way to Win a Bet. Andy Fagan is an up-to-date comedian; and Kloof and Ramsay score well in a musical comedy act. The Melroses are capital burlesque artists; and Violet Ashcroft is a dainty comedienne; Houpla and Hecla are a pair of novel equilibrists and acrobats, and the Bioscope pictures are good.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—This week Mr. Edward Marris's musical play, Somebody's Sweetheart, is drawing crowded houses here. Mr. W. B. Nugent gives a characteristic impersonation of Stephen Leverton; whilst the rôle of Stanton Ashley is ably rendered by Mr. E. B. Bertram; Miss May Norris makes up well as Fred Ashleigh; Mr. Geo. Bentwood does some clever work in the part of Martin Blabbs; Old Joe, the negro servant, is effectively portrayed by Mr. Frank Gala; Miss Maisie Jerrard as Zoro the Gipsy is warmly applauded; and as Lulo Miss Effie Vincent proves highly efficient; Miss Dora Hargreaves plays the prominent part of Miss Ainsley. The barmaids, Nora and Molly, are admirably presented by Miss Rosie Chandler and Miss Dolly Payne respectively.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. John Gerant and Company opened on Monday with At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant in his well-known impersonation of Harold Allison is powerful; Captain Geo. Allison is played by Mr. Harry Scott in a manly style; Mr. Ernest St. John makes a capital General Gordon; Mr. Walter P. Carr is well placed as Jack Spencer; Joey Trott in the hands of Mr. Ivan Mavis is all that one could desire; Mr. Harry Ugar as Terry O'Hallaron causes a good deal of laughter; Miss Lily Grammond is excellent in the character of Dora Drummond, and Miss Jeannie Weston plays strongly as Salema, Miss Eva Bell being good as Mary.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—A good all-round programme here is headed by Daisy Dormer, who gives a clever and pleasing turn. A return visit of the Royal Delomes is welcome; some smart illusions are presented by Mr. Henry Hilton; applause greets those novel equilibrists, Los Rupertos; Fred Keeton contributes good songs; Kisby scores as the Call Boy; Miss Leah Orden has a charming voice; Miss Adey Spencer is a smart dancer; and the Burnells, as droll as ever, fairly keep the house in roars with their popular sketch, On the Links.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and his company are appearing this week in David Garrick, The Adventures of Lady Ursula, Robin Hood, and Nell Gwyn. In the first-named play Mr. Norman undertakes the title-rôle of David Garrick, and gives a fine impersonation. Miss Beatrice Wilson is no less successful in her portrayal of Lucy Westham; Mr. Brember Wills ably fills the part of Alderman Westham; and the rôle of the Hon. Bob Martingale is well played by Mr. Aubrey Mathers.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Barton and Ashley are well remembered here, and their performance was looked forward to. Their sketch, Canal Boat Sal, keeps the audience in roars of laughter. Percy Hannan, a fine voiced young baritone, repeats his success; What a Life! a sketch by Edwards and Dacre, is sparkling with fun and humour; the performance by Max Duffex, musical contortionist, is sensational and certainly novel; the Sivronis, burlesque artists, do some funny business; Fioretti and Elly, in a barrel and spade jumping act, are artists of undoubted merit: the Waltons, expert gymnasts, perform some startlingly clever feats; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are more than usually interesting.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. E. Whitty's company in An Unwedded Wife, is proving a good attraction here this week. Mr. Harry Townley and Miss Jessie Gillette are responsible for some refined humour as Perk Pimple and Carry Crumpet; Mr. E. St. Clair Forber gives a powerful portrayal of Philip Blackstone; Mr. Logan Darra is a good John Hawthorne, Miss May Axon an interesting Elsie Langham; and the title-rôle is ably handled by Miss Ethel Van Praagh.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Clarke's Nippers; Raynor and Reece are clever and entertaining; Miss May Tudor is a winning comedienne; the Levans give a clever turn; Mozzetto is a marvellous juggler; Mr. Geo. Russell creates a deal of humour; Mr. Harry Raley is a sweet boy vocalist; and the Vicoscope has a new series of pictures.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Miss Grace Warner's company is engaged here in popular plays, The Scarlet Clue being presented on Monday. Mr. George Gordon does justice to the part of Michael Stanton; Mr. J. Armitage is successful as Harry Esmond; Mr. J. Leigh is an amusing Billy, and Mr. F. Heywood a good Edward Crocker; Miss M. Stammer makes a pleasing Miss Esmond; and a powerful performance of Sal is submitted by Miss Grace Warner. During the week Lady Audley's Secret and East Lynne are being presented.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddle.—This week we have here The New World, played by Mr. Will White's capable company. Mr. Victor Rae is a manly Jack Hawley; Mr. W. S. Stevenson is sufficiently villainous as Jim Rawlings; Mr. Albert Carlton plays the unpleasant part of Jose Alvarez with ability; Mr. Willie Hicks is exceedingly humorous as Pete; Mr. Will Bass and Mr. Fred Guinness are a comical pair, and their work is invaluable to the success of the production; Mr. Will White appears with entire success as the good-hearted Col. Belan Clayton; Miss Evelyn Rosbon is a clever May Walton; while the highest praise should be accorded Miss Beatrice Moore for her excellent performance as Jenny Williams; the Samantha of Miss Maud Leslie is an amusing study. In the hotel scene specialities are given by Miss Beatrice Moore, Messrs. Bass and Guinness, and Mr. Willie Hicks, who all reveal talent of a high order.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. Junius Booth's company, in the dramatised version of Dumas' Monte Cristo, has attracted large audiences during the week. Mr. Junius Booth enacts the part of Edmund Dantes with much versatility and power, and he is ably supported by Mr. Beckett Bould as M. Nortier and Mr. A. Bowerman as Baron Danglers. Miss Sallie Forsyth as Mercedes, Miss Amy Manfree as Sophie Douglas, and Miss Alice West as La Carconte portray their respective parts admirably.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—John Lawson and company, in the realistic sketches Humanity and The Devil's Sunday, are the chief features of this week's programme. Other excellent turns are furnished by Great Mittzi, Japanese juggler; Smith and Johnson, coloured performers; the Three Cape Girls, comediennes and dancers; and Florrie Bray, versatile comedienne. Mlle. Melita, dancer; Les Valdos, tumblers, knockabouts, &c., Eva Chadwick, girl vocalist, and Will Musgrave, comedian, form the complement of an entertaining bill of fare.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—This week Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company are appearing here in the attractive comedy Peter's Mother. An excellent portrayal of the part of Sir Timothy Crewys is given by Mr. Charles Harley; Mr. Percy Hutchison does admirably as Peter Crewys; Mr. Eille Norward is seen to advantage as John Crewys; Mr. William Mallalieu is capital as Canon Birch and Mr. Drew Mackintosh is an effective Dr. Blundell. As Lady Mary Crewys Miss Ruth Mackay gives a natural and artistic impersonation, while she charms everyone with her grace and style; Miss Mary Griffiths is a most efficient Lady Belstone, and Mrs. Mallalieu is a capable Miss G. Crewys; as Sarah Miss Hilda Honiss is very successful, and Miss Ethel Royale does well as Mrs. Hewell. The play is preceded by Chalk and Cheese, in which Mr. Drew Mackintosh, Miss Ethel Royale, and Miss Hilda Honiss creditably sustain the respective parts.

THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—This week The Silver King is being presented by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company. Mr. Fred D. Daviss essays the part of Wilfred Denver in excellent fashion, and he is well supported by Miss Daisy Scudamore (Nellie Denver), Mr. Edward J. George, Miss Flossie Hale-Daviss, Miss Viola Holland, and Mr. L. St. George Lowther.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The special attraction here is Irma Lorraine, whose various artistic poses are most effective. Other items in a good programme are Athos and Collins, musical comedians; Rachel Lowe, vocalist; Dol Hardy, comedienne; Happy Atwood, comedian; and the Sisters Belmont, duettists and dancers.

WORKINGTON. — OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday Miss Frances Delaval's company presented The Biggest Scamp on Earth to a large and appreciative audience. As Mamoi Miss Delaval played with striking effect; Mr. F. Lillywhite as the hero was effective; and Mr. Cecil Gray as the villain proved quite successful; Mr. H. Buckley was satisfactory as "Nap"; Mr. F. Taylor's comedy was enjoyed, and he was well partnered by Miss Nell Ingram; Miss Clare O. Sullivan was charming as the heroine, and quite won the sympathy of her auditors; Mrs. E. Lyons was excellent as Mother Hawke; as Bobby Miss Carrie Johnson played with ability.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. H. F. Maltby and company opened here on Monday with Sir George of Almack's. Mr. H. F. Maltby gives an excellent delineation of Walter Inman; Mr. Wyn Weaver excellently portrays Sir George Wimbledon; Mr. Harris Fraser typicaly enacts the part of the Duke of Porchester; Mr. Reginald Favell does well as James Briarley; and Mr. Lyndon C. Irwin is effective as Sir Christopher Chiselhurst. Miss Dorothy Cousin is winsome as Mary; and Miss Mara Maltby capitally takes the part of Lady Clare Housby. The Youngest of Three was played at Wednesday's matinée, and Miss Chistine Silver appeared in The Lion and the Mouse on Thursday.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—A really good all-round show is delighting the patrons here this week. Reed and Lerne, in their novel electric comedy turn, go well; the Bodina Trio are clever musicians; the Royal Estos, speciality artists, score decidedly, and Mr. J. J. Beswick, a quaint comedian, also does well. The animated picures are particularly good.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, H. J. Dacre.—A Night Out is here, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sugden in the cast. Mr. Sugden as Paillard gives one of those clever character-sketches for which he is celebrated. As Pinglet, Mr. Edward Shirley is a decided success; as the meek and mild Mathieu, Mr. Mark Lester contributes in no small degree to the general amusement; Mrs. Sugden, a handsome Marcelle, acts with much charm; and Miss Constance Groves and Miss Lillian Stafford are in every way excellent as Angelique and Victorine.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Joe Reichen's dog performance has proved a genuine attraction here; Marstro and Oretta in their expert juggling performances are warmly applauded; Helen Charles, in her novel entertainments, fully deserves the applause bestowed; Stewart and Morgan are applauded for their clever singing; and Mr. Herbert Bates's rendering of The Death of Nelson was a most enjoyable item; Walter Curtis is again amusing with his witticisms; and the facial expressions of Fred Spencer cause merriment. A capital company is completed by the Cumberlands, favourite cyclists.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert of Wednesday at the Guildhall School of Music opened with Mendelssohn's Andante and Capriccio in E, for solo pianoforte, played by Miss Helen Squire. A somewhat more ambitious and equally successful effort was Miss Jennie Watson's violin solo of Wagner's "Preislied," as arranged by Wilhelm. Miss Watson has freedom of execution, and with a little care in the matter of correct intonation ought to become a skilled performer. Zanetta's quaint Tempo di Minuetto for piano, neatly executed by Miss Winifred Bamford, was much applauded, and Miss Ethel Harman imparted considerable interest to her violin solo of Spohr's Allegro from Concerto Dramatique. A mandoline duet, "Overture des Marionettes," by Gurlitt, was excellently played by Miss L. Branston and Miss L. Cooper, pupils of Mme. Waldahoff. In the vocal part of the programme Mr. John T. Barnes may be praised for his singing of "The Curfew," by Monk Gould, and Miss Maude Eason made a good impression by her careful rendering of Godard's "Chanson de Florian." Mr. Oswald Fullbrook hardly got the full effect out of Sullivan's once popular song, "Once Again," in spite of a pleasing voice; but Miss Bessie Hayward was very successful in four songs by Liza Lehmann, from her cycle "The Life of a Rose." Miss Hughes and Miss Henderson, set down for songs by Maude V. White and Augusta Holmes, were through illness unable to appear. A recitation, "Sheltered," by Orme Jewett, was cleverly given by Miss Elvina Straker, one of Mr. Cairns James's pupils. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

PLOTS OF PLAYS.

That valuable body, the Theatrical Managers' Association, as we stated last week, has been obliged to protest against the practice of describing, wholly or in part, the plots of plays prior to their production. The Association has addressed a circular letter to the editors of London newspapers on the subject. The letter runs as follows:—

11, Garrick-street, London, W.C.
March 12, 1907.

SIR,—The Theatrical Managers' Association (the members of which control the most important theatres in London and the provinces) desire to point out to you that a serious danger has lately arisen in the conduct of their business. On at least two occasions, recently, the plots and incidents of original plays to be produced in London have been given in the columns of one or two leading newspapers without the sanction, desire, or authority of the author or the manager, and have, in fact, been communicated to the Press through the treachery of some persons actively engaged in the enterprise, and against the express wish of author and manager.

The Theatrical Managers' Association appreciate most cordially the friendly attitude of the leading newspapers to them, and they trust that they will not be considered unreasonable in requesting the Proprietors and Editors to protect their interests by refusing to publish the plots and incidents of plays before production, unless the managers and authors should be agreeable to such a course.—We are, Sir, your obedient servants (on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association),

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 11,
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

Messrs. William Gillette and Conan Doyle's thrilling play, Sherlock Holmes, paid its first visit here on Monday, and was accorded a hearty reception from a well-filled house, the frequent and spontaneous applause testifying to the grip of the piece. The episode in the career of the great detective, showing his connection with the strange case of Miss Faulkner is of absorbing interest that is fully maintained by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company. The part of Sherlock Holmes has evidently received much careful study from Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, who gives a convincing and striking protrayal of the famous detective. Mr. Stewart thoroughly deserves the genuine approbation which he secures by his highly satisfactory impersonation. Mr. Allan Jaeyes does excellently as Dr. Watson, and Mr. Fred Bell must be awarded a meed of praise for his capital delineation of John Forman. Mr. James Skea as Professor Moriarty is highly successful, his exposition of this "Napoleon of crime" being a well studied representation. The despicable character of James Larrabee is undertaken by Mr. James Hare, who comes through the ordeal with flying colours. The Sydney prince of Mr. Edward Mervyn is a careful study, and the parts of Alfred Bassick, Jim Cragin, Thomas Leary, and "Lightfoot" McTague are suitably allotted to Messrs. Wilson, Roberts, Gordon K. Bull, W. Pemberton, and Harold Broughton. The minor parts of John and Parsons are also well filled by Mr. William Wilson and Frank Spray. Master Leslie Hall must not be forgotten for his excellent portrayal of Billy, the page. Master Hall is a clever little comedian, and has a future before him. Miss Georgina Wynter carries off a good share of the honours with her finished impersonation of Madge Larrabee, her assumption of the rôle being not only consistent, but clever. Miss Gladys Harvey proves herself an able actress in the part of Alice Faulkner; and Miss Rosalie Notrelle does very well as Therese. Mr. Henry Littlejohn (Sir Edward Leighton), Mr. Frank H. Moar (Count von Stahlbourg), Miss Grace Howard (Mrs. Smeedley), and Miss Dot Seilby (Mrs. Faulkner) complete a cast that could scarcely be improved upon. The staging and scenery are excellent.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 11, the Drama, entitled
"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Mr. Walter Melville's company appeared here on Monday evening in his latest and most successful play, The Soldier's Wedding. The audience were quick to recognise its merits, and accorded it a most cordial reception. The drama has an interesting story running through it, and the characters are well drawn. There is one scene of an old farmhouse, which is exceedingly pretty, and the live stock that are introduced make it most realistic and an altogether delightful piece of scenic art. The hero of the story, Jack Brown, a smart and gallant soldier, is played in an admirable manner by Mr. Wingold Lawrence, who has a light and breezy style, and is seen to advantage throughout the piece. Miss Jessie Winter has already become a favourite in Camden Town, and her appearance as Nancy Lee is very welcome; she plays in her accustomed charming and simple style, and wins the full sympathy of the audience for the character. Mr. Beresford Whitcombe is well placed as Colonel Graham, a part which he fills with distinction. Julie de Beauvrais, the adventuress, is capably portrayed by Miss Marie McAuley, who has a very dramatic style; while Mr. Raymond Wood incurs the wrath of the gods by his picture of the villain of the play, Charles Courtenay, a very creditable piece of work, displaying much skill. Mr. A. Gambier Melford is amusing as the amateur cracksman, Tommy Spratt, whose adventures prove to be so useful in bringing the two schemers, Julie and Courtenay, to justice. Miss Ettie Carlisle is also the cause of much mirth as Lizzie Walker, the poor girl in search of a husband; Miss Georgie De Lara is seen to great advantage as Peggy Munro; and Teddy Munro is smartly played by a youthful actor billed as Little Albert. Mr. Fred Yarnold gives a clever sketch of an old countryman as Nathaniel Lee; and Mr. Frederick Biron makes a good David Munro. There are several minor characters, which are in each case capably filled. The play is staged in the most complete style, and Mr. Walter Melville certainly omits nothing which can add to the success of the production, and he is amply repaid for his efforts. Mr. A. G. Melford is to be complimented on his excellent stage-management; and Mr. Beresford Whitcomb is the general-manager for the company. Mr. George F. Ford's orchestra, as usual, acquit themselves admirably, and play several very pretty selections. Mr. Robert Arthur's interests are well looked after by Mr. Wilfred Stanford.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 11, the Drama, entitled
"IN A WOMAN'S GRIP."

For the current week the above drama has been staged, and an audience that packed the cheaper portions of the theatre extended to it on Monday the full meed of popular approval. Mr. Frederick Melville's drama is another of his feminine studies, and it is sufficient to say that if nothing particularly new finds a place in his work it bears all the evidences of emanating from an experienced writer for the stage. Last week's company, with one or two additions, are responsible for the performance, and they all work very hard for the general success. Mr. Ernest E. Norris as Frank Haydon submits another excellent reading; manly and dignified, he makes much of his opportunities. Mr. T. C. Aubrey as Maurice Stanton plays the conventional heavy rôle in the approved manner, acting with power, and scoring a success. Mr. A. P. Kaye as Lambert portrays the character with skill. Mr. E. Harvey White as Joe Buller extracts much laughter from the many unfortunate situations in which he finds himself. Mr. James E. Manning as Sharkey is responsible for an effective study of an old salt; Mr. F. Summers as Mr. Fairley is adequate in a small part; Mr. Robert Soane as the Governor of the Prison does everything possible with a poor part; and the same may be said of Mr. Cushley as Dr. Edwards. Mr. Henry Johnston as Dick Langley is worthy of commendation; Mr. H. Bowen as Sir Edward Morton realises excellently the dignified diplomatic representative; Mr. Jack Denton as the Mad Doctor portrays that singular character with effective touches. Miss Beaumont Collins, in a triple rôle, succeeds in interesting her audience; Miss Maude Stewart Drewry as Lillian Fairley does everything possible with a part of limited opportunities, and acts with the requisite sympathetic touch; Miss Lena Delphine, of whom we have pleasant memories here, is bright and amusing as Molly Smithers, and contributes not a little to the gaiety of the evening. The remaining smaller parts, of which there are many, are all in good hands. The scenery and mounting are on a lavish scale, the British Embassy scene in Paris being a particularly good stage picture.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 11, the Drama, entitled
"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

This play is aptly described as a "whirlwind drama of surprises," for incident follows incident with startling rapidity. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is a well-knit, manly figure as George Madison, his acting being strong and robust and his elocution well-nigh faultless. As the rascally Charles Devereux Mr. Louis Hector acts with energy and force, and there is also a certain amount of dignity in his bearing, which greatly adds to the value of his portrayal; Mr. Leonard Maxwell is persevering as Geoffrey Broughton; Mr. Rawden Vivian is quietly earnest as the Rev. Mr. Dean; Mr. Phillips gives a clever character study of the old rustic, Joe Lambkin; Mr. Fred de Vere works hard and is distinctly amusing as Timothy Tuttutt; and Mr. Mr. Herbert Goddard is responsible for a well-defined delineation of Sir George Lancaster. Miss Nellie Fletcher pleasingly portrays the Mother Superior; Miss Ruth Hunt is pleasantly vivacious as Patty Lovejoy; Miss Gertrude Hunt brings the brutality and coarseness of Lady Lucretia Lancaster's character well to the fore; whilst Miss Gertrude Bonser wins plenty of sympathy for the womanly way in which she sustains the rôle of the sorely-tried Lucy. The piece was well received, its popularity in Marylebone evidently being as strong as ever. Mr. Roland Yorke is Mr. Frederick Melville's hustling general manager.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday March 11,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

Miss Lily Brayton and Mr. Oscar Asche and their well-chosen West-end company are appearing at the Coronet this week in Shakespeare's delightful comedy The Taming of the Shrew, as exploited so successfully at the Adelphi. From the realistic representation of the induction, with Mr. Oscar Asche as the metamorphosed tinker, Christopher Sly, to the final scene of the play, when Kate the Curst has become comformable to the ordinary routine of married life, and furthermore acknowledges Petruchio as her lord and master, a triumph of artistic frolic is exhibited. It seems like "painting the lily" to revert to Miss Brayton's tour de force in the part of Katharina, the shrew, just as it is "gilding refined gold" to praise the picturesque and robustious arrogance of Mr. Asche's Petruchio. It will perhaps convey more than mere reiteration of our intense admiration for these two extremely notable performances to say that Miss Lily Brayton and Mr. Oscar Asche play their parts better than ever, the demoniac fury of the termagant pitted against the determined and dominating spirit of the man, who meets her on her own ground of tyranny allied with blustering and frantic folly, are grandly, nay, magnificently portrayed. The other parts are capitally rendered. Miss Agnes Brayton makes a very sweet and gentle, but withal knowing, Bianca; and her lovers, Lucentio and Hortensio, are excellently limned by Mr. H. R. Hignett and Mr. Reginald Ian Penny, who act with dignity and spirit, and speak their lines trippingly on the tongue. The part of Gremio, the elderly suitor for the hand of the fair Bianca, is most drolly depicted by Mr. Caleb Porter, who, besides contributing a sterling performance, also undertakes the duties of stage management. Mr. Alfred Brydone is most urbane and courtly as Baptista, the rich gentleman of Padua, who is father to the two maids whose courtship and marriage form the subject of this merry play. Mr. Kay Souper as Tranio, Mr. R. F. Anson as Biondello, and Mr. Henry Kitts as Grumio do splendid service, and add considerably to the merriment of the proceedings; Miss Constance Robertson as Curtis, Mr. W. R. Staveley, Miss Leila Norris, Mr. Gordon Harker, and others all fit well in the picture. The piece is handsomely mounted and staged, and the pretty and appropriate incidental music by Noel Johnson is well rendered by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Christopher Wilson. Mr. Alfred Wareing acts as business-manager to the company.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 11, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE SPRING CHICKEN."

This popular and diverting musical comedy is proving a great attraction at the Shakespeare Theatre this week, and Mr. George Dance's principal company is being received with great enthusiasm. The play, excellently interpreted, goes with a swing from start to finish, and the witty lines and amusing scenes provoke continuous laughter and cheers. Mr. J. S. Durant submits a most effective rendering of the gay advocate, Gustave Babori, and acquits himself with success. Mr. Fred Payne in the part of Mr. Girdle proves a worthy successor to his brother, of Gaiety fame, and keeps the audience in a constant state of merriment, not a dull moment intervening whilst he is on the stage. His duet with Mr. Durant entitled "Sunday afternoon in London" evokes roars of laughter, and is one of the titbits of the evening. Mr. Edwin Dodds is amusing as the waiter Felix; Mr. C. Brierley gives an excellent impersonation of Girdle's son, Stephen Henry; and Mr. Harry Averell as Boniface is thoroughly satisfactory. Miss Chrissie Ralland, a very bright and engaging Rosalie, sings and dances with much vivacity; as Mrs. Girdle Miss Nellie Kavanagh has a part that fits her to perfection, and scores a decided hit with her songs "Regent-street" and "I guess, Oh I guess." A pleasing performance of Dulcie Babori is given by Miss Florence Wix, who renders her song "Oh, so gently" with much expression, and is accorded much applause. As Emmy-Lou, Miss Lilian Errol acquits herself artistically; and Miss Clarice Cartner makes a charming Baroness Papouche. The minor parts are all capably sustained, and the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Knight Pearce render valuable aid. The piece is very handsomely dressed and liberally mounted. Mr. Harry B. Earle is manager and Mr. Edwin Dodds stage-manager for Mr. George Dance.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Tuesday, March 12, the Opera entitled
"THE GONDOLIERS."

It is now over twenty years since the first of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas began to attract all London, but it may be truly stated of the various productions that despite length of time age cannot wither nor custom stale their infinite variety. It is, therefore, not surprising that South Londoners have been flocking in large numbers to the musical feast which has been provided for them at the Crown, Peckham, during the present week. Needless to say, the D'Oyly Carte Principal Répertoire Company interprets the work of the master-hands with a fidelity and a minuteness of detail which cannot be too highly praised, the representation of the various characters being well-nigh perfect. On Tuesday a notably good performance was given of that sparkling opera of Venetian life, The Gondoliers. Mr. Charles R. Walenn was to have essayed the important rôle of the Duke of Plaza-Toro, but owing to his unfortunate indisposition, the part was played at short notice by Mr. Fred Edgar. Mr. Edgar made a notable success, playing the character of the fussy little henpecked Duke with much humour, and getting all the fun possible out of his various musical items. Mr. Tom Redmond was well placed as the Grand Inquisitor, making that important functionary a very quaint and amusing person, and giving a capital rendering of "No possible doubt whatever." Mr. Albert Kavanagh as Giuseppe was a tuneful and picturesque gondolier, and Mr. Pacie Ripple as Marco also acted well throughout, and scored a great success with the ballad, "Take a pair of sparkling eyes." Mr. Leicester Tunks looked handsome as Luiz, and was deservedly encored for his solo in the first act. Miss Hope Hastings did well with the ballad, "Woman's heart must go with woman's hand," and proved a winsome Gianetta; while Miss Lulu Evans was a fascinating Tessa, her voice being very sweet and her enunciation very distinct. The quartette, "A regular royal queen," rendered by the Misses Evans and Hastings and Messrs. Ripple and Kavanagh, was a great success. Miss Mabel Graham was good as Corsilda, and Miss Mabel Burrage as Vittoria sang her solo in the first act, "Roses red and roses white," very tunefully. Miss Theresa Rassam was a most dignified Duchess of Plaza-Toro. The operas are produced under the direction of Mr. F. A. Leon, while Mr. T. Silver is the able musical director, Mr. H. E. Bellamy being the business-manager. During the week The Mikado, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Yeomen of the Guard, Princess Ida, The Pirates of Penzance, and Trial by Jury have also been played.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 11, the Play, in Four Acts, by Sutton Vane, entitled
"THE SPAN OF LIFE."

The play running this week at Fulham is The Span of Life, a fairly robust melodrama of the ordinary type. In addition to the usual attractions of melodrama it has a specially thrilling scene, in which the heroine is enabled to escape across a chasm by the aid of three acrobats, who link themselves end to end so to say, and span the gap with a human bridge, over which she is able to walk. This part of the performance is most successfully done by the Stebbing Brothers, who also give a clever acrobatic display between two scenes. As actors, moreover, they acquit themselves worthily in the play proper. The hero, Richard Blunt, is played by Mr. R. S. Trelawney with earnestness and power; Mr. Sanderson Moffat as Dunstan Leach is an admirably persistent and cold-blooded villain, and makes the most of his part; Mr. Walter Dale has the gift of humour, and causes many hearty laughs as Nutty Brown, also scoring with a good rendering of a comic song, satirising the prevalent fashion for "Good-bye" songs; Mr. James Jarret contributes a good study of character as Joshua Gurnet, the light-house man; and Mr. Charles Noel impersonates an Inspector of Police. Mr. J. Petersfell is dignified as the kind-hearted Arab Azrek; Miss Phyllis Graham, who takes a double part—the child Cecil Jelf in the first act, and the son of the hero and heroine in the later acts—gives a satisfactory rendering of each. Miss Phyllis Hamilton shows some power as Mrs. Jelf; Miss Kitty Russell acts throughout with much skill and humour as the maid-of-all-work, Shrove Tuesday, with a successful song; and Miss Guinevere Shilton does well in the onerous part of the heroine, Kate Heathcote.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 11, the Tragedy, in Four Acts, by Lateiner, entitled
"THE EXILE."

Although J. Lateiner's tragedy of The Exile, as presented by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company at the Pavilion on Monday night, on scarcely lay claim to any attraction as a novelty, yet the story dealing with a phase of Nihilism as applied to the Jewish faith is in every way interesting and thoroughly effective. The piece receives skilful treatment from the capable Yiddish artists, and, at the same time, is exceedingly well mounted. On Monday Mr. Chas. Natansohn fully sustained his high reputation by his performance of Osip, in which he displayed much pathos and strong emotional power. Mme. Natansohn exhibited talent of a very high order, her rendering of the suppressed passion, energy, and tenderness of Luboff Michailovna being of unusual excellence and winning for her recalls at the close of every act. Mr. J. Fineberg is always at his best when depicting tyrannical scoundrels; therefore, he is seen to particular advantage as Nicolai Nikitin, a part which he invests with the necessary brutality; while Mr. Isaacowitch is deserving of much praise for the admirable way in which he succeeded in the character of Ivanoff. Careful intelligence was shown by Mr. J. Goldsmith as Reb Jacob; and Mr. S. Schilling was well placed as Michele, Mr. N. Hamburger being satisfactory as a Detective. Mme. Goldstein found favour as Sarah; and Mme. Josephson as Alexander, Mr. Markowitz as Fiodor, and Mr. Levene as a Colonel, did good work when required. The tableau at the close of the play, of the Nihilists grouped round a garlanded statue of Liberty, is most picturesque. During the week performances have been given of The Bigamist, Son of the Star, Broken Hearts, Otheilo, and Sulamith.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Wednesday, March 13, the Musical Comedy,
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Quite a full house assembled to witness the flying visit of The Catch of the Season, to which a particularly favourably reception was accorded. Premier honours went to Miss Moya Mannering, a delightful Angela, who sang and danced to perfection. She won a full meed of applause for her tasteful rendition of "I'll be a good little girl," and in Act II. she was heard at her best in "Molly" and "Teasing." Mr. Frank Lincoln was capital as the Duke of St. Jermyns, faithfully reproducing the original part with wonderful exactitude. His chief vocal successes were "The Church Parade" (Act II.) and "A rooster sat on a barnyard fence." The Hon. Honoria Bedford, admirably played by Miss Florence Lee, was another charming representation. She sang with much archness "The amorous coon," and contributed largely to the general success. To Mr. E. H. Kelly fell the somewhat thankless rôle of Lord Dundreary, and he did his best to make the part attractive, and succeeded. Miss Isobel Dickens's Sophia was a capable representation; and Mr. Hampton Gordon played the part of Sir John effectively and unostentatiously. Miss Emily Mellon proved altogether irresistible as the good-hearted Lady Crystal, and Miss Maud Davies was an efficient Duchess of St. Jermyns. Bucket found a sufficiently precocious exponent in Master Grata; and excellent work in a lesser degree was done by Mr. G. Dickens as Higham Montague, Mr. H. Gordon as Lord Yatton, and Mr. F. Miles as Mr. Gibson. Miss Lilian Wesson was satisfactory as the Princess, and Miss Belle Napier played Lady Caterham with refinement. The Gibson Girls were early favourites, and merit recognition. The difficulties of stage-managership—always intensified at "flying matinées"—were readily surmounted by Mr. J. Wigley, and a good word is due to Mr. J. A. Robertson, the musical conductor.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 11, Balfe's Opera, entitled
"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

On Monday, Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera company gave a fine rendering of the above beautiful opera. The company, chorus, and orchestra alike worked hard and well, and made the production one which greatly appealed to the tastes of the large audience present. The part of Thaddeus was played by Mr. F. J. Hargrave with marked success. Throughout the evening he maintained a standard of excellence which found great favour. Mr. John Ridding gave a praiseworthy impersonation of Count Arnheim. His interpretation of the rôle was full of feeling, and proved a decided success. Mr. Sidney Clifford had a good opportunity of proving his worth as Devilshoof. He accomplished his task with credit, and sang his various numbers in the best of style. Mr. Richard Cummings as Florestein gave a capital rendering in his usual droll manner; Miss Jessie Dennis worked hard and cleverly as the Gipsy Queen, and deserves every praise; Miss Maud Esdale gave every satisfaction as Buda; and Arline was most capably represented by Miss Christine Gomez, whose voice was heard to great advantage throughout the opera. Other operas upon this week's programme are The Rose of Castille, Faust, Il Trovatore, The Waterman, Nigel, and The Lily of Killarney.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 11, the Comic Opera, entitled
"VERONIQUE."

After a short absence Kingston playgoers were delighted to renew acquaintance with this charming musical production, when it was re-staged at the Royal County Theatre on Monday evening, and their reception of it was as cordial as on the occasion of its former visit. Amongst a capable company, which Mr. George Dance engineered, chief honours are carried off by Miss Ethel Negretti, who played the title-rôle, and sings well. Miss Neste Laurel is a sweet and engaging Denise; Miss Edith Devonshire, with a fine contralto voice, makes a favourable impression as the Countess de Champ d'Azur; and Miss Doris Greville acquits herself well as Mme. Coquenard. Mr. Roland Bottomley is an acceptable Florestan de Vallancourt; whilst the low-comedy work of the piece is ably sustained by Mr. Tom Seymour as Mons. Coquenard, and by Mr. Percival Knight as Mons. Loustot. The opera is admirably staged in the matter of costumes and scenery, and an augmented orchestra and a numerous chorus are ably controlled by Mr. Clement Locknane.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 11, the Musical Comedy entitled
"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

Mr. Milton Bode's company is certainly one of the smartest musical comedy companies that has appeared in Mr. J. Bannister Howard's season so far, and although the play is no novelty to theatre-goers the public has gathered in good numbers at each performance. The production is well put on, with special scenery, a large chorus, and plenty of new business has been introduced. Mr. Rudolph Kloss as the Chinese Emperor Hang-Chow is an imposing figure, and delivered his lines quite in the Savoy manner of distinctness; and Mr. P. Allerton Turner's careful make-up and acting as Chippie-Chop, the Lord Chancellor, were very commendable. The Admiral Hi-Lung of Mr. Leonard May had a distinctly nautical flavour and many quaint touches; and Mr. Harry Jennings cleverly played the young English officer, Tom Hatherton, and introduces a new topical song, "I hear they want some more," which was encored. In the part of Mr. Pineapple Mr. George Rydon has a "full hand," and by his singing and acting causes much merriment as the susceptible bridegroom whose wedding-trip is the raison d'être of the piece. Miss Eva Bevington was an immediate success as Mrs. Pineapple, and had many opportunities of showing her cleverness in singing and dancing. As the Princess Soo-Soo Miss Nancy Rossiter, possessed of a fine voice, sang effectively the song "Egypt" in the second act, with its charming effects of lighting and the full chorus, being re-demanded many times. Miss Gwennie Harcourt took a line of her own as the quaint Cockney servant transplanted in China, and was the success of the evening. Her complete disregard for appearance and her natural acting were much appreciated. The officious mother-in-law, Mrs. Brown, was an awesome figure in the hands of Miss Maud Adams; and the four bridesmaids made a pretty group as acted by Mesdames Iris Roy, Kathleen Kerr, Elsie Skillings, and Dorothy Radcliffe. The dresses were rich and varied, and, with the augmented orchestra, the play was produced in a manner worthy of its continued popularity.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 11, the Military Play,
"THE INDIAN MUTINY."

Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company are appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in a new version of the military play, by George Daventry, entitled The Indian Mutiny. The lurid story, the colouring afforded by the Oriental scenery and the native costumes, interest the audience to an unusual degree; and the constant changes of scenery add to the sense of excitement. The members make the representation duly effective. Among the British characters Mr. Edward M. Hamilton makes an interesting Lieut. Manley; Mr. Cyril Harrison represents Captain Manley in true military style; and an equally prominent personage in the story, Major Ingleby, Commissioner in charge of the Garrison, is well represented by Mr. John Davidson. Mr. G. Birch does well as Ensign Blake. The proverbially amusing servant is found in Captain Manley's attendant, Terry O'Brien, capably sketched by Mr. Cecil Morand; Mr. F. Anderson is an effective Sergeant Thompson. Miss Lillie Grey is amusingly prominent as Mrs. Major Ingleby (the martinet), and Kate Ingleby is played in interesting fashion by Miss Agnes Kingston. Mr. Villiers Stanley provides a vivid portraiture of the relentless leader of the rebels, Nebu Singh. Another striking representation is Mr. George Belmont's Abul Khan. Miss F. Melrose Millett as Ghuz-nah, Brahmin priestess, trained to arms, has a part quite distinctive in its way, and she does not fail to make the most of her opportunities.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 11, the Musical Comedy entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Mr. Robert Crossman's company is appearing here this week in the charming musical comedy called Sergeant Brue. The name-part is in the clever hands of Mr. Arthur Reynolds, whose rendering of the character is beyond praise, being an altogether admirable piece of artistic work. His singing of "The bobby's beano" and share in the trio "Lal-lal-la" are capitally given. Michael Brue is acted in manly and interesting style by Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy, who sings delightfully the pretty numbers allotted to the part, especially the song entitled "So did Eve." Miss Mary Hay is an attractive Aurora Brue, her songs, notably "Under a Panama," being very pleasingly rendered. Miss Marion Hargrave is a bright and pretty Daisy; Miss Ethel Ivemy is a pleasing Mabel Widgett; and the other ladies' parts were well filled by Miss Lillian Leslie (Vivienne Russell), Miss Ethel Ford (Lena Dare), Miss Kitty Rawlinson (Louisa Claire), and Miss Mabel Keith (Eva Graham). Miss Cissy Raymond is a capital Lady Bickenhall, and her songs, "My Lady Busy," "Instinct" and "Musical Comedy" are admirably rendered. Mr. E. Mozan is very good as Gerald Treherne, and his singing of "A world for you" is excellent. Mr. H. Soutar's impersonation of Matthew Habisham was a clever study; Mr. H. C. Hood is good as Inspector Gorringe; and Mr. Arnold Forrester as Mr. Lamb, Mr. Tom Robertson as Captain Bay, and Mr. C. Sims as Mr. Crank are all praiseworthy exponents of their respective characters. Mr. Clarence Ibbotson as Crooky Scrubbs presents an amusing interpretation of the part, his songs being warmly applauded, especially "George Washington." Mr. Sydney Shaw is the musical director, and must be congratulated on his success; and Mr. A. C. Pottow is the courteous business-manager.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 11, the Drama, entitled
"LIFE'S SWEETEST SIN."

Mr. Brabner's exciting nautical drama has not previously paid a visit to Rotherhithe, but this week it is receiving a capital representation at the hands of the talented stock company at the Terriss Theatre. Mr. Ashley Page plays the rôle of the hero, Captain Harold Marston, in a buoyant and breezy fashion, which wins all hearts, and his stirring declamation recalls memories of the late William Terriss. Miss Marion Denvil contributes a sympathetic portrait of the heroine Doreen Rivers, and the struggles of the unhappy girl who finds herself an unwilling victim to a horrible craving for morphia are most artistically depicted. Mr. John Sargent causes roars or laughter as the bluff old salt, Martin; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale ably aids him in the task of fun-making as the would-be sporting valet, Bob Tunner. Miss Mattie Everett is amusing as Bess Grayson; Mr. Weldon Atherstone contributes a firm and consistent portrait of the villainous Doctor Colbrooke, whose two rascally confederates are well played by Messrs. Tom Taylor and David Noble. The repentant rake Ernie Wodstone is well acted by Mr. Cecil G. Calvert; Miss East Robertson is warmly applauded for her clever acting as the good-hearted Fay Colbrooke. The scenery and effects are a prominent feature in the production, the rising and the sinking of the submarine boat in the third act being most realistically managed.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

This week Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is here with the drama Her Luck in London. Miss Neil's performance as Nellie Harborne is admirable. The audience follow with keen interest Nellie Harborne's career from the time she is a simple country maid to the finish—the reconciliation with her husband. Mr. Charles Leicester is the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor, the Irish nobleman. He is an excellent Irishman, and well portrays the characteristic temperament. Mr. Magill Martyn is very good as the villain, Richard Lenowen; Mr. Douglas Tremayne plays well as the Rev. Lionel Strong; and Mr. Tyrone Power as Stephen Harborne, the harsh father of Nellie, looks quite a country farmer, and acquits himself well in a difficult part. Mr. Bruce Chapman as the hard-up dude, Algie Kurcumbrie, makes himself appear as foolish as the part requires. Lilian Harborne, the narrow-minded sister of Nellie, is cleverly played by Miss Francis Bruce; and Miss Marie Clavering makes a good picture of the faded town beauty, Mme. Gabrille, who afterwards turns out to be the mother of Nellie. The comedy is well supplied by Mr. J. Selby Dillsen and Miss Florrie Groves as Jerry Gotobed and Maud Gladys Shovepenny respectively. The minor parts are well filled by Messrs. E. S. Nuttall, G. Stone, and W. Wroe as gilded youths; Henry Hope as O'Connor's servant; Misses Pamela Hodson as Angelina Plantagenet, the second Mrs. Thirsty; Daisy Moss, Queenie Lamont, and Kitty Gerald as Evening Stars; and Dora Woodberry as the barmaid. The play is well staged and costumed, Miss Neil's dresses being particularly pretty. Mr. Leicester acts as general manager for Miss Neil and Mr. Newman Maurice courteously looks after all requirements in "the front."

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 11, the Musical Comedy entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

This successful musical piece has been received with enthusiastic appreciation at the Kennington Theatre. A feature of Mr. George Dance's production is that the book is brought down to date, and there are many topical lines and some new songs. A capable successor to Mr. Seymour Hicks has been found in Mr. Frank Lincoln, who acts the part of the Duke of St. Jermyns with a rollicking dash which wins the hearts of the ladies. He is in great form in the scene in which he banters the Gibson Girls, and, besides being a good comedian, he has the further advantage of possessing an engaging personality. As Angela, the real "catch of the season," Miss Moya Mannering is delightful. Of prepossessing appearance, invested with a fund of original humour, and a vivacious manner, Miss Mannering lends to her interpretation of the character a charm of its own. Miss Belle Napier makes an admirable Lady Caterham, the benevolent fairy godmother of Angela; and Mr. E. H. Kelly is exceedingly good as Lord Dundreary. Miss Maud Davies gives an artistic representation of the part of the Duchess of St. Jermyns; while a really clever performance is that of Mr. Franklin Miles as the father of the Gibson Girls. The rôle of Sir John Crystal, the henpecked husband, is creditably sustained by Mr. Hampton Gordon; and Master Grata scores a distinct hit as Bucket, the page. Miss Isobel Dickens and Miss Florence Lee furnish a careful study of the somewhat unthankful parts of the two Sisters Bedford; while Miss Emily Mellon is very good as Lady Crystal. Mr. Geo. Dickens (Higham Montague), Miss M. Carew (the Princess), and Mr. Hugh Henson (Lord Yatton) all deserve mention; while one of the principal attractions of the evening's entertainment is the appearance of the bevy of attractive Gibson Girls. The chorus is strong and the concerted numbers go well under the conductorship of Mr. J. A. Robertson, the musical director.

Miss Rosetta A. Robson, the authoress of the clever new song, "The House of the Presence," which we noticed last week, is the granddaughter, not the daughter, of the well-known comedian, E. M. Robson.

In the Court of Chancery on Tuesday an order was granted for the compulsory winding-up of the Winter German Opera, Limited. The petitioner was Herr Wilhelm Herold, Court singer to the King of Denmark, who was one of the artists, said counsel, brought to London to sing at the German Opera, and had not been able to obtain payment of his fees.

"HER SON."

A Play, in Four Acts, by Horace Annesley Vachell, performed for the first time in London at the Playhouse on Tuesday afternoon, March 12.

Sir Augustus Helmingham..MR. ALFRED BISHOP
Richard Gascoyne .....MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Min .....MASTER BOBBIE ANDREWS
Lady Helmingham ....MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
Crystal Wride .....MISS WYNNE MATTHISON
Suzanne .....MISS EMMA CHAMBERS
A Toy Seller .....MISS KATE HARWOOD
Dorothy Fairfax .....MISS WINIFRED EMERY

It is scarcely worth while to confuse the reader's perception of the plot of Her Son by comparing it, in detail, with that of the original version which was produced at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Nov. 15 last. The play has certainly been improved by the elision of three or four of the characters, and by taking ten years off the interval between the first and second acts. When Her Son was presented to the audience at the Playhouse on Tuesday afternoon the first act was substantially the same as before. It takes place at the flat of Miss Dorothy Fairfax, a charming young lady of independent means, who lives in a flat at Battersea. She is engaged to a young and impecunious journalist called Dick Gascoyne. Crystal Wride, an actress, calls on Dorothy, and threatens to commit suicide if Dorothy marries Dick. Crystal has been living with him as his mistress, and they have quarrelled and parted; but she still loves him desperately. If only Dorothy will postpone her marriage with Dick for a year Crystal will reform and live virtuously during that period. Dorothy consents, and Dick goes off to Darkest Africa for the twelvemonth. Crystal does not tell Dorothy that she—Crystal—has had a child by Dick, and that the infant is out at nurse in France.

At the end of eight years we find Dorothy living at Bournemouth. She has adopted an eight-year-old boy named Min, whom we immediately suspect of being Crystal's "kid"—we use the lady's own terminology—by Dick. Dorothy has been passing as a widow, and has adopted the infant while in France, where she has been living in retirement for four years, during all of which time Dick was detained in Central Africa. When he returned he heard of Dorothy as a widow, and drew the natural inference that she had grown tired of waiting for him. Crystal Wride was at hand to take advantage of the error. She married Dick, and has become a successful actress. Gascoyne was told of the birth of the child, but was led to believe that it died in infancy.

Dick and Crystal arrive at Bournemouth in the second act; and Crystal, noticing the likeness between Dick and Min, draws certain injurious conclusions. Dorothy is wrung by anxiety as to her proper course. Ought she to retain Min, of whom she is devotedly fond, or should she be strictly honest and yield up the boy to his unnatural mother? After much emotional argument the truth is told; but Dick and Crystal consent to leave Min in Dorothy's care, and as Crystal's death from disease is only a question of time, it is made evident to the audience that Dorothy has only to wait for Dick to become her husband.

The sagacious reader of this scenario will have no difficulty in estimating the weight and depth of Her Son, which made a pleasant afternoon's entertainment at the Playhouse on Tuesday. It could not be said to entirely exhaust the capacities of its exponents, who gave one the impression of what is called, in Turf slang, "being out for an airing." Perhaps the performance was all the more agreeable for its entire absence of effort and over-strain. At any rate, nothing could have been more tenderly affectionate and delicately emotional than Miss Winifred Emery's Dorothy Fairfax. The emotional phases of the sweet and kindly creature were depicted by Miss Emery with the ease which only comes of absolute accomplishment and long experience. Mr. Cyril Maude played Richard Gascoyne with all the fine facility and polished freedom which we expect from him; and Master Bobbie Andrews quite won the hearts of the audience by his clever and natural embodiment of Min. The comedy relief was supplied by Mr. Alfred Bishop as the elderly, overbearing Sir Augustus Helmingham, and by Miss Florence Haydon, who had an amusing and thankful rôle in that of Lady Helmingham, and handled it in the most artistic way. Miss Wynne Matthison, looking very attractive as the erring actress, Crystal Wride, played the part for all that it was worth; and Miss Emma Chambers was satisfactory as the French servant, Suzanne. Miss Kate Harwood, well made up, spoke her lines well as the Toy Seller.

THE DOT STEPHENS FUND.

EIGHT HUNDRED AND FIFTY POUNDS.

A committee meeting was held at the offices of J. Bannister Howard, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, on Tuesday, March 12, at one o'clock, at which it was agreed that the money should be dealt with at once. After various suggestions it was unanimously decided that the money should be placed on deposit at a bank, with instructions to pay out the sum of £2 per week to Miss Stephens, or, in the event of her decease, to her mother, and in the further event of her mother's decease the balance of the money should go equally to two benevolent charities, viz., the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home. The committee, as hereunder signed, agreed to act as trustees to the fund. It was arranged that Mr. Herbert Ralland should see Miss Dot Stephens with a view to gaining her assent to the above conditions.

(Signed)
J. BANNISTER HOWARD.
HERBERT RALLAND.
HATTON WHARTON.

Miss Dot Stephens most willingly agreed to the above conditions, and has sent the following letter of thanks to the subscribers and helpers of the fund:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—Permit me through the columns of your valuable paper to express my heartfelt gratitude to the members of the theatrical and music-hall profession for their great kindness and assistance.

I feel sure my friends will believe how very, very grateful I am.

I cannot express my gratitude sufficiently to Messrs. Bannister Howard, Herbert Ralland, Oswald Stoll, and F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, who have been such good friends to me.

Yours very truly,
DOT STEPHENS.

DEATH OF MISS M. A. VICTOR.

We regret to record the death of Miss M. A. Victor, the well-known actress, who passed peacefully away on Wednesday afternoon at her residence in Highbury at the age of seventy-six. Miss Victor, who was the mother of Miss Emma Victor, had been on the stage since her earliest childhood, for she came of an old theatrical family, and she had supported Macready, Phelps, Chas. Kean, and Helen Faucit (Lady Martin). With Phelps she appeared at Sadler's Wells in such parts as Lady Freelove in The Jealous Wife and Mopsa in A Winter's Tale. Later she made her appearance at the Strand Theatre in The Latest Edition of the Lady of Lyons, a burlesque by H. J. Byron, produced in 1858. Miss Victor was a member of the Strand company for some time, and then she became a popular favourite at the Grecian Theatre under the Conquest régime.

In 1882 Miss Victor began an engagement at Drury Lane, appearing as Polly Burt in Pluck; in Freedom, produced on Aug. 4, 1883; and in A Sailor and his Lass, produced on Oct. 1 of the same year. Miss Victor had a brief experience of comic opera at the Comedy Theatre under the management of Miss Melnotte in 1886, and in the following year appeared in farcical comedy under the management of Mr. Hawtrey at the Globe. Then she joined Mr. Edward Terry, appearing as Mrs. Chuffy in The Churchwarden, with which Terry's Theatre was opened on Oct. 17, 1887, and in the succeeding piece, The Woman-Hater, produced on March 21, 1888, Miss Victor was the Mrs. Gil-fillian. She was next engaged at the Criterion Theatre, being the Mrs. Hardcastle in the revival of She Stoops to Conquer, on May 10, 1890; the Mrs. Charity Smith in Sowing and Reaping, produced on July 5; and the Mrs. Buck in Welcome, Little Stranger, produced on Aug. 6. She took part in the production of Husband and Wife on April 30, 1891, and of Miss Decima on July 23. In Incognita, produced at the Lyric on Oct. 6, 1892, she was the Estrella Tintemara. She was the Mrs. Knight Williams in The Great Unpaid, at the Comedy, on May 9, 1893. On April 14, 1894, she appeared as Martha in Henry Irving's production of Faust.

In April, 1895, she appeared with Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt at the Trafalgar, afterwards the Duke of York's, Theatre in Baron Golosh, originally produced at the Star Theatre and Opera House, Swansea. Next she went to the Vaudeville to play Miss Romney in The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown—a favourite part—her embodiment of which won the warm eulogy of the late Mr. Robert Buchanan, part author of the piece. On Oct. 14 the play was transferred to Terry's Theatre, and Miss Victor remained a member of the company. When The Romance of a Shopwalker was produced at the Theatre Royal, Colchester on Feb. 24, 1896, and was transferred to the Vaudeville Theatre, London, two days later, Miss Victor played the part of Mrs. Tomkins. On March 28 she was again at the Vaudeville, appearing as Angelique in A Night Out. This was followed by an engagement at the Shaftesbury Theatre with Mr. Musgrove, when she successfully appeared in A Scarlet Feather, produced on Nov. 19. She also took part in The Conquerors, produced by Mr. George Alexander at the St. James's Theatre on April 14, 1898; and on May 30 following she went to the Royalty Theatre. Later, she was at the Comedy Theatre for three weeks. Then she rejoined Henry Irving's company to again play Martha in Faust, revived on Sept. 3. On Feb. 10, 1904, she appeared in A Clean Slate, produced at the Criterion Theatre, and this was her last engagement, retiring after a theatrical career extending over the long period of sixty years. When a mere child Miss Victor played Prince Arthur in Macready's revival of King John at Drury Lane Theatre in Oct., 1842, and the critic of a London newspaper of that date thus describes the effect produced by her acting:—"The great heroine of the night was a child, a little girl of eight, who represented Arthur. Never was a piece more full of grace, nature, and pathos. When she hears her doom from Hubert, with 'tears in her eyes,' distraction in her aspect, she looked a picture of despair. Her handkerchief became wet with her tears, she wrung her hands and stamped her tiny feet upon the ground in the very extremity of mortal agony. It was too perfect.

It should be added that Miss Victor was for many years in receipt of an annuity from the Royal General Theatrical Fund.

THE ACTORS' UNION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Everybody will be reading your report of the general meeting of the Actors' Union that took place on Monday last, and I hope that they will notice that Miss Gertrude Kingston is the first artist of repute to come forward and speak on behalf of the sweated and suppressed rank-and-file actor. To me it is very remarkable that no actor or actress of note has come forward before.

Time has shown that the success of our calling does not depend on a few stars in London and a whole host of practically "nobodies" in the provinces. The policy of our managers in spreading the work over so many has created these "nobodies," and excessive competition in the end has not benefited either touring-manager, resident-manager, author, or artist, to say nothing of the public. Unless we combine and suppress the amateur—for at least a time—this state of things will get worse. There is no reason that I know of why actors who have served the managers well in the past should be passed over for novices except that the latter are cheaper.

I feel sure, now that Miss Kingston has led the way, that if the rank and file will only combine we shall be supported by every actor and actress of note in the kingdom.

It is freely whispered in London that many of our most respected managers will uphold the Union, and condemn, at any rate, the practice.—Yours faithfully,
ROBSON PAIGE.

"DAN'L PEGGOTTY."

New Version, in Four Acts, by H. Kellett Chambers, of Charles Dickens's novel, "David Copperfield," produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, March 11.

Dan'l Peggotty .....MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT
Ham .....MR. LIONEL BELMORE
Steerforth .....MR. GERALD LAWRENCE
David Copperfield .....MR. STANLEY HARRISON
Mr. Micawber .....MR. CHARLES COLLETTE
Uriah Heep .....MR. A. B. TAPPING
Mr. Wickfield .....MR. J. D. ROSS
Littimer .....MR. GEORGE DE LARA
Mrs. Steerforth .....MISS ETHEL SARJIENT
Rosa Dartle .....MISS CLARISSA SELWYNNE
Aunt Betsy Trotwood .....MISS HELEN VICARY
Agnes Wickfield .....MISS GORDON WALKER
Mrs. Gummidge .....MISS NELL DOUGLAS
Mrs. Barkis .....MISS BEATRICE GROSVENOR
Martha .....MISS LILLIE CAVENAGH
Little Em'ly .....MISS ETHEL WARD

"Believe me if all those endearing young charms" sounded early in the new play at Hammersmith on Monday. It was Steerforth singing to Little Em'ly, and from the moment that Moore's old melody was heard in a melodious tenor at the wings while the heroine's uncle, her promised husband, and her friends faced the audience the success of the new version of Dickens's favourite work was assured. The scene was one of real dramatic strength, and prepared the way for others of equally agreeable effect. While preserving the individuality of the old seafarer round whom his play is written the adaptor has managed to introduce into his dramatic scheme all the most important characters in the famous novel, and to link them together to form a drama of absorbing interest, for which a future should be ensured. Early acquaintance is made with David Copperfield, now grown to man's estate, in the office of Wickfield and Heep—the redoubtable Uriah—who has been taken into partnership with Mr. Wickfield, over whom he exercises a fell influence. Steerforth comes to visit David, and soon Peggotty and Ham loom large in the doorway, bringing with them Little Em'ly, who thus makes her first acquaintance with Steerforth. A move is made in the second act to Peggotty's hut, where the old salt announces Em'ly's engagement to Ham, and Steerforth's influence over the girl is revealed. The outcast, Martha, ventures into the hut, and Peggotty's wrath is aroused, but he is moved by Em'ly's compassion, and supplies the wretched woman with money. Evening comes without the return of Little Em'ly, till at length Ham breaks the news of her disappearance with Steerforth, and the old man, after an impressive scene, sets out on his memorable quest.

Peggotty seeks out Steerforth's mother in the third act, but his attempts to induce her to consent to the marriage of her son and Em'ly are ineffectual. News of Em'ly is brought to David at Mr. Wickfield's by Littimer, Steerforth's servant, who informs David that the unhappy girl has left her betrayer and is somewhere in Spain, whither Peggotty immediately starts. In this scene Uriah Heep, after aspiring to marriage with his partner's daughter Agnes, is denounced by Wilkins Micawber, and is sent out into the arms of Bow-street runners. Em'ly is at length found by Martha, and taken to her humble garret. To this apartment Rosa Dartle, the rejected of Steerforth, comes to gloat over Em'ly's misery, and his servant, Littimer, at his master's bidding, is just offering her marriage when Peggotty enters and clasps the unhappy girl to his bosom. The last act is devoted to the bringing of Steerforth in a dying condition to the hut, and to the re-uniting of the little family, and their determination to seek happiness in a foreign land.

Well-known and popular artists combined to secure an effective representation. Perfection was attained in the principal part by Mr. Charles Cartwright, whose Dan'l Peggotty was a performance quite worthy of the actor's well-won reputation. With his mellow voice, tender solicitation for his niece, and vigorous action, Mr. Cartwright must have been the very Peggotty that Dickens drew. His scene at the close of the second act, when he learns of his misfortune, was made very impressive, and it is little wonder that the calls at the end of each act were many times repeated. Miss Ethel Ward endowed the rôle of Little Em'ly with a prepossessing appearance and a voice the plaintive tones of which admirably befitted the character. Miss Ward gained sympathy at the outset by the freshness and charm of her portrayal, and her subsequent scenes with Steerforth were marked by dramatic significance which gave them added value. A high degree of emotion was reached in Em'ly's meeting with the unfortunate Martha, and the young girl's exhibition of terror at the thought of being deceived was profoundly touching. Again, in the attic, where she finds refuge, Little Em'ly's wretchedness was impressively suggested, and Miss West's appeal to the susceptibilities of the audience was throughout complete. Another capital portraiture was that of Uriah Heep, played by Mr. A. B. Tapping with the excellence that was to be expected from so practised a performer. Accent and gesture were in tune with the part, and though he made the character of the fawning, squirming sneak sufficiently repulsive, there was a humour about the impersonation that rendered his presence always welcome. To Mr. Lionel Belmore praise must also be given for a performance of outstanding merit as Ham. Voice and appearance were quite in keeping with the part of the humble but honest-hearted young fisherman, and Mr. Belmore's share of the success of the evening was no insignificant one. Mr. Charles Collette was happily secured for Wilkins Micawber, a rôle which he made his own some years ago. Mr. Collette's make-up was a study, and the swelling pride and grandiloquence of the impecunious but resourceful old gentleman was assumed with irresistible humour by Mr. Collette, who exacted laughter even when Micawber, overpowered by the excess of his emotion, was fain to express by eloquent action the sentiments his voice failed to speak. The difficult rôle of Steerforth was played by Mr. Gerald Lawrence, whose reading of the rôle put Steerforth's evil nature promimently forward. Mr. Lawrence, however, never lost hold of the lighter side of the part, and his buoyant acting was ever an agreeable feature of the performance. Mr. Stanley Harrison gained general favour by his bright impersonation of David Copperfield, whose scenes of sentiment with Agnes Wickfield might well be elaborated. The latter character was daintily played by Miss Gordon Walker, who made a comely and gentle Agnes, and won the hearts of all. Miss Clarissa Selwynne as Rosa Dartle assumed the malignance of the disappointed girl with intensity; and Miss Lillie Cavenagh increased the pathos of the part of Martha by the clearness with which she delivered her lines. Miss Nell Douglas drew a whimsical picture of Mrs. Gummidge; Miss Beatrice Grosvenor embodied the tender-hearted Mrs. Barkis with success; Miss Ethel Sarjient made a refined and ladylike Mrs. Steerforth; and Aunt Betsy received adequate treatment at the hands of Miss Helen Vicary. A word of praise is due to Mr. George De Lara for a strikingly characteristic impersonation of Mr. Littimer; and Mr. J. D. Ross gave an effective rendering of Mr. Wickfield.

THE successful production of The Babes in the Wood, which has just terminated an eleven weeks' run at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, is now for sale. The Sleeping Beauty, last season's pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, and Mother Goose, produced at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, last Christmas, are also to be disposed of. Application for all three productions should be made to Mr. John Hart, Theatre Royal, Bradford.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD'S ENTERPRISES.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard is not merely an enterprising man, but a strenuous worker. He has succeeded in every undertaking he has engaged upon, and he has succeeded, too, where other men have failed. It is not our intention to make invidious comparisons, but a statement, from the gentleman's own lips of what he has been doing recently will make interesting reading.

"I am so far pleased with the Crystal Palace results," says Mr. Howard. "It is just over a year that I took over the place, much against the warnings of my friends. You see, the Palace was of great utility to me in many ways. It has three fine scene docks, and one of the biggest storages in London. I was thus able to store the scenery, dresses, and baskets of twenty of my companies, and, in addition, the opportunity was afforded for keeping a scenic artist on the spot. In this way I am saving over £500 per annum on scenic contracts and storage.

"I had the greatest difficulty at the commencement to secure companies for the Crystal Palace. Thanks to Sir Charles Wyndham, I got a splendid send-off. One of the first engagements was that of the Moody-Manners Opera Company. They were afraid to come when I approached them, but I gave them a big guarantee. They did so well that they have entered into contracts with me to appear twice a year, once in the spring, and again in the autumn. I had an enormous success with my pantomine Aladdin. You see, I went back to the olden days, and gave the people a good and really funny pantomime, with the demon traps and the harlequinade and the shadow business, so seldom seen nowadays. It proved so popular that for five weeks I presented it twice daily. On the last day we gave three performances, at 12 o'clock, 3, and 7.30."

Mr. Howard considers that the Crystal Palace is very far from being "dead." "Of course," he goes on to add, "it is very unfortunate that they are short of capital, but I really believe that if fresh capital were obtained and the place were run on the Blackpool lines of a sixpenny admission and sixpenny return fares from London it would prove to be one of England's most popular resorts. It is an open secret that sooner or later the 'tube' will be down there, and then, if not before, we shall get the sixpenny return tickets."

Speaking on the subject of theatrical depression, Mr. Howard emphasises the fact that there has been a very great slump in business. He attributes it to various causes. Trade has been bad with the working classes for some little time past, and they have got so much in arrear in money matters that—particularly in the Lancashire and Cornish districts—the men are now putting forth every effort to pay old debts. "Music halls have affected the theatres to a considerable extent. The labouring classes like to patronise a place where two performances are given nightly. Then there has also been a great dearth of suitable plays, with the consequence that to-day there are only a few good attractions on the road.

"I hardly know what it is to take a holiday. I never have less than six companies on the road, and that is the number I have out this spring. Until recently I was controlling four theatres, but I have now reduced my establishments to two—namely, the Crystal Palace and the King's Lynn Theatre. A couple of weeks ago I started the latter place as a hippodrome, and the innovation has met with gratifying success. Instead of opening it every night in the week, I run two houses nightly for the first three days, an arrangement which works extremely well."

The subject of this interview was one of the foremost promoters of the Managers' Club, of which he has every reason to be proud. It is now a flourishing concern, and enables resident and touring managers to keep in touch with one another.

And yet, in spite of his multifarious interests, Mr. Howard finds time to assist the distressed members of the profession. His goodly service in connection with the Dot Stephens' Fund will not be quickly forgotten. "The outcome of the appeal for that unfortunate artist," he says, "was extremely satisfactory. With the kind help of Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, a sum of £850 has been collected."

Most of our readers are aware of the prominent part taken by Mr. Howard for many years in sports of all kinds. He is an enthusiastic cyclist and cricketer, and an expert swimmer, and he plays a fine game at billiards. Like several other well-known managers, he takes an interest in horse-racing, and frequents the meetings "if only to enjoy the fresh air," as he puts it. Asked as to whether he intended following the example of some of his theatrical confrères and form a stud, he replied that that was too expensive a luxury.

"THREE BLIND MICE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I beg the favour for a small space in your paper to recount to you a fact connected with the comedy Three Blind Mice, now playing at the Criterion Theatre. That title I claim as mine. I wrote a three-act comedy some years back called Three Blind Mice, licensed and registered the same, and toured with it. I have since let it out to amateurs for odd nights. But the author and the partnership management at the Criterion deny my right, and insist upon retaining the title, with no return or apology for the wrong done me. If it is legal to use my title now, why, when I wrote a comedy called Our Girls some years back did Messrs. James and Thorne, of the Vaudeville, send an offer of £150 for suppression of my title, an offer which at that time I refused? Whereupon the Lord Chamberlain granted them a licence for their comedy, by Byron, called The Girls. If my right to the name of my piece was good then, why not as good now?—Yours faithfully,
BRANDON ELLIS.

TERRY'S THEATRE.

On Saturday, March 9, revival of the Musical Extravaganza, in Three Scenes, by Gilbert A'Beckett, entitled

"THE LAST OF THE LEGENDS."

Karl .....MISS MABEL MAARTENS
Count Fritz .....MISS KATHLEEN MAUREEN
Sir Hubert de Bow .....MR. WILLIAM DEXTER
Wilhelm .....MISS IRENE VAUGHAN
Seltzerwasser .....MR. CHAS. A. STEPHENSON
Dorothea .....MISS HETTY TEMPEST
Erlinda .....MISS DOLLY YORKE
Lady Bertha .....MISS GLADYS ARCHBUTT
Smith .....MR. T. P. HAYNES

Mr. W. H. C. Nation has revived a musical extravaganza by Mr. Gilbert A'Beckett, in which several songs written by Mr. Nation himself are introduced. The dialogue has been brought up to date by references to current topics, including, of course, the new motor 'buses, the recent strike amongst the music-hall artists, and the late London County Council's bad bricks. As a contrast to the musical play of the present day The Last of the Legends is to a certain extent interesting, but its fun seems old-fashioned, and, generally speaking, falls flat; and one misses the gaily-dressed stage crowd without which no modern musical piece is considered complete. The most attractive part of the entertainment is Mr. Nation's songs, most of which are "imitated from the French," the words being wedded to pretty melodies, which fall pleasantly on the ear. The first scene, representing the ruins of an ancient castle on the banks of "the wide and winding Rhine" is picturesque; and the plot, which is not particularly clear, is founded on one of the old legends of the famous river. With one exception the leading characters belong to the middle ages; they are Karl, a youthful Baron of Pilfersburg, his friend Count Fritz, Sir Hubert de Bow, a Norman knight with a red nose and an enormous sword, Seltzerwasser, a melancholy jester, and Lady Bertha and her companions. To the old castle on the Rhine comes a typical Cook's excursionist, who introduces himself as "Smith, first Duke of Bayswater." He is supposed to be living a century or so in advance of the present period, and as evidence of the progress made in various directions proceeds to partake of a dinner consisting entirely of tabloids, containing the essence of various meats, &c. He also carries with him a wonderful electric machine, with which he tries curious experiments with his new companions, but the mournful jester, annoyed that the tourist can tell him no new jokes, obtains possession of the machine and its owner is made a prisoner, and confined in one of the dungeons of the castle. The last scene represents the castle restored; and after the prisoner has undergone a comic mock trial the piece merrily concludes with song and dance.

The members of the company do all that is possible with the materials at their disposal. Miss Mabel Maartens, taking the place of Miss Shelley Carton, who had met with an accident, is a handsome, good-looking Karl, and sings in excellent style "Only a tear." Miss Gladys Archbutt is a charming Lady Bertha, and scores with Mr. Nation's pretty ditty, "The Tic-Tac of the Mill." Miss Kathleen Maureen is a sprightly Count Fritz, and gives in pleasing style "Sparkling Eyes," "Bitter Sweet," and "I love you." Miss Dolly Yorke is a very dainty representative of Erlinda, and is loudly applauded for her artistic rendering of "Tell me why?" She also joins Miss Kathleen Maureen and Miss Irene Vaughan in the trio, "A Village Roundelay." Mr. T. P. Haynes deserves every credit for his brisk and amusing embodiment of the tourist Smith. Mr. Charles A. Stephenson is grimly humorous as the melancholy jester Seltzerwasser; Mr. William Dexter is duly truculent as the Crusader, Sir Hubert de Bow; and other characters have attractive representatives in the Misses Irene Vaughan and Hetty Tempest.

The one-act play, entitled Weighed in the Balance, is retained in the programme, Mr. T. P. Haynes now appearing in the part of Farmer Maywood, formerly played by Mr. Charles Groves. He is ably supported by Messrs. W. Dexter, H. Armstrong, Guy Williams, Terry Hurst, and Thompson, and the Misses Mabel Maartens and Gladys Archbutt.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree's remark in his speech at the Stage Society dinner on Sunday about the price of seats in theatres has been the cause of general comment. Mr. Tree said he thought the prices charged were too high. The theatres had to compete with the music halls, and he thought that managers were "too proud" in clinging to their 10s. 6d. stalls. To form a sound judgment on the question it is necessary to be in the secrets of managerial finance in London; but, coming from such a source, the opinion is certainly significant.

Mr. Martin Harvey has just received the following very interesting communication, which reached him over the signature Louis A. Barbé. In view of his current revival of The Corsican Brothers, it will be read with genuine pleasure, dealing as it does at first hand with the original and actual Corsican Brothers of real life. "According to an account I have just read—which is, as I understand, taken from Mr. Dutton Cook's 'Nights at the Play'—Dumas professed that, while travelling in Corsica, he had been hospitably received by the Comtesse Savilia dei Franchi at her château, in the village of Sullacarro; that he became the friend of her twin sons; learned of the mysterious sympathy existing between them; of the love of Louis for the beautiful Emilie de Lesparre, and of the villainy of Château-Renaud; that he was present at the two duels of the Corsicans with the Frenchman—the duels being fought at Vincennes with pistols, and not at Fontainebleau with swords.

"What I have to relate," continues M. Barbé, "is not, I admit, nearly so romantic. But it has this advantage: it was told me by one who claimed to be, or, at any rate, to have suggested, Louis dei Franchi. This was the well-known French historian, Louis Blanc. Many years ago—about the middle of the 'sixties—when he was living in exile, I met him several times at the house of a friend. On one occasion he told us what impressed me so much at the time that I feel sure that I can reproduce at least the main fact with absolute accuracy. One night, when Louis Blanc was in Paris, he was murderously assaulted—knocked on the head with a bludgeon, I think—as he was coming out of the theatre. The attack appears to have been a very savage one, and the victim of it was at first thought to have been killed. A few days later a letter came from Madrid, where Louis Blanc's brother Charles was living at the time. It contained the information that a remarkable thing had happened. Charles had suddenly fallen down as though stricken with apoplexy. On regaining consciousness, he said: 'Something, I am sure, has happened to Louis.' Day and hour were stated, and a comparison shows that they coincided with the attack on Louis. The story got to the ears of Dumas, and supplied him with the motif of his story."

Mr. H. B. Irving and his brother Laurence are devoting much time to tabulating the enormous mass of manuscripts and letters left by their celebrated father in readiness for the biography of him, which they will write in conjunction. The authors will aim at giving as full and exhaustive a record of the great actor's career as possible, laying particular stress on that part of his life spent in touring the provinces. It is intended to embody in the biography reminiscences of those friends and relatives of Sir Henry who are still living.

The first list of donations to the Georgina Burns Fund includes a subscription of £5 each from the Prince and Princess of Wales. Many more sums, varying from ten guineas downwards, show the sympathy which the case of the once popular vocalist has aroused. It is hoped to raise a sufficient fund to place in the hands of trustees for the benefit of Mme. Burns, and further contributions will be thankfully received by Mrs. Bagot, Levens Hall, Milnthorpe, Westmorland, or by the Hon. Social Secretary, Church Army, Bryanston-street, W.

Miss Fanny Brough, whose sympathetic and practical interest in the wellbeing of her poorer sisters has so frequently been displayed, was among the speakers at the meeting held on the 8th inst. at London House, St. James's-square, on behalf of the Medical Aid Society, whose object is to provide necessitous gentlewomen with free medical aid during illness. Miss Brough said she considered that "genteel" poverty was the gravest and hardest of all poverty. Perhaps the need of assistance such as the Society offered was more apparent in her own profession than any other. Here youth was so soon past, and when gone everything else went with it, and it was admirable that members of the profession should be able to rely on assistance in time of sickness.

The work of executing the statue of the late Sir Henry Irving has been entrusted by the Memorial Committee to Mr. Thomas Brock, R.A. As the final list of subscriptions will shortly be published, it is earnestly requested that all members of the theatrical profession who have not yet contributed, and who may desire to join in this memorial to their late chief, will at once send their donations to Mr. John Hare, at 75, Upper Berkeley-street, W.

The profession has lost a much-esteemed member by the death of Mr. Henry Osman, who passed away on the 8th inst., after many months' suffering, borne with remarkable fortitude. He was operated upon at the Southern Hospital, Liverpool, in April last for a growth in the throat, and later was admitted into St. Thomas's, London, where he was discharged as incurable. On the 7th inst. he was taken to the Friedenheim Hospital, N.W., where he died the following day. Henry Osman was a great favourite with all who knew him, and there are many who will be grieved to hear of his death. He was a good actor, a genial comrade, and a staunch friend. He was a valuable supporter of The Era, or, as he used familiarly to call it, "The Actor's Bible." The deceased leaves a widow and one child. The funeral took place on Tuesday at Woking.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree will be honoured by the presence of the German Emperor at each of his forthcoming productions in Berlin. The series begins on Friday, April 12, with Richard II., the plays for each day following being The Merry Wives of Windsor on Saturday, Twelfth Night on Sunday, Hamlet, which will be played without scenery, on Monday, Twelfth Night again on Tuesday, Antony and Cleopatra on Wednesday, and The Merry Wives of Windsor on Thursday. Mr. Tree will also give a special matinée of Trilby on the Sunday.

Mr. Cyril Maude has not only lent the Playhouse, but will himself appear in an entertainment to be given at the handsome new theatre in aid of the Alexandra Hospital for Children on March 25. The performance will also be brightened by Mlle. Genée, who has promised to appear as the Dryad in Miss Dora Bright's new little play of that name.

Mr. Lionel Brough had a better night on Thursday, but his condition up to the time of writing was still serious.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier was present at the annual examination of the Elocution Class of the Royal College of Music on Wednesday morning, and furnished a report to the president (H.R.H. the Prince of Wales) and Council.

An interesting presentation was made to Mr. Martin Harvey after the performance at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, on Monday evening. The donors were the members of the Martin Harvey Amateur Dramatic Club (Glasgow), and the gift took the form of a handsome silver rose-bowl. The matter came as a complete surprise to the popular actor, who expressed, in a few heartily-spoken and happily-chosen words, his sense of the honour done him. The gift was made by the secretary, on behalf of the club corporate, "as an indication of their appreciation of Mr. Harvey's attainments as an actor." Miss Harvey, we are glad to add, is now considerably better, and Miss de Silva (Mrs. Martin Harvey) has rejoined the company, which is appearing next week at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh.

A reminder may be given of the O.P. Club ladies' annual dinner at the Criterion to-morrow. The festive board will be graced by Miss Winifred Emery and Miss Edna May, who will both reply to the call of "Our Guests," to be proposed by Mr. Sidney Dark, the president; while Miss Marie Illington will toast the chairman.

The new costume play, The Youngest of Three, will be Mr. Bannister Howard's attraction at the Crystal Palace Theatre next week. The piece, which was produced at Worthing just a year ago, and deals with the old coaching days, has been extremely well received in all parts of the country. The period of the story is 1815, and the central idea is the elopement of a young couple and their subsequent discovery at a roadside inn. The production is elaborately staged, all the original scenery and properties being carried, and the costumes are picturesque. The company includes Miss Mara Maltby, Miss Grace Richardson, Mr. Wyn Weaver, Mr. Stuart Willson, and the author himself, Mr. H. F. Maltby.

Mr. Phil R. Davey has been presented by the Marquis de Leuville with a handsome stick. It is a pleasant habit of the Marquis to present a lady reciter or singer at his "At Homes" with an elegant gift, and on a recent occasion Miss Sharlotte was the recipient of an expensive opera cloak. Several of the crowned heads of Europe, it may be added, have followed the example of President Roosevelt, and sent a gracious acknowledgment of the latest edition of the Marquis's "Peace" book, which is to be sent personally to members of the Peace Conference at The Hague.

Mr. Henry Tweedie has completed, and hopes shortly to have produced at a West End theatre, a sporting drama, in a prologue and four acts, entitled Rob, the Trainer. It is a play of domestic interest, with novel effects, and at least one startlingly realistic episode.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who is now playing the lost constable in The New Aladdin with such marked success, will add to his duties and to the gaiety of the public by reappearing at the Palace Theatre on Monday in a new comedy duologue, written by Arthur Wimperis and Walter Davidson, with, it is needless to say, additional gags and impromptus by the comedian himself. Mr. Lester, who will be assisted by Miss Lilly Mills, has high hopes of making as big a hit with his new production as he did with his Scene-shifter's Lament, of which, by the way, he was sole author. The engagement, it should be added, will in no way interfere with Mr. Lester's performances at the Gaiety.

The second Humpty Dumpty golf handicap in connection with the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, was very keenly contested, several of the matches being fought out on the last green. Mr. J. M. Chute, the proprietor of the theatre, presented a silver cigarette case as the first prize, and Mr. H. L. Vaughan (the captain of the Bristol and Clifton Golf Club) offered a box of golf balls to the "runner-up." The various rounds resulted as follows: D. Fisher, jun., beat "Carlton" (received 46); F. Griffiths, jun. (received 5), beat F. Griffiths, sen.; J. M. Chute beat G. R. Chapman (received 13); F. Conquest (received 24) beat Horace Mills; F. S. Green, a bye. Second Round—Fisher beat Green (received 15); Griffiths, jun. (received 33), beat Chute. Conquest, a bye. Semi-Final—Conquest (received 10) beat Fisher. Final—Griffiths, jun. (received 24) beat Conquest.

The report of the directors of the Birmingham Theatre Royal, Ltd., to be presented at the annual general meeting on March 26, states that the trading profit for the year ended Dec. 10, 1906, was £1,973 5s. 10d. After writing off the sum of £598 11s. 2d. for depreciation on equipment and setting aside the sum of £165 for redemption fund there remains a balance of £1,209 14s. 8d. net profit in part redemption of deficiency standing in last year's accounts.

Mr. Philip Rodway's benefit at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Monday, brought that popular gentleman a record house and many tangible tokens of good will. Miss Ada Reeve, who had journeyed down specially to sing a new song, entitled "June," composed by Mr. Guy Jones, was received rapturously, and there were many others who shed lustre on the function. During the evening Mr. Rodway was presented with a drawing-room stove lamp from the front male staff, a silver coffee service from the ladies, a pair of candlesticks from the back of the house, a gold-mounted pin from Mr. Geo. Robey, and a case of pipes from the members of the Edgbaston Conservative Club.

Mr. Lester Collingwood's fourth anniversary at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, was celebrated on Tuesday, when Mr. George Robey, from the Theatre Royal, and other prominent artists staying in the district reinforced the company playing Cinderella. The house was full, every available seat having been booked long before the date of the performance. During the evening Mr. Albert Bushell and a few friends took the stage, and presented Mr. Collingwood with a diamond and opal scarfpin, an umbrella, and other pleasant tokens of esteem, while Mesdames Bessie Butt and Minnie D'Aubyn gave him a beautifully-chased loving cup. Later the artists and stage staff presented Mr. Collingwood with an elegant curb and fire utensils, together with an illuminated address to which all subscribed.

Terry's Theatre, of which Mr. Nation concludes his lease at the end of the month, will be then occupied by Mr. Gaston Mayer, under whose direction the popular American play, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, will be produced on April 25. The entire company, including Mrs. Madge Carr Cook, that has been playing in the piece in America for three and a half years will come over to this country, and the American manager who produced the comedy will also be imported.

At the Royal Academy of Music, the Goldberg prize for sopranos and mezzo-sopranos has been awarded to Mary Fielding (a native of Batley, Yorks.), Ida Kahn being highly commended and May Horton and Clara Smith commended. The adjudicators were the Misses Amy Castles, Ethel Wood, and Cicely Gleeson-White. The Sterndale-Bennett prize for female pianists was secured by Dorothy Grinstead (a native of Caterham, Surrey), Helen M. Dodd being highly commended and Rose Keen commended. The adjudicators were Miss Lily West and Mr. Ernest Fowles.

The Irving Memorial Committee held a meeting last Monday, when the chair was occupied by Mr. John Hare, supported by Messrs. George Alexander, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, Norman Forbes, Alfred Kendrick, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Several matters in connection with the memorial were discussed, and the secretary received instructions.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Henry Warburton (counsel, Misses Georgina Hamilton and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Henry Ainley, H. Granville Barker, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Alfred Kendrick, Frederick Morland, Brandon Thomas, Frank Vernon, Frederick Volpe, and Chas. Cruickshanks (sec.).

The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised several members and written letters on their behalf. Dr. Archibald Revie, of Calcutta Lodge, Kilmarnock, and Dr. Henry Brine Blunt, of Linden Villas, Westfield-road, Wakefield, were elected as hon. medical officers to the Association. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received.

The proposition was placed before the Council—"That the following be added to the Bye-laws and Regulations: 'The Association Agency will not deal with offers of engagements for speaking parts carrying less than £2 per week.'" The chairman stated that he was informed by the Agency clerk that, so far as he could gather from the books after going back for the three years 1904-5-6, the only engagements made through the Agency at a salary under £2 were seven in number, and consisted of four at 30s. and three at 35s. The proposition, which was discussed at considerable length, was carried.

The Suggestion Book was considered, and an entry made. Alfred S. Barber and Wilfred Draycott were nominated for election. Two former members were nominated for reinstatement. The meeting opened at 2.30 and closed at 4.45.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, Lewis Casson, A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, Alfred Kendrick, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Several questions affecting finance were discussed, and a regulation was made with respect to certain details in connection with the Agency department.

The Subscription Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Mr. Acton Bond was elected chairman for the year 1907-8, and Messrs. Burton Cooke and A. E. Drinkwater were elected members of this committee. Questions as to the method of payment of the annual subscription were discussed at considerable length, and ultimately it was agreed to adjourn the matter for further consideration after the committee were in possession of certain information, which the secretary was directed to obtain.

Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen is shortly sending out a company with Mr. Arthur Law's evergreen farce The New Boy. In the course of the tour, some time in May, a new one-act play, entitled Meg, the Mobswoman, by Mr. Leon M. Lion and Mr. W. Strange Hall, will be produced.

Mr. Allan Wilkie paid his first visit to the Theatre Royal, York, last week, and made an enormous success, playing to exceptional business, Lent and powerful opposition notwithstanding. So pleased were the management with Mr. Wilkie and his company that they have booked him for two return dates, and have secured his services for a date in the season at Scarborough, all on greatly increased terms. Mr. Wilkie is making several additions to his cast for the autumn, which will then number upwards of thirty artists. Mr. Albert Morrow and Mr. Stewart Browne, two well-known artists on the staff of Messrs. David Allen and Sons, are now busily engaged making sketches for the various situations in all the Shakespearean plays included in Mr. Wilkie's répertoire, and in the autumn Mr. Wilkie will have one of the finest and most varied plants of printing to be found anywhere.

Miss Amy Fanchette is appearing with great success as Mrs. Anderson in The Electric Man, now in its twelfth week on tour with J. B. Mulholland's company. Such charming places as Hastings, Brighton, Portsmouth, Exeter, and Bath are included in the itinerary, so that Miss Fanchette may look forward to a tour as pleasant as it is prosperous.

The Society of British Composers is organising a memorial to the late Sir August Manns. A committee, including the names of Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Sir C. H. H. Parry, and Sir C. V. Stanford, is in course of formation, and all native artists and music-lovers are invited to send subscriptions to Mr. F. Corder, chairman, at the offices of the Society, 309, Oxford-street, W.

"A Soldier's Honour," by Miss Lottie Addison, produced at the Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Feb. 28, has proved a conspicuous success. This play is undoubtedly the finest work this talented young authoress has yet turned out, which is saying a great deal, as her prolific pen is already responsible for A Sister's Sin, Bound to Win, and A Country Rose, which have all enjoyed long runs. The tour is under the personal direction of Mr. F. G. Kimberley.

Mr. Leslie Carter, who has been appearing at the New Theatre Royal, Oxford, during the early part of this week, with Mr. Walter Maxwell's The Lion and the Mouse, was on Sunday night the guest of the Olympian Dramatic Club of Oxford University, when he recited "The Execution," from the Ingoldsby Legends.

Mr. William Mollison made his first appearance as Richard III. at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, during the past week, and gave, as was to be expected, a masterly performance of the character. The event attracted a keenly critical audience, who recalled Mr. Mollison again and again, the enthusiasm culminating in a perfect storm of applause at the termination of the play.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge, who have done so much by the exercise of energy and administrative skill to bring prosperity to His Majesty's Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness, were accorded a joint benefit on the last three nights of last week, the house being crowded on each occasion. An undoubted attraction was supplied in Miss Decima Moore, who appeared in her charming impersonation of the title-rôle in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, with which the talented young actress has just started a tour after her travels in far-off lands. In an interval of the performance Mr. Routledge stepped in front of the curtain and thanked his patrons for the support accorded to Mrs. Routledge and himself, and hoped to merit a continuance of their generosity. He mentioned that, as the result of recent charity performances in the theatre, £100 had been given to various deserving objects, a remark which elicited the warmest applause.

The children engaged in the Drury Lane pantomime entertained on Thursday afternoon a select little audience to a performance in which they alone figured. This "matinée" was given in the Bijou Theatre, or Ballet Room, of Drury Lane, and the programme consisted of "A children's pantomime, The Forté Thieves, thrown together by A. S. Painter, music jumbled up by Half Holliday, and produced by A-Door-Bang." The special scenery, we were told, was by "Willing Hands and Co.," the costumes arranged by "Mrs. Per Hannum," "properties made, found, and purloined by the only Jones," and wigs by "Weary Willie Clarkson."

As to the juvenile actors and actresses, a villain with a most terrifying countenance and most terrifying ways was to be found in Master Jack Frost, who took the important rôle of Captain and Chairman of the Forté Thieves Co., Ltd.; while Miss Jessie Evans made a sprightly Ganein. Master W. Bishop and Master Teddy Gordon were amusing as Ali Baba and Cassim respectively; and Miss A. McDonald played in sprightly style as Hassarac. Miss Florrie Clarke as Morgiana, Miss Gertie Britton as the Fairy, and Masters Middleditch and Burton as the Donkey contributed to the fun-making; while Miss Vickie Hoghen gave evidence of her abilities as the principal dancer. For such a tiny stage the scenery was extremely well arranged. Miss Mimi Thornton worked in strenuous fashion as the business-manageress, while Mr. Edward Spillhim as the stage-manager and Master Sidney Smith as the junior acting-manager entered into the spirit of the entertainment, and rendered excellent service. The pantomime, which was repeated yesterday afternoon, proved a most enjoyable little "show."

Antipodeans will shortly have an opportunity of endorsing the verdicts of England and the United States on Leslie Stuart's chef d'œuvre, as Mr. Milton Bode has arranged to produce The Belle of Mayfair down under.

"The Girls of Gottenberg" is the provisional title selected by Mr. George Edwardes for his forthcoming production at the Gaiety after The New Aladdin shall have run its course. The piece, which has a liberal dash of the military element, is divided into two acts, the first opening at a German cavalry barracks, and going in the second scene to a pretty German village. The second act is laid in a beer garden on a hill overlooking the Rhine. Mr. George Grossmith, jun., will have the part of a dashing young cavalry officer in the Blue Hussars; Mr. Edmund Payne will be a regimental barber, masquerading as a captain; and Miss Gertie Millar, Miss May de Sousa, Mr. Robert Nainby, and Mr. Alfred Lester will also be among the principals.

Mr. Charles Constance's burlesque production of Blue Beard has been meeting with gratifying success in the provinces, and will shortly be seen at the Crystal Palace Theatre. Miss Isa Bowman is the principal boy, and she is supported by an excellent company.

"The Red Lamp," which will be rekindled at His Majesty's Theatre this evening, will have a cast of exceeding strength. In addition to Mr. Tree as Demetrius, and Miss Constance Collier as Princess Claudia, there will be an imposing array of artists, comprising Miss Alice Crawford, Miss Kate Cutler, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Yorke Stephens, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. Herbert Grimwood, Mr. J. Fisher White, Mr. J. Cooke Beresford, Mr. Charles Quartermaine, Mr. A. B. Imeson, Mr. Harry C. Hewitt, Mr. S. Yates Southgate, Mr. Cyril H. Sworder, Miss Muriel Alexander, and Miss A. Bruce-Joy. In the new one-act piece The Vandyck, which follows The Red Lamp, both Mr. Tree and Mr. Weedon Grossmith will appear.

Mr. Norman V. Norman finished a remarkably fine week at the Theatre Royal, Halifax, by giving a special performance of David Garrick to a house filled to overflowing in all parts. At the end of his present tour Mr. Norman intends to again give a series of pastoral plays, those under his management last year having proved so great a success.

Miss Sophie Harriss, who is visiting the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, Mr. W. W. Kelly's palatial playhouse, this week with Baron Harriss's Prince of Pilsen company, has met with another unique experience. Whilst being conveyed in her motor car by the Birkenhead Ferry across to Liverpool, after the performance one evening, a sudden gust of wind lifted from her shoulders a costly sable cape (a souvenir of her recent visit to St. Petersburg) and carried it off in the darkness towards the sea. By a remarkable stroke of luck it alighted on the deck of a tug boat near two miles down the river, and was conveyed to its fair owner next day at the Adelphi Hotel without having sustained the slightest damage!

"Yours Merrily," otherwise John R. Rogers, writes in a cheery letter from St. Paul, Minnesota. He declares he has forgotten how to grow old, and that he will be in London in July. In an interview in an American paper it is said of Mr. Rogers that he is the prince of agents, and in the time that he has given over to the promotion of theatrical enterprises he has made seven tours of the world. Mr. Rogers studied law in Cincinnati, and expected to accomplish much in a professional way until someone told him that he should go on the stage. He secured an engagement, but after he had acted once (and only once) they put him in the box office, and he has been connected with the business end of the theatre ever since.

Mrs. Russ Whytal, who has been recently winning golden opinions by her performance in Barrie's charming play, Alice Sit-by-the-Fire, on tour, is about to embark on a short season of the "legitimate," supported by Mr. G. S. Titheradge and a company including Mr. Eardley Turner and Mr. Courtenay Foote. The répertoire will include Romeo and Juliet, The Merchant of Venice, Much Ado About Nothing, and Sheridan's School for Scandal. Her tour starts on Easter Monday at the Theatre Royal, Hull.

Miss Mabel Garden has been engaged by Mr. Albert Chevalier to play Columbine in Mr. J. M. Barrie's play Pantaloon, which he will include in his tour with a triple bill. Miss Garden, it may be recalled, was the original exponent in London of Rosie when Miss Eleanor Robson appeared as Merely Mary Ann at the Duke of York's Theatre.

"Peter's Mother," now running so successfully at its fourth London home, the Haymarket, is to be seen next week at the Marlborough Theatre under the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison. This will be the first production of this attractive play in the suburbs, and a very powerful cast, including Mr. Eille Norwood, Mr. Percy Hutchison, and Miss Ruth Mackay, has been engaged for its representation.

Mr. Frank Beresford has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke for his Christian tour.—Mr. Scott Craven will play the part of Prince Maurice of Saxonia in the forthcoming Lyceum production, Her Love Against the World.

The Brixton Theatre will recommence its dramatic season on the 25th inst., when Mr. Russell Rosse will present Mr. Sydney Grundy's well-known play, A Bunch of Violets. In the cast will be Mr. Walter Maclean as Sir Philip Marchant and Miss Eleanor Delaporte as Mrs. Murgatroyd. The return to the usual routine of this popular playhouse is looked forward to with great interest by the large residential population of the suburb.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte has decided upon Thursday, April 4, as the date of the revival of Patience at the Savoy. The title-rôle will be in the fair hands of Miss Clara Dow, Mr. C. H. Workman will be the Reginald Bunthorne, and the remainder of the parts are allotted to Messrs. Frank Wilson, Richard Andean, Harold Wilde, and John Clulow, and Misses Jessie Rose, Marie Wilson, Ruby Grey, and Louie Réné.

A conspicuous figure of the operatic and dramatic world has passed away in the person of Mr. Maurice Grau, the eminent impresario, who died in Paris on Wednesday after a long illness. Mr. Grau was born in Brünn, in Austria, in 1849, and emigrated to New York with his parents when he was only five years old. He was originally intended for the law, but his uncle, Mr. Jacob Grau, who was a theatrical director, engaged his services as an assistant when he was directing the American tour of Ristori in 1866. In 1872 Mr. Grau embarked on his own ventures, among those who visited the United States under his management being Rubinstein, Salvini, Mme. Patti, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, Sir Henry Irving, Miss Ellen Terry, M. Coquelin, Mme. Jane Hading, and Mme. Réjane. In 1897 Mr. Grau succeeded the late Sir Augustus Harris as director of the Covent Garden opera. He subsequently became lessee of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, since his retirement from which he has resided in Paris.

Mr. Mayor-Cooke has been re-engaged by Messrs. Howard and Hallatt for the part of Prince Ulric on the autumn tour of Her Love Against the World.

The wedding of Mr. Neil Forsyth, general-manager of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, to Miss Mary Helen Cathcart was quietly celebrated at St. Peter's, Musselburgh, Midlothian, on Thursday. In honour of his approaching marriage, Mr. Forsyth was entertained on Saturday night at the Imperial Restaurant by the London musical critics, and by them was presented with a massive silver salver. Another wedding gift presented on the occasion took the form of two Louis XVI. tables, which had been subscribed for by some "friends of the opera," the contributors including Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Frederick Bridge, the Council of the Royal Academy of Music, Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. Landon Ronald, and Mr. T. McDonald Rendle. In acknowledging the presents, Mr. Forsyth said it was particularly gratifying for him as a manager to learn in so practical a fashion that he had won the goodwill of the musical critics.

The beautiful Scala is once more to come into the list of active theatres, and will be opened about the middle of next month with an Egyptian play by Mr. Alfred C. Calmour, called The Judgment of Pharaoh. The piece is in four acts, three of which are laid in Egypt and one in Judea. Mr. Calmour, it will be remembered, wrote The Amber Heart for Miss Ellen Terry.

An admirable concert was given on the 8th inst. at the Bermondsey Town Hall on behalf of the Railway Men's Convalescent Home, Herne Bay, the utility of which is strikingly evidenced by the fact that the five survivors of the crew of the ill-fated steamship Berlin are now being restored to health within its precincts. The Orpheus Glee Society opened the programme with "A hunting we will go," and also contributed several other part-songs, including the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust and German's exquisite "O peaceful night." 'Cello solos were furnished by Mr. Lionel Horton, who gave the "Liebeswerbung" of Becker, Popper's Polonaise, and the same composer's Gavotte. Mr. Ernest Pike rendered Trotère's "In your dear eyes" and Sullivan's "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" in cultivated style, and also joined in Balfe's duet "The sailor sighs" with Miss Esther Franklin, whose singing of Elgar's "Land of hope and glory" and "The laddie I love," by Joan Trevalsa, was warmly appreciated. "The History of England" as told by a little girl and reproduced by Miss Belle Green formed a diverting interlude in the well-arranged entertainment. Mme. H. Smith-Martin and Mr. John Corker were the accompanists, and Roper Ginn's orchestra supplied a comprehensive selection of music.

Mr. Charles Hannan's new four-act play, The Coachman with Yellow Lace, which is to be produced at the Hammersmith Lyric on March 25, will be found to be more after the class of play to which such pieces as Sweet Nell of Old Drury belong. Readers of Mr. Hannan's novel, upon which his play is based, will recall that the plot deals with the exciting adventures of the so-called Duchess of Balcarra, who is forced by her father to unwittingly rob the man with whom she has fallen in love, and who ultimately tracks her down.

At the Long Eaton Petty Sessions on the 5th inst. a license was granted to Mr. Lindsay Edwards, at present manager of the New Theatre, Loughborough, for a new brick building to be erected in Derby-road, Long Eaton, and to be called the St. James's Theatre. It is to be a modern, up-to-date theatre in every respect. The auditorium is 60ft. by 48ft., and the stage 48ft. by 35ft. The building will seat 1,100 persons, and is to cost about £6,000.

"Jeanne D'Arc," the play by Mr. Percy MacKaye which is to be included in the Sothern-Marlowe season at the Waldorf, deals with six episodes in the career of the Maid of Orleans. The action of the play opens beneath the Ladies' Tree near Domremy in the spring of 1428, and proceeds to the Court of the Dauphin of France. The third act is laid outside the walls of beleaguered Orleans, and in the fourth act, the first scene of which takes place on the outer walls of Troyes, will figure the brilliant Coronation pageant of King Charles and his entry into Rheims, accompanied by Jeanne. The last scene depicts Jeanne in prison, alone and deserted save for the faithful Duc d'Alençon, the character played by Mr. Sothern.

The action of Rudolf Herzog's Die Condottiere, with which the German Theatre in London is starting its eighth season, takes place in Venice in the fifteenth century, and the plot centres round the well-known statue by Verocchio erected in memory of Coleone, the famous leader of the troops of Venice. This play, which has found its way all over Germany, has been adapted for the English stage by L. H. David.

"Sindbad," which has proved one of Mr. Arthur Collins's most attractive annuals at "Old Drury," will come to a triumphal end on Saturday next. The last performances are being attended with the customary festivities. To all the children engaged in the pantomime, we may add, Mrs. Collins will give her annual treat.

The attendance of Royalty at the theatre is being well maintained. On Saturday last the Queen and the Dowager-Empress of Russia were present at Wyndham's, and witnessed When Knights were Bold; and the same evening saw the Prince and Princess of Wales again at the Royalty, where Feu Toupinel was being played. The Queen and the Dowager-Empress of Russia went playgoing again both on Tuesday and Wednesday, the former day being devoted to Raffles at the Comedy and the latter to John Glayde's Honour at the St. James's, at which the Prince and Princess of Wales were also present. On Thursday the Prince and Princess followed the Queen's example, and paid a visit to When Knights Were Bold at Wyndham's.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree's "Suffragette."

THERE were two brilliant "gems" in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's speech at the Stage Society's dinner last Sunday. Mr. Tree said "My youngest suffragette, who, I am sorry to say, is not here to-night—her eighth birthday occurred this year—was found by me, on arriving home one afternoon, dressed in knickerbockers, and weeping bitter tears—tears that were falling on to the grass, making holes into which worms were creeping. I said, 'What is the matter? What a disgraceful state! How did you get those knickerbockers?' She said, 'I bought them of a boy for 1s. 6d.' I said, 'What is the matter?' She said, 'This is my eighth birthday, and I have made up my mind to one thing. You tell me I should make good resolutions on my birthday—I am no longer a girl, but a boy. I will be a boy from to-day.' I said, 'My dear, I'm afraid it is too late.' She said, 'Not at all; you don't understand,' and she wept passionately, and then added, 'All the good people that have ever lived have been men—look at King David, and look at you.' I said I would rather not look at King David—his public utterances I approved, but for the rest— And she said, 'All the wicked people who have ever lived have been women. Look at Eve. It was she who said to Adam, "May I tempt you with an apple?" Father, I don't want to go about the world tempting men with apples.' I said, 'Well, my dear, you are a philosopher, but it seems to me, old-fashioned person that I am, that whereas as tyrants women are ridiculous, as slaves there is no limit to their power. I was looking the other day at a picture of an old master—it was called "The Slave." There was a woman in chains. The chains were held by a man, and the woman's head was turned smilingly back, and the man looked yearningly towards her. He was the slave.'"

The Cant of Negation.

VERY much to the point, too, was the following:—"I read in the newspapers this week the report of a conversation with a very brilliant young actor who declared that the drama was in decadence, and that musical comedy was triumphant, and he added that it was all nonsense to talk about Art, that all we thought of was the commercial side and the accumulation of wealth. The cant of Art is to be deprecated, but still more to be deprecated, I think, is the cant of negation. If we may be permitted to be proud of the accumulation of wealth through musical comedy, surely we, on the other hand, may also justly be allowed to be proud of our poverty ensuing from the legitimate drama. Poverty is often our only reward. Just as the tyranny from above is to be deprecated, there is a thing which is more lamentable still, and that is the tyranny from below. We have not a very large public perhaps—perhaps not so large as that of the Germans—but there is still plenty of appreciation for the best work, and I think more people have failed from having too low an opinion of the public than from having too high a one."

A Jealous Pony.

THOSE who have witnessed the admirable performances of Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry in that popular play, The Scarlet Pimpernel, now running at the New Theatre, will remember the entrance of Mr. Terry in the pony-cart; and of the pony a quaint incident is recorded. The animal, an exceptionally quiet one, walks up and down the stairs to and from the stage at each performance without being at all troublesome—more like a dog than a pony; and he has become so familiar with the whole routine that it is difficult to restrain him from anticipating his entrance cue. One evening last week he managed to rush with Mr. Terry on to the stage quite a minute before his time, thus cutting out some of the dialogue and practically spoiling the situation. In consequence Mr. Terry insisted on having another pony for the following evening. Pony No. 1 made his appearance at the stage door as usual, and so had the mortification of seeing another enter the theatre in his stead; but pony No. 2 was not a success, so Mr. Terry decided to reinstate the old one. But on the following night pony No. 1 absolutely refused to enter the stage door. Gentle persuasion failed; the pony sulked, and would not budge an inch; and eventually, with the help of six property men, he was carried struggling down the stairs to the stage, and at his cue had to be forcibly pushed on. It was several evenings before the jealous animal had entirely forgotten the incident and became his docile self again.

An All-round Man.

MR. CLAUDE ARUNDALE, the author of The Gipsy Girl, writes plays only as a hobby, and devotes his chief energies to architecture. Having just finished building a public-house, he is now erecting two churches, and has also drawn up the plans and selected the site for a new theatre. Mr. Arundale combines the duties of author, composer, part-lyricist, designer of scenery and costumes, and poster-writer for his new play, and has, in addition, superintended the painting of a portion of the scenery.

Portable Hills.

WE have heard of the faith that can "move mountains," but in The Great Train Robbery, a play by an American author, which is to be the leading feature of Pawnee Bill's Wild West and Far East show, the hills are easily movable. The mounting, says the New York Dramatic News, includes a 30-ton engine and two regulation passenger coaches, portable mountains, steel railroad tracks, a prairie and a forest, dance halls, gambling-houses, streets, and a reservoir of 100,000 gallons capacity.

Sheridan's Laziness.

"THE indolence of Sheridan's character," writes a correspondent, "has been said to have been accompanied by an extraordinary power of hard work whenever spurred to it by any extraordinary motive. As an illustration of this, the date of the production of The School for Scandal is said to have been announced before the whole play was in the hands of the actors." Both "sayings" are unfounded on fact. Sheridan was one of the most strenuous men that ever lived. As for the latter statement, how could Garrick have read the play before it was put in rehearsal, and how could the Examiner of Plays have passed an opinion adverse to its being licensed if it was not finished till the last moment?

A Terrible Act.

I REMEMBER, writes our old correspondent, Mr. Edmonds, an intense Transatlantic actor visiting England, named Kean Buchanan. He was the possessor of a New England drawl, which made him lengthen out his words somewhat. One night in the last act of Othello this failing had been more than usual; and when the actor drawled out "I—know—this—act—shows—turrible and grim!" a gentleman in the gallery, imitating his New Englandese drawl, said, "Yaas—and—so—have—the—o-ther—four!"

Lucid Intervals.

DURING Mr. Mark Hambourg's visit to South Africa two years ago the following dialogue was overheard by him on the occasion of one of his recitals. A well-known Cape Town lady was in the stalls; the "Appassionata" sonata was in progress, and the little pause between the second and third movement had been reached. "My dear," said the lady to a friend who was with her, and who thought the sonata was over, "don't get up. These breaks are only what musicians term their 'intervalla lucida.' You'll know when it's done by the applause."

"THE LITTLE ADMIRAL."

A Play, in a Prologue and Three Acts, by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, produced at the Lyric Theatre on Saturday, March 9

"He was a saint, was the little Admiral; he drank and he swore, but he was a saint all the same, the little Admiral was," is the epitaph bestowed by his old servant Cobbledick upon Admiral Sir Anthony Addenbrooke, the Little Admiral of the play which has been produced by Mr. Lewis Waller at the Lyric Theatre. The piece is the joint work of two actors, Messrs. Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, already well-known to theatre-goers as the authors of Sunday, which has been played with such continuous success both in London and the provinces by Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson.

The action of The Little Admiral opens in the year 1821. The scene of the prologue is a private room in an inn on the frontier of France, on a bitterly cold January day in 1821. Through a window at the back, the ledges of which are piled with snow, we get a glimpse of a very wintry-looking street. The room is in the temporary possession of two English ladies, one old and fragile, the other young and beautiful, but both very poor. The younger is full of solicitude for the health of the elder, and in order to procure her comfort is willing to marry the first wealthy man who comes forward. It is difficult to reconcile her determination with her refusal of a rich but grotesque German baron, who is most anxious to lay his heart and his money at her feet. To the two women comes a lawyer, John Speedwell, with the request that they will place their apartment, the only private room in the hotel, at the disposal of an old man, Sir Anthony Addenbrooke, who is dying. The ladies agree, and presently the old man enters. He takes an immediate and violent fancy to the girl, Anne Churchill, and insists upon her remaining with him while his lawyer recapitulates the terms of the Admiral's will, by which the bulk of the money (£60,000) will go to his grandson, Lieut. Anthony Addenbrooke, R.N., on condition that the young gentleman shall have reached the position of Commander before June 24, 1823. Until that date the Lieutenant is to remain in entire ignorance of the fact that his grandfather has left him a penny, in order, as the Admiral says, that he shall prove himself a man for his own sake, and not for the sake of the money. The act drop goes down on the old man muttering brokenly in one of the sudden sleeps of old age and infirmity; and the girl sitting by his side, his hand in hers, and her thoughts fixed on the future.

In the first act of the play proper three months have elapsed; and we find ourselves in the room of Anthony Addenbrooke the younger at Portsmouth, and learn that in the meantime the Little Admiral is dead. Young Anthony, who shares his rooms with a chum, Joseph Shafto, is leading the gayest, the most reckless existence imaginable. His room is littered with unpaid bills, his friend and his old servant are full of stories of his mad escapades. Anthony himself rushes in, slamming the door in the face of pursuing duns. He decides to leave Portsmouth with his friend, and to take up his abode in a cottage belonging to him in Hampshire. He has received news that the adjoining cottage has been let to two maiden ladies, from whom he may expect a visit at any time. The lawyer Speedwell arrives, first to raise his hopes to the skies and then to dash them to the ground with the news that his grandfather had not mentioned his name in his will, and that his only legacy is a letter urging his grandson to work, as work will bring him more than he can realise. The disappointment is great; so great that Anthony despairs, and is meditating suicide when his future tenant, Anne Churchill, enters, and saves him from self-destruction.

The coming of Anne makes another man of Anthony, who falls desperately in love with her, and for her sake turns over a new leaf, works hard, saves money, pays his debts, and is on the high road to promotion, urged perpetually forward by Anne. In the last act—a charmingly pretty Cottage Garden scene—the fateful June 24 is but a week distant. Anthony, still in ignorance of the fortune awaiting him, has won his way all along the line. He declares his love to Anne; but Anne had reckoned without her heart; and her love for Anthony makes her loathe and despise herself for her original motives in desiring to entrap him. She begs him to wait until June 24 for her answer. A visitor for Anthony arrives in the person of John Speedwell, who informs him of his promotion and also of the grandfather's bequest. Anthony is overjoyed until, in the course of conversation, Speedwell mentions that a third person knew of the conditions of the will, a Miss Anne Churchill. At first Anthony is completely overwhelmed by the news, but eventually he declares his faith in Anne, and puts her to the test in a conversation from which Anne emerges triumphant; and the end is happiness and marriage bells.

As the Little Admiral Mr. A. E. George gives a beautiful and clever study of an old man, broken in body but strong in spirit. He touches the whims and eccentricities of old age with an exquisite note of pathos; they provoke laughter, but it is the laughter which is very near tears. Mr. Lewis Waller is a manly, handsome hero, full of life and fire. He plays the part of the young scapegrace with a boyish grace which is very captivating; and he makes love to Anne in the irresistible manner which has made him so greatly and so deservedly popular with the fair sex. Miss Evelyn Millard looks as pretty as a picture in her ringlets and quaint costumes, and is a very sympathetic Anne. She is particularly good in the prologue, in her scene with the old man, which she plays with great feeling and charm. There is no actress on the stage who makes a sweeter, a daintier, a more lovable old maid than Miss Carlotta Addison. She is the embodiment of one of the old ladies of "Cranford"; her pretty little old-maidish ways are as fascinating to watch as her sweet soft voice is grateful to the ear. She is so natural, so womanly that it is easy to understand the devotion of Anne Churchill to her friend. Mr. C. M. Lowne as Joseph Shafto gives excellent assistance, his slow, deliberate methods forming a capital contrast to the impetuous Anthony of Mr. Waller. That fine actor, Mr. Charles Fulton, has a rather unsympathetic part as Lawyer Speedwell, but it is needless to say that he gets every ounce of acting matter out of it, and manages to make a sketchy character convincing. As an old sea-dog, Captain Kent, Mr. Charles Groves plays with fine vigour and effect; and Mr. Herman de Lange as Baron von Loewe contrives to make the curious character plausible. Cobbledick, the old servant, is very well played by Mr. Herbert Jarman, who invests the part with much humour. Mr. Shiel Barry is good as a French waiter, and Mr. W. Berthue as the unseen Process-server does all that he can with a very small part.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Frank Bentz, who terminated his engagement as manager at the Paisley Theatre on Saturday, was the recipient of a few useful presents subscribed for by the staff of the theatre.

THE ACTORS' UNION.

A MINIMUM WAGE.

If a large and enthusiastic meeting can be accepted as an augury of success, then the Actors' Union may be said to have entered upon its existence with happy prospects as to the future. Some four hundred members of the profession assembled at the Criterion Restaurant on Monday afternoon with the object of hearing the scheme verbally explained; and, if approved, of signifying their acceptance of it by becoming members of the Association. It would have been, perhaps, more business-like had a resolution on the subject been put to the meeting, for such a formality could have been brought forward as a reply to future criticisms. Such a resolution, too, undoubtedly would have been unanimously passed, and that the meeting was in entire accordance with the objects of the Actors' Union was amply proved by the considerable number of actors and actresses who paid their entrance fee before quitting the hall.

MR. CECIL RALEIGH occupied the chair, and was supported by Miss Gertrude Kingston, Mme. Rouir, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Mr. F. H. Chamier, Mr. J. A. Bentham, Mr. Fred Bentley, Mr. E. Y. Rae, Mr. Harry Mountford, Mr. Bulbeck (hon. solicitor), Mr. Robson Paige (treasurer), and Mr. Oswald Marshall (secretary). Among others present were Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. Edward O'Neill, Miss Agnes Thomas, Mr. Frank Lacey, Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. C. C. Bartram, Mr. Maurice Hoffmann, Mr. Arthur Eldred, Mr. J. W. Ryder, Mr. Harrison Carter, Mr. H. Athol Forde, Mr. Charles Craston, Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, Mr. Walter Russell, the Musical Schaffers, Miss Anna Beaumont, Miss Keith Lytton, Miss Mary Bessle, Miss Lucy Sibley, Mr. Dermot Fitzgibbon, Miss Elsie Carew, Miss Vane Featherstone, Mr. A. S. Albery, Mr. Fred Albery, Miss Maude Bowyer, Mr. J. W. Braithwaite, Miss May Buckstone, Miss Gwendolen Burney, Mr. Alfred Bennett, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Compton, Mr. E. H. Clive, Miss Violet Chamier, Miss May Conrad, Mr. J. J. Dallas, Mr. J. Telly Dillsen, Mr. Phillip Durham, Mr. Cyril Fairlie, Mr. I. Farelly, Mr. Jack Fortescue, Mr. Cecil Fowler, Mr. Fred Fern, Miss Grace Garside, Mr. Franklin Graham, Mr. C. R. Gibbon, Mr. Lawrence Grant, Mr. John Groves, Miss Hettie Hertzfeld, Miss Mona Hungerford, Mr. G. Harrison-Carter, Mr. E. M. Hamilton, Mr. Chas. Kean, Mr. Henry Latimer, Mr. Piet Leslie, Miss Ella Linden, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Mr. M. G. Mackey, Mr. Cecil Morand, Mr. H. C. Morton, the Musical Schaffers, Mr. Henry Nelson, Mr. Goodwin Nook, Miss Margaret Parker, Miss Catherine Parry, Miss Violet Russell, Mr. Arthur Rodney, Mr. Geo. Rollit, Mr. Robert Rivers, Mr. R. W. Steele, Miss Blanka Stewart, Mr. Charles Taylor, Mr. R. S. Trelawney, Mr. J. R. Turnbull, Miss Lilian Tweed, Miss Nelly Wilkinson, Mr. Ashton Winslow, Mr. Roland Williams, and Mr. W. H. G. Wynne. Many letters and telegrams expressive of sympathy with the movement were received, among others, from Mr. Charles Allan and Miss Phyllis Broughton.

The statement issued for the purposes of the meeting supplied to each person who attended the meeting was as follows:—

THE ACTORS' UNION.

"Enslave a man, and you destroy his ambition, his enterprise, his capacity."

1. The title of this body is to be the Actors' Union.

2. That this Union is being formed for the object of safeguarding the interest and welfare of all those who earn their living by acting or singing in musical or dramatic plays.

3. The Union will be governed and developed on strictly democratic lines—by actors for actors.

4. Qualifications for membership: That all entering the profession can be admitted as probationary members, but no one to be allowed to vote or sit on the Council under five years' actual experience on the stage, or five years' membership of the Union. That each candidate for election shall be proposed by one and seconded by two fellows of the Union, who from personal knowledge can vouch that, in their opinion, the candidate is professionally and socially fit for membership.

5. That the entrance fee be 2s. 6d., and a subscription of 6d. per week to be paid for forty weeks of the year. Members to be in full benefit must not allow their weekly subscriptions to fall in arrears. Those who are desirous of doing so can pay their subscriptions quarterly 5s., half-yearly 10s., or annually 20s.

6. That any member of the Union becoming a manager or acting-manager shall, during the period of his management, forfeit his right of vote and cease to hold executive powers in the Union.

7. That the Union be governed by a Council of twenty-four fellows annually elected, all being allowed to offer themselves for re-election.

8. That branches of the Union at the earliest date possible shall be formed in other centres, such as are already forming in London and Manchester.

9. Members shall be known by a number, and each shall have a card to which special stamps issued by the Union shall be affixed, thus denoting their weekly payments.

The objects of the Union are:—

1. To establish and maintain an honest living minimum salary.

2. To abolish the unfair competition of unpaid or premium-paying amateurs on the professional stage.

3. To insist on the decent and healthy structural condition of theatres.

4. To found a Provident Fund, Loan Fund, and Old Age Pension Fund so soon as the Union is on a sound financial footing.

5. To give free legal advice to all members.

6. To grant free legal protection to all members.

7. To collect a levy of 6d. per member in the event of the death of any member, to defray the funeral expenses and assist the widow, widower, children, or next-of-kin.

8. To form an honourable, solid, and united body of actresses and actors whose decisions will be accepted with respect, and whose protests will be made with authority when directed towards the reform or abolition of any abuses that are detrimental to the interest of the stage.

All communications to be addressed to the Hon. Secretary, 49, Bedford-street, Strand, London, W.C.

THE CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, said that as the result of that meeting a new condition of things would prevail in the English stage. The Actors' Union was a necessity. It was not an experiment, nor was it merely the wish of a few. It had become a necessity by reason of the economic conditions that prevailed in their calling. There was a time when the actor was a Bohemian and a good-natured person, who passed his time acting badly by night and drinking by day; but that time had passed. They had to remember that those who employed them had fallen into methods that did not obtain in the old days. They now had to deal with syndicates and trusts. It was this system of syndicating that drove their music-hall brothers and sisters to form themselves into a federation. Very few of them could boast that they worked more than thirty weeks a year, and in that respect they were worse off than the variety artist. When they saw the condition of things in the North of England—a syndicate owning a London suburban theatre, the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, and practically every theatre in Scotland—did they not think it was time they gave up talking and wondering, that they forgot for a moment their art, and dealt with themselves as workers? He would call upon the secretary to read a short account of what had been happening in the provinces and in London.

The Secretary (MR. OSWALD MARSHALL) read his report, as follows: The Actors' Union only having been in existence a few weeks, the first report is necessarily brief, and consists mainly of how the organisation came into being. Some five or six weeks ago half a dozen actors were discussing the music-hall strike—not the rights and wrongs of it, but the loyalty that existed and does still exist in the ranks of the music-hall profession. That loyalty made those half-dozen ponder, and ponder deeply, of the utility of such an organisation as the Federation. The outcome of their meditations was another meeting. This time they came to business, and decided to hold a public meeting to ascertain as far as possible the feeling of the profession in regard to a similar association for actors. In the meantime Mr. Fred Bentley had called together some fifty or sixty ladies and gentlemen playing in Manchester and district for the purpose of forming a provincial Union. After some correspondence with Mr. Bentley the Manchester branch decided to throw in their lot with us. The first meeting was such a success that those responsible for it determined to go on, with the result that this Union was founded. Since then we have had three meetings, each one more enthusiastic than the last. At one of them some of the Reform Party were present. They begged us to join them, but that was impossible, not because we are not in accordance with their views, but because of the hundreds in the profession who are not, never have been, and never will be, in sympathy with the Actors' Association. At the last meeting we held a programme was drawn up, and a provisional committee of twelve was elected to carry out the preliminary arrangements. Through the generosity of a friend we have an office rent free for three months. A gentleman not connected with our calling kindly gave a donation of £5; a whip round at one of the meetings brought £1 0s. 6d.; and the Provisional Committee themselves have subscribed £3. With this money we have had two lots of circulars printed, one of which you have before you now. These were dispatched to nearly every company playing in London and the provinces, and also to many others who have the misfortune to be out of employment at present. The result of these circulars and the intimation of such an organisation through other channels has brought a reply from over two hundred and fifty actors and actresses, all ready and willing to join the Union. This, I think, is a very good beginning, and it now remains with you to nurture the seed which this committee has planted.

THE CHAIRMAN said that they could not have an association of managers conducting a trades union of actors. He regretted at the present moment that he was not eligible for membership of the Union because he was not an actor, although he had been one. He wished this union to be a union of actors who were actually earning their living by their calling. Let it be conducted by them for them. It must be "un-managerial"—for actors and actresses alone.

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON remarked that one of her earliest objections to the Actors' Association was the fact that there were employers on the committee. She, however, became a member of that body, but she found that the objects for which it was supposed to exist were not fulfilled. At the last meeting of the Association an attempt was made to introduce acting-managers to membership, and they were told that if it were not for the actor-managers the Association could not exist, because the actors did not pay their subscriptions. If that were so, then she thought there was no use for the Association. One other point; she desired to say that there was a painfully evident want of solidarity among actors and actresses. The Actors' Union could not be carried on successfully unless there was an absolute understanding that everyone coming into it was going to do what the other person was going to do. They must stick by one another.

MR. ARTHUR BAWTREE, chairman of the Provisional Committee, said: One of the most discouraging things about our calling is the lack of unity. We don't seem to be working together for a purpose. What we need is a big inspiring motive—a something to weld us together, to concentrate our energy, so that we may be a big force in our chosen profession. It seems to me, if we would begin now, to-day, on this Union of ours, it would give us this motive, this something to do, which can occupy each one of us. The need of an Actors' Union is manifest. It would give us an established position. It would show the outsider that within our ranks are force and energy sufficient to produce a tangible result—an Actors' Union; that we are, indeed, a power. Let us each constitute ourselves a committee of one, to hustle for the Union. Put on your thinking-caps to discuss what you yourself can do to make this Union a great and glorious success. We are young; we must either grow or stagnate. Out of an earnest desire for growth and progress will come, before we know it, a new and grand organisation. We must have enthusiasm, not indifference; willingness to subordinate ourselves to our purpose, if we would reach results, and an imperfect result is better than no result at all. Could there be a finer symbol of dignity and worth, of the earnest endeavour of our players, than a powerful Union? Won't it symbolise that the actor, from the strolling player, has merged into something finer and higher, that he has outgrown, left behind that old mantle of irresponsibility, and has clothed himself anew in the dignity of high aims? That he has kept pace—nay, is ever in advance in the march onward? That spiritually and mentally he has grown into man's estate?

THE CHAIRMAN, rising to speak again, urged that there was no necessity for hesitation on the part of anyone as to the line of action he or she should adopt in the matter under consideration. They were not going to ask whether the Actors' Union was to be founded or was not to be founded. The Actors' Union was founded. Another meeting would be held in three or four weeks' time, when only members of the Union would be present. All they had to do for the present was to send in their names and join, and at the same time to send in their subscriptions. Let them boldly plank down their half-crowns to the secretary.

MISS KINGSTON here took the opportunity, amid a perfect storm of applause, to sign her name on the form of application and hand her—the first—entrance fee to the secretary.

THE CHAIRMAN, continuing, stated that at the forthcoming meeting the members of the Union would elect the Council. At that meeting, too, they would be able to discuss and decide upon the rules which should be the basis for conducting the Union. The objects of the Union were plainly set forth in the circular before them. The first object was the establishment of a minimum salary. It was not to be thought for one moment that any man or woman could live decently on less than forty shillings for one week. They wanted £2 per week for six performances, full payment for matinées, and the number of hours for rehearsals to be limited. It was desirable to apply to rehearsals the eight-hour day principle, and it was only by bringing that subject to the attention of managers through the medium of such a union as this that they could hope for improvement. The rehearsals should be better organised, so that girls and men need not be kept hanging about doing nothing until they were required, and having to leave the theatre at two o'clock in the morning, when there was no means of getting home except by a six-shilling cab, which they could not afford. It was a pity that the rehearsals were not over earlier, so that people could go home by tram or omnibus. Payment for rehearsals would be a matter for future consideration by the Council to be appointed. Then, it should be made perfectly clear that the Actors' Union welcomed to its ranks all who earned their living by acting or singing on the stage, and especially did this apply to those who appeared in musical comedy, for they were the people who suffered most from long rehearsals. Neither he nor the committee was in favour of a complicated scheme of payment for rehearsals. All they wanted was an amount, say, four shillings a day, which would cover cost of lunch and conveyance to and from the theatre. Harking back to the question of a minimum wage, the speaker stated that the provincial salaries were the curse of the calling. What sort of a time was the woman going to have who received fourteen shillings per week? Was such a condition of things just? Was it reasonable? Was it even honourable? The Actors' Union would lead to the abolition of blackleg labour. The premium-paying or unremunerated amateur who went upon the stage more or less from a sense of vanity would no longer exist. The novice would have to be paid just as if he were a regular actor, and for this obvious reason: That the moment a minimum wage was insisted upon, and the manager had to pay a salary whether he engaged an amateur or an accomplished actor, the bonâ-fide artist would be employed. Recruits were not wanted, for there were enough accomplished actors and actresses to serve all reasonable purposes for the next ten years.

MR. FRED BENTLEY, appearing on behalf of provincial actors, stated that he had been working on the trades union idea for several years, and he was deeply proud of the honour of speaking before so many members of the profession. The large gathering proved that there were some at least who had the true interests of their calling at heart. He had heard several actors and actresses mention the word "union" in rather contemptuous tones. Well, he would point out that lawyers were not above having their union. No lawyer would work under a certain fee. Neither would doctors. Why should actors arrogate to themselves a position superior to that of lawyers and doctors? The Actors' Union should stand as a guarantee of efficiency, and the letters "A.U." after a man's name should signify that he was a thoroughly capable actor. Of course, from the first members who joined the Union they could not ask for guarantors, but once the scheme was on a sound footing every member who proposed a candidate, and the two seconders, should be able to guarantee that the person they were recommending was thoroughly fit to be a member.

The CHAIRMAN here made clear a point as to the subscription. It had been fixed at sixpence a week for forty weeks in the year, thus providing for the period of twelve weeks' rest in the summer months. It would be seen that the total subscription for the year was only £1.

MR. HARRY MOUNTFORD, chairman of the National Alliance, hoped that the Actors' Union would be represented on the Alliance. The actors had been driven to form a trades union, and every actor and actress should join the one which was now in existence. It was an interesting fact that exactly a year ago last Saturday the first public meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation was held. There should be no distinction in the Actors' Union between the provincial and the London actor.

MR. LAWRENCE GRANT, rising from the body of the hall, remarked that the views of the provisional committee of the Union seemed to be, as regards rehearsals, that four shillings a day should be paid. That would amount to twenty-four shillings a week. The Chairman had quoted a case of rehearsals lasting for twelve weeks, and by this system the actors would get a total of £14. He would point out that the Actors' Association had obtained for them the precise amount. One-third salary was paid for all rehearsals after three weeks.

The CHAIRMAN called Mr. Grant to order.

MR. GRANT went on to say that they were all desirous of unity, as some of the previous speakers had remarked, but was it with the idea of unity that this "opposition show"—the Union—was started?

The CHAIRMAN said he was not going to hear Mr. Grant on the subject of the Actors' Association. They did not care tuppence what became of the Association.

MR. GRANT: I thought you were speaking of the unity of the profession.

The CHAIRMAN: No, the unity of the Union.

MR. GRANT protested, if he were not allowed to talk about the Actors' Association, against any further discussion on the subject.

MR. MAURICE HOFFMAN urged everyone to join the Actors' Union. He hoped that at some future time the National Alliance would include the members of the theatrical profession

MME. ROUIR expressed a desire to see the front ranks of the profession leading in this movement. She thought every element of the legitimate stage, dramatic, operatic, comic opera, and musical comedy, should be represented in the Actors' Union.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman, proposed by Mr. Robson Paige and seconded by Mr. J. Bentham, concluded the proceedings.

GUILDHALL OPERATIC STUDENTS.

On Friday evening, March 8, the students of the Guildhall School of Music gave a performance of Auber's Fra Diavolo. Although at the present day Auber's opera sounds somewhat old-fashioned, it contains undeniably pretty music, and is well adapted for a student performance. Mr. Frederick Blamey, who impersonated the hero, has an agreeable, but not strong, tenor voice, which he managed with considerable skill, while his acting was always intelligent; and Miss Maude Willby deserves praise for her singing in the part of Zerlina. Miss Willby received much applause for her solo, concluding with a very effective shake in the second act, a Chamber in the Inn. As Lady Allcash Miss Edith Romea may be commended for her acting, but the part requires more sprightly singing. She was well supported by Mr. Stanley Goldstein as Lord Allcash; while Mr. Andrew Pace and Mr. Robert Carr as the two bandits, Beppo and Giacomo, greatly amused the audience by their clever comic business and capital make-up. Mr. Robert Fletcher ably sustained the part of Matteo, and Miss Fanny Taylor appeared as Francesco. Mr. Edwin Lewis acted the part of Lorenzo (Captain of the Carabineers) with ability. The concerted music was well rendered, particularly the trio in the second act. The orchestra under Mr. Richard H. Walthew played with commendable spirit; and the stage-management of Mr. B. Soutten was excellent. The scenery of Mr. W. Hemsley, especially in the last act, was admirably painted, and the bright and effective costumes of the performers were kindly lent by the Royal Opera Syndicate, Covent Garden.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Ernest Plumpton, stage-manager of Mr. Wm. Greet's Earl and the Girl company, was this week the recipient of a handsome silver cigarette-case, presented by the members of the Skipton A.D.C. in recognition of his work in the production of Our Boys recently.

Two sacred concerts will be given at the Crystal Palace on Good Friday. The first will be at 3.30, and the artists will include Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mme. Ada Crossley, and Mme. Clara Butt, Mr. Charles Saunders, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, and Mr. Santley. The Crystal Palace Choir, Military Band, and London Symphony Orchestra will also take part. Mr. Fred W. Holloway will be the organist, and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will conduct. At the evening concert, at 7.45, the artists will be Mme. Mary Conly and Mr. Thomas Meux. Mr. Holloway will again be the organist and Mr. Albert Fox will accompany. By permission of Col. A. E. Codrington the full band of the Coldstream Guards will play, under the leadership of Lieut. J. Mackenzie Rogan.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

PUTNEY EMPIRE.

Within the short space of a week, during which the place of amusement formerly known as the Hippodrome has been closed, Mr. Walter Gibbons and his lieutenants have been able to complete their arrangements for re-opening, and on Monday last the erstwhile deserted hall was once more brilliantly illuminated, and business was in full swing.

Whether the two-houses-a-night system will be successful in the Putney district remains to be seen, but on Monday evening, at the second show, there seemed to be more than a little difficulty in finding seats for all comers. New management is a term synonymous with innovations. We see by the programme—now issued at half the former price—that the name of "Hippodrome" has been changed to Empire. Mr. Foster C. Marner now occupies the position of manager, vacated by Mr. Clifford King. Conductor and orchestra are also new, and gave an exceedingly good account of themselves. The programme was a very strong one, and the various artists must have been delighted by the heartiness of their reception.

The first item, Messrs. Woodward and Walton, provided a clever exposition of dancing, the lady of the pair being exceedingly neat and graceful in her movements. That highly-entertaining coon, Will English, appeared next in a darky's serenade to "Daisy," following his singing by an eccentric dance, which delighted his hearers. Barnard's Marionettes were equally amusing, the figures being deftly manipulated in song and dance, the turn terminating with an exciting adventure, resulting in the breakdown of a motor-car. Mary Glen, a pleasing vocalist, for her first contribution sang "Loch Lomond," and afterwards, neatly attired as a "guid fish-wife," gave "Caller Herrin'" in a way which brought down the house. The Sousloffs, described as Russian Imperial terpsichorean experts, gave a very vigorous turn, ending in the "Turbillion." Rosie Archer was clever in her imitations of well-known comediennes, including Vesta Victoria, Vesta Tilley, Kate Carney, and Marie Kendal.

With the appearance of Tom Costello the audience were soon roaring with laughter, his latest absurdity, The Suffragettes, being too funny for words. He received excellent assistance from the two "examples," who finally exercised their "rights" and "lefts" also to great advantage. Much amusement and no little ability are infused into the sketch by the Ten Loonies. Several concerted pieces were well rendered, and the acrobatic pianist performed some clever feats during his lucid periods. An extra good series of pictures, "A Visit to Niagara," gave splendid views of river scenery, culminating in the "Niagara Falls" and "Rapids." The star turn was Mr. Arthur Roberts and his talented company in The Woman Who Was. As the disguised shop-girl the favourite comedian finds endless opportunity for his "gagging" propensities; his unexpected interpolations sometimes prove too much for the members of his company, and keep the audience in roars. The following are included in the cast, and ably support their chief:—Mr. Chris van Bern, Miss Florence Darley, Miss Jessie Burgwitz, Miss Andree Corday, and Miss Ruby Celeste, who fills her part with characteristic ability.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

The seating capacity of Mr. Walter Gibbons' Grand Palace at Clapham Junction this week has been thoroughly taxed, and many habitués of the hall have been fain to avail themselves of standing room. A great attraction has been the presence in the programme of Miss Victoria Monks, who, however, on Wednesday, the night of our visit, was out of the bill through indisposition. Mr. H. Ketteman, the able manager, made the fact known to the public at the entrances, and also exhibited an announcement on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, which compensated in part for the disappointment by the addition of interesting films to its stock of current pictures. The headline of the bill is occupied by Miss Maude O'Dell, who, as Galatea, is repeating the exhibition of human statuary which aroused so much interest recently at the Palace. Subjects of every variety are presented, including Vénus de Médée, Le Miroir de Bacchus, Helen of Troy, La Vérité, and La Fortune. The perfect pose and contour of the figures are admirably preserved. Each has the exact appearance of chiselled stone, and the admiration aroused by the clever studies is expressed in the warmest applause.

An especially attractive item in a strong programme is furnished by The Duchess of Tooting, which is presented with the customary gaiety, animation, and tunefulness by Mr. Sidney Bacon's company. The production has all the best effects of musical comedy, and passes from melody to mirth by easy transitions thoroughly to the taste of the audience. A merry interlude is that of Spry and Monti, who enact an amusing scene outside a representation of the Horse Guards in Parliament-street. An armour-clad Lifeguardsman occupies the saddle on a realistic, though wooden, charger, until the rider is upset by a small boy armed with a pea-shooter. The soldier finds consolation in flirting with a young lady, with whom he carries on a conversation, frequently interrupted by the cheeky urchin. Many comicalities are indulged in during the course of the act, which ends with a song and a quaint dance, executed with undeniable skill.

The tambourine is put to unaccustomed uses by Tambo and Tambo, whose spinning of the instrument surpasses understanding. The manner in which they keep a tambourine going on each finger and pass them to and fro is very deft, and their spining of hand-basins with both feet and hands is also marvellous. A culminating point is reached when, one by one, they set a couple of dozen tambourines spinning merrily, while others are kept going with the feet. The pedal extremities are also effectively utilised by Mr. Frank Cumminger, who has arrived at a rare state of perfection in sand-dancing, executing manœuvres that can be the result only of long and arduous practice. The cheers with which his efforts are greeted are thoroughly deserved. The Six Lancashire Lassies are a bevy of radiant maidens, whose only resemblance to the natives of the cotton-town would seem to lie in the clogs which adorn their feet. After singing in gleeful chorus of "Eileen" they do a number of solo and "concerted" dances, in which many varieties of stepping are introduced. Costumes of scarlet hue and golden trappings are afterwards assumed, and a chorus and dance executed with pleasing effect. Miss Edith Fink finds material for the display of a cultivated voice and captivating style in the popular "Shy Ann" and "Jo-burg"; and Mr. Chas. Austin, who numbers among his impersonations that of a lone widow, creates laughter by his broad comedy.

RICHMOND.

Merriment is the keynote here for the week, and so quite apropos Mr. Max Guy's capable orchestra opens with a tuneful march, "The Jolly Japanese." Then Miss Violet Beatrice, as a dashing son of Mars, chanted a song that won the approval of the audience; her "Little Soldier" should make quite a host of recruits. Rumbo Austen let the audience into the mysteries of the training of acrobats; Rumbo is quite a genial wag, and his pupils promptly enter into the fun of the thing, and shrieks of merriment testify to the approval of the audience. As a whistling comedian Mr. Arthur Melrose will want a lot of beating, for not only does he whistle with extraordinary skill, but he pipes imitations that are as realistic as they are clever; altogether a clever turn. Sensational drama is provided in Cecil Raleigh's The Doom of Delilah. It is a fine pot-pourri of villainy; forgery, illicit love, treachery, assignations, and a few other trifles go to form a menu that everyone appeared to enjoy. Olive, the Delilah in question, is in love with one Jack Weston, but he has other charmers; and after an absence of four years he appears on the scene. Olive taunts her quondam lover with infidelity, but Weston is resolute; he has simply called for the last time to say "Good-bye" to Olive. Jack denounces her, and leaves her to chew the cud of bitter repentance, although there is little of the commodity in her nature. Anon her other lover, Philip, appears; he has heard all, and by way of showing his appreciation he promptly strangles this wayward Delilah; then, as he also has sinned, he sacrifices his own life, and the curtain falls. The sketch is admirably written, and contains some smart lines. The episode was powerfully interpreted; Miss Dundas as Violet was superb, and she was well supported by the male members of the company, whose names, however, do not appear on the programme. A bright little comedienne, Miss Nina St. Elmo, sings prettily of "Marguerite" and "Jenny was a housemaid." Mr. Leo Stormont met with an enthusiastic reception; he sang, with all his accustomed ability, "a barrack-room ditty," in which he painted the glories that belong to Tommy Atkins, and followed up his success with a stirring ballad, "The Lifeboat Men"; he easily won the sympathy of his auditors and a full meed of applause. The Registry Office proves a very amusing little sketch; the worries of a young couple before the Registrar who are anxious to wed prove highly diverting; Mr. Matt Wilkenson and company assisted in the production, and did very well. A great reception awaited Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, who has already established herself as a prime favourite here. She simply took the house by storm; the theme of her first song was the same that gave Mr. Caudle a sleepless night—viz., an umbrella. Her second contribution, "Little Trixie," found favour with her admirers, for "Trixie" is quite an entertaining person, so much so that the audience were also heard chanting her praises—and Miss Broadfoote's. As a finale Miss Broadfoote sang her "Nursery Rhymes," and was recalled again and again. Vernon's Bioscope gave a few illustrations demonstrating the supposed charms of "The coiner's life," and the audience gave their final volley of applause as the curtain rang down. Mr. Kay Draco is responsible for the front of the house, the arrangements of which are, as usual, excellent.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The cosy hall at Chelsea enjoys the benefit of constant patronage, and whatever circumstances of wind or weather may prevail, its habitués are certain of comfort and amusement within its walls. Mr. Henri Gros, the managing-director, is astute and experienced enough to know that it is the best that pays, and the entertainment which he provides is always one which can be relied upon to amuse. The overture supplied by Mr. Angelo Asher's excellent orchestra is a selection from Madame Angot, and forms no inconsiderable source of pleasure to the audience. They are later moved to admiration by the descriptive power of Miss Dora Lyric's singing, the sentiment of "All that glitters is not gold" being well and tunefully brought out. To Elton and Edwin, who make melody on the banjo, much appreciation is extended. They are expert manipulators of the instrument which our own King raised to its present popularity, and find no difficulty in playing a march of Sousa's with properly vigorous expression. Chirgwin's "Blind Boy," rendered as a duet, pleases greatly, and the overture to Poet and Peasant is so artistically executed that the clever pair are called upon to acknowledge a double recall.

The exhilarating dances of the Glenroy Troupe in The Lads of the New Brigade meet with similar honours. A Scotch reel by three comely maidens, and a sailor's hornpipe by the gentlemen, prove a source of delight, but it is when the ladies dress up in Highland uniform, and sing a martial chorus, and take part in a series of sword exercises, that the audience surrender completely to the fascinations of the performers. An Irish reel, in which some neat stepping is done, serves to complete an entertainment that has attractions for all. The poetry of motion is also practised by My Fancy, the clever danseuse, who, since she took the eye of the town some years since, has occupied a position quite on her own ground. My Fancy has a comely appearance, and dances like an automatic doll—automatic, that is, in respect to the accuracy of her movements, for no figure could reproduce the grace and refinement with which My Fancy invests her step and sand dances, each of which is loudly acclaimed.

Dispensing for the time being with his "Welcome Home," Mr. Bob Hutt gets, nevertheless, a cordial reception for his eccentricities in "Make haste" and "Oh, Jerusalem," in both of which contortions of feature are comically conspicuous. Mr. Hutt also enters into disputes with the orchestra, which are provocative of the utmost hilarity. Mr. Tatten Hall is a comedian who resorts to caricature for his effects. His assumption of a "Johnnie" with an eyeglass is very laughable, and the figure he cuts as a huntsman is equally ludicrous. Exquisite effects are obtained on sweet-toned bells by Mr. Will Cornish, who afterwards plays "The Lost Chord" as a duet on a set of curious metal tubes, which have an imposing sound, well in keeping with Sullivan's famous melody. The popular ballad "Sing me to sleep" is also played on a number of ordinary bells, and the charm of the performance wins well-deserved applause. The Boisset Troupe are seen in their whimsical production The Wild West, in which the popular comedians cause unlimited laughter; and Jeapes' Animated Graphic supplies a series of pictures of a most interesting character. Mr. Edward Swanborough, whose illness has now unhappily lasted nearly a year, is able occasionally to visit the hall, but will not brave the night air. Meanwhile, managerial affairs go smoothly under the control of Mr. J. Norman Berlin, who is held in the highest esteem.

"BLUFF AND BUNKUM."

Humorous Sketch, by Philip Martin, produced at the Bedford on Thursday, March 7.

James Schomberger ....Mr. Lawrence Derrick
Schietz ....Mr. P. Martin
Charlie Flow ....Mr. Harry Taylor
Theresa Lascelles ....Miss Alice Vere

This bright little sketch, which plays but fourteen minutes, met with a very favourable reception. On the rise of the curtain Schietz is discovered in the sale-room, off which, on the prompt side, is shown the private office of the principal. Schomberger, who enters, gives Schietz advice as to serving customers, with much blatant exaltation of himself. Charlie Flow, a dude, who comes into the store to make some purchases, forgets the items. After some humorous lines, he departs on the entrance of Mlle. Theresa Lascelles, a French adventuress, who wishes to purchase a sable cape. After selecting one, she tenders in payment a cheque for 850 dollars. Acting on the orders given him, Schietz takes the cheque into Schomberger, who makes inquiries over the telephone of the bankers on whom the cheque is drawn. A few moments later a favourable reply is received. In the meantime, the lady, taking advantage of the delay, leaves the store, and going to the bank, withdraws all her money, and closes her account. On her return to the store she is seen by Schomberger himself, who is gulled by her to let her take away the cape. Immediately after her departure Schomberger is rung up by the bank, and informed of the fact that mademoiselle has drawn out her money and closed the account. He rages out into the store, and puts all the blame on to the unfortunate Schietz, and in a lively rally bonnets him with the boxes and kicks him out of the store. The bulk of the work of the sketch fell to Mr. Lawrence Derrick as Schomberger. He gave a first-rate presentment of the self-made bumptious American business man; the other three parts were also well played.

STARS FOR THE CANARIES.

Crowds gathered on the Liverpool landing-stage last Saturday morning to witness the departure of Mr. Malcolm Scott and a party for Las Palmas. In order to recuperate after the stress of pantomime work, Mr. Scott is taking to the Canary Islands a party including Harry Tate, Mr. R. Morand, Mr. Romaine, Walter McEwen, Misses Doris Dean, Fanny Dango, Theresa Foote, Mrs. Tate, Mrs. Dean, and Claire Romaine. "Happy" Fanny Fields was to have been with the party, but was unfortunately prevented at the last moment by illness. With the idea of combining business with pleasure Mr. Scott has taken the theatre, Teatro Perez Galdos, at Las Palmas, and the company opens there to-day for six nights, after which it will return on one of the Elder-Dempster line steamers, which is due to arrive at Plymouth on the 29th. With such an "all star" company record business is assured.

Sir Alfred Jones, of the Elder-Dempster line, have made special arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the party. Both on the outward and the homeward trip the vessel puts in and stops at Las Palmas, especially for them. The Sekondi, on which they sailed, carried her full complement of passengers, who were gleefully anticipating the good times the happy company will undoubtedly give them during the voyage. A foretaste of the fun was given when Harry Tate was observed in naval uniform on the "bridge," directing operations as the vessel left.

Among those present to bid their comrades "bon voyage" were Miss Hetty King, Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, the Brothers Luck, E. Eddlestone, Roy Redgrave, and M. Adler. Mr. Harry Tate appeared on the bridge of the tender in a mock exhibition of skipper, with the regulation nautical cap and greatcoat. He gave "directions" wholesale, and surveyed operations from the bridge with an air of seriousness, interrupted now and again with amusing ejaculations to his friends ashore. Mr. Walter McEwen accompanies the party as managing-director.

"THE RED LETTER,"

a Play, in One Act, by H. Leslie Bell, produced on Monday, March 11, at the Circus and Hippodrome, Rochdale.

Samson Whyte ....Mr. H. Leslie Bell
Harry Shaw ....Mr. Horton Tree
Bartnell ....Mr. Chapman
Constable ....Mr. G. Harrison
Evelyn Shaw ....Miss Lily Pearl

As will be seen from the thinly-disguised names of the characters, The Red Letter is a reflex of a notorious murder trial now taking place in America. Scene 1 opens on the roof gardens of a New York theatre, where Bartnell, hearing that Harry Shaw is leaving New York that night for Pittsburg, and that his wife will be alone, plans a robbery of her jewels. Samson Whyte enters from the theatre, followed by Harry Shaw, from whom Whyte asks a favour, and Shaw, guessing rightly it is money he wants, promises to let him have it the same night enclosed in a red letter. Mrs. Shaw arrives, and, after bidding her husband good-bye, is persuaded by Whyte to be allowed to take her home. A bioscope film here depicts the couple being driven to her home in a hansom. On arriving there Mrs. Shaw tells Whyte this must be their last meeting, when they hear sounds which they think betoken the return of Harry Shaw. Assuming he must have missed his train, and not desiring to be caught, the deluded young wife effects Whyte's escape through a window, where he is immediately pounced upon by a constable who demands an explanation, in the midst of which Harry Shaw turns up. Whyte expresses his belief that there is a burglar in the house. They return with the constable, and are horrified to find that Mrs. Shaw has been murdered. Not finding any trace of the murderer, Harry Shaw then asked Whyte how he surmised there was a burglar in the house. Whyte starts guiltily, whereupon Shaw accuses him of having murdered his wife. Whyte then tells him the whole story, taunting him with the character of his wife, whom he asserts was his (Whyte's) mistress before she married Shaw. Stung by this taunt, Shaw shoots at Whyte and kills him, the curtain falling on the arrest of Shaw for the murder of Whyte.

The play is short, but full of exciting incidents throughout. Mr. H. Leslie Bell makes a convincing Samson Whyte; Harry Shaw is ably portrayed by Mr. Horton Tree; Bartnell and the Constable are effectively sustained by Mr. Chapman and Mr. G. Harrison; and Miss Lily Pearl acts with telling effect the part of Evelyn Shaw.

The funds of the City of London Auxiliary of the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Orphan Asylum Corporation were generously increased on Monday by a smoking concert, arranged by the staff of the London and County Printing Works, Drury-lane, W.C. (printers of The Era), held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Mr. Ernest A. Mynott, the works manager, occupied the chair, and Mr. L. Upcott Gill, principal of the firm, Mr. Crandon D. Gill, and Mr. Bernard Gill were also present. A comprehensive programme, consisting largely of "native" talent, was provided, notable among the successes of the evening being the efforts of the "Bazaar" Glee Club, who contrasted the concerted drolleries of "Jenks's Vegetable Compound" with the vigorous harmonies of "Life's a Bumper." Greatly appreciated items were the recitations in Somerset dialect by Miss Daisy Pullen and the singing by Miss Aline Sudbury, a promising soprano, of "Ofttimes" and "She wandered down the mountain side." A "séance magique" was submitted by Capt. E. H. Adams; the Marlborough Quartet sang "Annie Laurie"; a duet, "The Twins," was given by Messrs. T. C. Bond and G. J. Blower; and Messrs. Pattle and Hargrave combined their vocal abilities in Balfe's "Excelsior." Humorists were found in Messrs. T. C. Bond, Fred Clements, Will Draper, Fred Edwards, Alf. Ellerton, Ben Hogg, E. Lacy, and Harry Massey; and ballads were contributed by Miss E. J. Bidwell, Miss Elsie Lisle, and Messrs. Thos. C. Bell, E. Hargrave, Leonard Holmes, Chas. Pattle, H. Bullen-Saunders, Fred Smith, Edgar Stacey, Hubert Stone, and Albert Walter, a duet on the pianoforte being furnished by Messrs. G. Hardy and S. J. Price (who also proved most efficient accompanists), and a solo by Mr. L. J. Holmes. Mr. W. A. Perkins acted as musical director, and Messrs. J. L. Lawrence and J. W. Simpkins capably fulfilled the duties of hon. secs. The concert, which realised £45, the record for the season, proved very enjoyable, and the hope that the function would become a "hardy annual" was generally expressed.

A matinée at the Hippodrome, Southampton, in aid of the dependents of the victims of the Berlin disaster on Thursday resulted in securing £100 for the Mayor of Harwich's fund.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—While thanking your correspondent for his notice of our act at Barnard's, Greenwich, in last week's issue, will you kindly rectify the error "Messrs. Prentice and Brite." It should be—Mr. Harry Prentice and Miss Florence Bright (in Jimmy).

St. Armande, the hypnotist, is in London, booking dates. Without the aid of electricity or drugs he has effected many cures, his method, hypnotism, has been approved by such eminent physicians as Sir William Broadbent and Sir William Gardiner. His demonstrations are amusing and scientific.

ILLNESS OF AN ADVANCE AGENT.

Our readers will learn with regret that Mr. John Mitcheson, the well-known advance agent, has just left Westminster Hospital, London, after three months' severe illness with diabetes, resulting in the loss of his eyesight, and is still in a sad state of health. It appears that when ahead of The Still Alarm company some fifteen months ago he contracted a severe cold at Seacombe. Eventually under medical advice he entered Birmingham Hospital. A few weeks afterwards he was able to rejoin his company, and finished the tour. But towards the end of the year he was subjected to an almost continuous attack of the complaint, and, under the advice and assistance of Dr. Brookbank James, eye specialist, he entered Westminster Hospital to undergo a special course of treatment.

Mr. Mitcheson was well known amongst Freemasons in the North of England, as it was at Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1875 where he took his M.M. degree. "Mitchie," as he was familiarly termed when touring, was well known and highly respected for his sobriety and industry, and was a very hard-working agent. Amongst the companies he represented were The Earl and the Girl, The Blue Moon, The Still Alarm, The Christian, When a Man Hates, The Girl from Bond-street, The Slaves of Passion, In the Ranks, Two Little Vagabonds, Oliver Twist, Little Nell, The Fisher Girl, The Lights o' London, The Mockery of Marriage, The Brace of Partridges, Secret Service, Uncles and Aunts, The Red Lamp, the Norman Comedy Co., The Black Bishop, &c. Personal friends are anxious to render him some assistance in his present distress. He is now resting, through the generosity of a friend, until some arrangements can be made for his future. Those willing to assist in such a distressful case are kindly requested to communicate with Mr. John Mitcheson, 20, Ballater-road, Brixton, S.W.

Bristol X.L.C.R. and Orchestral Band: H. Belding, goal; A. Hamlin (captain) and J. Lewis, backs; H. Elmore, F. Harrison, and S. Carter, half-backs; J. Aubrey, H. Clements, E. Bowman, A. Mattock, and H. Edwards, forwards.

Bristol X.L.C.R. Second: F. B. Nicholls, goal; F. Thorne and E. Denton, backs; F. Wedmore, J. Lacey, and T. Neagle (captain), half-backs; F. Hansford, A. English, P. Reardon, R. Cullen, and H. C. Douglas, forwards.

Referee: G. Adams. Linesmen: J. Leonard and H. Hare.

Result: Bristol X.L.C.R. and Orchestral Band Athletic Clubs, 1 goal; Bristol X.L.C.R. Second, nil. J. Aubrey scored the only goal.

All men who shave themselves will take a lively interest in the "Nutshell" automatic stropper, just introduced by Messrs. Rheinberg and Co., of 32 Snow-hill, London, by whom the difficult operation of stropping a razor is reduced to a mere matter of turning a handle. The automatic principle is so precise that both sides of the blade receive equal strokes from the stropping-band. The "Nutshell" stropper is—as its name implies—compact and complete in itself, and requires no outside support. The blade is inserted through a slot, the apparatus is held in one hand, and the handle turned with the other. The advantages offered by this novel process will be thoroughly appreciated by travellers. We understand that the makers guarantee each machine, the price of which is 12s. 6d., and allow ten days' free trial.

Makes the Skin as Soft as Velvet.—Beetham's "Larola" preserves the Skin from the effects of frost, cold, winds, and hard water. Entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, irritation, chaps, &c., and Keeps the Skin Soft, Smooth, and White at all Seasons. Invaluable for the Complexion, Delightfully Soothing and Refreshing after walking, golfing, cycling, motoring, dancing, &c. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d. each, of all Chemists and Stores. M. Beetham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

VICTOR.—March 13, at Highbury, N., Mary Anne Victor, actress, aged seventy-six.

FOR CONDOLENCE.

BROADHEAD.—The widow and family of the late Mr. Wm. Birch Broadhead and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry Broadhead and family desire to express their grateful thanks for the numerous letters and telegrams of sympathy (and also for the beautiful floral offerings) received by them in their great bereavement. It is hoped this acknowledgment will be received as an inadequate expression of their heartfelt gratitude.

IN MEMORIAM.

CRASTON.—In loving memory of my darling mother, Marie Craston, who fell asleep March 13, 1900. Never forgotten by her loving daughter, Annie.

GILLETTE.—In loving memory of Ada Gillette (née Ada Watson), who fell asleep March 18, 1904.
"You are not forgotten, Ada dear,
Nor ever shall you be.
As long as life and memory last
I will remember thee."
From her loving mother.

KEITH.—In loving memory of our dear father, Charles Henry Keith, circus proprietor, died March 16, 1895. Gone, but never forgotten by his loving children.

MACINTOSH.—In loving memory of Elinor Macintosh, who died March 14, 1906, at the Carnival, Glasgow. Sadly missed and never forgotten by her parents, Mary and Solomon Macintosh.

The treatment of superfluous hair is something which requires the greatest nicety and care.

X. BAZIN'S DEPILATORY POWDER is the result of much study of the cause and problem of destroying these growths without injury to the skin, or leaving a scar or the slightest disfigurement.

There is no necessity for any woman whose refinement and good breeding have made her sensitive about these unfortunate marks to be subjected to the pain of electrical treatment and the consequent eruptions.

X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder is absolutely safe, and destroys the hair without pain—a simple dainty way of effecting a cure.

The great skill and science employed in the compounding of X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder make it absolutely safe and reliable.

If some former remedy has been tried without success, it is because the right powder was not applied.

MARRIAGE AND THE DRAMA.

The play which Mr. SUTRO has written for Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER is so effective and interesting, dramatically, as an "entertainment of the stage," that the ethics of John Glayde's Honour appear to have somewhat escaped notice. There are certain novelties in the piece, nevertheless, which are significant, and one of them is the way in which the sympathy is divided between the wife and the husband. This was impossible for a dramatist writing under the influence of what are now denounced as "old-fashioned" ideas. The typical wedlock-drama of the last generation was East Lynne. In this the erring wife eloped with the villain—a thorough blackguard—in an access of impulsive jealousy, caused by a misunderstanding. She only won the sympathy of the audience by the strength of her maternal love, which led her back to her children in the character of their governess. The tendency of our wedlock-plays has usually been similar to that of East Lynne. In Frou-Frou, an adaptation of which was very popular in this country, the husband was again blameless, and the wife "went wrong" from irritation at finding that her sister has taken her place—platonically, of course—in her home, the divorcée finally coming back to die repentant.

Then came IBSEN, the main purpose of whose works, as has been explained by Mr. BERNARD SHAW, was "immoral"—that is to say, not conforming to current ideals; the main effect of the plays being, Mr. SHAW pointed out, to proclaim "the importance of being always prepared to act immorally, to urge upon women that the desirability of their preserving their chastity depends just as much on circumstances as the desirability of taking a cab instead of walking." We all know how, in Hedda Gabler, Mrs. Elvsted leaves her husband to look after Lövborg, and finally settles down as collaborator with Tesman in the preparation of that gentleman's writings for the publisher. Then there was Mr. HENRY ARTHUR JONES with The Case of Rebellious Susan. Here the wife, aggrieved by her husband's infidelity, "goes wrong" with a young man abroad, saves herself from conviction by lying, and finally, hopeless and disillusioned, returns to her husband's arms. We were certainly "moving," even in the nineties.

Mr. SUTRO's drama is an odd instance of the compromise which a tactful playwright makes when writing for an average audience. The plan of the play, in the hands of an "advanced" dramatist writing for a matinée at the Court Theatre, would, of course, have been treated very differently. The non-conventional view of John Glayde and his wife is that they are two absolutely useless, and therefore contemptible, personages. He is a gambler in stocks and shares; and whether the millions are in his pocket or that of his "enemy" Mr. Huggins is a matter of absolute indifference to the community. Mrs. Glayde is neither a mother, a worker, or a worker's companion—the only capacities in which a woman can make herself respected. But there is this to be said on her side: we cannot say whether her failure to produce offspring is her fault, and her other shortcomings have been caused by circumstances beyond her control. The old dramatists never left the erring wife a leg to stand on.

It is not the incidents of a drama, but the way in which the characters are treated, that decides the effect on the audience; and the old school would have made John Glayde high and mighty all through, shooting the lover and maintaining his marital dignity to the last. Instead of which, the wife is made the injured party and given a very fair defence. According to the ALEXANDRE DUMAS the Younger method of winding up a wedlock-play, the husband who neglected his spouse was called a vibrion; and, at the right moment, someone killed him, leaving the lady for the lover. John Glayde, whose vice of gambling has been the cause of his temporary desertion of his wife, is disposed of in another, and really much more sensible way. He simply resigns the woman to his rival, promising to divorce her so that she may be able to marry him. It is true that Mr. SUTRO, by the mouth of a pragmatical friend of the lover, foreshadows that his marriage with Muriel will be a failure; but, after all, as far as that goes, Lerode runs no more risk than any ordinary bridegroom; and it is quite on the cards that he may be happier with Mrs. ex-Glayde than with the young lady chosen for him by his fond parent.

Another novelty in this play which deserves to be drawn attention to is the way in which the author has let his heroine "humbug" her husband. "Nature," says SCHOPENHAUER, "has endowed Woman with the power of dissimulation for her own protection. To use it, therefore, at every opportunity is just as natural to her as claws and teeth are to the lion, tusks to the elephant and wild boar, horns to the bull, and supplies of ink to the cuttle-fish in order to discolour the water." But, in the past, in serious plays, our dramatists never made their adulterous heroines lie. They might "deceive" their husbands, as the consecrated phrase goes; but, tell a fib about it—never! The result was that at the première of John Glayde's Honour the audience were as completely taken in by Muriel's protestations and blandishments in the scene with Glayde in the third act as was the husband himself. In spite of all indications to the contrary, they could not believe that a dramatist would have permitted his heroine to descend to deception. What with the suffragettes demanding a Parliamentary vote, and our married stage heroines of plays being left in peaceable possession of their lovers and possible wedded bliss, the petticoated sex is advancing both on the boards and elsewhere.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As the mover of a resolution passed to-day by the Council of the Actors' Association that the following be added to the by-laws and regulations:—

"The Association Agency will not deal with any offers of engagements carrying a salary of less than £2 per week for a speaking part," will you allow me to point out that though the immediate and practical effect will be neither drastic nor far-reaching—may, in fact, scarcely be felt at all, since, we are informed, in three years only seven engagements for a less sum than £2 a week have been made—yet considerable importance may be attached to the Council having officially approved of the principle that no actor qualified by election to the Association should work at an unworthy wage.

I hold very strongly that the primary business of the Association is with the economic conditions under which its members work; and that nothing can excuse the absence of attempts to meliorate those conditions, however difficult that task may seem, and however partial the attempts may be. I hope that the small step taken to-day in what appears to me the one right direction, will be regarded by those who have lost belief and interest in the Association as an earnest that reform, not necessarily revolution, within the Association may be the means of achieving reforms, without revolution, for the profession at large.—Yours faithfully,

H. GRANVILLE BARKER.

Court Theatre. March 12, 1907.

THE annual Irish Ballad Concert, under the direction of Mr. W. Saunders and the Crystal Palace Company, will take place this (Saturday) evening at the Palace. There will be a band of harps and the grand organ, and the accompanists will be Messrs. Henry Bird, F. R. Kinkee, and Walter W. Hedgcock. The names of such distinguished singers as Mr. Santley and Mme. Blanche Marchesi are alone sufficient to draw an enormous audience, without taking into account the many other well-known artists who will appear. Miss Hedwig Hantko, Miss Eleanor Clarke, Miss Amelie Molitor, Mr. Plunket Greene, Mr. Thomas Meux, Mr. Crauford Kent, Mr. Thomas Gibbs, Mr. Douglas Lott will also contribute to the programme.

MISS MAXIME ELLIOTT, whose grace and talent have inspired playgoers here as well as in America with so much admiration, is to revisit London in the autumn, and will begin a three months' season at the Lyric on Sept. 9. At the end of Mr. Lewis Waller's occupancy of the Lyric in July the Moody-Manners season of opera in English will begin.

BRIEUX'S Les Hannetons, translated by Mr. H. M. Clark, will be produced by Miss Janet Achurch for the Stage Society at the Imperial Theatre on March 24 and 25. Messrs. Charles V. France, Nigel Playfair, Edmund Gwenn, Kenneth Rivington, and Asheton Tonge, and Misses Mabel Hackney, Miss Dora Barton, Miss Florence Adale, and Miss Lola Duncan will be included in the cast.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"JOHN GLAYDE'S HONOUR."

A New and Original Play, in Four Acts, by Alfred Sutro, produced at the St. James's Theatre on Friday, March 8.

Dora Longman ..... MISS MAY MARTYN

Calypso, Fenelon tells us, was unable to console herself in the absence of Ulysses. The fidelity of "grass-widows" has always been a matter of incredulity to the mere man, to whom propinquity means so much. Yet to one of the sexes, at any rate, is supposed that "absence makes the heart grow fonder." The sailor may have a wife in every port; but he expects his own to be always metaphorically waiting for his return on the quay. As a general rule, and taking human nature for what it is, it is better for married people to live together. The practice may engender dislike, but it favours fidelity.

Such are the lessons which Mr. Sutro teaches in his play, John Glayde's Honour, which was produced, with immense success, at the St. James's Theatre on the 8th inst. It must not be supposed, however, that there is anything didactic about the drama. There are the characters; there is their influence on each other, and there is the result. The piece is broadly, strongly, and simply dramatic. It is contrived with the sound skill which Mr. Sutro has shown in his former pieces, and its scheme carried out with admirable ease and effectiveness. It is not only that the design is excellent; not an inch of the canvas is neglected, and the detail is as well studied as the outline of the work. John Glayde's Honour does great credit to Mr. Alexander's gift of selection. It is exactly the play for the St. James's company, and piece and players mutually benefit from the happy conjunction.

The phenomenon, often to be observed in the American quarter of Paris, of the fashionable wife with the toiling absentee husband, has been taken by Mr. Sutro as the basis of his story. Muriel Glayde, the childless wife of John Glayde, the American millionaire, has been left to herself in Paris, while Glayde has been busy with his financial schemes in America. And here comes in one's doubt, one's uncertainty as to Mr. Sutro's attitude as the author of the play. Is he, like the modern advanced school of moralists, pleading "extenuating circumstances" for the wife; and, like Mr. Bernard Shaw, objecting to the institution of marriage as at present made and provided? Or is he standing in the old ways and advocating the "womanly woman" and her "subjection" to the orthodox marriage tie? On the whole, looking at the way in which Mr. Sutro has handled his characters, we should say that he was conservative in his marital politics. Mr. Pickwick's plan, when there were two mobs, was to shout with the biggest; and a play is much more likely to be popular if it appeals to the large working majority.

Mr. Sutro so manages matters that we side with the masterful millionaire, who comes back to his semi-deserted wife expecting to find her "waiting on the quay" in regulation fashion. Instead, he learns that she has found an "affinity" in a painter named Trevor Lerode, who has been painting her portrait. Muriel has been amusing herself in a frivolous semi-Bohemian set. Lady Lerode, not in the interests of virtue, but in those of her son, whom she wants to marry well, has warned Glayde, by a telegram, of the danger to his "honour"; and when the millionaire arrives in Paris he realises that the condition of things is serious. So he determines to put a stop to the scandal at once. He tells Lerode that he must not finish Muriel's portrait, and must part with her for ever. Then Muriel, fearing that her husband may shoot her lover, and driven to the natural weapon of the weak, lies like the proverbial gasmeter. She persuades Lerode to pretend to acquiesce in Gladye's decision, but really to get ready to run away with her that evening at six. When Glayde discovers that she has already "gone wrong" with Lerode, she deludes him with fair words and promises of repentance, and talks of leaving Paris with him, and "turning over a new leaf." But Glayde, always kept on his guard by his astute secretary, Michael Shurmur, is determined to bring matters to an issue. He finds Lerode and Muriel together in the former's studio; and, after making a last appeal to Muriel, which she rejects, hands her over to Lerode with the words:—"This woman loves you. She used to be my wife. She loves you beyond everything else—honesty, truth, shame. She has made the greatest of all sacrifices for you—she has lied and betrayed. . . . Take her away. I shall divorce her—you can get married. I shall make provision for her, that she never may want. Take her, and help her—to lie and betray no more."

The John Glayde is Mr. Alexander—Mr. Alexander at his best, with the iron hand just half withdrawn from the velvet glove of style and manner that he wears so well; Mr. Alexander, with the virility and force that he so often and so artistically subdues, employed in this instance with admirable effect. In every phase of the character he is equal to the demands made upon him; in every scene in which he is engaged he dominates the situation by a marvellous mixture of ease, earnestness, and energy. Seldom has Mr. Alexander had a part which took him back more completely to his "earlier manner." Especially is this the case in connection with the powerful scene between man and wife in the third act, when Glayde writhes in an agony of disappointed love and hopeless rebellion against his fate. Very fine, too, is Mr. Alexander's acting at the end of the second act, when, with his mind already overstrained with the excitement of colossal financial gambling, Glayde receives evidence of his wife's falsity. The blow tells; and the "Iron King" collapses for the moment, with lowered eyelids and quivering lips. Excellent throughout is the way in which the sleepless alertness and merciless cunning of the mammoth schemer are indicated in the keen and restless eyes and the active, mobile features. Mr. Alexander has laid aside for the time the suave and polished graces which were so valuable in slighter society parts; and has proved that he is equally able to portray the vigorous and virile passions of elemental humanity. A very happy choice of the representative of the rôle of Muriel Glayde has been made in Miss Eva Moore. Miss Moore has exactly the personality which harmonises with the character. We have no sense of inconsistency when Muriel employs, in order to hood-wink her husband, the same tones and the same embraces which she has used as endearments in her love-scene with Lerode. We are not surprised when, in spite of all the wise counsel of her friend, the Princesse, Mrs. Glayde decides to rush to her ruin. And in this latter scene Miss Moore expresses the strength of the woman's passion as well as the weakness of her character. It is evident that Venus has attached herself thoroughly to her little prey; and that this petty Phèdre is no longer responsible for her actions. Mr. Matheson Lang, besides looking the part of Lerode perfectly well, has a resolute manliness of manner which dignifies the rôle of the married woman's lover—always tending dangerously to the absurd—and gives interest to the combat between the artist and the millionaire. Mr. Norman Forbes' Christopher Branley is an entirely original embodiment which bites into the memory; and one of the greatest hits in the production is made by Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, who assumes, with the friendly tyranny of the trusted ally, a well-studied American twang and manner. Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds supplies a most artistic embodiment of the old, subdued servant, Walters; and Miss Henrietta Watson is irreproachable in every way as the Princesse de Castagnary, playing the part with her accustomed decision, acuteness, and emphasis. Miss Helen Ferrers is comical without caricature as the half-foolish and half-shrewd Lady Lerode; and Miss Gwendolen Floyd gives a satisfactory exposition of the rôle of Mrs. Rennick, Miss May Martyn showing intelligence and promise as the ingénue, Dora Longman, whose fiancé, Howard Collingham, has an easily adequate and thoroughly competent exponent in Mr. W. Graham Browne. John Glayde's Honour has started on its career of success with every symptom of its prosperity being long-continued; and both Mr. Alexander and Mr. Sutro may be warmly congratulated on the result.

LEGAL NOTES.

By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Some interesting and instructive cases have been heard in the Courts during the past month. One of the most important was that of Gillett v. Barrasford, which came before the Court of Appeal. Mr. Fred Gillett, the plaintiff, was to perform for a number of weeks at various London music halls, referred to in the contract. The defendant was Mr. Thomas Barrasford, who was at that time the lessee of the Lyceum, which was then being run by him as a music hall, and was one of the halls covered by the contract. The plaintiff had appeared for a week at the Lyceum, when he received a letter from Mr. Barrasford to the effect that, owing to extensive structural alterations required to be made in the stage for the production of the ballet Excelsior, the Lyceum would have to be closed during the following July and August, and the contract so far as performing there was concerned would have to end three weeks before the date fixed.

The plaintiff, when the date of closure came, asked to be paid the £90 which, by the closure of the theatre, he was deprived from earning. This request was not met, and the plaintiff thereupon brought this action in the County Court. The defendant relied on a clause in the agreement, which was in these terms:—"In the event of the proprietors closing any theatre through damage by fire . . . or from any other reason whatever, in their own absolute discretion, then this contract shall be null and void so far as it may relate to any such theatre."

A great many disputes arise from time to time in theatrical contracts on similar clauses, and in many cases proprietors use this clause in a very arbitrary manner, though no suggestion is made that Mr. Barrasford did in this case. It is very important, therefore, to see how the Court of Appeal construed the clause, which seems undoubtedly very wide. It was considered by two out of the three Judges that the words "from any other reason whatever" meant some cause external to that, and outside the control of the parties to the contract. As Sir Gorell Barnes said: "Here Mr. Barrasford decided, for reasons which seemed to him to be for his advantage, to close the theatre, and therefore he was liable to the plaintiff to make good the loss which that act had caused him."

The effect of this and other very similar cases is to show that the Courts as a rule favour the artist, and will not allow a strong clause of that kind to work a hardship on those who are not responsible for the closing of the theatre. I have commented on several similar cases from time to time in the past as they arise, and it will be generally found that the artist has succeeded.

When an artist does not appear at a music hall in accordance with his contract, as a rule he is liable in damages. This does not apply if the artist is ill, or is prevented by "act of God" from appearing; but, apart from these causes, the proprietor of the theatre can make him pay damages for non-appearance. The difficulty, however, is to prove the damages, and in the cases which come before the Court, the amount actually allowed to the proprietor is often considerably short of that claimed. This was illustrated in a case which came before Judge Willis at the Southwark County Court this month, when Mr. Hart, of the Star Music Hall, Bermondsey, sued Fred Cullane, of the Cullane Trio, for £10 damages for breach of contract. In giving his judgment His Honour said he could not allow two turns for the one, nor could he give anything for general damages, because he was sure the defendant's breach did not affect the patronage of the hall. He gave judgment for the plaintiff for £4 6s. and costs.

The question of the liability of the owner of the theatre for injuries caused to an employee in the course of his employment is of great importance to the profession. As is well known, a new Act will come into operation in July next, which deals very widely with accidents to employees. But, meanwhile, the law is in a far from satisfactory state, as was shown by the recent case, in the Court of Appeal, of Burr v. the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, Ltd. In that case the plaintiff was performing at Drury-lane in the chorus. After the curtain had come down at the end of the performance she and other members of the company were leaving the stage to go to their dressing-rooms, when something fell upon her and injured her. It was held in this case that what is known to lawyers as "the doctrine of common employment" applied, and that the plaintiff could not recover. This means that as the accident was probably caused by another employee of the defendants the plaintiff could not recover, as she was supposed to take the risk of accidents caused by a fellow-employee when she entered into the contract. This doctrine is a subtle and artificial one—the sort of doctrine, indeed, that is loved by the lawyers. It is satisfactory to think that the new Act will give persons in the position of the plaintiff full redress for all injuries incurred in the course of their employment. The importance of the new Act can hardly be over-estimated, and it is to be hoped that both managers and artists will awake to their liabilities and privileges thereunder.

That period of history which immediately preceded the murder of King Charles the First—a period of civil strife in England, a period of picturesque costumes, customs, and manners—will ever have a fascination for lovers of romance. And still greater is the fascination which is exercised when the romance is given living shape on the stage; when the different characters breathe and afford proof that they have a being; when we are shown what the life of the period was like, and we are not called upon to exert any great effort of the imagination to conjure up scenes which shall appropriately represent the descriptions of the author. Of course, the greatest master of English fiction has left us a number of imperishable pictures of this period, and in A Soldier of Fortune, Mr. Gordon Holmes' costume drama produced on Monday at the Prince's, Poplar, one seems to recall such well-known characters as Sir Geoffrey Peveril and Major Ralph Bridgenorth, or Sir Henry Lee and Trusty Tompkins. But even if such a reminiscence be suggested, the story of the drama is in itself perfectly original. There is a similarity in all such plays. We have the baronial castle hemmed in by the Roundheads. We have the gallant old Cavalier and his lovely daughter. There is the indispensable underground passage and the local inn. The landlord is old and possessed of an only daughter of pleasing exterior and skittish propensities. The author in the present play has daringly made mine host an expatriated Irishman. Then we have the hero who is extremely handsome, brave almost to recklessness, and able, like Mr. Silas Wegg, to "drop into poetry" when lunar and other influences are favourable; and the villain, who is an embodiment of almost every possible brand of villainy, including cowardice, swindling, and an amount of talent in the direction of mendacity which would have qualified him for the editorial chair of a society journal. The story is simple and well told. Lieutenant Rupert Clive, beau ideal of a dashing cavalier, on his way to Annandale Castle, with his troop of horse, puts up for the night at a wayside inn. There he meets the Lady Phyllis, daughter of the Earl of Annandale, travelling under the escort of her cousin, Sir Stephen Cunningham, to her ancestral hall. The latter gentleman, it seems, is engaged to be married to his fair cousin, and he soon gives us a sample of his personal tastes. Most gentlemen of the period indulged pretty freely in the wine-cup, but they drew the line at gambling with loaded dice. Then the party is surprised by a Roundhead patrol, but manages to escape and reach the castle. In the second scene we are introduced to this beleaguered mansion. A gallant stand has been made, and it seems probable that the flag will be kept flying until relief is sent by the King. But suddenly it is discovered that supplies had run unexpectedly short. In the person of Captain Sturge there comes an emissary from the besiegers, offering terms of surrender to the garrison. Of course, these are rejected. Sturge warns the garrison that the aqueduct which supplies the castle with water has been discovered and cut. Nevertheless, "no surrender" is the garrison's reply. Unfortunately, there is a traitor within the gates, and he is no other than Sir Stephen Cunningham. He is caught by the Lady Phyllis in the act of signalling with a lantern to the besiegers. Why she does not immediately denounce him is not easy of explanation. By this time it need hardly be said that that particularly disagreeable person has become violently jealous of the soldier of fortune—Lieut. Clive. Nevertheless, the two men agree to proceed by the underground passage on a venturesome attempt to reach the Royal forces and bring succour. Having had some experience of Sir Stephen's propensities for the indiscreet use of firearms—only a few minutes previously the said Stephen had fired at Clive—the Lieutenant takes the precaution of allowing that gentleman to precede him into the underground tunnel. Eventually they arrive at the inn, where the Lieutenant imprisons Stephen in a room, from which he is shortly afterwards released by Roundheads, and Clive is made prisoner. He, in his turn, succeeds in escaping and, finally, after undergoing a series of thrilling experiences, reaches Annandale Castle as an enquiry is being held into the conduct of Cunningham, eventually clears himself of the imputations made against him by Stephen, and the curtain falls on a pretty love scene.

High praise can be bestowed upon Mr. Godfrey Tearle for a really admirable performance as Lieutenant Rupert Clive. Firstly, he presents us with a fine figure of a picturesquely-attired Cavalier. He is gaiety and gallantry personified, and delivered his lines with good expression. Graceful and charming, engaging, winsome, and sweet is Miss Molly Malone as the Lady Phyllis, and she certainly wins the sympathy of her audience from the time that the play opens. Mr. Alfred Gray gives us a capital study of an old nobleman of the period, his make-up, speech, and manner being most effective. Mr. Baliol Holloway is convincingly villainous as Sir Stephen Cunningham, and acts with force and subtlety in the part. Mr. Edmond T. Sayers is intensely entertaining as the landlord of the inn. Mr. Sidney R. Palfrey gives a really excellent character-study of the Roundhead, Captain Sturge. His family wrongs have turned that quiet Lincolnshire draper into a bigoted fanatic, yet one cannot but sympathise with the fearless bearing of this gloomy zealot. The audience thoroughly appreciated Mr. Palfrey in the part. Miss Violet Barnett is a lively village Hebe as Grace, the young lady who is perfectly conscious of her personal attractions and ready to accept the gallantry of the Cavaliers who make use of her father's hostelry. Mr. William Lowe played the part of Dr. Thorne, a sort of amicus familiæ of the Annandale family. In most of those old romances it is usually the family clergyman who acts in this capacity, but the change was a pleasant one, and was more than justified by Mr. Lowe's treatment of the part.

The scenery is elaborate; that of the battlements of Annandale being particularly pretty, while the costumes are of a rich and artistic description. Mr. Haldane Crichton is the able general-manager of the company, and Mr. Harry Lyons attends in his usual careful manner to the requirements of the front of the house.

THE management of Kennington Theatre have this week inaugurated the system of booking all seats in advance, and the satisfactory manner in which this method has operated with the production of The Catch of the Season shows that it has come to stay. Mr. Harry Brandreth, the acting-manager, is to be congratulated on thus studying the convenience of his patrons. That charming musical comedy The Blue Moon will be the attraction at Kennington Theatre next week.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Arbitrator, Mr. G. R. Askwith, it is understood, will reach the case of the artists on Wednesday; and in any case the promulgation of an award concerning the performers cannot be made until after Easter. The case for the musicians, which was concluded by Mr. J. B. Williams on Tuesday, has taken much longer than was anticipated, and the case against them was only opened on Wednesday by the managers' representative. The delay is paralysing business, as proprietors are naturally awaiting for an award before filling up vacant dates.

Mr. Gus Elen will probably be added to the list of English character comedians whose work is appreciated in the States, as he has, we are given to understand, received from America a most flattering offer through Mr. George Foster. The coster comedian has it under consideration.

Miss Marie Lloyd has learnt to ride, and might have been seen at Hampstead on Sunday with a popular manager and an acting-manager as companions. Mr. Alec Hurley was unable to put foot in stirrup through an accident he met with while riding near his own house in King Henry's-road on the 8th—an accident that prevented his appearance on the same evening at the Ealing Hippodrome.

Miss Winifred Hare, who sails for South Africa on Saturday next, has been associated with many striking successes, but never with songs achieving such instantaneous and enthusiastic popularity as the two new numbers introduced for the first time at the Tivoli, Paragon, and Canterbury, on Monday, entitled "Cheer up, Mary," and "Just 'cause the bee loves honey," both numbers published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. If these two numbers (especially "Cheer up, Mary") are not the rage of the pantomimes next Christmas we shall be much mistaken.

La Tortajada, one of the famous Spanish dancers who make the Palace their home in London, will pay a fourth visit to the beautiful variety house in Shaftesbury-avenue on Monday. She will give three items, appearing first in the character of a toreador, secondly as a young Spanish girl in pathetic circumstances, and thirdly as a young person enamoured of a black cat! In this last we are promised something new and striking in the way of chorus effects.

Carlton, the card manipulator and humorist, started his journey to Australia on Wednesday from Victoria, leaving for Marseilles, where he will embark on the Ortona. A number of professional and private friends assembled on the platform to wish the voyager a safe journey and success "down under" during his engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards.

The Oxford announces the fourteenth anniversary of the re-opening for Friday evening next, when a large number of additional artists have kindly consented to appear, including Harry Lauder, Marie Lloyd, Alice Hollander, Madge Lessing, Kurkamp, Dan Crawley, Dutch Daly, Harry Champion, Tom Leamore, Gladys Huxley, Jessie Preston, and other artists of note.

The Alhambra, within whose walls Leotard and the greatest gymnasts have met with recognition, will introduce to an English audience on Monday for the first time America's "last word" in bounding wire aerialists—the marvellous Millmans. Miss Birdie Millman is an evening's wonder in herself, and the trio's sensational performance has been acclaimed in every city in the United States.

At the Alhambra this evening, for the fourth year in succession, the University crews will celebrate "Boat-race Night." A cinematographic record of the contest will be added to the peerless "Urbanora" pictures.

Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, the well-known writers of "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," will produce next week, for the first time on any stage, an entirely new and original musical absurdity, entitled His Worship—the Mayor, at Collins's. Mr. Maitland Marler will be the chief comedian, and will be supported by a powerful company.

The new Empire ballet now in active preparation, will, it is hoped, be ready by the end of April. It is in three scenes, the period being the spacious days of the Duke of Marlborough. The simple and interesting story is by Mr. Adrian Ross, who has evidently been inspired by the incident, recounted in The Spectator, of Sir Roger de Coverley's visit to Vauxhall Gardens. The music is by Dr. Osmond Carr, and the dances are being arranged by Mme. Katti Lanner, Mr. Wilhelm being responsible for the gorgeous costumes and general supervision of the production. Mlle. Genée will, of course, play the heroine.

The success of Mr. Gustave Kerker's burlesque on grand opera, Burning to Sing, at the Empire, from which house it was lately withdrawn to make way for other attractions long under contract, has led to arrangements being made to present it on a tour of the chief provincial variety houses. The series of living pictures, so prominent a feature of the current programme at the Empire, will also be reproduced in the provinces at the conclusion of the Empire engagement. Mr. Arthur Aldin, the acting-manager of the Empire, who is booking both attractions, has, we believe, very few dates open for the completion of these tours.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who was compelled on account of ill-health to abandon her engagements for the last eight months, is making a welcome reappearance next week at the Argyle, Birkenhead. The popular American cantatrice, who spent the autumn months at her home in Denver, Colorado, has undoubtedly greatly benefited by the well-earned rest. She recently spent a fortnight in Paris, whence she returned with some new and charming costumes. She begins shortly a three months' tour upon the Moss circuit.

Advices from South Africa are to hand recording the unequivocal success scored by Miss Connie Ediss on her opening night. Commencing with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's comedy number, "When I marry a millionaire," which immediately caught the fancy of the audience, she followed on with no less than five other numbers, old and new, including another from the same pens, entitled "I felt so awkward." The South African papers are unanimous in proclaiming Miss Connie Ediss one of the most pronouncedly successful English artists that has ever visited their country. Of course Miss Ediss has been to the Transvaal before, but her first visit was previous to her becoming a Gaiety comedienne.

Little Thomas, for twenty-seven years corner-man of the Mohawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels, holds a Bohemian concert on the evening of the 26th inst. at Stanley Hall, Junction-road, Kentish Town. The cheery veteran, who in spite of his seventy-odd years has still a voice of undiminished power, is sure of being well supported by brother and sister artists, because it is so well known that his services are ever to be relied on and ungrudgingly given when required.

The Queen's Theatre, Keighley, which is fully licensed, is for sale by private treaty; also a site for a music hall, of which the plans have already been passed by the Corporation.

The first anniversary of the opening of the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, was celebrated on Thursday, the 7th, by a complimentary benefit to the popular managing-director, Signor Rino Pepi. No less than twenty-seven turns took part in the performance, and the house was packed in every part. Peter Bijou, of Bella and Bijou, who travelled specially from London to honour his old friend, had a most flattering reception.

During an interval Signor Pepi's local and professional friends occupied the stage, and the following presentations were made:—By Councillor J. H. Minns, on behalf of local friends, a handsome and massive gold watch; by Mr. A. E. Nicholls, the acting-manager, on behalf of the band and staff, a beautiful polished oak spirit tantalus, with fine cut decanters; by Mr. Willie Edlesten, on behalf of the Agents' Association and artist friends, a handsomely-framed illuminated address, signed by the givers, a fine gun in case (value £30), and a cheque for £60 14s.

Signor Pepi, who received quite an ovation, returned thanks in a cleverly-worded and effective little speech, and after the performance entertained the staff, artists, and his numerous friends to a supper and dance at the Great Central Hotel. Among the agents present were Messrs. Willie Edlesten, Ernest De Vere, Fred Higham, E. Edlesten, Bert Howell, and Tom Cavill.

Tuesday being the birthday of the popular manager, Mr. Walter Norman, several telegrams were received at the Hastings Hippodrome from his brother and sister artists and other managers. The staff of the house, to show their appreciation and respect, presented him with an engraved gold-mounted walking stick.

The plans for Mr. George Dance's new theatre at Devonport, which, it is understood, is to be rebuilt at a cost of £30,000, have been passed by the Surveyor's Committee, and came up for the final decision of the Council on Thursday. Mr. Matcham is the architect, and it is hoped the theatre will be ready for occupation by August. It will be booked in connection with the Moss-Stoll tour, and will be run alternately as a legitimate and variety house—a plan only possible in the provinces where a double licence prevails.

Councillor C. W. Poole, with his customary generosity, has accorded a benefit at the Palace, Gloucester, to-day to the Gloucester Football Club. On hearing that the finances of the club were this season not up to the usual standard, owing to various causes, he at once came forward and offered the services of his artists, theatre, &c. Needless to say, the committee gladly availed themselves of the Councillor's kindness, and it is certain the club will materially benefit.

Mr. E. J. Dexter, the popular manager of the Palace Theatre, Dundee, appeared in a new rôle on Friday evening, the 8th. Along with a well-known local gentleman, he entered the den of Miss Ella's performing lions, and treated the audience to a very fine display of billiards. Had Mr. Dexter known that all the time the largest and most ferocious of these kings of the forest had his eye on him, and was smacking his lips at the idea of a prospective meal, his hand would not have been so steady. However, we are glad to learn that he got out of the den before Leo had made up his mind what part of his anatomy to attack first.

Mr. Jack Waters, the acting-manager of the Royal Theatre of Varieties, Warrington, was the recipient of a handsome silver-mounted cigar-case and cigarette-holder on Saturday evening from Miss Florrie Gallimore, Miss Josie Delaine, Harrigan and Holt, and Tommy Hughes. The gifts were a recognition of many kindnesses extended, and Miss Gallimore, in making the presentation, referred to "Jack" as "one of the best."

Mr. Fred Barnes, who is scoring such a hit in the Alexandra pantomime, Cinderella, at Birmingham, is, like many other prominent artists we could name, a native of the hardware city, where his popularity goes to prove that though the prophet may be without honour in his own country, the comic singer certainly is not. Mr. Barnes impersonates types of the beau-monde, which he invests with an easy, graceful deportment and a pleasing and picturesque stage presence, plus a melodious singing voice and distinct enunciation.

Mr. J. C. Oliver, the original Magical Jester, concludes a five weeks' successful engagement at the Grand Circus, Hull, to-night. A fluent descriptive lecturer, a vocalist, and a clever conjuror, Mr. Oliver is known the world over for his versatility.

Miss Jennie Johns, who has just completed a successful pantomime engagement as principal girl with Mr. L. F. Elliston, is causing a furore nightly on her return engagement at the Hippodrome, Lancaster.

Mr. Fred Reeves (of the firm of Pacey and Reeves), though much improved in health, will, by request of his medical man, prolong his stay at Brighton for a few days.

Miss Beatrice Worth, after her long and serious illness, extending over six months, made her reappearance at the Hippodrome, Salford, last Monday and scored a big success.

Owing to a severe cold on the part of Mrs. Leo Sterling (Miss Addie Love), Sterling and Love were unable to do their domestic musical squabble for the first three nights last week at Norwich. The manager (Mr. Fitt), however, kindly consented to accept Mr. Sterling as a single turn, and was so pleased with the versatile Leo that he paid the week's salary in full, an act greatly appreciated by both artists.

The closing of the pantomimes at Liverpool after a long and successful run has released a number of well-known artists, among them Malcolm Scott, Harry Tate, M. R. Morand, Walter McEwen, Edgar and Claire Romaine, Fanny Dango, Doris Dean, and Theresa Foote. These ladies and gentlemen sailed for Las Palmas, Canary Islands, on Saturday as guests of Sir Alfred Jones, and will start to-night a series of six performances at the Teatro Perez Galdos.

Miss Ethel Rawlings, of Danville, Ill., was married to Mr. George William Hearne, of London, in Chicago on Saturday, Feb. 23, by the Rev. Mr. Smith, of the 47th-street Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Hearne was formerly pianist at the Unique Theatre in Danville. Mr. Hearne is known in the profession as George Deonzo, of Auer and Deonzo, acrobats and barrel jumpers. The reception, which took place at the home of the Three Barneys, 4515, Western-avenue, was followed by an elegant wedding dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Hearne are spending their honeymoon in the West.

Mr. Leoni Clarke, the famous Cat King, mourns the death of his father, who passed away at the New York Tavern, Northampton, on Monday, at the age of 70. The deceased gentleman was much respected and esteemed by a wide circle of friends.

Miss Agnes Molteno has just concluded a most successful pantomime engagement with Mr. J. F. Elliston, and will now turn her attention to her scene, with living tableaux, beautiful scenery, and lighting effects, which she produced just before Christmas. Miss Molteno should have opened on March 4 at Putney, and March 11 at the Grand, Islington, but owing to change of management, &c., her contracts are off.

Mr. John Lawson's latest episode, The Unwritten Law, is now in active preparation. Special scenery is being prepared by one of our leading scenic artists, and special dresses have been designed by the head of a well-known firm of dressmakers. Indeed, the display of gowns will endear this work to the heart of every woman in the audience, and on that one merit alone it should prove an attraction.

Mrs. John Lawson created a record last week at the Empire, Islington, with The Devil's Sunday, the business being tremendous the whole week. This clever lady has been playing during the week at the Palace, Manchester, where she has made a big success. She returns to town, and opens with Mr. Walter Gibbons at Croydon.

It is definitely settled that towards the close of the current year one of the most popular comedians now on the London variety stage will "gang awa'" to New York, where it may confidently be anticipated a tremendous welcome will await him.

This week, at the comfortable Queen's, Poplar, which Mr. Jack Woolf so ably and energetically manages, Mr. Dudman Bromwich has been presenting his sensational sketch of In Old Madrid with unqualified success. Some really excellent acting is to be found, notably that of Mr. Albert Ward, who gives an exceedingly powerful study of Fernando Cassillis, and Miss Kate Neville, who is seen in a most virile performance of Violet, being well supported by Mr. George Dalroy as Frank Lyndhurst, Mr. Harry Bristow as Horatio Hodges, and Miss Doris White as Madeline.

Mr. William Holles is producing on Monday at the Camberwell Empire a new sketch of pathetic interest, in three scenes, entitled The Stepmother, written by Arthur Shirley, part author of Two Little Vagabonds, &c. The incidental music has been composed by Mr. Wm. Neale. Mr. Holles will play the part of Bob Bristow, first mate of the Sea View; and Miss Phyllis Manners Anna, his second wife. Miss Nannie Goldman will be seen as Danny, Bob's son by his first wife.

Mr. Joseph Wilson's Easter programme will contain no less than four Harrys—Harry Relph (Little Tich), Harry Lauder, Harry Fragson, and Harry Randall. The cabinet of mirth will include also among its ministers George Robey, Mark Sheridan, and Phil Ray. Little Tich is taking a short holiday in Paris, where he is extremely popular, previous to his return to town at Easter.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who, it will be remembered, struck a happy "note" in The Scene-shifter's Lament, is to be in the Palace programme on Monday. Mr. Lester is appearing at the present time at the Gaiety, but, with the aid of a fast motor-car, will find time to fulfil his engagement with Mr. Butt. He will introduce a new comedy duologue by Arthur Wimperis and Walter Davidson, tentatively entitled A Restaurant Episode. Like most episodes, the plot is implied rather than expressed. The scene is a dining-house, at which extraordinary lunches for 1s. 6d. can be obtained. Miss Lily Mills will support Mr. Lester.

A tabloid pantomime, Bo Peep, will be the principal attraction at the Hackney Empire next week. It is produced by Mr. Deane Tribune, comedian. Bo Peep is treated in a novel way, and no expense has been spared to make the Palace scene quite exceptional of its kind. There is a military chorus and a surprise march; but the heart and soul of the piece is, of course, Mr. Deane Tribune, at whose antics, in the rôle of Simple Simon, it would be quite impossible to forbear a hearty laugh. Deane Tribune, who is really Willie Cowan Reid, was born in Glasgow "some little time ago." Before he essayed the rôle of a funny man he was employed as a butcher in Sauchiehall-street.

Phil and Nettie Peters, also in the bill, are American artists, who have had a most gratifying success during the short time they have been in England. Mr. Peters is an unusually clever character and eccentric comedian, vocalist, and dancer. His work in the title-rôle of His Highness the Boy, an American extravaganza, is his most successful effort. Mrs. Peters is also a great factor in the success achieved.

"Cherry Blossom" is the title of a Japanese musical episode, in two scenes, written by Michael W. Ring and composed by E. W. Rogers, which will be produced at the Richmond Theatre (by special arrangement with Mr. Frank Allen) on March 25. The special scenery is by W. R. Young, and the cast will include Mr. Johnnie Schofield, Mr. Cyril Dane, Miss Noel Gordon, Miss Rayner Golden, and Mr. Arthur Budd.

Mr. B. Pearce Lucas gave a very successful matinée at the Bedford on Thursday in aid of the funds of the North-West London Hospital in Kentish Town-road. The Mayor and Borough Council were present, and Mr. Cassel, Sir W. Collins, M.P., and other prominent public men in St. Pancras graced the proceedings. The house, which was prettily decorated, was packed.

"Auto-Atlas" is the name chosen by a handsome, well-set-up German athlete, whose most astonishing feat at the London Hippodrome will be to raise a genuine motor-car—filled with passengers from the auditorium—with his teeth while hand-balancing on two upright poles. The car and its living freight weigh upwards of a ton, and to make the feat even more difficult, when the vehicle is raised off the ground the machinery is set in motion and the wheels are made to revolve at top speed. He is willing to lift any car weighing three tons. Auto-Atlas's business commences by a wire-walking demonstration, and he traverses the wire, juggling with bar-bells of enormous weight, gun-carriage wheels, and other weighty articles.

The 503rd meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the following were present:—Messrs. Fred Neiman, Jack Collinson, John Alexander, Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Charles Pastor, Fred W. Millis (V.P.), Harry Bancroft, Bob Hutt, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes having been confirmed, questions of refunds were considered. Dr. Colston Wintle, of Bristol, was appointed as hon. medical officer, and the following agents were elected:—Mr. Fountain, of the Corn Exchange Hotel, Boston, and Mr. W. Ambler, of the Keel Inn, Castleford. The weekly statement of receipts and expenditure was submitted and passed as read.

The latest quotations of music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅝; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½, do. (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ord., 4¾, do. Pref., 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss Empire, 4¾, do. 5 per cent. Pref., 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 6½; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13s.

A particularly interesting animated picture of Norway's Derby is being exhibited at the Palace Theatre this week. The interest in the event, which occurred last week at Christiania, does not appeal directly to horse-lovers as does our popular race for the blue riband of the Turf. Norway's "sports" are keen on ski jumping. In the picture are to be seen the ski jumpers taking their record leap into space, and in some cases having a snow bath at the conclusion of the jump. A noteworthy feature is that showing King Haakon, Queen Maud, and their guest Princess Victoria, in their Royal box.

Miss Vesta Tilley on Monday commenced the concluding week of her present engagement at the Palace Theatre, whereat, in consequence of her success, Mr. Alfred Butt has re-engaged her to appear in some new creations. The Howard Brothers have returned after the somewhat serious illness of Mr. James Howard, and the numerous requests from the audience during the silent thought transmission test afford strong testimony of the interest of the public in this form of entertainment.

The special Easter production at the Hippodrome is to be a sensational and spectacular piece called The Hurricane, designed, like so many of the house productions, by Mr. Rudolph de Cordova and Mrs. Alicia Ramsey, and arranged by Mr. Frank Parker, who promises some original and startling effects in the way of a terrible disaster at sea. Mr. John Douglass did something very impressive in his rainstorm in The Ruling Passion at the Standard, and Mr. Tree's "thunder" is a record in realism. It will be interesting to watch the Hippodrome stage-manager and equestrian director's developments when he elects to ride the storm. New machinery of the most novel kind is being installed, and the usually placid waters of the arena may be expected to assume a very turbulent aspect indeed. No canvas waves for Mr. Parker!

Marie Fassnauer, the Tyrolean giantess, will arrive in London this morning. She is twenty-seven years old, eight feet in height, and weighs twenty-four and a half stones. A lorry will convey her from Victoria Station to lodgings near the London Hippodrome, where she will appear on Monday. Her great-grandfather was a giant, but her brothers and sisters are of normal height. She is practically a vegetarian, and, like all the Tyrolese, very devout. She is nearly 50ins. round the chest, and her dresses require three times the ordinary quantity of material.

A telegram has just been received from Herrn Director Heinemann, of the Panoptikon Theatre, Berlin, stating that Mariedl had an extraordinary experience and nearly lost her life. Great difficulty was found in persuading her to come from her home in the Tyrol, a village called Riednau, where she was originally discovered. Owing to the severe weather, coupled with avalanches and other Alpine elements, it was found to be almost an impossibility to get her to come down until the weather set in warmer. The peasants in the settlement, eleven in number, were commandeered to conduct her with safety to the bottom of the mountain, a distance of seven thousand feet. In their descent, although she was tethered to them by a rope, the hindermost guides slipped, and Mariedl was drawn forward by those in front of her. Being such a size, she could not keep a proper foothold, and for a distance of about a quarter of a mile over the ice and snow they had to practically run in order to recover their proper equilibrium. Had it not been for the fact that, although in a dangerous position, they were in a fairly straight line, the whole lot might have fallen into a crevasse and been lost for ever.

Mr. Wilkie Bard took a big benefit on Friday night, the 8th, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, where he has been appearing so successfully as the Baron in The Babes in the Wood. The pantomime closed on the 9th, after a capital run, amidst appreciative demonstrations from a bumper house. It is with regret we hear that Mr. Bard sprained his ankle on his benefit night.

Miss Maude Odell (the statuesque Galatea, recently of the Palace Theatre), was crossing Westminster Bridge on Tuesday when she noticed a very small boy in the middle of the road. He looked to be in considerable danger from the traffic, and suddenly a motor-omnibus coming along skidded, and in a trice the boy had been knocked down, and was lying almost under the wheels, crying for help. Miss Odell was the nearest person to him at the time, and just rushed forward and pulled him away. The poor little fellow was crying and trembling violently, and, of course, had been badly frightened and not a little hurt, but he soon got over his fright. Miss Odell's dress was torn, and was covered with mud from a passing 'bus.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the following sums collected by Mr. Harry Randall at Drury-lane Theatre:—Miss Queenie Leighton, £2 2s.; Harry Fragson, £2 2s.; Walter Passmore, £1 1s.; Arthur Conquest, £1 1s.; Drew and Alders, £1 1s.; Fred Emney, 10s. 6d.; and Harry Randall, £2 2s. The committee thank these ladies and gentlemen for their contributions.

Mr. Bates Maddison's new sketch, What the Butler Did; or, The Man with Two Wives, comes to town next week at the Richmond Theatre. It is by Mr. Albert Voyce, and the author considers it his funniest sketch. It is novel, ingenious, and is bound to give delight to the lovers of sheer fun. It will be produced for Mr. Bates Maddison by Mr. Roger Alwyn. Mr. Maddison's successful sketch, Charley's Uncle, will be seen at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, during Easter week.

Just as Miss Sylvia Martin and her Arab mare Princess Beatrice were about to appear at Sadler's Wells Theatre on Friday night (8th inst.) part of the staging collapsed, throwing the horse into a vault. Miss Martin had stooped to stroke her pet dog, and was uninjured. The mare, however, was considerably hurt, and some time elapsed before its release.

Miss Margaret Parker has added yet another success to her répertoire of sketches. In this, her latest, which is a "glimpse of life," entitled Sunshine, she has been assisted by Mr. William Felton. It was produced at Walthamstow Palace on Feb. 25, and played throughout the week with undoubted approval. Sunshine, together with Under the Seal (which, by the way, is still going very strong), will be played by Miss Parker and her company during their forthcoming Australian tour. She has just secured the sole rights of a "stirring interlude," entitled Lucky Jim, by Marion Fawcett, which she hopes to produce before leaving England to fulfil engagements booked by her sole and untiring agent, Mr. Hugh J. Didcott.

At Westminster County Court the Birmingham Hotel and Restaurant Company sued Mr. Philip Yorke, described as a theatrical manager, with an office in Gerrard-street, W. The claim was in respect of eatables and drinks supplied to a band of sixty performers. Mr. Yorke said his salary, when in work, was about £500 a year, but he had done very little work since September. He had been connected with several bands. His wife, who was a composer, paid the rent of the flat in which they lived. There was an order in bankruptcy against him. The case was adjourned until April 16.

Mr. Fred Karno, the well-known music hall artist, was sued in the Lambeth County Court on Wednesday by Mr. Harold Hilliard, theatrical manager, for £52 for sketches supplied and expenses. During his evidence Mr. Hilliard remarked that, amongst other things, he revised a sketch called The Thirsty First. The Judge: What?—Mr. Hilliard: The Thirsty First. I am not responsible for the titles, your Honour. The Judge: Oh, the title is all right. I was just wanting to know what it was. Mr. Karno said that Mr. Hilliard was paid £5 a week (to include everything) for his services as author and stage-producer, and there was no agreement to pay for sketches. Ultimately judgment was given for plaintiff for £35.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Mr. Tom Costello has completed the final rehearsals of his song "The ten-bob rise," and will probably introduce it to the public on Monday night. As is his wont, the resourceful comedian has thought out some original business for the number, which is regarded as one of the best efforts of the author of "The 'ouses in between." The music is by Bennett Scott, and the song has already been placed on the market by Mr. David Day's firm.

So stupendous has been the success in America of Miss Vesta Victoria's funny sequel to "Waiting at the church," entitled "I've told his missus all about him," by Harrington and Tate, that last Saturday's American mail conveyed to the lucky publishers (the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.) the gratifying intelligence from Mr. Fred Day (manager of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's American house, who hold the publishing rights of the song for U.S.A.), that he has issued specially-printed orchestral parts of this sterling success, which is literally selling in thousands.

Miss Alice Lloyd has scored heavily in America with Harrington and Le Brunn's comedy coster song "Never introduce your bloke to your lady-friend" (Miss Rosie Lloyd's well-known song) and Mr. J. F. Lambe's romance "Queen of Old Samara," an American edition of which latter song has now been issued by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, by arrangement with the Monte Carlo Company.

Miss Marie Lloyd has during the week accepted from Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate an entirely new and original comedy "study," entitled "A girl who takes things as they come." The same author and composer's successful song "Custom of the Country," which Miss Lloyd is singing at all her engagements with such éclat, forms one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes."

Miss Vesta Tilley will shortly produce a new song entitled "The Seaside Smile," written by Mr. Worton David and composed by Kenneth Lyle. The publishers are Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

"England's the place for me" is the title of Miss Gladys Mavius' latest success. In a letter from Nottingham Miss Mavius writes that the song is "going strong," and she intends to feature it throughout her tour. Shapiro, Von Tilzer are also the publishers of this number.

Mr. Sam Mayo has been scoring a terrific success at the Walthamstow Palace this week with his "Mirth Mixture," or "My half was underneath," and "I'm going to sing a song." The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have issued the above numbers in their "Sixpenny Popular Edition."

Mr. T. E. Johnstone last week at Accrington produced a new song by the late Albert Hall entitled "Falling Stars." The pleasing and catchy chorus was at once taken up by the audience.

Little Queenie May, the child artist with the abnormal voice, has been engaged by Mr. Bushell till 1908, so strong did she go with Birmingham audiences in her "Irishman request" and motor-car songs. She has greatly pleased during the week at the Metropolitan and Camberwell Empire. She opens at Belfast immediately.

Mr. John Smith is adding to Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" the following new numbers, the catalogue now comprising 359 items:—Little Tich's "We close at two on Thursdays"; Miss Vesta Tilley's "The king of the house is baby" and "Jolly good luck to the boys that love the soldiers"; Harry Lauder's "That's the reason noo I wear a kilt"; Miss Ada Cerito's "Half-time—change over!"; "My Yokohama Queen," made so popular by Clarke and Hamilton; and Bernard Phelps's "Convent Girl's Waltz."

Mr. John E. Coyle has happily recovered from a severe illness, and such is his new-found energy that he is working five turns. He is a great favourite at the London Pavilion.

Miss Maidie Scott is compelled to take three or four weeks' rest owing to a relaxed throat. Miss Scott has worked every week since July, 1905, so it is not to be wondered at that her throat wants a rest.

Miss Emmie Ames closes a successful London season to-night (Saturday), opening at Gloucester next Monday in her scena, "Emmie's Christmas tree."

Miss Ruby Hallier, who is meeting with such success in The Man that Never Saw a Woman, will no doubt be remembered as the Mrs. O'Flanaghan in A. C. Lilly's Drummed Out sketch, in which she played two London and provincial Stoll tours and at the Syndicate halls.

Mr. L. Austin Millais, manager to "Venus," the late Lord Leighton's model, complains that certain unscrupulous persons are using the title which she has made so famous on the London Syndicate halls. Proprietors will do well to note that the genuine article is the only one toured by L. A. Millais.

Miss Jessie M. Lyons, who is meeting with great success in the halls with her sketch, Nelly of the Veldt, opens with it at the Granville, Walham Green, on Monday.

To Mr. George Burgess a grand complimentary benefit will be given on Thursday evening next at the Brixton Empress. Mr. Burgess was for some years associated with Captain Purkiss, and became acting-manager of the Royal, under Mr. Arthur Swanborough. At this gentleman's death he became manager for Mr. John Brill. The special bill will include Harry Lauder, Victoria Monks, Marie Lloyd, Alec Hurley, Neil Kenyon, Little Maudie Francis, and many others.

Miss Nellie Beacon made her début on the variety stage at the Canterbury on Monday. She sang two numbers, "Love me and the world is mine" and "If I dared to tell my love to you," published by Witmarks, of London and New York, and at once established herself in favour. Miss Beacon toured for some time with Florodora, playing the part of Dolores. Her appearance on the music-hall stage is due to those energetic variety agents, Alfred Saker and Co.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel, York-road. Mr. Pat Carey (president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. Frank Heath (treasurer), Tom Carney, W. J. Wainratta, W. Brisco, and W. West. The financial statement for the year 1906 was submitted, by which it was shown that after deducting all payments and expenses there was a substantial balance in hand. The sick payments for the year amounted to £128 5s., and the subscriptions to £186 3s. 10d.; while the expenditure for salaries, printing, advertising, &c., amounted to £65 13s. 10d., this being paid out of the management fund. The Chairman congratulated the members on having had a satisfactory financial year. It was agreed that the balance sheet be printed and circulated, and some formal business having been disposed of, the meeting closed with the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPIRE.

The return of Mr. Bransby Williams to the Empire brings to that house a popular personality, and one whose gifts have raised him above the army of mere mimics who have trodden the variety stage from time to time. He has just fulfilled a most successful engagement in Glasgow, where he has been playing the part of Fitzwarren, and comes back to Leicester-square with an act which is not only ingeniously devised, but which, moreover, shows a keen sense of humour. For the nonce Mr. Williams becomes Mephisto. A gay, even a debonair devil is he, and with his entry we recognise the philosophic and reflective Mephistopheles of Goëthe. It is, however, Mr. Williams's plan to give us the devil up to date—the devil as he would be played by such widely dissimilar individualities as Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. G. P. Huntley, and Mr. R. G. Knowles. Dressed in "diabolic" scarlet from head to foot, this visitant from Hades enters at the back on to a darkened stage, heralded by vivid flashes of stage lightning. We begin to look around for Dr. Faustus. He is referred to only when Mr. Williams, excellently made up, speaks in "Alexandrines"—George Alexandrines—the voice of the actor-manager at St. James's, "the matinée idol," being exactly reproduced in every inflection. George has something to say of his recent election, and of putting the L.C.C.'s "house in order." He gives way to G. P. Huntley, who, coming from "Ippleton on the branch line" suffers, apparently, from brain disturbance at the mere thought of being called upon to play Mephisto, and his mental equilibrium is not restored by the constant outbursts of "melo" music. After Mr. Huntley has retired, presumably to "pot rabbits," Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who refers to the days when he played the Devil in The Tempter, treads the stage, to talk of His Majesty's and Berlin. We get a glimpse, too, of R. G. Knowles and Mr. Fred Kaye; but a distinctly precious impersonation is that of the old showman, who announces that he is about to present the drama of Faust and Margaret with a lady who has played the latter rôle in every corner of the British Isles for the past forty-nine years. The old gentleman is wonderfully made-up. The "dip" of the toothless mouth, the sunken jaw, and the "clouded" effect of the heavy, stilted utterance, with the occasional whistle, are very skilfully counterfeited, and though the character has its pathetic note, it is accepted by the audience as a frankly comic creation, and heartily laughed at. Mr. Bransby Williams is a distinct acquisition to the Empire programme, and the warmth of his reception marks him out as a special favourite.

Newcomers to the Empire are the Sisters Hengler, who have been growing in public favour ever since they appeared as children on the stage of the other house in the Square. This is but a few years since, and the young ladies have not lost one jot of the refinement and grace they exhibited in their earlier years. They sing prettily of the twilight, their voices, though not powerful, being very sweet. Another melody of theirs is in waltz time, and to this they dance very daintily. In their third essay they display the brio of the dark-eyed Castilians in a cachuca, and are also generously applauded in a step dance.

The Biograph here is kept up to date, and the interesting films this week include a series of pictures of the making of the Brooklands track near Weybridge, with the steam navvy at work, and other picturesque details. The Débutante continues its triumphant course, with the incomparable Genée in the title-rôle; and Mlle. Marquis, with her trained cobs, contributes a smart act to a long and varied programme, of which the living pictures form a most artistic item.

LONDON PAVILION.

The cosmopolitan tastes of our English lovers of variety are well catered for by the popular Mr. Frank Glenister, who has this week introduced a very inspiriting troupe of performers. They exhibit the gaiety and sparkle of the Slav in a very delightful series of songs and dances. There are nine artists, seven of whom are ladies, and they are called Les Fleurs Polonaises. The entrain of their show is simply irresistible. Garbed in picturesque native costumes of light blue and red, the crowd present the life and vivacity of a national village fête. The volkslieder of the peasants have something of the character of the Magyar melodies; but sound a more cheery note. They are arranged by Polish composers, and the rapid pirouettes and whirlings of the two chief dancers are done to strains that are strikingly uncommon. Mr. Julius Prout is responsible for the Itu Mazurka, and the final dance, "The Krakowiak," is said to be the favourite "Polnische tanze," with peer or peasant, and can claim a lineage of four hundred years. Several excerpts are from the Polish opera Helda, by Stanislas Moniusko, and the turn is one of the brightest and most enjoyable that has been seen on the London variety stage for a long time. The music, we should add, is played con amore by the excellent band under the direction of Mr. Bond Sayers.

Examples of living statuary, so artistically presented by the Seldoms, are growing rather than decreasing in favour, and this pleasant experience for the management is due to the variety of groups introduced. A very fine addition to the series was introduced on Monday It is called "The Fountain." Miss Olga Seldom as a water nymph holds a vase from which a stream is being poured into a large font. Beneath this three human supports crouch, and the effect is most marble-like and artistic. One can quite understand the admiration of the great French sculptor, Professor Reinhold Begas, who will be in London next week to make special studies of Fraulein Olga for his contribution to this year's Salon. Other groups in the series include such groups as Lambeau's "Wrestlers," Boucher's "Reaching the Winning Post," and "The Woman or the Vase," after a painting by Professor H. de Siemiradzki.

The burning question of "Votes for women" is treated in the most extravagant vein by Mr. Tom Costello, who is eventually attacked by Suffragettes and considerably mauled, much to the amusement of the audience. Mr. Phil Ray's abbreviated patter is extremely popular; and Mr. Edwin Boyde's parodies are found to be intensely droll. Mr. John E. Coyle, who returns to this house after a severe illness, wins the heartiest laughter by his odd style in song and patter, and is a genuine favourite—a description that applies equally as well to Miss Marie Dainton, who introduces with great success imitations of Edna May, Vesta Tilley, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and Connie Ediss. Dancing looms large in the programme. Mr. Dolly Golden shows hereditary talent both as a step and skirt dancer; Miss Esta Stella puts life into her graceful evolutions as "a military maid"; Susie and Protti are remarkable speciality dancers; and then we have the Pavilion Girls, who are graceful exponents of the terpsichorean art. Tom and Marie Motramo have been retained to prove that fun and music in alliance give an immense deal of pleasure: Mr. Arthur Aldridge, the Pavilion tenor, sings with great power and sweetness; and other excellent items in a varied bill are contributed by Josh Dixon, a popular eccentric comedian; Mr. James Stewart, the tramp at the piano; Dale and O'Malley, comedians; Miss Elsie Steadman, light comedy vocalist; Mr. Charles Banks, singing comedian, who is assisted by his wonderful canine partner, "Woof"; and Zaid, the Spanish Moor, in a novel speciality, assisted by Orienta.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

A thoroughly good and well-varied programme is provided this week for the delectation of the patrons of this hall. The first turn on the programme is Lady Fauntleroy, a clever ventriloquist, who succeeds in highly amusing her audience in the course of a conversation with her figure, in the guise of a Blue-coat boy, and a very cordial reception greets the conclusion of her act. Allis and Cassati, a pair of comedy artists, next claim the attention, the lady being a good vocalist and the gentleman a comedian of resource, and in addition a good dancer, hearty plaudits testifying to the success of their appearance. Miss May Evans, a character comedienne, gains a good reception for a coster ditty, "He opened his mouth too wide." A very acceptable item is submitted by the Boccaccio Minstrels. This trio manage to extract genuine humour from their performance, all of them being experienced comedians, while the purely musical side of their turn is beyond reproach, Signor Francia being an exceptionally clever mandoline soloist, and another of the troupe equally accomplished as a pianist, their vocal efforts being also worthy of praise. They are enthusiastically received. Russell Brandon, a coloured artist, makes a successful bid for popular approval, his dancing, which is of the eccentric order, being very smart, a well-deserved call being the result. Another musical act of great merit is that presented by Miss Rosa Loader, a distinctly clever mimic. Her make-up, which is of the Louie Freear type, is effective, and her imitation of performances given by friends of her mistress at a party the evening before are amusing studies of amateur vocalists. Perhaps the most ludicrous examples are the contralto singing, "Seaweed" and the comedian struggling with "The Holy City," Continuous laughter greet her efforts, and an undeniable call is the well-earned reward. Robb Gilmore, in his first song, "It suits me very well," makes a favourable impression, and his second, a burlesque descriptive number, proves much to the taste of the audience. At the bottom of the bill this week are the Brothers Horne, in their familiar "pugilistic" encounter entitled The Biter Bit. The turn makes all its old appeal to the humorous propensities of the house. The lady of the troupe contributes a neat song and dance, and the innkeeper fills in the picture, the exciting set-to at the end bringing it to an exciting conclusion. The curtain accorded them at the end is very cordial. A very elaborate act occupies the place of honour this week, this being Jake Friedman and company, in Happy Holland. The production is an amusing operetta. The authors and composers, Messrs. Everhardt, Leyton, and Friedman, have strung together a story concerning a young and amorous Dutchman suspicious of his lady-love, telling her he is going away, only to make it possible for him to return disguised as a lady guide. This provides many amusing situations, while the musical numbers, of which there are many, are melodious and very cleverly arranged. Mr. Friedman himself is the mainstay of the performance, and scores a gratifying success. Miss Florence Hunton as Gretchen acts brightly, and proves herself to be the possessor of a good voice. Valuable support is rendered by Mr. L. Ellis as a Frenchman, Mr. Fred Dennis as a Yankee, Miss L. Braham as a lady of physical culture, and Mr. John Tudor as the innkeeper. A numerous and tuneful chorus aids the production, and the mounting, which represents the Quay of Rotterdam, is very picturesque. Applause that was frequent and loud testified to the complete success that was achieved, the fall of the curtain being accompanied by every sign of popular approval. The Bioscope this week is up to date, many films of the recent Dutch shipping disaster being shown A word is due to the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Forbes Russell, for their admirable contribution to the evening's entertainment.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

The programme at this popular house is headed this week by the famous illusionist, Horace Goldin, assisted by Miss Jeanne Fransiolli and company. Mr. Goldin's performance is remarkable for the excellence of his tricks and for the rapidity with which he works. His pièce de resistance is still the famous cannon business. Miss Fransiolli is placed inside a large cannon, a shot is fired, a trunk is hauled rapidly down a stout wire from the roof, opened, and the lady steps out! The American Comedy Four are always a welcome turn. Their costumes are now more ludicrous than ever, and their excellent fooling provokes roars of laughter. Mention must, of course, be made of their fine part-singing. Ernest Torrence is the lucky possessor of a fine baritone voice, and his singing of "Somewhere" is illustrated by a large number of charming lantern pictures. Eily Adair proves herself a bright comedienne and a particularly smart dancer; the McConnell Trio appear in a musical medley sketch, Mrs. Skinner's Lodgings. The trio consist of a lady and two gentlemen, all very capable artists. The sketch is most amusing, most of the action being carried on by the singing of parodies or snatches from well-known songs. Hall and Earle provide an exceptionally clever turn of the comedy-acrobat order, which meets with well-merited applause; and Rex King, billed as

"It's a great big shame."
Gus Elen and Harry Lauder out shooting.

The One-man Programme, is certainly versatile and very popular.

That excellent comedian, Mr. Harry Bedford, is singing his latest successes, "A little bit of sugar on the top" and "There's no Bow Bells ever ringing out for me." Mr. Bedford is particularly successful in the last item, which gives him an opportunity of introducing character work such as he delights in.

We have a revival of that famous sketch of Fred Bowyer's, The Little Stowaway. The present production, in two tableaux, is elaborately mounted and excellently acted. Miss Eva Lumley takes the part of the poor little waif who comes to so tragic an end, and is responsible for a very capable performance. Mr. John K. Walton acts in fine style as the good-natured old captain, and Mr. H. G. Shaw does well as Lieut. Burton. The sketch is received with great applause. Credit should be given to Mr. Bertie Shelton for the praiseworthy manner in which he has produced it. The programme is completed by a delightful series of travel pictures on the American Bioscope illustrating the beauties of California. Pictures of the Hook of Holland disaster are also shown. A compliment should be paid to the orchestra for its excellent playing of the overture.

VITAGRAPH FILMS.

CHAT WITH MR. GEO. H. SMITH.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Animated photography holds a deservedly high place in our variety entertainments to-day, and, as a matter of fact, is becoming increasingly popular. The writer has attended music hall entertainments in which by far the most interesting portion of the programme consisted of a cinématograph display. One can scarcely wonder, then, at the success attained by many of our well-known purveyors of what the Americans call "motion pictures." The Vitagraph Company of America is the latest concern to be represented in England. It is only two months ago since they opened offices at 10, Cecil-court, Charing Cross-road, W.C., for the purpose of officially introducing their wares to British people. The firm certainly make their début in England with excellent credentials. Their "subjects" have long been recognised as the General-Manager of the Vitagraph American Co.

MR. GEO. H. SMITH,

of considerable merit, and the fact that one of the features of their business will be the adoption of the price of fourpence per foot of film may perhaps lead to their acquiring a large turnover.

The Vitagraph Company has been in existence some twelve years, and up to the beginning of the present year its productions were exploited by other firms. The partners in the business are Mr. Wm. Rock, Mr. A. E. Smith, and Mr. Stuart Blackton. Mr. George H. Smith, a brother of one of the partners, is the London manager, and his wide knowledge of the cinématograph world is certain to be employed to great advantage in the service of the company he represents.

The Vitagraph Company are famous for their "thrill" story films, and Mr. Smith was good enough the other day to give the writer a private view. "The Haunted Hotel" is the title of one that we witnessed, and as it is the latest that has been sent over from the States, and has not yet been seen in this country, it may be worth while to describe it. To begin with, we are shown a desolate-looking house, standing alone in a lonely country, surrounded by gnarled and twisted trees. The moon is slowly rising, and black, storm-driven clouds are traversing the sky. Witches are seen flying through the air on broomsticks, and the only sign of life is the smoke ascending from the chimney. The sky grows darker; vivid flashes of forked and sheet lightning betoken an approaching thunderstorm. The rain falls in heavy sheets, while the lightning flashes intermittently. The windows and doors of the house rock to and fro, then spin round, and finally change places. Then the house undergoes a weird and curious transformation. Two windows slowly turn into eyes, and the door becomes a nose, and the steps curve up into the resemblance of a grinning mouth, while the thatched roof becomes a mass of lank and matted hair crowning the huge and hideous face of a goblin. We next see the interior of this mysterious place. The traveller enters and is terror-stricken at the weird incidents that follow. He seats himself at a table, and to his surprise the dishes are placed and shifted by invisible hands. A large knife mysteriously raises itself in the air, and slowly cuts slice after slice from a large bologna. The napkin then unfolds itself and wipes the blade of the knife. The knife then cuts slices of bread from a loaf, the teapot steams and pours tea out into the cup. A little imp appears over the edge of the milk pitcher, and, climbing down, tilts the pitcher until the milk pours out. The traveller, who fled in dismay at the first of these manifestations, now returns, and is just about to commence his meal, when he notices puffs of tobacco-smoke issuing from the milk pitcher, and then, to his surprise, the little imp rises up and roguishly wags its head at him. The traveller retires, and suddenly ghostly figures rise through the floor and dance around his bed, ending their capers by dancing on the terrified traveller as he kicks and struggles. The room suddenly begins to tilt and sway up and down; the furniture all rolls into one corner, and the traveller frantically climbs up the steep incline of the floor. Without further warning, the room suddenly spins round and round, over and over; first the floor is on top, then the ceiling, the terrified traveller meanwhile clutching the bed in a frenzy of fear. The entire back of the room now falls out, and the huge head of a ogre appears. He gropes around the room, and seizing the traveller in one of his huge, clawlike hands, whisks him out of the bed, clothes and all. All the scenes are wonderfully realistic and ghostly, and the film should have a great sale.

Another up-to-date animated picture story goes by the name of "The Automobile Thieves," and is an absorbingly interesting little drama, and is extremely well arranged. Another still describes the dream of an impecunious author, who sees a young and beautiful "heroine" being constantly pursued by a deep-dyed villain. The title appropriately enough bestowed upon this amusing burlesque melodrama is "And the Villain still Pursued Her." A fourth series once more brings to one's notice that much-debatable person, the mother-in-law, and we are shown how the peace of mind of a happy young couple is disturbed by the arrival of the wife's mother. The various "situations" are funny in the extreme. Other sets of pictures are "A Race for a Wife," a motor car romance; "Foul Play," a drama of a bank robbery; "The Mechanical Statue," a laughable episode concerning a boy's plaything; and illustrations of the International Auto Race, run on Long Island for the Vanderbilt Cup.

The Vitagraph company may be congratulated upon the production of photographic representations which are remarkably clear in quality and attractive and original in subject.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Early in the evening Mr. Jack Edgar's cosmopolitan programme at the fine house in the Edgware-road is blessed by the presence of Mr. Walter King, who has a strong sense of the ludicrous, when he patters of a poor creature of a husband blessed with a thoughtful and frugal wife, who, in mournful voice tells him she is doing her best to give him a respectable funeral, and save him from a parish burial. Mr. Walter King has a way of getting down to the common domestic details of the toiling masses that is certainly very funny. Mr. Ben Albert, who progresses steadily in public favour, has excellent material in his couple of songs, which run out of the beaten groove, and do not refer to the lodger or a fierce mother-in-law. To hear them heartily applauded is very encouraging. Mr. George French can hardly be congratulated on his first song, full of whiskered wheezes, but his "working classes" ditty is a decided winner. In it Mr. French adopts a very clever make-up, and his success is unmistakable. Ten minutes of hearty laughter result from Mr. Mark Melford's impersonation of the barrister in Non-suited, the fair defendant being represented in fascinating style by Mrs. Melford.

Lively and interesting are the terms most applicable to the turn of the Eight Stars of Holland, who represent the peasants of the Netherlands at work and play, the country dances in which they so heartily join completely disproving the idea that the Dutch take their pleasures sadly. The brave Dutch hero who was honoured by Londoners last week, looks out upon the audience from the screen upon which the solemnly interesting pictures of the wreck of the Berlin are thrown by Jeapes' Animated Graphic. The terrible conditions under which the gallant rescue of the three women survivors was effected can be realised through these admirable films. The marvellous album is a clever example of the work of the camera and the ingenuity of the operator in "faked" photography. It was Dion Boucicault who wrote in The Octoroon that the apparatus cannot lie. Our modern film providers know better.

Kurkamp, the singing conductor, now appears without his companion, Miss Alice Raymond, the lady posthorn and cornet soloist, and sings in cultured style, and with much power and charm of voice, "Ah! che la morte" and a pretty ballad, "In loveland," that owes its origin to an American composer. Mr. Kurkamp is hailed with delight, and applauded with fervour from gallery to stalls. Such turns as his are always welcome in the halls. Miss Maud Courtney, the American girl, has a full-flavoured accent, but this adds to rather than detracts from her stories, which, however, are not so smartly told as those of her brother, who, later in the programme, appears as Mr. C. Miss Courtney, however, is a pleasing personality, and her philosophical song is particularly well rendered. In a duet she has the assistance of the aforesaid brother, who sings from the circle. The turn is very heartily acclaimed. Mr. C. has a falsetto of high range, which is heard to advantage in the ballad "Killarney." Miss Daisy Jerome, another American girl, may be congratulated on the great success of her number, "A little pat of butter on the floor." It is particularly well written, and equally well sung.

The Glenroy Troupe of five includes three bonnie Scotch lassies, who make a brave show as Highlanders, and dance the measures of their native heath with rare skill, vim, and energy. The "mere men" of the crowd are capital hornpipers, and as "gossoons" dance an animated jig. Miss Daisy James, the Gibson girl, shows the true spirit of travesty in all her work, and is a very popular turn; Mr. Leo Stormont sings effectively "Good-night, beloved," which attains all the importance of an illustrated scena; and the Six Brothers Luck present with marked success their original pantomimic absurdity Blazes; or, the Lightning Fire Brigade. The subject is exploited in the heartiest spirit of humour, and in the hands of such well-known farceurs the success of the production is never for a moment in doubt. Miss Queenie May, a youthful artist, shows great promise. Other turns announced include Barlee and Smith, Harry Pleon, and Sibb and Sibb, double trapeze artists.

SADLER'S WELLS.

A couple of thrilling dramas in a programme ought surely to satisfy the most ardent admirer of the sensational play. These productions, sandwiched by a variety of entertaining items, form a most attractive bill of fare, and a liberal amount of patronage bestowed upon the famous Clerkenwell theatre is the natural result. An excellent specimen of the detective drama is seen in The Master Hand, which is being played by Miss Josephine Colona and company. The leading character, Nelson Keane, is a detective, who, like his great predecessor, Sherlock Holmes, takes to criminal investigation for the love of the work and the excitement, not to say danger, which its pursuit involves. He is determined to exterminate a gang of desperadoes, who make murder a fine art, and at the head of which is a certain Dr. Stephen Meredith. This man, cleverly disguised, calls upon the detective, and attempts to poison him; but a mirror reveals the dastardly deed, and the would-be murderer is frustrated. Then the detective makes up so as to closely resemble a member of the gang, an Italian known as "The Darkey," and in this disguise is enabled to gain admission to their headquarters. Bruno Marcarelli, the man impersonated, turns up, but is shot by Neale and his dead body thrown from a window. But the finding of the corpse arouses suspicions, and the detective, removing his disguise, pluckily defies the infuriated members of the gang. He is quickly overpowered, and Eva Meredith, the supposed daughter of the chief, who has always been on the side of Keane, is also taken prisoner. Their deaths are decreed, but ere the sentences can be carried into effect the police, led by Jimmy, a protégé of the detective's, make a raid upon the place, and all the members of the "Great Murder Syndicate" are apprehended. Mr. Arthur St. John deserves every credit for his bold, manly embodiment of the detective, known as "The Master Hand." Miss Josephine Colona also plays with force and feeling as the supposed daughter of Meredith. Miss Ida St. John does well as the waif Jimmy; and Miss Kitty Bennett is amusing as Keane's landlady, Mrs. Chatmore. Mr. J. James is excellent as Dr. Meredith; and other members of the murder gang are ably embodied by Messrs. E. Aldworth, Archie Grant, and J. Dennett.

The other sensational drama in the bill, entitled The Call to Arms, is excellently played by the Vaudeville Dramatic Comedy Company, and is produced under the direction of Mr. John Rintoul. The story goes back to the stirring times of the Peninsular War, the scenes being laid in Spain, when a British army was at that time marching through the country under the command of Wellington. Mr. Herbert Pearson is a frank, soldierly Colonel Beresford, whose Spanish wife, Lenona is well played by Miss Helena Walbran. Mr. J. G. Leighton supplies a capital embodiment of Hector La Roche, a French renegade, who commits a murder and robs his victim, Carlos Camora, a part that is safely entrusted to Mr. Ernest Percy. Mr. Charles Ludlow as Orlando Orpington, an English moneylender, and Miss Gracie Fordyce as Elsa, a waitress, give commendable support. The ordinary turns include Moon and Morris, comedians, who cleverly negotiate what is described as a simultaneous dance. The performer known as Ernesto is a neat and skilful juggler and equilibrist. Quite a new version of The Streets of London is given by the educated dogs introduced by Captain Deveraux. Most of these canine performers are "dressed up" so as to represent human beings; and their quaint appearance is the cause of much merriment. The show is a remarkable combination of canine sagacity and clever training. Blanche and Powell, in their drawing-room entertainment, are most favourably received, the lady affording evidence of the possession of an excellent voice. The Lannons, a lady and gentleman representing the characters of a policeman and maidservant, give a remarkable exhibition of pedestal dancing. Mr. Richardson Taylor, who works with one figure only, is not only a clever ventriloquist, but also excels as a mimic of various song birds. Mr. Chas. Lanton scores as a double-voiced vocalist; and the name of Charles Valvo, military ventriloquist, is also included in the programme, a notable item in which is "The Wreck of the Midnight Mail," shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux. Mr. Pete Murray is the courteous acting-manager at "the Wells," and Mr. Payne is the conductor of the orchestra.

THE BRITANNIA.

A particularly varied and attractive programme is this week submitted to the patrons of this theatre, and large audiences are the result. After a well-rendered overture by Mr. Carl Hamlin and his confrères, Mr. Will Lear sets the ball rolling with an excellent descriptive song, "Waterloo," which receives hearty applause. The charming and smartly-dressed Sisters Bartholomew give a sweetly-sung duet, "Hurry up, Matilda McGee," followed by a really good dance, which is well received. An amusing comedy duologue, entitled "A game for two," is given by the Custances, and, being punctuated with some smart sayings and flashes of humour, it creates a favourable impression. Walker and May introduce some very good coon songs, notably "Coontown Jubilee," and finish with a first-class sand-dance. Mr. Walker, although he is totally blind, is a genuine humorist, and causes laughter with his quaint sayings, while his deft dancing meets with a cordial reception. The chief item on the programme is Mr. Leonard Mortimer's company in The Kettledrum, which is a stage version of one of Captain Kettle's stories, and is well performed by this capable company. Mr. Mortimer makes an excellent Captain Owen Kettle, and gives a lifelike portrait of this fiery little man; Mr. J. G. Leighton plays well as Lord Esmond Slade; and his treacherous secretary is ably presented by Mr. Edwin J. Collins. Mr. Reginald Weighall causes amusement by his funny antics as General Corlanger; the adventuress Donna Inez Thelestina is forcibly enacted by Miss Edith Lewis; and Miss Ida Clifford plays Lady Edna very gracefully. The playlet is well mounted and daintily dressed. Another very successful item is Mr. Albert Wyndham and his company in Clarence's Dream. Mr. Wyndham, who is a fine elocutionist and a powerful actor, gives an admirable performance of Clarence, and the recital of his dream is received with perfect silence until the end, when the audience accord him loud applause, which he thoroughly deserves. The crafty and cunning Gloster is well played by Mr. L. Deveridge; Mr. Murray does well as the attendant Brackenbury; the two murderers have excellent representatives in Messrs. Gilbey and Gascoigne; and Miss F. Pateman is a sprightly page. Takio, a Japanese, gives some good examples of his powers of mimicry with realistic imitations of the motor-car, woodsaw, and the nightingale. Those fine vocalists the Steinaway Quartette introduce into their scena, The Sons of the Sea, some tuneful singing, and receive hearty applause for their rendering of "Tom Bowling" and "The anchor's weighed." The remainder of the programme includes Messrs. Bernard and Western, an amusing couple; and Milsted and Bell, in a musical Indian comedy scena. The entertainment is brought to a close by some excellent pictures of "Secrets of a Nunnery," depicted by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

THE MIDDLESEX.

On Tuesday evening was produced at the Middlesex, for the first time in the West End, a sketch in one scene, written by George Roy, entitled La Marseillaise; or, the Story of a Song. In a garret in the poor part of Paris we find Rouget de Lisle, poet, musician, patriot, soldier, and composer of the French National Anthem, which was first sung by the soldiers of the Rhine. Apprehensive of being cast into prison as the writer of seditious songs, he has assumed another name. "La Marseillaise" has already been heard on the boulevards, and Paul le Grand, a young aristocrat, is anxious to secure the song for Louise Lavarre, a café chantant vocalist, of whom he is the devoted admirer. The request is refused, but the girl herself contrives to get possession of the composition, and sings it with much success. Fame comes to its composer, and Louise, the café chantant singer, proves to be his own daughter, he having been separated from her and her mother many years ago, but for both of whom he has searched in vain. The sketch was very favourably received. Mr. Walter Raynham gave an admirable portrayal of De Lisle, and Miss Rita Tomkins was a pleasing representative of Louise Lavarre. Mr. Edward Pollard was good as Paul le Grand and Miss Kitty Kirwan did very well as the Irish landlady, Mme. Drouet. The appropriate music is by Mr. Josef Pelzer, and the admirable scenery and effects are by Mr. Harry Potts.

Prominent amongst the single turns engaged here is Mr. R. H. Douglas, who is delighting the patrons of the Drury-lane hall with his clever detective monologue. His various disguises, concluding with that of an old miser, give variety and artistic effect to an excellent performance, the merits of which are readily recognised. The Kennedy Quartette in the comedy act, True Irish Hearts, give a slice of Hibernian drama of the kind made popular years ago by Dion Boucicault. Familiar characters are the wicked squire, and the unfortunate hireling who is in his power; the pretty village lassie and her manly lover, who in the end triumphs over the villain of the piece. All these parts were excellently played. The Somersons appear with amusing results in The Suffragette; Mr. Bert Brantford, comedian, sings a capital ditty in the character of a chimney sweep; the Sisters Allen distinguish themselves as duettists and speciality dancers; Mr. Sid Bandon, in the guise of a burly butcher, sings "Buy, buy, buy" with good effect; Vere and Royal, lady and gentleman comedy artists, give a clever musical sketch, illustrative of the difference between people who travel first class and people who travel third. The Sisters Brand meet with a flattering reception as vocalists and dancers. Wee Mona is a remarkably smart child singer and dancer, scoring in a song entitled "You, just you," also with "When the band begins to play," and concluding with a dance that evokes much well-earned applause. Miss Susie Marney, descriptive vocalist, contributes two songs in effective style; the Brothers Brook do well as comic duettists; Little Tichbourne sings quaintly as a miniature soldier wearing elongated boots, and Mr. Jack Lane, "the Yorkshire Rustic," after singing a ditty about a visit to the "Zoo," gives some capital imitations of a German and other singers, to his own accompaniment on the piano. Mr. Mark Melford and company are appearing in the farcical sketch entitled Non-suited, which is as successful as ever in evoking laughter. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, with a couple of songs and his comical stories, retains his popularity. Blake and Granby provide abundance of real fun in the comedy duologue The Man in Possession. Mr. Lew Lake's company is engaged in the representation of the late G. H. Macdermott's comedy drama, entitled My Landlord, Mr. George Thursby appearing as John Beringer, Mr. Chas. Clapton as Constable 24 B, Miss Marie Bryan as Mrs. Wright, and Mr. Fred Lawrence as Bincksesteven, the bounder, the burglar, and the bobby. In addition up-to-date pictures are shown by the new Bioscope.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The fairs ahead for next week are:—Grantham, on the Great Northern; Upper Ottery, on the London and South-Western; Wotton-under-Edge, on the Midland; Okehampton, on the London and South-Western; Caister (Lincs.), on the Great Central; Pendlebury, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Retford, on the Great Northern and Great Central; Malton, on the North-Eastern; Pontefract, on the Great Northern, North-Eastern, Lancashire and Yorkshire, and Midland; and Woburn on the London and North-Western. In Scotland—Dumfries, on the Glasgow and South-Western and Caledonian Railways. In Wales—Cowbridge, on the Taff Vale; and Corwen, on the Great Western and North-Western Railways.

At an important meeting of Scottish agriculturists held at Dalkeith on March 7, Lord Stair presiding, a discussion took place of considerable interest to travelling showpeople. A proposal was made to do away with the hiring fairs which have existed for centuries, and to try and find, what the meeting said would be, a better system of hiring farm servants. We are not sure what is the object at the back of this movement, but we are quite certain of this, that it will take a very strong and influential body of men to abolish the hiring fairs so deeply rooted in the industrial life of agricultural districts. There are, of course, other reasons for regarding the proposed new system with grave suspicion. If it meets with any measure of success at all it will be at the cost of the workers. As the matter now stands, the hiring fair gives the workers at least one holiday, at least one purple patch in a life of terrible dullness and an existence at the best full of monotony and loneliness. To take from the workers one of the all too few opportunities of holiday and enjoyment is not only to do a great wrong to an important industry, but also to commit a great social and economic blunder. We trust that Lord Stair and the gentlemen who are at the back of this movement to do away with the hiring fairs will reconsider the question, and look at it from a more humane point of view.

At the Fairground, Lillie-road, Fulham, in addition to the show novelties exhibited by the lessee, Mr. James Manders, there are Fred Gray's roundabout set, Saunder's throwing games, and J. Whayman's shooting gallery, with other exhibits of a minor character.

At the Deptford Fairground, High-street, are Hastings and Whayman's cinematograph theatre and a variety of small amusements provided by various caterers.

On the Whitechapel Fairground is Barker's electric cinematograph; and on Mrs. Manley's ground at Battersea is Biddall Brothers' electograph.

On Fred Gray's ground at the New Cut is J. Manders' helter-skelter, and also F. Gray's shooting gallery and swings.

W. Taylor's cinematograph theatre is located on W. Beech's ground at Acton.

Wm. Biddall, with electric exhibition, is still at Acton Green; and Alf. Ball's electric bioscope continues its successful run at West Ealing.

Purchase's menagerie is located on F. Gray's ground at Lavender-hill, and with the menagerie are F. Gray's switchback and a number of small novelties.

Visitors to the Crystal Palace should not miss seeing the ostrich farm, which comes from Nice, France, and is to be found in the western annexe of the South Nave. It is decidedly a novelty and most interesting. These fine birds are on their first visit to England, and breeding, ostrich riding, and racing are practically illustrated and the general routine of the farm explained. Much interest will be shown by ornithologists in the pedigree birds Napoleon, Louis, and La Camille. The managers of the show claim that the last-named bird is the originator of the Gibson walk.

A valuable contribution to the resources of the art of cinematography has been made by Pathé Frères, the eminent French firm, who have produced a film in which the Life of Christ is portrayed in every known detail, additional effects being given by exquisite tones and tints. The colouring, which has been put in by a mechanical process, gives a capital suggestion of Eastern glow and picturesqueness, while the various apparitions incidental to the picture are done by dissolving methods, by which the figures appear and fade away softly rather than jerk themselves into view. A private representation afforded on Tuesday in the exhibition-room of their commodious premises in Charing Cross-road revealed the beauties of the pictures, which no showman eager for a powerful attraction should neglect to secure.

The series, which comprises over forty different views, traverses the whole of the episodes relative to the life of the Saviour, beginning with the Annunciation by the Angel Gabriel to Mary. The arrival of Mary and Joseph in Bethlehem and the vain search for a shelter is realistically portrayed, the hurrying of the citizens to and fro providing an animated scene. A view of the shepherds receiving the fateful news from angels precedes the arrival of the three wise men, and the interior of the stable where the Holy Family has found shelter is speedily shown.

The Massacre of the Innocents and the subsequent Flight into Egypt are displayed in interesting succession; and later comes a glimpse of the home-life of the Child, who is initiated by Joseph into the mysteries of carpentry, only to be discovered soon after in the midst of the Wise Men of the Temple. Christ's baptism, his miracle at the marriage feast at Canaan, the pardon of the Magdalen, the raising of Lazarus from the dead, and the walking on the water are all done with marvellous realism, while the subsequent transfiguration on the Mount of Olives has a sublime effect. The entry of the Saviour into Jerusalem amid the waving of palms and the singing of Hosannas forms a marked contrast to the Last Supper and the betrayal by Judas; and the subsequent appearances before Caiaphas and Pilate are reproduced, together with the crowning with thorns, the scourging at the pillar, the miraculous imprint on the handkerchief of Veronica, the painful ascent of Calvary, and the nailing to the Cross.

The last sad scene, when Christ gives up the ghost, is rendered startling by vivid flashes of lightning and the rending of the earth. The Resurrection and the Ascension are portrayed with equal care, the effect of the Saviour rising amid a halo into the clouds being cleverly secured and an apotheosis giving a view of the heavens with its celestial occupants. The pictures, which have been all staged at the Pathé Frères' works near Paris, are represented in reverent fashion, any semblance of caricature being avoided. Always impressive and, in some cases, awe-inspiring, the views are interesting to all sections of the public, and would prove valuable to pious people by bringing vividly before the eye scenes and incidents on which they love to dwell. The film is 3,133ft. in length, and is supplied by Pathé Frères at their establishment at 33-35, Charing Cross-road, of which Mr. Courant and Mr. C. Ivatts are the courteous managers.

THE COMING OF AGE OF MR. PATRICK ROSS COLLINS.

DINNER AND PRESENTATION.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Collins, of Walsall, and their only son, Mr. Patrick Ross Collins, who has just completed his studies at Ratcliffe College, Silesby, the Alma Mater of Mr. Seymour Hicks, were on Thursday, March 7, the recipients of hearty and sincere congratulations from all parts of the kingdom, not a few cable messages coming from the States, on the occasion of Mr. Patrick's coming-of-age that day. In honour of the event Mr. and Mrs. Collins entertained a large party of friends to a recherché banquet in the evening at the Hotel Royal, Oswestry. Covers were laid for close on a hundred guests, a magnificent spread was placed upon the tables by Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and altogether a delightful evening was spent, one which will live long in the memories of those whose good fortune it was to be present no less than in the lasting recollection of the young gentleman in whose special honour the feast was designed. The reception was timed for 11 o'clock, and for nearly an hour afterwards happy parents and joyful son were busy receiving their guests, according them a hearty welcome to their board, and in return receiving from them their heartfelt congratulations and genuine good wishes for many years of combined happiness and never-ending prosperity. After full justice had been done to the many good things provided, for the viands were all of the best, and beneath which the tables literally groaned, an interesting toast list was gone through. The post-prandial proceedings were presided over by Mr. Ernie Leech, of Crewe. The Royal toasts were duly observed, the health of Mr. and Mrs. Collins and their son was toasted with musical honours and bumping cheers, the other toasts including the absent friends and the Press, with which the names of the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. Summers, the local representative of The Era, were associated.

The toasts were interspersed with a number of musical items, contributed by the chairman, Little Tich, and Messrs. Leech, McMeekin, and Kay.

During the evening a presentation of an illuminated address was made to Mr. Patrick Collins by the many employees of his highly-esteemed parents, in which testimony was borne to the kind and considerate manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Collins always treated all those in their service, to the prominent position they occupied in the show world, and to the high regard which was entertained for them by their many friends and admirers scattered throughout the globe. Mr. J. Gordon introduced the subject of the presentation in a neat, complimentary speech, and Little Tich, in words apropos to the occasion, made the presentation.

Mr. Patrick Collins, who was received with cheers, loud and prolonged, in a maiden speech, made an appropriate response. He thanked them for the honour they had done him that evening, for the many kind things that had been said of his father and mother, which, if they would permit him to say so, were thoroughly well deserved (hear, hear, and cheers), assured them that he would always cherish the address, and expressed the hope that he would some day merit the position now occupied by his parents of head of the showman's world. (Applause.)

Mr. Collins, sen., in response to loud calls for a speech, also spoke. His rising was also signalised by much cheering, and when this had subsided, Mr. Collins referred to the fact that that day had been one of long and anxious anticipation to him and his fond wife. (Applause.) That day he felt as proud as any nobleman in the land, and he assured them that he regarded that as the happiest moment in his life. Then, amid the cheers of all present, Mr. Collins handed to his son a beautifully-jewelled gold chronometer watch, inscribed with his monogram in diamonds, as a memento of the occasion and of a proud father's love. That watch, he said, he obtained for his boy sixteen years ago, and he had treasured it for him under lock and key, in anxious anticipation of that great day. Concluding, Mr. Collins prayed for God's blessing upon his dear wife and son.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing, which was continued with much zest until the wee sma' hours anant the twa'; the hour of breaking up, in fact, being something like six o'clock.

Mr. Patrick Collins was the recipient of some 120 valuable presents, ranging from handsome jewelled gold and silver articles, to silk ties. In addition to the £200 watch given him by his father, he received cheques of £100 each from his mother (who also gave him a diamond ring), his uncle, Mr. John Collins, and his aunt, Miss M. Collins; a silver cigarette-case from Mr. Leech; a five-pound Jubilee piece, nicely mounted, from his adopted sister, Miss Clara Collins; a diamond breast-pin from his cousin Miss Flora Hobbs; a smoker's combination cabinet, from his cousin Master Walter Hobbs; a case of gold sleeve-links from his cousin Master George Hobbs; a case of silver-backed toilet brushes from Miss Fossett; a writing-case from Mr. George Bennion; a case with silver-mounted fittings from Mr. E. Dutton; together with presentations from the Hall, Lewis, and Wright families.

Among those who sent messages of congratulation and best wishes to parents and son were Mr. Holyoake and family, Chester; Mrs. Weir and family, Burton-on-Trent; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hibbert, Stockport (cousins); Mr. Fred Savage, King's Lynn; Sir Robert Fossett; Miss Maggie Collins, Chester; Mr. John Collins, who wired "I am very sorry I cannot get to Patrick's coming-of-age to-day to have the pleasure of wishing him many happy returns of the day and all the happiness and success in the world. With this post am sending Patrick a hundred-pound cheque as a memento of the occasion. Hoping you will all have a pleasant day.—Yours, John and Selina Collins." Also from Mrs. John Collins, who also regretted inability to attend festivities through illness; John and Nora Collins; Mr. Charles Jones, Wrexham; Mr. Swann, London; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Young; Mr. and Mrs. Dutton, Wrexham; Nelly Jones, Wrexham; and last, but not least, the telegram from the Rev. T. Horne: "Showmen's Guild chaplain sends the heartiest congratulations to Mr. Patrick Ross Collins on attaining his majority to-day. God bless him!"

It should be mentioned that the committee responsible for the presentation from the employees consisted of Messrs. John Tinney (chairman), John Gordon, S. Freeman, H. C. Humphries, F. Sherwood, W. Kelly, Little Tich, and G. Bailey (hon. sec.).

The grand old showman, Lord George Sanger, drove down to The Era Office on Wednesday. He seemed as well and hearty as ever, and looked the thorough English gentleman as he is, as he drove away in his carriage drawn by two pretty ponies. The President of the Showmen's Guild still remains the leader and friend of all showmen, and is as keenly alive as ever to the interests of the great British industry that caters for the amusement of the people of the Empire. It affords the greatest encouragement to the executive workers of the Showmen's Guild to feel and to know that the Empire's greatest showman still champions the manifold interests of the showman world.

Bostock and Wombwell's No. 1 Royal Menagerie is on a week's visit at Cardiff. The management are to be congratulated upon the condition of the animals, which are too numerous to mention. Captain Wombwell goes through some daring performances with the lions, &c.

Miss Ada Alexandra's hippodrome and circus paid their annual visit to Leith, and gave an excellent performance.

At Cefn, under Charles Farrell's management, were the following excellent concerns for the fair:—Farrell's Royal coliseum of living pictures and variety show, the racing cockerels and flying motor machines, Winchester range and variety stalls; shooting ranges by Messrs. Turner, Fossett, and Wright; throwing games, cokersheets, and other varieties by Messrs. Kemp, Bennett, Walker, Currie, Turner, Fossett, and other caterers.

We draw our readers' attention to the special article on the Rawtenstall Fair and Markets. It is of especial interest to our Lancashire showmen readers, and it illustrates what we have before impressed upon all local showmen, the prime necessity of being sure of your facts before you take action. We cannot understand how it happened that, although local showmen were consulted, no one seemed to have had full knowledge of the history of the fair at Rawtenstall. There are, of course, points of great interest and of importance to the show business in the Rawtenstall case, but it seems to us extremely unfortunate that expensive defence proceedings by way of petition should have been taken only to ascertain the interesting facts that at Rawtenstall the fair is not a market and that the existing fair was in no sense threatened by the Bill. Had the Corporation given the Guild Executive Committee assurances of these facts there would have been no expensive proceedings by petition. Rawtenstall Corporation, like many another corporation, thought they could ignore the showmen.

RAWTENSTALL CORPORATION BILL.

In Parliament.
House of Commons—Session 1907.
PETITION
Against the Bill Praying to be Heard by Counsel.

To the Honourable the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled.

The humble petition of Susan Holden, Charles Horton, and Ernest Albert Horton.

Sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter referred to as "the Bill") has been deposited in the Private Bill Office of your Honourable House, intituled "A Bill to authorise the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Rawtenstall to construct and work tramways, and to provide and work omnibuses, to confer further powers upon them in relation to their electricity and markets undertakings, to authorise them to construct a street work, and to acquire lands, and to make further provision with regard to the health, local government, and improvement of the Borough of Rawtenstall, and for other purposes."

2. The promoters of the Bill are the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Rawtenstall (in the Bill and hereinafter called "the Corporation").

3. Your petitioners are showmen, stall-holders, and others, who are in the habit of attending fairs held within the Borough of Rawtenstall for the purpose of carrying on their businesses thereat. The property, rights, and interests of your petitioners are injuriously affected by the Bill, and they object thereto for the reasons hereinafter appearing.

4. It is proposed to be enacted by Clause 94 of the Bill as follows: "If any person shall without the licence of the Corporation in any part of the borough hold or permit to be held any market he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £20, and to a daily penalty not exceeding £5. Provided that nothing in this section or in section 13 of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act, 1847, shall be held to deprive the Corporation of any right to proceed by action or otherwise which the Corporation would have had if those sections had not been enacted."

5. While the provisions of the said Clause 94 are in terms limited to "any market," your petitioners are advised that this word in contemplation of law includes a fair, and they humbly submit that the provisions of the clause are a serious infringement of the rights of showmen, stall-holders, and others, and that it is contrary to the public interest that any restriction should be placed upon the letting or hiring of land for the purpose of their businesses.

6. The preamble of the Bill in so far as it relates to the matters aforesaid is unfounded, and cannot be substantiated by argument or evidence.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honourable House that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that they may be heard by their counsel, agents, and witnesses against the preamble and clauses thereof, and, in the event of the preamble being proved, then in support of such clauses and provisions as may be necessary for their protection and benefit, and that your Honourable House may grant to your petitioners such further and other relief in the premises as to your Honourable House may seem meet.

And your petitioners will ever pray.

SUSAN HOLDEN.
CHARLES HORTON.
ERNEST ALBERT HORTON.

The above petition is the only one lodged by the Showmen's Guild in the interest of its members this Session of Parliament, and the conclusion of this case marks the end of the Parliamentary work for the present year. This is satisfactory, because it indicates that the energetic and persistent work of the organised showmen has at last made a strong impression upon the promoters of Private Bills. From the necessity of opposing eighteen Bills in 1898 to only one in the present Session there is full evidence of the eminently salutary work of the Showmen's Guild.

There is also this additional satisfaction, that action was only taken in the Rawtenstall case because of the extremely technical point at present undecided—whether a market can be legally termed a fair. There are instances in which the term "fair" is interchangeable with "market" but these cases have arisen only where the market or fair is by Royal grant or long-established prescription. The weakness of the showmen's claim to any rights to hold a fair at Rawtenstall lies in the fact that the customary fair (or wakes) at Rawtenstall is neither a fair by charter nor prescription.

This case was before the Court of Referees on March 12 on the question whether the petitioners were entitled to a locus standi against the Bill. Clause 94 of the Bill proposed to inflict a penalty on any person holding, or permitting to be held, a market in the borough without the licence of the Corporation.

The facts of the case appear to be that the Corporation of Rawtenstall have established a market under the powers conferred by Section 166 of the Public Health Act, 1875, with which Act there is incorporated by the following section the provisions of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act, 1847, "in so far as the same relate to markets." In connection with this market there has sprung up a practice of holding, at certain seasons of the year, what is commonly spoken of in the locality as a fair; but there has never been any grant of a fair by the Crown, nor, of course, can there be any fair by prescription in connection with a modern market. Notwithstanding, however, that there is no legal fair, the Corporation have never raised any objection to showmen standing on the market-place, but, on the contrary, have received tolls from them until about four years ago, when the showmen began to hire private land in consequence of a considerable part of the market-place having been appropriated for other purposes.

There were two substantial questions in dispute: (1) Whether the provision of amusements and the sale of articles on the private ground occupied by the showmen and stallholders constituted a fair; and (2) whether a fair could be included in the term "market." It was contended by the petitioners, on the authority of the judgment of Mr. Justice Bruce in Collins v. Cooper, decided in 1893, that such a gathering might now be described as a fair, although probably not so in former times. It was also contended by the petitioners that the word "market" includes a fair on the authority of the well-known dictum of Lord Coke, who said that "every fair is a market, but every market is not a fair." It was contended, on the other hand, that no fair could be constituted by the mere assembling of persons on private ground, without grant or prescription, and that, whether this was a fair or not, it was certainly not a market, and therefore not covered by the clause.

The Court of Referees, on hearing these arguments, decided that the petitioners were not entitled to a locus standi to oppose the clause. Unfortunately, the Referees do not give reasons for their decisions, and therefore it is only possible to gather what arguments have influenced them from remarks made by them during the hearing of the case. Judging from various statements by Sir David Brynmor Jones, who apparently took the leading part in the decision, the Referees substantially adopted the view of the promoters of the Bill that there was no fair, and, even if there was a fair, it was not a market. It therefore followed that the petitioners could not be hurt by the Bill, and were not entitled to oppose. The Referees seemed to think that it would not be right in the present day to attach very much importance to the dictum of Lord Coke, which, of course, has no authority as a legal decision, and that the general scheme of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act and the Bill under discussion indicated that nowadays markets and fairs have become distinguished, and that one cannot be comprehended under the other.

It will thus be seen that, although the locus standi has been refused, the decision of the Court is favourable to the petitioners, as it declares that when this Bill is passed they cannot be proceeded against under its provisions. It must be remembered, however, that a decision of the Court of Referees is not regarded as binding upon any other tribunal, and, if proceedings should at any time be taken the question would have to be fought out independently. But it is hardly likely that the present generation of Corporation officials, at any rate, would expose themselves to the odium of taking proceedings after they have so emphatically declared that proceedings cannot be taken.

MR. JOHN STUDT has favoured Bridgend with his fine new motor-cars for a week's visit.

MR. JOHN JOHNSON, of the Victoria Theatre at Barry Dock, is still doing record business.

THE attention of London showmen is drawn to the notice of a special meeting of members of the Guild and all other Metropolitan showmen at the Star and Garter Hotel, near the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, next Wednesday afternoon. See advertisement for further particulars.

A "FREE Fun Park" is to be opened at the Tower, New Brighton, under the management of Mr. William Holland, at Whitsuntide. Thirty-five acres of ground are attached to the Tower, and a hundred shops and side-shows are available for everything new and novel. A big show of the "Savage South Africa" or "Buffalo Bill" type is wanted for the Sports Velodrome, which is a third of a mile long, and fitted with two magnificent grand stands, and houses and cages are ready for a good menagerie. A troupe of Pierrots are also invited to tender for use of outdoor dancing platform and bandstand, and under-cover accommodation in wet weather.

LORD GEORGE SANGER has decided to dispose of his Grand Theatre at Ramsgate, which enjoys an all-the-year-round season, and is adapted for two-houses-a-night business. The theatre can be sold separately, or in conjunction with hotel and shops adjoining. The veteran showman gives as his one reason for selling that "a man at eighty is somewhat too antique and slow for the active, wicked world."

THE CINEMATOPHONE.—The Walturdaw Company, Ltd., of 3, Dean-street, High Holborn, have brought out an extremely valuable and useful appliance for showmen. It is known as the Cinematophone, a combination of Gramophone and Cinematograph, and can be fitted to any machine, so simple is it. So perfect is the synchronism that every movement of the singer or players acts in perfect accord with the music. As to power, with a small attachment added to the machine, the Albert Hall itself could be filled with sound, and as easily can the sound be reduced for a small hall. The effect is perfect, the living pictures—the human voice.

AT West Hartlepool the market yard is quite merry. C. Baker's twin yachts, Mander's cinematograph, Butler's two-headed baby, and Beaumont's numerous shies and galleries are great attractions. At the parent borough, the High-street is quite ablaze with the magnificent display of electricity from Wm. Murphy's excellent new cinematograph, the front and organ of which is reported to have cost thousands.

MR. CHAS. W. POOLE'S myriorama and variety company are concluding their second week at the Drill Hall, Darlington, having played to packed houses. The pictures, with effects, are splendid; they also show some new animated photographs, including the wreck of the s.s. Berlin. Little Miss Edie is a clever child vocalist; the Three Almas are marvellous on the triple horizontal bars; the Swift Trio, cyclists, are a wonder in themselves; Mr. Geo. Menoa (the guide and humorist) will, with the help of C. F. Couper, take you over the world in a pleasing manner.

"FRED LOCKE" FUND.

The accounts in connection with the benefit matinée at the Royal Princess's, Glasgow, recently, were finally adjusted last week, and show that the theatre drawings, including tickets sold, programmes, postcards, &c., amounted to £97, and the donations sent to over £40. Deducting the cost of printing, bill-posting, wages of stage-hands and orchestra, £14, the result is that the "Fred Locke" Fund benefits to the extent of £123. Of this sum, £100 is being banked on deposit receipt in the names of the joint trustees, Messrs. Rich. Waldon and J. G. Crichton, and the balance on current account. MENTAL TELEPATHY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—A paragraph in last week's "Variety Gossip" speaks of a new discovery, viz., Silent Mental Telepathy. May I call your attention to the fact that I worked Silent Mental Telepathy seventeen years ago at Shoreham Gardens, near Brighton, two years ago at the Aquarium, Scarborough, and am this week presenting the same at the Lyceum Theatre, Stafford?—Yours faithfully,

MUSICAL HOWARD.

Lyceum, Stafford. March 13.

WILLIAM CHARLES TOWN, thirty-eight, a labourer, of Napier-road, West Ham, was charged on Monday with assaulting Police-constable Bolton, 16 K R. On Saturday evening, when crowds were seeking admission to the Stratford Empire, the prisoner moved out of one of the queues and sought to force his way into the house out of his turn. Police-constable North, 606 K, turned him away. He had a quart bottle containing beer in his hand, and suddenly he went behind Police-constable Bolton (who was regulating the crowd) and struck him behind the left ear with the bottle, which was then knocked out of his hand by North. Bolton bled freely, and his wound was dressed by the divisional surgeon. The prisoner pleaded guilty to the assault, but he afterwards suggested that the bottle "accidentally caught" the officer. Mr. Gillespie said the prisoner might have killed the constable, and sent him to gaol for the full term of six months with hard albour.

Mr. T. W. Rawson and Miss Lily Bertram are occupying the place of honour this week at the Eastbourne Hippodrome with Mr. Carter Livesey's clever sketch, Would-be Actors. Mr. Rawson some time ago had the misfortune to fracture his leg, but his recovery is now complete, and his capital acting, together with the excellent work of Miss Bertram, keep the house in constant merriment, and several "curtains" are the rule. After his tour with Mr. Wyndham's company in America Mr. Rawson migrated to the halls, where he has already figured as a most successful comedian.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

THE ELLIOTTS AND SAVONAS.

AT THE HIPPODROME, HUDDERSFIELD.

Musical Huddersfield should visit the Hippodrome this week. The Seven Savonas are paying a return visit with their extraordinary creation The Palace of Orpheus. There is indeed music in the air whilst this combination is occupying the stage—and music of quite an unusual character. On their last visit we described the wonderful paraphernalia of instruments which the Savonas call into requisition, ranging from an organ to—well, they have no common names. Some remarkable effects are brought out in their rendering of the overture to William Tell—such that would probably startle the composer could he have heard them. At the same time, it is a feat the more exceptional by reason of the variety of instruments used and the cleverness shown by the players. The electrical effects also form a great feature of the Savonas' entertainment.—Daily Chronicle, March 12, 1907.

The Savonas are here! What need is there to say more? Judging by the numbers who got in and tried to get into the Hippodrome last night it would almost seem that comment here is needless, but for the sake of those who have not had the good fortune to see this clever troupe it may be as well to say that they are seven excellent musicians, whose versatility is such that they are masters of a variety of instruments, which enable them to produce many and varied effects in their performance. Perhaps the most enjoyable item was the overture to William Tell, in which they used thick brass instruments most effectively in the storm scene, and again their bells, xylophones, &c., after the storm was over. Their manipulation of the musical discs, a novelty to most of us, their smart manœuvring and smart comedy work, combined with striking scenic effects and becoming costumes, make this a turn for which it would be difficult to find an equal, much less a superior. When one remembers that they and the Elliotts are the same people, it seems difficult to believe that one member of the company would give our best local billiard players as much as they could manage in a 500 up. The Savonas naturally take first place, the enthusiasm they aroused was tremendous; but they do not monopolise the attention of the audience.—Daily Examiner, March 12, 1907.

PIERROT entertainers are invited by the Corporation of the Borough of Hartlepool to tender for the right to give performances on the Promenade during the ensuing season, or, in case of inclement weather, in the Market buildings. Tenders are to be sent not later than March 20 to Mr. H. W. Bell, the Town Clerk.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, FEB. 27.—"THE STRAIGHT ROAD," a drama in four acts, by Clyde Fitch, after winning a fair share of success at the Astor Theatre, has gone "on the road." In this play Miss Blanche Walsh impersonates Moll O'Hara, a girl of the slums; and Mr. Charles Dalton appears as Bill Hubbell, a New York saloon-keeper. A lady missionary, Miss Thompson, tries to reform Moll, and finds it a hard task. The missionary is in love with Douglas Ames, who makes love to Moll on the sly. Moll knows that he is a bad specimen, and plans to show him up. This she does by inviting him to her room, so that Miss Thompson may surprise him in his love-making. But, instead of the missionary, Bill Hubbell, who is fond of Moll, bursts into the room, and relieves his feelings by beating Moll unmercifully, and smashing everything in sight. Left alone, Moll turns to the whisky bottle, and is about to indulge when a ray of light from a street lamp falls on a picture of the Madonna, and Moll drops the bottle and falls on her knees. After that her conversion is an easy matter, and she is made happy with Bill Hubbell.

MR. LOUIS MANN, the comedian with the peculiar dialect and twisted "explanations," has made a hit at the Casino in a musical comedy called The White Hen, the book and lyrics of which were written by Roderick C. Penfield and Paul West; while the music was composed by Gustave Kerker. Mr. Mann appears as Herr Blindner, proprietor of the White Hen tavern, in the Tyrol, who is about to wed Pepi Gloeckner, a Viennese singer, who has been introduced to him by a marriage-broker. Blindner, however, gets in the way of a motor-car, and is badly damaged. He sues for damages through Erich Weiss, a lawyer attached to the matrimonial bureau, who has already been engaged by the motorist, Paul Blancke, to fight any such action. Pepi falls in love with Blancke, and Blindner becomes enamoured of Lisa Sommer, a typist employed by Weiss. Lisa and Pepi exchange places with each other at the double marriage ceremony, both being closely veiled. Blindner's wife disappears, and being under the impression that he has kept his contract and married Pepi, he has no desire to see her. The lawyer, to extort money, makes him believe he has married two women, which adds to the innkeeper's misery, until Lisa informs him that she, and not Pepi, is his wife.

Mr. Mann is responsible for most of the laughter; while the singing honours are won by Miss Louise Gunning as Pepi and Miss Lotta Faust as Lisa. Mr. R. C. Herz, who appears as Erich Weiss, the lawyer, sings a topical song so pointedly and cleverly that he is repeatedly recalled. Mr. Robert Michaelis is warmly applauded for his excellent rendering of "Edelweiss" and several other numbers. Mr. Kerker has turned out another tuneful score, with the result that the music of the piece leaves a most agreeable impression.

"ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN PEGGY," with Miss Henrietta Crosman in the title-rôle, has been received with unqualified approval at the Bijou Theatre. The rôle of Peggy, the warm-hearted, impulsive Irish girl, fits Miss Crosman as if the part had been written for her, and the delicacy and charm of her interpretation won instant appreciation from the Press and the public. The Hon. Jimmy Keppel is played with admirable finish and effect by Mr. Frank Gillmore. Mr. Ernest Stallard, always conspicuously successful when he was a member of Mr. E. S. Willard's company, is extremely good in the farcical character of Anthony, the entomologist. Mr. J. R. Crauford gives an excellent impersonation of the self-important Major Archie Phipps; and Mr. Addison Pitt plays Jack Menzies in a praiseworthy manner. Other parts are cleverly handled by Misses Jane Marbury, Kate Meek, Ann Warrington, Ida Waterman, Mr. C. A. Chandos, and Mr. John Marble. The good taste displayed in the scenery and appointments deserves mention.

MR. WILLIAM GILLETTE has written a melodramatic sketch called The Red Owl, and it has been successfully presented at the vaudeville houses. Some valuable bonds have been stolen from their owner by the brother-in-law of the victim, who suspects his wife of complicity in the crime because she has given him some sleeping tablets in his tea in order that he may enjoy a much-needed rest. The wife vindicates herself by shooting the thief when he is threatened with arrest, and tries to escape. The nervous fears of the husband are aggravated by the wide-eyed gaze of a "red owl"—hence the title.

MR. WILLIE EDOUIN and Miss Florence Reed shared the principal honours of the first performance of the three-act farce comedy, His Day Off, at Worcester, Mass., on the 11th inst. It deals with the escapades of Watty, a chauffeur, and Capt. Phil Cathcart, on the night before the latter's marriage to Edna, Lady Harborough's daughter. They believe they have seriously assaulted and robbed a man, and are aided in escaping by the heroine.

THE Manhattan Theatre, formerly the Standard, will shortly be demolished to make way for local improvements in connection with a new subway. Mr. William A. Brady, who succeeded Mr. Harrison Grey Fiske as lessee, has disposed of the fagend of the lease to Messrs. Al. H. Woods and Samuel Gumpertz.

MR. E. H. SOTHERN and Miss Julia Marlowe, who are appearing in the Shakespearean plays of their répertoire, and winning golden opinions for their artistic interpretations at the Lyric Theatre, intended to produce Gabriele d'Annunzio's play The Daughter of Jorio, during their present engagement at that house. Their contract with the author, however, forbids the production of the play until he has witnessed the rehearsals, and as he is unable to visit America just now, Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe expect to give the first performance of the play during their forthcoming engagement at the Waldorf Theatre, London, when Signor d'Annunzio will be able to be present.

AT Mr. Percy G. Williams's Colonial Alhambra and Orpheum Theatres during the last fortnight the following artists from "the other side" have appeared for the first time before American audiences: Rex Fox, ventriloquist; the Six English Rocker Girls, singers and dancers; Nellie Wallace, London comedienne; the Three Laurels, acrobats; Alexander and Hughes, musical comedians; the Bounding Gordons, acrobats; the McNaughtons, talking comedians; and Alice Lloyd, singing comedienne.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual deservedly ranks high as a record of the passing theatrical show. The new issue, in a comprehensive survey of the drama, mentions in proper order all the productions and revivals of the year, both at home and abroad and gives a list of the theatres and music halls of the United Kingdom, with the names of their respective managers. The lighter side of the publication, to which many well-known managers and performers contribute, is of exceptionally high literary merit.—Morning Leader, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual, a most useful record of theatrical events, has just been issued. It contains, as usual, many short stories by well-known players.—Globe, Jan. 21, 1907.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG.
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING.
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON.
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA.
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS.
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

CINDERELLA.
Code Word, BUFFLE.

An extra good film, everything is represented as in the Fairy Tale. There is little Cinderella, Ugly Sisters, Fairy Godmother, and the Prince, together with the Pumpkin and Rats which form Cinderella's beautiful Carriage and Escort. Beautifully mounted.

About 974ft. The Subject £16 4s. 8d.
Colouring £1 11s. 6d.

A MILITARY PRISON.
Code Word CISELEUR.

A dramatic film, full of feeling, showing the life of the Exiled Soldier in the Settlements. Method of punishment; a dash for liberty; sufferings of thirst; treachery; grand finale.

About 824ft. The Subject £13 14s. 8d.

A VISIT FROM A MOTHER-IN-LAW.
Code Word, CHIC.

The young husband determines that as he does not want his mother-in-law to stay with them, he will get rid of her quickly. Bribes the servants, and they each, without seeming to do so, cause her some trouble. Finally, he takes her out in his car and bumps her out. She, in disgust, returns home again, to the intense joy of the husband. A very amusing subject, and some very funny effects.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

The COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.
Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c., &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.
Colouring extra, £3.

BOB SLEIGHING.
Code Word, CALOMEL.

This delightful winter sport shown in all its varieties amidst gorgeous scenery. Some terrific speeds are obtained on the sleighs.

346ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.

"SKI" COMPETITION.
Code Word, CITADELLE.

More winter sports of Norway. Driving horses on skis, jumping great heights, and obstacle races. Perfect panoramas, and most exciting.

510ft. The Subject £8 10s.

A GOOD CIGAR.
Code Word, BYRRH.

A beggar follows a swell to try and get the stump of his cigar. The swell thinks he is a robber and calls the police. The beggar picks up the cigar thrown down through the confusion of the swell. Disgust of the police at not being able to make an arrest. Very amusing.

215ft. The Subject £3 11s. 8d.

TOMMY AT PLAY.
Code Word, CAHIER.

A little boy plays all kinds of practical jokes on unoffending people, and causes shouts of laughter from people in the pictures as well as the audience.

248ft. The Subject £4 2s 8d.

INDIANS AND COWBOYS OF THE FAR WEST.
Code Word, CIREUR.

Cowboys v. Indians. The capture of horses. Exciting scenes when the Indians steal the horses. A wild chase. The cowboys are saved by the timely intelligence of one of their faithful animals. Charming pictures throughout. Specially recommended.

643ft. The Subject £10 14s. 4d.
Tinting extra, 14s 6d.

CARNIVAL AT NICE, 1907.
Code Word, CALOMNIE.

The most perfect and realistic scenes of the gay fête which has just take place at Nice. Really brilliant scenes.

595ft. The Subject £9 18s. 4d.

TWO LITTLE SCAMPS.
Code Word, CABOULOT.

A very amusing film, showing the adventures of a little baker's boy and sweep. They ring bells, jump on to motor cars and cabs, pull off the table cloths from a restaurant table, and generally annoy everybody—finally arrested by the police. Absolutely perfect quality.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

POLICEMEN'S RUN.
Code Word, CABANE.

This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

A FEATHER IN HIS CAP.

The corner of a very pretty garden is occupied by a large house of pigeons. The birds are very tame, and fondly settle upon the old gardener as he makes his appearance. A young man is making love to the young lady of the house as she shows him round, despite the gardener's presence. He is so enamoured and pleased to find his caresses returned, that her father makes his appearance from the house before he is aware of it. The parent, who brings another gentleman with him, is annoyed at finding his daughter so responsive to her companion, and, going up to his child, drags her away rather roughly. Taking the girl to the man who has accompanied him, the father presents this gentleman as a suitor for her hand, who has his full approval. At the same time he forbids her to look further upon her own choice. He orders the young man to leave his premises forthwith, and they all return to the house. A short while elapses before the forbidden wooer again appears; peeping over the garden wall, he waits until the girl comes out, then, scaling the wall, he takes her in his arms. Opening the door of the pigeon-house, they stand just inside and renew their fondling, the door screening them from the house view.

The girl, hearing a step in the garden, glances round the door, but not before her father has seen what is going on. Determined to teach the pair a lesson, the parent orders his daughter to shut and lock the door. This she unfortunately has to do, leaving her lover secured. She is further terrified by her father demanding the key, which she reluctantly gives up. The man firmly secures his prisoner with a few nails, and then follows his child into the house. In the evening, a man with evident designs upon the birds creeps quietly over the wall with a sack in his hand. Prising open the door of the pigeon-house, he stealthily gets his bag open ready to make a big haul. The door opening, the thief is seized by the throat, dragged into the house, and, before many minutes, the young lover has him safely nailed up. Just as he is over the wall once again, he sees with delight the father coming into the garden bringing a policeman with him. The parent, opening the door, is surprisedly seized and thrown to the ground. The policeman is also very roughly handled, and, but for the timely appearance of the forbidden lover, the prisoner would have easily made his escape. The young man, closing with the bird-stealer, throws him to the ground, and he is given over to the constable securely bound. The parent is so delighted by the young man's kind assistance and protection that he relents from his former attitude, and, as the girl enters the garden, at once joins their hands and gives them his blessing.

LATEST FILM.

THE STORY OF A STRAY DOG. Code, "STRAY."

This is no ordinary dog picture, but something unique, chaining the interest, and of grand quality. It tells of the poor despised tramp dog, beaten by everyone, annoyed by boys generally, taken home by the tender-hearted little girl, where eventually, after much trouble, he is allowed to stay. Doggie's chance comes however. One day the child is watching an Italian organ-grinder and his monkey, and gets carried away by her enthusiasm to follow him, and is lost. The dog, missing his little mistress, follows the scent, and eventually finds her some long distance away. Bringing her back a footpad, attracted by her fine clothes, attempts to kidnap her for blackmailing purposes. But the dog will not allow it, goes for the tramp tooth and nail, and after a desperate and dramatic fight, mauls the tramp badly. The dog brings back the little girl to her sorrowing and anxious mother and father. Doggie is a tramp dog no longer.

CAN YOU SOLVE THE ∴ MYSTERY OF ∴

THE HAUNTED HOTEL,

A Weirdly Marvellous Conception. STARTLING! PUZZLING! BEWILDERING! Positively the most wonderful Film ever invented.

Some of the mysterious novelties in this film are: A house that changes into a goblin—A table set by invisible hands—Living dishes—A knife that actually cuts slices of bologna and bread—Wine, tea, and milk that pour themselves out—Sugar tongs that drop lumps of sugar into a tea cup, and a spoon that stirs the tea—ALL WITHOUT THE SIGN OF A HUMAN HAND.—There are numerous other strange effects, including a bedroom that rocks up and down and finally turns completely over and over while the poor frightened traveller is in bed shivering with fright and wondering what is going to happen next.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

AT a well-attended meeting of the members of the General Staff Branch, N.A.T.E., held on Sunday evening in the St. George's Hall, Westminster Bridge-road, with Mr. C. Thorogood, the branch president, in the chair, the secretary, Mr. William Johnson, submitted a lengthy statement on the recent music-hall dispute and the arbitration proceedings. It was decided to send the best thanks of the meeting to the Variety Artistes' Federation and the Newcastle Branch of the N.A.T.E. for the donations sent to the London funds. The former society sent a cheque for £25, and the latter £21.

A RESOLUTION was unanimously adopted that the present committee hold office until the annual general meeting could be held for the purpose of electing the usual officers and dealing with the usual business of an annual meeting. A resolution was also carried approving the formation of a permanent alliance between the Variety Artistes' Federation, the Musicians' Union, and the N.A.T.E., upon a basis to be submitted to, and agreed to, by each society.

MR. A. EARNSHAW, lately electrician at the Paragon Music Hall, has been appointed electrician at the Duke of York's Theatre. Mr. Earnshaw's many friends will be glad to know he has "gone West."

AT a meeting in Middlesbrough last Sunday it was decided to form a branch of the N.A.T.E., and over 40 applications for membership were filled and accepted. Representatives of the Newcastle Branch, Messrs. Paterson, Oxnard, and Collins, have assisted in the formation of this branch.

MR. ODOARDO BARRI'S CONCERT.

At Steinway Hall, on Thursday evening, March 21, Mr. Odoardo Barri gave a most successful concert, in which the following pupils of Mr. Barri made their professional début:—Mme. Bertha Humphreys, Miss Mary Benson, Miss Dorothy Longstaffe, and Mr. Robert Hine. Mr. Barri was also assisted by the following professional artists:—Mr. Frank Tebbutt, Signor Tito Mattei, and Mr. Percy Frostick, as well as three of his well-known pupils: Miss Maud Santley (who has been engaged for the forthcoming opera season at Covent Garden), Mr. Frank Arthur (also in the list of basses at the Royal Opera), and Mr. Rupert Pounds. The programme, which included over twenty items, began with Handel's duet "The Lord is a man of war," sung by Mr. Robert Hine and Mr. Frank Arthur. In Chaminade's song "L'Eté" Mme. Bertha Humphreys gave a brilliant interpretation; and Mr. Rupert Pounds made a most favourable impression in Handel's air "Why do the nations?" while Miss Dorothy Longstaffe was well received in the recit. and aria "Che farò" (from Orfeo), and later in the programme was heard in "A love gift" (Monk Gould) and "Beyond" (Ed. St. Quentin). P. de Faye's pretty song "Tell her I love her so" was pleasingly sung by Mr. Frank Tebbutt. A chief feature in the concert was "No more tears," a new song, composed by Mr. Odoardo Barri and sung by Miss Maud Santley, with violin obbligato, most artistically introduced and skilfully played by Mr. Percy Frostick. The new song, which was admirably suited to Miss Santley's fine contralto voice, created a marked impression, Miss Santley repeating the last verse in response to a hearty encore. Another clever pupil of Mr. Barri's—Mr. Robert Hine, who has a most pleasing and sympathetic baritone voice—was encored for his capital singing of Sullivan's "Thou'rt passing hence," and responded with "I know two bright eyes." Miss Mary Benson had hardly enough power for the famous air from Samson and Delilah, "Mon cœur s'ouvre à ta voix," although she had a pleasing mezzo-soprano voice. In "Vulcan's Song" Mr. Frank Arthur used his fine bass voice with great effect, and the quartette, "A Regular Royal Queen," which concluded the first portion of the programme, was well rendered by Mme. Humphreys, Miss Santley, Mr. Tebbutt, and Mr. Pounds. Mr. Percy Frostick was much applauded for his spirited playing of Sarasate's violin solo "Zigeunerweisen," and later in the concert he was set down for "Souvenir," by Franz Drdla, and Schubert's "L'Abeille." Signor Mattei also gave a piano solo of two of his own compositions. "Mélodie Caprice" and "Dentelle," which greatly pleased the audience.

Mr. David Richards presided at the piano, and Mr. Odoardo Barri may be heartily congratulated on the success of his concert and the way in which his pupils did justice to his excellent method of voice production.

PRETTY HATS.

Spring is with us—and spring hats. To spend an hour at Maison Lewis is to glimpse into the future of fashion—to realise Hurlingham in May and Henley in July—to discover what is worn to-day, and, far more important, what will be worn to-morrow. The well-known house of hats in Regent street, with its handsome salons and exclusive "creations," represents Paris in London. Artistic designs and smart inventions, novelties and revivals, new materials and new ideas, in brief, the last word in hats, is spoken at Maison Lewis, and if the early promise of a sunny season is fulfilled there is every prospect of exceptionally big business. Madame Wagenman, the quick and courteous manageress of the London branch, is a great authority on millinery of the minute, and she gives an interesting forecast of fashions. Novelty and variety are the principal qualities to be found in the composition of the spring hats. Some are as wide in the brim as one sees in Gainsborough's portraits, some are high in the crown, some are dipped over the face in the quaintly charming style worn by the ill-fated French beauty Madame Lamballe, commonly called the mushroom shape. Flowers and foliage, occasional fruit—notably cherries and little silver apples—hold their own as decorations, and a striking novelty is a big black rose, with a fiery red centre, beautifully made, petal on petal, in the finest silk. Blue is always a popular colour, and will be used a great deal on this year's models, especially the soft, somewhat indefinite shade that is called Gobelin. Different degrees of chocolate brown and old rose will also be found on many of the smartest hats, and among the many beautiful plumes perhaps the most enchanting are long ostrich feathers of smoke-grey. The aigrette is happily rare, and a clever imitation of the plumage of the bird of Paradise proves that art can be the means of sparing nature.

One of the most attractive Paris models at Maison Lewis was in pale green, with a high, rather small crown, loops of moiré ribbons, and three big black ostrich plumes. Another design, that should be worn by a blonde, was entirely composed of fine lace and delicate peach-coloured satin ribbon, with sprays of the palest pink roses. A third was carried out in deep peacock green, with touches of the favourite coffee-coloured chiffon. A fourth was a striking arrangement of Nile green, covered with black net, an enormous black bow at the back, and a single full-blown rose on the left side. A "summery" hat was in fine biscuit-coloured straw, with a great cluster of blush roses under the folded brim, a wreath of the same flowers, and a few simple rose-tint bows. A smaller hat was exactly the colour of a red chrysanthemum, trimmed with quantities of small poppies and shot-silk ribbon. One of the most effective of the purple hats was almost hidden in tiny rosebuds and leaves, as fresh in colour and as daintily arranged as if they had just been gathered.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERAVON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Jones.—The patrons of the above are presented this week with one of Mr. John A. Thomson's companies in Jack and the Beanstalk. A charming principal boy is Miss Edith Wallis; Miss Maggie Allwood as Jill possesses a first-rate voice; and the same can be said for Miss Nellie Stewart as Little Bo-Peep. Mr. Wallace Bosco excels himself as Sir Peter Piffin; and Mr. Harcourt as Mother Hubbard is quaint. Some excellent dancing by the Violetta troupe. Miss Georgie Mansell as a pocket edition of Vesta Tilley, Lomas as Jacko the monkey, with a performance that ranks very high, and Mr. Percy Galino in a talented musical pot-pourri, are other attractions.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Geo. W. Denton; Stage-Manager, Fred Thomas.—Dr. Leon Dent's Globe Choir are here this week, and a capital entertainment is given. The singing of the choir, particularly of the soprano and contralto soloists, is excellent, and the humorous songs of clever Little Gerty Dire and others are well received. Mme. Dint, in her trance state, is also an interesting item in the bill.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This week we have a new departure in a variety company of really clever artists. First on the bill comes the Kellmos in their grand speciality act, A Fête in Venice, fairly brought down the house, having to appear again and again. Mr. Gus Garrick is very amusing in his music-hall titbits; Will McIvor is also very good; and Dale and Vale were appreciated. May Geraldine is a chic comedienne; Les Poli Trio are expert xylophonists; Dane O'Toole is a quaint comedian; the Two Erolls are particularly smart in their leaping act; and Kyoto, with his mysterious box, and Payne's biograph complete a good show.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—A very good bill is provided at the above hall this week by Adams and Ward in a comedy act; Joe Dale, comedian; the Melroses, in The New Page; Mlle. Roza's canine show; Wilford Gregory, Andy Fagan, the Surrey Lindon Vaudeville Co., and the Biograph.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Beast and the Beauty is being played here by Mr. Fred Melville's company. Mr. Herbert Ford impersonates the Beast with excellent results; Mr. Bernard Mervyn moulds the pernicious, deep-scheming Lord X. with fine effect; as the faithless wife Miss Daisy Gwynne is dramatic and clever; whilst Miss Lydia Audre is winsome and talented as the Beauty. Mr. Eric Campbell is a capable Samson; and humour is suitably introduced by Mr. Will Corrie (Tom Chicken).

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The pantomime farce, His Majesty's Guests, is paying another of its periodical visits here, Mr. Fred Karno's company being again responsible for its performance. Mr. Geo. Hestor is an exceedingly droll representative of Sergt. Lightning; good work is also done by Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Easem, and by Miss Leonora Castelle as Lady Maud. Mr. Miffin is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Chas. Usher. Other important characters are played by capable exponents of grotesque absurdity, and expert acrobats, viz., Messrs. A. Bolton, Harry Rowe, Skerras, Tom Manardo, M. Johnson, S. Gosling, and Misses Edith Ager as Dolly, and Kittie Bruton as the New Woman.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The programme here includes Alf. Davies, an actor-vocalist of talent; Lily Arthur, the toy comedienne; J. W. Gallagher, eccentric comedian; T. E. Gilbey, in a sensational balancing act; the Ottawas, a troupe of Canadian cowboys and musical experts, in the scena entitled After the Hunt; Nelson's Newsboys' Quintette; the Elgars, refined vocal artists; the Days, clever second-sight seers. A Japanese Love Story is a reminder of musical comedy, and in this Mr. Stephen Harland, a good tenor vocalist, and others successfully appear.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr T. E. Owen. The management here have provided a varied and attractive programme this week, headed by Mr. Alf. Gibson, aptly stlyed "the quaint comedian," whose songs are evidently to the popular taste. The Three Sisters Grovini are exceptionally smart acrobats; Mr. Harry Carsdale is a mimic of ability, and well deserves the title of "Farmyard Linguist"; Miss Gwennie Hasto, daintily costumed, sang charmingly, and in her dances gave an exhibition of the true poetry of motion, for which she received hearty applause; Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures are up to the usual standard of excellence, and include "Foul Play," which is very realistic; Mr. Henry Hilton is an illusionist of ability, and his tricks are deftly performed; Miss Dorothy Veld is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Stuart and Evans, comedians and dancers, provide a turn of much merit.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday night Mr. J. B. Howard's company presented Florodora. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore gave an inimitable and clever interpretation of the character of Anthony Tweedlepunch; Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus W. Gilfain was excellent; Mr. H. V. Cropton made a grand impression with his acting in the part of Frank Abercoed; the part of Captain Arthur Donegal was well played by Mr. Harold Perry; while the Leandro of Mr. Edwin Oxlee was picturesque and more pleasant than we have seen. Miss Daisy Lake was admirable as Dolores; and Miss Lily Gullick as Angela Gilfain could not have been in better hands. The other members of the company gave the best of support, and the piece was beautifully staged.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory's company in Lights Out is here. As the erring daughter, Klara Volkhardt, Miss Frances Davie plays a trying rôle with great success; Mr. Charles Esdale is a splendid Lieut. Von Lauffen; Mr. Lionel D'Arragon is an affecting and capital Sergeant Volkhardt; and Mr. Richard Fielding a capable Corporal Helbig.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Scarlet Clue is presented here this week by Miss Grace Warner and company. She herself, in the triple rôles of Scarlet Sal, alias Mrs. Stanton, alias Madame La June, is very powerful and brilliant; Mr. George Gordon is a capital Michael Stanton, and Miss Hilda Herne a sweet and sympathetic Elsie Dane. Mr. Jack Armitage, in the dual parts of the twin brothers, does well, and Miss Kathleen Cranston makes a realistic study of Mother Scroogs. Last night the Furness Academy of Art did The Idler, on behalf of the Hospital Saturday Fund.

TIVOLI.—Lessees, Messrs. Laban and Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The Six Æolians are at the top of a good bill here this week, and their singing and dancing are of a very high order. Blake and Granby create roars of laughter with their comedy sketch, The Man in Possession, and Bob Hamilton, the Scotch comedian, is an extra good turn; his songs and patter quite take on. Millie Howel is a refined singer, with a beautiful stage presence; the Three Sisters Thurban give a much admired instrumental and vocal turn: and Amos Howel is quite an expert coloured coon singer and dancer.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—For the third time A Chinese Honeymoon is paying a visit to Bath, and, as usual, is much enjoyed by that large section of playgoers who plump for musical comedy. The present company is under the direction of Mr. Milton Bode, who has been fortunate enough to secure Miss Gwennie Harcourt to give her inimitable rendering of Fi-Fi, and this clever little lady's popularity remains unabated. Mr. Rudolph Kloss makes a capital Hang Chow, his speech and manner suiting the part admirably; Soo-Soo has a charming representative in Miss Nancy Rossiter, her finished vocalism securing her many encores; Mr. George Rydon gets much fun out of the part of Mr. Pineapple, his newly-wedded wife finding a capital exponent in an old Bath favourite, Miss Eva Bevington; Mr. Harry Jennings easily carries off the duties of enacting Tom Hatherton; Chippie Chop is sketched with dry humour by Mr. P. Allerton Turner; Mr. Leonard May adds to the fun as Hi-Lung; the awe-inspiring Mrs. Brown has a stately and confident exponent in Miss Maude Adams. The chorus is a particularly strong and capable one, and with the excellent local orchestra, under the conductership of Mr. W. D. P. Dament, gives the concerted pieces and choruses in fine style.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A gratifying reception was accorded to the Harmony Four, a clever and amusing quartet of gentlemen. In the guise of Chinamen the Waltons give a silent eccentric acrobatic turn that secures them rounds of applause; the Katos, with their mannikin automatic theatre, are watched and listened to with pleasure; with each succeeding visit Percy Hannon, the young baritone vocalist, increases his number of admirers; Harry Vardon, ventriloquist, strikes an original vein with his telephone conversation; the favourite songs "Always" and "A man in Manitoba," are given by Flo Chevalier with success; Edwards and Dacre present a laughable comedy duologue of cross purposes; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux exhibit the best and latest films.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, is here in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith and Mr. Bert Edwards as Silas Crump come in for rounds of applause. The company also includes Messrs. Walter Boyce, Walter Ashley, Henry C. Ward, Arthur Hartley, Keen Cliffe, W. G. Hearson, and Misses Marie Vere, Dorothy Desmonde, Lillie and Mabel Blake.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company opened here on Monday in the farcical comedy Charley's Aunt. Mr. Spencer Trevor was thoroughly successful as Lord Fancourt Babberley, keeping the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason were admirable as Jack Chesney and Charlie Wykeham; and Miss Lena Macnaughton played the rôle of Donna Lucia with charm and skill. Mr. Chas. Bedells must be commended for his able impersonation of Sir Francis; Mr. Walter Beaumont was the fussy lawyer, Stephen Spettigue, to the life; Miss Bertha Northam was a delightful Kitty; and Miss Ida Vynall and Miss Ruth Nightingale would, indeed, be difficult to surpass as Amy Spettigue and Ela Delahay. Mr. Sydney Compton was a most effective Brasset. A good curtain-raiser was found in Fourchette and Company.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief attraction here this week is the American musical mélange A Trip to Coontown, presented by eighteen coloured artists from In Dahomey company. Their entertainment met with great success on Monday. The Creo Brothers gain much approval for their creation, "The Gypsies"; and Bert Coote's Yankee-Doodle Girls are good vocalists and smart dancers. The Three Ferganos submit their remarkable equilibristic novelty; Miss Joan Deering is a charming vocalist and instrumentalist; and also appearing are Mr. A. E. Clifford, vocal comedian; Miss Ada Parker, comedienne and dancer; Little Salvino, juvenile instrumentalist; and the Palace pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Messrs. Kitchen and Lister head the bill, and present with immense success their American dramatic sketch Number 99. A hit has been made by Billy McClain and company, including Mlle. Cordelia, who appear in their smart Southern scena, The Hottest Coon from Dixie. A fine exhibition of dancing has been furnished by Robertys, aptly described as marvellous; and an amazing illusionist, Morimura (who is assisted by the charming Japanese lady, Imako), performs some extraordinary feats. Mr. Albert Whelan, entertainer, appears in a performance it is always a pleasure to listen to; and also here are the Tupps, comedy acrobats; Miss Cora Carina, speciality artist; and Miss Kathleen Cogan, comedienne and dancer.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing here this week in the fine drama When the Lights are Low. To the rôle of Guy Goldsworthy full justice has been done by Mr. Horace Denton; Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a charming actress, furnishes a clever impersonation of Nan; Mr. Cyril Grier is a decidedly good Ikey; and much praise is due to Mr. Elmore Frith for his capital impersonation of Macpherson. The villainies of Captain Roland Goldsworthy are realistically portrayed by Mr. E. M. Heanley; the humour of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly, a funny Willie; and Miss Kathleen Osborne's acting as the blind girl Stella is certainly irreproachable. Miss Isobel Norman appears to advantage as the adventuress Violet Christie; and Miss Mattie Crawford's Kittie reflects much credit on this able actress. Miss Alice Clarke and Mr. Ed. Smythe complete the cast. Mr. Tom H. Solly is responsible for the admirable stage-management. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, exhibits a most amusing picture, "Oh! that Cheese."

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H Battersby; Musical Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Mr. Edward Marris's company are playing Somebody's Sweetheart. Mr. W. B. Nugent as Stephen Leverton and Mr. E. H. Bertram as Stanton Ashleigh are prominent in the cast. Old Joe, by Mr. Frank Gala, proved characteristic. Very good portrayals of Zoro and Lulu are witnessed at the hands of Miss Maisie Jerrard and Miss Effie Vincent. Mr. George Bentwood is very comical as Martin Blabbs; and Miss May Norris is a very clever impersonator of Freddie Ashleigh. The two dancers are Misses Dolly Payne and Rosie Chandler.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is fulfilling a highly-successful engagement with The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey repeats his powerful and interesting performance of John Strong, in which he is well supported by Miss Massie Edwards as Kate Strong. Captain Leo, the villain of the piece, is forcibly represented by Mr. Joseph Carter, and his wrestling encounter with John Strong is a leading feature. Much humour is provided by Mr. George V. Campbell, as Billy Twigg; and Miss Edith Giddens as Martha Mopps and Messrs. Edwin Maydew, Thomas E. Marshall, George Wilton, Mesdames T. C. Livesey and Cassie Le Grande are prominent in a capital cast. The child, Harry, is intelligently played by Miss Bertha Hanbury. The scenic effects are elaborate.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Miss Daisy Dorman, a charming and accomplished comedienne, heads a very excellent company, which also includes the Brothers Egbert, in their entertaining act, The Happy Dustmen; Miss Margaret Ashton, the American Girl, and deservedly a great favourite; Mr. W. J. Churchill, the popular comedian; Mr. Edwin Brett and Miss Emmeline Orford in their well-sustained sketch, Two Lovers; Mr. Will Musgrave, comedian; Miss Rose Finette, vocalist; and Duncan and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Are You a Mason? is the cry now, the humours of this roaring farce being fully and truly exploited by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. E. H. Paterson provokes frequent and hearty laughter as the henpecked but still errant husband, Amos Bloodgood; Miss Adelaide Grace makes many clever hits as Mrs. Bloodgood; Mr. Buchanan Wake sends the fun coursing merrily as the bucolic candidate, John Halton; Mr. Howard L. Tracy, as the co-deceiver, Frank Perry, contributes materially to the success; Mr. Ernest Cossart as George Fisher, Mr. G. R. J. Austin as Travers, and Mr. Victor Kerr as Morrison each supply an effective portrayal; while Miss Margaret Farleigh makes a most charming Eva. Miss Dora Gregory scores as Lotti, and the Misses Babs Stuart and Dora Frank Harvey shine among the others. The Farce is preceded by A Bad Penny, in which Mr. Buchanan Wake, Mr. G. R. J. Austin, Mr. Victor Kerr, Mr. C. W. Hammond, and Miss Harvey shine.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Morals of Marcus, in which Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company appears here under the direction of Mr. M. V. Leveaux, is attracting attentive and highly appreciative audiences. Mr. H. Nye Chart, for his splendidly drawn character of the titular rôle is accorded a most flattering reception; Miss Hilda Antony gives enchanting qualities to the character of Carlotta; Mrs. H. Nye Chart acts with exquisite tenderness as Judith Mainwaring; Mr. David Domville asquits himself with admirable aplomb as the conscienceless roué Pasquale; the Misses Mary Weigall and Gladys Purnell are successful as Mrs. Ordeyne and Dora respectively; and Mr. A. H. Leveaux as Hamdi, Mr. Cecil Brooking as Stenson, Miss Conyers Radcliffe as Mrs. McMurray, Miss Eleanor Gilbart as Antoinette, and Miss Mary O'Neill as Lady Wynn do good service to the play.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella must perforce, and notwithstanding its continued enormous success, be withdrawn on Saturday next to make way for other engagements. This, the thirteenth week, has been marked by a special complimentary benefit to the Brothers Obo for their admirable services as the Ugly Sisters; and next Thursday Miss Bessie Butt, the winsome and versatile Cinderella, is to be accorded a similar compliment. For Tuesday next Mr. Collingwood has arranged a matinée in aid of the local charities.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Melville's own company appears here in the evergreen and moral drama It's Never Too Late to Mend, to which local interest attaches, inasmuch as the novelist gained much of his material from a study of Winson Green Gaol. The play is here exceedingly well-staged and acted. Mr. Fred A. Marston throws praiseworthy vigour into his portrayal of Tom Robinson; Mr. Percy Dawsone (who takes a complimentary benefit next Thursday) makes a typical George Fielding; Mr. Francis Everard wins cheers with his manly embodiment of the Rev. Francis Eden; and Mr. J. Hindle Taylor as Crawley, Mr. Edward Finlay as Hawes, Mr. Austen Milroy as Meadows, and Mr. Emm as Jackey (one of his brightest and most popular parts) share in the success. Miss Rose Ralph is in thorough sympathy with the part of Susan, and Miss Jessie Yatman imparts a true touch of pathos to the rôle of Josephs.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Secrets; or, The Cross and the Crescent, appears here, with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tomlinson's company. Mr. Reggy Brown depicts the hero, Lieutenant Markham, with much verve and ability; Mr. Wilton Ricards gives due effect to the rôle of the Caliph; Mr. John E. Tomlinson is seen to advantage as Ibrahim Al Murad; Mr. Will Bird is popular as Breezy Bill; Mr. Lal Abdul Cottman makes much of the part of Kara Mesrour; and Messrs. H. Ernestine, Alf Deprez, H. C. Burt, and Bryan Williams figure creditably in the play; Miss Lizzie Palmer creates a pleasing impression as Ismalia; Miss Nelly Navarro gives a fine portrayal of Zulieka; while the humorous rôles, which are all given with superfine ability, include Mr. Victor T. Raymond as Cholmondeley, Mr. Herbert Woodin as Wilkins, and Miss Madge Palmer as Winnie. Miss Cissie Harcourt does well as Khassi Ki.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Fatal Wedding revisits this theatre, its attractions by no means lessening on repetition. Mr. Ernest Owtrim is highly popular as the hero, Howard Wilson; and much success attends the efforts of Mr. Guy Hastings as Robert Curtis, Miss Katherine Clarke as Mabel, and Miss Leah Marlborough as Cora. The other parts are also well represented by Mr. C. H. Hughes, Mr. Cyril Melton, Mr. Jack Waring, Miss Julie Temple, and Miss Marie Wilson, the latter as Jessie coming in for much praise. The specialities include Miss May Maddison in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," with full chorus; Miss Dorothy Pain, a budding Clara Butt, who sings "Killarney" with emminent success; Miss Edith Alcoe in "A Pic-nic for Two," and Master Walter Aubrey, the popular boy Lancashire clog dancer.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The chief attraction here is the racing episode, entitled Rogues of the Turf, presented by John F. Preston and company, Mr. Preston figuring as the chief character, Joe Flaxman. The introduction of three racehorses adds realism to the sketch. Millie Lindon sings with that charm which has won her great success; the Maningoes are clever head and hand balancers; and the Three Delaries are responsible for a smart speciality act, entitled The Demon Grotto. Dan Conroy, comedian; the Cambrian Trio, lady vocalists; Clive and Clark, black and white comedy artists; and Jack Neil, eccentric comedian, and J. H. Scotland, basso, complete an enjoyable programme.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The pantomime Aladdin is presented in tabloid form by John Tiller and company. The cast is a strong one, and includes several well-known artists, Bessie Cohen as Aladdin, Fred Dark as the Widow Twankey, May Sharples as Pekoe, and Little Britton as Schnapps. There are a number of tuneful songs and clever dances, fun being plentiful throughout. The Modern Venus appears in a number of classical poses; the Rupertos, equilibrists; Robbie Roy, comedian and dancer; and a comedy sketch, entitled Next, Please! presented by the Bros. Ashby, are all interesting turns.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Lottie Lennox, the well-known comedienne, holds the premier position here, and her songs are well rendered. Frank Bernard's company is responsible for a farce, entitled Hello! Nelly Coleman is a clever artist who is always well received; Dome is a clay-modeller of the eccentric type; Mlle. Amela, novelty entertainer; and Fanny Erris, comedienne, complete a varied and attractive programme.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. E. Whitty's company presented here on Monday the drama entitled An Unwedded Wife. Miss Ethel Van Praagh gives an emotional and painstaking interpretation of the title-rôle; Philip Blackstone is powerfully represented by Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes; the part of John Hawthorne is entrusted to Mr. Logan Darra, who does full justice to it; Mr. J. A. Grove successfully sustains the rôle of David Drummond; Mr. Valentine Henry makes an excellent Frank Armstrong; Miss Gladys May is seen to great advantage in her portrayal of Elsie Langham; and Little Doris is very good as Reggie. As Caraway Crumpet and Perkinson Pimple, Miss Jessie Gilette and Mr. Harry Townley are responsible for much bright amusement; whilst Mr. J. E. Whitty as P.c. O'Runyin, Cl. and Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer also add to the comedy interest of the play.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company is appearing here in the farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. The piece is new to Blackburn, but its sparkling humour has quickly established it in the favour of local play-goers. Mr. James Danvers as Septimus Stoney is responsible for much of the fun, and makes a decided hit in that character. He is well supported by Mr. Frank Lilliput as Runyard, college scout, and Mr. Edward Chester as Theocritus Ward Sparkleton. The parts of the two undergraduates, George Barker and Albert Perrin, are well filled by Mr. R. Horley West and Mr. Ralph Battersley. Miss Josephine Ellis plays the double rôle of Mr. Paton of Emmanuel and Gaye Sparkleton with a charming vivacity, while Miss Emma Rainbow as Olive Barker, Miss Tessa Myers as Maud Stoney, and Miss J. Sullivan as Eve Stoney are excellent.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Draycott, appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in A Modern Adventurer. On Wednesday The Octoroon was played; on Thursday The Heart of a Hero; and on Friday The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaughten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Miss Alexandra Dagmar, the popular comedienne, tops the bill this week again, and gains many plaudits; G. W. Hunter is an extremely funny comedian; and the Three Royal Dreadnoughts exhibit their remarkable prowess as rifle shots. Minnie Fenton, Scotch comedienne; Thornbury, lightning artist; Violet Dunn, coon artiste; Edie Endon, comedienne; and Cairns and Lynch, American buck dancers, also gives turns.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Mrs. Morton Powell's company is giving a very intelligent representation here this week of the play When It Was Dark, which is founded on Guy Thorne's famous novel of that name. The exponents of the principal parts have been carefully selected, and the result is a performance of more than average merit. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee is well suited as the Rev. Basil Gortre; and Mr. George H. Pitt very cleverly portrays Constantine Schwabe. Mr. Arthur B. Murray as Sir Robert Llewellyn, and Mr. Henry Heller as the Rev. Mr. Byars, also acquit themselves well. The important rôle of Gertrude Hunt is played with great distinction by Miss Elizabeth Watson; whilst Helena Byars finds a most capable impersonator in Mrs. Morton Powell.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Sapho, as enacted by a company under the direction of Mr. James Bell, is this week's fare here. The title-rôle is played by Miss V. St. Lawrence, who proves herself to be an actress of no mean ability; Mr. Otto Minster is effective as Jean Gaussin; Mr. Oliver Rogers gives an accurate reading of Father le Grande; and Mr. George Antley a realistic portrayal of Césaire.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The excellence of the programme here this week is beyond the slightest doubt. With Wilkie Bard topping a bill which also contains the names of Hilda Jacobsen, a queen of burlesque, and Harry Weldon, one of Blackpool's favourite comedians, business is unusually brisk. Other contributors are Tennis and Laune, in a sketch; Belrose and De Velin, duettists; the Meymotts, in a laughable turn; Jessie Buckle, comedienne; Albert Athas and Lizzie Collins, in a farcical comedy; Odeyne Spark, vocalist and dancer; A. G. Spry, comedian; and Mona Macdonald, vocalist.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal (Ltd.)—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—This week Mr. Lawrence Brough and company are here in the farcical comedy, The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Lawrence Brough admirably sustains the part of the light-hearted Baron de Longueville; Mr. Henry Hampson gives a fine rendering of the character of Dick Whortles; Mr. Percy Marshall is very successful as the father-in-law, Joseph Carbury; and Mr. Dalziel Heron looks the part of the prize-fighter, Toby Krockitt. Miss Marion Ripley scores throughout as the Lady of Ostend, and is deservedly applauded; Miss Kate Milford is graceful and charming as Dorothy Whortles; and Miss Bessie Harrison is spirited and stately in her assumption of Dick's mother-in-law, Matilda Carbury. At the Rising of the Moon, a romantic Irish play, in one act, precedes the comedy, and The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was billed for Friday evening.

Grand Theatre (Ltd.).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent programme is submitted here, headed by Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, who, in their kindergarten act, meet with much applause from the audience. Other turns are Chris. Masters, character vocalist and comedian; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists; Madoline Rees, versatile comedienne; the Harrison Brothers (Silly Willy and Georgy Porgy), in their absurdity, Quaint Conceit; the Two Cape Girls, clever duettists and long-boot dancers; Tom Stuart, in his dramatic and burlesque character sketches from famous plays and novels; May Fallowfield, dainty soubrette; Ted Waite, vocal comedian; the Three Royal Temples, including Mme. Louis Gilbert, soprano; the Huxter Brothers, acrobats; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—In Sight of St. Paul's, played by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, is proving a strong attraction here. Mr. Ernest R. Allen gives a powerful study of Tom Chichester; and Mr. W. H. Domoney is well placed as Harry Chichester. Mr. Valentine submits a good portrayal of the difficult rôle of Fretley Burside; and Mr. Henry Gilpin is a capital Blidstein. Mr. Herbert Cecil makes the most of the part of John Gridston; and has a capable assistant in Miss Gussie Everitt as Cynthia Dell. Mr. Arthur Armfield is seen to advantage as Mr. Chichester; and Miss Cissie Bellamy is a sympathetic and sweet Aileen Miller. The comedy element is in the safe keeping of Mr. Herbert Colley and Miss Sybil Hammersley as Jim Palfrey and Becky Vetch.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—J. H. Darnley, supported by a good company, is well received in a farcical sketch, entitled What a Night, the various incidents causing much amusement. Zarmo is clever in a combination of admirable fooling and smart juggling; the Zampas score a big success in their speciality dancing; as a ventriloquist, Bert Williams displays marked talent, his singing evoking much applause; Helen Martin is a cultured vocalist, her rendering of Tosti's "Good-bye" meeting with marked favour.

BOSTON. — Palace Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. George Saphrini.—Billy Ross and company, in their great sporting comedy act, A Hot Member, head the bill this week. Others are Dick Brandon, singer of funny songs; Nellie Sheldon, the Australian star comedienne and speciality dancer; Jack Heffron, with his budget of comic songs; Sisters Leslie, duettists and dancers; Miss Edna Cragg, burlesque artist, sings in her usual charming style, and appears a great favourite; Ernie Williams, character vocalist; and last, but not least, Curtis Leo, the great illusionist, conjurer, and juggler, who fairly mystified his audience with his clever illusions and smart juggling feats.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Robert Crossman's Sergeant Brue company is on a welcome return visit. Mr. E. Russell is really good in the name-part; as Crookie Scrubbs, Mr. T. H. Shale, whose voice is appreciated, is exceedingly droll; Mr. Tom Shelford makes the part of Michael Brue stand out prominently; Miss Constance Berkley plays Aurora charmingly; and as Lady Bickenhall, Miss Edith Housley is a success; Miss Mabel Keith doing all that is possible with the part of Daisy.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A return visit of Sunday is the attraction here. The company is Mr. Louis Calvert's, and an excellent performance of the piece is given. Miss Emélie Polini is very charming and thoroughly convincing in the title-rôle, and she has admirable support from Mr. Leonard Pagden as Colonel Brinthorpe, Mr. E. A. Douglas as Tom Oxley, Miss Rosalind Ross as Mrs. Naresby, and Mr. W. Lockhart, Mr. S. Renney, Mr. C. Yapp, and Mr. A. Vezin as Towzer, Davey, Lively, and Jackey respectively.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Hardie and Von Leer's company commenced a return visit on Monday with Two Little Vagabonds, and the familiar play was again well received. Miss Jessie Beltram and Miss Edie Martin as Dick and Wally respectively meet with success. Miss Grace Heywood as Marion Thornton, Mr. A. E. Melbourne as George Thornton, and Mr. L. Ellis as Bill Mullins are excellent, and the other members of the capital company contribute good impersonations, the strong interest in the play being well sustained.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The company here consists of Jordan and Harvey, entertaining Hebrew comedians; Harry Clifford, comedian; The Dandies, a bright quartette of entertainers; Mike S. Whallen, comedian; Harry Lawson, comedian; Edie Veno, comedienne; the clever Stein-Eretto troupe of acrobats; Sims and Sims, comedy instrumentalists; Barney Vox, ventriloquist; and the American Bioscope.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Ralli.—The Six Bros. Luck, in their pantomimic sketch, The Hotel Grande, are successful contributors to a fine programme here, the other members of the company being Walter Keating, coon artiste; the Bros. Henre, jugglers and club swingers; Williams and Warden, comedians; Frank Coyle, comedian; the Sisters Edwards, duettists and dancers; Mahatmas, second-sight marvels; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

St. George's Hall.—Manager, Mr. S. Carter.—Mr. Francis Laidler commenced a short season here on Monday with a strong variety company, consisting of Florrie Ford, Mab Paul, Alice Williams, Jo Monkhouse, Mary Palmer, George Davies and Co., Ethel King and Maurice Hoffman, the Cosmens (George and Nellie), Ted Young, Viola, Lavater F. Sumner, Fred and Hanson, the Black and White Comedy Quartette, Ada Twibell, Atroy, the Avigny Trio, and the New Century Company's Animated Pictures.

BRIGHTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and company opened here on Monday with Hamlet. Mr. Ian Maclaren gave a masterly portrayal of the title-rôle, one of the best enactments of the part ever submitted to a Brighton audience. His conception of the character was original and his elocution and acting were alike excellent. Miss Katherine Harrington made a graceful and sympathetic Ophelia, and was superbly effective in the mad scene. Mr. W. S. Hartford was admirably suited as the King; Miss Edith Coleman achieved distinct success as Queen Gertrude; Mr. Frank Royde's Laertes, Mr. J. V. Bryant's Horatio, and Mr. Arthur Fayne's Polonius were well played; while Mr. George Powell as the Gravedigger and Mr. F. Stafford Dawson as the Ghost deserve commendation. The programme for the week also included David Garrick, Delicate Ground, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, She Stoops to Conquer, As You Like It, and Othello.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here this week with Man and Wife. Mr. John F. Traynor submits an excellent portrayal of the hero, Paul Revere, and the heroine, Marcelle, finds a charming exponent in Miss Kate Hallam. Mr. Wilson Coleman is powerfullly effective as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Edward Van Biene's Colonel Latour and Miss Violet Temple's Ruth Revere are admirably played; and Mr. Edward Leslie is well suited as the priest of St. Denis. The light comedy element is ably sustained by Mr. Sydney Bryant and Mr. Val Gully as Bimbo and Bambo, and Miss Pollie Denville as Rosette. Among others who render satisfactory support are Mr. Ambrose Horton (Sergeant Jacques) and Miss Ethel F. Greene (Jean). The drama is finely staged.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is a capital company here this week. Hayman and Franklin are very amusing in Goldstein's Visit; Nipper Lupino Lane, juvenile comedian and dancer, gives a good turn; Hanvarr and Anna Lee are effective in jugglery and comedy; the Herald Comedy Four are well received in comedy, harmony, and dancing; the Zelovas display clever equilibristic and acrobatic feats; James Willard and company evoke hearty laughter with their sketch The Little Wonder; Roze and Calvert are warmly applauded for their absurdity act; Lily Mayfield is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Grogie, the Sussex yokel, Charles Craston, comedian, and Maggie Rimmer also provide pleasing turns; and the Alhambrascope pictures are very interesting.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford. — An attractive programme is submitted here this week. Mr. John Tiller's company appears in the pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat, an excellent and merry entertainment with good singing and dancing. Miss Jessie Templeton (Dick), Miss Nellie Rodney (Alice), and Will Lytton (Idle Jack) submit capital impersonations, and much fun is afforded by Teddy Gibbs (Captain) and Barney Dixon (Mate). Other good turns are provided. Walter Emerson is a smart comedian; Arthur Royce, comedian at the piano, is very entertaining; Jack Rae is a comedy gymnast and hat manipulator; Webb and Branston are artistic operatic duettists; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

West Pier.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company is here this week with the fantastic farcical play The Electric Man. Mr. Bernard Copping as Walter Everest, the inventor, and also as the animated automaton, submits several clever and bewildering changes which are very amusing. He is ably supported by Miss Amy Fanchette as the illiterate landlady, Mrs. Anderson, Mr. Sydney Lynn as Jack Strange, Mr. L. Robinson as Mr. Jobbins, and Mr. Chris Grose as General Pomeroy.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—This week we have The Dairymaids, capitally played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Miss Edith Blanche is stately and in every way pleasing as Lady Brudenell; the Misses Violet Lloyd and Rhoda Gordon are charming exponents of the sisters Peggy and Winifred; Miss Cissy Sephton is really amusing as Eliza; Miss Beryl Vaudrey is interesting as Helene; and Miss Madge Avery is sufficiently austere as Miss Pychase. Mr. Harry Dent makes a capital sailor as Joe Mivens; he is always amusing, does some acrobatic work, and dances capitally. Mr. E. Statham Staples and Mr. George Desmond have good parts as Sam Brudenell and Lieut. Brudenell, taking full advantage of all their opportunities; and Mr. Forbes Dawson is in every way commendable as Dr. O'Byrne. The chorus is strong and effective, and excellent work is done by the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The drama Revenge is here for the week, played by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson acts with considerable power as Prince Orloff; Mr. George Daiper is excellent as Captain Loirs Vanessa; Miss Violet Carlyle displays considerable power in her graceful exposition of the Queen; Miss Cissie Podmore is pleasingly interesting as Lieutenant Maurice; Miss Amy Ellam and Miss Alace Barber act well in their respective parts of Draga Vanessa and Cora Brook; and the remaining characters are all well cared for by other members of the company.

Palace Theatre.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Harry Roxbury's musical mélange, in three scenes, The Prince of Monte Carlo, heads the programme, and proves to be both attractive and amusing. Tom and Marie Motramo score with their musical-comedy duologue, Do You Reverse? Bob Stephenson, comedian, obtains applause; the Maples are exceptionally expert as speciality dancers; Beaty and Blanche, vocalists and dancers, are clever in their line; Kent and Keith (Julia and Alex) are highly successful in their speciality; George French, comedian, is popular; and the perfomance concludes with a good selection of animated pictures.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident Manager Mr. Sid Macaire.—Roland, illusionist, tops the bill, and is highly successful in mystifying cabinet tricks, conjuring, &c., assisted by Miss Marjorie Russell; Albert Le Fre, comedian, obtains much applause for an excellent turn; Minnie Cunningham, comedienne, has some pleasing songs, and is popular with all parts of the house; the Rayner Trio do some smart conjuring and acrobatic work; Fred Dornan descriptive vocalist, is successful; Lily Watson, character comedienne, does a good turn; Ben Jackson is a clever trick banjoist; Charles Ridgwell, comedian, obtains applause; the Jagos, speciality artists, have a good dancing and musical act; and Wilton Heriot and company score in a quick-change act entitled An Anglo-American Alliance. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — Mr. Charles Constant is this week presenting the pantomime Blue Beard. The choruses are well sustained under the direction of the musical composer, Mr. H. Hahn. Miss Isa Bowman gives a spirited portrayal of Selim, and a charming Fatima is that by Miss Dorothy Dempster; Mr. Charles Lake is an excellent Blue Beard; Mr. Gus Danby as Bamboozlem, Mr. Alec Godfrey as Pimole, Mr. Mac Stuart as Shacabac, and Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Ann cleverly keep the fun going from start to finish. The specialities include dancing and singing by Stuart and Stuart and Little Felicia.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Homer.—Miss Maud Hildyard and company are here playing The Great Awakening. Miss Hildyard as Lola is a clever emotional actress, and is frequently applauded for her performance; Mr. Frank Liston is a manly Jack Merton, and Mr. Gordon McLeod is a smart Captain Lambert; Guy Rogan is ably undertaken by Mr. Stephen Langdon; Mr. J. H. Booth is good as Richard Wilson; and the comedy in the hands of Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass and Miss Lilla Nordon as Selina, is excellent; Miss Doris Digby as Molly does well.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Miss Carlotta Levey holds a good place in the excellent programme here this week; her two songs, "A Gentleman" and "A Gambling Man," win for her great appreciation. Roars of laughter greet the performances of Kelly and Gillette in a comedy act; the Merrinos give a very merry turn, and Barry and Knowles make another very funny turn; J. S. James can handle the banjo well; the Bohemians are very musical on a variety of instruments; the Colvilles (Nancy and Edie) are smart dancers; and the New Empire Theatroscope shows a good picture, "The curfew shall not ring to-night."

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—New Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—The Arthur Saxon Trio head a first-class programme this week, their astounding feats of strength being loudly applauded. Miss Beattie Bloom gives her songs in good style; the Two Dominos also do well, and cause much laughter; the Onyx Duo, in their quick-change specialities, are well received; an original turn is that by Wisper, comedy juggler; Happy Joe Williams thoroughly earns the title; Ryde and Beeman shine in their comic acrobatic posturing; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux is also in evidence.

BURY (Lancs.).—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is here this week. On Monday Carmen was presented to a crowded house. A flattering reception was given Mlle. Zelie de Lussan, whose acting and singing as Carmen were delightful. Mr. Charles Carter as Don José and Mr. M. Vincent as Escamillo were particularly fine, and sang their music excellently. Miss Lucie Lever as Michaela was highly successful. The choruses were well sung, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harrison Frewin, was all that could be desired.

Circus of Varieties. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—There is a good programme here, including Alburtus the First and Miss Jessie Miller in a musical sketch, entitled A Scene on the Fair Ground; Howard and Collinson in an amusing sketch, called The Porter and the Parcel; Cyclumina, trick cyclist; Jennie Hartley, who sings and dances well; the Brothers Hannaway, comedians; Millie Payne, comedy star; and Harry Taylor, the Wigan comedy warbler.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The big item here is A Coster's Honeymoon, played by Amy Anderson and Co. Other turns include the Three Coopers, vocalists; the Musical Keiths; Charles Windermere and Clare Manifield, in a comedy duologue, A Narrow Squeak; Fred Cosburn, comedian; and Clifton and Gibson as eccentric comedians.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Miss Ada Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is paying a return visit here with A Sailor's Sweetheart. The piece is admirably staged and proves most interesting. Mr. Wellesley Draper makes a first-class Lieut. Charles Clive; and Miss Mabel Ormonde is a dainty and winsome heroine, Grace Mayland. Mr. Arthur Elwyn has thoroughly grasped the villain's part; Miss Ella Dixon plays with spirit as Phœbe Pembery; and Miss Amy Maitland makes a rattling character of Mrs. Pembery. The rest of the cast is also perfectly satisfactory.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. Robert Redford.—The enthusiastic reception accorded to Mr. William Greet's company at the New Theatre on Monday night furnished proof that The Sign of the Cross still enjoys wide popularity. Miss Marie Leonhard's Mercia is feelingly enacted, and wins high praise; Mr. Frank E. Petley is a manly and effective Marcus Superbus, and brings out all the strong points of that difficult rôle. Miss Dulcie Greatwich is to be congratulated upon her delineation of Stephanus; and Berenice is in the capable hands of Miss Gertrude Price. Miss Lily Ward (Ancaria) and Miss Cissie Carlton (Dacia) could not possibly be improved upon. Mr. C. Yorke creates a good impression as Nero; and Mr. Charles Alfred is admirably suited as Tigellinus. The character of Licinius is undertaken by Mr. J. Wetherall; and Miss Mary Newcombe makes a dignified Poppœa.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—The Span of Life, which is this week presented by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, is a perfect triumph of stage realism. Mr. R. S. Trelawney acts very creditably as Richard Blunt; and Mr. Sanderson Moffat as Dunstan Leech submits a capital rendition. Mrs. Jelf receives a faithful impersonation from Miss Phyllis Hamilton; and Kate Heathcott is undertaken by Miss Guinevere Shilton. The comedy of Mr. Walter Dale as Nutty Brown is one of the main features of the play; and an additional attraction is the clever acrobatic performance of the Stebbing Brothers. Mr. James Jarrett appears as Joshua Gurnett, and is also an able stage-manager.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring. — Mr. Horace Golden has packed the Empire nightly, and his wonderful conjuring feats, performed so amazingly quick, are the talk of the city. A couple of clever comedy acrobats are Hall and Earle, who are successful as the Chinaman and the Tramp; the McConnell Trio get liberal applause for their smart musical sketch, Mrs. Skinner's Lodgers; Barry Lindon's magnificent bass voice is heard to much advantage, and the illustrations are exquisite; a really clever comedian is Harry Leybourne; and another excellent mirth-maker is Harry Bedford, with his original songs. Eily Adair, a talented comedienne and dancer; Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist; Gertrude Bradshaw, a gifted soprano; with the Bioscopic pictures of "The Daughter of the Regiment," complete the entertainment.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mr. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and his répertoire company opened here on Monday to a fairly large audience. The piece selected was Robin Hood, in which Mr. Norman V. Norman played the title-rôle in a masterly and artistic manner; Mr. Norman Leslie was exceedingly good as Lord Guy of Gisborne; Mr. Brember Wills as Simon Hardwryste gave a finished performance; and Mr. Francis Hope was a humorous and painstaking Friar Tuck; and the Little John of Mr. Aubrey Mathers was all that could be desired. Miss Beatrice Wilson scored an emphatic success as Maid Marian; and the simpering Clorinda was admirably played by Miss Sybil Ruskin. David Garrick, The Adventures of Lady Ursula, and Nell Gwynne of Drury Lane, are also billed for the week.

The Palace. — Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Starr and Leslie constitute the chief turn here, and give a clever exhibition of club manipulation; Jinson's "Pets at Home" is a very amusing and entertaining item; the Crown Trio are good vocalists, and meet with quite an ovation; Julian Mack, the dame, on a return visit, is as popular as ever, which can also be said of the Brothers Redmond, acrobatic comedians; Madeline Rossiter, comedienne and dancer, is scoring a great success; and the pleasing singing of Marion Scott is much appreciated. The Pepiscope is well to the fore.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is playing here for the first time The Worst Woman in London. Miss Olga Audre appears in the title-rôle (the part she originally played at the Standard), and she makes a decided hit. Her acting is forceful and well sustained, and she wins enthusiastic applause. Miss Elizabeth Watkins gives an excellent performance of Ruth Milford. Graceful and womanly in bearing, she at once wins the sympathy of the audience. James Milford, the victimised father, is ably and intelligently portrayed by Mr. F. Vernon Travers, whose acting is clever and well studied; Jack Felton is in the hands of Mr. George Gaisford, and his reading of the part is much appreciated; Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers is well suited to the character of Vincent Lyle, and plays it in an admirable manner; Mr. L. Booker gives a good account of the difficult rôle of Philip Armstrong, his impersonation of the revengeful madman being very clever; Mr. H. Monte appears to advantage as Hugh Drayton; the comedy element is supplied by Mr. W. Garvey as Bob Goldfinch, and Miss Polly Marsh as Matilda Parker. They have some amusing situations, and play their parts admirably.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The fine programme prepared here meets with general approval, and is attracting crowded houses. The Whitworth Cycling Girls, assisted by Campkin, comedy cyclist, give an enjoyable turn in their sporting act, Riding to Win; a good turn is that of Juan and McQue as comedians and knockabouts, and they are worthy of the praise bestowed upon them; Henriette and Selina give some splendid selections on various instruments; Nelson and Thomas amuse considerably with their laughable sketch A Fight for a Fiver; Lillie Currie sings several songs both sweetly and tunefully; the McKays paint in oils a beautiful landscape with lightning-like rapidity; Hallie gives a novel turn as an eccentric juggler; Miss Jeannie Evans as a songstress is much appreciated; and the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures still take well. Mrs. H. B. Coda directs the orchestra of this house with much energy and skill.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Oliver Twist company is on a return visit. Mr. Stanley Drewitt is repeating his powerful and clever impersonation of Fagin; Mr. Cecil A. Collins is in every way suited to the rôle of Bill Sikes; Miss Edith Anton Laing is a good Nancy, and gains everyone's sympathy; Rose Maylie proves an interesting character as represented by Miss Eva Stuart; Mr. Edward Comberbach does full justice to the part of Mr. Brownlow; as Monks, and later in the play as the gouty Mr. Grimwig, Mr. W. H. Rotheram's skilful acting is thoroughly appreciated; a lively couple are the Artful Dodger (Mr. Charlie Clark) and Barney (Mr. Sydney Porter); and little Mirrie Omar displays plenty of confidence in the title-rôle.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Otto Menotti tops the bill here, his sensational and daring feats being greatly admired by Gaiety patrons; Lilian Elfreda is successful in imitating several well-known music-hall artists; roars of laughter are created by Farley, Rennie, and Farley in Fun at a Railway Station; Hallam and Stanton have a well-written musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey, in which they make a decided hit; Tom Woottwell is going particularly well here; Harry Mayville (vocalist), Howard and Lenore (nimble dancers), and the Edisonograph complete the attractions.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Coram is the leading attraction here, and his clever ventriloquial act is freely applauded; Miss Dolly Elsworthy's company secures the entire attention of the audience throughout in Right's Right, a sketch in which Miss Elsworthy shines conspicuously as Venus; J. H. McCann's dancing on roller skates is indeed smart; Ross and Lewis amuse with Fits and Misfits, the gentleman's eccentric dancing being much admired; the Alskarno Trio are recalled for their Risley business and somersault-throwing act; Molly Doon is a neat little comedienne; Dick Graham (character vocalist), Cole and Wood (duologue artists), and Minnie Wren (serio) appear; and Mr. Lacey's Erascope interests with "The Rag-picker's Daughter CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—A treat is provided here this week in a visit from Gladys Silvester and Fletcher Sansome's company with Cissy. Miss Silvester takes the part of Mary Mopps in vivacious and pleasing manner; Mr. Fletcher Sansome convulses the house as Titus Thomas; Miss Hetty Lind possesses a marvellous voice and makes a first-rate Cissy Vere; Mr. Harry Vernon is a pleasing Victor Carleton, and sings well; Mr. Fred Wade submits a careful study of Dossy Bowers, and employs a powerful voice to advantage; Miss Dorah E. Eastlake does a good piece of acting as Olive Temple; Mr. Basil Mitchell represents the heavy part of Gilbert Temple in a thoroughly cynical style; Miss Kitty Lea deserves praise for her Kitty Malone; and Miss Trissie Mills, Miss Kitty Vernum, and Miss Daisy Towers, as Sally Spring, Daisy Meadows, and Polly Winters, sing and dance to perfection.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company, in The London Fireman, is this week's attraction. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles sustains the dual rôles of Col. Fleming and Hal Curtis with conspicuous ability. Mr. E. L. Garside is clever as Ratty; Mr. Walter Wilby is well suited as Joe Bluener; Mr. Herbert Humber is an able exponent of Viscount Fleming; Mr. Lionel Thompson appears as Doctor Gerrard and Abel Fortnum with success; Mr. Philip Renouf is a humorous Nixey Stinger; Miss Beatrice Sinclair is a sympathetic Grace Curtis; Miss Nellie Waddington a lifelike Gladys Fleming; and Miss Nellie Garside as Polly Bramble is a favourite.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. Lewis Waller's talented company is being received with favour here in Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Langhorne Burton admirably fits the title-rôle, and deserves warm praise; a fine impersonation of Talleyrand is submitted by Mr. George Mallet; Mr. Arthur Somers acts with effect as the Emperor Napoleon; Mr. Cecil Wynne is equal to the responsibilities of the rôle of General de Caulaincourt; Mr. Sidney Young is reliable as Monsieur D'Albert; Mr. James Crowe is capitally made up as Monsieur Basompierre; Mr. Harry Taylor is appropriate as Trumpeter Papilette; Mr. Frank Powell, as Colonel Guerin is creditable; Mr. J. Henry Twyford is commendable as Major Bron; Mr. Edwin Bennett does well in the part of Major Oliver; and Mr. Reginald Mason deserves a word as Pierre. Miss Muriel Godfrey Turner enacts the rôle of Comtesse de Roqueleure with all the tact and skill of an accomplished actress; Miss Florence Denbigh is excellent as Mère Lafitte; and Miss Margery Chard makes a pleasing impression as Agnes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—As Good as Gold is being played here this week by an excellent company. Mr. Jackson Hayes cleverly depicts the villain, Sir Richard Wharncliffe; Mr. Albert Wainwright is capable as Lieut. Jack Stanton; Mr. Fred W. Fysher is very impressive as Mark Williams; Mr. Herbert Fuller does well as Horatio Spankes; Mr. Joseph Rowlands causes much laughter as Timothy Nias; and Mr. T. H. Jarman is commendable as Capt. D'Arcy James. Miss Agnes Collier fills the rôle of Kate D'Arville in telling style; Miss Lily Fuller gives a good representation of the Kipper, Wharncliffe's son; Miss Maude Merrick, as Madge Merry, is a success; and Miss Rosalie makes a fascinating Nora Williams.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson and company are winning approbation here in the graphic sketch, The Devil's Sunday; Nellie Farrell, Irish comedienne, is quite at her best; Arthur Aldridge's fine tenor voice is heard to advantage; Sambo and Tambo submit a smart banjo act; Hooker and Davis are expert dancers and pantomimists; Prof. Dunning is an exceptionally clever ventriloquist; Kahn and Khan are good in sleight-of-hand tricks; and the Mysterious Cross illusion causes a sensation.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Crowded houses have greeted Mr. Frank Lindo's company, in Home, Sweet Home. Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan proves herself to be a clever young actress; and to Miss Ray Rochefort (Sybil Fay) praise must also be awarded; Mr. Frank Lindo makes a marked impression in the part of Stephen Armitage; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle is good as David Armitage; Mr. F. Miles Hodgson is a typical villain as the Hon. Percy; Mr. Jack Patrick is seen to advantage in the comedy part; Mr. Lionel Ray scores as an old man; Mr. Ernest E. Owens does capital work as Lord Silvermore; Miss Ray Rochefort sustains the part of Dora with skill and intensity.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company has appeared here for three nights this week on a return visit in A Chinese Honeymoon. Soo-Soo is all that one could desire as played by Miss May Stevenson; Miss Kitty Clayton is a distinct success as Fi-Fi; Mr. Ernest Sefton makes an amusing Mr. Pineapple; and Miss May Davis a charming and vivacious Mrs. Pineapple; Miss Mary O'Higgins is sufficiently austere as Mrs. Brown; and Miss Madge Davis and Miss Sybil Ross are pleasing as the bridesmaids. Mr. Harold Cotter (Hang Chow), Mr. Frank Sutton (Hi-Lung), Mr. Louis Ashmeade (Lord Chancellor), and Mr. J. Maxwell Edwards (Tom Hatherton), are all very good.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King. Consequent on their very favourable reception of last week, Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company has been re-engaged, and is appearing in the attractive drama A Wife's Triumph. Mr. E. R. Wilton gives a touching representation of the depths to which a man may be dragged by betting; Miss Ada Abbott as Bessie Dewhurst wins the sympathy of the audience, and Mr. Douglas Pheps is well fitted in the part of Robert Dewherst. Mr. Edwin Keene as Ben Bradford and Miss Marjorie Tennant as Alice Wilton supply the humorous element, and this could not be in better hands. Other members of the cast are Mr. W. Ross; Mr. W. H. Garbols; Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown and the Misses Doris Dew and Hetty Jones.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is here this week in A Royal Divorce. Mr. Frederick Victor may be congratulated for his studied portrayal of the "Little Corsican," developing in his action and utterance those characteristic traits and features of Napoleon. The Empress Josephine is superbly played by Miss Edith Cole, whose emotional earnestness and fidelity make the character a living reality as well as most impressive in respect to histrionic artisticness. Other rôles are considerately and convincingly presented by Messrs. Claude Agnew (Talleyrand), Graham Woods (Marquis de Beaumont), Alfred Grenville (General Augereau), St. George Frere (Marshal Murat), Wm. Robbins (Dr. Corvisart), and Geo. Hudson (Grimaud, the innkeeper), and Misses Helen Richmond (Stephanie de Beauharnais), Agnes Imlay (Marie Louise), &c. Miss Maggie Cardiff plays with boyish prettiness and charm the little King of Rome.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—Austin, Boyd, and Trixie Gilfain present a curious mixture, but clever and enjoyable, of tenor vocalism, and bagpipes, in various musical comediettas; the anatomical peculiarities of limbs and body in motion and in respose of Souplessi are positively weird and startling; McCann's Irish terriers and leaping dogs are a conspicuously attrative feature, which suit the popular taste; Miss Lillian Victoria, the famous Eton boy; Chas. Rowen, comedian; Bros. Lavelle, quaint comedy acrobats; and Bioscope pictures complete the programme. On Thursday the management arranged the annual benefit in aid of the Dewsbury and District General Infirmary, when a clear half of the gross takings in both houses will be handed over to that most deserving institution.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Variety entertainments continue to draw crowded houses here. Charles Morritt, with a man in a trance, is weird; quite a furore is caused by Blanche and Diacoff, champion cyclists; Charles Bradford is sparkling as a comedian; and Mme. Beulah, a marvel of mental telepathy, bewilders. La Sylph is an exceptionally interesting turn in her illuminated dance; Boy Samson performs wonderful feats of strength; and Brenda Leslie, song illustrator, scores. The Wonderful Blind Man of Memory creates a sensation.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—After a long run of dramas, a variety entertainment is proved to be an appreciated change. Two sketches are played, viz., My Son's Wife, presented by Harrold's company of comedians, and The Enemy of Man, a dramatic episode, contributed by Mr. W. J. Mackay and company. Bert Fox's songs are well received; Glenroyd and Cross sing a masher and coster duet; the Mannikins are a popular item; Roy and Terriss, the former a clever musician and amusing comedian, score well; and May Kent, burlesque artist, and Payne's Bio-photoscope, complete the programme.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The ever-popular Lydia Yeamans, accompanied by F. J. Titus, is the attraction here this week, and delighting all with her vocal contributions and mimicry; a clever musical sketch, entitled Poor Beggar, is well presented by Mr. John Le Hay, supported by Miss Mary Duggan and Mr. Chas. Courtley; and the trick cycle riding of the Marsumas is appreciated to the full. Mr. Matthew Brodie and Miss Dorothea Vivian, in the dramatic episode, The Drummer of the 76th, scores a decided hit; C. St. John Denton and George Rowland's company of juveniles is heartily welcomed; and the Mackweys, in a whirling act on the wire, evoke applause. As comedy jugglers, Cole and Rags are mirth-provoking; and Hal Forde is a comedian of more than ordinary merit. Burnetti, quick-change musician, is highly successful; Ducalion, in a ladder act, and the Royal pictures, conclude an enjoyable programme.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland. — Miss Annie Hughes and company in Tommy opened here on Monday. Miss Hughes had a flattering reception for a charming and clever conception of the title-rôle; and Mr. Rupert Lister was praiseworthy as Dick Danvers. Peter Hope was in the capable hands of Mr. Evelyn Vernon; and Miss Winifred Pearson deserves high compliments for her portrayal of Mr. Morrison. The part of William Clodd had an able exponent in Mr. Willie Hartill; the rôle of Honour was successfully filled by Miss Ida Richardson; and Mr. Reginald F. Beach was capital as the office boy, Flipp. Good-for-Nothing Nan, in which Miss Hughes appeared as Nan, preceded, and was well received.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Heading the bill here are the Kremo Family, whose marvellous gymnastic act causes quite a sensation, and is rapturously applauded; France and Stewart, in an amusing sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance, scores a success; and James Bradv, eccentric comedian, is as popular as ever. Ingram and Irving, in a smart little comedy act, The New Office Boy, are highly diverting; and Charles Vincent enhances his reputation as a comedian. Sylvesta, assisted by Miss Vera De Courtnay in a clever conjuring act, elicits applause; Jennie Mackay, an accomplished vocalist, sings some descriptive songs effectively; and the Empire pictures are, as usual, up to date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The El Tris Tampico Troubadours, who top the bill here, give an exceedingly interesting performance, which wins cordial applause; the Lancashire Harmony Boys, assisted by Cliffe Dover, comedian, use their voices to much advantage in their clever and harmonious turn; and the Wakeman Quartette prove acceptable in a musical comedy sketch. The Trentanovis Sisters, in a daring gymnastic act, receive well merited applause; and Fred Harrison is a capital comedian. Sill and Silicott, in a novel railway skit, Lively Luggage, cause much laughter; and Lena Wylie is a pleasing comedienne. The Sisters Nella, in their pot-pourri act, are well received; and Witty Will Wicker, "the ideal Scot" also scores. The Bioscope is always an attraction.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Chas. A. James.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Conn and Davis, in their comedy act, The Page and the Chauffeur; Miss Annie Rose, vocalist and dancer; Ted Warner, eccentric comedian; Will Bent, instrumentalist and dancer; and Jack Twist, comedian.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is playing The Christian this week. Mr. F. Rawson Buckley acts the noble part of John Storm in a skilful manner, and a more pleasing and natural rendering as Glory Quayle could not be desired than that of Miss Laura Walker. Another well-studied part was that of Horatio Drake by Mr. Ernest Stidwell; and Mr. P. Gedge Twyman was distinctly good as Lord Robert Ure. Miss Constance Stephens deserves a word of praise as the warm-hearted Mrs. Callander.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—The Ramlos, comedy gymnasts, are great favourites; and the Olmar Trio, Roman statuary acrobats, give a clever performance. Bertha Winder, aptly described as the dancing marvel, was in great form; E. Heathcote is a very droll comedian, with good songs; Sadie Seymour, comedienne, proved a pleasing turn; Maud Godfrey is a good descriptive vocalist; Deane-Jenning's company gave a powerful rendering of a dramatic sketch entitled Vengeance. The Empire pictures complete the bill.

DUMFRIES. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne-Seddon.—For the first three nights of this week we are favoured with a visit of Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company in The White Chrysanthemum, which has drawn capital houses. Miss Muriel George is charming as Sybil Cunningham, her singing being above the average; Miss Dorothy Sephton as Betty Kenyon is very smart as the young widow; and Miss Wilmot Karkeek as Cornelia Vanderdecken is well placed. Mr. Shirley Lea impersonates Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage in an able manner; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is a great success as Lieut. Reginald Armitage; and Mr. H. E. Garden takes the part of Lieut. Chippendale Belmont in a most acceptable manner. The hit of the evening, however, is Mr. Richard Telford as Sin Chon, who kept the house in continual merriment. The rest of the company lend good support.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—J. W. Hall tops this week's bill, and is enthusiastically received; J. H. Milburn, always a big favourite here, repeats his former successes; the Three Tivoli Girls sing and dance themselves into favour in charming style; Arthur Croxon and Carl Howard display a happy gift of humour in their respective turns; and Lily Foy is a neat and stylish comedienne. A sketch, entitled The Nightingale, is rendered by the Two Kays, who sing very sweetly; and a popular item is a laughable piece, Stage Aspirants, by Dene and Dawson. Owing to illness, the Tally Ho Trio were unable to appear on Monday. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, with an entirely new set of pictures, completes a capital bill.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Monday was the second anniversary of the occasion of Mr. Williams taking over the reins of management here, and two capital houses assembled to enjoy the programme provided. Starring is Yvette de Laabe, who appears in a series of daring and exquisitely beautiful art poses. During the interval between the poses a special series of art pictures are shown, the whole turn being artistic in the extreme. Bert Lytton, a swell comique, submits a turn of real excellence, and was recalled again and again. A comedy sketch, entitled The Queen of the Cannibal Island, is the cause of much laughter; Mlle. Fountain's Mannikins are extremely amusing; and others who contribute enjoyable turns are the Lauriers, speciality artists; the Two Jays, comedians; Clark and Gold, American banjo artists; and the Gaiety Electro-motorscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Jury's Picture Company, after a short absence, pays a welcome return visit with a collection of the very latest films. Jack Ramsay, a capital comedian and raconteur; and Lillie Benson, a pleasing vocalist and dancer, contribute enjoyable turns.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Fred Karno's troupe of comedians is fulfilling a week's engagement here. The burlesque sketch, Mumming Birds, along with the pantomimical burlesque, Early Birds, form the principal items of a lengthy and good programme. The fun is lively and never flags, the artists engaged putting in some very clever work. Mr. Charles Denton, the celebrated London comedian, is very successful in his turn; the singing and dancing of the Sisters Lavendar was much appreciated; the Miltons gave a smart and entertaining turn; Lincoln and Warren contributed a skilful and clever trick cyclist's turn; Lillie Stuart, comedienne and dancer, is well received.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Company; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Throughout the week Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and a capable company are appearing in a number of Shakespearean and other well-known plays. On Tuesday evening Romeo and Juliet was staged in a very worthy manner. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris as Juliet gave an earnest, intelligent performance, which held the profound interest of the audience throughout; Miss Muriel Curry was a dignified Lady Capulet; and Miss Kate Turner was most effective as the Nurse. Mr. Frank Cellier, handsome and picturesque, gave his lines with fine effect, and as Romeo was a great success; Mr. Percy H. Vernon was a keen and notably able Mercutio; Mr. David Santley was an impressive and sympathetic Friar Lawrence; Mr. Arthur Goodsall was an excellent Benvollio; Mr. A. Cotton Holmes a satisfactory Tybalt; and Mr. C. C. Frere a very good Paris. Mr. Edward Landor was a strong Capulet; and Mr. Herbert Halford made much fun out of the part of Peter.

PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company is appearing here in The Private Secretary. Mr. Donald Price-Evans cleverly supplies abundant fun as Robert Spalding; Mr. W. Hargreaves repeats his very effective performance as Cattermole; Mr. Vivian Gilbert merits a special word of praise for fine work as Gibson; Mr. Radolfe Reade and Mr. James P. E. Hussey share the honours which fall to them as Douglas Cattermole and Henry Marsland; Mr. W. T. Elworthy looks and acts well as Mr. Marsland; Miss Dorothy Shaw and Miss Beth Elliott are delightfully dainty and charming representatives of Edith and Eva; Mrs. Alfred Davis is a really admirable Miss Ashford; and Miss Cicely Wade causes amusement as Mrs. Stead.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company is this week appearing here in The Lion and the Mouse. Miss Christine Silver gives a realistic portrayal of Shirley Rossmore; Miss Maude Townsend and Miss Margaret Nybloc undertake their respective parts as Mrs. Rossmore and Kate Roberts creditably; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is good as Mrs. John Burkett Ryder; Mr. Leslie Carter as John Burkett Ryder scores an unmistakable success; Mr. Martin Rowlands acquits himself well as Jefferson Ryder. Other parts are ably rendered by Mr. Herbert Chown (Hon. Fitzroy Bayley), Mr. Douglas West (James Rossmore), Mr. Arthur Roland (Alfred Stott), and Mr. John Wheatman (J. Wentmore Roberts, M.P.).

EDINBURGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company remains here for another week with Peter Pan, which is being played to crowded and enthusiastic audiences.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Carpenter.—Last Monday evening, in spite of most unfavourable weather, when Mr. Martin Harvey and company began a week's engagement, the Lyceum Theatre was crowded in every part. Interest has run high on the present occasion, for the popular actor has produced The Corsican Brothers, a play which has not been seen in this city for some years. The performance on Monday was a decided success. Mr. Harvey, in the dual rôles of Fabian and Louis dei Franchi, acted with striking grace, tenderness, and passion; Mr. Vincent Sternroyd was a picturesque villain as Château Renaud; Mr. Albert E. Raynor's impersonation of the Baron de Montgrim was of marked excellence; and a capital character sketch of Baron Martell was given by Mr. George Cooke. Mr. Alfred Mansfield acted with much acceptance as Maynard; and the parts of Antonio Sarrole and Colonne were played with force and humour by Mr. J. Barber, and that sound old actor, Mr. Fred Wright, sen. A word of praise is due to Mr. P. Alexander for a humorous bit of acting in the small part of Boisset. Miss Coleridge was charming and expressive as Emily de Lesparre; and Miss May Rorke brought all her attractiveness to bear upon her pathetic performance of Madame dei Franchi. The play was beautifully mounted, and was followed by the one-act tragedy, The Spell, by Miss Rosamond Longbridge. In response to loud applause at the close of the performance, Mr. Harvey briefly thanked the audience for their warm reception of himself and his company. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings, The Breed of the Treshams, with Mr. Harvey in his fine impersonation of Lieut. Revesby, The Rat, was given; and on Friday The Cigarette Maker's Romance.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—After an absence from the city of almost a decade, the Carl Rosa Opera Company is once more gratifying Edinburgh playgoers with a round of favourite operas, and crowded and brilliant houses have emphasised the popularity of this excellent combination of artists. On Monday evening Tannhäuser was produced with Mr. Julius Walther in the title-rôle; Mme. Lucile Hill as Elizabeth; Mme. Marie Alexander as Venus; Mr. Dillon Shallard as Wolfram; Mr. Arthur Winckworth as the Landgrave; and Mr. Charles Le Sueur as Walther. All were in good voice, and with a full orchestra, chorus, and ballet, Mr. Eugene Goossens conducting, a thoroughly enjoyable representation was given. Mozart's Don Giovanni was staged on Tuesday, when this delightful opera was admirably rendered by Mr. Charles Victor as the Don, Miss Elizabeth Burgess as Elvira, Miss Ina Hill as Zerlina, and Miss Grace Nicoll, a young Edinburgh lady, whose advance in her profession has been notable, and who sings with much finish and brilliancy, as Donna Anna, with Mr. Arthur Winckworth as Leporello, Mr. Edward Davies as Don Ottavio, and Mr. Eugene Goossens again conducting. Carmen received a fitting interpretation on Wednesday with Miss Doris Woodall in the name-part, Mr. Julius Walther as José, Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo, and Miss Elizabeth Burgess as Micaela, Mr. Walter van Noorden being the conductor. The week's repertory has also included Faust, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Fidelio, and Il Trovatore.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mr. Arthur Rigby, who heads an excellent programme here this week, appears in a sparkling musical playet, The Isle of Ooma, and is ably assisted by a capable company. Mr. Victor Newman scores in his impersonation of Matthias in The Bells; Carlos Menard proves himself an expert violinist; Morton and Bowman, in their comedy duologue, are very amusing; the singing of Edward Arthur and company in an excerpt from The Lily of Killarney, is of a high standard; the Rohda Bros. give a novel and clever equilibristic turn; and Seeley and West; Florence, lady mimic; Sammy Shields, comedian; Blanche Vincent, comedienne; and pictures on the Bioscope complete the programme.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—The leading feature in a good programme here this week is the interesting bicycle race of Messrs. Hall and Wilson. The speed and distance are shown by a novel indicator on the machines, and much enthusiasm is evoked by the efforts of the riders. Mr. Frank Vallance is a clever conjurer; Mr. W. H. Smart is successful in his sketches; and Mr. T. C. Callaghan is a smart comedian. Little Venus, a taking little vocalist, is loudly applauded, both for her singing and dancing, and Oakley and James provide a turn which is full of amusement.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Morice Prendergast's company is presenting A Woman of Pleasure. Mr. Ernest F. Wallace is excellent as Lord Carlingforth; and Miss Grace Carew as Alice Deach is decidedly good. Mr. Arthur Gilroy does well as the villain, Major Barrows; Mr. Noel H. Lewis ably sustains the part of Rev. Luke Goddard; Mr. Edmund Baker as Bobby Bumpwell, and Mr. A. E. Maskell as Joe Ploughman, together with Miss Dolly Gilroy as Dolly Dimple, introduce some amusing scenes and dialogues, and cause roars of laughter.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—The fine old English historical play, Lady Godiva, was produced on Monday and Wednesday by Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company, in presence of large and appreciative audiences. In the character of Tom of Coventry, Mr. Woulfe had ample scope to demonstrate his ability as an actor; and in voice, stage presence, and acting, he was admirable. He was capably assisted by Miss Ethel Griffies, an actress of charming appearance, clear voice, and graceful action, who in the title-rôle well merited the applause received. Miss Barnet, as Lady Aldyth, was admirable. The part of Leofric, Earl of Mercia, was assumed by Mr. E. Holland Day, at whose hands it received every justice; Mr. Clifford Rean, in the character of Algar, the supposed Earl of Northumbria, proved a sinister enough person; and Edgar, the nameless, found a clever exponent in Mr. Cecil Renton. Miss Edith Lorraine, as Elfrida, became quite a favourite, and her "business" with Robin (Mr. Rob Anderson) was very welcome. Mr. E. E. Dunstan acted the part of the spy and the caitiff well enough to be hissed. On Tuesday evening Mr. Woulfe and company gave an excellent production of Robin Hood. For the rest of the week Mr. Fred Benton's company, in The French Spy, was announced.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—This week Mr. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King is here. The title-rôle is taken by Mr. Horace E. Herbert, who achieves a great success. Mr. Paul Beckett as Captain Skinner, "the Spider," acts admirably, and is well supported by Mr. William Dempsey as Elijah Combe, a rascally marine store dealer; Mr. Seton Bernard as Daniel Jaikes, the servant, is excellent; and Mr. Ralph Leo as Henry Corket, the young clerk, is also good. Miss B. Doyle gives a very spirited rendering of the difficult part of Nellie Denver, and Miss Dorothea Black as Captain Skinner's wife has also caused a success. In the parts of Denver's two children Miss Dorothy Love and Miss Josephine Mackintosh both earned rounds of applause. Last week Mr. Snelson had his annual benefit, at which there was a crowded house, and during the interval he was presented with a gold watch subscribed for by a number of his patrons.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland. — Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's company opened here this week in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. W. V. Garrod played with force and feeling the title-rôle; Mr. Alfred Northway as the despicable Enoch Jaggins acted realistically; Mr. William Hayward as Ben Jaggins showed marked ability; Ned Kettlepin was capably enacted by Mr. W. Vincent; Mr. Owen Redmonde was a humorous Phil Drive; Miss Lydia Hart contributed largely to the success as Gretchen; Miss Dot Russell sang and danced delightfully as Fraulein Korale; Miss Violet Jeffries gave a charming representation of Myrtle Godley; and Miss Gwen Stewart's rendering of Fern Godley was pleasing and natural. On Friday Still Waters Run Deep was played.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. H. Arnold.—Hardeen, described as the handcuff king, gets through his clever performance with wonderful smartness; undoubtedly one of the cleverest ventriloquial turns presented in this town in recent years is that given by Jay W. Winton; the Ringling Trio are clever acrobats and comedians; Mons. Slippere, blind novelty pianist and baritone singer, gets loud applause; Crosby and Walker, cross-talk comedians, make a hit; Bert Danser, a very eccentric patter comedian; Marie Empress, comedienne; the Sisters Poole (society entertainers); and the "King's" pictures complete the bill.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company is appearing in The Sleeping Beauty. Miss Kittie Trewhitt, in the part of Prince Florizel, pleases immensely, and an enjoyable performance of Beauty is presented by Miss Dolly Dodds. These young ladies gain loud applause for an excellently rendered duet entitled "Will you love me in December?"; Miss Mona Townshend makes a dashing second boy; and Miss Isa Gibson appears with success as Trixie. Amongst the comedians are Messrs. Doyle and Gibson (Dreadnought and Flashlight), Bros. Armstrong, Master Jack Harrison, Pat Sloan, Taylor Snowball, and Wee George Wood, an eleven-year-old mimic of promise. Specialities are introduced by the following:—Miss Edie Camm (baton manipulator), La Belle Annette (solo dancer), and the Marguerite Troupe of speciality dancers.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Coun. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Miss Winifred Maude's company (under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane) is presenting The Convict at this house. Mr. Du Cane does well in the dual rôle of Sergeant Holmes and Alphonse Godin; Mr. William Bradford presents a powerful Captain Hurley; Mr. Wm. Vane is successful as George Britton; Mr. Britton is well treated by Mr. Leonard Harrison; Miss Maude is to be praised for an excellent Nellie Seaforth; and other ladies in the cast are Misses Jenny Hackett (Jenny Wright), Ethel Tinsley (Miriam Goldberg), and Marion Holly (Harry Seaforth).

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—A decided hit has been made here by Amasis, presented practically by the London cast. Mr. Louis Calvert's company is headed by Mr. Rutland Barrington as Pharaoh, and though the popular actor was suffering from a slight loss of voice, the humour of his performance was as mirth-provoking as it possibly could be; Miss Constance Drever as Amasis sang brilliantly, and had a most enthusiastic reception, the more so as she pluckily appeared despite a sprained ankle and against doctor's orders. The quaint personality of Mr. Lauri de Frece caught the fancy of the audience right away, and his Keeper of the Crocodiles is a most amusing character; Miss Madge Vincent as the lively Natis gave a performance of special merit; Mr. Reginald White contributed a clever bit of eccentric comedy as Ptolemy; and the fine voices of Mr. Roland Cunningham as Prince Anthotep, Mr. Whitworth Mitton as Cheiro, and Mr. Norman Salmond as the High Priest gave excellent effect to their various musical items. Mr. Frank Perfitt as the Captain of the Guard, and Mr. George F. Mackarness as a Wine Merchant, gave able support. Mr. Winifred Hart-Dyke contributed some clever dances.

KING'S, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company commenced a two weeks' engagement here on Monday, when local playgoers had their first opportunity of seeing Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks in The Beauty of Bath. The house was crowded in every part, and Mr. Hicks and his wife, as Lieut. Alington and Betty Silverthorne, received an exceedingly cordial welcome. The fine distinction given to the part of Viscount Bellingham by Mr. William Lugg was much admired; while the Lord Quorn of Mr. Laurence Caird was an aristocrat of quite a different type. As Mr. Beverley, the actor, Mr. Stanley Brett played with commendable spirit; the Sir Timothy Bun of Mr. J. C. Buckstone was a sound and hearty performance; and Master Valchera's Lemon Goodge caught the fancy of the audience from the start. The Mrs. Alington of Miss Florence Lloyd was a skilful blend of humour and pathos; as Mrs. Goodge, Miss Sydney Fairbrother was distinctly amusing; and Miss Maudi Darrell filled the rôle of Truly St. Cyr very well indeed.

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—East Lynne again makes a bid for popularity at this fine theatre, and with considerable success. Miss Edith Olive gives a graceful, pathetic, and intelligent reading of Lady Isabel; and the Archibald Carlyle of Mr. Charles Boult wins favour. Mr. Arthur E. Pringle as Francis Levison is effective; and Mr. Joseph B. Montague as Constable A.1 is quite refreshing. The one-act comedietta A Legend of Vandale, by A. E. Drinkwater, is also being presented.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—After a record run of fourteen weeks the pantomime Mother Goose was withdrawn on Saturday, and on Monday Mr. Andrew Melville's company opened here in Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook plays in a telling manner; Mr. Leonard Aardale brings into prominence the part of Willie; Miss Beatrice Western sustains the rôles of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh with effect; Geoffrey Waring, impersonated by Mr. Frederick Sandy, is a creditable performance; and Walter Hatherleigh, sen., is well presented by Mr. Herbert Young. Mr. Harry Cornwall figures prominently as Jabez Thomas; and Miss Enid Wilde is effective as Margaret Bailey.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is here this week in Held Avart, a stirring drama, in which Mr. H. K. Ayliff gives a strong delineation of an unscrupulous rascal. James Barlow; Miss Ethyle Murray ably enacts a picturesque creole, Quito Garcia; Miss Ruby Loncraine is charming as Sybil Grey; Mr. Leonard Lawrence as John Douglas makes a manly hero; and amusing comedy is supplied by Mr. E. G. Batley as Lord Loftus; ably assisted by Miss Gertrude Homewood as Lily Granville-Stark. Mr Rob B. Drysdale as a Scotch shepherd contributes a good deal of broad, pawky humour.

LYCEUM. — Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden. — At the Lyceum this week Mr. Robt. Macdonald is presenting, under the direction of Mr. W. J. Robertson, Mr. Hal Reid's American comedy-drama Human Hearts. The cast is exceptionally good. Mr. W. D. Fazan makes a capital Tom Logan; Frederick Armsdale is capably portrayed by Mr. Ernest Grey; Mr. Geo. Hewitson does well as Rose Jones; and as Jem Mason, Limpy Morgan, and Mike Corrigan, Messrs. Dobell, Turner, and O'Dwyer appear to advantage.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—Sidney Bacon's company, in The Duchess of Tooting, is the leading item in this week's bill, and lots of lively fun is provided by Messrs. Stephen Adeson, Frank Hertie, Misses Dora Heritage, Josie Farrington, &c., in the leading parts. Eadie and Ramsden, a smart pair, have lots of clever business; Leslie Brothers give a most enjoyable and amusing comedy musical turn; the Mayvilles, in their liliputian business, prove great favourites; the Rinaldo Trio contribute a good acrobatic

May Morton renders a Japanese song in taking style; the Sisters Ford, character duettists, are admirable artists; and Madge May's singing of "All that Glitters is not Gold" is heartily appreciated.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, the Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Benson and their Shakespearean company are proving a great draw, and an excellent selection of plays has been presented during the week. On Monday, The Taming of the Shrew was played to a delighted and enthusiastic audience. Mr. F. R. Benson appeared as Petruchio, and his very fine delineation of the character was truly an artistic triumph; equally good was Mrs. Benson in the rôle of Katherina; and Miss Gwladys Wynne was a naturally charming and graceful Bianca; Mr. George Buchanan, as Lucentio, gave a dignified rendering of the part; and the Baptista of Mr. Edward A. Warburton was artistically represented; Mr. Murray Carrington, as Vincentio, claimed distinct recognition, and a special word of praise is due to Messrs. George R. Weir and Clarence Derwent, who revelled in the humorous parts of Grumio and Tranio, respectively; other characters were ably taken by Mr. H. O. Nicholson, Mr. Percy D. Owen, Mr. Stanley Howlet, and Miss Cissie Saumares.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The star turn here this week is furnished by Lord, Murray, and Lord in a gymnastic mélange entitled "The Intruder," which proves very amusing; a capital turn is presented by Burns and Bentley; Tate and Tate, a smart pair of acrobats, earn loud applause; Elsie Earle submits an attractive song scena entitled "Holly and Mistletoe"; Barney Noble, comedian, has been highly successful; and the Empire Pictures conclude a good entertainment.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Lawrence Barclay, a capital comedian, is the chief attraction this week, and meets with a flattering reception; an excellent turn is provided by Charles Ulrick, "the barrel king and trancka wonder; Silvo's selections on the musical glasses and the silvochimes are much appreciated; Kathleen Gray, comedienne, and Ruby Emmerson, comedienne and dancer, are both favourably received; H. O. Wills, comedian, is also successful, and the Paviscope Pictures are up to date.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—Mr. W. W. Jacobs' delightful comedy, Beauty and the Barge, is being received with enthusiasm. Mr. Blake Adams represents the affable Captain Barley to the life, and in his realisation of the author's ideal of the river craftsman is admirably supported by Mr. Fred Knight as the mate Tom Codd and Mr. Forrester Harvey as Augustus; Mr. Edward Coventry is altogether excellent in the part of Lieut. Seton Boyne, and the same may be said of Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu as Herbert Manners; Mr. Walter Pemberton adds to the merriment of the piece by his representation of the irascible Major Smedley; Mr. Charles White is quaintly diverting as the gardener John Dibb; and Mr. Ewart Drake does justice to the part of George Porter. The lady characters are excceptionally well portrayed Miss Dido Drake is charmingly naive as Ethel Smedley, Miss Mary Pemberton is a winsome Lucy Dallas, Miss Nona Robin is good as Mrs. Smedley, and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite and Miss Ruby Wyndham accomplish good character studies as Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Baldwin.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—A continual roar of laughter is created by Harry Tate's motoring skit; Theo Bouwmeester's sketch, Who is Guilty?, in which he represents seven characters, is worthy of all praise; the Sisters Macarte are a trio of clever ladies who combine dancing and wire-walking; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto perform smart cycling feats, and other good turns are given by Frank Cass, comedian; Kisbey, who is styled the "call boy"; Miss Adey Spencer, in a speciality; and Miss Eva Chadwick, vocalist.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Much interest is being centred in the visit of Mrs. Brown-Potter, who is appearing in her dramatic scena illustrating an episode in the life of Mary, Queen of Scots, and is capably supported by the company associated with her. A sketch of a novel and distinctly humorous character is given by Mr. Harry Russel and Miss Verna Reid; Kiaro displays equilibristic feats of more than ordinary difficulty; Frank Sylvo accomplishes smart juggling; and others appearing are Phillips and Merritt, vaudeville artists, the Sisters Walmsley, in a vocal speciality, Kendric and Laura, drawing-room entertainers, and George Gulliver, ventriloquist.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—We are having another of Mr. Frederick Melville's productions, entitled The Ugliest Woman on Earth, here this week, and extraordinary business is being done. Miss Beatrice Homer makes an instantaneous success as the ugliest woman, extorting much good work out of a rather unthankful rôle; a plausible stage villain is found in Mr. Leyton Cancellor, who makes the most of his opportunities as Hubert Gold, as does Mr. Chas. Barrett in the character of Antonio; while Mr. Philip Darien sustains excellently the much-thwarted Jack Merriman. Miss Nell Oliver excites suspicion as the unscrupulous profligate, Rose Courtney; a convincing character-study of the Italian girl Morita is presented by Miss Violet Macarbe; while much relaxation is extorted out of the quaint rôle of Tubby by Mr. Edlin, who is adequately supported in the merriment making by Miss Nellie Jackson, a good-humoured Aggie Brown; and Mr. Cecil de Lee must not be forgotten as Raffles.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—The Three Rainats are seen in an intrepid and sensational gymnastic act which meets with prolonged applause. Laughter is at high-tide while the Burnells occupy the stage with their inimitable skit, Fun on the Links; and more than a little successful is Ted Cowan, a comedian with a good répertoire. Nora Desmond, Wal Owen, Zelda, Arthur Slater, and Cosgrove and Burns, together with the Boston Twins, complete the bill.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Living replicas of the great masterpieces in statuary are being depicted realistically by the Three Olympiers, whose episode is rightly named Beauty in Bronze. Equally clever are the Matweef Hugoston troupe of Russian dancers, who are heartily approved of; as is John Macaulay, an excellent vocalist. Floretti and Elli, Marion Fletcher, the Albano troupe in a delightful musical interlude, and Mulvey and Miriam, in their speciality, The Studio, soon win the warm favours of the audiences.

HANLEY.—Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and Miss Minnie Watersford opened here on Monday in The Manxman. Mr. Cross is seen as Pete, and his impersonation is one of great excellence. Mr. Sydney C. Kearns contributes a good reading of the character entrusted to him; as Kate Kreegan Miss Watersford is distinctly successful; Mr. Frank Etheridge as Cesar Cregeen plays the part in a telling manner; Mr. Maurice York does well as Ross Christian; Sir Mylcrest finds a worthy representative in Mr. C. H. Mortimer; Monty Missit is ably sustained by Mr. E. C. Howitt; as Nancy Miss Nellie Freland is well placed; and Miss Hasel Dent is an excellent Miss Christian.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—A capital programme is headed by Alexandre and Hughes, their turn consisting of cross-talk and some clever concertina playing; the Rio Brothers are seen in a gymnastic display which is much appreciated; Mr. and Mrs. Lucas return in "Scenes from Dickens," which are well acted; the Proveannie Family of cyclists provide a turn which is distinctly interesting and smart; Victor Travers is an eccentric comedian with a style all his own; Derenda and Green, in their juggling club act, are much appreciated; Maud Vera is a good descriptive vocalist; Bernard and Weston are a smart pair; and the pictures are interesting.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—For the first three nights of this week we have All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, well played by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood Ingram's company. As Peggy O'Mara, Miss Decima Moore is all that could be desired, and presents the bright and vivacious girl to the life. Miss Neilson is excellent as Mrs. O'Mara; Miss Kate Wingfield makes a handsome and dignified Lady Crackenthorpe; Mr. Wood-Ingram is good as Lord Crackenthorpe; Mr. Henderson Bland gives a pleasing sketch as Major Archie Phipps; Miss Eva Lonsdale and Miss Despa are both excellent in their parts of Millicent Keppel and Mrs. Colquhoun respectively; Mr. Glenister appears as the Hon. Jimmy Keppel. The play is well mounted and dressed. For the remainder of the week, Messrs. E. A'Dell and F. Chabot's company are billed in His Sister's Honour.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Verno and Voyce are here again with some new business, and take as well as ever; the Sisters Desmond are also well remembered here, and their reception is such as must be indeed gratifying to them. A capital high-class comedy episode, My Burglar, is well played by Thorpe and Coe; Little Dot Moss, a chic comedienne, is also an expert banjoist and dancer; merriment is the result of the comedy acrobatic scena, Off to the Races, by the Decars. The singing by Phil Mouat, the Stockton joiner baritone, is pleasing; choruses are well rendered by Harry Reynolds' Minstrel Quintette; Joe Sterling, an amusing comedian, and a new set of pictures conclude the list.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Home, Sweet Home is being presented here this week by Messrs. Matthew Glenville and Fred Osmond's company. Mr. Arthur Hinton as Stephen Armitage gives a true and manly interpretation of the hero. His father, a characteristic old salt, is well taken by Mr. Frank Hudspeth; Mr. Arthur Lowry puts dignity into the part of the Duke of Ancaster; a clever character sketch of his unruly son is given by Mr. Tom G. Warren. The unthankful part of Lucas Lyle is played by Mr. Travis Green in quite a masterly manner; Mr. Henry Millow makes an excellent Dr. Granby. Miss Leila Zillwood as Joan is a performance of conspicuous ability, and quite realises the character. A brisk and vivacious representative of Sybil Fay is seen in Miss Jennie Clare. Stephen's child, Dora, is charmingly played by little Dolly Turner, whose manner is simple and natural. On Friday and Saturday the company appear in The Sorrows of Satan.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Sowing the Wind is attracting good audiences. Miss Maud Fergusson is a charming Rosamond, sweet of voice, bright, fresh, and girlish; an able impersonation of the widower Brabazon is given by Mr. Poole Kirkwood; Mr. George Marriott, jun., as Sir Richard Cursitor does the part ample justice. Mr. Deakin (attorney-at-law) is well represented by Mr. John Edgcumbe; Mr. Charles Lloyd acquits himself admirably as Lord Pepworth; Mr. Wentworth Fane puts plenty of healthy vigour into the embodiment of Ned Annesley; Miss Ina Soutar and Miss Violet Agnew give intelligent representations of the Hon. Mrs. and Maud Fretwell.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The turns this week are varied and interesting. The Gamanos show great musical ability; some clever impersonations of great men are given with great dexterity by Mr. Bock Pylade; Miss Bell Elmore is a pleasing and attractive vocalist; the bioscope exhibits some new and up-to-date films; a very amusing musical comedy is enacted by Harry Prentice and Florence Brite; Miss Madge Osmonde quite excels as a male impersonator; the Roman Gladiator, as exemplified by Mr. W. L. Murray, is a fine specimen of living statuary; the droll sayings and manner of the comedian Mr. Tom Parker are highly diverting. A dramatic sketch, Mad Jasper, is ably performed by Messrs. Chas. Wright, Louis du Cane, and Miss Katie Blair.

St. Leonards Pavilion (Pier) Theatre.—Pier-master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The Ashley Animated Picture and Variety Company are holding the boards here this week. The variety artists are very entertaining. A clever musician is seen in the Musical Stunto; other comedians are Bob Gates, big-boot dancer; Lallah Delmar, serio; the Ashley Bioscope; Billy McKeever and Ada McGovern, ball punchers; Dutch Sid, sabot dancer; Zillah Stanley, ballad vocalist; Yank Murphy, in a display of the ju-jitsu art of self-defence.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Barnsley.—This week Miss Lily Batchelor presents the late Griffin and Drake's pantomime, which is attracting good houses. Miss Lizzie Round is a charming principal boy; Mr. Sam Griesley gives a fine exhibition of acting as the witch Spitfire; and an agreeable feature is the excellence of the dancing of Messrs. Taylor and May.

HOYLAND.—Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—On Monday Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company opened here with Her Nameless Child. Mr. J. W. Evelyn gives an excellent impersonation of Anthony Ford; Mr. G. Duncan is a manly Arthur Ford; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne as the villain does well; and as his accomplice, Mr. Fred Griffiths is all that can be desired. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Danvers as Tom Rivers, who is ably assisted by Miss Florence Hall as Bessie Brooks. Miss Pattie Hastings as Phyllis acts with good effect; Miss Grace Jones is an excellent Lady Sybil; and as Crayont Miss Madge Trevelyn is interesting.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Bannister Howard's company in The Four Just Men is here. The four just men are cleverly personated by Messrs. Oswald Cray, Wernham Ryott, Cecil Warde, and Chas. McCann. The leading rôle of Sir Philip Ramon finds a splendid representative in Mr. H. B. Wilson; as Mrs. Travers, Miss Kate Sainton brings all the verve of an American. As Juanita, Miss Florence Radcliffe is very successful; as the Spanish patriot, Mr. Charles Percival was very satisfactory. On Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights The Eternal City held the boards.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The ever-verdant and acceptable Belle of New York is drawing big business. There is an exceptionally pleasing Belle in Miss Empsie Bowman: she invests her rôle with distinctive charm; Cora Angelique finds an excellent representative in Miss Winnie Brown; Miss Lily Maxwell is a very pleasing Parisienne. The Mr. Bronson of Mr. Paddy Dupres is good; the lunatic is entrusted to the hands of Mr. Max Copeland, who keeps the house well amused; Mr. Frank Lawton, the original whistler, provides no small share of the evening's amusement; he proves himself to be equally as expert with the bones.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A striking and stirring drama with an American setting is taking the audience by storm at this ever-popular house. It paints a picture of the lurid life in the mining camps, as its name suggests, Cripple Creek. Joe Mayfield is well impersonated by Mr. Stanley Bedwell, and Miss Agnes Verity is a very commendable Dynamite Ann. The Little Tatto of Miss Rosie Hoskins is a performance that is highly commendable.

The Palace.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Jno. S. Barnett.—John Lawson surpasses himself with his new production, The King's Minister. He is supported by an excellent company of actors and actresses. Hettie Chattell is a character artist of much ability; Carrie Joy, an old favourite, has some nice songs; Billy Farrell, with his patter and dancing, makes a hit; the Geretti Sisters give a clever trapeze act; the Celtic Comedy Trio are talented vocalists; Barbara Babbington, a local pantomime favourite, is very popular; Mezzetti and Mora appear in a comedy bar act; and Kitts and Windrum, in their military contretemps, The Cuckoo, are delightful.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are Andrews and Thompson, Reed and Lerne, Les Blancs, Nellie Norah, and Geo. Cullen.

The Hippodrome.—Lessees, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Florrie Gallimore makes a welcome appearance here, and she has to respond with encore songs; Josie Delaine is a very smart dancer; the Crystals make a first appearance here with much success; the Brothers Hayes fully sustain their reputation; Joe Humphries is a good descriptive vocalist; Welda and Wynne in a comic dancing act create much amusement; and a capital sketch, entitled Prince Arthur, presented by Albert Wyndham and company and Cissie Dryden, complete an excellent bill.

The Circus.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are drawing crowded houses.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. Percy Norman's A Woman Worth Loving company is delighting large houses here this week. Mr. A. B. Mackay plays with manly force and vigour the rôle of Fergus Lovinski; the callous and despicable nature of General Borinski is graphically depicted by Mr. Percy Norman; Mr. Chas. R. Hann gives a finished study as Ivan Bardoff; Mr. Julian Hall is sufficiently servile as Drego; and Messrs. Sidney Barton and Gilbert Standing praiseworthily impersonated Czar Nicholas and Amos Pauloff, respectively; Miss Maud Buchanan endows the rôle of Roma Pauloff with womanly grace and charm; and Miss Iris Daventry gives a pathetic rendering to her lines as Lela Kalnooky. The humorous element is admirably supplied by Mr. E. C. Edwards as Peter Popples; and Miss Ida Mackay as Katerina Kloss, who receive able assistance from Mr. E. Hall Eldon, who makes Bertie Scribbler an amusing personage. The artists are repeatedly called before the curtain.

Ohmy's Circus.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week. Heading the bill are Carta and Martziana, whose marvellous balancing feats are nightly vociferously applauded; Alvantte is clever on the sliding wire; Claude Ohmy's wire walking performance is very popular; the Two Lecardos give a wonderful acrobatic table act; Miss Angerline is an expert juggler; Alvenna Watson's troupe of performing dogs show astonishing sagacity; the equestrian feats of the Three Ohmys are loudly applauded; August and September appear in several funny sketches; and Ohmy's Living Pictures are excellent.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is appearing here this week in the musical comedy, The Gay Parisienne. In the title-rôle Miss Lilian Talbot gains warm and well-earned approval; and Mr. Clifford Seyler is an excellent representative of M. Pompier. Mr. William Harman, as Ebenezer Honeycombe, is a capital comedian, his droll manner causing roars of laughter; Miss Holford Beringer gives a capital impersonation of Mrs. Honeycombe; and Miss Nance O'Neill is a pleasing Norah. Mr. Philip Moore sings well and is applauded as Tom Everleigh; and Mr. Douglas Howard is successful as Amos Dingle. Mr. Squire Day is very good as Major Fossdyke; and as his daughters the Misses K. O'Malley, F. McHardy, G. Davies, and L. Donati are deserving of praise. The Ruth of Miss Madge Soutter is an amusing performance, and so is the Algernon Ducie of Mr. Leslie Waller. The remaining parts are well filled, and the dresses and scenery much admired.

Queen's Palace of Varieties.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Collin and Irene, illusionists, have the premier position on the bill, which they well deserve. Flo Varley, comedienne, is still attracting; La Belle Rosa, solo instrumentalist, is much applauded; Herbert Potts, eccentric comedian, Tessie Vandean, serio and dancer, and Allen Amber, comedian, complete the programme.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—The time-honoured piece, East Lynne, has been played here during the week by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. A striking portraiture of Lady Isabel is given by Miss Julia Kennard; and Mr. Frederic Harker, as Francis Levison, is a cynical villain of the usual type. Justice Hare is carefully played by Mr. C. C. Grattan; and P.C. Bullock has a droll representative in Mr. Alfred Tate. The other parts are efficiently acted by Miss Ethel Hardacre, Miss Ethel Savill, Miss Jessie Bayes, and Mr. Alfred Beaumont.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Gotham Comedy Quartette contributed the principal turn here this week; their glee-singing is admirable, and their comedy business is of a refined order. Other attractions include Olive Armidale, a pleasing comedienne; the Gladenbecks, clever hand-balancers; the Pines, in a musical comedy called Maggie's Day Out; the Leonards, who contribute a musical medley entitled Point Duty; and Harry Grey a clever comedian.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—This week's attraction is Mr. Frank Ayrton's Co., in The Power of Gold. Mr. Geo. Lyttleton gives a most excellent rendering of the part of Hadji Zambra; while Mr. R. F. Stacey is most manly as Paul Judson; the part of Mark Harley is most ably handled by Mr. Richard Harris; Miss Amy McNeill plays the part of Lady Brandon to perfection; while Miss Lily Prescott makes an ideal Meg Judson; Little Prudence makes the most of the part of Paddy Blake, a street Arab; Mr. Frank Ayrton and Miss Madge Seymour in the parts of Sammy Smudge and Norah Donnelly cause much amusement; and Mr. Frank Holyoake is quite at home in the part of Dr. Stephen Saunders.

KEIGHLEY.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—A capital variety company is appearing here twice nightly. Derenda and Green's juggling act is extremely clever; Stanley's Urchins provide a good turn; Mdlle. Du Roche uses a fine voice with charming effect; Geo. Rae is a capital Scotch comedian; Leo Trainer is also amusing, and has some capital patter; The Reavys on the silver chain win much applause; Master May possesses a sweet voice, and knows how to use it; Lily Hayes dances and sings in good style.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. T. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Broadbent Bell's company, in the musical farcical comedy, Captain Blarney. Mr. Sam S. Wilford, in the title-rôle, acts in a pleasing manner; Mr. Broadbent Bell, as the Rev. Horatio Kneebone, is excellent; Mrs. Emily Banks, the wealthy widow, is cleverly played by Miss Norah Coronne. The piece is well mounted and staged.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—The excellent entertainment here this week includes the Three Pirmans, who are responsible for a capital pantomime act, an unusually clever combination of acrobatic skill and drollery that it would be hard to surpass. The Monckton, in their musical comedy episode, Are Wives Dummies? give a bright and amusing turn; the Royal Quintette submit an exhibition of light and graceful dancing which is keenly appreciated; and Miss Queenie Seymour proves herself a really funny comedienne. The Sisters Clare sing and dance well; and Mr. Sam Paul proves popular as a comedian. Jury's pictures are again excellent.

KIRKCALDY.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—On Monday Mr. Fred Benton's company opened with The French Spy; Mr. Beresford Lovett gave a skilful rendering of Captain Sommers; Mr. Max Coutts was villainy itself in the rôle of Count Romanoff; General Trepoff had a capable exponent in Mr. Hugh Travers; and equally successful was Mr. C. Aymond as Lord Aynsley. Mr. Charles Digby as Viscount Alexis made a capital dude, and, along with Mr. Seymour Perry as Knipps, kept the audience in a good humour. Mr. Benton undertook the German strong man's part with unquestioned success; the title-part was in the hands of Miss M. Devereux, whose interpretation was highly praiseworthy; and Miss A. Harrison Tate as Olga made a hit.

LANCASTER.—Athenæum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The attraction this week is Miss Frances Delaval and company in Her Lost Self and The Biggest Scamp on Earth. The former was presented on Monday evening with Miss Delaval in the rôle of Philipine Marcel. She was ably supported by a strong company, including Mr. Cecil Gray as Wilfred Daventry, Mr. G. Osmond Tearle as Norman Esmond, Mr. Leslie Yorke as Paul Kimberley, and Mr. Horace Buckley as Tom Flyaway, who, together with Miss Nell Ingram as Bridget Malone, introduced much acceptable comedy.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Martin.—Sanford and Lyons are at the top of the bill here, and have a good reception. The Macdonald Trio supply a pleasing musical turn; and Mr. Flockton Foster's sketch company, in Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, wins hearty applause. Bert Harrow, comedian; the Three Sisters Kiner, dancers; Jack Martin, actor-vocalist; and the Hippograph, in new pictures, not forgetting Evelyn Taylor, vocalist, complete a first-rate entertainment.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—The attraction here this week is Messrs. A. Hamilton Warden and Charles V. Sandford's company in the domestic drama A Woman's Past. Miss Maisie Hanbury plays the part of the much persecuted heroine with naturalness and feeling. She is ably supported by Mr. W. H. Hargreaves, who gives a very commendable performance of David Heath; and Mr. C. V. Sandford, who, as Frank Dellanoy, is most amusing. Other parts are ably sustained by Miss Eva Bertram, Mr. A. H. Warden, and Mr. G. Moreton Williams.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Peter Pan remains for a second week, and its delightful freshness and originality continue to attract and charm full houses.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Miss Lancashire Limited is a farce with music, and proves a welcome change from the usual dramatic fare provided. The all-important part of Mary Ellen Thompson is drawn on broad comedy lines, and in it Miss Florence Baines keeps the house in continual merriment by her clever and versatile acting; Mr. Bert Burton renders admirable support as the Yankee Jew, Isidore Moses; John Higgins, the trustee, is well represented by Mr. David Donalson; a decidedly clever impersonation is that of Eva Lancashire by Miss Annie Mitchell.

Empire.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—An interesting series of cavalry evolutions executed by a troupe of mounted youths, under the title of the Boy Army, is the feature of this week's bill; the Three Amaranths are seen in remarkably clever acrobatic dances; Edie King illustrates with success various styles of the terpsichorean act; a comedy sketch by the Three Prestons is provocative of the greatest merriment; whilst the Howards, with their musical act, are a popular line; Cliff Ryland is still a favourite with smart new songs and patter; Jimmy Shields demonstrates what can be done in the way of dancing with only one leg; and Ethel Douna, comedienne, Schwartz Bros., Continental specialists, and Master Clifford, juvenile comedian, are also applauded for excellent turns.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Great interest centres in the appearance of Miss Alice Pearce, a young actress, whose ability and versatility find scope in a series of studies and impressions from well-known plays; Arthur Reece, the popular vocal comedian, is a big success with smart new items; Luis Hardt is well named the Boy Samson, for his feats of strength are remarkable; the Eugene Family are seen in a sensational gymnastic act; Trentanovi's animal show is one of the best we have seen; and a successful appearance is also made by Harry Russon, comedian, R. T. Meikle, baritone vocalist, and Amy Sullivan, comedienne.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Boxing exhibitions by the redoubtable Gunner Moir are a big feature this week; W. T. Ellwanger and Co. are appearing in an amusing sketch, entitled The Peacemaker, with great success; Regan and Ryan are vastly popular in an entertaining comedy episode; the Four Maisanos provide a musical act which is well liked; Hayes and Suits are a clever example of the up-to-date comedy duo; William Gourlay is a comedian of merit; Rose Elliott sings ballads in charming style; and Miss Yetta gives her dancing act on the wire with success.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—That popular coon specialist G. H. Elliott is delighting hosts of admirers with his able delineations; Helen Charles deserves, and is awarded, a big reception for a capital musical turn; Marlow and Manton achieve success in a comedy sketch; Marie Blythe, a charming vocalist, is amongst the most popular turns in the bill; and the Ongars, Fielding and Hull (vocal entertainers), Harry Wright, the Picquays (in comedy sketch), and Fyne and Hurley (comedians) contribute acceptable items.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company are making their reappearance here, and are meeting with a most cordial reception. On Monday they opened with The Ironmaster, in which Mr. Kendal as Phillipe Derblay and Mrs. Kendal as Claire de Beaupré played their parts in a manner which left nothing whatever to be desired. These talented artists were supported by a very good company, Mr. Bassett Roe as the Duc de Bligny, Mr. Ernest Hendrie as Moulinet, Mr. C. W. Standing as Octave, Mr. Metcalfe Wood as Baron de Préfont, Miss Marie Lohr as Suzanne Derblay, and Miss Sara de Groot as Athenais being particularly successful. Others who are also to be praised for excellent delineations are Miss Kate Bishop as Brigette, Mr. A. B. Tapping as the Marquis de Baupré, and Miss Dora Fellowes as the Baronne de Préfont. The Elder Miss Blossom is underlined for Tuesday and Friday, and on Wednesday and Thursday A Tight Corner was to be played for the first time locally.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction here is a visit of Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company in their latest successful drama, A Gambler's Daughter. Miss Adria Hill does full justice to the dual rôles of Mildred and Miriam Grant; and as Desmond O'Dare, Mr. Robert Ayrton is most successful; Mr. Harry Barham plays well as Dick, the same remark applying to Mr. Sidney Fienes as Stephen Brand; Miss Maggie Hobart is deserving of praise as Little Miriam; and Miss Harriett Lloydall is capital as Auntie Zeb, a negress.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The premier attraction here is Carl Hertz, in a gigantic show of illusions, including his latest sensation, "The Bridal Chamber." This trick is a particularly fascinating one, and leaves the audience completely spellbound; Miss Emiline D'Alton is a charming assistant. At the other end of the bill is Peggy Pryde, who keeps the audience in the merriest of moods. Lieutenant Travis gives a thoroughly enjoyable ventriloquial show; the Wartenburg Bros., the clever novelty double-foot equilibrists, score a well-deserved success; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians and patterers, create hearty laughter. Kitty Wager, a pretty comedienne; the funny Karno Four, in their comic pantomime, The Dinner Hour; Fred Poplar, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Carlotta de Yonson and company are presenting the detective drama, Sexton Blake, which is eliciting unstinted praise. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile as Sexton Blake, Carlotta de Yonson as Leah Coursell, and Mr. Charles A. Carlile as the Master Criminal play the leading rôles in good style. The variety portion is contributed to by the Sisters West, duettists and dancers; Reilly and Templeton, with their comedy creation, The Dutchman and His Girl; George Bendon, the white coon; Mlle. Rosella, the graceful lady gymnast; Andy Burn, comedian and dancer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company is appearing here this week in The Blind Foundling. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps' interpretation of Gerald Dalton is highly commendable; Mr. Frank Harvey admirably represents the part of Parson Ray; Miss Belle Tilbury shows considerable power as the heartless Isabel; Fairy, the blind foundling, is sympathetically and ably rendered by Miss Mabel Hall; Miss Aline T. George is a pleasing Viola Waterford. The lighter side of the play is entrusted to Mr. H. Tilbury and Miss Trixie Toole as Dick Bobbins and Winnie Dobbins respectively.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer brings a strong company with a répertoire of notable plays. From Washerwoman to Duchess, a version of Madame Sans Gêne, of which the talented tragedienne is herself the authoress, was staged on Monday evening, and cordially received. The Fouché of Mr. F. Skein, the Lefebvre of Mr. Robert Pittard, and the Adrian of Mr. Leonard Cheeham were interpretations of sterling merit; while Mr. Sydney Bland gave an interesting study of Napoleon; and Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer was seen to advantage in the leading rôle of Catherine; with Miss Rita Sponti a pleasing Rosalie. Mary Queen of Scots was played on Tuesday, Mrs. Palmer appearing with much power and pathos as the unhappy Queen, ably supported by Messrs. Skein, Cheetham, Pittard, and Bland in the principal male rôles, and Miss Katherine Herbert as Queen Elizabeth. East Lynne, Sapho, and Jane Shore have also been included in an attractive week's bill.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—For the Race Week no better attraction could have been secured than a return visit of The Toreador, excellently presented by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Miss Florence Wood is a charming Dora Selby, singing and dancing delightfully; and Miss Mabel Gregory is a fascinating Nancy. Much capital is made of Mrs. Hoppings by Miss Gwen Clifford; Miss Leah Howard is a very successful Susan; and Miss Nina Carlton gives the requisite dramatic touch to the part of Teresa. Mr. Robert Rous as Sammy and Mr. Fred Thompson as Archie are thoroughly amusing; and Mr. J. Herbert Willis is happily fitted as Trail. As the Toreador, Mr. S. Granville is all that can be desired. Mr. Lin Levahin conducts a capital chorus and well-balanced orchestra.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Nat Clifford is making a hit on his first appearance, his style being intensely amusing. The Bensons have also caught on; and J. B. Selph, the Lombards, Brull and Hemsley, and T. C. Edwards contribute varied and taking turns. An effective film of a run with the Fitzwilliam hounds is shown through Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

Central Hall.—Dinah Morris and her company are here in The Lost Coon, in which Miss Morris's singing and dancing are highly attractive. Miss Bessie Morris also being thoroughly successful. Individual turns of high merit are given by Miss Cissy Lambeth, operatic vocalist; Lulu Franks, speciality dancer; Master Longman, champion boy dancer; James Milbrook, a talented coloured vocalist; George Vasit, tenor; Warman, Wallace, and Co., in The Broken Exchange; Staffo, the juggling butcher; Arden and Arley, comedians; Lily Vanders, acrobatic dancer; the Dinahscope, with new pictures; Sydney Studholm, in a clever acrobatic trampoline act. Mr. Crandon Bevan is the musical conductor of a bright show, which is under the general management of Mr. Jack Morris.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The city on the Mersey, which, in former times, week; Miss Florence St. John and company please immensely with the comedy Quits; the remarkable degree of training shown by Marzella's birds has elicited admiration; a neat instrumental act is provided by Florence and Lillian; Stylo pleases with his hoop manipulation; and the list also contains the names of Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; Henry Coutis and company, with a smart quick-change production, entitled Outflanked; Charles Robinson, who has some pretty picture songs; and Edward E. Ford, comedian.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Plenty of laughter has been caused here by Hymack, a comedian of considerable talent; Tschernoff's animals have been watched with interest; H. C. Barry, well known in Liverpool, had several excellent songs; the vocalism of Park's Eton Boys earned loud applause; much fun was caused by Burns and Burns, with their trifle Fun in a Museum; Boy Glenn proved exceedingly interesting with his smart patter; some clever acrobatic work was performed by the Garganis Trio; and also in the list were Ryder Slone, with a song scena; and the Students, with their speciality, under the direction of Mr. Wallis Arthur.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. James Marks.—A capital all-round programme is submitted here this week. At the top is Irma Lorraine, whose charming tableaux-vivants have been much admired; Jack and Evelyn, a popular comedy couple, bring their latest amusing creations; Lloyd Morgan, the new vocal comedian, was heartily approved; the Brown and Kelly combination provoked endless laughter with their absurdity The Butler Knows; Rose Hamilton proved a vivacious comedienne; a capital turn was that presented by Will Van Allen, tramp musician and raconteur; as an Anglo-Dutch commedienne and dancer Blanche Holt gave every satisfaction; and Constance Moir, comedienne and speciality dancer, and Mark Leslie, coon comedian and dancer, also appeared with credit.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company remain another week, presenting the sketch My Dear Irish Home on the Banks of the Shannon. G. H. Keith renders some catchy songs; Harry Mansell sings and dances in good style; and the Sisters Clifton, duettists and dancers, also appear.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Wilmot.—Bioscope pictures of the siege of Port Arthur constitute the principal feature of the progamme here this week. In the variety portion are Lillie Le Breton, trapeze artist; Violet Ashcoft, vocalist; and Joe Conway, comedian.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur E. Vaughan; General-Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—For three nights this week Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company appeared in the melodrama, A Beautiful Fiend. Mr. Beaudyn's impersonation of Ivan Paulovitch is a thoroughly good all-round portrayal; and the same may be said of Mr. J. P. McBride as Count Fedor Karateff. Sergius Strogoff is in the capable hands of Mr. Herbert Skardon; Miss Irene Munro as Nadine Karateff does a difficult part full justice; Miss Sidney Crowe as Wanda Lubinoff (the beautiful fiend) is excellent, her dramatic byplay being very telling; Malachi (Mr. W. Robertson Foulis) and Christopher Crackles (Mr. Harry Oates) are in good hands.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Beaudyn's company is here this week with A Beautiful Fiend. The cast is a powerful one, and includes Miss Sidney Crowe, who presents a fine study of Wanda Lubinoff. Mr. Montague Beaudyn is seen to great advantage as Ivan Paulovitch; Mr. J. P. McBride makes an excellent Count Karateff; and Mr. Harry Oates ably supplies the humour of the piece as Christopher Crackles. Miss Irene Munro, as Nadine Karateff, gives the right touch of pathos to the rôle; and Miss Annie Clunn is good as Patty Woodlands.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Chas. March's company is paying a return visit this week in The Gamester of Metz. As Paul Baldot Mr. March proves himself an actor of ability, and is particularly smart in his various disguises in the third act; Mr. Wilfred Protheroe is suitably placed as Captain Badaire; and equally successful is Mr. Geo. Harle as Louis Badaire. Clever character-sketches are submitted by Messrs. P. Wentworth and W. A. Brayne (Martin); Miss Una Lake is sweetly sympathetic as Paul Baldot's sister; and Miss Eva Lyndhurst does well in the small part of the Countess Baldot.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The eighteenth week of Living Pictures at this house shows no diminution in the large crowds that throng this building nightly, and the marked success which has distinguished the season is due both to the brilliant programme submitted week after week, and the admirable manner in which the pictures are selected and shown, their value being considerably enhanced by the descriptive lecture which accompanies them. The variety numbers are all good. Prince Ishmael and Mdlle. Valeria, Hindoo illusionists, top the bill; Alf. Bishop and Jim Hegarty are also well received.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Packed houses this week have accorded an enthusiastic reception to Miss Winifred Chalmers's company in The Master Criminal. Mr. H. L. Osmond in the title-rôle gives a realistic impersonation; and Mr. H. C. Macartney submits a good study of Phillip Manners. Miss Winifred Chalmers enthralls the audience by her fine portrayal of Lady Trayennes; Miss Kate Somerville charmingly portrays the part of Mabel Manners; and little Lizzie Power wins the favour of the house as Winifred. Miss Mabel Tremere is diverting as Peggy Perks, and, in conjunction with Mr. H. Cooke as Tommy Dale, make many merry moments. Mr. J. C. Carlyle as the detective, Ben Beaudry, is a good character-study; and Mr. E. Nobel is amusing as Gentleman Jim.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Another good programme this week is headed by Mlle. Lumière, speciality fire dancer; Mme. Haydee submits a clever marionette act; Kloof and Ramsey, instrumentalists and vocalists, cause hearty laughter; Counsell and Mills are popular in their sketch, On the Stage; Les Henris, gymnasts and equilibrists, perform some clever feats; the Bros. Brooks, speciality artists, are amusing; and Miss Rosie Bartlett, vocalist; the Sisters Brand, duettists; Delafiore, instrumentalist; and the Bioscope complete the bill.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmundstone Shirra.—A return visit of What the Butler Saw was welcomed here on Monday by a large audience, that manifested the fullest appreciation of the clever and amusing qualities of the play. Miss Ada Blanche as Mrs. Barrington, Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink, the butler, and Mr. Charles Fawcett as the good-tempered Irishman, Jack Barrington, are the three with whom the greatest responsibility lies, and it is needless to say that their efforts are wholly successful. The numerous subsidiary rôles are also in good hands, and the entire performance is as entertaining as the most exacting playgoer could desire.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. Charles Steuart introduced here on Monday Mr. Michael Morton's successful novelty, The Little Stranger, in which the wonderful boy-actor, Edward Garratt, appeared in the part of the Baby, as played by him in London. Plenty of laughter accompanied the action, and the entire cast played with a distinctly intelligent idea of the effect it was intended to produce. Mr. Charles Steuart was excellent as the proud, embarrassed father, and as the mother of the weirdly-developing infant Miss Mary Allestree exhibited her wonderment and distress in a manner remarkably convincing. Miss Dora Hole as the nurse was also very good, and Mr. Fred Epitaux contributed a life-like impersonation of Eames, the butler. As Alec Howard, Mr. Charles Hanbury added much to the cheerful spirit of his part; Mr. Charles A. Doran's attitudinising as Paul Vronsky was excellent; and capital character sketches were contributed by Mr. Stanley Lathbury as the General, Mr. Arnold Lucy as Sir George Peacock, Miss Christine Rayner as Effie, Miss Mary Stuart as Mrs. Allenby, and Miss Alice Clayton Greene as Lady Peacock. The pleasing curtain-raiser, Dream Faces, deserves a word of praise.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company are here this week in Sutro's play, The Perfect Lover, which was introduced to Manchester audiences for the first time on Monday night. The play is, of course, interesting, and full of smart and cultured passages of dialogue, which are brought out neatly by the cast. Mr. Harold V. Neilson gives a strong rendering of Tremblett; Miss Amy Sangster as Lilian acts with her usual ease and charm; and Mr. Bernard Limpus presents a good idea of Lord Cardew. Others who distinguished themselves are Mr. W. Lemmon Warde as William Tremblett and Miss Gertrude Sterroll as the Hon. Susan Lesson; and the remaining parts are in capable hands.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Lydia Donovan presents here this week Frank M. Thorne's drama, Her One Great Sin. The company is a good one. Miss Lydia Donovan as Grace Warhurst, the erring wife, acts with great ability and convincing pathos; and as Arnold Thornhill Mr. C. Quinton Fulford has a part that suits him admirably. Mr. Fred Hodson and Miss Nellie Lambert are responsible for much humour as Jerry Jumble and Nancy Winpenny, and among others who agreeably support the principa's Miss Maudie Lambert is deserving of praise as a really clever juvenile.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Fanny Robina, the ever-popular comedienne, tops the bill here this week, and meets with a good reception. Florry Cooper sings "The Stars are Angel Faces" in fine style; Bessie Travis is highly successful as a ventriloquist; Les Valdos are funny in their motor-'bus sketch; Huline and Le May cause much merriment with their musical absurdities; and the dancing of the Czar's Royal Russian Troupe is clever and amusing. Other good turns are those of Little Tim, a quaint comedian; Amurat, musical athlete; and Billie Bint, comedian. On the occasion of our visit Gilroy and Gross, who figure on the programme, did not appear. The Animated Pictures are interesting.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company is here this week in a sensational drama entitled The Trail of Sin. The principal parts are in the able hands of Mr. F. H. Neville, Mr Fawcett Lomax, and Miss Ethel Tooney, and the piece is well staged. The Ticket-of-Leave Man is down for the second half of the week.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is still entertaining local audiences with their sensational sporting drama, Bound to Win. The principal parts are in the able hands of Mr. George Steel, Miss Violet Langley, Miss Kate Froude, Mr. J. Franklin, and Mr. Edward Fryer; while the humorous element is cleverly exploited by Mr. Arnold H. Allen, Mr. Dick Seddon, and Miss Effie Macintosh. Thoroughbred horses appear in the racecourse scene.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Flanagan's production of Othello, apart from its general excellence of interpretation and staging, has every appearance of establishing a record for itself in the number of different actors who have been called upon to assume the title-rôle. Mr. Harcourt Williams, who followed Mr. Matheson Lang, is now succeeded by Mr. Lawson Butt. Each interpretation will be remembered as distinct from the others; and, for the audience, these changes amount to a somewhat striking lesson in comparisons. The production remains extremely popular.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Mr. Fred Kitchen as Dame Trot, in the Karno pantomime, The House that Jack Built, is again the attraction here this week, and a sufficiently powerful one. Dare's Minstrels are also prominent, in a negroistic act of great merit; and excellent turns are added by Ike Scott and Son, comedians and dancers; Speedwell, the lightning painter; Fernie's Juveniles, a smart combination of youthful talent; the Vetter Brothers, in a fine equilibristic act; and Lily Tiso, vocalist and dancer. The Biograph shows a series of amusing pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Van Biene, the famous actor-musician, is the top star here this week in a playlet entitled The Master Musician, introducing several 'cello selections in his usual excellent style, and ably supported by Miss Rose Summers and Miss Lena Burnleigh. A highly sensational item is provided by K. P. Speedy, the world's highest diver, who dives from a height of 130 feet into the arena lake. Exceedingly clever and amusing are Newhouse and Ward in their trick cycling act; and the Coloured Meisters are entertaining vocalists. Orpheus scores a big success in his musical scena; Gladys Mavius is an excellent dancer, and along with her assistant "Dot" is well received; Azella Wilson is a charming and graceful gymnast; and Carney and Armstrong sing and whistle well, and cause some amusement. Vocal items by the choir, and "The Wonderful Electric Belt," shown on the Bioscope, complete the programme.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The principal feature of this week's programme is The Woman Who Was, played by Arthur Roberts and company—an excellent entertainment. Holden's mannikins supply a clever and pleasing turn; Herbert Shelley sings some good songs; and Carl Lynn is a capital mimic of animals; while Jessie Merrilees is a pleasing vocalist; Jack Pleasants, comedian, is quaint and popular; Ricardo and Spalding present a remarkable equilibristic novelty; and Henry Bekker is a smart conjurer. The Palace Pictures are immensely entertaining.

GRAND.—Jasper Redfern's Pictures are excellent. The show includes the Electric Belt, a startling entertainment; the Three Derbys, comedy risley experts; Binns and Binns, cross-talk comedians; Alex Royal, comedian; and the Lavails, in their sensational aerial act.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The top turn here this week is the Smart Set of vocal entertainers, under the direction of Walter George. Henry Carlton, the popular character-sketch comedian, supported by a clever company is also prominent; and good turns are added by Mack Ollive, the well-known sifflеur and dancer; George Hyam, comedian; Mac and Hill, patter comedians; Nell Cotter, comedienne and dancer; Pueblo and Cropp, clever creole artists; the Saxonias, in a fine musical act; and Billy Richardson, the well-known stump orator. The pictures are good.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Charles Majilton and company are appearing here this week with great success in that amusing sketch Round the Clock. The Woodwards are clever and original in a cycle act; Cribb and Cribb are smart patterers and singers; Bert and Dora are capital comedy artists; Dawson Dewick, comedian, makes a hit; Doris Middleton is a charming juvenile artist; L. B. Athol is a good actor-vocalist; and the singing collier, Godfrey James, sings well. "The Prospectors" is the subject of the Bioscope Pictures.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Alan Holt's company is seen to advantage here this week in an effective dramatic episode, entitled A Society Woman, introducing a sensational fight rivalling that in Humanity. Madge Temple, the well-known comedienne, sings in her most charming manner; and some capital dancing is done by Harry Ray and Lillie Calden in their comedy act, and by the Sisters St. Julian, duettists. Fred Herbert, an up-to-date vocalist, makes a hit; and smart turns are also those of Daisy Silcott, burlesque actress; Jack Heath, comedian; and Harry Luck, comedian. The Howes and La Rochelle still remain in the programme, as successful as ever.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—a good all-round programme is offered here this week, headed by the Welsh Wanderers, who sing sweetly and are delightful harpists. The Tennessee Guards go through some smart military manœuvres; and Hauptmann Marquis Jtonye, in his equilibristic act, is excellent. The Elvio Comedy Trio, in a knockabout absurdity, are well received; and entertaining turns are furnished by the Sprangelettis with their miniature circus; Sam Shipley, eccentric, character, and dialect comedian and dancer; Beattie Worth, comedienne; Barfoot and Casson, comedy artists; and the Gentrys, in an acrobatic speciality. Acting as deputy for Charles Rutland, comedian, Vernando provided, on the occasion of our visit, a decidedly clever and original ventriloquial act, which is deservedly well received. The Bioscope Pictures are vastly amusing.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Cecil Clayton.—Mr. Gus Levaine's company have produced the pantomime, Cinderella, to good houses during the week. Miss Dora Denmark is a first-class Prince Charming; in the title-rôle, Miss Lizzie Levaine is charming, and receives great appreciation for her singing; as the valet, Dandini, Miss Fanny Collins is warmly applauded; Mr. Arthur Collins is a capital Baron; and as Pepper, the page, Lord Tom Doddy is quite at home. In the hands of Messrs. Cecil Webb and D'Arcy Mould, the Ugly Sisters cause a great amount of merriment; Miss Ada Conway is well suited to her part. The scenery and staging is praiseworthy. Among a large array of specialities are the Zola Troupe, acrobats; the Alpine Brothers; the Ruby Quartette, dancers; and several others.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Good houses have been the rule here this week, during which Messrs. Power and Kirby's capable company present the drama, Man's Enemy. Mr. John Power plays the character of Tom Drake in a capable manner; in the exacting part of Harry Stanton, Mr. Norman Overton proves himself an actor of great power and ability; Mr. Wm. Jeans is a soldierly General Sir Arthur Stanton; Fred Lisle is capably portrayed by Mr. T. Arthur Ellis; Mr. Fred Owen gives an excellent interpretation of the character of the kind and honest Jew, Isaac Barnett; in the humorous part of Adolphe D'Embonpoint, Mr. Herbert Claremont is successful; Miss May Grayce gives a very feeling interpretation of the rôle of Grace Leslie; as Sarah Drake, Miss Constance Medwyn is excellent; Miss Fanny James causes great merriment as Polly Harris, the servant; and little Mabel Spencer is good as Nellie Saunders. All the other characters are ably sustained.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Stage and Business Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—The Margate stock company has been presenting during the week the four-act drama Captain Swift, and the piece has been cleverly played and very favourably received. The title-rôle is finely sustained by Mr. A. Austin-Leigh; Miss Mabel Archdall as Stella contributes largely to the success; Mr. Robert Grey is remarkably good as Mr. Gardiner; and Mr. H. G. Mason does well as Marshall. Miss Emmie O'Reilly makes a powerful Mrs. Seabrook.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Mr. Arnold Bell's company has been appearing here twice nightly in the tabloid edition of the Adelphi drama Lost in London. Mr. Roy Jackson plays well as Gilbert Featherstone; Mr. Howard Hardy is an excellent Sir Richard Loder; the parts of the miners have been efficiently presented by Messrs. D. Clark, W. C. Gregory, Dickson Tate, and G. Graham; and Mr. Wilton Drury is particularly funny as Benjamin Blinks. Miss Lilian Earle plays the heroine, Nelly Armroyd, with care and finish; and Miss Kitty Douglas makes the most of the part of Tiddy Draglethorpe.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The premier place of honour is held by the Morton Comedy Trio, a combination of mirth and melody; the Borghetti troupe of acrobats arouse enthusiasm by their clever performance; and Mlle. Sylvesto, lady contortionist, is well received. Milner Verrin's songs are re-demanded; Sukell and Lizzette cause hearty laughter in their comedy sketch, The Crazy Cook; Fred Dunstones is popular with his songs; Nell Emerald is a charming coon artiste; and the bioscope, with capital pictures, also add to the attractiveness of the bill.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Kappo and Ella are expert gymnasts; the Canellys' speciality, "Juggling on the Lawn," is highly appreciated; the Two Leons do well as duettists and dancers; Alec Aubrey, the Welsh athlete, gives a smart show on the rings; Mlle. Melita is a clever dancer; Metzi is a talented Japanese juggler; and Cissie Kingsley is a pleasing vocalist. The biograph also supplies some very interesting pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is this week presenting here the drama, The Power of the Cross. Mr. Geo. A. de Gray gives a powerful interpretation of the mysterious character of Baron Wolfe Curzola; Mr. Chas. Linney submits a capable exposition as Gerald Fairfax; Mr. Alex. J. Haviland is equally successful as Dr. Fairfax; Mr. Frank Stephens cleverly depicts the shady lawyer, Benjamin Hawke; Mr. A. Reed does well as David Kingsley; while Mr. Richard E. Nugent is always interesting as Timothy O'Dowd. Miss Stanley Burt is entirely in sympathy with the character of the unfortunate Margaret Seaton; Miss Phyllis Vaughan is an excellent Blanche Kingsley; and the rôle of the adventuress, Rita Lascelles, is cleverly sustained by Miss Cicely Desmond.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—The new romantic drama A Warning to Women, by Mr. C. Watson Hill, is played here this week by the author's own company. Miss Rosalind Tate gives a capital rendition of the part of Moira Kennion, creating a very good impression. This week Mr. Watson Mill is seen in a new character, that of Shaun, the wandering minstrel, which he successfully portrays; Miss Ellen Beverly figures with great effect as Molly O'Moore; and Mr. Richard Vane is seen to marked advantage as Dr. Dread. Mr. Norman Cannon is capital as Fergus McNaughton, and Mr. Carter Slaughter acts with great distinction as Lord Eversleigh. Miss Grace Barton is charming as Shella Kennion, and Mr. Henry Rutland's impersonation of Squire Kennion is full of good acting. Mr. John Willerton as Sir John Harkaway and Mr. Arthur Halley as Sir Thomas Riding are all that can be desired, and Miss Ellenor Grove is pleasing as Hildred. Mr. George Harvey, Mr. Stanley Wood, Mr. B. W. Davies, Miss Phillis Brook, Miss Edith Rutland, and Miss Dolly Hope all perform their respective parts in a satisfactory manner. The piece is capitally staged.

OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's farcical comedy The Night of the Party was presented for the first time on Tees-side on Monday night, when it created a most favourable impression. The music is dainty, the scenery is beautiful, and the costumes exquisite. The whimsical Mr. Crosbie was admirably impersonated by Mr. Sebastian Smith, who commands the laughter of his audiences with wonderful readiness. A good deal of the success of the piece is due to the sprightliness of Miss Beatrice Mervyn as Lady Hampshire. Mr. Douglas Munro was very amusing as Mr. Flambert, and Miss Lilian Williams figured with great effect in the rôle of Paulina. Mr. Frank H. Denton is exceedingly funny as Mr. Frayne, and Mr. Eric Forth does full justice to the part of Sir Charles Hampshire. Miss Marion Lewis as Mrs. Young, Miss Florence French as Gipsy Vandelier, and Miss Elizabeth Maud as Baby Hastings were all that could be desired. Miss Lena Grantham was good as Nannie Portland, and Mr. Charles F. Bruce sustained the part of Mr. Roundle to perfection. Mr. Stanley Arthur was a capital Mr. Boyle, and Mr. Ernest Rivarz was good as Hargen. Other members of the company who add to the attractiveness are Mr. Arthur Bell as Alec Montressor, Mr. Charles Wilson as Horace Cloughe, Mr. Abbey as Mr. McRoth, Mr. Samuel Plinge as Captain Bleary.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges. La Pia, in a new spectacular statuary production, is the star turn here this week. In her representations of "Music," "The Mirror," "Summer," "Morning," "The Nymph," "Alone," and "Liberty," La Pia was superb to a degree, and the added effects of the falling waters give the finishing touch to a lavishly magnificent bit of stagecraft. R. H. Douglas, a monologue artist, creates roars of laughter with his clever impersonation of a barrister in a breach of promise case; and Daisy Mayer scores heavily with her coon songs and dancing. The New Macs cause much laughter with their songs and patter, as do also the Dalgarnos in their comedy duologue Caught Napping. Alice Blandford is an excellent singer, and Kerr and Koe score in their absurdity Yards and Houses. Other turns are provided by the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers, Johnny Dwyer, comedian, and the Empire Pictures.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. Griffiths.—Tom Foy, a popular Middlesbrough favourite, is paying a return visit here this week in his sketch The Yorkshire Lad in London, and his quaint humour keeps the house in a constant ripple of laughter. Foy's Comedians cause much laughter in their sketch Jolly Tars in China; and Harry Nelson, the great comedian, who is here another week, fully maintains his reputation. The Two Anartos give a pleasing musical turn, and the Dancing Gilberts score. Fraser and Mac, comedy artists, do well, and Jessie Star is an excellent vocalist. Other turns are provided by Gladys and Alber and the Palascope.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is this week appearing in a series of plays, including The Taming of the Shrew, The Merchant of Venice, and As You Like it. Miss Dorothy Green appeared with great success as Rosalind; Celia was sweetly played by Miss Louise Graeme; Mr. Charles Francis was exceptionally fine as Orlando; Touchstone was drolly depicted by Mr Ross Shore; Mr. Gerald Ames acted with dignity as the Banished Duke; and that sterling actor Mr. Henry Herbert contributed a finished piece of work as the melancholy Jaques. The parts of Silvius and Corin were excellently limned by Mr. Philip Merivale and Mr. Esme Filmer; Phœbe had an exceedingly apt impersonator in Miss Mary Webb, and mention should be made of the singing of Miss Webb as Amiens.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—This week Charles Harrington's No. 1 company is producing Uncle Tom's Cabin. The title-rôle finds a faithful exponent in Mr. J. Carr; whilst Eva is sweetly played by little Miss Hazelwood. Leslie Beaufort renders a good account of himself as Geo. Harris, the runaway; Eliza being touchingly portrayed by Miss Hathaway. The character of Legree is powerfully sketched by Mr. H. Rogers; Phineas Fletcher, the Quaker, is carefully treated by Mr. J. H. Remney; Mr. Chas. Harrington acts efficiently the rôle of Mr. St. Clair; whilst as Marks, the lawyer, Mr. W. Langford creates plenty of amusement. Miss Sylvia Stella shows praiseworthy insight in delineating Topsy. She scored a great success in singing "Miss Snow," the dance being cleverly executed. The other specialities which are introduced in the plantation scene were equally good.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—On Monday evening Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield's company presented their powerful and romantic drama entitled The Tyrant. Mr. Fred. C. Somerfield as Homodie gives an excellent rendering of that character; Mr. Roy Fortescue is admirable as Angelo; Mr. Lionel Atwil as Rudolph is also good; the humour of the piece is well looked after by Mr. Percy Brown as Victor; Mr. Alec Findlater is a dashing Lieut. Tasker; whilst Messrs. Geary and Wade as Abrossi and Roderic do well in their respective parts. Miss Millie Ford is an excellent Lady Katherine, Miss Lallah Shelton scores heavily as Eulie, and Miss Olive Lloyd is successful as Regmella; and Miss Marie Dagmar's acting is a tower of strength, and she, along with the other members of the company, is accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The Freedom of Suzanne, from the pen of Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox, on the occasion of its present visit to Newcastle is staged at the Theatre Royal. As Suzanne Miss Mabel Love now appears, and she is seen to advantage in a character on the impersonation of which the success of the whole piece really hangs. Mr. Templer Powell ably fills the part of Charles Trevor; and very clever and amusing is Mr F. G. Thurstans as Fitzroy Harding. Creditable studies of the trio of worshippers of Suzanne are furnished by Mr. J. Hastings Batson, Mr. Townsend Whitling, and Mr. Richard Neville. Others in the cast, and forming a well-balanced company, are Mr. Gerald Alexander, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Bruce Smith, Miss Annie Stalman, Miss Florence Harwood, Miss Violet Ley, Miss Dorothy Lart, Mrs. F. Turner, and Mr. I. Young.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—A great attraction at this theatre this week is the musical extravaganza The New Aladdin. Mr. George Edwardes has sent an excellent company. Mr. George Gregory, a favourite with North-country audiences, is irrepressibly funny as Tippin; Mr. John Brabourne, with his easy, stolid style, gives a decidedly artistic and highly-diverting impersonation of the Lost Constable; a capital impression is made as the Genie of the Lamp by Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., who scores heavily in songs and dances, the "No-Hat Brigade" skit being one of the best items of the evening; the acting, singing, and dancing of Miss Cressie Leonard, who fills the part of Aladdin, are excellent; and Miss Ida Rene as the Princess sings with characteristic spirit and humour. Others sharing in the honours of the entertainment are Mr. William Spray, Mr. Frank Hector, Mr. Ernest Mahar, and Miss Irene Verona. The staging and chorus are well up to the standard of productions sent from the Gaiety Theatre.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing - Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The visit of Arthur Prince is another huge success. His ventriloquial exhibition is of the best, his success with the "Middy" being a feature of the performance. The Three Merrills, comedy cyclists, introduce several novel items, and earn well-merited applause; the Harwood Juveniles, in a delightful scena, A Children's Christmas Eve, display great talent as vocalists and dancers; and a nautical scena, "The Lost Mariners," by Bennett and Martell, is another agreeable turn; and the Two Falcons prove themselves funny and capable acrobatic equilibrists. Drum and Major are a capital comedy turn; the Primrose Quartette's vocal efforts greatly delight the audience; Myra Love proves herself to be a chic comedienne; Katie Marsh is a vocalist with a pleasing voice; and C. Somers is a capital comedian.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—La Milo, the original enamelled Venus, is the top of the bill here this week. On Monday evening she was accorded a great reception for her beautiful classical poses; Arthur Lennard proved a great favourite; his new songs all gained rapturous encores; Herbert Darnley's company sketch, Moving In, provokes roars of laughter throughout; Kitty Marion, comedienne, was in good form and greatly appreciated; whilst Goggin and Davis are a pair of eccentric comedians who do well. Lizzie Fletcher renders her songs in her own inimitable way; the Two Bostons, the novelty showmen, give a turn that is full of mirth; whilst the Neilson Sisters, comediennes and dancers, have a host of admirers. The Schenk Brothers, head and hand balancers, and the Bioscope pictures complete a capital bill.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The New Barmaid, a delightful musical comedy, is being presented here this week by Mr. Alexander Loftus's company, under the direction of Mr. E. W. Vaughan. Mr. Loftus plays Bertie White cleverly, and in combination with Mr. Jas. Grant as William White is responsible for a full measure of fun; while Mr. Chas. Adeson as Mons. Bonsor is amusing, his dancing being particularly good. Mr. Jas. Hawks sings excellently as Captain Lovebury; and Mr. Harry Collier does well as Colonel Claymore. Miss Violet Osmond as Dora Heather, Miss Grafton as Brenda Louth, and Miss Amy Preston as Ethel Joy were very attractive, and the chorus showed that they were well trained.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—Mendel, the blind pianist, who is the chief turn here, is proving attractive with exhibitions of his skill; Crystal Gazing, an interesting sketch, is presented by Mr. W. H. Day and Miss Laura Dyson; Bellonini's cockatoos perform some clever feats; and The Chaperon, a very amusing sketch, is performed by Frank Bateman and Co. Lily Burnand, a lady of charming grace, is in high favour; Carlos Cæsaro go through a wonderful naval act; Little Don causes much laughter; and Theresa de Silva sings rollicking choruses. The Bioscope, showing comical pictures, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Again Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's excellent company is presenting The Silver King to large houses. Mr. Fred. D. Daviss gives a fine and convincing rendering of Wilfred Denver, and thoroughly deserves the great success that he achieves; Miss Daisy Scudamore again charms and delights with her sympathetic presentment of Nellie Denver; and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss as Cissy is certainly one of the best and most natural of child actresses that we have had. Mr. Edward J. George is still the pet of the pit and gallery as the faithful Jaikes; Mr. L. St. John Lowther makes a very effective Spider; Mr. Arthur Wright as Elijah Coombe, Mr. George Belmore as Henry Corkett, and Mr. Warriss Lindon as Cripps are excellent. Miss Viola Holland makes a good-looking Olive Skinner; Miss Louie Hale is very amusing as Tabitha Durden; and Miss Bessie Wright is well placed as Susie.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Ella's lions are the premier attraction here this week. Four Merry Mascots provide dancing and singing that gain them applause; Cedar and Elgar give a good skit, When Knights Were Bold; Neil Hardy, comedian, is funny; Little Dando is provocative of much mirth; C. Vincent has a fresh supply of subjects; Smarte Brothers appear as acrobatic eccentrics; Chas. Cowen is another eccentric comedian; Ena Latone, chorus vocalist, makes a big hit with "Zuyder Zee"; and Phern and Phern entertain with a musical act.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A large audience assembled here on Monday to welcome Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company with Napoleon the Great. Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Napoleon created an excellent impression; Mr. Oliver Birrell was a capable Colonel Lavarennes; Mr. Phil Harper a good Colonel Jules Meuron; Paul Lakinska was in the able hands of Mr. Bartlett Garth; Mr. Frank M. Thorne gave a capital representation of Pierre Pompennet; Mr. Albert Sinclair scored as Sergt. Choupin; and Mr. C. Acton Dix made the most of Monsieur Fouché. Miss Leslie Warner was a charming Marie Walenska; Miss Maud Russell an interesting Leonie Marbœuf; Miss Marie Harcourt a pleasing Marcelle; and Miss Florence Thorne was seen to advantage as Mère Dumont.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Lady Julia, the human ape, in her clever performance, is attracting good houses here; the Four Watsons, vocal, musical, and comedy artists, are as successful as ever; Messrs. De Vere and Kenwick, with their burlesque pictures, are popular; and Miss Ada Whitton, male impersonator, makes a great hit. Mlle. Pollo, gymnast, is very smart; Messrs. Sandes and Vincent, comedy artists, are funny; and the Bio-photoscope is still popular.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is the attraction this week in The Traitor Prince. Mr. George M. Montanini presents a powerfully dramatic embodiment of the title-rôle; Miss Kate Walford's Vashti is a clever delineation; Mr. Lincoln corded to Little Emmie Thomas as Meg, especially in her song "Daddy"; and Miss Lissa Young is favourably received as Bobby Trott. Miss Mary Fulton is praiseworthy as Margaret Daventry; and Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam displays much ability as Kate Cherry. The other characters, including those represented by Miss Jenny Bostock, are ably filled, and render admirable assistance. The scenery is very effective.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The attractions here this week are the famous Craggs, in their mirthful sketch, and the clever tricks they introduce are much appreciated; the Carbiacs are also an excellent acrobatic turn; Howard and St. Clare keep their reputation for amusement in their tit-bit, Do You Want to Buy any Coke? the Norman and Leonard Trio are successful in The Itinerant; Gillen is a novel ventriloquist, and takes well; Rosie Archer, the lady mimic, is very entertaining; Annie Casey is a pleasing comedienne; Charles Carol is good as a comedian; and the Hippo. Bioscope is most interesting.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Lady Dandies opened on Monday to a crowded and expectant house, and many recalls were the result of a fine performance. Miss Anna Hickish invested La Merveilleuse with a charm and delightful energy that compelled frequent applause, and her vocalism retained all its customary skill and effect; Miss Ada Thomas captivated the audience by her cultured and tasteful rendering of the music allotted to Liane; and the enjoyable singing of Miss Deborah Vojar won a deserved share of recognition; Mr. Harold Thorley is to be congratulated on his excellent use of a fine baritone voice; and Mr. Robert Hale gave the fullest expression to his numbers as An Incroyable; Mr. Eric Thorne's comedy talent has never been better placed than in the rôle of St. Amour, his amusing patter and topical songs completely convulsing the house. He was capitally assisted by Mr. Lennox Pawle (Tournesol) and Mr. Jack Cannot (Malicorne), both of whom also scored considerably in their topical songs. Les Merveilleuses were well represented by Misses Mabel Hirst, Barbara Dunbar, Daphne Earle, Kate Milner, and Flora Chetwynd; and the clever dancing of Miss Vivien Vowles (a Nottingham young lady) produced an enthusiastic demonstration.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The company of Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Esmond present The Golden Ladder here this week. Mr. William Clayton gives a polished performance of the manly young cleric Frank Thornhill; and Miss Elsie Marriott Watson admirably depicts the earnest and womanly heroine Lilian Grant; Mr. J. Milne-Taylor plays with fine subtlety as the oily and audacious Michael Severn; and he is capably assisted in his scheming by Mr. Douglas Howard as Peranza; the Jim Dixon of Mr. Fred Archer is also a well thought out piece of acting. The humorous element is capably interpreted by Mr. Fred May as Mr. Samuel Peckaby and Miss Nelly Graham as Mrs. Peckaby, their amusing sayings evoking frequent laughter. Miss Nina Vesta as Victoria Alexandra, and Miss Beattie Wilson as the Tearer, also add to the merriment, and other parts are well filled.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker. — The return visit of Miss Hetty King, the successful male impersonator, is greeted with enthusiasm, and large audiences testify nightly to the popularity she has achieved; Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford in the sketch Getting Even exhibit a versatility which produces an excellent impression; and Arabella Allen, in impersonations from Charles Dickens's novels, shows a wonderful power of adaptation; D'Arc's Marionettes, with their life-like imitations of popular music hall artists, command well-deserved applause; and the efforts of Horace Jones, the Welsh comedian, meet with well-merited recognition. Amongst the most graceful acrobats and tumblers on tour must certainly be counted the Trapnell family; whilst Les Uniques present an attractive and interesting performance on their beautifully illuminated ladders; Clarence C. Corri's sketch, introducing Miss Gladys Hooley, the violinist, is worthy of special mention; and Mr. Arthur Severn's singing receives its due reward. A series of excellent pictures complete an altogether commendable programme.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Robert Crossman's No. 1 company is appearing here this week in the successful musical comedy Sergeant Brue. The name-part is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Reynolds, and his songs are given in an artistic manner; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy as Michael sings delightfully; and Miss Mary Hay is very bright as Aurora. Miss Marion Hargrave is excellent as Daisy; Miss Ethel Ivemy is very good as Mabel Widget; Miss Cissy Raymond as Lady Birchenall renders her songs in a capital manner; Mr. H. Soutar as Matthew Habisham, Mr. E. Mozar as Gerald Treherne, Mr. A. Forrester as Mr. Lamb, are deserving of mention; and Mr. Clarence Ibbetson appears as Crookey Scrubbs with much success. Other parts are played in a praiseworthy manner by Misses Leslie, Ford Rawlinson, and Keith, and Messrs. Hood, Robertson, and Sims. An augmented orchestra and a strong chorus are well to the fore under the bâton of Mr. Sydney Shaw.

Colosseum.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr Fred Jarman's company in the Russian drama Under the Czar, is here. The cast includes Mr. Wilson Howard as Nicholas Yerosolaff, and he acts in a highly-finished manner; Mr. G. H. Doyle is good as the villainous Major Kovesky; Mr. Carl Vallender as Alexis Petroff, and Mr. L. Weston as Paul Ignat, are responsible for the comedy. Mr. Gerald Smythe scores as Captain Johnson, as does Mr. A. E. Rose as Major Suvaroff. Miss Nellie Bonser is charming in the character of Sonio Gregorvitch, the heroine; Miss Beatrice Annersley is capital as Siomka; and Miss Madge Clare is excellent as Rara Bhura.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Miss Lil Hawthorne is at the head of a capital programme this week, and her latest successes are well received; George Formby is an amusing comedian; Nada Moret scores with "Dargai"; the Five Jaunitas give a marvellous acrobatic vaulting act; and Karr and Cooney, comedians, cause much laughter in their vaudeville act. Lillian Lowe is a delightful vocalist; and the Five Whiteleys are smart in their acrobatic, wire-walking, musical tions gain much applause; Miss Ena Compton, comedienne, appears with great success; as does Arthur Roscoe, comedian. The Royal Dottoscope concludes with a capital film.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Lillie Langtry, comedienne, keeps the audience in capital humour with her excellent songs; the King's College Boys are received with much favour; Tiny Arnold, song and dance artist, is much appreciated; Sandy and Carl are refined comedians; and Cantora sings songs of the nations in costume very nicely. Tom Moore is a good character comedian; and A Night's Frivolity is presented by W. Bellian's company in a very amusing manner. The Dottoscope is again showing new pictures.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorritt.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in The Christian, is proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Grace Chalmers gives a capital performance of Glory Quayle, holding her audience right through the play; and Miss Molly Hayden agreeably fills the part of Mrs. Callander. Mr. Frank Tennant acts with great power as John Storm, and looks the rôle as well as he acts it; Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy are capitally played by Messrs. E. Ling and C. E. Dering; Mr. F. Scarth gives a careful and finished representation of Lord Robert Ure; and Mr. Frank Beresford imparts great interest to the character of Horatio Drake; while the Faro King and the Manager of the Colosseum find excellent exponents in Messrs. B. Conway and F. Pounds. The scenery is elaborate and the play well mounted.

East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, Winifred Stuart and Mr. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walters's company opened here on Monday evening to a very full house with the pantomime, Babes in the Wood. The piece goes from start to finish with a delightful swing. Mr. Ernest Thirlway makes a capital Baron Wheresmecash; and is ably supported by Messrs. Traynor and O'Connor as Blustering Bill and Wavering Wally. Mr. Ally Benson gives an admirable exhibition of his powers as a sifleur, and as Dame Flossie causes considerable fun; Mr. Frank Standart makes the most of Soft Tommy; the Landor Brothers prove themselves clever acrobats; and Binks as Policeman Run-em-in gives some capital imitations. Miss Lillie Miller looks natural and effective as Robin Hood; and Miss Fanny Adamson wins all hearts as Maid Marian, her "Fishing" song being greatly appreciated. Miss Jessie Yondi is a dainty Dolly Dimple; praise is due to Miss Sally Hooley and Baby Blyth for their excellent and natural performance as the Babes, Bertie and Cissie; the Emerald Quartette contribute some effective dances; and the scenery is capital.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, under the direction of Mr. O. Silverstone, is presenting this week the sensational drama, The Female Swindler. Miss Grace E. Leslie as Lu Valroy makes a detestable character, histrionically attractive, and she receives excellent support from Mr. Stanley Radcliffe, who is an excellent Geoffrey Warden. Mr. Joseph Millane enacts with praiseworthy zeal the part of John Coulson; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray gives a capital rendering of James Oliver; Mr. Henry Wright scores in his various disguises as the humorous detective, Billy Binks; a capital study of Abraham Mikestein is supplied by Mr. John Belton; Harold Travers is played with dramatic force and effect by Mr. Guy P. Ellis; Mr. D. Winstow as Detective Dixon is quite satisfactory; Miss Florrie Kelsey as May Andrews achieves an unqualified success; Miss Mary Dawson capably accounts for Mary Ann Mee; and Miss Edith Gray is praiseworthy as Mrs. Poppem.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager. Mr. Frank Wilson.—Exceptionally good turns are the order here this week. The Five Bogannys, in their Risley performance as "The Lunatic Bakers," create much merriment; W. J. Ashcroft, the original "solid man," is accorded a very warm reception; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, assisted by Little Cluley, are amusing and entertaining; the Sisters Terry, vocalists and dancers, are well received; Oakdene, ventriloquist, does a highly-pleasing turn; clever and exceedingly funny is the comedy act, The Doctor and His Patient, by George Helm and Emmie Cozens; George C. Doughty and Co., in a comedy scena, Captain Cupid, are applauded; and the Hippodrome Bioscope graphically portrays the comicalities of Little Tich.

PERTH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The celebrated Compton Comedy Company, whose yearly advent is so eagerly looked forward to, is drawing crowded houses nightly. The répertoire includes Edmund Kean, The Gentleman in Gray, Davy Garrick, and School for Scandal. As Edmund Kean, Mr. Edward Compton is accorded quite an ovation, and fully upholds his reputation as a leading comedian; Mr. Dennis Cleugh depicts the part of Lord Murcott with well-timed force and judgment; Mr. G. Wallace Johnston shows excellent points in Sir Hugh Lidcombe; Mr. Henry Crocker, an old Fair City favourite, in Jabberer, reaches a high order of talent; Mr. Herbert C. Brett proves an invaluable Tibbs; Messrs. Arthur Elsmore and S. Cole Winton are successful strolling players; and Mr Charles Rogers is an ideal landlord. Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree is suitably adapted to the rôle of Benskin, as also is Mr. Montague Lane to that of Cinderberry, and Mr. Philip Gordon is all that is required of Shekelton. Miss Phyllis Ralph wins special approval as Lady Lidcombe; Miss Marian Le Strange is suitably placed as Ophelia to Kean's Hamlet; Misses Sarhara Pigot, Marie Hassell, Rose Parker, and Nellie Walters are prominent; and Miss Mackenzie is all that can be desired as Amy Sellaer.

PETERBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Crowded houses witnessed the performance of The Sign of the Cross on Monday and Tuesday, played by Mr. William Greet's company. Mr. Wallace G. Court was responsible for an excellent impersonation of Marcus Superbus; the Nero of Mr. Burton W. Yaldwyn was thoroughly good; so, too, was the Tigellinus of Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews. Miss Nancy York appeared with great success as Mercia; Miss Dorothy Lambert made a delightful Dacia; and Berenice was charmingly portrayed by Miss Lena Gordon; while Miss Kathleen Day as Poppœa and Miss Winifred Williamson as Stephanus deserve special mention.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Messrs. Flood and Fitzmaurices' Company is here in The Angel of Unrest. The leading part of Papa Bompasse is played with conspicuous ability by Mr. Henry Belding. Mr. Alec Flood makes a cold, impassive Napoleon I., a study quite in accordance with the most authentic historic descriptions of the Emperor; Mr. Creagh Henry is a quiet, reserved, and manly Paul Brandt; Mr. Alexander Bradley has a none too attractive part as the spy Captain Lemesnil, but performs it in such fashion that, however contemptible the character, one cannot but admire the stage exposition; and Mr. Richard A. Greene is a well-set soldierly Colonel Bernaise. Miss Florence Tressilian has a difficult part as Julie, daughter of Lepine, but she acquits herself in a way that completely wins the sympathies of a critical audience, and Miss Rita Imeson is a vivacious Lisette. A feature of the piece is the exceptionally fine mounting.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—A sensational comedy drama entitled Devotion for a Life, is staged this week by the capable stock company. Mr. Cecil A. Melton undertakes the always arduous dual rôle, but adequately rises to the occasion, his performance of Richard Devine and John Lemoine being a very creditable piece of acting; Mr. Walter Terriss is well suited to the part of Sir Richard Devine, and Mr. Edward Beecher successfully impersonates Lieut. Maurice Frere. Mr. Larry Clements' vocal accomplishments find scope in the part of Mickey, the Moucher. Miss Irma Farington is the leading lady as Sarah Lemoine; the other ladies deserving mention are Miss Beatrice Hudson (Lady Devine) and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh (Sylvia Vickers).

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—T. E. Dunville is again "down west" and is, of course, starred; Horace White, pianoforte ventriloquist, has had good receptions; the Florias perform some slack-wire business indicative of great powers of endurance; Arthur Goodman, tramp juggler, gets plenty of fun out of some smart cigar-box manipulation; Jolly Crissie Cross submits an attractive song and dance; the Lyons Trio have some amusing business as pantomimists and dancers, and Percy Curry has a humorous skit on a rag and bone vendor. Vernon's pictures complete the programme.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The attraction this week is Mr. S. Arthur Jones's company, in Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. T. Arthur Jones acts Captain Harold Marston in a masterly manner; Mr. Oswald Douglas ably portrays Doctor Colbrook; Kimberley Coutts and Rev. Edward Grey are well embodied by Mr. Robert Swain and Mr. Clem. Horlock respectively. Mr. Edgar Morgan makes a capital Bob Tanner; Miss Marie Daventry is enthusiastically received as Doreen Rivers; the doctor's daughter is admirably portrayed by Miss Mary Ainslee; and Miss Elsie Walton, as Bess Grayson, is worthy of high praise.

PORTSMOUTH.—Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The interesting drama Her Luck in London is being presented here this week by Miss Mary Neil and Company, Miss Neil sustaining the part of Nellie Harborne in an exceptionally capable manner. The Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor finds an able representative in Mr. Charles A. Leicester. Mr. Douglas Tremayne plays well as the Rev. Lionel Strong. Mr. Henry Charles invests the tenant farmer Stephen Harborne with all the austere personality suitable to the part; Mr. M. Martin is quite successful as Richard Lenowen. Miss Frances Bruce's portrayal of Lillian Harborne is all that could be desired; Madame Gabrielle is well embodied by Miss Marie Clavering, and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Jerry Gotobed, with Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny, provide plenty of amusement in their respective rôles.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Leading the bill, Madame Irma Clasen's Living Art Bronzes are greatly admired for their finished presentation and gain well merited applause. Sisters Redfern, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers, are a smart pair; the Bros. Leotard, clowns, handbalancers and hat throwers, are very clever and highly amusing; Frank Couch, patter comedian, is particularly smart; the Ralston Bros., specialty artists, give an excellent rendering of some taking songs. Wrights and Elton, vaudeville entertainers, do capable work and are appreciated. Idalia May, speciality danseuse, dances well; Hill and Whittaker, vocalists and instrumentalists, are a capital pair of artists; Richard Finberg in popular character studies from famous plays shows much histrionic power. Payne's Biophotoscope with some new pictures completes an enjoyable programme.

RAMSGATE.—Amphitheatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Monday was "Irish night" at the "Amphi," a St. Patrick's programme having been arranged by Mr. H. S. Boyland. One of the chief features was the appearance of Miss Ethel Bryan, while Herr Bela Rauscher (violinist) had a flattering reception. Irish songs dances, and playlets made up the programme, the company consisting chiefly of local amateurs. On Tuesday Jury's Pictures commenced an engagement for the rest of the week, giving excellent exhibitions of animated photographs, and capital variety turns.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—An exceptional attraction is provided here this week in Mr. Gilbert Payne's company, in The Honeymoon. Mr. Gilbert Payne as Nathaniel Noodle is a clever comedian, and is responsible for much of the success of the play; Mr. Leslie Erle is a capital Jack Armstrong; and Mr. Fred Hulton an equally effective Archie Mashington. As Victor L'Estrange, Mr. Harry Hoyland is excellent; and Mr. Bert Grey is good as Timothy Tubb. Miss Pattie Fairley is a clever Madge Armstrong, her acting being full of life and go; as Emeretta Noodle, Miss Lillian Ramsdale is very successful, supplying an excellent partner to the irrepressible Nathaniel; Miss Madge Still makes a capital Sarah Slabb; and Miss Nellie Dyson as Stella le Brunn is admirable; and all the minor characters are well sustained. Numerous musical items of a bright and taking character are well rendered; and the Four Sisters Godfrey give several charming and clever dances. The staging is excellent, and the performance was thoroughly enjoyed by a large and delighted audience.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Wenman.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company is appearing this week in the ever-popular sensational drama, The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell again assumes the part of Simmonet the Strangler (a character which he has sustained over 5,000 times) in the most powerful and thrilling style. Mr. George Denham gives an excellent portrayal of the part of Louslalot, "the Smiler." Mr. Wallace Curnock, as Paul Blanchard, Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner as Lerentz de Ribas, Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood as Alphonse de Coucou, Mr. J. Brittain as Dodet, Mr. Norman Tracey as M. de Belfort, and Mr. Henry Lawrence as M. de Beaudin all deserve special mention. Miss Rosabel Dodd acts with great ability as Cora Simmonet; Miss Muriel Inglis scores repeatedly as Sophie Blanchard; Miss Maggie Stewart is good as Marie Guerin; and Miss Pope Royal acts effectively as Mlle. Delaney.

Large Town Hall.—The famous Zancigs appeared here at two performances on Monday last and displayed their marvellous powers of thought transference to the wonderment and mystification of large audiences. In addition to the Zancigs an excellent concert programme was gone through. Miss Ethel Grimes proved herself a pleasing light soprano; Miss Kate Moss sang with taste and played the violin obbligatos to her own songs with much skill and expression; Miss Clara Alexander gave several plantation songs and recitations with considerable humour and pathos; Mr. Sydney Jarvis, the Canadian baritone, was in good voice; Mr. David Brazell also sang effectively; Mr. E. Thornley-Dodge displayed his abilities as a society entertainer and lightning cartoonist; and Mr. Harold Scott was an accomplished pianist. The booking arrangements were in the hands of Mr. T. Waite.

ROCHDALE. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Earl and the Girl is the attraction here this week, and is represented by a very capable company. Jim Cheese is a prominent character, and has an excellent exponent in Mr. Alfred Donohoe; Dick Wargrave is in the safe hands of Mr. Thomas Kennard, whose acting and vocalisation is much appreciated; the Hon. Crewe Boodle has an able representative in Mr. Leslie Owen; Mr. Greville Hayes as the fiery A. Bunker Bliss is seen to advantage; Downham and Mr. Talk are both effectively impersonated by Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton and Mr. Sam Lysons; Miss Kathleen Gerard makes a capital Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Lina Hicks is a typical Liza Shoddam; the part of Elphin Haye is sweetly enacted by Miss Gertrude Simpson; and Miss Ida Stratham's vocalism in the part of Daisy Fallowfield is greatly enjoyed.

Circus and Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—Le Diabelo, in looping the Devil's Wheel, creates a sensation here, the performance of this daring feat holding the audience breathless; the Three Transfields, charmingly attired, give pleasing selections on various instruments; George Barnard, actor-vocalist, possesses considerable histrionic abilities and vocal powers; the Sisters De Lacey are pleasing duettists; Frank Houston, comedian; H. O. Borie, comedy juggler; Barker and Ellis, comedy artists; and Ferris and Farnley, patter comedians, also contribute to a capital programme.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves.—Packed houses are the rule here this week. Countess Olga Romanow, described as cousin to the Czar of Russia, appears in a series of classic poses, which are staged with fine lighting effects; the Four Juggling Geraldos have a hearty reception, their club juggling and hoop rolling being amongst the best ever seen here; Gertie Gitano quite captivates the audience by her charming vocalism and dancing; N. T. Kioto, Japanese equilibrist; Princess Pauline, comedienne; Elton and Elma, in their knockabout triple bar act; Mabel La Blanche comedienne; and the Empire Bioscope complete one of the most enjoyable programmes ever submitted at the increasingly popular place of amusement.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Charles Halling's company is here this week with an old favourite, £1,000 Reward. Mr. Fred Wilberforce is very forcible as Gilbert Lisle, and Mr. J. Newton Cowling gives a manly portrayal of Fred Ingleford; Mr. Charles Halling is smart as Vincent Rainsworth, and Mr. George Scully is seen to advantage as Dick Springthorpe; Mr. Frank Dallas creates much amusement as Inspector Gilbert; and Mr. Arthur Merton scores as Fighting Jepps; Mr. Frank J. Pitt is also deserving of mention as Fred Ingleford, jun. Miss Cissie Francess is very chic as Kitty Springthorpe and Miss Lynn Darlington scores as Meg; Mrs. Sidney Halling is deserving of mention as Mrs. McCarthy, and Miss Daisy Halling gives a realistic embodiment of Mme. Senson; Miss Lynn Darlington receives well-deserved applause for her song, "Eileen Alannah."

RUGBY. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—This week Mr. Frank R. Burdett's company is presenting The Indian Mutiny. Mr. Edward H. Hamilton as Lieut. Manley is clever and vigorous; and Mr. Cyril Harrison as Captain Manley is equally good. Mr. John Davidson is well placed as Major Ingleby; and Mr. Cecil Morand is amusing as Terry O'Brien. Mr. F. S. Shedden, both as regards acting and make-up, is excellent in every way as Abdul Khan; and Mr. Villiers Stanley looks the typical native officer. Mr. Ernest Keand gives a representation true to life of a religious devotee; as Ghuznah, Miss F. Melrose Millett acts with grace and ability; and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby and Miss Lillie Grey as Mr. Ingleby both do very well.

Town Hall. — The Scarlet Merrions, vaudeville artists, are appearing this week, and giving a very high-class entertainment. The members of the company are all artists of great merit. Mr. J. Driscoll is very successful in his humorous songs; Mr. Tom Purslow, in his humorous and dramatic items, is much appreciated; Mr. Frank Robin and Mr. Harry Watson are also very good; Mr. Norman Sinclair displays exceptional talent as a banjo soloist; and Mr. Hamilton Gough at the piano was excellent. Miss Dorree rendered several songs in first-class style.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Hour of Her Triumph is successfully presented this week by a good all-round company under the direction of Mr. Fred J. Webb, who creditably plays the part of the villain, Eugene Harbury. The leading rôle of Rose Denton is acted with sterling ability by Miss Barbara Gott. Good work is done by Mr. Harry Stuart as Harold Clavering and Mr. Clifton Earle as Jack Vernon. Mr. Louis Nanton as Ben Brodie, a Yorkshireman, Mr. J. Stuart as Rosecrus Montmorency, and Miss Hetty Gale as Jenny Jinks keep the comedy well to the front. Miss Lallah Price as Sal Soaker, and afterwards as Martha Jinks, also makes a good impression. Miss M. D. Smith as Nellie Clavering and Miss Mamie Stanton as Linda Denton give clever impersonations of those characters.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Miss Marie Kendall has some comical songs which catch on; the business by the Avon and Crest Comedy Artists is very amusing; a clever thought-reading exhibition is given by the D'Oustas. Other smart turns are contributed by Ethel Dove, comedienne; Frederic Neiman, ventriloquist; Steve McCarthy, comedian and expert dancer; Fred Laud, eccentric comedian; Denby and Dent, comic vocalists and patterers; Cliff and Kean, singing, comedy, and dancing act; and the Five Casino Girls, brass instrumentalists. At the matinée on Tuesday, Mr. Fred J. Watson (manager of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton) produced a neat sketch entitled The Phantom Earl, which is noticed in another column.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Mr. Fred Norburn, in A Winter's Eve obtains much applause; U. C. Ugo is a clever illusionist; Tankwai's troupe of jugglers are smart. The programme also includes Harris and Worth, amusing comedians; Jollions, vocalists; Bob Best, eccentric comedian; Lila Lingard, male impersonator; Eustace and Eyre, ventriloquists; and Jack Hylton, eccentric comedian.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—The Pick of the Bunch, a musical comedy by Charles Carey, is here this week. The part of Halliwell Monit is well played by the author; Colonel Joseph Monit is well portrayed by Mr. H. Buckstone Clair; Nancy is effectively presented by Miss M. Sadie; and Dick Seymour ably handled by Mr. Harold Wantage. Miss Madge Christopher is a pleasing Nellie Mather; and Miss Nellie James a capital Wilhelmina.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram.—Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company is here with the drama As Midnight Chimes. Mr. Percy Maitland presents a powerful portrayal of Luke Dezzard; Dave Stannard is depicted in manly style by Mr. Chas. Burrunston; as Old Ezra Mr. Herbert Pearce plays with much earnestness; Tat Spavvin finds a skilful and humorous exponent in Mr. James Salter; Mr. Leonard Dalrymple is successful as Nat Wilson; Detective Pollard is well portrayed by Mr. J. Lionel; Mary Stannard is charmingly presented by Miss Maud Hastings; as Suzette Miss Madge Beresford is pretty and vivacious; Zamora is skilfully drawn by Miss May Swire; and as Little Davy Miss Marion Ryder does well.

SHEERNESS. — The Hippodrome. — General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—An interesting programme submitted here this week comprises the Three Society Girls, who gain a hearty reception for their clever impersonation of artists past and present; Miss Lillian Clare and company, in the comedy act Married All of a Sudden, create plenty of amusement; a clever exhibition of furniture balancing by A. P. Boswell is received with well-deserved applause; Tray and Rich, comedians and patterers, provoke much merriment; Mr. Phil Bransby gives a couple of coster songs in capital style; Edith Manley, extempore vocalist, and Alec Kennedy, actor vocalist, successfully contribute; and the Bioscope pictures are excellent.

Palace. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Raymond. — The Byrons are appearing here in their clever act, their dancing and double banjo playing being excellent; Miss Hilda Gordon is a good ballad vocalist; Mr. Harry Royde finds favour as a versatile comedian; Miss Josie Watson pleases all with her serio songs; Mr. Phil Reymond fully maintains his reputation as a first-class comedian; Miss Topsy Levane is another big favourite here; the Nicholsons conclude with a laughable comedy act.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—A crowded and enthusiastic audience received with delighted applause Mr. George Edwardes's company on Monday in the brilliantly staged musical play See-See. The final tableau was a glorious feast of harmoniously arranged colours, and it formed a fitting culmination to a series of exquisite stage pictures. The performance all round was on a par with the artistic beauty of the mounting. As See-See Miss Lily Elsie was charming, and she sang and acted with the requisite naiveté and arch coyness. Miss Amy Auguarde sang effectively as Mai-Yai. Miss Topsy Sinden danced with her accustomed grace and skill; and Miss Octavia Barry was cordially applauded for her delightful singing. Mr. Frank Danby is a big Sheffield favourite, and made another hit in the mirth-provoking character of Hang-Kee. Mr. Leonard Mackay won hearty and deserved plaudits for his clever vocalism and finished delivery; and well-played rôles were the Lei of Miss Alice Hatton, the Cheoo of Mr. W. H. Rawlings, and the Hoang-Yang of Mr. Miles Clifton.

Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company opened on Monday in the thrilling drama Leah Kleschna. That favourite dramatic artist Miss Bessie Rignold acted with power and pathos as Leah, and she compelled sympathy for the beautiful and ill-fated heroine. Mr. W. F. Grant submitted a fine reading of the character of Paul Sylvane. Mr. Paul Belmore was effective as Kleschna; and other well-played parts were Mr. Hamilton Dean's Raoul, Mr. Ronald Daniel's Dr. Berton, Miss Helen Belgrave's Claire Berton, Miss Violet Thorold's Sophia, Miss Ethel Russell's Mlle. Berton, and Mr. C. Goldsmid's Schram. The piece was carefully mounted.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Woman and Wine is again being performed to large audiences, and the presentation of the favourite spectacular drama of Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company meets with approval. Miss Cissie St. Elmo looks a beautiful creature in her elaborate confections as the handsome and callous-hearted Marcel Rigadout, and her pretty and revengeful rival, La Colombe, is acted with force and passion by Miss Joan Pereira. A contrast to these "daughters of pleasure" is the character of the sweet English maid, Mary Meadows, gracefully represented by Miss Violet Sims. Mr. John S. Haydon has brought all his experience to bear on the part of Mr. Seymour, and the result is a first-rate character-study. The unheroic hero of the play, Dick Seymour, is made the most of by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds; Mr. Fred W. Goddard is a dashing and whole-souled villain as Beaudet; and Mr. George Child makes general merriment as the giddy old masher, Prof. Sauter. In the Bal Masqué scene the celebrated Lottie Stone troupe of acrobatic dancers appears with great success.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—George Gray's new sketch, Parson Gray, V.C., was played for the first time in Shifnal on Monday, when it received the instantaneous and approving verdict of a crowded audience. It is quite a Drury Lane drama acted in thirty minutes, and in dramatic interest and character drawing Mr. Gray's new production is a distinct advance on The Fighting Parson. Miss Gwennie Hasto is a handsome and talented vocalist and dancer; the Three Tauberts do a skilful musical act; and other popular performers this week are the Five Delevines, Dusty Rhodes, Liddon and Hayward, Mr. Fred Elton, Miss Alsa Douglas, Mr. Roy, and Mr. Harold Hughman, a clever mimic and humorous entertainer.

Grand Palace.—Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—The following artists are billed this week:—Mr. Tom Yorke, comic vocalist; the Bros. Adderley; the Phillips and Lloyd company in sketches; Miss Ray Royal, and Miss Gladys Wilton. In addition Pallister's Biograph, with animated pictures of humorous happenings and topical events, is a leading feature of the entertainment.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—On the first three nights of the present week the rollicking Charley's Aunt was admirably put on by Messrs. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson's company. Mr. Percy Tyler was amusing and capable as Stephen Spettigue; Mr. T. S. McCausland Stewart made a military-looking and aristocratic Sir Francis; Mr. Basil Lynn was very bright throughout as Jack Chesney; Mr. J. E. Stephenson made a capital Charley; Mr. Tom Macfarlane extracted plenty of humour from the part of Lord Fancourt Babberley; Mr. W. A. Stoltuck merited praise as Brasset; Miss Grace Baring was graceful and clever as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and the Misses Sybil Greig, Dorothy Barrington, and Norah Johns, as Amy Spettigue, Kitty Verdun, and Ela Delahey respectively, were a bevy of attractive and accomplished ladies. The play was preceded by the dramatic episode, No Other Way, produced for the first time here, and specially noticed in another column.

Music Hall.—Joseph Poole's popular Myriorama is here this week with a varied and thoroughly enjoyable show. Apart from the fine series of pictures there are several excellent turns. The Four Rosaires are a very smart troupe of acrobats; Funny Johnny O'Rourke is an amusing artist; the Sisters Eileen and Mayne are a most clever and agile couple; Harry Miers and his lady assistant contribute a diverting juggling turn; the Three Boleros are accomplished triple-bar performers; and a living marionette entertainment is exceedingly well done. The guide and vocalist is Mr. Bert Berry, who is thoroughly at home in his work, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Percy Brunel.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—A powerful attraction is this week being presented in Mr. Chas. Cartwright's company, who appear in Dan'l Peggotty. The central figure is remarkably well played by Mr. Cartwright, who is a born actor; Mr. Chas. Collette creates great amusement by his light and airy method as Micawber; Mr. Gerald Lawrence is a handsome and dashing Steerforth; and Mr. A. B. Tapping does exceedingly well as Uriah Heep. Mr. Lionel Belmore submits a fine piece of acting as Ham; and Miss Ethel Ward plays prettily and pathetically as Little Em'ly. Splendid support is given by the Misses Nell Douglas, Beatrice Grosvenor, Clarissa Selwynne, and Mr. Stanley Harrison. The play is beautifully staged, and great and deserved applause testified to the enjoyment of the audience.

Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace (Southampton), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—The programme here is very strong in dancing. Chief honours fall

Harley and Melton, in a sketch; and Fred Cary, a remarkably clever comedian, complete a capital programme.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—The Prince of Pilsen is undoubtedly one of the best musical plays that has visited this theatre. There is not a dull moment. Beautifully mounted and handsomely dressed, it is being presented by a company of artists of distinction, surrounded by a well-balanced chorus. Mr. Harry Kilburn scores in the character of Hans Wagner; Mr. Frank Crimp gives a fine, robust performance of the title-rôle; Miss Sophie Harriss is foremost among the ladies; and is ably supported by Miss Alice Nixon, Miss Ada Watson, Miss Mollie Wynne, and Miss Connie Leon. Mr. Herbert Higgins is the genial representative for Mr. Baron Harriss.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Vic Carnell. — Mr. Horace Wheatley, who heads a strong programme at this house, proves to be a good draw; T. E. Hughes is successful; and Harry Taft makes a welcome reappearance. Newton and Wooton introduce a novelty in the way of bicycle football.

STOCKPORT. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—Claudian has commanded the presence and close interest of crowded audiences throughout this week on the occasion of its autumn visit. Mr. William Maclaren gives an impressive portrayal of Claudian; and Mr. F. Owen Chambers acts with power and ability as the Tetrach. As Belos Mr. Charles T. Chaloner is amusing; and Agazil has a throughly capable representative in Mr. Douglas Earle. Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida charms everyone with her graceful acting; and Edissa is pleasingly represented by Miss Maud Garth.

EMPIRE, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Diabuen is deputising here this week for Tarro Myaki, the exponent of Ju-jitsu (who, it was stated, is seriously ill), and several interesting bouts have been witnessed. A varied programme is presented in addition, including Addie Dorina, a clever protean lady, in Dr. Spot's Patients; Ormonde Penstone, entertaining magician and billiard-ball manipulator; the Four Hearnes, smart and amusing acrobats; Florrie Bray, versatile comedienne; Grapho and Jackson, mirth-provoking comedians, in Fun in a Restaurant; Will Ellerslie, refined comedian; and Lola Patey, character vocalist.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE. —Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Mick Whittingtun, a pantomime scene, is presented this week, bristling with humorous incidents, and causing great amusement. Harry Lee is a mimic of renown, and his imitations of various voices are appreciated; Burley and Burley are a funny pair of comedians, while Alice Maple in her song and dance is charming; the Cumberlands score in their cycling acts; John Cronow is an old favourite here, his facial representations being very real; Selma Braatz, lady juggler, possesses unusual ability in this line, being both amusing and interesting. The pictures, as usual, are very good.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Whit Cunliffe heads the bill this week, delighting the audience with his latest successes; Harry Drew, the Welsh basso, is very dramatic in his songs, and Gillin in his ventriloquial scene is humorous; Frank Harwood, actor-vocalist, is an artist of a high order; and Alexander Edwin, who possesses a remarkable voice, is loudly encored; Keith Merson and Co. present a humorous sketch, and the Schiavonis troupe of acrobats are excellent, their head-work being particularly good. The pictures conclude a capital programme.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Harry Tate's company heads the bill here in that capital sketch Fishing, which is most amusing. Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munroe, contributes a clever duologue; the Kimberley Boys are irresistibly funny, and cause roars of laughter; Snowball and Jolia provide a good turn, the dancing and tumbling introduced being exceedingly clever; Lauri Wylie, with his mincing mannikins, is most successful; Charlton is a conjurer of much merit; Carson Hicks sings coon songs well and also dances cleverly; the Sisters Brook are smart vocalists and dancers; and the pictures are good. Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, with his usual generosity, gave two performances on Thursday for the benefit of the Stoke Amalgamated Friendly Societies.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD. — KING'S THEATRE. —Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Cecil Clayton; Manager, Mr. Edward Gray. — Mr. Robert Perris's company, in the American drama, A Fight for Millions, is filling the bill here this week. The play abounds with dramatic incidents, and the cast is well chosen. Mr. William Macready as Tom Manley, Mr. Karl H. Edwards as Willie Neverwork, and Mr. Alec C. Grant as Richard Dudley, each deserve credit for their rendering of these three important characters. Miss Elma C. Turner as Helen Dudley, Miss Rosie Kearne as Betty Brady, with song and dance, Miss Dorothy Wilkinson as Little Madge, all achieve success; and Miss Winifred Symons scores distinctly as Pearl Rivers.

TODMORDEN.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Corporation of Todmorden; Secretary, Mr. Howarth Stansfield.—Morris's Animated Picture Company is here for six nights with a large and varied selection of films. The audience on Monday evening was a good one. Mr. Gilbert Edwards rendered two baritone songs in first-class style to the accompaniment of illustrated pictures.

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. John Gerant's company in At Duty's Call. As Captain Alison, Mr. Harry Scott is a great success; Mr. John Gerant scores heavily as Harold Alison; Mr. Harry Ugar is very funny as Terry O'Hallaron; Miss Lily Grammonde makes a graceful Dora Drummond; Miss Jeannie Weston scores as Sulema; and Miss Eva Belle is good as Mary.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime company in Little Red Riding Hood is paying a welcome return visit here this week, and was enthusiastically received on Monday evening. In the title-rôle, Miss Ella Willmer is particularly pleasing and bright, and her dancing is much admired. She is well supported by Miss Beatrice Varley, who gives a dashing and effective representation as the principal boy. Miss Fay Desmond is a vocalist of much ability, and is heard to advantage in her various numbers as the Fairy; and Miss Ivy Boulton and Miss Kate Pennington as Boy Blue and Rosa respectively were also well placed. Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Green and Mr. Lovell Rowland as Simple Simon are great favourites, and provide continuous amusement. As the Dame Mr. Fred Latimer and as the Baron Mr. George Newham do well; and Mr. Fred Boulton as Sandy is very droll. There is also a very effective chorus. Among the specialities may be mentioned Mlle. Bartenelli, lady bender and gymnast, her performance being really wonderful; Carl Osmund, tramp cartoonist; and the Boultons, burlesque dancers.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—This week is devoted to Savoy opera, and the most famous of the Gilbert and Sullivan series are being presented under the direction of Mr. F. A. Leon by a strong company, in which the chorus do really excellent work. On the occasion of our visit the ever-popular Mikado had a thoroughly appreciative reception, all the principal numbers being encored. Mr. Pacie Ripple took the part of Nanki-Poo, and was in excellent voice; Yum-Yum found a charming impersonator and the possessor of a well-trained voice in Miss Hope Hastings, whose solos won a full measure of applause. The other members of the trio of little maids were Miss Lulu Evans and Miss Mabel Burnege, and their well-known concerted selection went as well as ever. As the Lord High Executioner Mr. Charles R. Walenn was fully equal to the demands made upon his powers of comedy and of vocalisation, his famous "Tit Willow" song being encored again and again; Mr. Fred Billington scored his usual success as the imperturbable Pooh-bah; Miss Teresa Rassam not only sang admirably, but infused the necessary amount of emotion into the rôle of Katisha; and Mr. Albert Kavanagh as the Mikado gave a character-study of the ironical monarch of Japan which was quite worthy of Savoy tradition. Excellent comedy was also displayed by Mr. Leicester Tunks as Pish-Tush, and by Mr. Fred Drawater as Go-To. The second performance was devoted to The Gondoliers, and was equally successful. Mr. Charles R. Walenn made the most of the incisive humour of the Duke of Plaza Toro; and Mr. Fred Billington as the suave Grand Inquisitor was equally excellent. Mr. Leicester Tunks as Luiz and Miss Mabel Graham as Casilda fully sustained the love interest; and the temporary rulers in Barataria and their faithful spouses were admirably impersonated by Mr. Pacie Ripple, Mr. Albert Kavanagh, Miss Hope Hastings, and Miss Lulu Evans. Miss Theresa Rassam was a stately Duchess of Plaza Toro; and Miss Norma Russell made the most of her part of the Foster Mother. For the succeeding performances Pinafore and Patience have been particularly well received.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and company opened here on Monday night with the new play, Anna of the Plains, and met with an enthusiastic reception. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury gives a fine portrayal of the character of the veteran Boer Matthew Kerrin; Mr. Hilliard Vox acts with much dramatic strength as Michael O'Donaghan; and Mr. C. H. Croker King acquits himself well as Piet van Helder. Miss V. Vivian is excellent as Sarah Kerrin; and Miss Dorothea Desmond gives a delightful rendering as Anna, her rendition being full of merit. It is followed by a comedietta, entitled Jocelyn Jester, which merits applause.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The Waldrons, comedy artists, prove highly amusing; Miss Flo D'Orville, comedienne, is much appreciated; Fox and Melville, song illustrators, are good; Misses Millmay and Theresa give a clever protean entertainment; Les Steckles, ring performers, are smart; and the Brooklands are dainty duettists and dancers. R. Hatfield, singing collier, also scores.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES. —Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Emma Don and her talented troupe of young black and white comedians have delighted all here this week, and their singing and dancing exploits have enhanced their reputation; Craig, Roze, and Craig are exceptionally smart gymnastic experts; the Sisters Melba are charming vocalists; and the Lorrisons are a pair of droll comedians. Fields and Lewis are smart burlesque artists; and Ray and Mills amusing jugglers. T. E. Johnstone has a good voice, and sings a number of capital songs; and the Three Behans, refined comedy artists, and the pictures, are good.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—The attraction here this wek is Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's musical comedy-drama, In Old Madrid. The cast includes Mr. Leslie Austin as Frank Lyndhurst and Count Corregillo. Warm appreciation is paid to Mr. George Whillis in the rôle of Mendoza Stittagano; the part of Fernando Cassilus is interestingly portrayed by Mr. Alfred Stretton. Much laughter is created by Mr. Walter M. Aybert in his amusing interpretation of Horatio J. Rodgers; whilst the rôle of Marmaduke R. Fitzsimmons is ably rendered by Mr. Chas. Burns. Miss Francesca Strickland makes a capital study of the part of Violet Lyndhurst; the impersonation of Lolo Stittingano, the Spanish girl, is left to the safe keeping of Miss Louie Fountaine, her songs and dances being much admired. Excellent work is also contributed to by Miss Amy Shaw as Gracie Featherstone and Miss Julia Harris as Maud de Vere. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings The Naval Detective is billed.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Bulmer's company in the well-known drama, Sentenced for Life, has been accorded a warm welcome at this cosy place of amusement this week. Though the play has been to West Bromwich several times previously, it has lost none of its attractiveness; indeed, the inclusion in the company of Mr. Dan Agar has lent additional interest to the production. He introduces some clever songs and specialities, and proves himself extremely popular. As Captain Paul Derrick, Mr. Tom Robertson is good; Mr. Ernest Dare scores as Lieut. Roy Stillwell. Mr. Geoffrey Lutherlane is an ideal clergyman, and Mr. Howard Keene as Beckwith, the blackmailer, has a part well suited to him. Mr. T. C. Glenville and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd provide plenty of amusement as Two Komical Konvicts; while Miss Hilda Merrilese as Adele Gray, Miss Blanche Hill as Kate Rennel, Miss Muriel Martin as Lady Stillwell, and Miss Kitty Huntley as Lady Grey are as charming as they are clever.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Another attractive programme submitted this week includes Sam Mayo, the original immobile comedian, whose songs are well received; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard are clever in the duologue Coming Home; Mr. Walter Wallace is a capable comedian; Milner Vernin is a popular tenor vocalist; Yorick and Yorick are smart acrobats; and Keir and Kempton sing duets with successful results. Bliss and Bliss are funny comedians; Tock and Tock provide a first-rate turn, and the Hippodrome pictures complete the programme.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather —Mr. Charles Macdona presents Miss Millie Hylton and company in Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), with Miss Hylton in the rôle of La Bolero, into which she infuses some sparkling vivacity and graceful acting. Mr. Arthur Longley plays splendidly the part of Freddy Popple; Miss Cora Lingard achieves considerable success in the rôle of Violet Brinton; some excellent dancing and singing is done by Mr. Tom May as Platt and Miss Nellie Hudson as Louise.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The principal item here is the beautiful statuesque posing by the Three Graces, whose exhibition is gaining universal admiration; Love Germs, a laughable sketch, is successfully played by the Smithsons; Simosa San, a charming lady, expert in juggling, introduces some highly-trained pigeons in a novel performance; the Kraggs, described as "phenomenal gymnasts," are justly named. The remaining turns include Lize Rolland in modern equilibrism; T. C. Jaques, a versatile comedian; D. W. Watson, cornettist and coach-horn artist; and a new series of films, one of which depicts the rescue work at the wreck of the Berlin.

WEYMOUTH.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is paying a return visit here with A Country Girl, and has met with a most enthusiastic reception. Miss Olive Prince was delightful as Marjorie, and Miss Edith Maynard natural as Nan; Miss Nan Holmes was charming as the Princess, and Miss May Florence capably represented Mme. Sophie; Miss Florence Brewster as Mrs. St. Quintin, Miss Kitty Stone as Nurse, and Miss Maud Read as Lady Anchester, and Miss Nellie Read as Miss Carruthers all did well. As Barry, Mr. Arthur Staples won quite an ovation, and Mr. Martin D. Pitts as Geoffrey Chaloner was very successful; Mr. Bernard Vaughan's Rajah of Bhong was admirably played, as was also the Sir Joseph Verity of Mr. W. O. Billington. The singing was remarkably good, and the musical direction, under Mr. Edmund Peterson, was all that could be desired.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Lovers or Shakespeare have had a rare treat afforded them in the visit of Mr. Allan Wilkie's company. On Monday evening Othello was presented, with Mr. A. Wilkie as the Moor. Mr. Wilkie gave a powerful rendering of the part, and he received excellent support from Mr. Alexander Marsh as Iago. Miss Carrie Baillie (who is well remembered here) gave a delightful study as Desdemona; and Miss Irene Cameron was convincing as Emilia. The week's bill includes The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, David Garrick, The Lady of Lyons, and The Bells.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is here in the new drama, The Spider and the Fly. The play created an excellent impression on Monday evening. Mr. Benson North proved to be an excellent Cyril Girdlestone; the Welby Girdlestone of Mr. Ellis J. Preston was satisfactorily villainous; Mr. H. C. Lanceley as the Rev. McAllister was sound; the David Strong of Mr. Arthur H. Hill was praiseworthy; Mr. Charles Russell and Mr. C. A. Preece as the twin brothers, Romolus Roe and Remus Roe, were immensely successful. Miss Ina Naughton was altogether charming as Edith McAllister, and won the hearty sympathy of the audience; Miss Amy Venimore was an unscrupulous Stella Gray, "the spider"; Miss Lucy Murray's Molly Blake was an admirable piece of characterisation; the part of Jane Ellen Scrivener was well handled by Miss Ada Palmer; Miss Winifred Barton was clever as Flipps, the mudlark. In minor rôles Miss Nellie Burgess, Miss Kate Parker, Mr. G. H. Parker, Mr. Robert Castle, and Mr. G. H. Thomas were excellent.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co. — Mr. Augustine Knight and company have presented Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's modern romantic drama, The Assassin, here this week. The acting of the piece is uniformly good throughout, and the play is excellently staged. Mr. A. Knight as Prince Demetri delineates the character with power and subtlety; and Mr. Edw. E. Ashby takes the part of Ipanoff. Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is a very humorous Baron Alfonso; Mr. Theo Balfour is excellent as Duke Karl; Mr Chauncey Morris is a powerful General Nicol; and Mr. Edwin Jenner as Capt. O'Neil typifies the dilatory wooer successfully. Miss Ella Vane impersonates Countess Wanda, the assassin, very forcefully; and Miss Hettie Senior as Connie Jonathan, and Miss Frances Waring as Nita, are also admirable.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Miss Ada Colley, "the Australian nightingale," possesses a fine soprano voice, and sings several ballads artistically. Ryan and Hall are exceedingly clever and amusing acrobats, comedians, and comic wrestlers. Capital comedy is also furnished by Dolly Denver, the Danbys, Frank Lynne, and Florence Smithers and company. Mlle. Rossini's well-trained dogs create much amusement and astonishment; and the Davis and Gledhill Trio give a sensational cycling act, Man v. Motor. Maxwell and Francis are graceful and accomplished vocalists and dancers; and Leo Dryden, actor-vocalist, is also very popular.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —A fine treat for local playgoers is provided here this week in the production of His House in Order, by Mr. George Alexander's company. The part of Hilary Jesson is entrusted to Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, who displays great artistic abilities, and is altogether successful in his admirable impersonation. Mr. J. Edward Pearce gives an excellent portrayal of Filmer Jesson; Mr. Herbert Lomas is a perfect Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. Ernest R. Holloway enacts the part of Pryce Ridgeley in a manner which leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Charles Tyrel is a capable Major Maureward; and Mr. Luke Forster a capital Dr. Dilnott. The character of Nina is splendidly sustained by Miss Dorothy Grimston, who proves herself to be a charming and naturally clever actress. Miss Augusta Haviland is effectively austere as Lady Ridgeley; Miss Elaine Sleddall is a most efficient Geraldine Ridgeley; Miss Jean Cadell a successful Mlle. Thorne; and Miss Carmen Woods ably delineates Derek Jesson. The whole production is most meritorious.

THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—At this house the attraction is The Unseen Power, produced by Mr. Harry Starr, in which this well-known actor has the opportunity of displaying his versatility. He is supported by an able company, of whom Mr. Edwin Firth, Mr. William Miller, Mr. Fred Graham, Mr. Will Hee, Miss Madge Blundell, Miss Dolly Starr, Miss Lizzie Jacobs, Miss Kate Morris, and Miss Lye Jeffries are the most prominent.

EMPIRE PALACE.—To this week's bill the following artists contribute: Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; Lucy Weston, vocalist; Eva Hope and company, in Dickens' characters; Wallau, juggler; Fyne and Hurley, comedians; the Sisters Lytton, duettists; and Tom Shenton, comedian and dancer.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After an absence of some thirteen years, Worcester theatre patrons find a return visit of Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk in Wep-Ton-No-Mah, very acceptable. The talented American Indian actress has throughout the week delighted large audiences by her agility as a horsewoman, and by her vigorous impersonation of the hero of the play. The introduction of highly-trained ponies adds considerably to the realism of the many scenes, in which the lady is a striking figure. Mr. C. W. Charles is well suited in the dual rôle of a cavalry colonel and a ranch owner; and Mr. Edward Leroy is a striking personality as Spanish Joe. Mr. Albert Sims takes the part of Franklin; Mr. Dan Ryan is a most popular young Irishman; and Mr. G. D. Hackney and Mr. W. H. Killen are invaluable in the "variety" part of the performance. Miss Minnie Goepel sings and dances delightfully; and Miss Jessie Hart proves herself a talented vocalist.

WORKINGTON. — OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—A vast audience assembled on Monday to witness the production by Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's company of The Coal King, the many scenes in which evoked great enthusiasm. Mr. L. Maitland as Roberts proved a veritable hero, and was loudly applauded; Mr. C. Whitlock was a sympathetic Sir Reginald, and acted well; as Walter, Mr. C. Whitlock scored as the villain; the humour of Mr. A. Ferris as Jim caused roars of laughter; and his partner, Araminta, played by Miss Enid Ross, deservedly shared the honours. Miss Gertrude Valentine was excellent and forcible as Grace; Miss S. St. Clair was dramatic as Mad Ann; and Miss E. Worth was good as Mrs. Baker. The scenery was effective.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week Fred Ramsdale's company in the musical comedy sketch, The Squire's Daughter, is a big attraction. Messrs. George and Edwards, patter comedians and dancers, do well; Miss Kitty Kearns is a pleasing burlesque artist; Mr. George Christian, comedian; and Mr. Billy Breton, character comedian, also meet with hearty applause.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Proof has drawn large audiences during the week. Mr. Gerald Kennedy is a hardworking Pierre Lorance, and he gets through several trying scenes most cleverly; as the villainous Lazare, Mr. W. J. Butler gives a finished rendering of this unthankful rôle; as Chamboran, Mr. Wilford Bailey proves himself to be an able comedian, and altogether is a great success; Miss Avron as the Duchess and Mr. Carl Beechey as Duke D'Aubeterre give excellent renderings of popular parts; and Miss Beatrice Shirley looks and acts charmingly as Adrienne.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Dacre.—The Lorch Family are amongst the finest exponents of the Risley style of entertainment at present before the public. During the week they have attracted crowded audiences. Kavados is an expert juggler; and Flo Melville sings a couple of catchy songs with taste. Story and Trigg do some very funny trapeze business; Harry Levaine once more amuses by his eccentricities; and Fanny Hunter is a nimble dancer. Sketches are given by Johnny Holland and company and Arthur Aiston and company.

"THE RISING OF THE MOON."

A Play in One Act, by Lady Gregory. Produced for the first time at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, on Saturday, March 9.

Ballad Singer ..... W. G. FAY
Policeman X ..... J. A O'ROURKE
Policeman B ..... J. M. KERRIGAN
Policeman Z ..... ARTHUR SINCLAIR

Lady Gregory's new one-act play was favourably received by a large and distinguished audience. The scene is the side of a quay in a seaport town. It is night, and the policemen are looking for a prisoner who has escaped, and on whose head a reward of £100 is set. The placard describing him is pasted on a great cask standing on the quay, and one policeman stays to watch the spot while the other two go off to finish posting up the reward bills. Then there appears a ragged fellow who tries to slip away down the quay, but Policeman X stops him and demands his business. "A poor ballad singer." He manages to persuade the watcher to let him remain; he will help to keep watch, and will not ask to share the reward. The two men sit back to back on the barrel, smoking, and the newcomer sings a ballad of "Granuaile." Policeman X tries to stop him, but soon the swing of the old tune and the thoughts of his boyhood overcome him, and he joins lustily in the song. A boat approaches, and the ballad-monger strikes up a verse of "The Rising of the Moon"—Casey's fine song. It is answered by the tune whistled from the boat. The policeman turns—"You are no ballad-singer?" "No; that placard will tell you who I am," and taking off his hat and wig, the singer appears as the hunted man. "Let me pass, the friend of Granuaile." The policeman struggles between his duty and his inclination. Just then his comrades are heard returning; the fugitive lies down behind the barrel, and when the two policemen come upon the quay Policeman X sends them away, and the hunted man goes free.

Mr. W. G. Fay acted the rôle of the ballad singer most successfully. Mr. J. A. O'Rourke was excellent as Policeman X, and Messrs. J. M. Kerrigan and Arthur Sinclair were both good in their respective rôles.

BERLIN, TUESDAY, MARCH 5.—After the unlucky production of Herr Hauptmann's recent comedy, that of Herr Hirschfeld appears more deservedly successful than is really the case. It met with a reception that bordered on enthusiasm, and a few protesting hisses were drowned. The plot is as poor as can well be; it is the dialogue and the amusingly-drawn characters that make the running. The scene is laid in Berlin, at the present time, the action passing in the luxurious house of the wealthy art-dilettante Dr. Weisach. He and his wife are not a happy couple, the principal reason being that their union has not been blessed with children. Frau Weisach is a woman of religious and tender nature, and willingly acquiesces in the proposal to adopt Mieze Hempel, a girl of fourteen, whose father Weisach is. The child is a young savage, who has passed her life thus far in happy poverty and liberty in the obscure outskirts of Berlin. She does not take at all kindly to her luxurious surroundings, and resents having her former cognomen of "Mieze" changed to the more respectable one of "Maria." The atmosphere of the ultra-artistic house, with its Greek rooms and its Renaissance rooms, oppresses her, and she has no appreciation at all for the strains of "Parsifal" played on the organ by her effeminate papa. It is the old story of the bird in the golden cage, and one fine day the captive breaks her bonds and runs away to Pankow, where freedom and blissful vulgarity await her. Frau Weisach is not sorry, on the whole, that the good intentions have borne so little fruit, for the happy prospect of motherhood is held out to her after all, and we are left to draw the conclusion that all will go smoothly in the Weisach villa in future. The piece was capitally acted, clever little Fräulein Orloff again making her mark, and the mounting was a triumph of good taste. Herr Hirschfeld was present, and appeared before the curtain a number of times in response to the hearty applause.

MME. SUZANNE DESPRES has finished her second season at the Neues, having celebrated a series of triumphs. The least successful of her performances was the four-act comedy L'Ainée, by Jules Lemaitre, the action of which passes in a German pastor's family. This piece did not catch on, and was not repeated. The performance of La Gioconda, also, met with rather less appreciation than was anticipated. It has never been a favourite here, and only tolerated through the association with Eleanore Duse. La Robe Rouge, Rosnie, and other plays, however, given during Mme. Desprès' season were productive of the most favourable results, and the presence of the Emperor on several nights lent additional brilliance to the performances. Since the French company's departure Hans von Kahlenberg's rococo comedy Meissner Porzelan has filled the bill at the Neues every evening.

HERR KAINZ is drawing crowded houses, and his Gastspiel at the New Schauspielhaus may be considered the greatest success of the season. Last week the famous actor presented himself to us in a new rôle—that of Mephisto in Goethe's Faust. It was as interesting and original a conception as it was a magnificent piece of acting, and the wonder is that Herr Kainz has not thought of studying the rôle before. His peculiar ringing voice, his lithe and graceful movements, his magnetic power, and all the other characteristics of this rare artist have never been seen and heard and felt to better advantage than here. The guest was well supported by Fräulein Maren in the part of Gretchen, but the impersonator of the title-rôle was not satisfactory in any respect.

PAILLERON'S comedy Die Welt, in der man sich langweilt has been revived at the Royal Schauspielhaus, and, despite the traces of time which are distinctly visible, it was cordially received. A second revival at our Royal playhouse was Gutzkow's drama Uriel Acosta—a piece that is always sure of its mark. Herr Somerstorff gave the title-rôle in a masterly maner, as he has done some hundreds of times in his day, and the remaining characters were one and all admirably sustained.

A new three-act farce, Die Erziehung zum Don Juan, by Ernst Klein, met with great and undisputed success on its production last Saturday at the Schiller N. It is the period of the eighteenth century, and the plot, if not very original, is amusing. A young Count has been so tenderly guarded by his doting mother that at nineteen he is utterly ignorant of the charms of the fair sex. The solitude of the castle is invaded by visitors—kinsmen and women of the owners—and all conspire to educate the innocent youth into a Don Juan. The plot succeeds beyond their expectations or desire, and the Count—who begins by kissing the maids—soon out-Herods Herod, becoming a dangerous rival to the elder men. All comes, of course, to a satisfactory conclusion, and author, artists, and manager were called and heartily applauded.

ONE of our most popular low comedians, Herr Robert Guthery, took final leave of the stage last Thursday, the Metropol, where he played last, being the scene of many ovations. The house was packed; flowers, and presentations, and speeches were the order of the evening. Herr Guthery gave the part of the newspaper woman in the burlesque Der Teufel lacht dazu, and created a storm of friendly indignation by reading out, "Farewell benefit of Robert Guthery," and adding, in characteristic Berlin dialect, "Ah, that old man; it is time he retired!" Herr Guthery has been before the public fifty years, but he seems to us as fresh as ever, and his broad, bright humour will leave an unfilled gap.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, March 14.—Herr Ritter's new work, of which we had heard so much, proved disappointing, and the cordiality displayed at its reception was due in great measure to the honoured name the composer bears in the musical world; also, perhaps, in a lesser degree, to the presence of their Imperial Majesties. Herr Ritter, who died last year, was over seventy years of age, and an interesting personality. He went to school with Hans von Bulow, was an intimate friend of Wagner's, and married the latter's niece; he was a thorough musician, an able conductor, and his compositions, orchestral and choral, are of a superior order. His opera, Wem die Krone? met, too, with considerable success some years ago. Der faule Hans pleases when it is lyrical or humorous, but the greater part of the music is in monotonous recitative Wagner-and-water style. The book is drawn from the well-known German poet, Felix Dahn, and the meagre plot is as follows:—Count Hartung has half-a-dozen sons, all of whom—with one exception—are resolute, brave, and manly specimens. The exception is Hans, the dreamer, whose inclinations lead him to do nothing at all. His laziness finally so enrages his father that he orders Hans to be chained to a block in the courtyard, to be the butt of all who pass by. Hans' opportunity is long in coming—and our patience is tried by the waiting—but it comes at last. The giants of Denmark, under King Harald's guidance, invade the country, pursuing the Queen of Brabant even to Hartung's castle. The slumbering Hans awakes; he tears his chains asunder, knocks over a number of giants with the greatest ease, and saves the beautiful Queen, who ultimately weds him in her gratitude and love. And now our eyes are opened, and we see that Hans is the typical German "Michel." It takes a good deal to rouse him from his dreams, but when once aroused he is—to use a vulgarism—all there. Thus, with a patriotic chorus, the opera comes to an end, and for a moment something like enthusiasm prevails. The characters, alas! afford no scope—the title-rôle excepted—for the display of operatic or vocal talent. A Hamburg singer, Herr Pennarini, gave the part of Hans; he possesses a good tenor voice and uses it intelligently. The conductor was Dr. Richard Strauss, which is sufficient guarantee that everything went off as well as possible.

THE Deutsches Theatre has tried its hand at broad comedy for a change, and it certainly has not any reason to regret the experiment. Nicolaus Gogol's merry piece, Der Revisor, was produced on Friday, with the result that the audience laughed as they had not done in that house for years. The Russian playwright wrote Der Revisor somewhere about 1835, but a good many of the scenes—allowing for very little exaggeration—would fit the condition of things in his country to-day. Gogol was, by the way, a personal friend of the Czar Nicolaus, and had the honour of witnessing his piece from the Imperial box. The story of the young good-for-nothing, who comes, up to his ears in debt, and penniless, accompanied by his man Ossip, to the little town which is daily awaiting a visit from the Government inspector, and who is taken for the great official, is doubtless known to your readers. There is probably no country so unfortunate as not to have enjoyed the clever farcical comedy. The Deutsches management, it is scarcely necessary to say, took the utmost pains with the arrangement of the cast, entrusing the best rôles to those of the company who possess the greatest aptitude for fun. Thus Herr Wassmann's rendering of the name-part—that is of the rôle of the pseudo-inspector—and those of Dobtschinski and Babtschinski by Herren Biensfeldt and Arnold were side-splitting; Faru Wangel, too, was exquisitely humorous. The laughable piece is filling the bill almost exclusively.

HERR RUDOLF RITTNER, one of the first members of the Lessing company, has again tried his hand at play-writing, and this time with more success than on a previous occasion. Narrenglanz, a four-act play, was produced for the first time on any stage at the Schiller O. last week, meeting with a very cordial reception, as genuine as it was well merited. It is the story of Wolf, jester and "spielmann" at the Court of one of the Electors. He is so high in favour that others are envious and plot his ruin. The opportunity his enemies long for comes very soon; the Court poet and a rival jester spy upon a meeting of Wolf and one of the ladies of the Court, Herrad von Wingen, and learn that the lovers are about to part. Herrad tells Wolf that to give the child that will some day be born to her a noble name she has resolved to wed the Knight of Pfalzberg within three days. One of Wolf's chief enemies, the Knight Enterlein, has made a song about the jester's love and its consequences, and after the wedding banquet sings it. Wolf, who soon perceives the drift of things, becomes beside himself with rage, and, snatching up a sword, strikes the singer. For this he is condemned to be publicly whipped—a disgrace which Wolf (who has been so well treated that he has forgotten his servitude) cannot and will not survive. So, although he is set at liberty by one of his friends almost before the punishment has begun, the unfortunate jester takes his life. The language of the play is poetic and romantic, without sentimentality, and the interest increases from act to act. The acting was excellent, Herr Ziegel (Wolf) and Fräulein Wuest, of the Lessing Theatre, as Herrad giving very fine renderings. Herr Rittner was "called" repeatedly and cheered to the echo.

THE Figaro, whose bill is plenteous in novelties, produced a little musical comedy entitled Paris last Th

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 18, the Play, entitled
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

Most welcome, indeed, are such strong and interesting dramas as Sherlock Holmes, and large audiences have during the week renewed happy acquaintance with Sir Conan Doyle's world-celebrated detective and his marvellous acts and deeds. His hairbreadth escapes, the daring risks to which he exposes himself, and his love affair, all combine to invest him with a touch of romance that appeals to the audience to no small extent, and makes for a real popular success. The play has been seen at the King's on several previous occasions, but we can safely say that in no instance has the part of Sherlock Holmes been rendered with more tact and cleverness than by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, who, in the present revival, looks and acts the famous detective to the life. Mr. Stewart has evidently studied the novel, in order to grasp the true manners of the man. Most powerful, too, is the acting of Mr. James Skea as Professor Moriarty, the implacable enemy of Holmes. An incisive performance of Foreman is given by Mr. Fred Bell; and Mr. Allan Jeayes plays the character of the detective's medical friend, Dr. Watson, with much ability. Mr. James Hare is excellent as James Larrabee; and Mr. Edward Mervyn is an admirably humorous Sidney Prince. Alfred Bassick, Moriarty's lieutenant, is capably played by Mr. Wilson Roberts; and the three "thugs," Jim Craigin, Thomas Leary, and Lightfoot MacTague, are impersonated with realistic ferocity by Messrs. Gordon W. Bull, W. Pemberton, and Harold Broughton. Master Leslie Hall is a capital representative of the boy Billy. As Alice Faulkner, Miss Gladys Harvey plays sympathetically, and with much grace and feeling. Miss Dot Sielby is good as Mrs. Faulkner; and Miss Rosalie Notrelle is very bright in the small part of Thérèse. Miss Georgina Wynter represents Madge Larrabee in clever fashion, and deserves every praise. The scenery is up to standard, and the lighting effects are exceedingly well displayed.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 18, the Comedy, in Three Acts,
"PETER'S MOTHER."

Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, including Miss Ruth Mackay, Mr. Percy Hutchison, and Mr. Eille Norwood, appeared here on Monday for the first time with Peter's Mother. They were well received, their visit having been looked forward to for some time, and more than realised all expectations. The company has been selected with more than usual discretion, each one being especially gifted for the part undertaken. Miss Ruth Mackay fills the title-rôle in a very able and charming manner, sustaining the interest of the character throughout. She was accorded an enthusiastic reception on Monday. The Sir Timothy Crewys is a finished and carefully-studied performance in the hands of Mr. Charles Harley. His clever acting and excellent delivery are most impressive. As Peter Crewys, the lion's share of the work falls upon Mr. Percy Hutchison, whose performance is a most meritorious one, fully earning the hearty approval bestowed upon him. Mr. Eille Norwood gives a powerful impersonation of John Crewys, K.C.; and Mr. William Mallalieu is excellently cast for the part of Canon Birch. It would be difficult to find a better exponent of Dr. Blundell than Mr. Drew Macintosh, who also excels in the stage management of the play. The undoubted capabilities of Miss Mary Griffiths as Lady Belstone and Mrs. Mallalieu as Miss G. Crewys is evidenced by the hearty approval of their efforts. As Mrs. Hewell, Miss Ethel Royale gives every satisfaction, whilst a charming reading of Sarah, her daughter, is given by Miss Hilda Honiss. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. T. Salver as Butler and Footman give capable renderings of their respective parts. The farce, entitled Chalk and Cheese, by Mr. Eille Norwood, precedes Peter's Mother as a curtain-raiser, in which Mr. Drew Macintosh and the Misses Ethel Royale and Hilda Honiss enact Walter Raymond, Sybil, and Perkin to the entire satisfaction and amusement of the audience.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 18, the Play entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

Mr. Alfred Sutro's clever play fills the bill here this week, and the large audiences that have been attracted have proved Mr. Robert Arthur's wisdom in booking it for a return visit, many old friends and crowds of new ones showing their desire to see this much-talked-of play. Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Leveaux's company is an exceedingly well chosen one, and the characters are all admirably played. To Mr. E. A. Anson falls the rôle of Jack Frobisher, which he plays in a manly and vigorous manner. His deliverance of the great speech at the end of the third act is a fine effort given with great point, and its effect is very telling. Lady Alethea is played in charming and finished manner by Miss Gladys Mason, an actress of great merit, who acts throughout in a delightful way. Miss Mason gives a very clever study of a society lady of the period, and both in the lighter side of the character and in the more dramatic she is equally at ease. That breezy person, Hankey Bannister, is admirably portrayed by Mr. George A. Brandram, who plays the character in an honest, straightforward style that exactly suits the part. Miss Nona Wynne is very bright as Lady Lucy. The representative of the House of Peers, the Marquis of Steventon, is acted in an amusing way by Mr. Cyril Baleine; while Mr. Alexander Cassy is likewise good as Lord Drayton. Mr. A. W. Tyrer appears with success as Harry Dallas; Mr. George Percy does well as Hannaford; and Mr. Joseph Herbert is seen to advantage as Wilfred Renton. Lady Westerby is cleverly played by Miss Marguerite Cellier; and the card-loving Duchess is neatly sketched by Miss Leonara Thomas. Miss Edith Cuthbert is smart as Miss Mornington; and the Lady Parchester of Miss Evelyn Maxwell is a creditable piece of acting. The other characters are in each case carefully portrayed. The play is, as usual, mounted in the best style under the stage direction of Mr. G. A. Brandram. Mr. E. F. Mehrer is the manager for Messrs. Dauncey and Leveaux, and Mr. Wilfred Stanford, the acting-manager of the theatre, is always to the fore in looking after the comforts of its patrons.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 18, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

A strong moral drama is always sure of a warm welcome from patrons of the Shakespeare Theatre, and the visit this week of Mr. Walter Melville's company in the above popular play is proving no exception to the rule, for at each performance the house has been literally packed from floor to ceiling with enthusiastic playgoers. The keynote of the drama, to quote the programme, is a stirring outcry against the curse of secret drinking and the undermining evils resulting from same; but Mr. Melville has handled the subject in a manner that, whilst fully emphasising the chief points, the play loses none of the alternating humour and pathos so dear to the hearts of lovers of this class of entertainment. The rôle of the unfortunate dipsomaniac Barbara Wade was undertaken with distinct success by Miss Hilda Beverley. An actress of considerable ability, Miss Beverley made a deep impression on the audience, and at the close of the performance was accorded considerable applause. Miss Florence Zillwood skilfully portrayed the abandoned nature of Nellie Meadows, and, acting with all the callousness that was necessary, acquitted herself with credit. Miss Jessica Black, who makes a pleasing appearance as Constance Cornell, acts with zest and sincerity; and warm praise must be accorded to Miss Mabel Scudamore, who as Tilly Vane kept the audience well amused. Mr. Charles Franmore as John Meadows was the rugged old farmer to the life, and acted throughout with pathos. He faithfully portrayed the main characteristic of the part, and his sterling work greatly added to the success of the play. Mr. Wilson Gunning played with much earnestness as Jack Livingstone; and Mr. Cyril Vernon was thoroughly satisfactory as Dr. Weston. Mr. Gerald Jordan presented a careful study of the villainous Cuthbert Lumley; and Mr. Fred Withers does all that is possible in the part of Luke Ramsden. The comic element in the play is supplied by Mr. Fred Ingram, and his impersonation of Toby Turvey evoked roars of laughter. The minor parts are capably enacted, and the scenery and effects all that could be desired. Mr. Fred Gallagher is business-manager and Mr. Fred Withers stage-manager for Mr. Walter Melville.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 18, the Musical Comedy,
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Mr. William Greet's company is appearing this week in the evergreen Earl and the Girl, which the programme claims to be a record-breaking musical comedy. Like all the pieces in which Mr. Seymour Hicks has a hand, it is full of bustle and life, and the music, by Mr. Ivan Caryll, is replete with graceful and lilting melody. Miss Gertrude Melville as Daisy Fallowfield acts with animation and charm, and her songs, "The Owl," "When love comes knocking at the door" (with pretty and appropriate choral "business"), and "The Blush Rose of England," are delightfully rendered. Miss Francis Earle is a merry and bright little Elphin Haye, the American schoolgirl-heiress, and enters thoroughly into the fun of her part; and Mr. Arthur Harold skims lightly and very pleasantly through that of Dick Wargrave, their duet being agreeably rendered. "The cosy corner girl," in which they also take part, and "Zanzibar" are most acceptably given. Mr. Percy E. Wright as Hon. Crewe Boodle (the supposed heir) acts well, and has a delightful voice, which is heard to advantage in "Here come the Grenadiers." Miss Frances James as the strong woman, Mrs. Shimmering Black, acts well, and, if anything, is too prepossessing. Mr. William Stephens plays the character of Jim Cheese, the dog trainer, on broad low comedy lines, his rendering evoking an incessant ripple of laughter from the audience. Mr. Fred W. Pattrick as Hazel, mine host of the Fallowfield Arms, renders yeoman service in keeping up the fun of the farce; and Miss Jennie Richards scores as the impulsive, warm-hearted coster girl, Liza Shoddam. The "Entente Cordiale" dance in the second act is smartly executed. The orchestra, largely augmented by special instruments carried by the company, is under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker. Mr. Alexander Telford is the business-manager, and Mr. George A. Highland undertakes the duties of stage management.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 18, the Irish Musical Play, entitled
"THE WEARIN' O' THE GREEN."

As the spirit of St. Patrick was prevalent during the early portion of the week, it was a very happy inspiration that prompted the enterprising management of this comfortable theatre to engage Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's capable company in the Irish drama, The Wearin' o' the Green, the story of which possesses much domestic interest and sound sentiment. Many songs and dances are introduced, making the entertainment exceedingly bright and enjoyable, and which on Monday night were evidently greatly to the taste of the large audience assembled. Barney O'Hea is played with humorous spirit by Mr. Chalmers Mackey, who creates much amusement, while his songs, "Why Paddy's always poor" and "Mistress Biddy," together with the Irish jigs so cleverly rendered, make the impersonation one of genuine merit. A bright and winsome Biddy M'Glun is found in Miss Nana Flensberg, whose song, "Barney O'Hea," was largely to the taste of those in front. Shamus M'Dermott finds a manly and earnest representative in Mr. Mansell Fane, whose fine voice is heard to advantage in "Those endearing young charms," "Nora Asthore," "Dear old mother" and "The wearin' o' the green." Mr. John S. Chamberlain plays the scheming villain, Michael Kenny, with energy and skill; and Gerald Courtney is acted with capital effect by Mr. St. John Stuart. Praise must be accorded Mrs. Chalmers Mackey for her delineation of Nora M'Grath, and Mrs. M'Dermott is carefully performed by Miss Adele Liddon; while good exponents of Ellen Fitzgerald, Edith Anstruther, and Gladys Anstruther are found in Miss Kathleen Clare, Miss Nellie More, and Miss Mona Russell. A finished reading of Sir George Courtney is presented by Mr. H. Sainsbury; and Mr. David M'Farlane puts in some good work as Connor Martin. Effective support is given by Mr. John Neville as Sergeant Yorke, Mr. George Edwards as James Weever, Mr. C. Quinlan as William Shuttleton, and Mr. Lawrence Sullivan as Mick Dolan. The scenery and mounting were in every respect satisfactory; and Mr. Harry Lyons, the attentive general-manager, is ever to the fore in looking after the comfort of his patrons, assisted by his able lieutenant, Mr. E. H. Grime.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 18, the Play, by Professor Hurwitz, with music by Prof. F. Staub, entitled
"THE POLISH BOY."

That the Yiddish patrons of this theatre are enthusiastic in their support was effectively demonstrated on Monday night, when a huge audience packed the house from floor to ceiling, amply testifying to the fact of their appreciation of Mr. S. Schilling, the talented and popular low comedian of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, who, by the permission of the management, had been accorded a well-deserved benefit. On this occasion The Polish Boy, a musical play, by Hurwitz and Staub, was the attraction, in which Mr. S. Schilling gave much satisfaction by his quaint and humorous impersonation of Schmuel Gorgel; he was ably seconded by Miss R. Bryh as Reizele, whose vocalisation of several exceedingly tasteful numbers was greatly to the delight of the house, while the many duets and dances of this entertaining couple were provocative in every instance of vociferous encores. Mr. S. Feinman displayed masterly acting as Kalmen Kratch; and Mr. M. Gusofsky was admirable as Berele, while a competent Postman was found in Mr. N. Hamburger. Mr. Isaacowitch is always to be relied upon for good work, and gave an effective portrayal of Methel Dayen; and Mr. J. Goldsmith played well as Faivish Machles, although a little variety in "make-up" would be acceptable. Mme. Goldstein acted with discretion as Machle; and Mme. Josephson was a capable Zirel Zveitel. The scenery and mounting were beyond reproach. The popular acting-manager, Mr. Fred Brown, certainly had his resources severely taxed, but was more than equal to the task. During the week Kreutzer Sonata, Real Happiness, Mrs. Tartakoff's Revenge, The Jewish Hamlet, Blimele, and Holy Sabbath have been played.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 18, the Comedy, entitled
"THREE BLIND MICE."

Mr. Arthur Law's very successful comedy has had to be removed from the Criterion in the full tide of success, and Fulham playgoers have had the opportunity of witnessing the play with the entire company and production just as it was given at the London house. The company is a strong one, and the members of it play the piece with just the right touch of comedy. Mr. Fred Kerr has an attractive rôle as Julian Shuckburg, and acts with delightful finish and a real sense of humour. The three lovers—the "blind mice"—are all ably represented. Mr. Hubert Druce is the ponderous Guest, and his make-up and facial contortions are very funny. Mr. O. B. Clarence is equally entertaining as the feeble Lavender; and Mr. Max Leeds rattles along most agreeably as the youthful Ricketts, and plays that very youthful lover admirably. Miss Kate Serjeantson is an excellent representative of the lethargic Lady Clarisforde; and Miss Dorothy Edwards acts with point and finish as the maid Jessop. Miss Granville has a less attractive part as Lady Richard Marrable, but plays with great skill and power; and Miss May Palfrey represents Marjorie Lovel with much charm and grace and a due spirit of fun. Miss Annie Hill makes the most of the part of Miss Tippings. The other characters are also capably played, viz., Mr. Littledale Power as Jim Sporrit the ostler, Miss St. Clair Swanzy as Mrs. Joliffe, and Miss Sheba Brozel as the waitress at the inn.

Three Blind Mice was preceded by the little play A Queen's Messenger, by J. Hartley Manners. In this Miss Granville acts with rare power as a lady who decoys a Queen's Messenger to her rooms in order to rob him of a despatch, and is afterwards stricken with remorse and gives away her advantage. She is well seconded by Mr. Wilfred Forster as the unfortunate Messenger.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 18, the Musical Play, entitled
"THE BLUE MOON."

A high standard of perfection has been deservedly attained by Mr. R. Courtneidge's company, which is appearing at Kennington this week in The Blue Moon, the cast being a distinctly powerful one. Miss Clarice Lockstone as Chandra Nil well merited the applause which her appearance on Monday evoked from the large audience. Mr. J. Edward Fraser and Mr. Thomas Holding as the rival suitors in the respective characters of Captain Jack Ormsby and Prince Badahur Samatsinghi of Karikhar, demanded the full sympathy of the assembly. Bobbie Scott, alias Aubrew Ellison, the literary critic, and Evelyn Ormsby, the Spring poetess, of whom he unconsciously wrote scathing criticisms, were well presented by Mr. George Mudie, jun., and Miss Ethel Callanan. Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor, with Miss Florence Imeson as the maid, Millicent Leroy, aroused much laughter from all who heard their lively but practical chatter and amusing songs. The central character of the piece, Moolraj, originally a deserter from the British Army, was admirably taken by Mr. Edward Lewis, who is a comedian of undoubted merit. The part of the Major, commanding officer of the Garrison at Naga, is humorously supported by Mr. Alfred Clark. Miss Mabel Lorrell gives a pleasing delineation of Lady Augusta Brabasham, and Miss Hilda Lockner and Miss Florence Foster as Miss Lovehill and Miss Sparrow respectively are worthy of all praise. The Englishmen living on the station play an important part in the setting, and especially in the harmonising of the various choruses. The principal of these are the Hon. Archie May, A.D.C. to the Major, and Clive Mansfield, of the Forestry Department, in which characters Mr. Frank Haylett and Mr. Edward Noble are seen at their best. The two English tourists, Farzer Jenkins and Henneker Makins, are adequately represented by Mr. A. C. McDearmid and Mr. Charles Francis. As the two native officers, Abdul and Hefez, Mr. Hugh Glendon and Mr. George Parti were very well suited to the parts. Oma, the native (Miss Maud Schwitz), and Ramah, the singing girl (Miss Christine Ferris), both belonging to Moolraj's itinerant band of musicians, were ideal Indians. The Six Ruby Girls, servitors at the Prince's Palace, were possessed of unusually fine voices, which sounded sweetly in their various part-songs. The two scenes, the Bungalow at Naga and the Court of the Ruby Palace at Karikhar, were very fine settings, which considerably enhanced the beauty of this charming production.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, March 18, the Comedy, entitled
"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

Mr. Cecil Paget gives us a great attraction here this week in the presence of Mr. Pinero's play, His House in Order, which has just finished such a successful career at the St. James's Theatre. Mr. George Alexander's company includes Miss Auriol Lee, who has sometimes played Miss Irene Vanbrugh's original part at the St. James's, and who now presents a splendid reading of the part of the wayward and misunderstood young wife, Nina Jesson. Her scene of the great renunciation in the third act was very finely given, and throughout she completely captured the hearts of the audience by her brilliant acting. Miss Lee received most able support from Mr. Frank Fenton, whose portrayal of the breezy and good-hearted man of the world, Hilary Jesson, is delightfully fresh and natural. His defence or Nina in the second act was capitally given, and his appeal to the girl's better nature in the third act had just the requisite sympathetic ring. Mr. Cyril Harcourt, who made a very favourable impression here in Leah Kleschna, scored a notable success as the cold and austere Filmer Jesson, and his final scene was especially well rendered. As the pompous, deep-voiced old humbug, Sir Daniel Ridgeley, Mr. George Fitzgerald was very well placed; and Mr. A. E. Benedict gave an admirable character-sketch of bluff Dr. Dilnott. Mr. Lloyd Lowndes made a gentlemanly Major Maureward; and Miss Maisie Richardson enacted the rôle of little Derek Jesson in a very natural and engaging manner. Mr. George Silver played to the life the character of the young cad, Pryce Ridgeley; and his prim sister, Geraldine, was safe in the hands of Miss Audrey Campbell. Miss Lilli Kehr played with an elegant manner and irreproachable accent the rôle of the French governess; and Mr. Cyril Cattley made a courteous Press interviewer as Forshaw. Mrs. Kemmis, Mr. Reginald Besant, Mr. W. Barnett Parker, and Mr. Reginald Thomas complete a cast of singular all-round excellence. The scenery is very effective, particularly the set of the third and fourth acts, the Hall at Overbury Towers. Mr. A. P. Horne is the general-manager for the company, and Mr. Cyril Cattley the stage-manager.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 18, Verdi's Opera, entitled
"IL TROVATORE."

Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Season is now in its fifth week here, and is still drawing large audiences and meeting with the success deserved. On Monday Il Trovatore was the chosen opera for production, and the representation secured was in all respects highly meritorious. Great praise is due to Mr. F. J. Hargrave for his exceptionally fine interpretation of Manrico. His excellent voice, full of expression, was heard to distinct advantage throughout the opera, and in the "Miserere" scene in the last act his vocal efforts attained a high standard of excellence, and his really wonderful performance met with due appreciation. Mr. Tom Griffiths, whose singing has always proved most acceptable here, again delighted his hearers with a very pleasing rendering of the music of Count di Luna. Mr. George Ridding rendered admirable service as Ferrando, and Mr. P. Newton was all that could be desired as Ruiz. In the rôle of Azucena Miss Jessie Dennis had a fine opportunity of displaying her skill and did so in good style, making the most of every opportunity offered. Miss Christine Gomez did all that was possible as Inez. As Leonora Mme. Sarah Williams displayed exceptional skill; her singing was decidedly impressive, and her high notes were rendered with wonderful clearness. In her final scene with Manrico she sang with great feeling, and was heartily applauded. The chorus and orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. T. Lawton, again gave valuable assistance. Other operas upon this week's programme are Fra Diavolo, The Puritan's Daughter, Faust, The Bohemian Girl, Der Freischütz, and Maritana.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 18, the Drama, entitled
"THE FACE AT THE WINDOW."

The Face at the Window has been on the road for a long time now, and its many exciting situations always ensure for it a warm welcome from a popular audience. Its reception at Rotherhithe has been very cordial, and the hearty hisses which greet the performance of the murderous scoundrel Lucio Delgado, alias The Wolf, by Mr. Weldon Atherstone, must be taken as a tribute to the great ability with which that gentleman plays an arduous part; Mr. Atherstone makes a decided success in the character. Mr. Ashley Page has a part somewhat out of his usual line as the Sherlock Holmes-like detective Paul Gauffet, which he plays in first-class style, his disguise as an old woman being a most clever assumption. Miss Marion Denvil acts with her usual grace and charm as the sorely-tried banker's daughter, Marie de Brisson; and Mr. David Noble is a young and gallant Lucien Certier. Mr. Johnny Chippendale acts with much humour as the eccentric Peter Pottlebury; and Miss Mattie Everett is very amusing as the French chambermaid, Babette. Miss East Robertson contributes an effective character-sketch as La Pinaw, and Mr. John Sargent is a grim Jean Barbelon; Henry de Brisson is impressively played by Mr. Cecil G. Calvert; and Mr. Tom Tayler does well in the small rôle of the doctor. The remaining characters are all in good hands. The various thrilling episodes, the appearances of the face at the window, the duel in the Luxemberg gardens, the fight on the house tops, and the electrification of the corpse are most effectively and realistically managed.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 18, the Drama, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

This pronounced dramatic success of Mr. Walter Melville's is always welcome in Marylebone, and a hearty reception was this week accorded the members of Mr. Douglas Bruce's excellent company. The predominant rôle of Captain Jeoffrey Caversham was most effectively handled by Mr. Frank Adair, who extracted every ounce possible out of the part. Mr. George Mitchell was perfectly easy and natural as the repentant forger, James Sutton; Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle ably portrayed the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. C. Franklin scored as Detective Weathersby; Mr. George H. Asquin caused much laughter by his versatility as Dick Punch; and Mr. Stanley S. Gordon looked and spoke well as Jack England, alias Private Johnson, the sorely-tried hero. Miss Lydia Mannington sustained Marion Franklyn with force and passion; Miss Emmie Barton was pleasingly graceful as the delightful ingénue Rose Seymour; whilst Miss Ethel Bracewell as the supplicating and despairing Molly Vernon imparted plenty of realism into her interpretation. The piece was well mounted and staged.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 20, Shakespeare's Comedy,
"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW."

Mr. Fred Fredericks has provided local playgoers with a dramatic treat this week by the engagement of Mr. Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, and their company, who are appearing in The Taming of the Shrew and Othello. A crowded audience witnessed the performance of Shakespeare's merry play on Monday night, and testified to their enjoyment by unstinted applause. Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton in the principal rôles of Petruchio and Katharina are making numberless additions to their already long list of admirers by their delightful performances, and have to respond to numerous calls before the curtain. Mr. Alfred Brydone plays with dignity and ease as Baptista; Mr. J. Fritz Russell is well placed as Vincentio; and Mr. H. R. Hignett plays with distinction as Lucentio. Mr. Caleb Porter is exceedingly good as Gremio; and Mr. Reginald Ian Penny makes a dashing figure of Hortensio. Mr. G. Kay Souper contributes a spirited performance as Tranio; and Mr. R. F. Anson is an excellent Biondello. Mr. Henry Kitts makes the utmost of his opportunities as Grumio; and Mr. Stanley B. Farbridge as a steward, Mr. W. R. Staveley as a pedant, and Mr. Gardon Harker as a tailor play most appropriately. Miss Agnes Brayton is a very prepossessing Bianca, and acts with much charm and expression; and Miss Leila Norris as a widow and Miss Constance Robertson as Curtis submit entirely creditable performances.

On Tuesday and Thursday evenings Othello was played.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 18, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Mr. George Dance's company with this successful musical comedy commenced a six nights' engagement here on Monday before a large and delighted audience. The piece was admirably interpreted by all concerned, the scenery was artistic, the dresses very rich and appropriate, and the chorus well trained and attractive. The orchestra was ably directed by Mr. J. A. Robertson. Miss Moya Mannering was a delightful Angela, and sang her numbers, "I'll be a good little girl" and "Don't go too fast," very sweetly, and also her share in the duet "Suppose" was most pleasing. Mr. Frank Lincoln was very good as the Duke of St. Jermyns, and shared with Miss Mannering the warm applause of the audience, his songs, "Church parade" and "A quaint old bird," being admirably rendered. Mr. E. H. Kelly gave a clever representation of Lord Dundreary. Mr. C. Dickens as Higham Montague, Mr. Hugh Henson as Lord Hatton, Mr. Hampton Gordon as Sir John Crystal, Mr. Alfred Miles as Mr. William Gibson, Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Captain Rushpool, and Mr. F. Sealey as Almeric Montpellier all gave excellent expositions of their respective characters. A special word of praise must be accorded the Bucket of Master Grata. Miss Maud Davies was a handsome and dignified Duchess of St. Jermyns. Miss Emily Mellon was an attractive Lady Crystal, whose two daughters, Sophie and Honorie, had charming representatives in Miss Isobel Dickens and Miss Florence Lee. Miss Lillian Wesson was good as Miss Caw, as were Miss Carew as the Princess and Miss Belle Napier as Miss Caterham. Mr. Arthur Davis is the capable and courteous business manager of the company.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 18, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR."

Good houses have been the rule at the Kingston playhouse this week, where this attractive production is making a seven days' stay, and its reception has been of a favourable character, the company which Mr. Milton Bode has brought together being a most capable one, and the piece being presented with every consideration as to scenery, costumes, and other appointments. Miss May Yates makes a most engaging Julia Chaldicott, and thoroughly earns the favours which her efforts win. Mr. Harry Parker extracts a maximum of fun from the part of Sir John Chaldicott; and as Lady Chaldicott Miss Emily Stevens makes herself a great favourite with all parts of the house. A breezy impersonation of the Hon. Raymond Finchley is given by Mr. Edward Hugonnet; Miss Agnes Tandy is an attractive German Princess; Mr. Haddon Cave is good as the Earl of Mount Highgate; and Mr. Lauri Lisle acquits himself well as the Count de Perrier. Valuable assistance is also given by Mr. Gwyn Alwyn as Hugh Meredith, and by Miss Aurelie de Lariere as the Countess of Highgate. Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge has effective control of the chorus and orchestra.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 18, for the First Time in London, the Romantic Play, in Four Acts, by H. M. Maltby, entitled
"THE YOUNGEST OF THREE."

George Wendover ..... Mr. H. F. Maltby
Gerald Wendover ..... Mr. Wyn Weaver
Philip Radford ..... Mr. Reginald Favell
Samuel Johns ..... Mr. Franc Stoney
Joshua Pynne ..... Mr. Harris Fraser
Luke ..... Mr. R. Seath Innes
Hickey ..... Mr. S. Amclegg
Paul ..... Mr. Lyndon C. Irwin
Perkins ..... Mr. George Laidlaw
Anne Dulley ..... Miss Janet Hodson
Florence Dulley ..... Miss Grace Richardson
Lucy Dulley ..... Miss Mara Maltby
Jane ..... Miss Dolly Cousin

The course of true love runs with its accustomed perversity in the new costume drama introduced to London on Monday, but the author has played upon the old theme with such agreeable variations that it appeals with decided novelty. The freshness of the piece, which was originally produced at Worthing on March 8, 1906, is primarily due to the principal figure of the play, a young girl named Lucy Dulley, who lives with her two elder sisters, Anne and Florence, at Rose Cottage, Upleigh. Both the latter are old maids, whose affections have been misplaced, and, determined to preserve their youthful sister from a similar fate, they seek seclusion in the village of Upleigh. They nevertheless throw their cottage open for the purposes of charity to all who care to come in to see an ebony settee, a relic of the Armada, which adorns their sitting-room. The inevitable happens, for Gerald Wendover, a young artist, son of a neighbouring hunting squire, comes to view the curiosity, and ends by falling in love with the young girl. He breaks the news to his father in the second act, but the squire has other views for his son, and refuses to consent to his marriage with Lucy. Acting on the advice of his old friend Philip Radford, with whom he rides to hounds, old Wendover pays a visit to Upleigh in order to break off the match; but Gerald has overheard their plans, and before his father arrives has eloped with the maiden. They have gone only a few miles on the road when their chaise breaks down, and the young couple take refuge in an inn at a remote village named Pendlebury, where supper is provided. To this inn also come a hunting party, and Lucy hides behind the curtains of a recess. The huntsmen are in high spirits, and endeavour to obtain a glimpse of the lady, with the result that two of them are floored by Gerald's riding-whip. A conflict is prevented by the arrival of Mr. Wendover, who insists on the two lovers parting. The warmth of his language so provokes Gerald that he raises his arm to strike, but Lucy rushes between father and son and prevents the blow, and declaring her intention of returning to her sisters Lucy departs homeward in company with Philip Radford.

Two years elapse in the interval between the third and fourth acts, during which Gerald has gone to India with Radford. The two lovers correspond for some time, but Gerald's letters had ceased many months since. The cause of his silence is revealed when old Wendover, stricken with remorse, comes to Upleigh with the news of Gerald's death, which is conveyed in a letter written by the young man himself, who had been attacked by fever and penned the missive with his last strength. Wendover has scarcely announced the sad tidings when Radford enters with the news that Gerald had recovered and had accompanied him post haste from India, the statement being followed by the appearance of the young man himself. There is a vague reference to a reconciliation between Philip Radford and Florence, but it is so uncertain that it should be either elaborated or dispensed with altogether. The colloquy on the subject of love between the two elder sisters with which the play opens is rather tedious, but otherwise the piece has many bright moments; the dialogue is often witty, and one or two really powerful situations are reached.

Several gratifying successes were scored by the members of the cast, chief honours being gained by Miss Mara Maltby, who was delightfully fresh and impulsive in the title-rôle. She looked the character perfectly, and the childish innocence displayed in the dialogue gained in pleasing effect by its delivery. Miss Maltby has ability beyond her years, and while the girlishness of the character was preserved, her acting in the more emotional phases was touching by reason of its simplicity and grace. Mr. H. F. Maltby assumed the obstinacy and severity of George Wendover realistically. His snow-white locks were perhaps a little unsuited to a man of fifty, especially when so much energy and vigour was imported into the rendering, but Mr. Maltby's acting was deeply impressive throughout, and a sonorous voice and well-measured delivery gave emphasis to every line. A clear and well-modulated voice is also among the accomplishments of Mr. Wyn Weaver, who acted with courtly grace as Gerald Wendover. His share in the light comedy scene in the first act, which may be said to lay the foundation of the success of the play, was invaluable, and he bore himself throughout with buoyancy and acted with real dramatic strength in his stormy encounter with his father in the inn. Mr. Reginald Favell is also to be praised for his rendering of Philip Radford, the good-natured friend of the family, and the virility of his speech and action appreciably strengthened the piece. Miss Janet Hodson was duly precise and caustic in a refined degree as Anne Dulley, the eldest sister, and Miss Grace Richardson was amiable and well-spoken as Florence, the younger. A comic impersonation of a country yokel was furnished by Mr. Lyndon C. Irwin, who aroused sufficient merriment to justify an elaboration of the character; and Mr. Harris Fraser made an amusing personage of the landlord of "The Bowl of Punch." Miss Dolly Cousin was an unusually ladylike maidservant; and in the short scene in the inn Messrs. Franc Stoney, R. Seath Innes, S. Amclegg, and George Laidlaw all did well. The action, being laid in the Regency period, gives opportunity for the display of the picturesque, and Mr. H. F. Maltby may be congratulated on the completeness with which he has dressed and mounted the production, the hunting costumes and the quaint dresses of the ladies forming a striking contrast. In The Youngest of Three a grateful breath of sentiment is wafted over the footlights, and the audience at the Crystal Palace on Monday were enthusiastic in their expressions of approval.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

At the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday night, March 14, the Royal Choral Society performed Sir Edward Elgar's oratorio The Kingdom for the first time, and we may heartily congratulate Sir Frederick Bridge on most successful results, the chorus singing throughout being most impressive and the orchestra under perfect control. The finest effects were in the chorus, "O ye priests," given at the close of the first section, Peter's address to the men of Judæa, and Mary's fine solo, "The sun goeth down." There were some fine moments also in the Pentecost scene, with the chorus responding to the contralto recitative, one of the composer's most striking effects. The soloists were Miss Gleeson-White, Miss Edith J. Miller, Mr. Ben Davies (who received a warm greeting for his admirable singing), and Mr. Dalton Baker; while Mr. H. L. Balfour presided at the organ. There was not a large audience, but great interest was manifested in the performance.

Mr. Charles Pell, business-manager of the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, is about to sever his connection with that place of entertainment.

A.A. SOCIAL.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones was the chairman at a largely attended social gathering of members of the Actors' Association held on Friday afternoon last week, when Miss Gertrude Kingston read a paper on "The Truth About English Acting." Mr. George Bernard Shaw occupied a seat by the chairman.

Miss Kingston opened by saying that what she wished to speak about was the growing tendency to specialise in acting, and the belief that an actor could only play one kind of part—a part suited to his physical personality. The people who cast the actor for a part were like the bankers who invested one's money in British consols years ago, and tried to persuade one that it was safe because they were getting only two and a half per cent. for it. So when an actor had made a success in one part it was thought that he was sure to do it again in the same line, although, really, he wasn't. The fact was that he was so familiar with the style of part that he either took no trouble at all or he tried some new departure, and disappointed the stage-manager. "I am not here," said Miss Kingston, "to tell you that you can't act in England. I know that you can. But when I hear mediocre foreigners exalted into great actors to the detriment of our own I know that is because the Londoner takes the emphatic gesticulation and mobility of feature for acting. But I, who have an equal part of German and Italian in my veins, who studied in Paris as a very young girl, and know the mannerisms of all three nations, ask you to believe me when I tell you that every stationmaster abroad will speak and gesticulate with equal emphasis when you complain that the train is late. It will take you twenty years to arrive at the full completion of your powers. In this country they want the experience of forty on the shoulders of twenty. It is a fashion imported, I believe, from America. That is where the sadness of the actress's life comes in. After a woman has had a score of years' experience of the stage, by which time her powers are ripe, she no longer looks Juliet, or, rather, she is not allowed to play Juliet. The Yankee boss says: 'You are very young and very good to look at. Don't know whether you can act worth a cent. Don't care, anyway. I'll just make a star of you, and then the B. P. will think you can act, or if they don't they won't have the courage to say so.' That is in the main true—not that the B. P. don't know that you can act, but that they are too lazy to ask for their money back, and it is not quite gentlemanly to tell them at the box office that So-and-So is a bad actor. A nation that will submit to be robbed by municipal wastrels is capable of being bullied into accepting any standard of art. We are too idle to protest that it is the pitfall of boys and girls. Why bother about the architect's manifold designs when, with youth and good looks, you can build a pretty house that will pass muster? The real edifice, the edifice that rears its towers heavenwards, is built with blood and tears, and the best can only be conquered by wrestling with life and by experience of life. It is, too, a question of temperament. There are many who yearn for the good things of this world, and to them there seems no logical reason why they should not have them when a good presence and a good suit from the tailor in a man and a picture hat and beseeching eyes in a girl may grasp all the very best things in a few moments. Why work for work's sake when it is discouraging? Why contend with critics who cannot dissociate the actor from his part—to whom you are bad actors when you have bad parts and great actors when you have great parts; with the playwright who has seen someone with red hair and green eyes on the top of an omnibus who typifies his ideal of the part he has written; with the manager who engages by the foot-rule, for whom you are too tall or too short, too round or too scraggy?

Mr. George Bernard Shaw, entering into the debate which followed, said that his view of the existing state of things on the stage was absolutely contrary to that of Miss Kingston. That the older and more experienced actors did not get a chance was an extraordinary situation. Pretty young ladies in picture hats called upon him from time to time, and they all said, "Oh, Mr. Shaw, we cannot get a chance. We are young and beautiful. What are we to do? We would like to be in a beautiful play like Captain Brassbound's Conversion, but you give Miss Ellen Terry the leading part." Well, he (Mr. Shaw) had never found it difficult to get good acting. In fact, there was plenty of it. He would impress upon them that acting was a thing that certain managers and authors could do without if necessary. There was a certain kind of play which would be knocked to pieces were its production characterised by original conceptions of the parts or an attempt to make human beings of the characters. One single moment of reality would show up the artificiality of the play. He had seen marionette performances which were far more moving and lifelike. Many managers and authors did not know what real acting was. He produced his own plays at the Court Theatre, and the great secret of his productions was that he never produced a play at all. Actors and actresses seemed to feel quite uneasy unless they were practically told every mortal thing they ought to do. He himself preferred to leave everything to the intelligence of members of the cast; in fact, he learnt a great many things about his plays from the actors. Why so many plays proved unremunerative was that they were run too long. Under the Court Theatre system, if a piece were announced to run for four weeks it would be taken off at the end of four weeks, no matter if there was a demand for its continued production. By this means the public did not get tired of the plays produced at the house. His own plays were revived at an advantage, because everyone who had seen them once wanted to see them again.

The Chairman remarked that he thought that Mr. Shaw had represented one side of the question only. Constant training under the stock system was no doubt very bad for the public on which it was practised, but at any rate that system produced competent actors who were confident in their acting. The old stock company gave Irving one hundred and eight parts in his first year. It could not be gainsaid that for great emotional parts long practice was required, and in "stock" the actors failed in great parts before they succeeded in them, and opportunities were wanted for trying and trying again.

DRAMA IN THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SINGAPORE, FEB. 20.—A visit from the Bandmann Comedy Company, in Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, has afforded much pleasure to crowded and enthusiastic houses. The company is an excellent one, and the play went with a "snap" from start to finish. Mr. Claude King as Raffles and Miss Florence Hamer as Mrs. Vidal were admirable, both being many times recalled. Mr. Clifford Brown as Crawshay and Miss Helen Grenville as Lady Ethel were excellent; and Mr. S. T. Pease as the ex-professional detective, Curtis Bedford, played cleverly. Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter as Lord Crowley was distinctly amusing; and Mr. P. Sanders as Harry Manders, Mr. Frank Peachey as Lord Amersteth, Miss Violet Vorley as Gwendoline, were commendable in their various parts. Goldby, Merton, Barraclough, Marie, and Lady Melrose were in the capable hands of Messrs. W. S. Butt, E. Phillips, T. H. Wallis, Miss F. Russell-Spiers, and Miss Dorcas Corsbie.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

A CRITERION MATINEE.

A special benefit matinée was given at the Criterion Theatre on the 15th, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Jamaica Relief Fund, under the auspices of the West India Committee and the Press Club, and by kind permission of Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen.

The only novelty in the programme was the production of a new comedietta, in one act, book and lyrics by Rita Strauss, music by Marjorie Slaughter, entitled

"THE WOODEN SHOE."

The Burgomaster .....MR. REGINALD HUNTER
Gaston .....MR. MAURICE D'OISLY
Pierre .....MR. RALPH HUTTON
Comtesse de Villemarche..MLLE. MARIE ST. PAUL
Mère Babette .....MISS SIBYL LONSDALE
Marie .....MISS RHODA STRAUSS
Lizette .....MISS ELSIE ST. DAVID WILLIAMS

The heroine of the story is a pretty peasant girl named Lizette, and the opening scene represents a village in Savoy, with a crowd of its inhabitants enjoying themselves with song and dance. Gaston, the son of the Burgomaster, has fallen in love with Lizette, but his father is strongly opposed to his wedding a poor peasant maiden, the adopted daughter of Pierre, the innkeeper, and his wife, Mère Babette, who, however, tells how years ago a lady came to the inn, and, when she departed, left a little girl behind. The forsaken infant the worthy couple have brought up as their own child. On the signboard of the inn is a little wooden shoe; its fellow was taken away by the lady. The Burgomaster is inclined to cast a doubt on the truth of the story, but the appearance of the lady herself and her French maid prove beyond question that Mère Babette has not been romancing. Lizette's mother is indeed no less important a personage than the Comtesse de Villemarche, who acknowledges her daughter; and it follows, as a matter of course, that the Burgomaster raises no further objection to the marriage of his son and Lizette.

Mr. Reginald Hunter played well as the pompous official, and "I am the Burgomaster," proved one of the best songs in the piece. Mr. Maurice d'Oisly was good as Gaston, and was applauded for his excellent rendering of the ditty, "Little Girl." Miss Elsie St. David Williams was a very bright and attractive Lizette, and sang with charming effect "Dreaming" and "I may be a lady." Miss Rhoda Strauss was appropriately piquant as the Comtesse's French maid, and scored with her song, "The love of dress," followed by a graceful dance. Mr. Ralph Hutton as the innkeeper and Miss Sibyl Lonsdale as Mère Babette were both well placed, and there was an attractive chorus of villagers.

The first act of Mr. Arthur Law's comedy, Three Blind Mice, was played, with Mr. Frederick Kerr as Julian Shuckburgh and Miss May Palfrey as Marjorie Lovell. Miss Constance Collier admirably recited two "Love Lyrics of the Seventeenth Century," with pianoforte accompaniment by Mr. Stanley Hawley; Mr. J. J. Dallas sang a song; the Criterion Theatre orchestra gave a musical selection from The Gondoliers, under the direc- of Mr. Brigata Bucalossi; Mr. James Welch recited "Hello!"; Mr. Courtice Pounds sang "Nora McGee," accompanied by Miss Marjorie Slaughter; Miss Kathleen Mayer gave four songs at the piano, including "Ma Sunbeam Girl" and "Wouldn't you?" and Chung Ling Soo, the Chinese conjurer, astonished the audience by some clever business. The entertainment, which was honoured by the presence of the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, was under the stage-management of Mr. Duncan Druce; and the ladies who kindly sold programmes included the Misses Lilian Braithwaite, Alexandra Carlisle, Frances Dillon, Lilias Waldegrave, Marie Dainton, Kitty Mason, Enid Leonhardt, Sadie Jerome, and Eleanor Souray.

"THE ROBE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS."

A New Drama, in Four Acts, by Norman Towers, Produced at the Theatre Royal, Ilkeston, on Wednesday, March 13.

Christopher Penfold ..MR. NEWTON J. COWLING
Dr. Brownlow Grundy ....MR. FRANK DALLAS
Lord Herbert Beechmond..MR. F. WILBERFORCE
Will Knightman .....MR. CHAS. HALLING
Rev. Pinkerton Grundy .....MR. GEO. SCULLY
Gunner .....MR. GEO. OWEN
Beryl Penfold .....MISS DAISY HALLING
Lady Pauline Beechmond..MISS L. DARLINGTON
Mrs. Penfold .....MRS. SYDNEY HALLING
Little Beryl .....MISS EDITH TEMPEST

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The play opens in the cottage of Christopher Penfold, a boat-builder, where Mrs. Penfold is seen working at a wedding-dress (the Robe of Righteousness), begun for a dead sister, and now being completed for their daughter Beryl. It is the desire of the boat-builder that Beryl shall marry Will Knightman, though the young lady herself has other intentions. Lord Beechmond finds that Beryl is the girl he has secretly met, this discovery being made when he and Lady Beechmond come to inspect the Penfolds' cottage. Will Knightman offers a present to Beryl on her birthday, which she refuses, much to his annoyance. The girl takes the first opportunity of revealing to Lord Beechmond her love for him, then, having quarrelled with her father, she follows his lordship to London. She calls at his rooms at the Langdon Hotel, but finds that he is absent. She has an interview with Lady Beechmond, and declares that she is the mistress of her husband and the mother of his child. Mr. Penfold calls on Lord Beechmond, and finds Beryl in the act of putting poison into a sleeping draught intended for Lady Beechmond. Beryl acknowledges her guilt, and endeavours to take the draught herself, but is prevented by Dr. Grundy. Beryl expresses her sorrow, and the curtain falls.

Ten years are supposed to elapse. Christopher Penfold saves a woman from a wreck, and conveys her to his cottage; but on the way she expires. He then discovers that she is his daughter. Will Knightman has also brought ashore a little girl, who proves to be the dead woman's child. Lord Beechmond makes enquiries concerning Beryl, and is told the sad news. He visits the Penfolds' cottage, but they decline to part with their granddaughter, and his lordship devotes the money he had settled on Beryl, but which she had not used, to the restoration of the village church. Mrs. Penfold takes heart, and again works at the wedding robe, which she hopes little Baryl will one day wear.

Mr. Newton J. Cowling gave a good representation of Christopher Penfold; and Mr. Frank Dallas ably filled the rôle of Dr. Grundy. Mr. Fred Wilberforce was painstaking in the part of Lord Beechmond. Mr. Chas. Halling submitted a clever interpretation of Will Knightman. Mr. Geo. Scully is amusing as the Rev. Pinkerton Grundy; and Mr. Geo. Owen did well as Lord Beechmond's valet. Miss Daisy Halling gave a successful rendering of Beryl Penfold; and Lady Beechmond had a good exponent in Miss Lynn Darlington. Mrs. Sydney Halling was an excellent Mrs. Penfold; and Miss Edith Tempest as Little Beryl left nothing to be desired.

HERR THEO. J. KLEE, the musical director of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, who is a prolific composer, in honour of St. Patrick's Day on Sunday last gave, for the first time, his Mass of "St. Patrick,' which was dedicated to St. Patrick's Church, Leicester, by the composer, and was rendered by a full choir and orchestra. Its beauty was greatly admired, and Herr Klee has been the recipient on all sides of congratulations on his work.

"SADIE OF BRANTOME," a comic opera, in two acts, written by Percy J. Barrow, with music by Paul De Loëtz, was produced for copyright purposes at the Palace Theatre, Porth, on Tuesday.

A NEW "PILGRIM'S PROGRESS."

A full and fashionable audience assembled at the Imperial Theatre on Saturday, when a new version of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, written by Mrs. W. Hadley and Miss E. Ouless, was given both afternoon and evening in aid of the London Hospital and of the South London Diocesan Church Fund. The allegory was produced by Mrs. W. Hadley, in association with Mr. Nugent Monck, whose staging of recent productions of Morality Plays by the English Drama Society has won such favourable comment. Equal credit is due to his work in regard to The Pilgrim's Progress, which was given on a stage partially draped, but sumptuously dressed and mounted, and affording a view of exquisite spectacles. It was a series of living pictures with occasional dialogue rather than a play, some of the scenes being displayed for only a few minutes, but their beauty and grace amply atoned for the short waits necessary for their preparation.

The series of tableaux began with a children's dance in the City of Destruction, where Christian received the admonitions of the Evangelist and set out towards the Celestial City. His way through the Wicket Gate was shown in the second scene, and the third revealed the Pilgrim casting his burden at the Cross—an inspiring picture, in which the three angels, with their shining costumes and realistic wings, looked as seraphic as could be desired. Piety, Prudence, and Charity arming the Wayfarer was also an impressive spectacle, and the meeting of Christian with Apollyon in the Valley of Humiliation was well rendered, though the terrors of the conflict between the two were not very realistically conveyed by the simple means of a clashing of swords heard in utter darkness. Vanity Fair was depicted in the sixth scene, which was followed by Faithful at the Stake—a truly weird performance. The River of Death and the Celestial City formed the concluding tableau, followed by a Prologue spoken by a representative of Bunyan.

Music composed and arranged by Dr. R. Vaughan-Williams added considerably to the solemnity of the scenes. Several solos and part-songs adapted from traditional melodies were also given, a "Flower Girl's Song" at the opening being tastefully rendered. A plain-chant melody, sung after Christian's flight, by two ladies in unison, was less agreeable from the fact that the voices blended imperfectly, and were by no means together. There was a certain inequality to be noticed in the concerted pieces, which, however, were as a rule pleasingly sung. No names of performers were given on the programme, but the actors all had a high sense of their responsibilities. The impersonator of Christian acted earnestly and delivered his lines with due sonority, and the representatives of Byends, Faithful, and Hopeful might be singled out for especial praise. Apollyon was rendered with proper malignancy, and Obstinate was also portrayed appropriately. The tableaux had the inestimable advantage of being arranged by Mr. Frank Dicksee, the eminent Academician, whose artistic hand was evident in the effective groupings and the picturesque harmonies of colour. Applause during the performance was deprecated, but enough evidence was given that the production afforded delight to the eye and the ear, and that its repetition would be well justified.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

The Opera Season for 1907, which commences at Covent Garden on April 30, promises to surpass all previous records to judge by the advance booking. The directors have arranged to give without cuts two complete cycles of Der Ring des Nibelungen, and two performances of Die Meistersinger, under the conductorship of Dr. Hans Richter. There will be no restriction as regards dress at the Ring performances, but ladies must remove hats or bonnets and wear no headgear whatever; also there will be no lights in the auditorium, and the audience are requested to be in their seats when the orchestra begins. These will be the only festival performances during the season, and every effort is being made by the directors to render the performances as artistically complete as in former seasons. The répertoire will include Aïda, Andrea Chenier, Ballo in Maschera, La Bohème, Carmen, Don Giovanni, Faust, The Flying Dutchman, Fédora, Cavalleria Rusticana, Lorelei, La Gioconda, Hansel und Gretel, a most welcome revival, and Mascagni's new opera, Iris, given for the first time. There will also be heard The Merry Wives of Windsor, Otello, I Pagliacci, Rigoletto, Tannhäuser, La Tosca, Traviata, Madama Butterfly, and probably some additional novelties. The artists engaged are: Soprani, Mesdames Giachetti, Destinn, Fichiger, Melba, Gleeson-White, Hempel, Knupfer Egli, Kurz, Agnes Nicholls, Fleischer-Edel, Gilibert Lepine, Galbranson, and Olszewski-Reinl. Contralti and mezzo-soprani, Mesdames De Cisneros, Maud Santly, Kirkby Lunn, G. Lonsdale, Edna Thornton, and Frau Tolli. Tenors, Messrs. Bassi, Herr Bechstein, Herr Burrian, Signor Carpi, Caruso, Jorn, Kraus, Neitan, Venturini, and Zucchi. Basses and baritones, Messrs. Frank Arthur, Crabbe, Geis, Gilibert, Griswold, Hupeden, Journet, Knupfer, Marcona, Mugnoz, Raboth, Scotti, Scandiané, Sammarco, Zudor, Van Rooy, and Stockhausen. The conductors are Dr. Richter, Mr. Percy Pitt, and Signor Campanini.

F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer, The Era Office.

A NEW room recently opened at the Royal Eye Hospital, Southwark, has been named after the late Mr. J. L. Toole. The lamented comedian suffered a great deal with his eyes, and it is something in the nature of a coincidence that the site of his theatre in King William-street is now occupied by an ophthalmic hospital.

"THE SHADOW OF A CRIME."

A Drama, by Nita Rae, played for the first time in London at the Dalston Theatre, on Monday, March 18,

Loyale Norman .....MISS NELLIE HOWITT

The domestic play, The Shadow of a Crime, written by Miss Nita Rae and originally produced at the Pier Pavilion, Hastings, on May 28 last, was performed for the first time in London at the Dalston Theatre on Monday evening, and was accorded a most favourable reception. The story has the advantage of containing plenty of incident, and is sure to interest an audience appreciating the mingling of the domestic with the dramatic element. In the back parlour of Mr. Brown's general shop we are introduced to the much-married Brown, his boon companion, Jim Todd (quite a swell in his way), and to Mrs. Brown—a fine woman with an equally fine family, who are off to the seaside, while the devoted pater is to be left at home to look after the business. The fun of this scene, during which Todd induces his friend Brown to go away with him to the seaside "on the spree" while Mrs. Todd looks after the shop, leads up to the serious side of the piece, for in the scene following (Mrs. Brown's drawing-room) the audience make the acquaintance of Loyale Norman (who is the neglected wife of Ralph Esmond), her late school friend, Dora Bullington, and the wicked husband, Ralph. It soon transpires that, ignorant of the fact that Dora Bullington is the friend of his wife, and whom he does not meet in this scene, he has been making love to the lady in question at her father's place, near Dover, and aware that his union with her would be financially advantageous, he seeks to poison his wife; but the attempt fails, and he appears in his true colours to his faithful Loyale. The second act is full of dramatic interest. Watching the progress of the story as the various characters appear on the beach at Dover, one learns that Dora Bullington's brother, a naval officer, is in love with Loyale Norman (Mrs. Esmond), and she actually returns his passion, but cannot admit it, being the wife of the villainous Ralph. The latter becomes revealed to the audience as the murderer of a girl, the sister of a burly boatman, Jim Murdock. Jim tells the startling story, how he discovered on the throat of his murdered sister the marks of the left hand of a man who had evidently lost one finger down to a couple of joints. He swears vengeance on the murderer should he ever chance to meet him. In the last scene of the same act, during a visit to a smuggler's cave, Ralph Esmond attempts to strangle his wife, whom he leaves for dead; and then, creeping out at a secret door in the darkness he shuts in the cave Jim Murdock, who, after discovering that the same hand has attempted to commit this murder which successfully dispatched his sister, saves Loyale, and shelters her in his cottage. Jim contrives, through the agency of his sister, to get a letter delivered to Ralph (who is staying with Sir Edward Bullington at the Hall), asking him to meet him on Dover Cliffs at night; and on those dreary heights the men have a desperate struggle, which results in Jim Murdock being thrown over a precipice. But he is not killed. He lives long enough to confront his foe in Sir Edward Bullington's conservatory just as Ralph, after his true character has been found out, is on the point of bolting, and he shoots him dead. Thus Loyale Norman is left free to marry Harry Bullington, the naval officer, who really loves her, while his sister Dora just escapes the clutches of a relentless villain.

Messrs. Fred. J. Little and Fred Darcy's company presents the play with the most satisfactory results, and Mr. Little is responsible for the production. Mr. W. Ruddle-Brown plays the part of Harry Bullington in the manly style necessary to the character; while Mr. J. B. Murray quietly represents Sir Edward Bullington. Mr. Hugh Newburn so adroitly conveys the villainous instincts of Ralph Esmond that he is frequently hissed—the greatest compliment that can follow the enactment of such a part. Jim Murdock, the burly and brave-hearted boatman, has an excellent representative in Mr. Wm. Matthews, whose expressions of tender devotion to the memory of his dead sister are in strong contrast to his vows of vengeance against her murderer. Miss Nellie Howitt as Loyale Norman is provided with a part which affords abundant opportunity for acting of the sympathetic order, and to her credit it must be said that she does not miss a single opportunity for making all points tell, with the result that even early in the play she is on the best of terms with the audience. Dora Bullington has an effective representative in Miss Nellie Moore. The comedy element in the piece is in good hands. Mr. Sidney T. Russell's Tom Brown is made a really funny character, being the very embodiment of a hen-pecked husband; and Mr. Fred J. Little's Jim Todd is a character not easy to be forgotten. He is the very personification of the jovial friend, and the trouble into which he leads poor Brown is the cause of roars of laughter. Mr. Fred Erne's rigidity as a footman is remarkable; Miss Rosie May is a lively Winifred Maud; and Miss Bertha St. Ruth puts in a deal of good business as Sarah, a servant. Miss Nita Langford makes an exceedingly good-looking Mrs. Brown, and the manner in which she depicts distinctly varying moods adds much to the zest of the representation

The scenery, painted by Mr. W. D. Hobbs, of Hastings, is worthy of more than passing notice, the sea-coast views being most realistic.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

Amongst the festivities which accompany the Oxford and Cambridge Boat-race, the fancy dress ball at Covent Garden holds a prominent position. Mme. Jeanne gained the first prize with "Postkarte from Amsterdam"—a dress of white chiffon, with a large apron bodice and sash of white satin, painted with pictures of Dutch life. The rest of the dress was covered with picture postcards painted on white satin. The same costumiere won the second prize with "Sunsets"—a costume of gold cloth, over which were sun-shaped satin panels, painted with sunsets in different lands. The season of the year supplied its quota to the picturesque costumes of the occasion. "Spring" was prettily represented by a white satin dress, with panels of country scenes, charmingly trimmed with spring flowers. Strongly in contrast to this was an unique costume, "The Beauty of Bath," composed of bath towels and various toilette requisites. One of the most effective dresses, and which was awarded third prize, was called "Queen of the Dragon Flies" (Clarkson). This was made brilliant by a liberal use of the electric light.

Other special prizes were gained by "In a Japanese Tea-House," "A Bachelor's Paradise," and "Wedgewood." An "extra" ball is announced for Friday, April 5.

REFORMING THE A.A.

Mr. Lewis Casson presided over a meeting of the Reform Party of the Actors' Association, which was held at 3, Bedford-street, on Monday afternoon. Also present were Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Edmund Maurice, Mr. F. Cremlin, Mr. Lawrence Grant, Mr. William Farren, Mr. F. Topham, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Lucy Sibley, and Mr. Fred Morland. Miss Wynne Matthison and Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn wrote deploring inability to attend.

Mr. Lewis Casson said that the Council of the Association had recently reaffirmed the principle of the election of acting-managers. That was entirely against the policy of the Reform Party. The retirement of all managers and business-managers from the Association was a reform to be undertaken immediately.

Mr. Granville Barker spoke strongly in favour of the reduction of the Council to twenty-five and an annual election of the Council. The Association was an actors' association, and if they allowed managers to become members they would go directly against the objects of the Association. The actor who became a temporary manager should be suspended from the Association during the time of his management. If he continued in management for a year, he should resign altogether.

Mr. Fred Morland said the present Council did not represent the Actors' Association. He also complained of the general ignorance of the doings of that body.

Mr. Edmund Maurice said there were still hundreds of dressing-rooms in the country which were not fit for a lady or a gentleman to dress in. He had urged in vain that lists of doctors be put up in the theatres. He thought it would be a mistake to exclude managers from the Association.

Mr. Lawrence Grant and Mr. F. Cremlin also spoke.

Mr. Lewis Casson moved that the following proposals should be put to a general meeting:—

(1) That the Council of the Actors' Association be reduced to twenty-five.

(2) That it be elected annually.

(3) That voting papers be given to all members.

(4) That managers and acting-managers be ineligible for membership.

(5) That members who undertake management for short periods be suspended during such periods.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Miss Rose Mathews suggested a collection to defray expenses. Mr. Lawrence Grant seconded, and the Chairman agreed to receive amounts up to five shillings. £4 13s. was, accordingly, collected.

Mr. Henry Ainley moved:—That this meeting sympathises with the work of the Actors' Union among those outside the Association, and calls upon the members of the Association to support the Reform movement among themselves to bring the two bodies into line, with a view to amalgamation in the future.

On the motion being put to the vote, the result was:—For Mr. Ainley's proposition, 22; against, 21.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION REFORM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you allow me space to answer Mr. Granville Barker's letter in your last issue? I have already stated my objections to this £2 limit in a former letter to you, and, whatever Mr. Barker may maintain, it must be perfectly plain to everybody that the real object of the proposal is to try and fix a limit "living wage" of £2. This limit may be all very well for London, but, I repeat, it is quite preposterous for the provinces.

We have always been supposed to be rather a conceited profession; and the new Council of the Association, and the brand new Actors' Union seem to be both afflicted with the disease, since they are at one in fixing a living wage at so ridiculously high a figure as £2 per week. It is all very well for a body of ladies and gentlemen to be elected at a meeting of the Association, which is only attended by those in London at the time; but I challenge the Council of the Association to take a poll of the whole of the members on this question. I venture to think they will find the great majority opposed to this limit.

I confess, Sir, to a feeling of great disappointment that my remarks on the subject of cold dressing-rooms and stages have met with no response. That the need of reform is urgent is easily proved by the fact that in this company, and solely from this reason, in the winter season of 1905-6 there were four persons laid up in the space of about five weeks, one of whom was forbidden by the doctor to play again for three months. During the past winter, again, there have been several cases of illness from the same cause, although not sufficiently bad to prevent appearance.—I am, yours faithfully,

ERNEST H. PATERSON.

"THE OLD, OLD STORY."

A domestic drama, in four acts, performed at the Theatre Royal, Edmonton, on Monday, March 18.

Sir John Humphrey Hazel..Mr. H. J. BUTLER
John Hazel .....Mr. MORRIS MAUD
James Marlow .....Mr. W. HEILBRONN
William Grimshaw .....Mr. E. SURREY
Hilton Thorpe .....Mr. T. HADLIN
Bobby Blossom .....Mr. SYD H. MORTON
Higgins .....Mr. W. LOCKSTONE
Harry Newton .....Mr. T. MACDONALD
Sydney Austin .....Mr. W. LEWIS
Milford Arkwright .....Mr. A. WILLIAMS
Tilly Blossom .....Miss BONWIN CARLTON
Janet Marlow .....Miss ESTHER LAMONT
Jessie Hazel .....Miss KITTY MAYNARD
Nellie Hazel .....Miss MARIE DEMPSTER

The "story" told in this play is that of Enoch Arden John Hazel, a farmer, is in difficulties; and a villain named James Marlow tempts Hazel's wife Nellie, who scornfully rejects his advances. Hilton Thorpe, Nellie's first husband, whom she supposed was dead, turns up, having made his fortune abroad. Marlow has planned to revenge himself by buying the farm and turning the honest couple out; but Thorpe departs without revealing his identity, after leaving with Nellie's child, Jessie, £500 to relieve the farmer of debt. Marlow steals the notes from the child; but is again foiled, this time by a certain Bobby Blossom who has won heavily on a horse race, and comes to the rescue of the Hazels. The persevering Marlow murders Hilton Thorpe, and manages to throw suspicion on Nellie, giving evidence against her at her trial. Marlow is eventually shot by the warders of the prison where he is confined. The first husband and the villain being dead, John and Nellie are left to undisturbed happiness.

Miss Bonwin Carlton's company do full justice to the play, which had a trial trip at Deal last week. Mr. T. Hadlin is vigorously effective as James Marlow, and plays the part very powerfully. Mr. Morris Maud as John Hazel is manly and earnest; and as Nellie Hazel Miss Marie Dempster contributes a very sympathetic impersonation. Mr. E. Surrey as Grimshaw, a detective, shows remarkable versatility; Mr. Syd H. Morton as Bobby Blossom is decidedly funny; and Miss Bonwin Carlton as Tilly Blossom is bright, active, and intelligent. Mr. H. J. Butler as Sir John Hazel is excellent; Mr. W. Lockstone as Higgins is highly commendable; and Miss Kitty Maynard as Jessie Hazel is pleasing, pretty, and agreeable. The drama was very favourably received.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM and Miss Mary Moore will early next month make their eagerly-awaited return to the London stage at the Criterion, the scene of the earlier triumphs of the eminent artists, who have not appeared at the theatre named since the July of 1899. Mr. H. A. Jones' play of The Liars, with which the season starts, was originally produced at the Criterion with signal success as long ago as Oct. 6, 1897. At the termination of the run of The Liars Sir Charles will produce an original play, entitled The Mollusc, by Hubert Henry Davis.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has accepted an arduous undertaking on the County Council, having been appointed a member of the Rivers and Highways Committee, which affects, among other things, the regulation of steamboats and tramways. Mr. Walter Reynolds has found an appropriate place on the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, to whose deliberations his extensive experience will be of the greatest value.

THE report of the directors of Howard and Wyndham (Limited) for the year to Feb. 28, 1907, states that the net revenue from theatres, programmes, rents, &c., amounts to £8,159 2s. 6d. and the net profit to £5,522 13s. 6d. The directors recommend that the profit should be dealt with as shown in the Appropriation Account; and have decided to expend £3,500 in equipping anew the Theatre Royal, Glasgow. They have set aside out of the profits for year to Feb. 28, 1907, the sum of £2,000 to partially meet this expenditure. The undertaking is under option of sale until May 15, 1907. The directors recommend that dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. on the preference and 6 per cent. on the ordinary shares of the company, both less income-tax, be declared.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE is to be banqueted during his visit to Germany by the principal theatre managers of Berlin and a number of prominent authors and newspaper editors. All the scenery and costumes for the various plays have been taken over, the work of removal having occupied about ten days. The engagement starts on April 12, and the company returns to London on Saturday, the 20th, reopening at His Majesty's on the following Monday with The Tempest.

MR. LEWIS WALLER will follow the revival of Monsieur Beaucaire at the Lyric with a reproduction of Tom Taylor's fine drama, Lady Clancarty; or, Wedded and Wooed. Miss Evelyn Millard will play the title-rôle. The piece was first produced at the Olympic in 1874, and it formed for some years a prominent item of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's répertoire.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has this week enjoyed one of the most successful visits he has ever paid to Edinburgh. The Royal Lyceum Theatre has been thronged at every performance by enthusiastic playgoers, and the revival of The Corsican Brothers has again proved a triumph. The re-modelled second act—in old versions admittedly the weak spot in the drama—has been specially singled out for critical approval and popular appreciation. On Monday Mr. Harvey, Miss de Silva, and company will appear at the new Alexandra Theatre, Greenock.

WE are happy to announce that the slight improvement manifested during the week in the condition of Mr. Lionel Brough is being maintained. The popular actor is still, of course, in a critical condition, but we hope that his health will now soon be on the mend.

THE cast of Her Love Against the World, by Walter Howard, which will be produced for the first time in London at the Lyceum on Saturday, will be headed by Mr. Norman Partriege, whose excellent performances in productions at Drury Lane are of recent memory. The company will also comprise Messrs. Eric Mayne, Frederick Ross, Scott Craven, Fred Grove, Lionel Gadsden, Henry Armstrong, Wilfred Edmunds, Edmund Waller, S. Major Jones, Harry Barford, and Gus Oxley, and Misses Marie Rignold, Madge Beresford, Maud Aston, Lulu Louden, Valli Valli, and Nora Kerin. Mr. Edmund Waller is the son of the popular actor-manager of the Lyric, and thus makes his début in the West End.

MR. WILLIE EDOUIN is shortly to revisit America, the Messrs. Shubert, the lessees of the Waldorf, having engaged him to play the part of an eccentric professor in the forthcoming production of The Snow Man. Mr. Edouin first appeared in the States in the farce Dreams, and his last part was in the character of Tweedlepunch in the American reproduction of Florodora at the New York Casino.

MR. WILLIE CLARKSON, the renowned wig-maker and costumier, had a narrow escape of being arrested as an anarchist at Boulogne on Saturday. Mr. Clarkson was on his way to Paris with a number of bombs which are to be used to produce the effective flashes of light in Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's forthcoming production of Faust, and while he was in the buffet a Customs official noticed the parcel in the railway carriage. As it felt heavy, he called his colleagues, and, to their great consternation, the bombs were discovered. The fearsome missiles were deposited in a tank of water, and six detectives were told off to watch the carriage and seize the Anarchists when they returned. On Mr. Clarkson's appearance it took him half an hour to convince the officials that the bombs were harmless.

MR. JAMES MACREADY CHUTE, the esteemed proprietor and manager of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, presided at the annual dinner of the Bristol Hibernian Society, held at he Royal Hotel on Tuesday, when a tribute to the stage was paid by the Roman Catholic Bishop of Clifton. In proposing the toast of "The President," his Lordship referred to Mr. Chute as a great public educationalist who largely controlled the public taste of that ancient and illustrious city. He considered the manager of a theatre was a man of great responsibility. It was given to him, in large measure, to create, guide, and direct the public taste in a matter which most powerfully affected for good or evil the morals of the inhabitants of the city. The theatre was well directed and guided by Mr. Chute, and, owing to the quality of the performances he exhibited at the Prince's Theatre, he was a great factor for good in their midst.

THE president, whose health was drunk with musical honours, expressed his deep feeling of thanks to such a high dignitary of the Church for his testimony to his efforts. It was a great pleasure to announce that the collection—£206—was the largest in the annals of the society. Mr. Chute added that his great-grandfather was a prominent citizen of Dublin upwards of 150 years ago, and at his death, in 1811, he was publicly known as the Father of the Corporation. His grandmother presided over the destinies of the Theatre Royal, and he married an Irish lady. In conclusion, he drank "to the general joy of the company and prosperity to Ireland" from a cup presented to his great-grandfather in 1779.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS, who is at Glasgow this week with The Beauty of Bath, sustained a painful accident on Monday evening, falling through a skylight and cutting his arm and hands. Mr. Hicks's part of Dick Allington was taken up by his brother, Mr. Stanley Brett.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD has made an important development of his flying matinée scheme at the Crystal Palace Theatre, which will be visited on the afternoon of May 2 by Mme. Jane Hading, the distinguished Parisian actress, and company in Frou-Frou. It says much for the widespread popularity of Mr. Howard's enterprise at Sydenham that he is able to draw from among his patrons an audience for a French production.

MASCAGNI'S Iris, which was produced in Rome in 1898, will be among the novelties of the grand opera season at Covent Garden, which begins on April 30. Like Madama Butterfly, the opera is a tragedy founded on a Japanese theme, and ends with the suicide of the heroine. Mascagni, who describes his work as his finest and greatest production, thus alludes to the closing scene: "It was necessary to make Iris meet a violent end, and yet such as not to prevent her lingering through the entire act and taking part in the music. Drowning would not do, poisoning supposes acute bodily agony and contortions, while the knife and the revolver were æsthetically unfitting." The desired effect is gained by making Iris throw herself out of a window and lament her fate as she lies dying on the ground.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday an application was made by Mr. F. E. Wright, as trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of Mr. H. T. Brickwell, for the payment by Mr. Thomas Dott of £4,377 under an indenture dated Feb. 1, 1906. It was alleged on behalf of the trustee that Mr. Brickwell had a contract which gave him a lease of the Garrick Theatre from the year 1910, at a rent of £5,000 a year, a claim which, on being disputed, was upheld by the House of Lords. Subsequently Mr. Brickwell became bankrupt, and Mr. Dott was one of the creditors. It appeared that when the matter was investigated by the trustee Mr. George Edwardes and Mr. George Dance claimed an interest in the lease, as far as Mr. Brickwell's interest was concerned. The trustee undertook, with Mr. Dott, to bring an action against Mr. George Edwardes and Mr. Dance, to determine the rights as between Mr. Edwardes and Mr. Dance and the bankrupt, who was represented by the trustee. The trustee had no funds to fight the action, and the money was to be provided by Mr. Dott. It was arranged by a deed that Mr. Dott was to have an interest in the lease if the action succeeded. Eventually, by the advice of counsel, the action was settled. After hearing evidence, his lordship said Mr. Dott would have to pay to the trustee £2,559 under his agreement, in order to enable the trustee to pay 20s. in the pound to the creditors and in discharge of Mr. Dott's other obligations under the indenture.

THE next of the Actors' Association's socials, which are becoming increasingly popular, will be held at 10, King-street, on Thursday next, when a reading of Othello will be given by members of the Association, directed by Mr. Acton Bond. The reading will commence at 4 o'clock.

THE eighth bi-monthly meeting of members of the Actors' Association was held on Thursday, the 14th inst., when there were present W. Barnett-Parker, Ivan Berlyn, Marian Bird, Lydia Busch, V. Willox Cadogan, Robert Castleton, May Conrade, F. Cremlin, Henry Doughty, Vere Gerald, A. C. Gough, Lawrence Grove, Georgina Hamilton, Florence Harcourt, Winifred Ingham, P. L. Julian, Vera Leslie, Mrs. L. L'Estrange, Rose Mathews, Frank Melrose, Annie Montelli, F. Morland, Helen Mosley, Clara Nicholls, Lucy Sibley, James C. Taylor, Eugénie Vernie, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. Fredk. Morland was voted to the chair. A question as to the employment of non-members by managers who are members of the Association was discussed, and a resolution passed on the subject. A question affecting the arrangements of the agency in connection with the interviews between artists and managers at the times arranged for the making of engagements was considered, and a proposition bearing upon the matter was carried.

THE Council of the Actors' Association held its usual weekly meeting last Tuesday, when there were present C. Aubrey Smith (Chairman), A. E. Drinkwater (Deputy-Chairman), Henry W. Mote (Solicitor), Carlotta Addison, Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, Maud Milton, and Kate Phillips, Henry Ainley, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, Arthur Holmes Gore, Alfred Kendrick, Norman McKinnel, Fredk. Morland, Brandon Thomas, Frank Vernon, Frederick Volpé, and Charles Cruikshanks (Secretary).

THE Secretary having reported the proceedings of the eighth bi-monthly meeting of members, the Council considered the proposition as to the employment of non-members by managers who are members of the Association, and the Secretary was directed to issue a whip, with a copy of the resolution passed, to all the members of the Council requesting their attendance to discuss the matter at the meeting of the Council on Easter Tuesday. The Council also considered the proposition carried at the same meeting affecting the arrangements of the agency, when the Secretary pointed out that the matter had already been dealt with by the Finance and General Purposes Committee.

THE report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received, and the recommendation submitted dealing with the arrangements of the agency was adopted, and the Secretary instructed to carry the same into effect. Two cases of alleged insanitation were considered, and instructions given. It was agreed that the offices of the Association should be closed on Good Friday and Easter Monday. Two former members were reinstated, and Ethel Percival and Frank R. Gwyn-Richardson were nominated for election. The meeting opened at 2.30 and closed at 5.40.

THE Subscription Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (Chairman), Henry Ainley, J. Cooke Beresford, Burton Cooke, A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (Secretary). The Secretary reported the result of his interviews with the officials of the insurance company undertaking the risks affecting members, and that the propositions he had made dealing with the question were accepted by the company. The Chairman read the company's letter of confirmation, and the Secretary was directed to prepare a draft showing the necessary alterations in the articles of association, if the scheme put forward was sanctioned by the members at a general meeting to be summoned for the purpose. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday next at two o'clock.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (Chairman), A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (Secretary). A question dealing with the dressing-room accommodation at provincial theatres was under consideration. Certain propositions made by a member were discussed, and the Secretary was directed to write to him upon the subject. Tenders for the execution of decorative repairs to the premises in King-street were considered, and the matter was postponed pending the receipt of further tenders.

ONLY last week a number of Oxford students were punished at the local police-court for disturbances in the theatre, and this week a similar disgraceful exhibition has taken place at the sister University town. On Monday the performance of A Sailor's Sweetheart was thoroughly spoiled by the rowdy section of the undergraduates who attended the New Theatre, Cambridge. So continually were the members of the company disturbed by jeering remarks from the occupants of the stalls and a shower of missiles that an adequate presentation of the piece was rendered impossible. Every piece of sentiment was productive of an ironical remark, the love passages were openly ridiculed, and on some occasions the performers were greeted with a roar of mocking laughter, while others were pelted with sugar, coppers, and cake. No proceedings could be too drastic in dealing with such cases, and the first opportunity should be given these foolish and cowardly youths to cool their ardour in a police-cell.

THE death is announced of Mr. George Saul Fisher, who passed away on Sunday last at Trinity-street, Norwich, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. The deceased was the grandson of the original Fisher, who, it is said, established the association of players known as the Norfolk and Suffolk Company of Comedians, who toured through the Eastern Counties years ago. The Fisher family were noted for their histrionic abilities, and were held in high repute in their time.

MR. CHARLES MACDONA, whose touring enterprises have won such well-deserved popularity, has made some very important additions to his properties. Amongst the successes acquired last year were Mr. Popple and White Chrysanthemum, and the fresh musical pieces he has arranged to add to his tours are Girl from Kay's, Veronique, Cingalee, Duchess of Dantzic, A Country Girl, and Little Michus, with possibly The Beauty of Bath and The Catch of the Season to follow. A long string of successes is thus added to an already full list, and, in addition, that charming play Dr. Wake's Patient, with the entire Adelphi production, has been secured. The merits of Charles Macdona's "introduced companies"—a phrase he has himself invented—are so very well known, and the genuine business methods brought to bear on all his undertakings so highly appreciated, that his brother managers in the theatres as well as the playgoing public will thoroughly realise the increased advantages that are now offered.

THE Easter pantomime at Belfast will be Goody Two Shoes, the libretto by Fred Locke and music by Samuel P. Swinton, and will be produced at the Theatre Royal on the 30th inst. The cast includes Miss Ethel Campbell, Miss Maggie Bowman, Miss Carrie Foy, Miss Adela Crispin, Messrs. P. Bermingham, T. J. Morton, Jack Foley, H. S. Gubbin, and Karr and Kooney. The pantomime will be under the experienced supervision of Mr. Fred W. Warden, managing-director of the Palace and Theatre Royal, Belfast, and Mr. J. H. Saville.

MISS WYNNE MATTHISON will take the part of Viola and Mr. Acton Bond that of Malvolio in a dramatic reading of Twelfth Night, to be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society in the Marlborough Hall, Regent-street Polytechnic, on the afternoon of Thursday, April 4. Miss Edyth Olive will be the Olivia, Miss Alice Arden Maria, Mr. Walter Hampden Orsino, Mr. Arthur Whitby Sir Toby, and Mr. Michael Sherbrooke Aguecheek.

HERR RAIMUND PECHOTSCH has been appointed musical director for the Lyceum, which reopens on the 30th inst. Herr Pechotsch has had a wide experience, having been conductor under Mr. Musgrove's management in the principal theatres in Australia. He was professor at the Guildhall School of Music before making his last tour as solo violinist to Australia, and on his return to London a year ago he was immediately appointed professor at the London Academy of Music and London College of Music. He was also for nearly two years professor of music to the Marchioness of Bute's family. His compositions, too, have met with great success, and many of his violin solos are dedicated to and played by Mischa Elman. Herr Pechotsch has composed the drama music for Her Love Against the World, with which the theatre will re-open, and also a march named "Lyceum" and dedicated to Mr. H. R. Smith, one of the directors of the enterprise. It is interesting to learn that Herr Pechotsch is the father of Jan Rudenyi, the celebrated Hungarian violinist.

MRS. RUSS WHYTAL has reached a momentous period of her career in her engagement by Mr. Tree to appear at His Majesty's Theatre during the Shakespeare Festival Week as Hermione in The Winter's Tale and the Queen in Hamlet. In taking up the part of Hermione Mrs. Whytal again follows Miss Ellen Terry, as she has just concluded her tour of Mr. Barrie's play Alice Sit-by-the-Fire, in which she has made a conspicuous success. Mrs. Whytal, who is American by birth, has employed her talents in all phases of her art—comedy, tragedy, and everything else. Her performance of Mary Queen of Scots in 'Twixt Axe and Crown, revived at Fulham last year, will be agreeably recalled.

LADIES and gentlemen engaged at the two Bristol theatres and music halls next week who would like to spend an enjoyable afternoon on Clifton Downs on Good Friday are invited to send their names to Mr. Harry Hare, 35, Salisbury-road, Redland, Bristol, whose name so frequently appears in our columns associated with the reports of athletic sports week by week. Cricket and football tackle will be provided. Materials for the former game, as well as for lawn tennis, will also be furnished every Saturday afternoon from April till end of September.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN MACOWAN will start their spring tour of Monsieur Beaucaire and A Marriage of Convenience on Easter Saturday at the Theatre Royal, Margate. The tour includes Exeter, Torquay, Eastbourne, and the principal South Coast watering-places. The first performance of the tour will mark the 535th appearance of Mr. Macowan and Miss Violet Sterne as Mons. Beaucaire and Lady Mary Carlisle respectively.

THE Moody-Manners Opera Company, playing at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, intended to produce Aïda on Wednesday night, but, in consequence of the illness of Mr. Joseph O'Mara, that opera had to be abandoned, Il Trovatore being staged instead.

THE Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre is about to change hands. A big syndicate, which is busy in the north acquiring important places of amusement, has offered certain terms which have been accepted by the principal shareholders of that place. The transfer is almost an accomplished fact.

THE proposed autumn tour of Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's new production, With Edged Tools, by Henry Seton Merriman, will possibly be postponed, although nothing as yet can be definitely said. A private performance was given at Derby last week before a prominent London manager, who immediately snapped up the West End of London rights, in view of which an immediate production is probable. Capital business with both Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's other plays continues to be the rule, Lucky Durham at Cheltenham and Leah Kleschna at Sheffield (a return visit) having shown themselves to be attractions much to the public taste.

"THE PALACE OF PUCK" will be produced at the Haymarket on Tuesday, April 2. Mr. Charles Hawtrey, though making an excellent recovery from the operation that he recently underwent, is not sufficiently convalescent to take up the part intended for him in Mr. W. J. Locke's new play, and it has, therefore, been allotted to Mr. Frederick Kerr. The Palace of Puck is to be followed in due course by Mr. Michael Morton's adaptation of Mlle. Josette, Ma Femme, entitled My Wife, which will, in turn, be succeeded by another new comedy from Mr. Locke's pen.

MR. RICH WALDON, of the Royal Princess's, Glasgow, was the recipient of a handsome illuminated address on the occasion of his benefit a week ago. Mother Goose being Mr. Waldon's twenty-first pantomime at the Princess's, the principals in this year's annual thought the opportunity a suitable one for recording their appreciation of him as a manager. The address is well designed, and the pictorial portion shows Mr. Waldon seated at a table enjoying a cigar, while the names of the twenty-one pantomimes which constitute his jubilee record appear in the clouds of ascending smoke. The address is signed by the principal members of the company and a number of the resident staff. The occasion was also marked by the presentation of a silver service from his respective managers, viz., Mr. Murdoch (of the Princess's), Mr. Oakden (of the Lyceum), and Mr. McKelvie (of the Palace).

MR. MILTON BODE, the proprietor of the Royal County Theatre, Reading, was successful in an application to the Watch Committee last week asking that the restriction on smoking in the auditorium should be removed during certain parts of the year. The Council approved the recommendation of the Watch Committee, and a licence will therefore be granted to Mr. Bode to permit smoking in the theatre from the month of April to August inclusive.

"THE SILVER BOX" will be put on for a three weeks' season at the Court on the evening of April 8. The cast of Mr. John Galsworthy's powerful play will be practically the same as on its production in September last, and will comprise Messrs. James Hearn, A. E. Matthews, Cecil Rose, Dennis Eadie, Norman McKinnel, Trevor Lowe, Athol Forde, Lewis Casson, Edmund Gurney, Edmund Gwenn, and Norman Page, Misses Frances Ivor, Nora Greenlaw, Amy Lamborn, Mary Hamilton, and Mrs. Charles Maltby.

MR. AND MRS. HORACE HUNTER (Miss Lily Hammersley), who have just fulfilled engagements in the stock company at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, have been engaged by Mr. Wheeler for South Africa, and sail to-day by the Dumbarton Castle.

SUBSCRIPTIONS are still coming to hand for the Fred Locke Fund, and Mr. J. S. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, this week acknowledges the following:—Mr. and Mrs. C. Finch-Hatton, Leicester, 6s.; Jim Cole, Sutton, Surrey (second sub.), 5s. The subscription previously acknowledged from the German Club should have been 24s., not 15s., and the name of Mr. Austen Lenton was misspelt.

A MATINÉE is being organised on behalf of Mr. Sydney Barraclough, the well-known singer and actor, who contracted a severe chill while he was playing in The Gay Lord Vergy at the Apollo Theatre last October. He has since been undergoing the open-air treatment for consumption, and happily the doctors expect that he will be permanently cured. Offers of assistance have been received from prominent members of the dramatic and musical professions, including Miss Edna May, Miss Mabel Love, Mr. Hayden Coffin, and Mr. G. P. Huntley. A strong committee is being formed, and Mr. Thos. Harold Ferrar, the temporary secretary, will be glad to hear of anyone willing to help. Mr. Barraclough's address is Cambridge Hill, Crowthorne, Berks.

MLLE. GHITA CORRI, who has been singing with great success in Scotland, will be the principal vocalist at the Good Friday evening concert at the Royal Victoria Hall, where Mr. Charles Corri, the popular conductor, will give a grand performance of Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Excerpts from Wagner's Lohengrin, Tannhäuser, and Flying Dutchman, in which Mlle. Corri will also sing, will be included in the programme. The festival choir and orchestra will be conducted by Messrs. Charles Corri and Clarence C. Corri, and the fine list of artists also includes Mme. Marie Titiens, Misses Flora Edwards, Sterling Wells, and Maud Santley, and Messrs. John F. McCormack, Elliston Webb, S. Harrison, and Charles Tilbury.

THE proprietors of His Majesty's Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness, have been so impressed with the steadily-increased prosperity of the theatre under the management of the lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge, that they have decided to entirely rebuild it for them. The building, when completed, will be one of the most modern and luxurious in the provinces. Its holding capacity will be greatly increased, and it will have an admirably-appointed stage and auditorium, which should render it one of the leading northern dates. Arrangements are so far advanced that the reconstruction will be entirely completed by the middle of July, the opening date being fixed for Aug. 5.

MISS DORA CLEMENTS, a rising young actress, is at present understudying Miss Lily Hall Caine in her arduous part in The Prodigal Son at the Adelphi Theatre. The efforts of the youthful artist in the part of Thora have brought Miss Clements—who, by the way, is a niece of Mr. Hall Caine—many flattering offers of engagements.

"THE ANGEL OF UNREST," which was produced at Brighton on the 4th inst., will have its first London representation on Monday at the Borough Theatre, Stratford. The play is in the capable hands of Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company.

THE last concert of the season at the Cancer Hospital, Brompton, was given on the 18th inst. by Miss Matilda Ellis, whose pupils, the Misses D. Lichtenfield, P. Brand, D. Hedges, H. Harris, and E. Wattson, delighted all with their clever recitations. Songs by the Misses Mayer and Russell and the Messrs. Bishop and Avuer and Master Crook, and Miss Dollie Lichtenfield's dances and Mr. Myer's recitations, enhanced the enjoyment of the evening.

THE Queen and the Dowager Empress of Russia and suite were present at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on the 15th inst., and witnessed the performance of Miss Hook of Holland. On the following evening the distinguished playgoers went to the Court Theatre, where You Never Can Tell is the attraction.

A PROFESSIONAL matinée of Mr. Charles Hannan's new play, The Coachman with Yellow Lace, which is to be produced at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, will be given on Thursday. Mr. Hannan's play is in four acts, and has for motto the lines:—"I shall be a duchess, with many a silken gown. And I shall be your coachman, and drive in London Town."

MR. EDWARD COMPTON will give a special matinée of The School for Scandal at the Paisley Theatre next Saturday, when the entire proceeds, without any deduction, will be handed over to the Fund for the Restoration of the Auld Brig of Ayr. Mr. Compton's interest in this undertaking is easily understood when it is remembered that he is himself a Scotchman, and rejoices in the name of Mackenzie.

THE Scala Theatre is shortly to reopen with a play by Mr. Alfred C. Calmour, entitled The Judgment of Pharaoh. The scenes are laid in the land of Egypt, during the period of the Children of Israel's bondage to Pharaoh. The play is to reproduce the magnificence of the time, and stirring scenes of dramatic effect may be expected. The piece was originally produced under the title of Jevan, the Prodigal Son, at Manchester, in October of 1905.

"TOM JONES" will have its first production at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Saturday. Between eighty and ninety people, including principals, chorus, and instrumentalists, will go North for the production, and Mr. Edward German, the composer of the music, will conduct the first performance.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES has taken Tommy to Dublin this week, and the residents of the Irish capital have attended the Gaiety Theatre in overwhelming numbers. The local Press have been very eulogistic in praise, and have found in Mr. Jerome's clever work another exception to the rule that good books do not make satisfactory plays. Miss Hughes's performance in the title-rôle has won unstinted praise, her capabilities for the portrayal of emotion arousing especial admiration.

THE Shaftesbury is to re-open its doors on or about the 24th of next month, when a light opera by Walter Slaughter and Herbert Leonard, entitled Lady Tatters, will be produced. The action of the piece is laid in the reign of Charles II., the first act taking place in the courtyard of Ye Red Lion Tavern, Whitehall, the second in Gilchrist Court Hall, a country mansion, and the last in Whitehall Gardens, with a view of the river and of Lambeth Palace in the distance.

MR. WILL SMITH has returned from his long tour abroad as manager for Maurice E. Bandmann's opera company, and has already undertaken fresh responsibilities, having been appointed general-manager of the Palace Theatre and World's Fair, Rhyl. Mr. Smith is determined to run this fine theatre on the most modern principles, and has secured a number of excellent musical comedy companies.

MR. REGINALD DANCE, by arrangement with Mr. Leonard Boyne and Mr. Thomas McKenzie, under an agreement with Mr. Charles Frohman, is taking on tour the remarkably successful play Raffles. Spring bookings are already arranged, but dates in the early autumn are available.

MR. GERALD LAWRENCE, who is now associated in management with Mr. Charles Cartwright and Mr. A. B. Tapping on tour, will shortly appear as David Garrick. In the revival of the famous play Miss Fay Davis will make her reappearance as Ada. Mr. Cartwright will play Ingot, and Mr. Tapping and Mr. Charles Collette will also be in the cast. The tour is being booked by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot.

To our Masonic brethren we can strongly recommend the case of Sidney Walter Batting, whose only chance of election to the School will be in May. He is one of a large family, and the long and serious illness of his father previous to his death entirely exhausted the monetary resources of the family. Mr. Gerald Du Maurier, Mr. W. Lestocq, and Mr. James Douglas are assisting as much as it is in their power, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift will be pleased to receive proxies addressed to him at our offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. Mrs. Arthur Ayers, of 87, Streathbourne-road, Tooting Bec Common, S.W., is working for the case, and will be pleased to give every information.

MR. STUART ST. CLAIR, for twenty-eight years a member of the dramatic profession, is now in Leeds Infirmary, awaiting an operation on a tumour in his tongue. The result will prevent him from doing any professional work. As he has no relatives to assist him, he would be grateful to any old friends who would help to give him a start in a different occupation. Suscriptions may be sent to the Rev. Walter Green, St. George's Vicarage, Clarendon-road, Leeds.

THE installation meeting of Yorick Lodge of Freemasons, No. 2,771, was held on Tuesday at the Trocadero, when Mr. George Robins was placed in the chair as successor to Mr. Clarence Sounes. Among the Grand officers present was Mr. W. S. Penley, P.G.Treas. Mr. Duncan Tovey and Mr. F. T. Addyman were appointed as Wardens for the year, with Mr. Clarence Sounes and Mr. E. H. Bull, Past Masters, Treasurer, and Secretary respectively. Mr. J. Bannister Howard was among those who received minor offices.

MR. T. G. HALES, the well-known tinsel lace maker, who is severing his connection with Drury Lane Theatre, which he has served for the past thirty-nine years, marked the occasion by an "at home" on Thursday evening. The room in the theatre in which the proceedings took place was tastefully fitted up and decorated with electric lights and flowers.

MR. FRANK LESTER, who has made such a hit as the Lost Policeman in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety, and whose sketch, A Restaurant Episode, is such a pronounced success at the Palace, is not, as has been stated in print, a scene-shifter; in fact, he never was one. He comes of an old theatrical family, took to the stage at twenty, and has acted parts and run companies of his own in many towns in the provinces.

MISS GLADYS ARCHBUTT wishes us to state that she finished her engagement at Terry's Theatre last Saturday evening. On Monday evening, however, her name was still on the bills and programmes, and there were no printed slips to announce that she was not appearing.

MISS KEITH LYTTON has been engaged by Mr. Albert Chevalier to play the part of Mrs. Cartwright in Atonement. Miss Lytton will be recently remembered as Mrs. Dashwood in Mice and Men, with Mr. Forbes Robertson, and as Mrs. Primrose in Olivia, with Miss Winifred Emery.

PROSPERITY has attended the William Mollison Shakespearean tour since its opening at Aberdeen in the presence of the Lord Provost and other municipal magnates in their official robes—a gratifying result, due, in a large measure, to the exertions of Mr. Yolland, the advance manager. Further successes have also been achieved at Dundee, Newcastle, and Sunderland. Mr. Mollison is due at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, on Easter Monday, when he will impersonate Macbeth. Mr. Sidney Cooper has extended the present tour, which will admit of only a brief vacation preparatory to the autumn tour, which is booked, with one or two exceptions, right through Christmas.

A CURIOUS diversity was shown at a sale of autographs of celebrated composers in Paris recently. A letter of Gounod and another of Verdi went for only 10 and 12 francs each, but a receipt by Grétry realised 30 francs. A couple of letters written by Wagner together fetched 318 francs; 103 francs was given for a receipt signed by Beethoven, and 125 francs for a short note written by Chopin. Two bars of the orchestral score of Lohengrin, written by the composer in pencil realised 130 francs; a few Beethoven sketches brought 180 francs; the MS. orchestral score of Massenet's Phèdre, 505 francs; a Chopin mazurka, 705 francs; and a little song by Schubert, written on one page was sacrificed for 13 francs.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree's Youth.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has given a Daily Mail interviewer the following facts as to his—Mr. Tree's—early life. "I was born in London, but was sent to school in Germany as a boy. Only ten years of age at the time, I could not speak a word of German. I stayed there six years—and forgot much of my English. My time was chiefly spent at school at Schepfenthal, in the Thüringer Forest. I have vivid recollections of the day before a battle during the Prussian-Austrian War. The school was situated on the heights, and we were awakened early one morning, just as the sun was getting up, by the Prussians coming along in the valley below singing a war-hymn. It was one of my first and most dramatic moments, and the strains of their battle-song still seem to echo in my ears, intermixed with the words of command from the officers. In the vacations I sometimes stayed in Berlin with my relations, one of whom, during the war, commanded the first division of the Guards, while an uncle of mine (General von Unruh) was military tutor to the late Emperor Frederick. I returned to London at the age of seventeen, and at the age of twenty I went back to Berlin, but have been there only once since—after the Franco-Prussian War."

Mr. Jones and the "Nighties."

MR. HENRY ARTHUR JONES's speech at the A.A. Social last week was not without points of humour. He related how, when walking along the Strand one day with Mr. John Burns, the President of the Local Government Board spoke proudly of the architectural achievements of the London County Council at Aldwych. Mr. Burns, pointing to the Gaiety, enquired what was being played in that fine building; and Mr. Jones had with sorrow to state that songs were being sung there about ladies' "nighties."

English Plays in Germany.

GERMANS are greatly interested in all foreign art, says Herr Andresen, in the Pall Mall Gazette. Their artistic sympathies are international. Take up a Berlin newspaper any day and run your eye down the list of theatre pieces for that night, and what are the names you will find? Shakespeare, Bernard Shaw, Pinero, Oscar Wilde, Stephen Phillips. Far more than our own authors indeed. All that is good from France, England, Norway, Italy, Spain, we welcome it. We have a great longing to see what other people are thinking and doing. The public in Germany, as elsewhere, are now asking for something of the romantic, something that is real, but not realistic—plays like your His House in Order. "Ach, how splendidly that was acted and how perfectly it was put upon the stage! There again you English can teach our players a great deal. Your tall, handsome actors, so well dressed and mannered, and your beautiful actresses that walk the stage like—like . . . . I cannot say . . . . men and women who move their arms so naturally and with such dignity. Ah, you are splendid! You are a nation of kings!"

How Many to a Box?

How many guests, asks the Daily Mirror, is the holder of a theatre box ticket entitled to invite without paying for extra seats? The question is one which invites a good deal of discussion. A great amount of trouble arises from the fact that, almost without exception, a box ticket does not indicate the number of persons allowed to use it. Only the other day a party of five persons went to a certain West End theatre with a box ticket, and on arrival found that they had to pay an extra half-guinea, as the box which they had purchased was only supposed to hold four persons. While some boxes hold four, some five, and some six people, it is very necessary that the number should be printed plainly on the face of the ticket to save trouble and annoyance to theatre-goers. Better still, why not issue separate tickets for each occupant of the box?

Satirising the Suffragettes.

THE following are two of the verses of Mr. Philip Ashbrooke's new song, "The Giddy Little Glow-worm," which Miss Marie Studholme is singing in My Darling at the Hicks Theatre:—

In a far-off distant forest, where no human feet did roam,
A lonely little glow-worm had his lonely little home.
Till one day he thought, before he died, he'd like the world to see,
So he lit his little lantern and approached his friend the bee.
Now the busy bee had several times to London City flown,
And of its many wond'rous sights he had an expert grown;
His descriptions were so thrilling, as he showed his friend the road,
That the glow-worm said, "Ring off at once, or else I shall explode."
And the giddy little glow-worm, glow-worm, glow-worm,
The giddy little glow-worm showed a light;
And with an expectant face
Packed his little dressing-case,
And forthwith he crawled out into the night.

One day, patrolling Oxford Street, he reached the Marble Arch,
And found a shrieking regiment of women on the march,
Severely clad, in cotton gloves, and hair done up in nets,
And a flaming banner bearing the words "We are the Suffragettes."
Then our visitor got furious—"It is very plain," said he,
"That Asquith and his other friends can learn a tip from me.
When women like this, completely forget the duties of wife and mother,
I'd pack them off to a desert isle and make them govern each other."
And the giddy little glow-worm, glow-worm, glow-worm,
The glow-worm promptly then turned off his light,
For to London Town came he
Only pretty things to see;
And he wasn't strong enough to stand that sight.

Citizen Complainers.

THE late Shirley Brooks, says Mr. William Archer in the Tribune, suggested before the Select Committee of 1866 that the Censor might be converted into a sort of theatrical public-prosecutor, empowered to suspend a representation on the properly authenticated complaint of a certain number of responsible persons, until its merits or demerits should be determined by a court or committee constituted to that end. I propose several amendments on the scheme as stated by Mr. Brooks. There should, I think, be no official bearing any title analogous to Censor, public prosecutor, or the like; but it should be open to any citizen or citizens, singly or in combination, to lodge a complaint with the Lord Chamberlain against any theatrical entertainment, or part of such entertainment. Should he hold the complaint worth inquiring into, he should send to the theatre a jury of three or five men, regularly appointed to that end, who should report to him on the matter in question.

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

"THE RED LAMP."

Drama, in Four Acts, by W. Outram Tristram, Revived at His Majesty's Theatre,
on Saturday, March 16.

Paul Demetrius ..... MR. TREE
General Morakoff ..... MR. LYN HARDING
Allan Villiers ..... MR. YORKE STEPHENS
Prince Alexis Valerian ..... MR. BASIL GILL
Ivan Zazzulic ..... MR. HERBERT GRIMWOOD
Kertch ..... MR. J. FISHER WHITE
Count Bohrenheim MR. J. COOKE BERESFORD
Turgan ..... MR. CHARLES QUARTERMAINE
Rheinveck ..... MR. A. B. IMESON
Tolstoi ..... MR. HARRY C. HEWITT
Officer of the Police.... MR. S. YATES SOUTHGATE
Servant ..... MR. CYRIL H. SWORDER
Princess Claudia Morakoff
MISS CONSTANCE COLLIER
Olga Morakoff ..... MISS ALICE CRAWFORD
Felise ..... MISS KATE CUTLER
Madame Dannenberg .. MISS MURIEL ALEXANDER
Countess Voelcker ..... MISS A. BRUCE-JOY

The revival of The Red Lamp at His Majesty's Theatre on Saturday last took back many present to the night of April 20, 1887, when Mr. Tree made his first venture in theatrical management with Mr. Outram Tristram's play at the Comedy. The cast on that occasion was a strong one, Mr. C. H. Brookfield playing General Morakoff, Mr. Charles Sugden Allan Villiers, Mr. Robert Pateman Ivan Zazzulic, Mr. Charles Dodsworth Kertch, Miss Marion Terry Olga Morakoff, and Miss Rosina Filippi Félise. The revival at His Majesty's on Saturday last was most enthusiastically received by a crowded house. Mr. Tree's many admirers will be delighted to renew their acquaintance with his masterly performance of Demetrius, one of the most brilliant and polished impersonations in his répertoire. It is an unfailing delight to watch Mr. Tree as the crafty old spy, with his "slow, treacherous smile." The twenty years or so which have elapsed since Mr. Tree first played the part seem to have only made his performance more ripe, more perfect in detail, and more fascinating. Miss Constance Collier was a magnificent Princess Claudia, and acted with strength and passion throughout. Mr. Lyn Harding as General Morakoff gave a fine picture of a stern, unbending soldier, incapable of even a thought of disloyalty to his Czar. Mr. Yorke Stephens was as cool, self-possessed, and resourceful as possible as the American journalist. The part of Prince Alexis was most satisfactorily filled by Mr. Basil Gill; and Mr. Herbert Grimwood gave a very clever study of a craven and a sensualist as Ivan Zazzulic. As Kertch Mr. J. Fisher White acted with restrained passion which was very effective; and the Count Bohrenheim of Mr. J. Cooke Beresford showed careful study. The political suspects, Turgan, Rheinveck, and Tolstoi, were convincingly played by Mr. A. B. Imeson, Mr. Charles Quartermaine, and Mr. Harry C. Hewitt. Mr. S. Yates Southgate was a duly unyielding Police Officer; and Mr. Cyril H. Sworder made the most of a small Servant's part. As Olga Morakoff Miss Alice Crawford showed remarkable power, and played with consistent feeling throughout. Nothing could have been better than the Félise of Miss Kate Cutler; she was admirable in every detail; and Miss Muriel Alexander as Madame Dannenberg and Miss A. Bruce-Joy as Countess Voelcker acted with grace and ease.

The Red Lamp was followed by a dramatic episode, in one act, adapted from the French of Eugene Fourier Peringue, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, played for the first time, and entitled

"THE VAN DYCK."

Arthur Blair-Woldingham ..... MR. TREE
John Peters ..... MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH
Mr. Porter ..... MR. ALFRED GODDARD
Franks ..... MR. A. B. IMESON
Lawson ..... MR. W. LEWIN

A great deal of prior interest was felt in The Van Dyck. In the first place, no hint of what was to be expected had leaked out. For some time after the curtain had risen there was an atmosphere of complete mystification in the house, so impossible was it to divine the "tendency" of the piece. It was not until about five minutes before the curtain came down that the great surprise was flashed upon the audience; and the house "rose to it" and rocked and roared with laughter.

The scene is Mr. Peters' flat. When the curtain rises Mr. Peters is discovered alone, playing softly on the piano. There is a knock at the door, which is disregarded. Then comes a second knock, and Mr. Peters goes to the door with an exclamation of annoyance, opens it, and discovers an eccentric gentleman. He is a neighbour, and has heard the performances of Mr. Peters on the violin and piano, and has come to thank him for the pleasure they have given him; in fact, he asserts that a certain sonata, which proves to be Peters' own composition, saved him on one occasion from suicide. Peters is flattered, and invites the strange visitor to remain. He accepts with alacrity, and wanders round the room, making casual remarks upon the many beautiful "objets d'art" which he sees—a picture by Thomas Lawrence, some old china, and a Stradivarius—all of which Peters has picked up in more or less discreditable ways for "mere songs." The visitor compliments Peters upon his taste, and ascertains the value of the various articles. Peters is more flattered, the manner of the visitor grows more eccentric, and finally he insists upon relating to his host the story of his life—a long, rambling, blood-curdling story full of incoherency and inconsistency. As he relates it he become very excited. Peters becomes nervous and tries to make his escape, which the lunatic—as the audience now recognises him to be—prevents. Finally, when Peters' life seems to be in imminent danger, the door is burst open and a doctor and a couple of warders enter and capture the lunatic, who by this time is raving mad. As the presence of Peters seems to infuriate his patient the doctor begs that he will retire while they get the man away, and Peters locks himself into his bedroom. Instantly the raving lunatic becomes a changed man. He takes over the command, with the words "Now, boys, on with the gloves; off with the stuff"; and in a very short space of time the flat is stripped bare. All that is left is an alleged Van Dyck, which the head burglar pronounces a "dud." The toot of a motor is heard, and then there is silence in the flat. Peters cautiously emerges from his retreat to find that he has been the victim of a clever gang of thieves. His only comfort is that they have left him what he considers the gem of his collection, the Van Dyck.

The performance of Mr. Tree as the burglar was extraordinarily clever. The slow merging of eccentricity into madness was intensely interesting. It was a study to watch the roving eye grow glazed and vacant with madness, the twitching of the features, the nervous, uncontrollable movements of the hands; to listen to the bursts of strange, maniacal laughter, and to mark the sudden change into the cool, alert, "swell mobsman." Mr. Tree's make-up was no less wonderful. To the keen observer there was from the very first a faint, indefinable suggestion of the criminal in his face, a certain laxity of feature, a touch of cunning in the expression. Mr. Weedon Grossmith had a very difficult part to play, and he sustained it admirably. He had very little to say, but everything to convey by his expression, which was inimitable. His face showed every emotion from smug satisfaction to growing nervousness, from realisation of insanity in his visitor to terror when he felt his life to be in danger; despair when he discovered he had been robbed of his precious possessions; and, finally, a transport of joy when on finding himself still the possessor of his cherished Van Dyck. The other parts were adequately filled by Mr. Alfred Goddard, Mr. A. B. Imeson, and Mr. W. Lewin.

ACTRESSES AND "O.P.'S."

The annual Ladies' Dinner of the O.P. Club took place at the Criterion Restaurant last Sunday evening. The president, Mr. SIDNEY DARK, was in the chair, and the chief guests of the evening were Miss Winifred Emery and Miss Gertie Millar. Mr. Cyril Maude was unfortunately prevented by a severe chill from being present. About 400 guests were present, and among them were Miss Winifred Emery, Miss Marie Illington, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Gertie Millar, Miss Lottie Venne, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Jeanne Aylwin, Miss Kitty Raeburn, Miss Thornton, Miss Liebbrandt, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, Mlle. Adeline Genée, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Workman, Miss Mabel Green, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Robbins, Mr. Frank Richardson, Mr. Lionel Monckton, Mr. G. Spencer Edwards, Mr. Hermann Finck, Mr. Alec Knowles, Mr. Frank Desprez, Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, Mr. W. Pett Ridge, and the joint hon. secretaries, Messrs. J. Davies Smith and Stanley Greig.

After the health of the King had been drunk the toast of "The O.P. Club" was proposed by Mr. FRANK RICHARDSON, who in his speech claimed to be the pioneer of the "plotless play." Referring to the production of a comic opera of which he was the librettist, he said his "book" being too long, he was obliged to cut half of it out, and the entire plot went. For this, said Mr. Richardson, he was soundly hissed by an outraged audience, and the papers the next day called him "fourteen different kinds of an idiot" instead of hailing him as a pioneer. Nevertheless, he said, if he had not invented plotless plays there would have been no musical comedy; and if there had been no musical comedy there would have been no Miss Gertie Millar.

MR. T. ORTON ROBERTS, in responding, said that although there were no lady members of the Club at present, one of its pleasantest functions was the ladies' dinner, and that ladies were always welcomed to the Sunday evening debates and lectures of the Club.

The toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by the PRESIDENT, who said that he could not imagine a better subject for his swan song than the Ladies, although it was a subject which had lately become somewhat fearsome on account of the onslaught of the Suffragettes on the amiable policemen outside Westminster. Mr. Dark did not see why women should not have votes, or why they should not take the places of the men altogether. He foresaw a time when Mrs. Carl Hentschel, as the president of the Club, would be sitting in the chair he was then occupying, and when he, with a face suffused with blushes, would rise to respond to the toast of "The Gentlemen." Mr. Dark referred personally to many of the distinguished visitors present—Miss Isabel Jay, whom, he said, might almost be known as the prima donna of the O.P. Club, so often had she delighted them with her charming presence; to Miss Lilian Braithwaite, who was a constant contradiction to the statement that there were no young actresses of talent on the stage; to Miss Marie Illington, whose art was such a delight to the English stage; and to Miss Gertie Millar, the bright particular star of the Gaiety Theatre, herself the very soul of gaiety, who seemed to have been born to daintily sing her husband's dainty songs. Finally, said Mr. Dark, it is my very proud privilege to ask you to drink the health of Miss Winifred Emery, whom I think we may, without impertinence, call "our Winifred," an actress who can touch with equal ease the chords of laughter and tears, a woman of noble character, a great craftswoman, who has worked hard at her craft. Mr. Dark then, on behalf of the Club, presented Miss Emery and Miss Millar each with a beautiful ostrich feather fan.

MISS WINIFRED EMERY, in replying to the toast of "The Visitors," said: I do not think anything could make me feel happier at this moment than to be able to thank you adequately for the most warm welcome which you have given me; but, although I have had long years of experience in making speeches on the stage, I have had no experience in making speeches off it, and that is a very different thing, believe me. So I asked my husband if he would speak for me; but unfortunately a severe chill has prevented him from being present to-night, so it devolves on me to say how very heartily I appreciate and am touched by the kind words which have been spoken, by this beautiful gift, and by the great honour you have shown me to-night.

MISS GERTIE MILLAR chose a very novel way of responding to the toast. She sang her reply, accompanied by her husband, Mr. Lionel Monckton, on the piano, introducing the various airs with which her name has become associated since her connection with the Gaiety, such as "Keep off the grass," "Bedtime at the Zoo," and "Little Mary." She began with a recitative:—

"Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, I hope you will excuse me,
If I tell you in a song, instead of a speech, how greatly your compliments embarrass and confuse me.
You see, for occasions like this I have a most unfortunate memory,
And when I was a little girl I never had lessons in elocution like Miss Winifred Emery."

MISS MILLAR then proposed the toast of the Club in the words

"May you have health,
Wisdom, and wealth.
Here's to the Club in the Garden."

The toast of the chairman was given by Miss Marie Illington, who made a very humorous speech, which evoked much laughter. She said that she had come that evening prepared to give a two hours' lecture on the subject of the Suffragettes, although she did not sympathise with those ladies, but that she had been talked out by Mr. Sidney Dark. The chairman briefly responded on behalf of the Club.

The artists who contributed to the very excellent entertainment were Miss Esme Atherden, Miss Elsie Spain, Mr. Walter Hyde, Mr. Fred. Maguire, Mr. Morris Harvey, Mr. Edgar Coyle, Mr. C. H. Workman. Mr. Sinclair Mantell and Mr. E. J. Margetson accompanied at the piano.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The concert of Friday evening, March 15, commenced with an able performance of Mozart's Quartet for Strings in C, in which the crisp playing of the Menuetto by the executants, Miss E. Dorothy Devin, Miss A. Theodora Hunter, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Gershom Parkington deserved especial praise. Mr. F. Gershom Parkington and Mr. Ioan Powell also greatly distinguished themselves in Sonata for Violoncello and Piano in G, by Beethoven. An organ solo of Sir C. V. Stanford's Fantasia and Toccata in D Minor was well played by Mr. Eric Gritton; and Brahms' Quartet for Piano and Strings in A Major was cleverly performed by Miss Grace Humphery, Miss Lorna Downing, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Gershom Parkington. Miss Dora G. Arnell, who possesses a mezzo-soprano voice of great purity and considerable compass, was heard to great advantage in "Avenging and Bright," an old Irish melody, but she hardly got the full dramatic effect out of Schubert's "Aufenthalt." In two Romanzen—VIII. and II.—from Brahms' Magelone, Mr. Robert Chignell sang with good taste and expression; and Miss Bessie Bowness was greatly applauded in her song, "Amoureuse," by Massenet. The accompanists were Miss Alice Cotton and Miss Ellen Tuckfield.

A DRAMATIC version of Mr. F. Anstey's story, The Brass Bottle, was given for copyright purposes on the 14th inst. at the Haymarket Theatre.

ACTORS' DAY.

We have received the following report of the Advisory Board in connection with the funds collected on Actors' Day:—

"In tendering our advice as to the apportionment of the money collected at our initial Actors' Day, we of the Advisory Board have been confronted with a very signal difficulty, arising out of a radical difference of opinion amongst out subscribers regarding the destination of the money relinquished by them on October 18, 1906. That there has been a variance of opinion we do not attempt to deny; but it must be remembered that benevolent and provident schemes of such wide reach as this one have nearly always been confronted by initial difficulties.

"The great difficulty with which we of the Advisory Board have had to deal is this:—One part of our subscribers have given their money under the impression that it was to be applied solely to the support of existing theatrical charities; that in subscribing to Actors' Day they at one stroke relieved themselves of all further kindred subscriptions and appeals. But then there is the other part of our subscribers who have given their money to Actors' Day under the impression that it was to be set aside for a fund for the benefit of those only who had created that fund out of their own providence and sacrifice, whereby, in the course of years the whole body of theatrical artists should become united in a bond of mutual succour from which there should be excluded only those who remain obdurate to the common welfare.

"How, then, we of the Advisory Board have had to say to ourselves, can we reconcile the wishes of those who place the duty to existing theatrical charities in the foreground with the contrary wishes of those who deny that the fruits of their sacrifice and providence should be in any portion bestowed on people who steadily refuse to exercise either virtue? It is our hope that we have arrived at a means of compromise between these two attitudes towards Actors' Day by which none of our present subscribers shall be estranged, and the great number of those who have hitherto held aloof received into our midst. Many particulars and details we must, of course, leave to subsequent deliberation: we wish at present to indicate the principles of apportionment and suggested ultimate coalition by which we believe Actors' Day, as also existing theatrical charities, may be best fostered and utilised, and the noblest interests of the whole body of theatrical artists solidified and upheld.

"We advise that the sum collected on Actors' Day, 1906, and to be collected in succeeding years, be divided into two parts—that the one part shall be proportionate to and devoted to the making up of any deficit that may have been occasioned by the institution of Actors' Day in the annual amounts (taking the average of the last three years as the standard of calculation) collected from the theatres by the Actors' Benevolent Fund, the Actors' Orphanage and the Ladies' Theatrical Guild; that the other part of the sums collected on Actors' Day shall be set aside to form a fund that shall never at any time be at the service of any but its own subscribers. We are confident that the recommendation to devote some part of our fund to existing charities will be approved even by those who, as we think rightly, support the general principle that willingness to help should be a condition of relief; for it cannot be denied that existing charities may suffer by the institution of Actors' Day; nor that there will always be a proportion of contributors who will wish that a part of their contributions should go to the existing charities. It is our opinion that this special subscribers' fund should be divided into two portions: the one being allowed to accumulate till it shall have reached a figure sufficient to form the nucleus of an old age pension fund, the other being devoted to the relief of subscribers who have been overtaken with illness; and ultimately to establish a loan fund, the value of which we fully recognise.

"Within a period of years (not less than five and not more than ten) those charities to which Actors' Day will have so largely contributed shall be asked, in so far as their annual income is concerned, to conform to the rule governing the Special Actors' Day Subscribers' Fund, i.e., that all who have not for a certain number of years, to be hereafter fixed, contributed to Actors' Day, shall be debarred from all assistance and benefits from any of those funds; but this will be asked only in so far as that annual income is concerned, and shall in no way affect the disposal of the income derived from their invested funds. And in order that no deserving but unfortunate actor or actress may be excluded from the working of this scheme, which, whilst wholly provident in principle, is based on our willingness to help one another, we would recommend that any actor or actress on the register who has been in employment for less than sixteen weeks during the preceding twelve months, on making statement of the fact in the appointed quarter, may be, on the verification of that statement, exempt from contribution, but shall be regarded as having contributed towards Actors' Day, and shall be excluded from none of the benefits or assistance in any way derivable therefrom.

"That is our scheme. We take care to provide that plenty of time shall elapse before our suggested system of coalition is established; no one is to be taken unawares, and there will, even after the proposed coalition, still remain the invested capital of the present funds to be disposed of, as in former years, by each in its own way. But we most strongly believe that the very life of Actors' Day depends on our taking up this stand—that they who would do nothing towards benevolence or providence when it lay in their power have no right to the benefits of the same in their adversity. Such dead-weights must rely on individual kindness of heart to afford them relief; but let them understand that Actors' Day is concerned with self-support and mutual support, and it has not been instituted to subsidise those lazy people who are resolved to live by the exertions of others, who bring the name of actor into contempt.

"Let us once more urge the much-desired advantages and long-felt needs attainable, as we believe, only by the adoption of such a scheme as ours, involving a certain measure of coalition.

"1. Actors and actresses will, each in his or her degree, provide for one another's age, sickness, or distress, thus fortifying mutual help with providence; the more fortunate and more wealthy assisting their less fortunate but, proportionately, as generous comrades.

"2. The relief of theatrical distress in all its branches will tend to be brought under one organisation, thereby increasing our grasp of its problems, utilising the accumulated experience of years, whilst decreasing the expenses of administration.

"3. In the place of many appeals to the actor and actress there would be only one.

"These are the benefits which we believe would flow from the general acceptance of Actors' Day, and of our present proposals; but they can only be brought about by a combined continuous effort of all who prize principles above institutions, and it is our conviction that their adoption would be fraught with good results, moral, social, and economic, for the calling of the actor.

"The full details of the scheme necessitate expert advice as to the allocation of the funds in future years. A further statement, which it is hoped will satisfy the views of both sides, will shortly be submitted to the profession."

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE FOLLIES" AT THE ROYALTY.

An evening of uproarious fun! This will be the verdict of Londoners who patronise the Royalty Theatre, and under the guidance of Mr. H. G. Pélissier give themselves up to the delights of melody and mirth, provided with such unsparing liberality by that gentleman and his versatile company of half a dozen—three of either sex. Their resources in the way of travesty, song, and jest seem to be endless, and the spirit of harmless raillery which prevails provides as much drollery as is to be found in half a dozen musical comedies. Contrary to the practice that usually obtains in theatres, the printed programme issued is worth all the money charged, for is it not garnished with burlesque advertisements and a comic historiette of Pélissier himself? The chief novelty of the opening section of the bill is a song-cycle in the style of Liza Lehmann's Daisy Chain, entitled A Buttercup Cable, "a song perambulator for those children too young for cycles." For this "cable-istic" utterance the author should be given a bit more "rope." However, it is the only thing about it that is at all elephantine; for the music is light and pretty, the quartette, "A hive of bees," being delightful. Other popular items are Mr. Lewis Sydney's cornet imitations, with unmannerly interruptions from Pélissier at the piano; "The flowergirl's song," by Miss Gwennie Mars and chorus; Mr. Norman A. Blumé's recitation in the 'Ercles vein, "The Last Shot," and some amusing parodies at the piano of the styles of Grieg, Chopin, and Liszt by Mr. Pélissier, who also sings his amusing "Mein Faderland" song in the character of a long-haired professor who has left the banks of the Rhine for his own good and that of his country.

The work of the Follies in their travesties of plays and operas has been the theme of praise in these columns, and their latest skit, Baffles: A Peter Pantomime, as its name implies, is a clever amalgam of fun founded on Mr. J. M. Barrie's fairy fantasy and the piece now running so successfully at the Comedy. The piece opens with a chorus of Folly children (from Peter Pan) founded on the "Bogie man" ditty so popular in the 'nineties. The author, Mr. J. M. Barrie, who enters, is "bound to say he likes the way that Peter's panning out." Mrs. Darling and the dog having delivered themselves of a tuneless and wordless lullaby, the canine doffs his fur, and Baffles is revealed. Bunny, who enters in search of him, is visibly pained to discover that he turns out to be a "dirty dog," and Baffles confesses himself a Pirate King, who has hidden ten million pirate copies of "Down by the Zuyder Zee" on Hampstead Heath. Bunny agrees to join him heart and soul in his effort to save the pirate copies from the police.

Peter Pan enters with a dark lantern (as the burglar in Raffles). The alarm-bell rings and wakes the children, who have retired to bed (three adult Follies in a miniature four-poster), Peter conducts them to the Blither-Blither Land—through the window because the flying-machine has broken down. After the introduction of Tinker Bell, "a prehistoric nymph," the Pirate King enters on a trolley drawn by two pirates and sings:—

"When I'm quite sold out at night
I cry with humour deft,
'I've neither got a copy*right*,

A clever topical duet is that between the Pirate King and Tinker Bell, in which they lament the decline of the fairy and pirate king in public popularity, and the following sparkling skit is evidently founded on the memorable speech in Raffles:—"Have you ever pictured Peter when the play Peters out; when Peter begins to pall? In place of a house crowded with bejewelled aristocracy the stalls become a series of empty Rose du Barrie, dotted here and there with 3s. 9d. blouses and borrowed dress suits, the box-office receipts diminished day by day till not a single family adorns the family circle; the pit queue dwindled down, until it consists solely of the fireman's wife, the stage doorkeeper's uncle, two dogs, and a policeman. Then Mr. Charles Showman will 'present' another attraction from the States that'll put your nose out of joint and London will know you no more!" The interpretation showed that the rehearsals had not been thorough; but the whole thing is so witty and amusing that it is bound to be a success. The trio of authors, Arthur Wimperis, Arthur Davenport, and H. G. Pélissier, put something of the graceful spirit of a Planché into their lines, which are often very happily turned.

The bonne-bouche of the entertainment comes last with the skit on a variety entertainment. This is opened by Mic and Mac, Amurrica's slickest, quickest, cross-talk comedians, and is contributed to by Mr. Gush Squealin with a burlesque of Mr. Gus Elen in his out-of-work ditty; Mr. George Robeville, with a blend of the Robey and Dunville methods; Miss May de Colté, the serio of a quarter of a century since, who knows her business as well as the audience knows her accent; Mr. Ernest Bathos, the actor-vocalist, who reverently lifts his hat whenever he speaks the word "mother," and is assisted by a carroty-haired youth in the boxes; the Verrey-Worszt troupe of unmusical clowns, who parody the xylophone playing of the overture to William Tell; and Lieutenant Travesty Cole, whose human puppets enable him to do the marvellous feat of drinking, smoking, and speaking at the same time. The gallery boys of the coster breed are all consistent helpers in the scheme of fun, which sets the seal of success on an entertainment which is as refined and witty as it is clever and versatile.

"NO OTHER WAY."

A Dramatic Episode, produced at the Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury,
on Monday, March 18.

Joe Carson ..... MR. WALKER
Martha Carson ..... MISS GRACE BARING
Letty ..... MISS NORAH JOHNS
Geoffrey Dale ..... MR. RALPH LYNN

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Described as a "dramatic episode," this lever de rideau was for the first time produced at Shrewsbury Theatre Royal on Monday, the 18th inst., and proved very successful. After twenty years' absence, Joe Carson returns home a starving outcast, and murders Geoffrey Dale's uncle, of which deed Geoffrey's fiancée is an unexpected witness. In the opening Letty Carson, the murderer's daughter, tells her mother, Martha Carson, that she has witnessed the crime; but neither is aware of the real identity of its perpetrator. Later the poor wife shelters her husband, but on learning the true facts of his guilt she sees no other solution of the problem than to urge him to self-destruction—"no other way"—to prevent the discovery of his guilt. Refusing, he arms himself with a revolver, and in the struggle with his frantic wife the weapon is discharged, and Carson is seen to fall. He is killed, by whether by his wife's hand or his own is left to the imagination. Mr. Walker played Joe Carson with considerable power and talent; Miss Grace Baring in the trying rôle of Martha Carson merited high praise; Miss Norah Johns was pleasing and effective as Letty, and Mr. Ralph Lynn made a very capable Geoffrey Dale.

PRESENTATION.—Mr J. H. Russell, who recently resigned the post of musical conductor at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, which he had held since the theatre opened ten years ago, was on Saturday evening, after the performance of Veronique, presented with a silver salver from the staff.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Thursday evening, March 14, the pupils of Mr. Henry Gadsby gave an excellent pianoforte recital. The programme was varied and interesting, and in most cases well adapted to the pupils' ability. It was also very evident that Mr. Gadsby had taught his pupils to use their brains as well as fingers, and to impart to their performances some idea of the composers' poetical aims instead of mere mechanical dexterity. This was clearly shown in Miss Augusta Kemble's playing of "Bosquet de Julie" and "Mondscheinfährt," two charming little works of Bendel, and in Miss Louisa Willis's rendering of Sinding's "Marche Grotesque" and "Fruhlingsrauschen." Miss Alice Watson also gave quite the right expression to Sjogern's "Eroticon" No. 3, and Miss Louisa Dyer to Schubert's "Impromptu in A Flat." Schuman's "Kreisleriana," Nos. 2 and 5, was neatly executed by Miss Evelyn King; while Miss E. B. Foss may be commended for her playing of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathétique," although she slightly dragged the time in the slow movement. The most striking performance in the recital was that of Miss Ethel Harman (winner of the Brinsmead Prize of 1906), who was much applauded for her able and even brilliant playing of Chopin's Andante Spianato and Grand Polonaise in E Flat; another clever performer of Chopin's works was Miss Muriel Grose, who played the famous Valse in A Flat with good results. The only male pupil of Mr. Gadsby who appeared at this recital was Mr. Charles Boadella, heard in Chopin's Grand Polonaise in A Flat. Other talented pupils were Miss Edna Borwick, Miss Annie Pearce, Miss Alice Lavell, and Miss Elsie Hebditch. The recital concluded with Weber's Concert Stück, played by Miss E. B. Foss, with orchestral accompaniment on second piano.

The first instrumental item of the concert of Wednesday was Miss Euphemia E. I. Johnson's piano solo Etude, "Des Ailes," by Godard, played with considerable freedom of execution. Miss Lily Selden (an advanced pupil of Mme. Waldahoff) was heard to great advantage in De Beriot's "Concerto in A minor," played as a mandoline solo. Miss Selden, although quite young, has already appeared in public. Another clever student was Miss Doris Cloud, who did great credit to her professor in Vieuxtemps' solo for violin, "Réverie," and "Allegro Molto," by Godard. Miss Cloud's tone and execution were excellent, and at the close she was warmly applauded. Mr. Arthur Jones had a fair amount of success in his harp solo, "Fantasia in C minor," by Spohr; and Miss Dorothy Wright and Miss Kathleen E. Hicks distinguished themselves in Saint-Saëns' duet for pianoforte, "Danse Macabre." A first performance of two songs, "Bright is the ring of words" and "Invictus," by Mr. Herbert M. Goldstein, was given, but owing to the vocalist, Mr. Robert Moore, not being quite at home, either in the words or music of the first song, the effect was somewhat lost. In "Invictus," the better of the two, Mr. Moore was heard to greater advantage. Blumenthal's melody, "An evening song," was sung by Mr. Arthur W. Morse with praiseworthy care and expression; while Miss Nellie Atkinson was heard in the scena, "My heart is weary," from Nadeschda. The concert concluded with a duologue, The Other Woman, by Alice Kingsley, in which two pupils of Miss Kate Rorke, Miss Annie Walden and Mrs. Fennell, appeared as Enid and Silvie. Miss Jenny Hyman performed the duties of accompanist.

On Wednesday afternoon a recital of the fine new organ recently erected in the Concert Room was given by Mr. Fountain Meen, who had arranged a capital programme, well calculated to show off the beautiful qualities of the instrument. The programme included J. L. Hatton's bright and effective "Toccata in F sharp minor," "Melody," by Dr. Davan Wetton, "Meditation in a Cathedral," by E. Silas; a quaint "Caprice" of Guilmant; E. Bernard's showy "Fugue in F"; a charming "Pastorale," by Kullak; and Henry Smart's "Grand Solemn March," in which the rich tone and power of the organ were well displayed. The recital was a great success, and the talented professor much applauded at the close.

THE CELLI FUND.

This fund is being raised on behalf of the two young daughters, aged seventeen and eighteen, of the late Frank Celli, well known in the theatrical profession, who died in Charing Cross Hospital two years ago, leaving them totally unprovided for.

At the Oxford City Police-court on Tuesday Richard Borlase Eady, of Oakwood Court, Kensington, Sydney Fishe, of the Randolph Stables, Oxford, and Russell Lloyd-Jones, of the Bath Club, London, formerly undergraduates, appeared to summonses for committing wilful damage and breach of the peace at the New Theatre, Oxford. Eady and Lloyd-Jones actually got on to the stage of the theatre during the performance of The Little Michus and broke up seats. The Bench fined the defendants £5 each, ordered them to pay costs, and on the second charge bound them over to keep the peace for six months.

The following announcement by the North-Eastern Railway Company will be welcome to those artistis and companies who include Spennymoor in their tour of the provinces: "A service of trains will be instituted on Sundays on the above branch, being timed to leave Spennymoor for Ferryhill at 7.15 a.m., 8.30 a.m., 6.15 p.m., and 8.15 p.m., and Ferryhill for Spennymoor at 7.50 a.m., 9.0 a.m., 5.55 p.m., 6.46 p.m., and 9.0 p.m., connecting at Feryhill with trains from and to the North and South. It has been decided to commence running these trains in April.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

Subscribed to date, 1699 shillings.

Miss Louisa Peach, who rejoined Mr. Morton Powell last Monday, will appear next week in her original part, Countess Natalie, in The Woman Who Gambles, at the West London Theatre.

The opening Hippodrome performance at the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, was given on Thursday, the 14th inst., under the patronage of the Mayor and Corporation of the borough. A very large audience assembled to mark their appreciation of the spirited enterprise of the present management in thus catering for all classes of the community. An excellent variety programme was submitted, including Ariel and Astarte in a clever trapeze act; the Gentrys, in an amusing comedy sketch; Harding and Preston, who contributed excellent top-boot dancing; Jury's Imperial Pictures; the charming Berlin Belles, &c. The first house concluded with a speech from the popular lessee, Mr. Eade Montefiore, who received a tremendous ovation. He expressed his gratification at the way in which his new venture was received, pointing out that Bury St. Edmunds was following the lead of Norwich, Ipswich, Colchester, and many other towns, in all of which the innovation had been a striking success. The Hippodrome performances will be given at seven and nine o'clock on the last three nights of every week, the forepart of the week being open for the booking of first-class theatrical attractions.

The English Drama Society is making a bold experiment on May 6, when it will begin a short season at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, with Cleopatra in Judæa, by Arthur Symons, and The Hour, a play in three acts, by Nugent Monck, under whose direction the pieces will be produced. Browning's Pippa Passes, Ibsen's The Master Builder, and Shakespeare's King Lear will follow in due succession. Should the scheme be successful an endeavour will be made to establish a permanent "Théâtre Libre" in London.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Thanks are due to "A Provincial Actress" for ventilating so important a subject as the quality of the plays in vogue in the provinces. That poor, carpenterd, unconvincing plays are among the root causes of bad business is beyond doubt. The lady is so evidently an earnest student that she will welcome criticism from one who is in entire sympathy with her ideals.

Her first paragraph deals with effects not causes. Who employs the authors? Who accepts and mounts their plays? The touring-manager. He accepts them with his eyes open. His action, however, is an effect of other causes. The touring-manager would say "terms are so bad I had to save somewhere." Now, it is a time-honoured custom to cut authors' fees—or dispense with them altogether—as a first resource in reducing expenses. The ways to do this are few. Either to get a novice to part with his first work for a few pounds and the joy of seeing himself "produced," or to get someone with a little experience to "knock together" time-proved materials—or adaptations—for the same few pounds. We can trace effect to cause a stage further. The merely commercial character of much provincial resident-management begets conventionalism. Few resident-managers read the MS. of a play as a guide to booking it. Do any? One told me he had not read a MS. play for eight years. He booked his attraction—he did not call it "play"—after seeing it, or on its reputation. A touring-manager would be more likely to get "dates" by saying his play was a second Silver King—or "second" any other big success—than that it was original and all your correspondent describes.

Here I join issue on her last line unhesitatingly. Such plays have little chance of being accepted by provincial touring-managers for production. They would have to be produced in West-End London first. This narrows a market already narrowed by individual considerations; so much that the majority of literary men get tired of the wastage in time and energy in merely trying to get their plays considered by the few likely managers.

It is futile to blame the inefficient authors. On the principle that a man has to know a good lot to know he knows little, the author aimed at will probably be blissfully ignorant that anybody means him. If, instead, "A Provincial Actress" could only infuse into many others her own lofty ideals and enthusiasm, and so create a demand for better work, and suggest means of giving it its opportunity, she would deserve a place in a Thespian temple of fame.

I would also timidly suggest that it might be possible to moderate the too general impression that authors' fees are simply taxes, and to get it understood that, equally with the actor, the author has a right to a living wage. This, though, I fear can only be a dream, and I almost apologise for mentioning it.—Yours faithfully,

A DRAMATIST.

THE late Mr. Charles Bertram, the conjuror, has left a widow and daughters in straitened circumstances, and his friends propose to give a benefit performance in their aid at a London theatre next month. The Lord Mayor has consented to join the general committee, which will include most of the prominent members of the Bohemian Clubs in the West.

PRICES OF ADMISSION.

Mr. BEERBOHM TREE'S remark at the recent dinner of the Stage Society to the effect that the prices charged for stalls at theatres were too high has caused a good deal of comment. This is not the first time that discussion has been raised on the subject. In the October of 1870 the late DION BOUCICAULT led a correspondence in the London Press on the question of the charges for admission to the West End houses being too great, in which Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT said, in an interesting letter, "Until September, 1868, the prices were considerably lower to every part of the Prince of Wales's Theatre than at present. The pit and amphitheatre (although then decreased in size) have since not only yielded more money, but show a greatly increased numerical attendance; and I may add that Mr. ROBERTSON'S two comedies, which, perhaps, would appeal most to those portions of the house, Ours and Caste, were both produced by Mrs. BANCROFT at the cheap prices. The upper boxes, which formerly were chiefly valuable in the event of an overflow from other seats, were nearly doubled, both in numbers and in price, and are now constantly secured in advance. On several occasions in the old days intending visitors to the dress-circle have actually left the theatre when told by the money-takers that the charge was only three shillings, but no one grumbles about paying five shillings; while the stalls, which formerly seated fifty-four persons at six shillings, now hold one hundred and twenty-seven at seven shillings, and, to my certain knowledge, a very large percentage of them, throughout the first run of M.P., from last April to August, were sold in Bond Street at eight shillings, and in some cases at still higher prices."

A further elevation of prices was made in 1873 in connection with the revival of The School for Scandal at the old Prince of Wales's, when the stalls were raised to ten shillings, and the prices for other parts of the theatre increased accordingly. The example was soon followed by the Gaiety Theatre, then by the Lyceum, and afterwards by all the leading playhouses in London.

The matter is purely one for business calculation, the foundation of which can easily be defined. A marketable commodity is worth just what it will fetch in the market. If, during the run of a successful piece, a manager finds that he can get people to come to his theatre in sufficient numbers to fill it night after night at the prices which at present prevail, he would be unwise to reduce the prices of admission. There is nothing here of the habitual play-going which exists in connection with the cheaper charges of the Continent. What keeps up the price of the stalls in London is not Art, but what is unkindly called "snobbery." Not to have seen a successful piece at a fashionable theatre is to argue yourself unfashionable, and to subject yourself to the depreciating conversation of your friends and acquaintances. There is a sheep-like tendency about stallites and dress-circleites which makes a failure complete and a success triumphal.

It is plausibly argued that if the stall prices were reduced people would visit theatres who abstain at present on the score of expense. But this argument will not bear investigation. If it were merely a question of seeing a play to advantage, the stalls would be deserted and the dress-circle overcrowded. The best places in the house, from an art point of view, are at the centres of the three or four front rows of the dress-circle. From a purely spectacular point of view, the stalls will not bear comparison with these. At least half of the seats are "out of focus"—they are too near the object; and in all of them the eye of the spectator is below the line of sight. Why, then do people pay 10s. 6d. to sit in the stalls when they could sit in the dress-circle for 7s. 6d.? For the same reason that a man has his clothes made in Bond Street. The garments made by non-famous firms might keep him warm as well; but they would not confer so much credit on their wearer. People go to the stalls as they join smart clubs and follow the fashions. They may not even like it; but they cannot escape their social obligations.

It will be observed that the BANCROFTS did not raise the price of their stalls to seven shillings until they had secured a definite status for their theatre. At the opening of the old Prince of Wales's they only ventured upon placing anti-macassars on the stall seats. Those anti-macassars were, however, the outward and visible signs of a great change that was at hand. Playgoing was to become "smart." In the sixties "smartness" had not even been invented. There was Society, a kind of aristocratic clique, to which, as DISRAELI put it, one could only obtain admission by having "birth, a million, or genius." But it conferred smartness; it did not exist on the strength of being smart. Playgoing was looked upon as a pleasure, not as a social rite. It was the present King, when Prince of Wales, who made the theatre fashionable.

If such an unheard-of thing should happen as the theatre losing its smartness, stalls will have to come down in price, or their number will have to be decreased. At present, a West End manager plays, so to speak, "double or quits." If he has a success he makes a great deal of money; if he has a failure, it has to "come off" very quickly. There is no reason why we should see only first-rate plays, any more than that we should read only first-rate novels, or, when at a picture show, look only at the great masterpieces. But when it comes to "weighing in" with half-a-guinea for a stall people like to make sure of their money's worth. And the net result is that the fate of the British drama is in the hands of the successful men of business. Not only do they, in many cases, find the capital for theatrical speculations; by their support or neglect as stallites a theatre stands or falls TALMA played at Erfurt to a pit full of kings. The modern London manager, to continue solvent, must have his stalls full of cash.

FUNERAL OF MISS M. A. VICTOR.

In a picturesque part of Finchley Cemetery the remains of Miss M. A. Victor, the veteran actress, were laid to rest on Tuesday afternoon. The little funeral procession left the residence at Highbury shortly after half-past twelve. The principal mourners, who occupied carriages, were Miss Emma Victor (daughter of the deceased), Miss Marie Beever and Miss Lilian Maude (granddaughters), Mr. Frank Mundill (grandson-in-law), and Mr. Harry Nicholls Mr. C. A. Cooper, an old friend of the deceased, and the representative of The Era were the only others present at the interment.

The Rev. F. H. Reichardt, M.A. (Camb.), Chaplain of Islington Cemetery, conducted the service both in the church and at the graveside. The coffin, which was of polished oak with brass fittings, bore the following inscription:

"MARY ANN SARCIAT
(Miss M. A. Victor),
Died 13th March, 1907,
in her 76th Year."

Several beautiful wreaths were sent to the house. One from the dead lady's daughter, Miss Emma Victor, was in the form of a harp with broken string composed of arum lilies, lilies of the valley, &c. Other floral tributes were from Miss Marie Beever (granddaughter), Mr. and Mrs. and Master Mundill, Miss A. E. Newcomb (sister), "In loving remembrance from her old friends Winifred and Cyril Maude," Mr. and Mrs. Horswell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Haskell and family, Mr. H. W. Mote, "Nieces at Gravesend and Ida," and Mr., Mrs., and Miss Flavel.

The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr. S. W. Baker, of Upper-street, N.

UNDER the direction of Mr. Cyril Gilbert, an addition to the attractions of the music hall stage will shortly be presented in the shape of a musical scena, entitled Under a Cactus Tree, in which Miss Violet Gibson and her five white coons will make their début. No expense has been spared in the staging of this trifle, and the music, specially written for it, has been provided by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. Miss Gibson is, we understand, sister to the late Miss Gaynor Rowlands, whose lamented and premature death left a void in musical comedy.

ACTOR AND VARIETY ARTIST.

MR. ALFRED LESTER.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who has made such a distinct hit in A Restaurant Episode at the Palace Theatre, and is also playing the Lost Policeman at the Gaiety, is a great believer in gagging. "The art of gagging," he says, "is to know when to stop."

Mr. Lester is an example of the close connection between the theatre and the music-hall. He is on the stage at the Palace at nine o'clock with A Restaurant Episode, the performance of which occupies sixteen minutes A motor-car awaits him outside, and after a complete change of make-up and dress he appears before the Gaiety footlights at a quarter to ten.

The story of Mr. Lester's engagement at the Gaiety affords an indication that our theatrical managers and producers are ever on the qui vive for suitable people to help fill prospective casts, and that it is not much that they miss seeing. Mr. George Edwardes witnessed Mr. Lester's performance in the sketch The Scene-Shifter's Lament at the Palace, where the former gentleman was so impressed that he engaged Mr. Lester for the part of the Lost Policeman in the Gaiety production of The New Aladdin. An impression gained ground that Mr. Lester was originally a scene-shifter, and several newspapers alluded to him as the scene-shifter comedian. Such an idea, however, is quite erroneous, and it may be, therefore, of interest to relate how the material for the sketch was suggested to him by one of his own theatrical experiences. Mr. Lester was stage manager in a company under the control of Messrs. Foster and Clift. They were running a musical comedy called The Officers' Mess round the provinces. The speciality dancers taking part in the production complained that they had not sufficient time to change their dresses between the first and second dances, so Mr. Lester conceived the notion of going on himself, attired as a scene-shifter, and giving vent to his gagging propensities, and by so doing permitting the fair disciples of Terpsichore ample opportunities for completing their toilet and getting into other costumes. The "comic interlude," thus brought into being, developed to such an extent that a scene-shifter became the principal comedy personage in the piece.

Mr. Lester comes of an old theatrical family. His father, the late Alfred Leslie, was a comedian of the old school, and was the original Justice Hare in East Lynne. Both his mother and his grandmother were actresses, each bearing the name of Annie Ross. The subject of this brief sketch is only thirty years of age, and went on the stage when he was twenty. His first engagement was with a fit-up company touring in Ireland, and his salary was £1 a week. He progressed until he had a company of his own, which he designated the Costume Players, and with which he had stock seasons at such towns as Cardiff, producing Richelieu, Nell Gwyn, and The Three Musketeers, in all of which he took the leading parts. His subsequent experience was of a varied character.

A Restaurant Episode has caught on tremendously at the Palace, and bids fair to equal in popularity, if not to excel, The Scene-Shifter's Lament.

BIRMINGHAM THEATRICAL SPORTS.

Mr. Edward Foster, resident-manager of the Bordesley Palace, has forwarded us a copy of the balance-sheet relating to the Birmingham Theatrical Charity Sports of 1906. The apportionment of the moneys at the disposal of the committee has resulted in a very satisfactory distribution. The Music Hall Home Fund and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund benefit to the extent of £10 each, and not the least pleasing feature is the state of the fund for the endowment of a Theatrical and Music Hall Bed at the Children's Hospital. The commitee hope that the time is not far distant when the £1,000 required for this object will be realised. Mr. Edward Foster, much to his regret, has been compelled to abandon the secretarial work, owing to increased business calls, and Mr. P. D. Elbourne, resident-manager of the Hippodrome, Birmingham, has kindly consented to act. The balance-sheet is appended:—

THE LATE DICK MANSELL.

To recall my first meeting with Dick Mansell, writes Mr. T. P. O'Connor in a most interesting article in P.T.O., I have to go back to a big house in a little back street in the old Irish town of Athlone, the town where he and I were born; and there I can still recall him, I think, in petticoats, as he and his brother Bill were pupils at the infant school of Miss Carroll, my first teacher. His father was William Lauderdale Maitland, a Scotchman, and a member of the ancient Lauderdale family. Dick Mansell's mother was a Roberts—an Irishwoman of good family—belonging to the same stout race as produced Lord Roberts, and allied also to a family with a title, of whom one, Sir Randal Roberts, was not unknown in theatrical circles in the far-off seventies. When I first knew the family, Captain Maitland—as he was then called—was head of the Revenue Police Force, a body, as the name implies, which was mainly concerned in the detection of illicit stills, then a flourishing and widespread occupation in the rural districts of Ireland. The Maitlands occupied a good social position; they entertained largely, chiefly the officers of the garrison. Maitland, though a Scotchman, had, by the strange spell of Irish life, as has always been the case, become more Irish than the Irish themselves. Mrs. Maitland was a woman of great attractions: sang splendidly, talked well, was handsome, and gay, and insouciante. Tall, thin, alert, soldierly, pleasant, with just a trace of a Scotch accent, such was Captain Maitland as I remember him, an inveterate sportsman, and abounding in good nature, in great dreams, in multiform activities. The right-hand man, the warm friend, the devoted adherent of the House of Maitland, was a sergeant of the Revenue Police—Tierney was his name.

When, on a burning summer day in the year 1870, I found myself in London, the very first persons I thought of were Captain Maitland and Sergeant Tierney. Captain Maitland had some kind of factory in the remote region of Bermondsey; and he lived in a fine house in Thurloe-square—that comfortable and opulent square just opposite the Oratory in Brompton. Dick was but twenty-one, like myself, when he burst upon London with what was then the new, unknown, and dazzling entertainment known as comic opera. We have gone a long way since 1870, and comic opera is now an ancient institution; but Dick Mansell and his brother, in 1870, were daring pioneers. But neither the one nor the other was a business man—how could they have been, inheriting such temperaments?—and their projects, while artistic successes, were financial failures.

It would require some pages to tell of all the enterprises in which Dick Mansell was engaged. He had the St. James's Theatre, where he produced Vert-Vert, and got into a row with the Lord Chamberlain because of a certain wild décolleté dance which was a colourable imitation of the can-can; he emigrated then to the Globe, where he produced the well-known comic opera of Offenbach, called Les Brigands, in French, and Fal-sa-cappa, in Mansell's version; and where there burst upon the stage one of the most beautiful women ever seen upon it—Cornelie D'Anka—a Viennese. In the Globe Theatre the story was the same as in the Lyceum. Here also Mansell artistically succeeded and financially failed.

If poor Mansell did not die of hunger, it was not, I am sure, that he did not in those far-off days know almost the deepest depth of privation. He became a dramatic agent; and I remember going up to the little room on the third floor where he kept his office. Henry Hermann—afterwards associated with Henry Arthur Jones in the production of The Silver King—was his partner; the two between them had to eke out of almost empty pockets as much tobacco as made a cigarette. From London Mansell got to the provinces, to Manchester and to Liverpool, and he toured in Russia; and at one time, I believe, he was the head of a circus. There was nothing in the world of the show which he did not know and in which he was not some time or other engaged; and the life was nearly always the same—epochs of great prosperity succeeded by intervals of want of employment, impecuniosity, perhaps privation.

For some years before his death, Dick Mansell successfully collaborated with Mr Saunders at the Coronet Theatre in Notting Hill. He produced French pieces among others; he and all his brothers spoke French like natives. The partnership came to an end, and once more poor Mansell was the man without employment. He had a short engagement at the Coliseum in the piece Joseph and his Brethren. It was the last time he appeared before the public. I used to frequently see him standing at the corner of streets, with that look of expectancy for someone coming which is so familiar a sight in London, and which to the old Londoner speaks so eloquently. I had a painful idea that once more he had fallen on evil days, and perhaps that he wanted. But he was very proud, and nobody would know even if he were suffering; and I believe he had generous assistance from a brother who is the last or the second last of the five stalwart sons of what the House of Lauderdale Maitland once consisted. He still remained a handsome though an aged-looking man; very tall, with very fine regular features; a bushy head of hair and a low soft hat; in short, almost the very image of the man in Quaker Oats.

To me, with all the memories associated with him, the main and supreme fact about him was that he was an Irishman. For behind the aged figure and the showman hat, and all the wear and tear of that chequered life of his, I always saw the little boy in petticoats who went to school at Miss Carroll's; and the old and sad town with the lonely streets and the beautiful big broad Shannon, and childhood and its dreams, its hopes, and its tip-toe expectation of the great unknown, untried, fascinating world beyond.

AT the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Derby, the programme this week is headed by Miss Lilian Dundas and Co., in a dramatic interlude, entitled The Doom of Delilah, which is capably presented, and achieves great success. The Three Whirligigs appear to distinct advantage in song and dance, and are acorded quite an ovation. Another capital turn is that of Xley and Hamilton, instrumentalists, whose entertainment is thoroughly enjoyed. Hector and Sultan, comedy merchants, keep the house in roars of laughter, and the Orchids, vocal entertainers, have an extensive répertoire of songs and gags. T. E. Cliffe, comedian, scores well, and Tom Kelso and Co. add to the merriment with a sketch, The Silly Servant. The Bioscope continues to maintain its well-deserved popularity.

MARIEDL, the massive Tyrolese maiden now exhibiting at the Hippodrome, seems to be quite enjoying herself since she arrived in London. On Sunday last, in a procession of six motor-cars, she journeyed to the George Hotel, Crawley, where Mr. George Green had arranged a Gargantuan feast, not only for her, but for the whole party. In all, something like forty people sat down to luncheon. She was visited by the local clergy, medical men, and the swell people from the vicinity. Afterwards, a run was made to Brighton, where she took tea at the Chatfield Hotel. Here, owing to the police authorities objecting, much excitement was caused, and a tremendous crowd got round the hotel, much to the discomfort of this big lady. She did not desire to be interfered with, being a private individual, with no ulterior motive but to take her own pleasure without creating trouble for anybody.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

ART IN STAGE-MANAGEMENT.

A broad view of the responsibilities of the stage-manager was taken by Mr. Cairns James, himself an experienced disciple of the craft, who lectured to the members of the Amateur Players' Association in their bijou theatre at 92, Victoria-street, on Wednesday. In taking up such a subject as stage-management for which Miss Mouillot had put him down, said Mr. James, he found himself face to face with a very considerable problem. The duties of stage-manager, as they were aware, embraced a variety of pursuits and premised an absolute knowledge of the stage and its mechanical operations. That particular kind of knowledge there was only one method of acquiring, and that was by being actually connected with the working of a theatre. From the professional point of view, no one who was not absolutely au fait with all the business of the stage could really be called a stage-manager. A knowledge of the stage and of all the effects to be produced by the use of its appliances was imperative. To be stage-manager of a theatre like Drury Lane was a liberal education in itself. It meant that at one time or another he had under his control 150 people representative practically of every form of technical labour—mechanicians, electricians, engineers, and all the crafts connected with the ingenious appliances by which the marvellous effects of the stage were produced. The commander-in-chief of such a vast army would have, therefore, to be both a skilled engineer and electrician as well as a practical carpenter. The stage-manager was responsible for the smooth working of the scenes, and if anything went wrong it was upon him that the responsibility devolved. He had had the privilege of seeing the stage of Drury Lane, directed by his partner, Mr. Ernest D'Auban, in full working order, and all the various mechanics were under his control.

Nearly all the stage-managers of the big establishments, continued Mr. James, began as boys in the theatre, and it was by such means that they were able thoroughly to understand what was required in the actual working of the stage. No better training for the theatrical profession could be conceived than to be stage-manager at one of the large theatres, and it was an extraordinary thing that so many people had risen in the profession through a practical knowledge of stage-management. Nothing could be more perfect than the productions at His Majesty's, which would be impossible but for the great knowledge of the stage acquired by Mr. Tree in his younger days. One of the greatest stage-managers of our time was the late Sir Henry Irving, to whom the revolution of the stage—at any rate in the production of Shakespeare—was entirely due.

Digressing a little, Mr. James gave an amusing account of his experiences while touring with Savoy opera in America, and incidentally paid a tribute to the abilities of the late Mr. D'Oyly Carte and to Mrs. D'Oyly Carte. The duties of a stage-manager, he continued, involved archæological research, and that could not be acquired simply by reading. The stage-manager, too, besides being a thoroughly practical man, must also be an exceedingly artistic person. It was in that respect that Mr. Tree excelled. He had a genius for grouping of which the scene of Ulysses' return was a magnificent example. The lavish scenic productions of the present time had led the public to expect so much that more modest productions would stand no chance. His friend Mr. Butt, of the Palace Theatre, would go to the expense of £150 for a single scene which only played twenty minutes. In Les Merveilleuses, Mr. George Edwardes's charming production at Daly's, they would find equal liberality, and the schemes of colour carried out by Comelli and others in the ballets at the Empire and elsewhere were designed on a similarly stupendous scale. The stage manager must nevertheless be an economist, and in that respect Mr. James would recommend him to the new County Council.

What, then, were the qualifications of the stage-manager; or, the better way to put it, what were not the qualifications of a stage-manager? He must be a man of tact, and must always know what to say. He had never known an amateur company who had been satisfied with the parts allotted to them, and he had never been in a professional production where every artist was satisfied; indeed, it was very difficult to find a professional company where anyone was satisfied at all. It was the duty of the stage-manager to exercise the quality of tact, and to smooth the ruffled feelings of the artist with a grievance. The stage-manager, too, must have imagination and an intellectual grasp of things dramatic. Great impressions could be gained by such minute details as the dropping of a book, and they had seen in John Glayde's Honour, at the St. James's, the enormous effect of an arm stealing through the door for the purpose of shutting it. Without that arm the scene would be far less impressive, and it had an electrical effect, not only on the audience, but on the actors as well. That was a striking touch of intellectual stage-management.

The author, however, should not be forgotten. In many cases, though he might have ideas of what he would like, the author was sometimes incapable of putting them into practice. That was not the case with Mr. Pinero, than whom there had never been in the history of the stage a more perfect stage-manager. No one had a greater mastery of stage mechanism, and that was due to his having been an actor, which gave him a thorough knowledge of the mechanical appliances of the theatre. In illustration of Mr. Pinero's command of stage technique, Mr. James told his hearers that during a final rehearsal at a certain London theatre, one of the actors found that he could not get round to the stage in time. "O, yes, you can," said the famous dramatist; "try again." The actor tried and again failed. "Then," said Mr. Pinero, "your scenery must be out." The manager declared it was not so, but Mr. Pinero, taking a foot-rule out of his pocket, measured the scenery round, and found it 2ft. 6in. out of place. He had reduced his scheme to definite measurements, and the matter of a few inches in the arrangement of the scenery was an absolute essential in the success of the scene. That incident would serve to show what a power the stage-manager is to-day, and of what importance he is as regards the work of actors in the productions of the British stage.

The lecture was brightened by many amusing references bearing upon the subject, and was followed by an entertainment by the scholars of the School of Musical and Dramatic Art, New Oxford-street, of which Mr. James is principal. It began with a representation of The Little Wretch, taken from Anthony Hope's "Dolly Dialogues," and was ably acted by Miss Agnes Thornton and Mr. F. Aubrey Millward. Miss Thornton also recited effectively a clever monologue, and Mr. Millward, who was enthusiastically encored, displayed a well-trained baritone in a song by Hermann called "Three Comrades," the dramatic effects of which were brought out in cultivated style. Miss Ettie Critchley—a youthful George Edwardes scholar—daintily recited "Coming Out"; Master "Fuzzy" Sherwood told in a natural manner of a boy and a baby; and Mr. Blake Thornton and Miss Maggie Kirkbride also contributed to the programme. Mr. Harold Howell, R.C.M., played some difficult accompaniments with great executive ability.

MISS MARGARET MURCH, who is now rehearsing the part of Lashota in Mr. Reeves Smith's new production of The Last of His Race, has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke to play Helga on his autumn tour of The Prodigal Son.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Harry Lauder has settled to go to America, and will sail at the end of October next, opening with Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger on Nov. 4. This engagement of the Scotch comedian is at such a salary as to make us wonder how they make vaudeville pay across the streak; and our comic men are certainly reaping the benefit of the keen competition that is now raging between the combine of Keith, Proctor, and Percy Williams, and Klaw and Erlanger.

Mr. Lauder will take a holiday next week, and will go to Paris with his agent, Mr. George Foster, who will, in all probability, accompany him to America. Also sojourning in La Ville Lumière at the same time will be Mr. Harry Randall and Little Tich.

In a letter just to hand from Mr. Will Evans, that clever descendant of a famous family informs us that he has been told his success in New York is the biggest ever made by a single comedian. He speaks with unreserved praise of the splendid treatment he has received from the American people, and sends his kind regards to all London. The taste for English and Scotch comedy is evidently growing in the Empire city.

Mr. Alfred Butt has made elaborate arrangements for the "picturing" at the Palace Theatre of the Grand National, which was run yesterday. He has obtained sole and exclusive rights to photograph the race and its incidents, and an enormous staff—certainly the largest ever sent out of London on one picture—has been requisitioned. The entire course will be "in touch" with the various operators, and every phase of the race from start to finish will be shown on the screen on Saturday afternoon.

The Palace Theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity at both performances last Saturday, when Miss Vesta Tilley bade her farewell. In the evening the artiste was the recipient of a huge and tasteful basket of flowers, presented by the management as a mark of appreciation "to a real artist."

Mr. Harry Randall will produce at Easter his new horticultural song, entitled "The garden outside in; or, no more gardening out of the house for me!" which details how the Cockney enthusiast, exasperated by the vagaries of the British climate, transfers the entire garden, soil and all, indoors, and the surprisingly successful results thereof on each floor of his domicile. The song is by Edgar Bateman and the melody by the celebrated comedian himself.

Mr. Alfred Lester, of The Scene-Shifter's Lament fame, is now appearing at the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, at 9 o'clock, as the gloomy and reminiscent waiter in A Restaurant Episode. The sketch plays sixteen minutes, and at 9.40 the comedian is ready to get on his beat as "The Lost Policeman" in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety. Mr. Lester adds another name to the small but distinguished list of comedians who have appeared on the legitimate and lesser stages on the same evening in two different characters.

Mlle. Genee will be playing the heroine in the new Empire ballet—no less a personage than the daughter of Sir Roger de Coverley, of the days of good Queen Anne. In the first scene—a lawn meet in front of the gabled residence of Sir Roger—a marriage is arranged between that young lady and a loutish neighbour of the Tony Lumpkin breed. She, with the pretty waywardness that is always associated on the stage with patches and powder, has chosen for herself, and makes plain her preference for a gallant young officer. The romance of the ballet increases in the second scene, wherein from a practicable balcony and window there are various elopements in masks and dominoes. In the final tableau all the characters meet at Vauxhall Gardens. Mr. Wilhelm has excelled himself in the designing of the early eighteenth century costumes.

One of the novelties in the new production at Richmond Theatre on Monday will be a Japanese Wedding by Night. Mr. Michael King has spared no expense. All the company in Scene 1 wear dresses with a scheme of colour of various reds, and in Scene 2 the scheme of colour for the dresses is white and gold. This is an ambitious production for the halls, as everything is entirely new and is carried complete by the company.

The Tyrolese giantess, Mariedl, who is now appearing at the London Hippodrome, attended Mass at the Brompton Oratory on Wednesday morning, and afterwards paid a visit to the Victoria Hospital for Sick Children in Chelsea, where she left a quantity of fruit and flowers for the "Annie Znuz ward." One reason for Mariedl's visit was to see Mr. Henry Garrick's little son, who has been in there for some weeks. Another reason was that she desired to see what care was taken of the children. She was not permitted to see any of the children, as the secretary explained that they had had a couple of deaths, and she being of such tremendous size, although so kind and genial, might cause more excitement in the wards amongst the youngsters than would be beneficial to them.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅛; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. pd.) 1½, do. (10s. pd.) 1⅛; London Pavilion ordinary 4¾, do. preferred 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss Empire, 5, do. 5 per cent. preferred, 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅝; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5¼; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 9-16.

Venus, the late Lord Leighton's original model, is finishing a three months' starring engagement on the London syndicate halls, and commences a three months' tour under the management of Austin Millais, going to Manchester for eight weeks with Messrs. Broadhead.

The Mysterious Howards, who are now appearing with such success at the Palace Theatre, on March 15 gave a private performance at the Trocadero, before Sir Edward Ward, Mr. Haldane, Secretary of State for War, and their Committee. The Howard Brothers were afterwards presented with two very handsome presents in appreciation of their most extraordinary performance.

Miss Belle Elmore has returned to the stage after two years' absence, and is being well booked up.

A complimentary benefit was given at the Empress, Brixton, on Thursday night, to Mr. George Burgess, for many years manager of the Royal, and a most attractive programme was put forth by the manager, Mr. Nelson Francis; indeed, it was quite a night with the stars. Among those who appeared were:—Marie Lloyd, Harry Lauder, Victoria Monks, Daisy James, Little Mandie Francis, Little Ida Thompson, O'Gorman Brothers, Ernest Ball and company in The Night Alarm, Kurkamp, the Mysterious Mr. C., Walter Munroe, Chas. Whittle, Tom M. Hickton and company, Dan Whitley, Joe O'Gorman, Alec Hurley, Tom Leamore, Wal Pink and Joe Elvin in the racing sketch The Jockey, Cissy Paris, Emilie Herve and Charles Phillips, May Henderson, the Eight Dutch Girls, Duncan and Godfrey, Ella Lane, and Grais' baboons. Miss Dorothy Royal and Miss Violet Hutt sold programmes; and the committee included Mr. C V. Page and Mr. Bob Hutt.

The "White City," Old Trafford, Manchester, which is to open on Whit Monday, is being constructed with all speed. Several hundred men are giving the gardens such a turning over that former visitors will wonder where they are.

The Empire, Oldham, will, on Monday next, be opened by Messrs. Farrell and Miller. The former gentleman is a well-known comedian (Farrell and Willmot), and the latter the licensee of the Roscommon, Liverpool.

Mr. Edwin W. Smith, who for fourteen years was connected with the Parthenon, Liverpool, has become licensee and manager of the Haymarket in that city. The former licensee of the Haymarket, Mr. J. S. Childs, died about a week ago.

A rumour has got abroad in Liverpool that the Lyric Theatre has been purchased by a large syndicate. There is no foundation for such a statement, and we have the highest authority for announcing that Mr. Fred Willmot will for several years continue to arrange the bookings for that popular house.

Under the title of the Theatre Moderne, the old-established Parthenon in Great Charlotte-street, Liverpool, which once belonged to the Stoll family, was re-opened at the end of last week by Mr. Gunnar Gooes, well known as the proprietor of several cinematographic shows. The hall has been thoroughly renovated, and looks cosy, while the pictures shown are very beautiful and of a popular kind. Public patronage has, so far, been satisfactory.

It will be learned with regret by his friends in the profession that Mr. John H. Cooke, the well-known circus proprietor, has had recently to undergo an operation for cataract of the right eye. The operation has been highly successful, and we hope that the benefit derived from it may be permanent, and that Mr. Cooke may have many years of unimpaired health to devote to his work.

The United County Theatres, Ltd., of which Mr. Alfred Moul is managing-director, are pressing on their project to build a hippodrome at Devonport. Plans prepared by the well-known architect, Mr. Bertie Crewe, have already been lodged with the Devonport Borough Surveyor. The company possesses two valuable properties in the neighbourhood, viz., the Palace Theatre, Plymouth, and the Grand Theatre, Stonehouse, between Plymouth and Devonport.

On the authority of the dramatic editor of the Yorkshire Evening Post, a statement has been made that Mr. John Hart's theatres at Hull and Sheffield have been acquired as variety theatres by Mr. Walter de Frece. The local management are reticent upon the subject in the absence of Mr. John Hart, though they go so far as to question the statement, inasmuch as the bookings for the present season have long been made. Mr. Hart has not, however, contradicted the rumour, which is taken by many playgoers to suggest its correctness.

The Barnsley Empire Palace, which is pioneered by Mr. Will Smythson, manager of the Theatre Royal, Merthyr, and the Royal Clarence Theatre, Pontypridd, will open, so we are informed, on August Bank Holiday. The new Empire will have a frontage of 74ft. in Eldon-street, and extend backward 136ft. The main doors will be surmounted by an imposing central tower 40ft. high, while the façade of brick and stone is to be of a massive character. There will be accommodation for three shops, and a sliding roof for warm weather. The seating capacity is to be for 2,000.

The variety stage seems to have quite a fascination for Blackpool amateurs. One more succumbed to its charms on Monday, Mr. Sam Barker, of Cookson-street, entering into partnership with Miss Florence Ellis, a Blackpool young lady, who has been on tour some time now. Mr. Barker, it will be remembered, made quite a hit as the Chinaman in The Geisha, as produced by the Blackpool Lyric Amateurs, and, a few weeks ago, was the popular Barry in A Country Girl. The two commenced their enterprise on Monday at the Hippodrome, Rochdale, in a sketch, in which Miss Ellis sings to the accompaniment of Mr. Barker, who is "Buttons," on the 'cello, on which instrument he is a skilled player.

The transference of the date of the Birmingham Theatrical Charity Sports to the summer months has proved a great success, as the attendance of the public testified, and this year it is proposed to hold them (subject to the approval of the Aston Villa Football Club) on Whit-Tuesday, May 21. Mr. Edward Foster, the hardworking and courteous hon. secretary, has had to relinquish that office, owing to increased business calls in connection with his duties as resident-manager at the Bordesley Palace; and Mr. P. D. Elbourne, resident-manager of the Hippodrome, Birmingham, has kindly consented to act.

Mr. W. Ainsworth, who is severing his connection with the Hippodrome, Stockton, has been there for sixteen months. Previous to this engagement he was for five years manager of the Oxford, Middlesbrough. A benefit was given to him in the Exchange Hall, Stockton, on Thursday, the 14th. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity. The artists who appeared included Messrs. A. Riley, W. Colclough, J. Wetherell, E. Winpenny, E. Rouben, W. Penketh, A. Peake, and A. Greenewood (ventriloquist), Master Greenfield, Foo Shu (conjuror), Miss J. Thompson, and some of the principal artistes from the Grand, Stockton, and the Empire and Oxford, Middlesbrough. At the close the beneficiare suitably thanked the artists for their assistance and the public for their support.

Miss Florrie Gallimore and Miss Josie Delaine have been retained for another week at the Hippodrome, Hull, by Mr. Alfred Graham owing to their great success.

Mr. Geo. Bernard, the popular vocal actor, has been engaged by Mr. O. Maus Dayton as general manager for his No. 2 Vaudeville Company. The tour commences at Cheltenham on Easter Monday.

The funeral took place at the Northampton General Cemetery on Friday, the 15th inst., amid many manifestations of sympathy and respect, of Mr. Josiah Clarke, of the New York Tavern, Horsemarket, father of Mr. Leoni Clarke (the Cat King), of the Two Brewers, Abington-street. The mourners were:—Mrs. Clarke (widow), Mr. Leoni Clarke (son), Mrs. J. Hollowell (daughter), Mr. Charles Hollowell (grandson), Mrs. Gibson (daughter), Mr. Alfred Gibson (grandson), Mr. Harry Hollowell (grandson), Mrs. Bland (grand-daughter), Miss Chrissie (grand-daughter), Mr. Joe Gibson (grandson), Mrs. J. Weatherburn (grand-daughter), Mr. J. Weatherburn, Mrs. Clarke (daughter-in-law), Mr. J. Hollowell (son-in-law), Mrs. Will Hollowell (niece), Mr. W. Gibson (son-in-law), and Mr. Bell and Mr. S. Adams (personal friends). A deputation was also present from the Northampton Licensed Trades' Association. Floral tributes were received from, amongst others, the following:—Mrs. Clarke (widow), Mr. and Mrs. Leoni Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hollowell, Mr. and Mrs. Wills, professional friends of Mr. Leoni Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bolshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Hine, Mr. and Mrs. Jones and a friend, Mr. and Mrs. Penfold (Wolverton), and Gladys Douglas.

The statement that Mr. Walter Gibbons has purchased the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, is entirely without foundation.

The many friends of Mr. Fred Reeves (of Pacey and Reeves) will be glad to know that he has quite recovered, and will be back at business on Monday next. He has been recuperating at Brighton.

Miss Constance Moxon, who was unfortunately compelled to abandon temporarily her London engagements, is now at Eastbourne, where she is thoroughly enjoying the complete rest and quiet of that delightful South Coast resort. She grows stronger every day, and hopes to resume her professional work in a week or so.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lashwood (Miss Lottie Williams) on Monday will celebrate the ninth anniversary of their wedding day. Mrs. Lashwood has happily quite recovered from a long and serious illness, and is now at her home in Wales.

Mr. George Leyton, who has been recuperating at Blackpool, has succeeded in raising the sum of £27 for the Berlin disaster fund by the sale of his songs, and has received from the Mayor of Harwich a warm acknowledgment of his energy in the work of charity. He is putting on a new song next week at the Lyric, Liverpool. It is entitled "You can't do without a girl." Well, of course!

The friends of Mr. Eugene Stratton are feeling some anxiety concerning his health, and we hear with regret that he was unable to complete his contract with Messrs. Hyman in South Africa in consequence of indisposition, from which it is hoped he will have completely recovered during his voyage home. He arrives in England to-day.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has struck oil with the Hippodrome at King's Lynn. On Monday over 1,100 people paid for admission, and on Tuesday the attendance again totalled four figures. Really wonderful audiences for so small a town!

Mrs. John Lawson opens next Monday at the Empire, Croydon, with The Devil's Sunday. This clever lady returns to town for Easter Monday, and will be the main attraction at the Holborn Empire. The wonderful contrast shown between Fay Faber, the frivolling "smart" wife of The Devil's Sunday, and the "drab" in A Bride for a Living, is conceived by Mrs. Lawson with great skill, and both impersonations are instinct with power and subtlety.

Kearney P. Speedy, the world's highest diver, will, on Monday next, dive from a fixed ladder from a height forty feet above the Hippodrome into the arena lake 130 feet below—a veritable leap from the sky, entirely eclipsing similar performances by Fuller and William Finney at the now defunct Aquarium. Speedy, in his tights, ready for the famous leap, weighs 212lbs.

We regret to record the death of Miss Bonnie Goodwin, the well-known American actress, who passed away at her residence, 150, Lambeth-road, on Tuesday, the 19th. Some years since she was a partner in the firm of Guyer and Goodwin, and her home was at Providence, Rhode Island. She came over from America in 1901, and made her first appearance in London at the Apollo soon after that theatre, in Shaftesbury-avenue, was opened by Mr. Henry Lowenfeld with The Belle of Bohemia. Her piccaninny act was introduced into this rather weak American importation, and was found to be a novel song and dance turn. Its success as an incidental led to its transference to the variety stage. The deceased lady was married to Mr. Sam Lyons, who has received many letters of condolence in his bereavement.

The deceased lady will be buried by the Necropolis Company at Brookwood on Monday, the funeral train leaving the private Necropolis station at 11.50 a.m. A preliminary service will be held in Lambeth Parish Church at 10 o'clock.

The London Coliseum is announced for sale at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, on Thursday, April 25, at two o'clock, by Farebrother, Ellis, Breach, Gaisworthy, and Co., 29, Fleet-street, E.C. This most palatial theatre of varieties occupies a compact and unusually extensive site of about three-quarters of an acre, with frontages of 184ft. to the important thoroughfares of St. Martin's-lane and Bedfordbury, and 395ft. to May's-buildings and Taylor's-buildings. The property, which will be sold with possession on completion of purchase, is admirably suited for a national opera-house. It is held on lease for a term of 94 years unexpired, at a moderate ground-rent, with the benefit of freehold reversion to a portion of the building. Adjoining the Coliseum are several important freehold and leasehold business premises, producing about £1,500 per annum.

Mlle. Bresina, a vivacious young Parisienne who has lately been the talk of the boulevards, makes her London début at the Alhambra on Monday. The new chanteuse invests her songs with much freshness, and possesses many gifts of person and manner. From Easter Monday the bill will be further strengthened by the advent of the Four Golondrinas (including Mlle. Anita Manuela), who sing to their own accompaniments played on newly-invented and original instruments; and by M. de Biere, a modern and startling illusionist.

Application was made at Old-street on Monday on behalf of the management of the Foresters' for licences to allow four children under the age of fourteen years to appear in the week's programme there. The children—two boys and two girls—were in court, and were said to be over thirteen, and were accompanied by a woman and a person who, coming forward as having the care and guardianship of the children, gave his name as William Stanley Parker. The magistrate (Mr. Cluer) said his objection to these applications was that they were not made by the father or mother of the child, and refused the licence.

The many friends of Mme. Lizett (Mrs. Edward Ransley), of cycle sensation fame, will regret to hear of her death after a lingering illness. For the last three years she has been afflicted with paralysis, which she bore with great fortitude. The burial will take place on Tuesday next at 2.30 in the family grave at St. Mary's, Ilford.

The 504th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the association on Wednesday. There were present Messrs. Fred W. Millis (vice-president) (in the chair), Charles Coborn, Charles Pastor, Jeff. Vendome, Pat Carey, Harry Blake, A. Borelli, Joe O'Gorman, (chairman of committee), W. H. Clemart (president), Jack Collinson, Douglas White (treasurer), and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the correspondence was read. Various complaints and requests for funds were considered. The weekly financial statement was next read. This showed forty-six new members, and a cash total of £46 13s. In accordance with a resolution passed at the general meeting, the committee authorised the addition of £150 to the reserve fund. Mr. Arthur Rigby wrote, apologising for his non-attendance at the committee meetings owing to his being out of town. Mr. T. C. Callaghan, of the Marquis of Lorne, Reading, was appointed agent in that town. The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

The production of The Unwritten Law, John Lawson's latest episode, has had to be postponed for a few weeks owing to the fact that an actress suitable for the leading part cannot be found. Mr. Lawson, however, hopes to overcome this difficulty and produce the work shortly. To fill up the gap he will produce Sally in Our Alley at the Camberwell Palace on Easter Monday.

Miss Omega, the well-known "Queen of the Wire," also of the Onatis Troupe of Algerian Jugglers, was quietly married on Wednesday morning to Prof. Dewar. A little later the happy couple left for Liverpool, where they embarked on the Teutonic for New York, where the bridegroom has several engagements to fulfil. The bride was the recipient of several very handsome presents, including a diamond marquise ring and an enamel and diamond studded watch from the bridegroom.

Miss Marian Scott has produced with success a new song, by R. P. Weston and Maurice Scott, called "Tick, tock"—not a new title, by the way. Mr. Albert Chevalier produced "Tick, tock" at the Tivoli in the 'nineties, when he appeared as an aged and reflective philosopher, whose musings in song were seemingly inspired by the glamour of romance surrounding an old grandfather's clock, which was a conspicuous object of the furniture. The song was one of his least successful efforts.

In his reply to Mr. Lea in the House of Commons to a question concerning the Dangerous Performances Bill, the Home Secretary, Mr. Herbert Gladstone said: "A Bill was introduced by the Government last year with this purpose, but did not succeed in passing. I see no prospect of legislation on the subject this Session."

One of the features of the entertainment given at the Empire, Dublin, during last week, was the singing of Ryder Slone, the actor-vocalist, and his song about "Sing-Sing" was a great success. The chorus of the song was taken up and sung right through without a break by a small boy in the gallery, and the loud applause which broke forth at its conclusion testified to the fact that the boy had a pleasing voice.

Feeling an interest in the lad, Mr. Slone and Mr. Ed. E. Forde, who was also appearing at the Empire, saw the boy after the performance, and found him "in a deplorable condition." His wretched state excited their commiseration, and they decided to do all in their power to relieve his distress. Their first plan was to provide him with a complete outfit, and obtain for him a position as errand boy in a city firm. However, Mr. Jameson, manager of the Curragh branch of Messrs. MacCabe, the well-known fishmongers, offered to receive the boy into his own home and provide for him as though he were his own son. This offer was naturally accepted gratefully by Messrs. Slone and Forde, who departed from the city with the consciousness of a good deed done.

All kinds of attractions are required for a large exhibition on the Continent from May to September, 1907. Liberal terms and special low rates are quoted for intended exhibitors, for the charge of admission being only half a franc ensures thousands being present daily. Sundays included.

Chas. M. Daly's latest success, I Must Have It, is starring on the Easter programme at the Palace, Hammersmith. Mr. Daly is producing another new one with the title Oh, What a Glorious Time! Both shows are fast booking in town and country. Mr. Daly is contemplating a visit to the States, and with I Must Have It, will tour the establishments of the new combine, the Orpheum, Proctor's, Keith's, and Hammerstein's circuit.

The comedy sketch, My Wife's Husband, by G. D. Lynch, will be presented by C. Douglas Cox and Co. at Collins's, Islington. The sketch has already passed the ordeal of a trial trip at the Middlesex. Mr. G. D. Lynch is the author of The Lady Lawyer, which had a long run at the Garrick under Mr. George Edwardes's management.

On Whit Monday two musical farces, entitled respectively Typewritten and Money-hunting, will be produced simultaneously at Westcliff, Clacton, and Herne Bay. Both are the work of Charles Osborne, who had a narrow squeak on Tuesday evening whilst on his way to Deptford to do a "turn" for an old professional who has fallen on evil times. The motor 'bus on which Osborne was riding, in company with another writer, lurched, and was within the veriest ace of turning right over.

Mr. Geo. Robey's success in the Theatre Royal pantomime, The Queen of Hearts, at Birmingham, culminated on Friday, last week, in a well-deserved benefit, when the popular comedian experienced the gratification which is born of a full house, plus the congratulations and presentations of his associates and friends. Mr. Wilkie Bard scored among the visitors who appeared, while Mr. Robey as the Queen surpassed himself. Replicas of Mr. and Mrs. Robey were distributed among the audience, the twain appearing in a clever trifle, Business and Pleasure Combined. Mr. Robey received a handsome ivory-handle, gold-mounted walking stick from the working staff, Mrs. Robey was presented with a silver purse, and the chorus made an interesting gift for their little ones. Mr. Lester Collingwood's gift was a gold locket fashioned as a miniature football, with the bénéficiaire's photo in his well-known character of the Mayor of Muddleton enamelled thereon, inscribed "To Mr. Robey from Lester Collingwood." The Queen of Hearts finished its three months' reign last Saturday, having certainly proved one of the most gorgeous, humorous, and best pantomimes ever produced in Birmingham.

Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, music publishers, of London and New York, brought an action on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Joyce, to restrain the defendants, Messrs. Oliver Brothers, printers and publishers, at Darlington, from infringing the plaintiffs' copyright in fourteen songs by printing and selling them in the streets of the town on sheets of paper without the music. The defendants said that there was no copyright in the words, but only in the music, and therefore there was no infringement. His lordship granted an injunction, and directed the usual inquiry as to damages.

The first regular meeting of the Chelsea Lodge of Freemasons after the adjournment was held on Friday, the 15th, at the Town Hall, Chelsea, under the presidency of Mr. Albert Le Fre, Mr. J. W. Mathews, I.P.M., Serpentello, S.W., Harry Coutts, J.W., Rev. H. Heriot Hill (chaplain), G. Dyball, S.D., D. White, J.D., F. Clay, D.C., H. Walton, I.G., Lester Steward, W. S. Lyon (treasurer), C. J. Doughty (secretary), and a good muster of the Brethren and visitors. After the minutes of the last regular and emergency meeting had been read and confirmed, the W.M. initiated Messrs. Wingate Dix, Fred Keeton, and Andie Caine into the mysteries of the art, and further advanced Mr. S. Goodman, both ceremonies being performed in a most impressive manner; letters and telegrams were read from members of the Lodge from all parts of the kingdom, expressing their regret at being prevented from attending. At the conclusion of the business the Brethren adjourned to the Old Six Bells Hotel for tea. The next regular meeting, and last of present session, will be held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday, April 19.

Will the collectors for the Music Hall Home Fund kindly forward their cards to the hon. treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, so that the amounts may be duly acknowledged?

In response to his appeal on behalf of the widow of the late Sam De Voy, Mr. Will Oliver has received the following sums:—From a dear old pro., Ralph Tignell, £1; from Alfred Saker, who "has learnt to know that a stitch in time saves nine," 10s.; and from the Avrigneys, 2s. 6d. Subscriptions, which are much needed for this most deserving case, should be sent to Mr. Will Oliver, Spot Lodge, Brixton-road, S.W.

Miss Jennie Johns, at the conclusion of her new success, "Bertie," at the Hippodrome, Liverpool, on Tuesday, was so persistently recalled that the programme was practically stopped. The Liverpool Press is unanimous in its praise of this delightful artist. On Monday she goes to the Pavilion, Newcastle.

No doubt all friends will sympathise with Miss Molteno when they hear (after her efforts in producing the big scena Dolly and a Coach, which has cost her a considerable sum of money and anxiety) that yesterday the whole of the costumes used in the tableau, including some jewellery in a portmanteau, were stolen out of the dressing-room. The matter was at once placed in the hands of the police, but nothing up to now has been heard. Miss Molteno had all her work cut out to replace things for the show at night.

It has been decided that the next production at the London Hippodrome shall be renamed. Instead of The Hurricane as was originally intended, it has been found that The Typhoon is more applicable to the environment of the story. The action commences at a port of call in the China Seas, and continues on the high seas, where disaster meets a big passenger vessel, which is engulfed in the vortex of a typhoon. Mr. Frank Parker, who has been responsible for so many sensations at the London Hippodrome, has found it necessary to largely reconstruct his mechanical arrangements. He has had to amplify the rain effects at a cost of something like £1200. In addition to this, he has invented a new system of lightning effects, which will be produced by the use of his patent radium streak; and not only will the public get a most graphic and thrilling idea of a typhoon, but they will also have a realistic representation of the distress occasioned by the wreck of a huge vessel.

Included in the cast are Mr. Cecil Morton York, who has been in every Hippodrome production since the opening in 1900. Mr. York plays Dick Sandford, skipper of the Edward the Seventh. Mr. Bert Gilbert's foot will be on his native heath again, so to speak, and his name will be Macgregor—this time a Scotch engineer. Mr. J. Windham Guise also returns to the scene of his former triumphs in the character of Ling Foo, a Chinese priest. Newcomers will include Mr. Harrison Brockbank, who may be called upon to sing as the hero; and Mr. J. G. Grahame, who recently presented The Yellow Fang at the halls, and who will play a wealthy Mandarin. Miss Mary Allestree, a charming actress who has been seen before at the Hippodrome, has been chosen to play the heroine, Kate Vincent, an English girl. Miss Allestree, it will be remembered, supported Mr. Charles Warner in a shortened version of Drink at the Coliseum in the spring of 1906.

Protean artists will have to look to their laurels, as there is a new competitor in the field, in the person of Mr. Lennox Barry, the well-known music-hall manager. Whilst witnessing the second performance at the Bordesley Palace, on Tuesday evening last, Mr. Barry was informed that Mr. Frank Heather, one of the principal members of Mr. Frank Bernard's Hello! company, had been taken suddenly ill, and was unable to play. Upon hearing of the difficulty Mr. Barry immediately proffered his services to fill the vacancy, and in less than ten minutes was made up and on the stage, playing as a light comedy dude.

This, however, did not complete Mr. Barry's curious experience, for, on getting to the wings, he was informed by the stage manager that another member of the company, who had accompanied Mr. Heather home, had not yet returned. Without waiting for any further explanations, Mr. Barry immediately rushed up to the dressing-room, and, with lightning speed, quickly altered his make-up and attire, and in five minutes time was on the stage transformed into a burly prize-fighter, in which part he acquitted himself very creditably. Mr. Barry is not likely to forget his unique experience, for on Thursday evening he was presented by Mr. Frank Bernard with a handsome diamond and opal scarf-pin as a souvenir of his début as a "protean" artist.

The Terriers' dinner and ball provides one of the most attractive professional functions of the year, and its repetition on Sunday last at the Horns, Kennington, drew a record gathering, numbering nearly two hundred. President Jesse Sparrow occupied the chair, being ably assisted by Mr. G. P. R. Broyen, and at 9.30 p.m. dinner was served. Ample justice was done to a sumptuous feast. Telegrams were received and read out from Terriers Harry Wright, F. W. Millis, Walter Norman, and Charlie Stelling. After the loyal and other toasts of the evening had been given, the witching hour was heralded by the celebrated orchestra under the direction of Leon Bassett, under whose direction some lively and charming music was played, the ball being kept rolling till 5 a.m.

Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. E. Leathley, Mr. G. Burgess and party, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hyams and sister, Mr. McDowall, S. H. Kent, Alf. Clapp, Charlie Pratt, Picton, Sam Stockton and party, E. C. Webb and party, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bawn (My Fancy), Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lester, Mr. Jean Kohl's party, Spot, J. F. Lidle, Charlie Cornish, Douglas Stuart, J. J. Churchill, H. Maisner, Joseph Ucelli, Mr. Straus, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Conlin, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cooke, Leon and Will Bassett and party, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Aarons and party, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Baker, Miss Baker, Harry Lester, Mrs. Lester, Miss Lester, James Stewart, Arthur Hampel, Alice Maydew, Henri Caryman, Bob Hutt and party, Mr. McLarte, F. Betzler, Leonard Gardener, George Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson, Tom Packer and lady, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas White, Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson (Peggy Pryde), her son Tony and party, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hertz, Mr and Mrs. F. Kohler, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hoyle, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Alexander and party, Charlie Sarina Best, Mrs. Dan Leno and son, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gage, Charlie Gage, Ray Maskell, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Green, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larola, Mr. and Mrs. Deane Tribune, Mr. and Mrs. John Hart, Mr. Mark Ringham, Miss Ringham, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rees, Alf Hillier, G. H. Kempton, Edward Johnson, Frank Gee, &c.

Messrs. E. C. Webb and M. McDowall ably officiated as M.C.'s, whilst Messrs. Fred Neiman, Tom Packer, Bob Hutt, George Pearson, Mark Ringham, and Harry Conlin acted as stewards. The catering was again in the expert hands of Mr. Jean Kohl, the highly satisfactory arrangements being completely carried out by the secretary Harry Lester, who found his best reward in a record success.

SONGS. WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

JUDGING from the enormous orders from all quarters of America for Miss Vesta Victoria's new song, "Poor John!" it is surpassing in popularity her famous "Waiting at the church" which swept that country last year. Cartoons founded on the ditty have appeared in many prominent papers, and Mr. Fred Day, the manager of the New York branch of Messrs. Francis and Day, reports that for the same length of time "Poor John!" has outsold the previous number two to one.

THE New York Music Trades a few days since commented as follows on the subject of the authorship of Miss Victoria's song:—"The Evening Telegram, a new York daily which devotes considerable space to theatrical and musical matters, claiming to be an authority on both subjects, printed in a recent issue the following:—'Bert Cooper, who wrote "Waiting at the church" and "Poor John!" for Miss Vesta Victoria, is not only her song writer, but her manager. Through his efforts Miss Victoria will extend her stay in this country for ten additional weeks at the expiration of her present engagement, which ends March 10.' It would be interesting to learn what Leigh and Pether, the clever English song writers, who contributed so largely to Miss Victoria's success in this country, would say if the above item should be seen by them."

MISS MARIE LLOYD accepted at sight a few days since a smart song called "Och, now! Go on!" by Scott Mackenzie, who is, with Fred W. Leigh, responsible for Mr. Alec Hurley's "I ain't nobody in particular." Mr. Arthur Reece will shortly produce a song by Mr. Mackenzie named "Isn't it funny how things occur?"

MR. HERBERT SHELLEY and Mr. Ernest Bucalossi have scored a decided hit with their new march song, "Mona May." Mr. Dennis Drew is singing it nightly on the Stoll tour with exceptional success.

MISS MARGARET COOPER has scored a marked success with Harry Dacre's song "The fisherman's daughter; or, mending nets for father" at the Palace Theatre. On the occasion of its first performance, so delighted were the audience with the song and its singer that they broke into a storm of applause at the end of the second verse, and at the conclusion greeted Miss Cooper with prolonged and vociferous demands for an encore.

SINCE Miss Cooper first introduced this dainty and refined trifle (which has a peculiarly catchy refrain) quite a number of high-class concert vocalists—soprano, mezzo, contralto, tenor, and baritone—have included it in their répertoires. It forms a delightful contrast to the more serious songs of the concert platform. Harry Dacre informs us that he is willing to grant a few free permits to music hall artists, and that band-parts are ready.

MISS HETTIE KING intends shortly to produce a new song, entitled "Good Old Saturday Afternoon," written and composed by Cecil Lidden, which has just been published in their popular Sixpenny Edition by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

OTHER songs shortly to be placed on the market by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co. are "Sleighbells," by Messrs. Lawrance, Mellor, and Gifford, and "I'd like to call you sweetheart," both of which will be produced immediately.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., now have their assortment of songs ready for the summer season, and all seaside and al fresco artists should not miss the opportunity of obtaining some really smart and catchy numbers from this enterprising firm.

THAT great Gaelic success in "The New Aladdin" at the Gaiety Theatre, the Scotch duet so cleverly sung by Mr. Edmund Payne and Miss G. Aylwin, and entitled "In the Hielans," is written and composed by Gerald Grafton, and is being issued by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MR. FELIX MCGLENNON, the renowned songwriter, for many years known as "The Starmaker," to whose pen the English-speaking race is indebted for such ditties as "Comrades" and "The Ship I Love," has once again entered the arena, and Mr. David Day's firm will shortly issue two songs by him, entitled "She Lives in the Isle of Man" and "Acushla Dear."

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE has acquired a comedy chorus song, written and composed by Henry F. Greenfield, entitled "What's in a name if the girl's all right?" The popular lady has made a great hit with "You ask me why I love you" from the same pen.

MISS FANNY ROBINA, with "Coming back home again," and Miss Florrie Cooper, with a new song, entitled "That's why I want to fly," both published by Mr. David Day, are making a big success.

AMONGST many others, Miss Rose Harvey and Mr. Harry Bancroft are going great guns in Mills and Scott's ubiquitous song, "Sailing in my balloon," which promises to be one of the biggest seaside numbers for the forthcoming season.

MISS LILIAN LEA, who has been charming our North Country cousins, returns to town on Monday, when she will produce a pretty new scena at the Canterbury, entitled "Primrose," by Mills and Scott. The Star Company have this number in the press.

MISS FLORRIE FORDE and Miss Ella Retford will feature Mills and Scott's new comedy chorus song, "Has Anyone Seen a German Band?" which will shortly be issued in the Star Company's series of Sixpenny Editions.

"THE WEDDING OF JACK AND JILL" is the title of a new ditty by Ballard MacDonald and Donovan Meher. Miss Ella Retford will produce this novelty at the Oxford on Easter Monday. It is included in the Star Company's catalogue.

ONE of the greatest successes ever achieved by a new song attended the production early this week at the Ealing Hippodrome of Messrs. Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule's number, "When, when, when is your ship a-coming home?" by charming Miss Lena Verdi, the catchy refrain of which was immediately chorussed by the entire audience. This song forms one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes."

MR. ERNIE MAYNE has a big winner in "I mustn't," written and composed by Harry Wincott, and also possesses promising new numbers by J. P. Long, Fred Allsopp, and other authors and composers.

MR. FRANK COYLE produced for the first time last week at Bradford a new original song, entitled "Poor Mother Eve!" by the late Albert Hall. It was a gigantic success, and should be a good number for pantomime boys.

THE Terriers will hold their Good Friday dinner and social at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E. Immediate application for tickets to the secretary, Harry Lester, is necessary.

DEATH OF ADA ALEXANDRA.

The announcement in our columns a fortnight ago that Miss Ada Alexandra was lying at her residence, 30, Carlton-mansions, Maida Vale, N.W., in the last stages of that dread disease cancer, must have prepared our readers for the news of her death, which mercifully released her from her sufferings at midnight on Friday, the 15th inst., her devoted husband and her sister (Mrs. G. M. Polini) having remained in continuous attendance for seven days and nights. Only members of the family were invited to the funeral, which took place on Tuesday at New Willesden Cemetery, but amongst the many beautiful wreaths from private friends and relatives, one magnificent tribute bore the inscription, "With deepest sympathy for their dear old friend.—Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hurley."

Miss Alexandra had been ailing for some time past, and had resided in Brighton for some months, in the hope of recruiting her health; but, on the advice of Dr. Bland Sutton, she was brought to London last month, and it was then found that her case was quite hopeless. Her wonderful vitality was the source of great surprise to her physicians.

Born at Hounslow, Ada Alexandra was at an early age taken to Canada. Her theatrical career dates back to 1872, when, as a young girl, she returned from Canada, and immediately bounded into public favour as a German dialect comedienne. Associated with the late James Taylor, she was seen to great advantage in the drama, Simon; or, A Dutch Girl's Trials. Returning to Canada and America, she toured those countries with enormous success, and eventually came back to the Old Country, and produced one of her great successes, The Mason, in which the cheery Dutch Girl scored heavily as the vigorous German wife, her breezy manner and her inimitable accent marking her, as the New York Herald declared, "the foremost German dialect actress of the day."

After a number of years she again visited America, under the auspices of Messrs. Hyde and Behman, and eventually joined Mr. Edward E. Rice's forces. As showing Mr. Rice's far-sightedness in theatrical matters, he, having seen Miss Alexandra, made up his mind that she should play the important rôle of the German servant in the comedy-drama, The Globe-Trotter. Mr. de Lange, the author, had already fixed upon a well-known American star to play the part; but Mr. Rice declared, "My money only backs the show if Ada Alexandra plays the Dutch girl." His ripe judgment was proved by the fact that, although the company included Maurice Barrymore, William Hoey (of Evans and Hoey), Mrs. Dion Boucicault, Aubrey Boucicault, and other theatrical celebrities, she, as the veteran critic Stephen Fiske declared, made "the hit of the piece." Despite handsome offers from Mr. Rice and other American managers to remain, Miss Alexandra once more came back to England, and had another seven years' phenomenal run with her sketch, The Mason.

THE LICENSING MUDDLE.

Cases which were watched with interest by music hall artists were heard before Judge Willis at Woolwich on Wednesday.

In the first, Mr. Samuel Barnard, proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, was sued by Ernest and Hilda Dillon, of Upper Sutton-street, Aston, Birmingham, for £15, loss alleged to have been suffered through defendant failing to carry out a contract engaging the Dillons to appear and give a performance at his theatre. Plaintiffs are music hall gymnasts, known as the "Bouncing Dillons," or "Graceful Hilda and Bouncing Willie."

Plaintiff stated that he received confirmation of a contract on Nov. 18 from Mr. Barnard. At the end of December he received, through his agent, a letter requesting him to alter the date of the performance from February, 1907, to January, 1908, as the London County Council had refused a music hall licence for that year to the theatre Plaintiff wrote expressing his willingness to comply, but pointed out that he would be at a loss by so doing. He did not receive a reply to his letter, so he wrote saying that if he did not receive an answer the dates must stand. He went to the theatre to fulfil his contract, but was told that the licence would not allow it. There were other variety turns at the theatre that week. Plaintiff lost a week's employment.

The defence was that the London County Council only granted a theatre licence, consequently a gymnastic performance would not be allowed.

His Honour gave judgment for £15 for the plaintiff, with costs.

Mr. Barnard was also sued by the Gladenbecks, gymnasts, for £18 for breach of a contract to give two performances nightly at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, and one at the Theatre of Varieties, Greenwich. Defendant offered £8 for a show at the latter theatre, but it was declined. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for £18 and costs.

The Royal Villions, trick cyclists, sued Mr. Barnard for £15. It was stated that plaintiffs were offered a contract at Colchester for £15 and £2 10s. towards the railway fares, but they declined, as their price for the provinces was £20 a week. Judgment was given for the amount claimed, with costs.

The Three Missouris, acrobats, received judgment for £20 and costs against Mr. Barnard. They contracted to give two shows nightly at Woolwich and one at Greenwich, and were offered £8 to appear at the latter place, but declined to accept it.

MR. TOM HEARN, the laziest juggler on earth, sailed for America on the Kaiser Wilhelm Gros on Tuesday, and opens on the Reith circuit. Before starting he handed to the hon. treasurer the sum of £2 17s. collected for the Music Hall Home Fund.

SAVED FROM THE SUEVIC.

A CHAT WITH MISS JENNIE MAYNARD.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"It made you proud to be British. There was not a bit of fuss; everybody forgot himself or herself to look after each other. The doctor said he never saw anything like the calmness of the ladies. I could not speak too loudly in praise of the officers, stewards, men, and everybody."

Thus Miss Maynard, who was one of the passengers rescued in the early hours of Monday morning from the ill-fated White Star liner Suevic, stranded on the terrible Stag Rocks off the Lizard. The lady certainly looked particularly well, and gave evidence of being in good spirits when, two days later, the writer interviewed her on the subject of her very trying experiences.

"I might begin by explaining," said Miss Maynard, "that I went out to Australia two years ago for the sake of my health. I gave no shows there whatever, although I had several offers of engagements. We left Sydney on Jan. 26, and had a magnificent passage all the way. Last Sunday night I went to bed as usual, sleeping amidships, and was suddenly awakened by an awful crash, followed by the sound caused by the boat crunching on the rocks. The doctor came round and told us to get dressed as soon as possible, and we were not long in obeying the injunction. After that the ladies were taken to the library—the men downstairs. There was not the least panic. After an interval of an hour and a half we were told to get into the boats—the women and children first. Captain Jones and the officers superintended the loading up of the passengers, two of the ship's boats going out first. I was in the first of these, and we knocked about in the open sea until the lifeboat took us in tow. When we got as near the shore as we could go the fishermen waded through the water and carried us to the lifeboat sheds at the Lizard. The first thing they did was to pour brandy down our throats. It was some time before we could be taken on to the village, where we were the guests of the White Star Company, who treated us extremely well and gave us railway passes to wherever we wanted to go.

"I believe the reason why everything passed off so smoothly was that we all took our 'tone' from the captain. He came round and said: 'Don't be in the least afraid; I'll get you ashore all right.' And he did, although I believe he did not think he would be able to do so. The engineer acted very promptly as soon as he realised what had happened. He fairly slid down the steps and closed the iron doors, and had the steam shut off. During the voyage the 400 passengers got on splendidly, and I was really glad to see them all alive after the grounding of the vessel.

"I have lost all my theatrical stuff and heaps of things I had made, for I have been two years preparing for the music hall stage. My money, too, lies in the Suevic in my handbag. You see, I had intended doing recitations, sketches, and songs on my return to this country, and my baggage included a fine jewelled dress for Juliet in the balcony scene. Then I had other costly dresses. I do hope it will be possible for me to get them."

Fortunately we were able to reassure Miss Maynard on this point, for, at the time of our interview, circumstances pointed to the recovery of the passengers' luggage.

Miss Maynard, who, by the way, is a native of

MISS JENNIE MAYNARD.

New South Wales, has appeared in many notable parts on the legitimate stage. She made a great success in the leading feminine rôle in La Dame Aux Camélias, notably in South Africa, and she has been scarcely less successful as Marie Antoinette (in the play of that name), as Mary Stuart (another historical play), as Rosalind in As You Like It, Lady Macbeth, and has been seen in the principal rôles in the late Frank Harvey's pieces, including The World Against Her, The Land of Living, A Ring of Iron, and Judge Not, as well as in the American farcical drama The Strategist. She has portrayed almost every Shakespearean character that a woman could portray, and she was for some years actively associated with Mr. W. J. Holloway's Shakespearean company. She retains, too, some interesting reminiscences of "back block" concerts in the wilds of Australia, and her idea now is to present monologue dialect sketches, both comic and tragic, on the music hall boards.

"The theatrical conditions in Sydney have never been so prosperous as now," she went on to say in the course of the interview; "but affairs are not so bright in Melbourne. But I don't see why they should not be. The Princess's Theatre in Melbourne is quite as fine and well-appointed an establishment as any I have seen elsewhere, not even excluding the West End of London. Yet the Brough-Fleming company could scarcely get a hearing, in spite of the fact that they presented such excellent plays as Quality Street, The Admirable Crichton, and The Walls of Jericho. There is no complaint heard as to the vaudeville side of the profession. Mr. Harry Rickards is doing very well, and is taking over the very best people he can get."

It might be mentioned that the other theatrical and variety people who were saved from the wreck of the Suevic were Mr. Harry Lumley Woolf, actor, and the Karnos, jugglers.

MR. ALBERT BULMER, the acting-manager of the Olympia, Liverpool, has been promoted by Mr. Oswald Stoll to an important position. Mr. Alan W. Young, the manager of Moss' Empires, Ltd., for Liverpool, Manchester, and district, having been transferred to London, Mr. Bulmer undertakes his Liverpool duties. The selection is a good one, for Mr. Bulmer is a man of tact as well as one of experience, having for years been secretary to the Carl Rosa Opera Company in the good old days, and also manager of the New Brighton Tower Company just prior to joining the Olympia a few years ago.

MISS MARGARET ASHTON.

After an absence of eight months from the vaudeville stage—an absence due to ill-health caused by the strain of hard work entailed by a practically unbroken series of engagements since the summer of 1903—the charming American cantatrice, whose winning personality and dramatic talents, allied with the natural brilliancy of a refined vocalism, have secured for her a widespread popularity with British audiences, made her reappearance this week at the Argyle Theatre, Birkenhead, preparatory to fulfilling a three months' tour with the Moss Empires.

Since her last appearance in England, the charming and accomplished soprano has spent many weeks in her distant home in Colorado, recuperating her strength amid the picturesque and rural scenes of Western civilisation. Acting upon medical advice, she relinquished her winter engagements upon the Continent, which included such centres as Leipzig, Vienna, and Copenhagen, as well as numerous engagements in England.

Miss Ashton—of whom a charming portrait, recently taken by Messrs. Ellis and Walery, appears above—has not been idle during her enforced retirement, but has been quietly pursuing her studies in London, and will appear on the concert platform during the next season.

THE CANTERBURY.

America is the land of inventions, and the Canterbury is the home of novelty. It is quite fitting, therefore, that Mr. Fred Miller, the popular and energetic manager, should be the first to secure a new sketch in which the art of housebreaking as conducted on the most up-to-date principles is shown. Professional cracksmen might learn a lot from The Burglars of New York, which was introduced on Monday by the Piccads, a troupe of American pantomimists, but to the large audience that crowded the Canterbury it meant a quarter of an hour's continuous amusement. The methods adopted by the operators in burgling a house are startling in the extreme. After scaling the garden wall, a trio of burglars, one of whom is a nigger, frighten the porter away with unearthly yells, and then proceed to strip the house of its contents, sliding huge articles of furniture from the first-floor window by means of a plank reaching to the ground. The appearance of three policemen interrupt the proceedings, and unlimited fun is made out of the attempts of the officers to mount the inclined plank. At length they gain admittance through the street door, and a wild chase from windows to roof ensues, the fugitives and their pursuers literally throwing themselves out of the window and bouncing from the plank on to the ground. Finally the roof of the house falls in with a crash, and the housebreakers disappear over the wall with the constables in hot pursuit. Great excitement was caused throughout the scena at the startling leaps from the window and the hazardous mounting to the roof. Comic effects are created by the appearance of the policemen, and the antics of a stout officer who bounces about like a rubber ball are irresistibly droll.

A new series of pictures are admirably shown on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. The series begins with the portrayal of La Patrie, the first steerable balloon used in the French Navy. The ascent of the immense airship and its operations in space are depicted with startling effect, and the final descent and conveyance to dock is watched with great interest. Another engrossing series is called "Hooligans of the West," in which the capture of a white man by Indians and his subsequent rescue are conspicuous, the fight with the redskins and the fording of rivers on horseback being vividly portrayed. A state of perfection is reached in the pictures, which are displayed with admirable clearness.

First among the varieties of the bill is Mr. Harry Lauder, whose return to the Canterbury after his highly successful pantomime season is hailed with delight. Three songs are exacted from the popular Scotch comedian, who keeps his audience constantly alive with merriment. Mr. John Marx upholds his claim to be the "Herculean marvel" by a series of bar-bell and weight-lifting feats of almost incredible difficulty. The eccentricities of Rezene and Robini are as effective as ever in the production of mirth; Miss Daisy Jerome has a distinct hit in "The little pat of butter on the floor"; and Mr. Wilson Hallett's imitations of children are loudly acclaimed. The ventriloquial items submitted by Mr. David Poole are greatly enjoyed; Mr. Will English, a real coon, gets many recalls for his amusingly grotesque imitations; and other contributions to the strong programme consist of Mr. Jack Camp, the embodiment of quaintness; Mr. J. P. Ling, comedian; the Four Radium Girls, speciality dancers; and Miss Lottie Govell and Miss Gladys Huxley, both comediennes of merit. Under the leadership of Mr. Archie Howells the orchestra does excellent service.

OWING to their success in the pantomime at Christmas, Miss Maggie Bowman and Mr. Tom J. Morton have been re-engaged to appear as Goody Two Shoes and Smple Simon at the Theatre Royal, Belfast, Easter's production. They are enabled to do this through the kindness of Mr. Oswald Stoll and Mr. Frank Macnaghten in transferring certain dates for them. At the conclusion of the run of the pantomime they play their successful comedy duo, She Loved a Policeman, at Mr. Stoll's suburban halls.

MUSIC HALL ARBITRATION.

MR. ASKWITH AND STAGE-HANDS.

The claims of the National Association of Theatrical Employees for the London District were submitted to the Arbitrator on Monday, and have been printed in the shorthand notes of the proceedings. The particulars appear below. A statement on the case of the employees was submitted on Thursday morning by William Johnson, the general secretary, and it was arranged for an informal conference with the Arbitrator and representatives of both parties to take place on Friday (yesterday) with the view of coming to an agreement on as many points as possible. It may be that evidence will be submitted on Monday should it suit the convenience of the parties and the artists, whose case was opened on Thursday morning.

Among the leading managers present were Messrs. Oswald Stoll, J. de Frece, Thomas Barrasford, Henry Tozer, W. S. Gover, and Joseph Davis. The artists were represented by Mr. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. Wal Pink, Mr. W. H. Clemart, and counsel.

Proposed minimum rates and maximum hours for the working staff in music halls within the Metropolitan area—that is to say, within twenty miles of Charing Cross:—

1. HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS (STAGE).—The normal working hours (daytime) to be between 9 o'clock a.m. and 5 o'clock p.m. (allowing an hour for dinner) on five days of the week, Saturdays from 9 o'clock to 1 o'clock. Evening hours, from the commencement of the performance to its conclusion. All work done after the evening performance, or on Sundays, to be paid for at double-time rates. Wages for master carpenters, acting as stage-managers, £3 per week; for chief electricians, £2 10s. per week; for property masters, £2 10s. per week.

2. CARPENTERS (Bench Hands).—The rate of pay to be 10½d. per hour, or the London rate. Normal hours of labour, except when starting on a fresh job, to commence at 7 o'clock a.m., working to 5 o'clock p.m. (allowing half an hour for breakfast and one hour for dinner) on five days of the week, finishing Saturday at 1 o'clock p.m. Carpenters to work 8½ hours before charging overtime. Overtime rates to be as follows: On week days from 5 o'clock to 8 o'clock p.m., time and half; from 8 o'clock p.m. to 7 o'clock a.m. next morning, double time. After 1 o'clock Saturdays, on Sundays, Christmas Day, and Good Friday, double time to be paid. Two hours grinding money to be allowed on finish of a job after working 48 hours. Carpenters to give two hours' notice on leaving a job after working 48 hours.

3. DAYMEN.—Assistants to heads of departments and carpenters, employed by the day, for the week, or on the regular staff in the stage, flies, property, electrician's, limelight, or gas departments, to be paid a minimum of 24s. per week, exclusive of overtime or "show" money. The normal hours for each day, or week, to be between the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. and 5 o'clock p.m. (allowing one hour for dinner) on five days of the week, and from 9 o'clock to 1 o'clock on Saturdays. Overtime rates (on work apart from the actual working of a performance): From 5 o'clock p.m. to 8 o'clock p.m., time and half; from 8 o'clock p.m. to 7 o'clock a.m. next morning, double time. From Saturday, 1 o'clock, on Sundays, Good Fridays, Christmas Day, double time. Overtime for any less period than one and a half hours to be reckoned as a quarter of a day. Electrician's Department: Wire men to be paid 9½d. per hour, when engaged to do such work. Leading men in all departments to be paid 1s. per day above the minimum rate herein specified. Extra men, brass cleaners, porters, hall keepers, baggagemen, and such other men employed to do work in the hall, on the stage, or at front of the house, to be paid not less than 7d. per hour between the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. and 5 o'clock p.m. (Saturday, 1 o'clock). A period of time less than four hours to be reckoned as four hours, any period of time over four hours to be reckoned as a day. Overtime rates to be as specified above.

4. NIGHTMEN (including all those engaged to work during a performance in a stage department—stage, flies, properties, lights). Performances: Hours of labour, from the raising of the curtain to the conclusion of the performance and clearing the stage after the last item on the programme. Duties to be the setting and "striking" of the scenery and the operation (manipulation) of the lights used during the performance. Rates of pay: In one-show-a-night houses, 2s. per performance; in two-shows-a-night houses, 2s. 6d. per night and 2s. per matinée, not exceeding three hours in duration. A special performance exceeding the usual duration of a matinée, or evening performance in one-show-a-night houses, to be paid extra. Rehearsals: Between the hours of 7 o'clock a.m. and 12 o'clock (midnight), 2s. for three hours or any portion thereof; between the hours of midnight (12 o'clock) and 7 o'clock a.m., and on Sundays, Good Fridays, Christmas Day, 2s. for one hour and half or any portion thereof. All men engaged for a rehearsal to charge from the time of "the call."

5. All men not reinstated, or given similar positions to those vacated during the dispute, by the interim award, to be reinstated or given similar employment.

6. All workmen covered by the terms of the award shall be or become members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, if otherwise eligible to do so, under the rules of that Association.

Sergeant Allen .....MR. JOHN W. GATES
P.C. Muir .....MR. CYRIL A. BENT

Mr. "Wynne Penwyn"—a name which hides the identity of a gentleman associated with the management of a London theatre—tells an intensely tragical story in the episode, A Link in the Chain. Dr. Daneson has taken advantage of a girl, Gertrude Vernon, presumably under an offer of marriage. He has, however, no intention of leading her to the altar, for he is now engaged to a wealthy woman who will be able to redeem his shattered fortunes. Gertrude, however, is anxious to meet him for the last time—she is anxious to show her betrayer that she has no further desire for life by ending it. So, seated in a corner of the Broad Walk in Kensington Gardens, she awaits, with anxious face, the appearance of the doctor. Noticing her forlorn looks and aspect of dejectedness, a detective (Henry Waring) stops to speak to the girl. He and her father had been old friends. Could he not be of service to her now? Will she come and stay with him? She declines his assistance, and he, for the moment, leaves her, promising not to lose sight of her. With the eventual arrival of Dr. Daneson there is a scene in which, after telling her that he cannot marry her, as he is in great need of money, the girl shoots herself. Detective Waring, who immediately makes known his presence, sternly condemns the doctor for his conduct, and points out the possible consequences, upon which Daneson uses the weapon upon himself with fatal results. Miss Blanche Goodhall acts with much feeling, sincerity, and pathos as Gertrude Vernon, and she is supported in good style by Mr. Henry Watson as the doctor and Mr. Henry Doughty as the detective.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

News from Yorkshire.

Harry Ashington, with his marionette theatre, is just finishing a capital season at Stanley Lane Ends, near Wakefield, and with him on the same ground are Messrs. Bassett and Blackburn, with fair-ground varieties, stalls, Emmas, &c.

At Batley, for private business, are W. H. Marshall, with motor-cars; Proctor, with highfliers; Blake, with swings and Emma sheets; and Messrs. Holdsworth, Mitchell, and Vanner, with varieties.

At Rothwell are Messrs. Church and Bottomley, with roundabouts, steam yachts, and big boats; Miller, with shooting concerns and varieties; and "Freddy," with Emma sheets.

At Normanton are Charles Marshall, Burton, Wallett, and Walker, with fair-ground varieties.

W. Steward is at Wakefield for private business, and Sador's Wonderland show paid the cathedral town a visit a few days ago.

Fair Abolished.

The Home Secretary has granted the petition of the local authorities for the abolition of Weston Green Fair, held at Thames Ditton on Whitsun Monday. We are informed that it was a fair of very small importance, and one of its chief drawbacks was that there was no local interest, because there was no toll paid the ground was free, and it was "first come, first served." The probability is that under private venture, and on private land, with an able showman to organise the fair and control the letting of the ground, Weston Green Fair may be vastly improved.

Llangollen Fair.

The amusements at this fair were provided vided by P. Collins, with Wheeling-the-whirl machine, Jumping-horse set, and the Eddystone Lighthouse helter-skelter; Charles Farrell, with Coliseum of animated photography, steam yachts, and aërial flight; Winchester ranges, throwing games, and variety stalls by Messrs. Turner, Fossett, Walker, Lewis, and Shaw. The stormy wind much interfered with business at this fair.

Corwen Fair.

Maintained by the local district caterer, Mr. Charles Farrell, who provided a capital array of novelties, including cinematograph show, galloping horses, swings, shooting galleries, rifle ranges, and throwing games. With Mr. Farrell were Messrs. Wright, with fine art gallery, rifle saloon, and bottle-shooter; Fossett, with rifle range and bottle battery; and Turner, with similar concerns.

Clitheroe Fair.

Messrs. Relph and Pedley provided the principal attraction of this famous Lancashire fair. Their splendid cinematograph theatre was the big show; their grand new motor-car machine and the razzle-dazzle were great draws. The other shows were Hayden's second sight and occult temple, and C. Relph's up-to-date peep-show. The other machines were by Messrs. Taylor with steam horses, John Starkie with gem horses and swings, and J. Smith with highfliers. The rifle ranges, throwing games, and all the fun of the fair by Messrs. Broughton, Starkie, Taylor, Shorrocks, Lorenzo, Gallagher, Butterworth, Ingham, Redfern, Stanley, and Freer.

Portable Theatre Blown Down.

The county town of Monmouth was on Saturday night thrown into a state of excitement when at nine o'clock it became known that Mr. Harry Cowall's theatre had been blown down during a performance. The wildest rumours were circulated, and people whose friends had gone to the play hastened to the meadow near the Old Dixton Gate, where the theatre was pitched, and to their amazement and alarm they found the building a heap of burning wood and débris. The theatre was licensed to hold 200 people, and was inspected on Saturday morning by an official of the Monmouthshire County Council, and no apprehensions as to its safety had been entertained. Fortunately there were some indications of the coming collapse, and many members of the audience had got clear of the building before the final crash. The first intimation of danger was a rocking of the whole building soon after the play, The Gipsy Queen, started. Then one of the side galleries, which was raised a few feet from the ground, gave way and precipitated the occupants on to the floor. The proprietor, who had previously requested the audience to leave, as he apprehended danger from the rising storm, repeated the request with emphasis, undertaking to return the admission tickets and make them available for another performance. The audience as a body did not share Mr. Cowall's apprehensions, and wanted to see the end of the play. A few, however, left the building and received the tickets according to the proprietor's promise. Ten minutes later a terrific gust of wind blew the building over to an angle of 30 degrees, and it remained stationary for two or three minutes, fortunately for the audience. Mr. Cowell was seen by a Press representative on Sunday. The proprietor of the theatre paid high tribute to his company, who, with himself, he declared, were the last to leave the building. His wife was slightly injured in the disaster. Mr. Cowall brought his theatre from Abergavenny on Wednesday. There was a crowded audience on Saturday night, the performance being the first of the visit to Monmouth. Even before the play commenced Mr. Cowall suggested that the audience should leave, there being such a high wind blowing. But the audience were intent on the coming play, and remained seated. Mrs. Evesham, of Cinderhill-street, Monmouth, who, with her baby, was saved by crouching near a charcoal stove, said she acted on the impulse of the moment, and did not at the time notice the stove. Mr. Cox, of Birmingham, who was badly trampled upon, said he did not complain. It was a fair struggle to get out. A sad fatality was the death of a member of the audience named Thomas Fuller, whose body was found beneath the wreckage of the theatre.

Storm on the Fairground, Blackpool.

The waves pitched right over the promenade, even flooding neighbouring streets. The fairground suffered severely. The sea washed out eight stalls, partly smashed the switchback, and broke down the concrete wall and floor containing the lake for the water chute. A new sea circus was considerably damaged, expensive motors and dynamos being flooded. Men worked all night on the scenic railway structure to prevent it falling on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway.

Glasgow Zoo.

An interesting event took place on Friday last at the Scottish Zoo, Glasgow, one of the female pumas having given birth to three fine sturdy babies. These are said to be the first baby pumas born in the Zoo since its establishment now almost ten years ago. It may be added that a splendid specimen of the native wild cat has been secured for the collection of animals at the Zoo.

The New Bioscope Co. gave a performance of the Passion Play at the Middlesex on Saturday. The films proved very interesting and won warm approbation.

Subscriptions to Showmen's Guild, 1907:—Andrew Purchase £1 1s., W. Steward 5s., per the Rev. T. Horne. H. Knowles 5s., D. Moore 5s., E. Stevenson 5s., Mrs. R. Stevenson 5s., Mr. W. Smith 5s., per Mr. W. Wilmot.

The London Gazette of March 15 contains the official notice of a proposal to abolish Norton Heath Fair. The petition to the Home Secretary is promised by the Ongar Rural District Council, and the Home Secretary requests that all parties who may wish to oppose the abolition shall communicate with him before April 15, upon which date he intends to consider the matter. It is for the showmen who travel the county of Essex to rouse themselves and to render all assistance they can to the Showmen's Guild in order that the fair may be saved.

Mr. H. Banford, the "second Dan Leno," comedian attached to Mr. Ball's "Lyceum," West Ealing, has collected, on behalf of the Ealing Cottage Hospital, the sum of £3 3s. 9d. by the sale of the picture postcards displaying his portrait in character. Mr. Banford will take a "benefit" at the Lyceum next Friday. The Mayor, we are informed, has consented to take the chair at an entertainment to be given at the Lyceum, West Ealing, in aid of the funds of the Ealing Philanthropic Institution.

Mr. Ball has had a most successful season at West Ealing, and has won many friends by his splendid enterprise in providing popular amusements for the people and his generous support of local charities.

Pontardawe (Wales) had for its entertainers Wadbrooke with cinematograph theatre, H. Studt and Son with gondola set and switchback, and Messrs. North and Son, Booth, and others with fairground varieties.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

Will Mr. Arthur Dashwood send in his address for the next few days? We will then send him the particular copy of "The Era" he has written for.

W. B. (Hounslow). — Many thanks for your interesting letter with its many useful suggestions. The matters you have advised as worthy of consideration were fully talked out by the committee of the Showmen's Guild this week, and it was determined to keep a vigilant watch, and to take action at the first opportunity.

J. D. (Poste Restante, Paris).—We sincerely trust that you are now through your immediate difficulties. We shall be glad to hear from you from any of the Continental fairs.

Fred Karno's company is at the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Derby, this week with Saturday to Monday. Mr. Rolando Martin, the indefatigable impersonator of the bridegroom, John Willie Jaggs, easily secures premier honours. Miss Amy Rogerson presents a clever depiction of the bride; and the part of her sister is vivaciously filled by Miss Daisy Stoke. Mr. V. H. Crawford, as the precocious John Willie Jaggs, jun., is in every way successful; and Mr. J. Fletch is delightfully droll as Spinks, a waiter. Mr. J. W. Bradbury is a commendable father-in-law, and Mr. Dick Harcourt is capital as "best man." One of the best vocal efforts comes from Mr. C. Herbert Summers, who plays as Violet Blake's lover. All the other parts are admirably sustained.

Espinosa, the eminent teacher of dancing, has at last decided to open a permanent academy in town. This should prove a boon to lovers of true dancing. It is at 116a, King's-road, Chelsea.

SHOW PROPERTY BURNT IN RAILWAY TRANSIT.

IMPORTANT TO SHOWMEN.

At the Aylesbury County Court, before his Honour Judge Howland Roberts, on Wednesday, March 13, the case was heard of Alfred Ball, travelling showman, of Ealing, v. London and North-Western Railway Company. This was a claim for £75 damage to a cinematograph show during transit of same from Aylesbury to Oxford.

Plaintiff was represented by Mr. G. Whyteman Powers, barrister (instructed by Mr. Watson Wright, solicitor to the Showmen's and Vandwellers' Protection Association), and Mr. F. L. Lambert, solicitor, from the Euston office, appeared for the defence.

Counsel for the plaintiff briefly stated the leading facts to his Honour, stating that the claim was for £75 for damage by fire to the front part of a cinematograph show during transit from Aylesbury to Oxford. The goods were all right when they left Aylesbury, but were damaged during transit to Oxford. The front of the cinematograph van, which was very elaborate, was damaged by fire and completely spoiled. In order to get his goods from the custody of the defendant company he paid the carriage under protest. He set up the cinematograph at St. Giles's Fair, but its unfortunate condition militated very much against the attendance of the public, and thus there was a loss to plaintiff. He had consulted an expert in regard to the damage, who said the car could not be restored under £75, which was the amount of the claim.

Mr. Alfred Ball, travelling showman, of West Ealing, said he was the owner of two vans containing a cinematograph show. The fronts were carved and the panels filled in with oil paintings. He saw the vans put on the South-Eastern Railway at Stroud, with the intention of coming to Aylesbury, prior to St. Giles's Fair. At Dartford he had a breakdown with some of his other cars, and telegraphed to the stationmaster at Aylesbury to book the things on to Oxford, as he could not get to Aylesbury. When he saw the cars on Saturday on the L. and N.W.R. Co.'s line at Oxford, he found the carved work and oil paintings had been destroyed by fire. The estimate to restore the work was £75, and that was submitted by the cheapest man, one wanting £100. Before he drew his goods out from the railway he paid the carriage. He paid it under protest, as he wanted to get his goods out. He had to set up his show with the front burnt. He signed no contract with the L. and N.W. Railway, but signed at Stroud for the goods to come to Aylesbury. Before this happened he had no knowledge that the L. and N.W. Railway Co. had two rates, one at owner's risk and the other exempting the owner. He had since seen the stationmaster at Aylesbury, and believed he said he thought the goods were all right when they left Aylesbury. The goods arrived at Oxford on Saturday, Sept. 1, and the stationmaster at Oxford told him the train was stopped at Bletchley, where they put the fire out. There were four sections burnt. The stationmaster said he thought the fire was caused by the sparks from the engine.

Cross-examined: He owned other vans, and was in the habit of travelling by rail. He had paid many hundreds of pounds for carriage, and on all railways he paid 6d. per mile for carriage. He had no knowledge that that was owner's risk rate. He never knew that there was a rate of 7½d.—company's risk rate. It was the usual practice of show people to travel on the 6d. rate. The South-Eastern made him pay before his goods started, and he did not complain of having to pay the L. and N.W. before receiving his goods. He signed a document at Stroud, but did not know that it was a document saying that the goods would be conveyed at a cheaper rate at owner's risk. He saw the goods loaded up at Stroud on Thursday, Aug. 30, and intended opening the show at Aylesbury on Aug. 31. He was only complaining of the destruction of the front. There was no covering put over the van, but he expected the railway company to put tarpaulin over the trucks. His opinion in the matter was that if the South-Eastern had covered the trucks the fire would not have occurred. On account of the breakdown, he abandoned the Aylesbury show and went on to Oxford. The new paintings were done by Smith, of Peckham, and the carving by Anderson, of Bristol. The three pictures that were burnt would cost about £50.

Re-examined: He had no knowledge that the L. and N.W. had two rates until after this occurrence. Two months after he was charged 6d. per mile and 25 per cent. extra. He had no knowledge as to what the 6d. per mile represented. He had been paid claims for damage by the South-Eastern. He was not at Stroud when the trucks actually left, and did not know whether they had a tarpaulin or not. In addition to the paintings, there was the carving and gilding, which was done up the year before.

His Honour intimated to Mr. Lambert that he could not see how he could rely upon a special contract as there was no signed contract.

Mr. Lambert intimated that he was really relying on the contract with the South-Eastern, arguing that that controlled the journey from Aylesbury to Oxford.

Mr. Thomas Robert Simmonds, of 12, Ladysmith-avenue, West Ham, pianist, in the employ of Mr. Ball, said he had travelled from Aylesbury to Oxford by the Great Western Railway, and paid a fare of 2s. 4d., which represented a distance of twenty-eight miles. He came to Aylesbury on Aug. 31, and made enquiries as to the goods, and was told they were all right. He then went on to Oxford. He saw the goods when they arrived, and saw they had been burnt. The truck was close to the engine, not further off than one coach. There was no tarpaulin on the truck. He was told they had been burnt on the journey.

Mr. John Robert Anderson, of Bristol, wood-carver and designer, said his speciality was the decoration of show fronts. He examined these goods of Mr. Ball's, and found they were practically destroyed. He estimated it would cost £75 to restore them.

Mr. Lambert said the only point he relied on was that the goods were carried under the contract with the South-Eastern Railway Co. Plaintiff had started on a journey for the purpose of coming to Aylesbury, but, in consequence of a breakdown, this arrangement was altered. He argued that the goods having arrived at 7.15 a.m. on Aug. 31, and the telegram was received at 2 p.m., directing another destination, it was, therefore, a continuing journey, as plaintiff had no one at Aylesbury to whom they might be delivered. He could not dispute the amount claimed if the company were held to be responsible.

Mr. Reginald Wyatt, booking clerk at Stroud to the South-Eastern Railway Co., said he witnessed plaintiff's signature for his van. He paid 6d. per mile for carriage, which was owner's risk rate, the other rate being 25 per cent. in excess. He had booked goods for Mr. Ball on several occasions.

Cross-examined: He had on five occasions booked goods for Mr. Ball from Stroud Station. He did not tell Mr. Ball there were two rates. The contract was sent to the L. and N.W. on Nov. 17.

Mr. Fred Randell White, booking clerk at Aylesbury, said the van arrived by the 7.57 a.m. train on Aug. 31. On receipt of the telegram the truck was sent on to Oxford. He knew Mr. Ball well, and he had always sent at owner's risk and signed the contract. He heard Mr. Ball say in November he knew it was taken at owner's risk rate, and he was surprised to hear him say he did not know there were two rates.

Cross-examined: He saw the truck on Aug. 31, but did not notice anything amiss with it. He did not know anything as to the age of the engine that took the goods. The engine that took them from Aylesbury only journeyed as far as Cheddington. He was not aware there had been a number of fires between Aylesbury and Oxford.

Mr. William Chadwick, stationmaster at Aylesbury, said he had dealt with Mr. Ball in regard to traffic on several occasions. He remembered Mr. Ball admitting in his office that he was aware the goods were taken at owner's risk rate. He also suggested, in regard to the claim, that they were willing to give and take.

Cross-examined: The fare to Oxford was 2s. 10d. by the L. and N.W. Railway. He was not aware as to the fare charged by the G.W.R.

Mr. Powers submitted that the effect of his telegram was to terminate the contract with the South-Eastern. If, as had been suggested, it was a continuance of the contract then he was suing the wrong company, and ought to have claimed from the South-Eastern. He argued there had been wilful misconduct on the part of the company in not covering the truck, and also in placing it so near the tender of the engine.

His Honour said he must take time to consider this case, and would give his decision at the April Court.

MITCHAM FAIR.

A conference of leading London showmen to discuss the question of Mitcham Fair was held on Wednesday this week at the Star and Garter Hotel, Islington. Among the showmen present and taking part in the discussion were Messrs. W. Biddall, Swales Forrest, J. Manders, Alf Ball, R. Clasper, W. Wilson, F. Turner, J. Manning, Fred Gray, George Beach, T. Knighton, and George Sanders. The meeting was convened by the Rev. T. Horne, acting for the Showmen's Guild, and its main object was to place before Metropolitan showmen the very complicated legal aspects of the dispute between the Mitcham Conservators and the showmen, which culminated in Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson being cited in the High Court to answer a charge of trespass on the lands controlled by the Conservators.

Mr. Horne opened the proceedings by reading counsel's opinion obtained by the defendants (Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson), and that mainly induced them to accept the injunction of the Court not to commit the technical offence of trespass on the common lands controlled by the Conservators of Mitcham. The point of the counsel's opinion of interest to Mitcham is set out in the following terms:—"Is there, then, any obligation on the owner of a franchise to hold a fair, or can he discontinue it at will? There is no case which directly answers this question, but it may be inferred from 24 Victoria, cap. 12, 'Abolition of Fairs, 1871,' and the general trend of decisions dealing with fairs, that the owner of a franchise has no absolute right to cease holding a fair and thereby prevent traders attending on the customary days. The point, however, is not free from doubt. But the present (Mitcham) case is complicated by the position of the plaintiffs, who are constituted Conservators by Act of Parliament, and have power under the Act of 1891, sections 38 and 40, to extinguish the right of holding a fair."

The sections of the Act of Parliament referred to (the Metropolitan Commons, Mitcham Supplemental Act, 1891), were then read. Section 38 provides that "the Lords of the said Manor of Biggin v. Tamworth claim the right of holding a fair on Upper Green," and that the promoters of the Bill recognise the rights of the Lords of the Manor. Section 40 confers on the Conservators powers of management, improvement, and control, as provided for in former clauses of the Act, and for such purposes the power of restricting, diminishing, or extinguishing such rights or any of them whenever it shall appear to the Conservators that the continuance of such rights will interfere with the control, preservation, or improvement of the Commons by the Conservators, or with any of the purposes of this scheme, upon payment by the Conservators of compensation to the bodies or persons severally interested in such rights.

The amount, if any, to be paid by the Conservators to such bodies or persons as and for compensation in respect of the restriction, diminution, or extinction of such rights shall be settled by agreement, or, failing agreement, then under the Provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.

Opening the discussion, Mr. Horne said that in the face of the evidence he had read from the counsel's opinion and the Act of Parliament upon which it was based, it was evident that having compensated Mrs. Bailey, the late owner of the franchise, by purchasing her rights, it placed the Conservators in full power and authority to extinguish the fair. There can be no doubt that to contest this right of the Conservators claimed by them as plaintiffs in the action for trespass against the three cited showmen would have been not only an extremely costly proceeding, but that the weight of evidence was against the possibility of the showmen winning the day. To put the case in as few words as possible, the Conservators have had power under their special Act of Parliament at any time during the past sixteen years to extinguish the fair as soon as they had compensated the legal holder of the fair rights.

It is extremely difficult to understand why the Conservators applied to the Home Secretary for an order to abolish the fair when they already possessed powers by purchase of the fair rights to extinguish Mitcham Fair. There can be only the suspicion that the Conservators thought that public opinion in Mitcham would be better satisfied if the Home Secretary abolished the fair, rather than it being done by the will of the Conservators, who might, in their turn, as they stood for election, be brought to book by the people of Mitcham. On the other hand, there is the significant fact that the Abolition of Fairs Act contains no provisions for compensating the vested interests, but that their own Act does contain clauses providing such justice being done to the owner of the franchise.

Arising out of the legal points raised by the Mitcham case, there are several interesting and important facts for showmen to remember. One of these points is that it is quite lawful to draw upon a fair-ground at the fair time and to disturb the soil for the purposes of erecting shows, &c., without giving any previous notice to the owner of the fair. In other words, when a fair is being held a showman cannot be summoned for trespass. Of course, when Mr. Ball and the other tenants drew on to the Mitcham Fair green they were not aware of the extraordinary powers that the Act of 1891 conferred upon the conservators. Had they been in possession of this very material fact it is very doubtful whether they would have made the venture they did. It was extremely unfair for the Conservators not to tell the showmen the full extent of their powers. Had this been done the Act of Parliament empowering the Conservators to extinguish the right of holding a fair would have been examined and a decision would have been made not in ignorance, but with full knowledge of the legal bearings of the situation.

Another important legal point is that the owner of a fair franchise cannot refuse to exercise his franchise without statutory power of abolition being exercised. Either the owner of the franchise must get the Home Secretary to abolish the fair in accordance with the provisions of the Abolition of Fairs Act, or else he must have a private Act of Parliament, as the Mitcham Conservators have, that gives him power to extinguish the franchise.

So far, then, it is perfectly clear that a fair cannot be abolished or extinguished at the will of the owner of the fair franchise, but it must be constitutionally done either directly through the Home Secretary or under the powers of a special Act of Parliament.

Mr. Ball informed his brother showmen of the interviews and negotiations he and Mr. Clasper had had on behalf of the Mitcham Fair tenants, with Alderman Foss, the chairman of the Board of Conservators. He was in a position to inform the meeting that it was still an open question whether the Conservators would permit the holding of a fair on another part of their common lands. A special meeting of the Conservators had been called, and he hoped to have a definite answer as to what the Conservators are prepared to do.

Mr. Horne pointed out the importance of arriving at a knowledge of the intentions of the Conservators before a certain number of that body had to present themselves for election in the month of April. Mr. Clasper spoke of the extreme anxiety on the part of the Mitcham people and the Parish Council of Mitcham to continue the fair, and he was of opinion that any of the Conservators going before the electors at Mitcham would lose his seat on the Board if he was known to be against the continuance of the fair. From all that he had seen and heard in recent interviews with prominent men at Mitcham when he had been down there with Mr. Ball, he was strongly of opinion that great public pressure was being brought to bear upon the Conservators to afford facilities for holding the fair at Three King's Common, a site that had been strongly recommended by the best friends of Mitcham for the continuance of its ancient fair. Mr. Wilson asked Mr. Horne the very important question (in view of certain rumours floating about with regard to a private venture scheme to secure the transfer of the fair rights and the fair itself from the Conservators), whether there was any fair in the legal sense in existence at the present moment. Mr. Horne expressed the opinion that if the judgment in the High Court was a just decision, and if Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson had been rightly condemned, then there was no fair in existence at the present moment at Mitcham. Either the defendants had been unjustly compelled to submit to the injunction of the High Court (which of course involved the previous extinction of the fair under the 1891 Act), or, if the fair still existed, and was capable at the present moment of being legally transferred to another site, still retaining all its ancient privileges, then the showmen defendants had been unjustly forced to acknowledge an offence of which (legally) they had not been guilty.

What the people of Mitcham may do is a question, of course, of great interest to showmen, and he sincerely hoped that the great body of public opinion so forcibly declared at the mass meeting in defence of the people's fair rights on the Fair Sunday last year would make itself felt at the ballot-box, and that "the awakening of Mitcham," of which this fair question had been the first indication, would develop so rapidly and effectively as to drive from power all those who have been endeavouring for some time past to deprive the people of Mitcham of their annual fair.

Other interesting questions were put and answered, and a general discussion took place on various points of interest to showmen with reference to the proposed abolition of Norton Heath Fair and the recent abolition of Weston Green Fair. The executive committee of the Showmen's Guild was instructed to take all necessary action both with regard to arousing public opinion in defence of the people's fair rights at Mitcham and to promote a petition from the local showpeople against the abolition of Norton Heath Fair.

THE PALACE.

Our interest in the theatrical art of Spain has been pleasantly stimulated lately by the union of hearts that gave as consort to the Iberian King one of England's fairest daughters; but La Tortajada, who came into Mr. Alfred Butt's programme on Monday evening, was already a favourite with the English public before the international event to which we have referred, and her art is so eloquent of the warmer South that she does not need the adventitious aid of the entente cordiale so happily established. She returns, after two years' absence, with her personal charm and magnetism undiminished. In a sunny, a coquettish, or a passionate vein, she completely captivates her audience by her complete subjection to the mood of the moment, and her range is such that, as she passes from fascinating gaminerie to passionate petulance, one is convinced that she might have been a great tragedienne had she not been so exquisite a comedienne. In her first number she illustrates the art of wearing the mantilla, and in a second selection from her répertoire shows how a young Andalusian maid, of both parents bereft, laments the fact in despondent strains. Finally, with inimitable brio, La Tortajada dashes into the fandango with irresistible energy and fascination. She kissed her hand to all parts of the house on Monday, and put herself on confidential terms with the occupants of a house which has built up a reputation as the London home of the chief Spanish exponents of the mimetic and terpsichorean arts

Mr. Alfred Lester, who is still playing the lost policeman in Aladdin at the Gaiety, has been kindly lent by Mr. George Edwardes to Mr. Butt. It will be remembered that it was in The Scene-shifter's Lament at the fine house in Shaftesbury-avenue that Mr. Lester made his first memorable hit as a comedian. He appears in a new comedy duologue, entitled A Restaurant Episode, specially written for him by Arthur Wimperis and Walter Davidson. Mr. Lester impersonates a waiter, whom melancholy has marked down for its own. Something like seven courses are given for eighteenpence at the historic house where he has "learned to labour and to wait" during sixteen years. The proprietor—"a very pertikler man"—fights shy of the viands provided with sparing hand by an unresourceful chef, and invariably goes out to dinner. A lady customer who wishes to sample the courses is advised to have Irish stew, as she will then get the whole of them at once. The confidential chat with the lady customer about her prospects on the musical comedy stage, and the energetic asides down the speaking tube, are all in the truest spirit of humour. Eventually the waiter finds himself "bilked." The trifle, which went exceedingly well, may be pronounced as an excellent vehicle for Mr. Lester's refreshing comedy, which caused shouts of laughter on Monday. A Restaurant Episode is certain to be as successful as the celebrated Scene-shifter's Lament, of which, by the bye, Mr. Lester is sole author. A good word may be said for the unobtrusive impersonation of the lady customer by Miss Lily Mills, who is natural and unaffected.

The Mysterious Howards are renewing their triumphs, and in their silent mental telepathy become most impressive in the correct guessing of playing cards and the dates of coins by the blindfolded partner on the stage, who writes down the result of his thought inspirations on a blackboard. The tests are very genuine, and the show throughout quite absorbing in its interest. Miss Nina Gordon at the piano gives some clever and amusing imitations, being endowed with no little vocal ability. Miss Margaret Cooper takes us into the higher realms of vocal expression, and fascinates us as much with her pianoforte playing as her singing; Mr. Hayden Coffin now sings "The Village Blacksmith," one of the songs that cannot be said to suit him; the Palace Girls sing and dance with their customary vivacity and chic; Miss Maude Courtney retails anecdotes that are not so fresh as her songs, in one of which she is assisted by a gentleman possessing a wonderful falsetto; the Juggling McBans display marvellous skill with Indian clubs; and Mas Andres are still entertaining in their burlesque of a Parisian revue. The Bioscope is invariably kept up to date, and of course presents last Saturday's boat race. Mr. Hermann Finck's cosmopolitan pot-pourri of melody is still a popular feature of the music at the Palace.

THE STANDARD.

Mr. Charles Carte is making his first appearance in a West End music hall in his sketch, in three scenes, entitled A Noble Brother. This is a version, specially adapted to the requirements of the variety theatres, of the American comedy drama bearing the same title, which was first performed in England at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, as long ago as the autumn of 1889. The plot of this play showed how the heroine is brought up as the daughter of an Army officer, but her real father proves to be an eccentric character known as "Jerry the Tramp." The young girl has won the love of a man well worthy of her affection; but the villain of the piece, having gained a knowledge of her parentage, tries to make mischief and separate the lovers. Jerry himself has performed a noble act of self-sacrifice to preserve untarnished the honour of a brother, and served a term of imprisonment in his place. The girl discovers who her real father is, and the dastardly scheme of the villain having been defeated, Jerry enters upon a new life, rendered happy by the love of a devoted daughter. The leading character of Jerry presents the striking contrasts of touching pathos and genuine humour. Mr. Charles Carte plays this part in such a manner as to render the audience wholly in sympathy with the wandering vagabond who, for the sake of another, has passed through a hard, bitter experience. The mingled pathos and humour which so strongly characterise Jerry are brought out cleverly and with the most telling results by his representative, who never fails to evoke the hearty applause of the house. Miss Doris Brookes gives an excellent embodiment of Jerry's daughter; Mr. Arthur Tomlin plays well as the villain; and Mr. Howard Thorne is good in the part of the good-hearted old Colonel already mentioned.

A Desperate Remedy is the title of a lively little sketch in which Mrs. Finden plays the part of a wife who "nags" her husband (Mr. Harold Finden) until the poor man receives with apparent indifference her threat to commit suicide. By substituting a dose of whisky for the poison which his wife has poured into a glass the much-badgered husband contrives to get a good deal of fun out of the situation, to the great delight of the audience. Rezene and Robini appear in their always successful trapeze act, the former having only just recovered from injuries caused by a fall downstairs. Little Tichbourne is a droll comedian who sings a ditty in the character of a soldier. He wears big boots, and some of his funny business is suggestive of that of a more famous little comedian. Miss Agnes Molteno and company in the song-scena entitled An Old-time Story meet with well-deserved success; and much diversion is caused by the farcical production Astronomy, capitally presented by Mr. W. Fulbrook and company. Miss Dora Lyric sings with good effect "All that glitters is not gold," and Mr. Harry Rogerson gives an amusing burlesque on modern melodrama. Miss Maud Esmond easily maintains her reputation as a pleasing comedienne; and the Sisters Allen score with song and dance. Miss Amy Milton (comedienne), Mr. Charles Lilburn, and Mr. Stan Aubrey (comedians) also contribute with successful results; while the pictures shown by the Edisonograph are appreciated. Mr. Maurice Volny ably discharges the duties of assistant manager, and Mr. Frederick Allwood lends assistance as conductor of the orchestra.

"THE STEPMOTHER."

A Dramette, in One Act, by Arthur Shirley, Produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, March 18.

Bob Bristow ..... MR. WILLIAM HOLLES
Anna ..... MISS PHYLLIS MANNERS
Clare ..... MISS FREEDA GREEN
Abraham Wiggins ..... MR. WALTER BOYLE
Sergeant Spigot ..... MR. FRANK FINCHAM
Danny ..... MISS NANNIE GOLDMAN

The Stepmother tells a story familiar enough in the annals of our police-courts through the prosecutions instituted by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and as told by Mr. William Holles, Miss Nannie Goldman, and their company, will enlist the sympathies of many audiences. Bob Bristow, first mate of the Sea Mew, on the death of his first wife, marries again, firm in the conviction that his second wife, Anna, is all that is gentle and kind, and will give to his orphan son Danny all a mother's love and care; but the opening scene in Bob's cottage soon lets the audience see that all the love is bestowed on Anna's own child, Clare, while a fierce hatred is manifested towards the deformed offspring of her predecessor. Bob returns from sea unexpectedly, just as his unfaithful wife has planned to elope to Canada with Abraham Wiggins, the secretary of a slate club. Bob is shocked at the appearance of his son, and Anna tells him the boy is sulky, and given to many vices. The lad dare not contradict, for fear of the formidable whip his stepmother lashes him with at the slightest provocation, and Bob takes an affectionate leave of his wife and daughter and goes to rejoin his ship, convinced that Danny is all his wife has told him. Anna again welcomes her paramour, and arranges to realise Bob's property, while Wiggins goes to secure all the slate club funds he can. Danny realises that life is not worth living, and, broken-hearted, makes his way to the cemetery, where the red-whiskered but kind-hearted police-sergeant finds him kneeling at his mother's grave praying to be taken to her. The sergeant learns Danny's sad story and takes him off to be medically examined by the police surgeon. Meanwhile Bob Bristow returns to his home unexpectedly, having received a telegram from his ship owners giving him command of another ship with a three days' leave. He is puzzled to find his house empty, and when his daughter Clare comes in and innocently tells him that she is soon to have another dada in Abraham Wiggins he begins to have suspicions, which are confirmed when Wiggins arrives expecting to find Bob's wife ready to start, but encounters her outraged husband instead. Bob forces the trembling Wiggins into a room and threatens to shoot him should he make the least noise. Anna comes in singing, and thinking it is Wiggins buried in the easy chair by the fire, says she has realised all Bob's property and is ready to start. Bob reveals himself, and, after upbraiding her, tells her to clear out. The sergeant appears on the scene and claims Wiggins as his prisoner for fraud; he also tells Bob that the divisional surgeon has examined Danny, and has found the poor lad bruised from head to foot. Anna, finding all her vileness and cruelty discovered, curses her husband and Danny, and leaves the house, while Bob is left clasping his boy in his arms.

Miss Nannie Goldman essays the character of the poor lad Danny with firmness and feeling, and touches the hearts of the audience in the cemetery scene by a display of deep emotions. As Bob Bristow Mr. William Holles acts throughout with a breezy earnestness that carries the whole production well on to success. Miss Phyllis Manners imbues the unsatisfactory character of his frail wife Anna with delicacy and tact, and creates a strong impression of abhorrence in her brutal scenes with Danny. As her daughter Clare Miss Freeda Green has little to do, but does that little thoroughly and well. As the canting hypocrite Wiggins Mr. Walter Boyle does not spare himself, and adds not a little to the general success. Mr. Frank Fincham gives an excellent character-study of a rural police-sergeant. The play is well mounted, and Mr. William Neale's music greatly assists the action.

Variety in abundance is provided by Mr. Jesse Sparrow and Mr. Harry Bawn in their current bill, which includes Selkirk's well-known juvenile scena, All Scotch, in which the clever family are supported by some sixty Camberwell juveniles; Eldra and his highly intelligent and well-trained dog Prince, who make a novel entry in a miniature balloon; the Three Sisters Richmond, a charming turn, who have a bright future before them; Fred Hallam, a quaint and original comedian; Earle and Melville, patter vocalists and smart dancers; the Michalinis, a couple of exceedingly clever and finished jugglers with comical methods; the Two Wiltons, who fairly dance themselves into favour; Stan Aubrey, an eccentric legmania comedian; and excellent pictures of the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race by Jeapes' Animated Graphic.

"HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR."

A New Musical Absurdity, in One Scene, by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, Produced at Collins's Music Hall on Monday, March 18.

Uncle Septimus Harcourt ..... MR. MAITLAND MARLER
Jack Harcourt ..... MR. E. L. DAVIES
Monty Fitz-Herbert ..... MR. EDWARD COLLARD
Polly Pinkerton ..... MISS MARIE CLAYTON
Lottie Lucas ..... MISS DORA ROSE
Kitty ..... MISS ERNESTINE DESBOROUGH

Those well-known song-writers Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, have successfully collaborated in the writing of this new musical sketch, or "absurdity" as the authors prefer to call it. They may claim to have made ingenious use of an old theatrical device which, indeed, has done duty in several once popular farces, and notably in Charles Reade and Tom Taylor's famous play, Masks and Faces. Mr. Septimus Harcourt, the Mayor of Mudborough, has two nephews, Jack Harcourt, an artist by profession, and Monty Fitz-Herbert, who is the heir to his uncle's wealth. Jack has offended the old gentleman by becoming engaged to an artist's model named Kitty and refusing to give her up because of his uncle's strong objection to the match. Jack, however, has painted a full-sized picture of Mudborough's mayor in his robes of office, and the artist has received a telegram from his uncle intimating his intention of paying a visit to Jack's studio to see the portrait. But another visitor arrives first—Monty Fitz-Herbert, who, finding the studio unoccupied, takes a malicious delight in adding enormous ears to the portrait of Uncle Septimus and also painting in black eyebrows and moustache. Having by a few swift strokes with a paint-brush completely ruined the picture he draws the curtain behind which it has been placed, and gleefully anticipating the results of his mischievous handiwork takes his departure. Then the Mayor himself arrives, admires the picture which Jack is painting of Kitty in the character of a pretty slave girl, and is horrified at discovering the monstrous caricature of himself. In his rage he aims a blow at the face and makes a big hole in the canvas. Monty, accompanied by a couple of giddy chorus ladies, returns, Uncle Septimus beats a hasty retreat behind the portrait and thrusts his face into the aperture he has made. Monty, little suspecting who is listening to his remarks, proceeds to amuse his lady friends by making some very disrespectful references to his uncle, and to cap his bad behaviour applies with a brush red paint to the tip of the old gentleman's nose This last indignity is too much for the Mayor to bear without protest, and to the consternation of his nephew he comes forward and very pointedly expresses his opinion of that young gentleman. Jack is restored to favour, while Monty seems likely to be cut off with that shilling which is the traditional portion of the young man who has given unpardonable offence to a rich relative.

The lively, unpretentious little piece was excellently played. That experienced comedian Mr. Maitland Marler was appropriately fussy and important as the Mayor of Mudborough, who, whatever happens, "stands on his dignity," though he so far unbends as to join in the final song and dance. Mr. E. L. Davies as Jack Harcourt, the artist, did well, and sang a good song addressed to the picture of his sweetheart. Miss Ernestine Desborough was an attractive representative of Kitty, and also showed vocal ability; Mr. Edward Collard was a capital Monty Fitz-Herbert; and the two chorus ladies, Polly Pinkerton and Lottie Lucas, had vivacious exponents in Miss Marie Clayton and Miss Dora Rose. The new piece met with a favourable reception.

The current programme includes Mr. Percy Honri, who has won renown as a concertina expert. His musical selections are agreeably interspersed with amusing patter, and he concludes with a medley in which many of the most popular songs of the day are introduced. Miss Yolande Noble sings a couple of songs with much acceptance; and the list of comedians includes Mr. Tom Costello with his latest success, "The Suffragettes," Mr. Edwin Boyde, Mr. Fred Lincoln, Mr. Harry Conlin, and Mr. Harry Pleon, whose mimicry is always effective. Other attractions are Miss Ollie Burgoyne, a Creole comedienne; and Miss Ada Fawn, who distinguishes herself both as a comedienne and ballad vocalist, the Sisters Wingrove, comediennes, and the L.C.C. Bioscope with a highly sensational series of pictures depicting robbery and murder. Mr. F. F. Wade is the able manager here, and Mr. Kopski has the direction of the orchestra.

WHAT THE BUTLER DID;
OR, THE MAN WITH TWO WIVES.

Sketch, by Albert Voyce, produced for the first time at Richmond Theatre on Monday, March 18.

The plot of this little piece, which "caught on" immediately at its production on Monday, is slight but sufficient for the purpose, which is frankly to cause laughter. Mr. Williamson, who is in financial difficulties, is expecting a visit from a wealthy uncle from South Africa. The uncle proposes to make Mr. Williamson a present of £500 if the latter can satisfy the old gentleman of his determination to settle down and lead a different life—a requisition from which it may be gathered that Mr. Williamson's pre-nuptial career has been of the wild order. Unfortunately, at the moment of the story's opening, Mrs. Williamson is away on a visit to her father-in-law, from which expedition much is hoped. In his dilemma Mr. Williamson orders his butler to assume feminine apparel and endeavour to propitiate the old uncle. The situations resulting from the butler's impersonation, his difficulties in his unaccustomed attire, and the complication following the real Mrs. Williamson's unexpected return, must be seen to be appreciated. It is sufficient to say that the audiences at Richmond have keenly enjoyed the butler's troubles, and have signified their enjoyment by loud and continuous laughter nightly. The farce is produced by Mr. Bates Madison's company, under the direction of Mr. Roger Alwyn, with Mr. Frank Hill in the principal part.

"THE SHADOW BETWEEN."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Harry Kingston, T. C. Denville, and Charles Self, Produced at the Variety Theatre, Hoxton, on Monday, March 18.

Jack Rivers ..... MR. RONALD ADAIR
Martin Craft ..... MR. MURRAY YORKE
Jim Blair ..... MR. IVAN GORE
Ebenezar Maxim ..... MR. EDWARD THANE
Bobby Buck ..... MR. VICTOR ROWLAND
Convict 99 ..... MR. CHARLES CROSBY
Ben Brace ..... MR. W. GIBBS
Peter Jarold ..... MR. ARTHUR VERNE
Red-Nosed Guest ..... MR. DAVE AYLOTT
Warder Crafton ..... MR. BENSON WALLER
Cissie Smart ..... MISS LOUISE BRANDON
Nita Russell ..... MISS EUGENE MAGNUS

The habitués of the Variety—late the King's—Theatre, Hoxton, have had something this week to excite their feelings, for sensational incidents abound in the new play, called The Shadow Between. Jack Rivers is the hero, and he is in love with the heroine, Nita Russell. The villain is that lady's guardian, whose surname, appropriately enough, is Craft. As a craftsman in crime Martin Craft is a good second to our old friend Moriary. The play commences on the heroine's twentieth birthday, and we learn with much regret that her unscrupulous guardian has squandered her money, and it is now his aim, for reasons which require no great mental effort to divine, to prevent her marrying Jack Rivers. So the crafty Craft drugs her, and, with the aid of an Irish accomplice, Jim Blair, carries her over the hills and far away with the intention of ultimately securing for her a seat among the sainted dead. Jim Blair has his own ideas on the subject. He sees possibilities of blackmail in keeping the lady alive, at any rate for a time. He secretes her in his premises, where he attempts to chloroform her. Nita assumes a state of unconsciousness, and immediately afterwards she actually succeeds in chloroforming him and escapes. The two confederates overtake her, but they in their turn are overpowered by the ubiquitous hero. But, alas and alack! the innocent, unsophisticated Nita is lured once again into the arms of the evil conspirators by a hypocritical communication from artful Jim. But, after all, Jim has tender feelings, for he raises strong objections to the desire on the part of Craft to murder the girl. This insignificant difference of opinion leads to a desperate encounter between the two, and eventually the hero comes in to claim the girl of his choice.

It can be said that the acting was of infinitely superior quality to the stuff which the members of the company were called upon to present to the audience. Mr. Ronald Adair was vigorous and virile as the robust hero; and Mr. Murray Yorke played with equal forcefulness as Martin Craft. Miss Eugene Magnus submitted a pleasing and sympathetic study of the heroine, while Miss Louise Brandon was sprightly as Cissie Smart, and Mr. Ivan Gore as the Irishman and Mr. Chas. Crosby in the comedy part of Convict 99 acted in able fashion.

THE last smoking concert of the season was given at the Canonbury Club, Canonbury Tower, on Saturday evening, when Councillor A. O. Clarke presided and Mr. Councillor Elmes was the vice-chairman. The contributors to the programme included Mme. Flora Arnaulde, whose charming soprano voice was heard to much advantage in the "Jewel Song" from Faust, and later on in "Il Bacio." This highly-cultured French vocalist received with much applause. Miss Elmes was also successful with her two songs, "My heart at your feet" and "Dear heart." Mr. Dick Abner and Mr. J. Massingham helped to secure the success of the entertainment with their humorous contributions; and Mr. Lovett King, who acted as accompanist at the piano, also sang a comic ditty. Mr. Will Clinch was an excellent stage-manager.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy combination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK MARK

TRADE MARK

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

PICTURESQUE CANADA.

Code Word, CACHETTE.

One of the most beautiful pictures ever taken. The mighty St. Lawrence—harbour, shipping, mountains, cascades, and waterfalls. A veritable triumph of photographic art.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

BABY'S FIRST OUTING.

Code Word, CHICANE.

The careless nurse takes baby out and speaks to many people on the way and keeps on colliding with various obstacles. Eventually a naughty boy ties the pram to a dog, who rushes off with it, followed by an interested crowd of spectators. Finally the pram is precipitated into a pond, but baby is unhurt and is brought back to her parents in triumph by a kindly policeman.

Fine quality and really amusing.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

PAPER MAKING.

Code Word, CHOU.

Another of Pathé's world-renowned industrial subject films. The whole process of paper making is shown, and is remarkably interesting.

428ft. The Subject £7 2s. 8d.

POMPEII.

Code Word, CAIMAN.

Grand panorama of the old city, showing its interesting ruins and world-famous landmarks. Perfect quality.

545ft. The Subject £9 1s. 8d.

TOBOGGANING.

Code Word, CHIEN.

A very impressive picture of this exciting sport. The "Tobogganist" goes down great drops on his stomach using his feet to steer, a speed of over forty miles per hour being frequently attained. Very exciting.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

THE GOLDEN BEETLE.

Code Word, BUREAU.

An old wizard succeeds in capturing a golden beetle which he casts into a melting-pot, from which there immediately appears a most beautiful form, succeeded by fountains of water and displaying lovely girls. This water then throws off splendid coloured effects rising higher and higher, eventually turning into a regular cascade, the centre of which is a glorius fairy.

Splendid trick film beautifully coloured.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s. Colouring extra £2 2s.

CINDERELLA.

Code Word, BUFFLE.

An extra good film, everything is represented as in the Fairy Tale. There is little Cinderella, Ugly Sisters, Fairy Godmother, and the Prince, together with the Pumpkin and Rats which form Cinderella's beautiful Carriage and Escort. Beautifully mounted.

Colouring £1 11s. 6d. About 974ft. The Subject £16 4s. 8d.

A MILITARY PRISON.

Code Word CISELEUR.

A dramatic film, full of feeling, showing the life of the Exiled Soldier in the Settlements. Method of punishment; a dash for liberty; sufferings of thirst; treachery; grand finale.

About 824ft. The Subject £13 14s. 8d.

A VISIT FROM A MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Code Word, CHIC.

The young husband determines that as he does not want his mother-in-law to stay with them, he will get rid of her quickly. Bribes the servants, and they each, without seeming to do so, cause her some trouble. Finally, he takes her out in his car and bumps her out. She, in disgust, returns home again, to the intense joy of the husband. A very amusing subject, and some very funny effects.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

The COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.

Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c., &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

Colouring extra, £3. 280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

POLICEMEN'S RUN.

Code Word, CABANE.

This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

INDIANS AND COWBOYS OF THE FAR WEST.

Code Word, CIREUR.

Cowboys v. Indians. The capture of horses. Exciting scenes when the Indians steal the horses. A wild chase. The cowboys are saved by the timely intelligence of one of their faithful animals. Charming pictures throughout. Specially recommended. Tinting extra, 14/6.

643ft. The Subject £10 14s. 4d.

THE LIGHT AND THE DARK BLUES.

Please Note.—It is not a matter of Name or Colour but of HONOUR with us, as with the CREWS.

When Cambridge went to the start at Putney on the 16th inst., they were confident of success. Everyone expected them to win—and they DID. When we went to take the race we were confident of the result—and we were not disappointed; and those who trusted to us to obtain a good picture and ordered in advance were not disappointed, for we DID. Our picture is unanimously acknowledged to be a WINNER.

A customer writes us under the 20th date:—

"Dear Sirs,—Allow me to congratulate you on the excellent film of the Boat Race supplied to me by you. The people are delighted with it, and give a rousing cheer for the winners at each performance A more realistic picture of the Boat Race has never been obtained, and I have seen a few.

PAUL'S NEW FILMS.

A Mother's Sin.

Seldom is a picture produced so directly appealing to the humane sentiments of the beholder. It portrays, in a striking and dramatic manner, the feelings of a young woman, who, being about to become a mother, loses her situation as a servant. Feeling the pinch of poverty she is compelled to seek the cottage of her parents with the nameless baby; her father greets her sorrowfully, but her mother turns her into the street. Being penniless, she reluctantly abandons the baby, and eventually obtains a living as a dressmaker.

In the meantime the child has been found by a constable and taken to the home of a kindly old gentleman, who happens to be passing, he and his wife being delighted with the acquisition to their childless household; pointing out the necklace and birthmark borne by the child, the constable leaves.

After a few years comes retribution. The dressmaker, delivering at the home of the old people some dresses for a child, recognises the necklace it wears, and, examining the child, finds the birthmark. Overcome by true motherly love, she instinctively clasps the child to her bosom, but is repulsed and denied; a closing tableau touching every human heart.

Code-word, "Foundling." Length, 356ft.

A KNIGHT ERRANT.

A ROMANCE OF THE MIDDLE AGES.

Scene I.—THE REJECTED SUITOR.
Scene II.—THE ABDUCTION OF THE PRINCESS.
Scene III.—THE GOOD FAIRY TO THE RESCUE.
Scene IV.—THE OGRE'S TOWER.
Scene V.—THE FIGHT WITH THE OGRE.
Scene VI.—THE REWARD OF VALOUR.

A Superb Production on the Grand Scale.

Code-word, "Ogre." Length 480ft.

HIS FIRST TOP-HAT.

A humorous picture which will appeal almost as much to adults as to a juvenile audience, as it tells the tale of an Eton boy's first silk hat and its adventures.

LATEST FILM.

THE STORY OF A STRAY DOG. Code, "STRAY."

This is no ordinary dog picture, but something unique, chaining the interest, and of grand quality. It tells of the poor despised tramp dog, beaten by everyone, annoyed by boys generally, taken home by the tender-hearted little girl, where eventually, after much trouble, he is allowed to stay. Doggie's chance comes however. One day the child is watching an Italian organ-grinder and his monkey, and gets carried away by her enthusiasm to follow him, and is lost. The dog, missing his little mistress, follows the scent, and eventually finds her some long distance away. Bringing her back a footpad, attracted by her fine clothes, attempts to kidnap her for blackmailing purposes. But the dog will not allow it, goes for the tramp tooth and nail, and after a desperate and dramatic fight, mauls the tramp badly. The dog brings back the little girl to her sorrowing and anxious mother and father. Doggie is a tramp dog no longer.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, S.W. 24th January, 1907

Dear Sir,—I enclose you cheque in payment of your account for cleaning dresses. I may say that I consider it perfectly marvellous that you should take away at 9.30 p.m. sixty-two elaborate Pantomime dresses from Clapham Junction and return them perfectly cleaned by 3 p.m. the following day. I am sending you about 150 dresses next week which will have to be done at lightning speed, feeling perfectly confident that they will be returned at the time promised. You are at liberty to make any use you like of this letter.

Yours very faithfully, ROBERT CROSSMAN.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, JAN. 29.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—Record houses are the order of the day at this theatre, the spectacular pantomime, Mother Goose, having hit the public taste. Owing to the success which has attended the production, the management anticipate it holding the boards till after Easter. All the artists have now thoroughly settled down into their parts, and the fun is kept merrily going from the rise till the fall of the curtain.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The stirring melodrama, When London Sleeps, was revived on Saturday evening, and served to attract a large and enthusiastic audience. Miss Eugenie Duggan as Queenie Carruthers, "the white Queen of the air," was most effective, her wire-walking scene over the house-tops earning well-deserved applause. The Captain Rodney Hayes of Mr. Dunbar was a clever piece of work. Messrs. Bert Bailey and Edmund Duggan have the light relief all to themselves, and the result is entirely satisfactory. The various other characters were ably played by Miss Ada Guildford, Miss Hilda Fraser, Miss Lena Langridge, Miss Lillie Bryer, Mr. Nunn, and little Miss Sylvia Churches.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—A scene of great excitement prevailed at this theatre on Saturday evening, when Charlene and Charlene made their first appearance, these artists obtaining the most enthusiastic reception which has been accorded to anyone appearing at the Opera House for some considerable time. The turn is a star one in every sense. Mr. Charlene is a juggler of great ability, while Mme. Charlene is a finished performer on the xylophone. Taken on the whole, the performance is a welcome addition to the programme. Other artists who made their reappearance on Saturday include Miss Cora Caselli, dancer; Mr. Larry Lewis, quaint comedian; and Miss Violet Stockelle, soubrette; while Mr. Charles Leonard Fletcher, Rowell Sisters, Rochfort and Hart, Fred Russell, Annie Laurie, Lal Logie, and King and Benson lend valuable assistance to a particularly strong bill.

GAIETY THEATRE (Manager, Mr. Joe Solomons).—Miss Lyla Thompson made her reappearance on Saturday evening, after an absence of eighteen months, and was accorded a warm reception. A complete change of programme was given by Claude Sullivan, Ern Delavale, Frank York, Blutch Jones, Maud Perman, Harry Elliott, Fred Ireland, George Silcock, the Silvenis, Dan Cusack, and the Sylvans.

SYDNEY, JAN. 29.—The Willoughby-Ward-Palotta combination changed its bill at the Criterion on the 26th to The Talk of the Town. Mr. Hugh J. Ward is old Andrew Fullalove, J.P., and every possible atom of humour is extracted from the part by the ambidexterous comedian. Miss Grace Palotta enters into all the fun with which the author has stuffed Winifred Tiverton; and is aided and abetted by Mr. Edward Bonfield as Charles and Mr. C. Warburton-Gamble as a record-making Sneezer. The singing and dancing of these four people will long be remembered. This bill will last out the remainder of the season, when Mr. Edwin Geach takes his humorous coterie elsewhere. Mr. George Willoughby is Peter Sledge, a champion prize-fighter, and he is at his best in these boisterous parts; and Miss Edith Warren as his sweetheart, Tilly Du Val, helps him most loyally. Miss Olive Wilton and Miss Lillian Scarfe are the young wife and maid as to the characters born. Preceding this farce-comedy we have The Vagabond, in which Mr. Hugh J. Ward plays a pathetic rôle with consummate skill; and the daughter and artist are carefully acted by Miss Grace Palotta and Mr. Arthur Cornell.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS'S dramatic company opens at the Criterion on Feb. 2, under Mr. Allan Hamilton's management. Home, Sweet Home will be the play, and Miss Lilian Hallows and Mr. Sidney Howard are entrusted with the lead.

"PARSIFAL" is in its sixth week at Her Majesty's Theatre, and public interest and attendance continue unabated. Mr. Gaston Mervale's very fine impersonation of Klingsor is the talk of the town. Miss Tittell Brune as Kundry and Mr. Thomas Kingston as Parsifal deserve all the Press praise and public applause bestowed upon them.

THE pantomime, Alice in Wonderland, closed its season to an enormous house on the afternoon of the 26th.

MR. JULIUS KNIGHT, entrusted by Mr. J. C. Williamson to select a dramatic company in England for him, arrived during last week, and went on to Melbourne

"REVENGE" is delighting Mr. Bland Holt's many patrons at the Royal, and there is a note of impending change. The palatial scenery and careful all-round acting satisfy the most captious of critics, and steady good business, without boom or matinée, continues.

"JANE" and Nan, the Good-for-Nothing, at the Palace, show Mr. Harry Macdona and the other Australian actors and actresses at their best—an excellent performance, in which Miss Ailsa Sherbrooke makes a great success as Nan. The company goes next to Newcastle. Dr. Bill will be staged to-night, and play out the week, which concludes the Macdona season at the Palace.

THE Tivoli added Miss Gracie Grahame, a graceful dancer and a sweet singer, to its attractions last Saturday. The bare-footed dancerese, Miss Rhoda Dendron, became an instantaneous favourite; and the Three Gibson Girls made a welcome first appearance. Miss Cassy Walmer returned; Ohanti, Selbo, and the rest of Mr. Harry Rickards's large coterie of artists provide three hours, eight times a week, of song and fun.

WONDERLAND CITY has added to its attractions firework displays with set pieces, such as the Bombardment of Port Arthur, and touring trips to the Rocky Mountains and other inaccessible places.

BOVIS BROTHERS are crowding the Queen's Hall with their vaudeville company, temporarily ejected from the Amphitheatre, pending enforced alterations. Carden Wilson, the famous mimic, is still a great attraction; and some very fine biograph films are nightly added.

THE Theatroscope at the Lyceum, fierce melodrama at the Hippodrome, and many other minor shows, attract coin and its bearers in payable numbers.

SYDNEY, FEB. 5.—Mr. Harry Rickards has again ventured into the dramatic arena, this time securing as manager the experienced Mr. Allan Hamilton and the Criterion Theatre. The attraction is the melodrama, Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Sidney Howard appears as Stephen Armitage, and he makes the part an impressive one. Mr. Nelson Ramsay gains favour by his performance as old David Armitage; and Mr. George R. Montford looks and acts the blasé Lucas Lyle to the life. Mr. Harry Diver supplies a capital character-portrait of an old gaffer, toothless and garrulous. The Duke of Mr. Harold Wilson, and Dick, a fisher-lad, played by Mr. Harold West, are distinctly good. Miss Lilian Hallows has in Joan a most unconvincing heroine's rôle, but her talent and experience make it acceptable. Miss Pearl Keats delights the audience with her dainty but slangy Sybil Fay. Miss Margaret Damer is the Lady Summerton.

AN attempt was made to obtain an injunction to prevent Mr. Rickards from producing Home, Sweet Home, by Mr. George A. Herron, an actor, who had demanded first a part in the production, and a sum of money as compensation, he claiming that he had copyrighted and produced in Australia a play bearing the same title. The hearing was held in the Equity Court before Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson, who decided that there was not sufficient evidence to prove the copyright or production of the play, or of any confusion in the public mind so as to cause pecuniary loss to the plaintiff. He therefore refused to grant the injunction.

AT the Tivoli a new arrival is Miss Grace Compton, an accomplished burlesque artist, and an instantaneous favourite. Miss Addie Leigh also made her first appearance—a charming balladist. Miss Fanny Powers, the clever young mimic, has returned. Miss Ethel Preston, Selbo, Chansi, Hilda Lane, Claude Leplastrier, Cassie Walmer, Gracie Grahame, and others are also in the programme.

THE Lyceum is to undergo considerable alterations. Wonderland City has added Prof. Cormack, the high diving exponent, to its manifold attractions.

MR. CHARLES HALL, an excellent Shakespearean actor, died on the 1st inst., and was buried in the Waverley Cemetery next day. Mr. Hall was sixty-nine year old, and in his time played leading parts with W. H. Hoskins, George Rignold, Louise Pomeroy, and many others, as far back as 1863 or 1864, when he came to Australia. His wife, who survives him, was one of the Sisters Duvalli, who were in their time famous dancers. Mr. Hall had long since retired from the stage, and was engaged in teaching elocution, in which art he was a pastmaster.

SYDNEY, FEB. 12.—Parsifal is in its last week, and on Saturday the first of the revivals, marking the end of Miss Tittell Brune's three years in the Sunny South, will be begun. The play will be Leah Kleschna, with Mr. Thomas Kingston for the first time as Kleschna.

"REVENGE" is Mr. Bland Holt's most recent success, and he is now rehearsing The Breaking of the Drought, which promises an Australian story, Australian scenes and conditions. Then the popular actor-manager will take a rest until his Easter season in Melbourne. Mrs. Bland Holt goes home to revisit relatives and old familiar places.

"HOME, SWEET HOME," continues to delight the lovers of clean, well-acted drama. The Modern Judas, by J. St. John Denton, will be Mr. Harry Rickards's next bill.

AT the Tivoli, Mr. Fred Russell, with his mate, "Coster Joe," has reappeared, to the evident delight of Mr. Rickards's patrons. Art. Slavin is a capital whistler. Frank Walsrab, a good baritone, and Pearl Lovell, are heartily welcomed.

"THE KELLY GANG," in moving pictures, is a clever revival of the incidents in the life and capture of the notorious bushrangers, presented by Messrs. J. and Nevin Tait at the Palace Theatre. These scenes have been rehearsed and acted by persons in the very scenes where the gang worked, lived, and died.

MELBOURNE, FEB. 20.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—Large audiences still crowd this theatre nightly to witness the gorgeous spectacular pantomime, Mother Goose. The production is now in its tenth week, and bids fair to run for some considerable time. Mr. Julius Knight was billed to appear in Robin Hood last week, but owing to the success of the pantomime, Mr. Williamson opened up in Ballarat instead, where Mr. Knight and his company have been doing excellent business since the opening night.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 14.—The authors have evidently been inspired by La Dame aux Camélias, as they show us family life in opposition to an irregular situation. At the same time, they want to prove that if the courtesan or flighty actress is wanting in morals, the so-called respectable middle classes are not always what their name implies. Jean de Kerny, the hero in the play, nicknamed "Petit Jean," is lieutenant in a crack cavalry regiment. His father is general, and a brilliant career lies before the young man. He has been fortunate enough to save the life of Françoise de Marsange, a fascinating actress, whose horses ran away, and has fallen violently in love with the girl. His father dies suddenly, whereupon Jean at once leaves the army, ostensibly to manage the estate; in reality because he is of a literary turn of mind, and wants to be an author. And, having become Françoise's lover, he remains with his family in Dijon and starts writing poetry. But life in the small country town soon becomes unbearable. The "Philistine" milieu weighs on him. His mother is aggressively religious; and the Mahurels, his old uncle and aunt who are staying at the house, irritate him because they do not understand his literary aspirations. These Mahurels have a son, Jacques, Jean's pet aversion, whose wife is the mistress of Lieutenant de Vussières. With Françoise Jean feels happy. She appreciates his talent, and gives him the encouragement he does not find at home. And when Françoise tells him that she wants to return to Paris Jean heaves a sigh of relief and follows her to the capital.

We next find the young couple comfortably settled in Paris. They have many quarrels, but they are deeply attached to one another. Jean gives Françoise all the money she wants—that is to say, he thinks he does, for he does not know that his mistress is a spendthrift, and head over ears in debt. In order to meet her creditors the girl has applied to money-lenders, who threaten to seize her furniture. But sooner than tell her lover of the danger that hangs over her head, she applies for help to the Comte de Novailles, who has once been her protector. The Comte is a grey-headed gentleman, too old to embark into fresh intrigues, yet anxious to assist the young woman with whom he spent many pleasant hours. He shows himself disinterested in a way that is almost superhuman. All he wants is to see Françoise happy. Having paid her debts, he finances a playhouse where Françoise finds an engagement at five hundred francs a night, and the manager also undertakes to produce a play Jean has just finished. It is almost needless to say that Jean knows nothing of this whole arrangement; and the manner in which Françoise, the theatrical manager, and even the servants manage to keep the secret from Jean is one of the features in the piece. Jean's play is produced, and proves a great success. Jean's friends, who of late had neglected him somewhat, now press forward. Everybody congratulates him, and a foreign impresario buys the play for a big sum. And then the thunderbolt falls, for the secret leaks out. Two spiteful little actresses in the company inform Jean that the Comte de Novailles really owns the theatre; the objectionable uncle Mahurel comes suddenly upon the scene, and from him the terror-stricken Jean learns that Françoise's debts have been paid by the old nobleman. The scene in Françoise's dressing-room when Jean overwhelms her with reproaches is very telling. The girl shrieks and swears that she has not deceived him; that the Comte is not her lover; that she only applied to him like to an old friend; and that if she erred it was out of love for Jean. In vain. Jean is horrified, and the dispute ends in Françoise ordering him out of her room. Sick at heart Jean returns to Dijon, and Françoise soon afterwards learns that he is about to marry Ginette, a flighty girl, she knew when both were at the convent. Françoise has secured some compromising letters from Ginette to the Lieutenant de Vussières, and with the view of preventing the match she sends them to Jean. The marriage does not take place; but, for all that, Françoise and Jean never again come together. Hidden behind a tree in Jean's garden, Françoise hears him conversing with one of his friends, to whom he explains that he must give up his mistress. Jean then hears the rustle of a dress, and dimly perceives Françoise hurrying away. He rushes after her, but his friend holds him back, and the curtain falls. The work was very well acted, especially by Mlle. Devoyod.

"FLORISE,"

Comedy in four acts, in verse, by Théodore de Banville. Produced at the Odéon on March 13.

Florise .....MLLE. BERTHE BADY
Célidée .....MLLE DUX
Amarante .....MLLE. KERWICH
Lucinde .....MLLE. BARJAC
Guillemette .....MLLE. DIDIER
Alexandre Hardy .....M. DESJARDINS
Le Comte Olivier d'Atys .....M. CAPELLANI
Rosidor .....M. CLERGET
Jodelet .....M. DESFONTAINES
Sylvain .....M. MOSNIER

Written as far back as 1870, Florise had never been produced, although all lovers of French poetry are familiar with this gem; and it reflects the greatest credit on M. Antoine that one of the first acts of his administration should have been to place it on the répertoire of the Odéon. The scene of the story is laid in a country house near Blois. In this charming retreat lives the Comte Olivier, a youth of twenty, who has been adopted by his aunt Célidée, a lady of about thirty-eight. Whilst Olivier is dreaming of the great deeds of valour he wants to perform, and of a beautiful princess whose heart he will win, some strangely dressed people stop at the gates of the house. They are a company of strolling players. Their waggon is broken, and they ask the Comte to allow them to stay there until it is repaired. The youth is introduced to them by Alexandre Hardy, poet, and manager of the company; and he shakes hands with Miles. Amarante and Lucinde, with the fat Pymante, the thin Jodelet, and the noble Rosidor. But when Mlle. Florise makes her appearance Olivier is speechless with joy and admiration, for he has heard of her beauty and her talent. The players will only remain a few hours at the house, but much can be done in that time. The noble Rosidor starts making love to Aunt Célidée, whose diamonds have dazzled him; Pymante tickles Guillemette, the servant; and the latter makes eyes at the thin Jodelet. But Olivier has fallen madly in love with Florise, and he tells her so. The girl looks at him coldly, and shakes her head, but she, too, has caught the fever, and she promises the youth not to leave him. When Hardy learns this he is heart-broken. He, the poet, has always loved in her not only the great artist but also the woman. She is his muse, his all. And then he decides upon a stratagem. The old waggon is repaired, and in return for his hospitality Hardy asks the Comte to be allowed to let Rosidor and Lucinde play before him a scene of the piece he wrote. The rôle taken over by Lucinde was created by Florise, but as the latter informed Hardy that she would let the company depart without her the poet gives it to Lucinde. Seated near Olivier, Florise reproves Lucinde for the cold way in which she delivers her lines. She grows excited, and Olivier cannot check her, for she no longer is the woman who loves; she is the artist, the heroine in the piece. Florise leaves with her companions, and Olivier and his aunt are once more alone. The hurricane has passed, and they resume their quiet, uneventful life, a trifle sad, but resigned. With the exception of Mlle. Bady the work was well acted. Mlle. Bady, clever actress as she is, is not suited for the rôle of the refined Florise. M. Desjardins, however, gave a splendid impersonation of Alexander Hardy, the poet.

"BOUFFE-LA-ROUTE,"

Vaudeville, in Three Acts, by MM. Xanrof and Kraatz, produced at the Cluny on March 15.

Henriette Chantreau .....MLLE. BRELLY
Lazarette .....MLLE. FAVELLI
Arthémise Moutardet .....MME. FRANCK MEL
Justine .....MLLE. BARRE
Oenone .....MLLE. JEANNE HARDY
César Dumont-Latour .....M. J. PONCET
Hector Chantreau .....M. DAQUIN
Jean Caravel .....M. PERRET
Eustase .....M. VALOT

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 21.—Bouffe-la-Route has been adapted from the German, and the farce, we are told, raised roars of laughter all over the Fatherland. The Paris audience was less demonstrative, but it was much amused, and the piece is likely to prove a success. Hector Chantreau has been nicknamed "Bouffe-la-Route" because he is motor-mad; and Henriette, his charming little wife, is miserable to see him solely interested in his motor-car. Henriette is mistaken. The car does not engross all his attention. He has fallen in love with Lazarette, the wife of Dumont-Latour, a tragic actor. The Chantreaus have no children, but they have an aunt, Arthémise Moutardet, a funny creature, who dotes on children, and vows that Marielle, Henriette's sister, shall only marry a man who will be certain to increase the Moutardet family. And, as young Caravel has just proposed to Marielle, he is told he will have to satisfy the aunt that he will give every satisfaction. Caravel is at first taken aback, but he is resourceful, and informs the aunt that he has had a mistress who presented him with a baby. "Show me the baby!" says the aunt. Caravel then calls on Lazarette, and implores her to pretend that she has been his mistress and to tell the aunt that he is the father of her child. Lazarette is good-natured. She consents, but when her husband comes home unexpectedly and hears his wife say that she was Caravel's mistress, he flies into a terrible rage and grabs his revolver. In the third act things become still more complicated, for the unfortunate baby is in turns owned by all the personages in the play. It was fairly well acted, and I noticed with pleasure that the new Cluny management devoted more care on the staging.

"PARIS—NEW YORK,"

Play, in Three Acts, by MM. Francis de Croisset and E. Arène, produced at Réjane's, on March 16.

Lucien Duroc .....M. TARRIDE
Le duc de Ronceveaux .....M. BARON
Roland, Prince de Commersac.M. ANDRE BRULE

Princesse d'Herzégovine..MLLE. SUZANNE AVRIL

MM. Francis de Croisset and Emmanuel Arène's new comedy promised well at the start. The first act is excellent, but the second is lacking in interest, while the third falls decidedly flat. The American society woman fares badly in the piece; but, in their virtuous indignation at the eccentricities of the millionaires, the authors have piled on the agony and turned their heroine into a caricature that falls short of the original. We have a large American colony in Paris worth studying. Paris attracts the American ladies, who come here, as they say, for a three or a six months' stay; but who are so fascinated by the pleasures of the capital that they frequently remain three or four years, leaving their husbands toiling in their counting-houses to supply their ladies with the necessary funds. In fact, the American husband is turned into a "drawee," a man on whom bills can be drawn; and he seemingly puts up with that humble position. Some of these ladies hold very advanced ideas as to what a woman may or may not do. They frequently startle the good Parisian, but I doubt whether among the whole set there ever was one who "carried on" like Desdemone, the before-mentioned heroine, an enormously rich young widow, who has come to Europe with her father, Napoleon Belroë, one of the "Four Hundred" of New York, to marry Roland, Prince de Comersac. This Roland is a penniless aristocrat, son of the equally penniless Duke de Ronceveaux, whose old family château has been mortgaged up to the hilt. Roland is good-looking, and Desdemone, finding him to her taste, accepts him as her fiancé. And Roland, in order to marry the handsome and rich Desdemone, discards his pretty mistress Suzette, who calls him a "deceitful pig." But Desdemone holds peculiar views on women's prerogatives, and she does not consider it necessary to wait until the legal knot has been tied before investing Roland with marital rights. Unfortunately, Roland is a miserable creature, for having received Desdemone's favours he at once returns to little Suzette. Desdemone comes to the conclusion that her fiancé is a "deceitful pig," and she tells him so. She then casts her eye on Duroc, a painter; and as she wants him to become her husband she also makes a close "study" of him, like she did of the Prince. Duroc, however, although quite willing to become an object of "study," does not want to launch out into matrimony. Desdemone and her millions frighten him. Finally, Desdemone falls back upon one of her cousins, who has come all the way with her from New York in the secret hope of securing her for a wife. And he becomes her husband, despite the fact that the lady has not "studied" him at all. The long arm of coincidence also helps the old Duke, whose hopes to see money come into his impoverished family had dwindled to nothing. Young Harry, Desdemone's brother, falls in love with Hélène, Roland's sister, so that the family escutcheon of the noble Ronceveaux will be regilded after all. Mme. Réjane, with her wonderful talent for imitation, introduced just enough "twang" into the rôle of Desdemone to make it funny; and her impersonation of that extraordinary lady was altogether clever. She was ably assisted by the admirable cast.

IT is with the deepest regret that I have to announce the death of M. Torin, whom I had occasion to mention last week in connection with the première of La Puce à l'oreille, brought out at the Nouveautés. M. Torin, one of our best comic actors, was the joy of Paris. Few actors enjoyed such popularity, and in the profession everybody esteemed him for his upright character. English visitors to Paris who flock to the Nouveautés will remember him. His real name was Victorin Schiffer, and he made a successful début at the Gymnase, whence he went to the Vaudeville. But it was at the Nouveautés that he became famous. His first rôle there was in La Dame de chez Maxim, after which he played leading parts in the répertoire of that house. A splendid artist, and a gentleman in the highest sense of the word, Torin will be regretted by all who had the pleasure of knowing him.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS,

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The visit of Mr. H. B. Irving for various reasons has aroused the deepest interest of all classes in the city. With Aberdeen he begins his present tour, and all the plays in which he and his company appear are those long since made famous by his illustrious father. The Lyons Mail was presented on Monday night. Mr. Irving gave a fine interpretation of the double-part of Lesurques and Dubosc; Miss Dorothea Baird played with much pathos as Janette; Miss Sybil Noble was a very sweet Julie; and Messrs. E. Harcourt Williams as Courriol, Mr. Dodsworth as Choppard, and Mr. Tom Reynolds as Fouinard, portrayed their characters admirably. Mr. Frank Tyars was most successful as Jerome; and all the other parts were exceptionally well fitted. The repertory for the week includes The Bells, with Mr. Irving as Mathias; and the late Mr. W. G. Wills' Charles I.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Bella and Bijou, who appear with completely new business, make a brilliant success; Mr. J. W. Hall gives a wholly admirable turn, his singing and acting being alike effective; Mr. Jay W. Winton, ventriloquist, shows remarkable skill and resource; Halma, the youthful juggler, is not less successful; the Two Kays sing delightfully in their scena, The Nightingale; and Keith and Merson extract much fun out of their hunting sketch, The Meet. The drollery of Mr. Carl Howard is keenly relished; Miss Lily Foy is a graceful and sprightly comedienne; and Mr. Andy Fagan shows himself a clever "patterer" and dancer. "The Daughter of the Regiment" series of bioscope pictures is also highly appreciated.

The Zancigs.—This remarkable couple gave a wonderful, even awe-inspiring exhibition of their mental telepathic skill in the Music Hall last Monday. The house was crowded both in the afternoon and evening. Each feat was brought off without failure or falter, and the audiences were rapturous in their applause. The concert company included Miss Ethel Grimes, soprano; Miss Katie Moss, soprano; Miss Clara Alexander, plantation ditties; Mr. Sydney Jarvis, baritone; Mr. David Brazell, operatic baritone; Mr. E. Thornley-Dodge, society entertainer; and Mr. Harold E. Scott, pianist.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Miss Maud Hildyard's company opened here with The Great Awakening. Mr. J. McBride gives a most artistic reading of the part of Guy Rogan, and Mr. A. C. Hardie presents a truthful portrayal of James Selby; the dual rôle of Sir Henry and Jack Merton is carefully enacted by Mr. S. Langton, and Mr. Willie Scott serves to keep the house in good humour as Billy Brass. Molly Merton is very good by Miss Doris Digby, and the part of Selina Worts is in the safe hands of Miss Lalla Nordon. Miss Maud Hildyard gives a very powerful impersonation of Lola Lelby.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Wearin' o' the Green, an interesting Irish drama, with a good sprinkling of musical numbers, dances, and natural Hibernian humour, is being ably presented by Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mackey are responsible for prominent rôles, the former as Barney being a heavy scorer as premier mirth-provoker; and he has an able partner in Miss Nana Flensberg. Mr. Mansell Fane is also successful as Shamus.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company is here for the week with the melodrama, The Master Criminal. Mr. Henry L. Osmond gives a vivid portrayal of the title-rôle, his acting being watched with intense excitement. Admirable is the support given by Miss Winifred Chalmers, a finished actress in the varied character of Cecile. As Philip Manners, Mr. H. C. Macartney scores; and Mr. C. Carlyle must be commended on his impersonation of Ben Beandy of Scotland Yard. Very able interpretation, too, is given of Gentleman Jim, one of the Red Gang, by Mr. Ernest Noble; and humour is paramount when Mr. Henry Cooke is on the scene as Tommy Dale. Useful work is done by Messrs. Russell Yorke, W. B. Somerville, H. Mason, F. Jordan, G. Gilbert, G. Jordan, and Misses Nita Neville, Alice Lloyd, Mabel Tremere, Kate Somerville, and Little Lizzie Power.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The artists for the week at the Empire are Beattie Worth, a dainty comedienne, who sings and poses in a becoming manner; Doris Middleton, the wonderful mimic, appears successfully in her latest success; Mr. Gus Harris gives dramatic Hebrew creations; U. C. Ugo, assisted by Valeata, gives some mirthful myseries in his magical scena; Miss Daisy Palmer is a good serio and dancer; one of the features of the bill is the Smart Set, including Miss Hilda Light (soprano); Miss Georgie Martin, comedienne; the Five Musical Palmers, military musical experts, are greatly appreciated; Charles Windermere and Clare Manifield give a good comedy duologue; Mack Ollive, mimic and siffleur, and Miss Daisy Baldry are a clever couple; and Sam Shipley, eccentric dialect comedian. The Bioscope pictures are very good.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. E. Owen.—This week's programme here is headed by Sterling and Love in a vocal and instrumental comedy act, entitled A Domestic Musical Squabble, which is very enjoyable; the Sisters Selwyn are good as vocalists and speciality dancers; Mr. Tom Lloyd, a favourite comedian here, makes a welcome reappearance in old and new successes; Mr. E. C. Clayton's principal pictures on the Attergraph depict a graphic series, entitled "Hooligans of the West"; the Two Miltons give a scientific and comic skating act. Other interesting turns are supplied by Mr. Carson Hicks, coon delineator and dancer; Pueblo and Cropp, Creole artists; and Mr. H. Pawson, shadowgraphist.

AYR.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. Fred Karno's No. 1 Vaudeville Company opened here on Monday night, and their efforts were well received by a very fine audience. Mr. Chas. Denion made a great impression with his comic singing and quaint business; the Sisters Lavender sang and danced well; the Miltons caused genuine merriment; Lincoln and Warren, trick cyclists, were cheered for their clever and comical acrobatic turn; Lilly Stuart, comedienne, sang well and danced delightfully. The sketches, Mumming Birds and Early Birds, in which the whole of the company took part, afforded scope for some rollicking fun, and the result was most hilarious.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and Company opened with Hamlet on Monday, Mr. Wilkie giving a fine presentment of the unhappy Prince; Mr. G. Alexander Marsh made a capital Leartes; Mr. Herbert Morgan an impressive Ghost; and the part of Claudius was well taken by Mr. John Paley. Miss Ine Cameron was an effective Ophelia; and the Queen was well played by Miss Carrie Baillie. The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Romeo and Juliet, and The Bells are also billed.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The British Empire Talking Picture and Variety Company are paying a return visit here. The varieties include Mr. Arthur Bright, a clever comedian; Little Doris, juvenile vocalist; and Mr. Harry Lamb, an amusing Scotch comedian.

Tivoli.—Lessees, Messrs. Laban and Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban. — The chief item here this week is the Lorch Family, wonderful Risley performers, whose clever feats meet with loud applause; the Crown Trio render solos and trios in a pleasing manner; Miss Kathleen Corgan is a dainty little comedienne and dancer; Julian Mack (the dame) creates roars of laughter with his patter; and Eldra and his dog give a beautifully-dressed, clever, and interesting show. Emil and Ediss submit a high-class banjo performance; Charlie Russell's songs quite take on with the audience; and Vernon's Bioscope winds up the programme with some capital pictures.

BATH.—Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The programme here includes the Aquamarinoff Troupe of Russian dancers; Lauri Wylie, with his life-like mimical mannikin impersonations; Rosa Bonetti, who plays on the 'cello and violin with true artistic feeling; Wyndham and Walters, in The Professor and His Pupil; Edna Latonne, vocalist; Andie Burn, with his popular "Broken-down millionaire" song; T. C. Edwards, baritone; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company has been presenting during the week His House in Order, and has met with a hearty reception. As Nina, Miss Dorothy Grimston thoroughly deserved the success she achieved; Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Hilary Jesson created an excellent impression; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce's Filmer Jesson was most effective. Miss Doris Champion was an excellent Derek; Miss Jean Cadell put plenty of go into the part of Mlle. Thomè; and the Ridgeley family were cleverly portrayed by Mr. Herbert Lomas, Miss Augusta Haviland, Mr. Ernest R. Holloway, and Miss Elaine Sleddal.

BELFAST.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief attraction here is provided by Miss Irma Lorraine, who appears with success in a series of beautiful tableaux vivants. The Mackweys appear in their exceedingly smart and humorous wire act; and the clever actor, Mr. John Le Hay, and company, including Miss Mary Duggan and Mr. Charles Cantley, are seen in a musical and farcical episode. Bert Coote's Irish-Indian maids give songs and dances, and have made a hit; Mr. Will Van Allen, tramp musician and raconteur, deserves all the success he secures; Ross and Grayson are a droll comedy duo; Miss Daisy Davenport is a charming comedienne; and also here are Cole and Rags, R. C. Note, Mr. Hal Forde, light comedians, and the Palace pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walker.—The chief feature of the bill is provided by Mlle. Clasoum's living art bronzes. Mr. Picton Roxborough and Miss Fanny Wright create roars of laughter with their farcical episode, Cockie; and Harry Trevanion and company return with their sketch, A Bolt from the Blue, which is always acceptable. The Fitzroys are aptly described as graceful and clever gymnasts; and Ingram and Irving successfully appear in their sketch, The New Office Boy. Miss Kate Trail submits a really fine entertainment at the piano; and also appearing are the Knick-Knacks, the Three Missouris, in their humorous entertainment, Captain Kettle and his Mates, and Mr. George Ridgwell, actor-vocalist.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, is appearing here this week with unqualified success in the evergreen drama, The Colleen Bawn. Much praise is due to the accomplished actress, Miss Nina Blake-Adams, for her delightful impersonation of the title-rôle, Eily O'Connor, which she invests with much charm; Mr. Horace Denton sustained the part of Hardress Cregan with great power; and Mr. Cyril Grier appears to advantage as Kyrle Daly. In the rôle of Myles-na-Coppaleen Mr. Tom H. Solly acquits himself with great credit, his humour being fairly irresistible; and the rôle of Danny Mann is undertaken by that experienced actor, Mr. H. Hesselgrave. Mr. Edward M. Heanley powerfully depicts the part of Mr. Corrigan; Mr. Elmore Frith is Father Tom to the life; and Miss Mattie Crawford's graceful assumption of Anne Chute has much to commend it. Miss Isabel Norman acquits herself with much distinction as Mrs. Cregan; and the cast is completed by Miss Alice Clarke, and Messrs. Ed-Smyth and J. E. Davies. The Alhambra Bioscope—under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove—exhibits a series of pictures, "The Hooligans of the Far West."

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Under the direction of Mr. Haldane Crichton, we have A Soldier of Fortune, which is capitally and interestingly played. Mr. Godfrey Tearle as Lieut. Rupert Clive is really excellent, and a host in himself; the same may be said of Miss Molly Malone as the Lady Phyllis. Then other artists well to the front and effective in their impersonations are Messrs. Alfred Gray (Earl of Annandale), Baliol Holloway (Sir Stephen Cunningham), and William Lowe (Dr. Thorn). Mr. Victor Swann has a good comedy part as Silas Marne.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—The Moody-Manners Operatic Society was announced to begin a return visit here on Good Friday, inaugurating a brief season with a sacred concert.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A really fine company here this week includes such well-known comedians as Mark Sheridan, George Formby, G. W. Hunter, and Frank Seeley, who are all enthusiastically received. Miss Maud Cherry, comedienne, has many admirers; Fraser and Mac, patterers and instrumentalists, are a favourite turn; Miss Jessie Merrilees is an accomplished soprano vocalist; and Bliss and Bliss, eccentric comedians, have made a hit. Brown's Royal Bioscope, with some up-to-date pictures, is an acquisition.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Charley's Aunt is the attraction here, with the author, Mr. Brandon Thomas, as the Colonel. Both play and playwright are enthusiastically greeted; and Mr. Spencer Trevor as the pseudo-aunt, otherwise Lord Fancourt Babberley, is the delight of all. Miss Lena Macnaughten is gracious and dignified as the real aunt, Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and youth and ability are conspicuous in Miss Bertha Northam as Kitty, Miss Ida Vynall as Amy, and Miss Ruth Nightingale as Ela. Mr. Walter Beaumont portrays the fussy and discomfited solicitor, Spettigue, most ably; Mr. Sydney Compton is part and parcel of the play as Brassett; and Messrs. Hastings Lynn and Richard B. Mason feature the undergraduates, Chesney and Wykeham, admirably. A Highland Legacy, also by Brandon Thomas, acts finely as a curtain-raiser.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company are paying their annual visit, which is always hailed with delight. The Mikado was down for Monday and Thursday, when it was at once apparent that neither opera nor company had lost their power to please. Miss Hope Hastings as Yum-Yum, and her fair compeers, the Misses Lulu Evans and Mabel Burege, charmed everyone with their exquisite vocalisation; Miss Theresa Rassam sang with rare emotion and skill as Katisha; the title-rôle was given with many subtle touches by Mr. Alfred Kavanagh; Mr. Chas. R. Walenn revealed splendid powers of comedy and vocalisation as the executioner; Mr. Fred Billington was among the shining lights as Pooh-bah; Mr. Pacie Ripple carried the rôle of Zanki-Poo with grand effect; and Mr. Leicester Tunks as Pish-Tush, and Mr. Fred Drawater as Go-To were successful. The choral and orchestral parts were also irreproachably rendered, and subsequent performances of The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, and The Yeomen of the Guard showed the very perfection of detail.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella has now reached its fourteenth, and last, week, which, as usual, is being marked with many "finishing touches." Miss Bessie Butt's benefit on Thursday promised big things, her winsome and talented portrayal of the heroine having won her great fame and the "Owl Cake" to boot. Last Wednesday week the "Nuts" patronised the pantomime, adorned with the insignia of their order, and gave presents around, including a beautiful illuminated address and a silver salver to Mr. Collingwood. Last Sunday Mr. Collingwood entertained the lady members of the company to dinner, meting out the same generous treatment to the gentlemen on Monday. To-night is "last night," and this is always a great function here—ergo, a hearty send-off and other things will doubtless be accorded every artist.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Not Guilty is the announcement here, Mr. Melville's Metropole Company being responsible for some fine characters and situations. Mr. Percy Dawson's well-known and clever handling of sympathetic or heroic parts is well bestowed on the character of Harry Grafton; Mr. Austin Milroy's polished and incisive manner has good effect in the rôle of Oswald Brandon; Mr. Fred A. Marston as Nick Chaddox is a well recognized figure; Mr. Edward Finlay places the part of James Smiley on its rightful pedestal; Mr. Morley Carroll is successful as Jacob Grafton; and Mr. Francis Everard as Woodleigh, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor as Timothy Sprouts, and Miss Amy Corelli as Nancy Sarah Lee contribute much to the well-being of the play. Miss Rose Ralph has the audience well with her as Nelly Chaddox; Miss Florence Trevoir is admired as Alice Clavering, and Miss Kate Walfred is prominent as Mary Bird.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A Woman Worth Winning has scored well here. The company engaged therein is headed by Mr. Percy Norman, who, as General Borinski, gives proof of sound ability. Mr. A. B. Mackay moves the audienece to enthusiasm as Fergus Lorinskie; Miss Maud Buchanan gives a very good and highly sympathetic account of the heroine, Roma Pauloff; Miss Iris Daventry undertakes the rôle of Lola satisfactorily; and the comicalities of Mr. E. Hall Eldon as Bertie Scrubbles, Mr. E. C. Edwards as Peter Popples, and Miss Ida Mackay as Katerina are cleverly devised and much apreciated.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Unseen Power is attracting large audiences here, with Mr. Harry Starr's company. Mr. Starr's well-known ability for disguise serves him to advantage in the rôle of Fred Granville; Miss Dolly Starr makes herself a great favourite as the son, Chris; Mr. Wm. Miller scores in fine style as Harold Granville; Mr. Wm. Hee wins approval as George; Mr. Edwin Firth stirs up desirable feeling as the steward, Antonio Romano; Miss Madge Blundell acts with perfect grace and ability as Anita; Miss Kate Morris is deserving of praise as Lucretia; Miss Lye Jeffries does well as Lucy Romano; Mr. Fred W. Graham keeps the audience in high glee as Horatio Cracklenby, the actor; and Miss Lizzie Jacobs lends useful support as Jennie Shrub.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Fred Karno's comedians can always be relied upon for a clever turn, and their latest production, Jail Birds, is as successful as their other sketches; Tom Costello depicts the laughable side of the suffragette movement, and gives several of his old favourites, including "The old clown"; the Stein Eretto Troupe of hand-jumpers give a very clever performance, concluding by jumping to the top of three tables; Don A. Meeley's combination give a comedy speciality act, entitled A Merry Tramp; while The Gems present an original turn, in which song and mirth are happily blended. Stelling and his canine comedian "Kiswaski"; Edie Veno, comedienne; Fred Frampton, burlesque actor; and Jeannie Carron, Scotch factory lass, also contribute enjoyable items.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—John Tiller's sketch, entitled Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp, has proved so successful that it is retained for another week. The extravaganza is supported by a variety combination, including Gunner Moir, the well-known boxer, who recently defeated Tiger Smith, a picture of the contest being shown on the Bioscope. The programme is completed by Arthur Royce, who presents a capital turn at the piano; and Gus Hindell, a quaint comedian.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Mendel, the celebrated blind pianist, heads the bill this week, with his wonderful performance; a dramatic episode, entitled The Mystery of the Cliff, by Messrs. Will Evans and Tom Craven, is much appreciated; Lozelle is a charming athlete, his performance ranking with those of the first water; another musical item is presented by Carlos Menard, trick violinist, his imitations of various animals and birds being very clever; Tom Lally has a fine voice; and Prof. Barney Vox is a very amusing ventriloquist. Harry Clifford comedian, receives an enthusiastic welcome.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — Mr. George Edwardes's company is here this week with the new Chinese comic opera, See See, which gets the most cordial reception nightly. Mr. Frank Danby as Hang Kee, and Mr. W. H. Rawlins as Cheoro, are hosts in themselves, and are singled out for special honours; Mr. Leonard Mackay is also well to the fore, and both by his singing and acting in the part of Yen, fully merits the applause showered upon him. The title-rôle is sweetly portrayed by Miss Octavia Barry; Miss Lilian Hewitson gracefully plays Mai-Yai; and Miss Topsy Sindon quickly dances herself into favour as So-Hie. The dresses and scenery are really magnificent.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A very good all-round programme is provided here this week. The chief favourite is probably Russell Wallett, "the Lady in Black"; whilst Tony Wilson and Heloise are specially admired by lovers of gymnastic turns. The Coloured Meisters are tuneful vocalists, and they also meet with a warm reception; Victor Travers, a clever comedian; Ethel Dove, vocalist and dancer; Cissie Dryden, vocal character actress; Arthur Croxon, mimic; Barrett and Knowles, comedians; Lillian Rigby, in a musical act; Millie Howell, vocalist; and Brady and Johnson's comedy sketch company, also worthily take their respectiye places in the bill.

BLYTH.— Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee, Mr. G. E. Good.—A crowded house has accorded the company here a capital reception. Olgo and Rochelle's comedy business in An Actor's Antics creates much hilarity; Clare Hastings finds favour, her number being well rendered; Charles Onsley gives a fine display of dancing; and the Gaiety Bioscope is much in evidence.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—The variety turns that supplement the Pictures here include J. H. Kavanagh, comedian, whose turn met with a hearty reception. Bob Ord, vocalist, does a good turn; Sabino, the man of many instruments, wins favour; and D'Ord gives a capable gymnastic performance.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here with the comedy drama At Cripple Creek. Mr. Stanley Bedwell gives a manly rendering of the part of Joe Mayfield; Miss Lily Beagle is successful as Bella Gordon; the character of Little Tatto is delightfully taken by little Rosie Hopkins, who sings and dances cleverly; Miss Agnes Verity gives a powerful delineation of Dynamite Ann; Mr. Will Hook is amusing as Reggie Harwood; Miss Daisy Carlton sings and dances well as Maggie Mason; Mr. Eric Hudson is good as Martin Mason, the "terror of Cirpple Creek"; and Mr. Oscar Power as Manuel Alvarez, Mr. Arthur D. Layland as Wahketah, and Mr. Harry Leander as Ben White deserve praise in their several impersonations.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon. —The diversified programme here this week includes Messrs. Newhouse and Ward, cyclists, jugglers, &c., in their latest success, The Amateur Marksman; Miss Maud Kaye, coon vocalist and dancer; Alix Lukos, actor-vocalist; Charles Lestree, juggler extraordinary; Mr. Flockton Foster and his sketch company in Ferdie's Ma-in-Law; Miss Millie Payne, in songs peculiarly quaint; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas in scenes from Dickens; Harry Morris, character comedian and comic; Pete and Juno, coloured comedians and dancers; The Little Guttersnipe, by a company of old favourites and new faces; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Young.—Miss G. Silvester and Mr. Fletcher Sansome's company is presenting Cissy here this week. Mr. Harry Vernon plays and sings well as Victor Carleton; and the title-rôle is cleverly portrayed by Miss Hettie Lind, who scores well with her songs. Mr. Basil Mitchell is well placed as Gilbert Temple, and Miss D. Eastlake is seen to advantage as Olive Temple. Mr. Fletcher Sansome creates much amusement as Titus Thomas, and Miss G. Silvester does well as Mary Mopps. The Vernon Trio are worthy of mention in their acrobatic dances.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Sydney James' Strolling Players form the chief turn here, and are well appreciated in their refined entertainment of song and dance. Ernest Rees is a popular comedian, and causes much amusement with his patter; the Three Sisters Silcott shine as vocalists and dancers; Burnetti and Corrie are a clever and amusing pair of jugglers; Russell Carr is a good exponent of the ventriloquial art; Flo Warner is well received in her songs. Rosie Bartlett, who proves to be a chic comedienne, and the Hippodrome pictures conclude a good night's entertainment.

BOSTON.—Palace Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—Closed this week, reopen next week with the musical sketch, Crusoe the Sailor. Return visit of the famous Revell troupe and powerful company.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The theatre is closed until Saturday, the 30th, San Toy being billed for that date.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is appearing here this week in the dramatised version of Mrs. Beecher Stowe's work, Uncle Tom's Cabin. The part of Mr. St. Clair is in the excellent hands of Mr. Harrington; Mr. J. Carr's Uncle Tom is a performance of cleverly-blended pathos and humour; Mr. J. H. Rogers is effective in a vigorous impersonation of the brutal Simon Legree; Miss Holly Haslewood prettily and pathetically fills the part of Little Eva; the mischievous Topsy is a bright and humorous impersonation by Miss Sylvia Stella; George Harris has a good exponent in Mr. Leslie Beaufort; as the irrepressible Marks Mr. W. Langford is well placed; Miss Hero Hathaway wins sympathy as Eliza Harris; Phineas Fletcher is capitally played by Mr. J. H. Renney.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. George Lashwood had a hearty reception on his reappearance here on last Monday night, and his new scena Oh, for a Night in the West! was one of the best of his bright, finished, and telling contributions to a fine programme, which includes Park's Eton Boys, a combination of good juvenile vocalists; Frank Cass, comedian; the Tauberts, who give a brilliant and artistic xylophone performance; Carrie Joy, comedienne; Azella Wilson, a smart and very graceful performer on the trapeze; Fred Elton, in an entertaining scena, On Board an Ocean Liner; Ailsa Douglas, vocalist; and some very fine pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ralli.—There is a company of all-round excellence here this week, which includes Minnie Fenton, a very dainty Scotch comedienne; Steve McCarthy, comedian, whose dancing is clever and unique; Fioretti and Elly, in a novel and clever barrel and spade jumping act; Lise Rolland, a very graceful and clever petite equilibrist and acrobat; Marie Kendall, bright as ever, with her telling and catchy songs; Nat Clifford, comedian, whose humour and funny "patter" provokes very hearty laughter, and whose dancing is distinctly original; the Krags, in a marvellous performance on the rings, combining grace with Herculean strength; Helen Charles, in a delightful drawing-room entertainment, combining music and mimicry; and some very interesting pictures shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIGHTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveux presented Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company here on Monday with The Walls of Jericho. Mr. A. E. Anson gave a manly and thoroughly artistic impersonation of Jack Frobisher, whose Australian friend, Hankey Bannister, had a sterling exponent in Mr. George A. Brandram. Miss Gladys Mason submitted an excellent enactment of Lady Alethea Frobisher; Miss Marguerite Cellier was refined and graceful as the warm-hearted Lady Westerby; Miss Nona Wynne made a bright Lady Lucy Derenham; Mr. Cyril Baleine's Marquis of Steventon was a clever character-study; Mr. A. W. Tyrer acquitted himself admirably as Harry Dallas; and able support was given by Mr. George Percy (Bertram Hannaford), Miss Edith Cuthbert (Miss Mornington), and Miss Leonora Thomas (the Duchess of Skye).

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is here this week with Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil merits warm praise for her finished enactment of Nellie Harborne; Mr. Charles A. Leicester is admirably suited as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor; Mr. Douglas Tremayne gives a good portrayal of the Rev. Lionel Strong; Miss Maria Clavering's Mme. Gabrielle, and Miss Frances Bruce's Lilian Harborne are well played. Mr. Charles Stirling is successful as the Hilarity Lounge proprietor; and much amusement is afforded by Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny, and Mr. J. Telby Dillsen as Jerry Gotobed.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—George Robey, who is enthusiastically received, achieves distinct success with his songs and delightful patter; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of Australian trick cyclists submit a clever turn; Cline and Clark are capital black and white comedy artists and speciality dancers; Barlee and Smith are warmly applauded for their amusing episode, A Rehearsal; Edgar Budden, comedian, is clever with the bones, and is an expert roller-skate dancer; the Sisters Belmont are neat duettists and dancers; Sydney Carden, "a man and a piano," is well received; Ada Ollison, comedienne, and Grace Langley, comedienne and dancer, merit praise; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payte are pleasing society entertainers; and the up-to-date Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is a capital company here this week. Phyllis Dare, who is warmly welcomed, gives her songs with grace and refinement; Cruikshank, "the fool of the family," is amusing; the Three Rubys are successful in their equipoise, acrobatic, and trapeze act; the Four Brothers Rio give a clever gymnastic turn; the Brothers Ashley are mirth-provoking in their sketch, Next, Please, which includes some smart boxing; Sam Spira, "entertainer at the piano," evokes hearty laughter; the Twin Andersons are warmly applauded for their skipping-rope dances; W. J. Churchill is a very quaint comedian; Harry Conlin, comedian, is successful; Wright and Elton are effective in their original "mirthisms"; Stan Aubrey is a good legmania comedian; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

West Pier.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Hilton St. Just's opera company is here this week, and includes Mlle. Louise Van Dalle (soprano), Mme. Marie Burnett (contralto), Mr. Hilton St. Just (tenor), Mr. Allen Morris (baritone), and Mr. F. H. Wood (bass). The admirably sustained programmes include Maritana, Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

BRISTOL. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here for a second week, the attraction now being the military play, Death or Glory Boys. The drama is played well, both in the way of scenery and uniforms, and the company is an efficient one all round. Captain Glyn Ferrars is played with considerable power by Mr. Hill-Mitchelson; Jack Malden has a conscientious and clever exponent in Mr. George Daiper; Mr. Wilton Reed acts in a highly effective manner as Colonel Ferguson; Mr. Lancelot Usher has a good part in Lieutenant Duff, and he makes the most of his opportunities; Miss Violet Carlyle presents a charming and interesting exposition of Nina Ferguson; Miss Amy Ellam distinguishes herself as Edith Malden; and the comic parts of Nat Wilks and Jane are capitally taken by Mr. J. Russell Boyne and Miss Maud Stuart.

Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Mark Melford and company head the bill with their amusing sketch, Non-suited, which is capitally played, and well staged. On Monday evening, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of Mr. Melford and his company, Mme. Lumiere gave a display of dancing, and obtained much appreciation. The Lyons Trio, pantomimists and dancers, are popular; Crosby and Walker excel as cross-talk comedians; Arthur Goodmar scores with juggling; Yolonde Noble is a pleasing comedienne; Horace White, ventriloquist, is applauded; Webb and Edna Branston are successful vocalists; Percy Curry, comedian, has some good songs; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures. For Good Friday a special entertainment was announced for the benefit of Mr. Welchman, a very attractive bill having been provided by the much-esteemed secretary and treasurer of this theatre.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Dr. Bodie is packing the house with his series of interesting electrical experiments, in which he passed thousands of volts through his body, and does other extraordinary acts. Dr. Bodie, in a few words, explained his method of treating apparently hopeless cases of paralysis, and, in the presence of the audience, successfully operated upon several cases. Successful turns were also given by Mignon, in a refined drawing-room act; Belford and Mars, duettists and dancers; Primavesi, juggler, &c.; Belle Skene, comedienne and dancer; the Acmes, in their musical comedy act; Little Dolly Robson, vocalist, and one of Dr. Bodie's cures; Sisters Reno, international dancers; Tom H. Mills, actor-vocalist; and Minnie Mace, comedienne.

BURNLEY.—Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—One of the best of programmes is submitted here this week. The Brothers Egbert are a clever couple with their farcical comedy, The Happy Dustmen, in which their acrobatic feats are highly appreciated; Ernie Myers, one of the funniest of comedians; Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws, in a pretty Tyrolean scena; the Brothers Zampah, one-legged acrobats; Coreeze and Keith, a pair of smart jugglers and comedy artists; and Lily Lonsdale, vocalist, are also in the bill. "The Reign of Terror," as shown by the New Empire Theatroscope, is excellent.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — Opera House (New Hippodrome).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Manager, Mr. John Walter.—A good company here this week is headed by Mlle. Florence, of rolling globe fame, who gives a finished show; "Abex," the Miniature Hercules, does some astonishing feats of strength; William Kingsley is an expert handbell performer; Hoozee scores with an amusing ventriloquial entertainment; Ervin and Charlotta, illusionists; George Bernard, clever vocal actor; Gladys Wells, comedienne; Altom and Lois, comedy jugglers; and Mr. Harry Keeble, up-to-date comedian, with some good songs, are also in the bill.

BURY (Lancs.). — Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. Augustine Knight and company are here, playing the modern drama, The Assassin. Miss Ella Vane is good in the title-rôle; and Mr. Augustine Knight makes a villainous Prince Demetri. Miss Hettie Senior as Connie Jonathan, and Mr. E. C. Ashby as Impanoff, are also worthy of special mention.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould. —The Three Graces, living statues, are the chief attraction here this week. Other capital turns include Henri Bekker, conjurer; Stylo, hoop manipulator; Horace Monti, who sings dance; Jury's pictures are again enjoyable; and the Royal Quintette, in their National dances, win applause which is well merited.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Patrons of the handsome new theatre are this week delighted by the charming play of Jerome K. Jerome, entitled Tommy, in which the accomplished actress Miss Annie Hughes makes a welcome reappearance in Cardiff. The piece requires very delicate handling, but receives every care from the excellent company supporting Miss Hughes, whose impersonation of the title-rôle is undoubtedly a very fine piece of acting. Mr. Evelyn Vernon in the character of Peter Hope displays considerable cleverness, his make-up being exceptionally good. As Wm. Clog, Mr. Willie Hartell draws many a smile by his smart and energetic exposition; while Dick Danvers receives a truthful and painstaking delineation from Mr. Rupert Lister, an actor of much ability. Miss Winifred Pearson makes the most of the part of Mr. Morrison; Miss Ida Richardson is an excellent Honour; and Mr. Reginald F. Beach, in his amusing representation of Flipp, shows true histrionic powers. The play is preceded by the well-known curtain-raiser Good-for-nothing Nan, in which Miss Hughes is seen to great advantage.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—For the first time we have a visit of Mr. James Hare's company in the romantic Servian drama A Destroyer of Men. Mr. Hare gives an effective study of Karl Mischla; Mr. C. P. Wentworth as Count Starevitch displays histrionic ability; Michael Mischla is ably impersonated by Mr. Chas. Bickell; and Mr. Arthur Conroy is excellently placed as General Drakensburg. Special mention should be made of Miss Irene Clifford, whose delineation of Olga Mischla is most powerful. The piece is livened by the clever comedy of Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tachoski, who is capably supported by Miss Alice Buckland as the sprightly Nina. A particularly charming heroine is found in Miss Gladys Lloyd.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—A more clever or daring troupe of risleyists than the Kremo Family it would be hard to find, their performance being undoubtedly the most marvellous seen here for some considerable time. A great advance on the cinematograph bioscope is Gaumont's Chronophone; the Three Prestons present a laughable comedy sketch, entitled The Liftman's Rise; J. W. Rickaby is an exceedingly amusing comedian; Fernee's Juveniles are exceptionally good; and others on the programme are Milford Bros, Welsh burlesque comedians; Ruby Dahl, with her latest novelty The Merry Mannikins; and Arthur Gill, with his excellent singing.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The amusing farcical comedy, A Night Out, is a big attraction here this week, and as it is performed by one of Mr. Charles Macdona's companies, needless to say it is well played and liberally mounted. The principal honours are easily gained by that popular comedian, Mrs. Charles Sugden, who as Paillard, the architect, was the life and soul of the piece. He received excellent support from Mr. Edward Thirlby, a clever young comedian, whose spirited and amusing impersonation of Pinglet was much admired; Mr. Mark Lester, too, as the stuttering Mathieu, was quite successful; Mrs. Charles Sugden, who looked charming as Mrs. Paillard, made the most of her few opportunities; Pinglet's wife had a delightful representative in Miss Constance Groves; and the servant was played with any amount of vivacity by Miss Lilian Stafford.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—A good programme is submitted here this week. Chief interest centres in the first appearance of Mr. Ernest Shand, who has "caught on" most decidedly; Bob Hamilton is a clever Scotch comedian and concertina player; Bert Byrne also finds favour; Mr. Frank Maura is a wonderful foot juggler; The Man in Possession, a cleverly-written little sketch, is amusingly presented by Messrs. Blake and Granby; Miss Lilian Lowe sings with excellent effect; and Gravetta and Parr contribute a pot-pourri act, which is notable for its versatility.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longdon, and Livesey's company with The Village Blacksmith is appearing here for the first time. Mr. Sam Livesey gives a sound and effective performance of John Strong, his acting throughout reaching a high standard. Mr. Joseph Carter brings out with force all the malevolence and treachery of the unscrupulous Captain Leo; Miss Maggie Edwards's assumption of Kate Strong is charmingly unaffected; and Miss Cassie Le Grande is well placed as Ruth Parkins. Much of the comedy is supplied by Mr. George V. Campbell as Billy Twigg; Mr. Edwin Mayhew is very good as Lucas Marlar; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall gives a characteristic portrayal of Jeremiah Parkins; and the Sal Parkins of Mrs. T. C. Livesey is especially praiseworthy. Miss Bertha Hanbury gives a pleasing embodiment of Harry Strong; Miss Edith Giddens makes a capital Martha Mopps; and Mr. George Wilton does well as St. John Harman.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Charles Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The Leopold Family top the bill here as lady and gentlemen acrobatic tumblers, and their work is done with exceptional neatness and skill. Kyoto is responsible for hearty laughter as a comedy Japanese entertainer; Handel and Lee show decided talents as instrumentalists; the tenor vocalism of Reg. Sugden is highly appreciated; Alf. Bishop as "the little lump of fun" is much applauded; Kelly and Kelly are clever as head balancers; May Geraldine, with dash and chic, contributes some much-appreciated ditties; and Jessie Star, described as "the female Harry Lauder," is appreciated.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company, in the drama, Proof, is paying a return visit here. Mr. Gerald Kennedy is a convincing Pierre Lorance; Mr. W. J. Butler gives a forcible representation of Lazare; Chamboran is made a humorous personage in the hands of Mr. Wilford Bailey; and Mr. Carl Beechey gives every satisfaction as Duke D'Aubeterre. Miss Beatrice Shirley as Adrienne has a part which fits her like the proverbial glove; Miss Avron is a stately Duchess D'Aubeterre; whilst Miss Phena Powell appears to advantage as Mme. Depretz. Miss May Grimshaw does good work as Valentine, displaying considerable ability in her scene with Lazare in Act 3. Mr. Albert Cavendish is the business and stage manager for Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren.

CHORLEY (Lancs).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—The popular drama, The New World, is here this week. The company is a capital one, and includes Mr. Victor Rae, who is exceptionally good as Jack Hawley; Jim Rawlins is effectively rendered by Mr. W. S. Stevenson; and Pete (with songs, &c.) capitally presented by Mr. Willie Hicks, Messrs. Will Bass and Fred Guinness as Brutus Brown and Sam Smart respectively do very excellent work, and are much appreciated; Miss Beatrice Moore charmingly presents Jenny Williams, and is particularly pleasing in her several specialities; and Miss Evelyn Robson is well suited as May Walton.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—These boards are occupied this week with Mr. Fred Benton's company in the drama The French Spy. The part of Captain Sommers is well acted by Mr. Beresford Lovett; Mr. Max Coutts is highly successful as Count Romanoff; Mr. Hugh Travers speaks his lines well as General Trapoff; Mr. Charles Digby is amusing as Viscount Alexis; and the same may be said of Mr. Seymour Perry as Knipps. Miss A. Harrison Tate makes a charming Olga. The central figure, however, is the Countess Ande, the French spy, and in the hands of Miss Madge Devereaux it receives every justice.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Percy M. Stephenson and company top the bill with a dramatic playlet founded on the Irish rebellion, and entitled Face to Face. Mlle. Renée, who is an immense favourite here, is vociferously applauded for each item of her musical act; Helen Martin, who possesses a singularly melodious voice, is popular with songs and ballads; Florence Leonard sings very sweetly, and is capitally received; a like remark applying to the reception of Fred Collins, the Scotch comedian.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A return visit of the popular and well known drama, The Plucky Nipper, is being paid by Miss Bonwin Carlton and company, and on Monday night a creditable house gave it a hearty reception. Captain Frank Leslie and Ina Fenwick, the hero and heroine, are successfully taken by Mr. Morris Maud and Miss Esther Lamont respectively; Bill Burgess is capitally portrayed by Mr. Edward Surrey, the author of the piece; and as the Plucky Nipper, Miss Bonwin Carlton soon wins the esteem of the audience. Miss Kitty Maynard also deserves praise for her rendering of the blind girl, Daisy Paget. All the other characters are excellently chosen, and a word of praise should be given to the scenery and effects.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—An excellent programme is being submitted by the management at the above house this week. The Aurora Troupe of trick cyclists, consisting of four men and a girl, perform some clever feats, and are most successful; another very enjoyable turn is provided by Dare's Minstrels, whose jokes, songs, and glees are well rendered. Morgan and Stewart receive an ovation in their vocal scena, Leaving Ireland; Howard and Collinson appear in a capital sketch, entitled The Porter and Professional; Frank Crouch is successful in some clever patter and songs; the Three Cape Girls, comediennes and dancers, give a capital show, and are heartily received; Vernon's Bioscope pictures concluding the programme.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company is giving us In Old Madrid this week. Mr. Leslie Austin takes the two characters, Frank Lyndhurst and Count Corregillo, in a masterly manner; Mr. George Whillis makes a first-class Toreador; Mr. Alf. Stretton as Fernando Cassilus handles the heavy part in able style; Mr. Walter T. Hybert as Horatio J. Rogers is responsible for the fun of the piece; and Mr. Chas. Burns makes a good Marmaduke R. FitzSimmons. Miss Edith Claris as Madeleine Ellesmere pleases the audience; Miss Lily Seymour is particularly well suited as Martha Jane Alice Grey Montmorency; Miss Francesca Strickland deserves special mention for her fine portrayal of Violet Lyndhurst; Miss Louie Fountaine's rendering of Lola Stittagano must not be overlooked; and Miss Amy Shaw and Miss Carlene Yorick, as Gracie Featherstone and Maude de Vere, are very well placed.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Her Nameless Child is presented here this week by Mrs. S. Duckworth's company. Mr. J. W. Evelyn gives a powerful representation of Anthony Ford; Mr. Herbert Evelyn is suitably placed as Arthur Ford; Lord Henry Woodville is vigorously played by Mr. Ellerslie Pyne; Mongrole is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Griffiths; Mr. Fred Danvers causes amusement as Tom Rivers; Miss Pattie Hastings gives a careful rendition of the rôle of Phyllis Ford; Miss Grace Jones is an excellent Lady Sibil Woodville; Miss Florence Hall a bright and vivacious Bessie Brooks; and Miss Madge Trevelyan a good Crayont.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Miss Loie Esmonde's company in The Sorrows of Satan is the attraction here this week. The part of Prince Lucio Rimanez has a capable exponent in Mr. Edward Neville; Mr. J. McCaigh earns distinction as Geoffrey Tempest; Mr. Fredk. Cherry is amusing as Morris; Mr. H. Carrington as Amiel is very effective; and Mr. Coleman Davis successfully represents Lord Lytton. Miss Rosie Neville as Mavis Clare is creditable; Miss Loie Ecmond plays the part of Diana Chesney in an able manner; Miss Cecil Bryne gives a good portrayal of Mrs. Grimbes; and Lady Sybil Elton is charmingly impersonated by Miss Cecilia Dare.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—A powerful programme is put forward here. Especially refreshing are the inimitable comedy duo, Allsopp and Bekwith, who bring down the house with their quaint and clever act I'm Coming Upstairs; Harriet Fawn is an excellent character comedienne; The Six Lancashire Lasses sing and dance themselves into favour; Sam Mayo, the immobile comedian, creates roars of laughter; Fred Earle, comedian, is invigorating; Duval and Maguire are great in a novelty burlesque act; the Marconis are astounding in their fire and electric display; the New York Comedy Four are amusing; and the Grand National on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is very good.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and company are here in the new play, Anna of the Plains, and the comedietta, Jocelyn the Jester. In the former piece Mr. H. A. Saintsbury is a typical Bible-reading Boer; Miss Dorothea Desmond, in the title-rôle, effectively portrays the part; Miss V. Vivian as the Boer's second wife is worthy of comment; Mr. Hilliard Vox as Michael O'Donoghan is extremely good; and Mr. C. H. Crocker-King has a good grip of the character of Piet Van Heller.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—During the latter half of last week the boards of this theatre were occupied by Mr. John H. Tomkinson's No. 1 Royal Gipsy Company with an excellent variety entertainment. Under the Czar is the attraction this week. Mr. Wilson Howard is capital as Nicholas Yeroslaff; Mr. Geo. H. Doyle gives an effective rendering of the villainous Kovesky; Miss Nellie Bonser is responsible for some fine work as Sonia; and Miss Madge Clare makes a pleasing Zara. Comedy is introduced by Mr. Louis Weston (Paul Ignat), Mr. Carl Vallendar (Petroff), and Miss Beatrice Annersley (Siomka).

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Langley Wyatt.—Mr. Robt. Crossman's company is here on a return visit in Sergeant Brue. Mr. Arthur Reynolds repeats his pronounced success in the title-rôle, and Miss Cissy Raymond very charmingly acts Lady Bickenhall. Crooky Scrubbs is cleverly accounted for by Mr. Clarence Ibbotson, and Mr. J. W. Goldsworthy plays Michael Brue with much success. The Aurora Brue of Miss May Hay is a capital presentment; and Mr. Chas. Sims makes a creditable Mr. Crank. Miss Ethel Ivinev as Mabel Widget, and Miss Marian Hargrave as Daisy, are both praiseworthy. Altogether a capital all-round performance.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The premier position in a varied programme is occupied by the Avolos, gymnasts, whose remarkably clever performance is generously applauded; the Voldam Brothers, Dutch eccentric acrobats, create hearty laughter, and fully maintain their reputation; the Watson Family provide a musical interlude, which is much appreciated; J. H. Wakefield scores as a coon comedian; and the Calcotts, duettists and dancers, introduce some pleasing banjo selections. Other enjoyable turns are contributed by the Paragon Trio, vocalists; Lily Sharplin, a dainty mimetic comedienne; and the bioscope, with up-to-date films.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George S. King.—Mr. John A. Thompson's company is on a short visit in Jack and the Beanstalk. Miss Edith Wallace is an attractive principal boy; Miss Maggie Allwood quickly ingratiates herself with the audience for her portrayal of Jill, her singing being a strong feature; Messrs. Teddy Worth and P. Galino provide heaps of amusement by their grotesque representations of Tommy Tucker and Billy Piper; Miss Georgie Mansell is loudly applauded for her singing of the popular "Different girl again"; and Mr. R. Lomas is a smart rope performer.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Hour of Her Triumph is being played here. Harold Clavering is artistically presented by Mr. Harry Stuart; Mr. Clifton Earle as Jack Vernon proves himself a capable actor; Mr. F. J. Webb's nonchalance and sangfroid are peculiarly adapted to the part of Eugene Harberry; Mr. Louis Nanton as Ben Brodie is characteristic; Miss M Danvers Smith makes a success as Nellie Clavering; and Miss Mamie Stanton bears herself with grace in the rôle of Linda Denton.

DUBLIN. — EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The programme presented here this week is a strong one, and is being patronised by full houses nightly. The premier position is allotted to Kitchen and Lister in an amusing sketch entitled No. 99, which meets with a good reception. An excellent turn is provided by the Robertys troupe of speciality dancers, who execute some smart evolutions in a clever manner and are loudly applauded; Albert Whelan is a humorous comedian whose imitations of music-hall stars meet with appreciation; Hurley and Cole, in a charming little scena, Let Bygones by Bygones, score quite a success; Cora Carina, Anglo-Spanish speciality artist, has many admirers; the Tupps in their comedy acrobatic act are highly diverting; Morimura, Japanese illusionist, is well received; and the Empire pictures are up to the usual standard.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Conn and Davis in their comedy act The Page and the Chauffeur; Miss Annie Rose, vocalist and dancer; Ted Warner, eccentric comedian; Will Bent, instrumentalist and dancer; Jack Twist, comedian; and the New Cinematograph.

DUNDEE. — PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The chief attraction here this week is Dick Turpin's Ride to York, by Fred Ginnett and Co., who also appear with great success in that laughable sketch, Rejected Remounts; Marstro, assisted by Oretta, presents his clever equilibristic act; Charlie Williams, negroistic comedian, goes well, as does also Oliver Conroy, a capital comedian of the eccentric persuasion. Goodfellow and Gregson, in a highly entertaining sketch, prove exhilirating; and Onda and Artell are much admired in their gymnastic act; Glennie's Marionettes are responsible for hearty laughter; and Vernon's Bioscope completes a strong all-round bill.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—A grand array of talent here this week is headed by the Three Panamas, acrobats and tumblers, who give a marvellously clever show; Fred Lyndo, eccentric comedian, scores heavily; and Fred Yorke, a basso vocalist of distinction, likewise proves popular. In the Nick of Time is the title of an exciting episode of life in China, in which George N. Schilling, the man who walked round the world, appears. Elsie Earle contributes a delightful song scena; and the Two Robsons give a fine exhibition of dancing. Others who appear with success are Venola Brothers, gymnasts; Oakdene, ventriloquist; and Lindsay and Harte, Scotch-American duo. A very laughable skit on the Zancigs, and the Electro Motorscope, with a fine display of films, complete.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Jury's Animated Photos proved such a success last week that the management have wisely retained them for this. Under the skilful manipulation of Mr. J. Crasswell, the pictures are shown with a steadiness which reflects credit on both operator and machine, while the collection of films is a most extensive one. Varieties which include The Gelders, magic makers; Ivy Dene, vocalist and dancer; and George Casey, comedian, complete a very enjoyable programme.

KINNAIRD HALL.—The Zancigs paid a visit here on Tuesday, when they gave afternoon and evening performances before packed houses. Some of the feats accomplished by them seem to leave no other explanation but that of mind telepathy, the tests to which they were subjected rendering collusion or code-signalling apparently impossible. Some critics suggest that the feats are accomplished by means of a silent code, but how such a code can be worked through closed doors is difficult to understand. A capital company supported the Zancigs, viz., Miss Ethel Grimes, soprano vocalist; Miss Katie Moss, soprano and violinist; Miss Clara Alexander, impersonator of plantation people; Mr. Sydney Jarvis, baritone; Mr. David Brazell, operatic baritone; Mr. E. Thornley-Dodge, sketch artist; and Mr. Harold Scott, solo pianist and accompanist.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION. — Manager Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is paying a return visit here with Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Langhorne Burton, looking and acting well, contributes a very fine performance as the swaggering Brigadier Gerard; Mr. George Mallett, in his splendidly-finished work, is a penetrating Talleyrand; and Mr. Arthur Somers, in an admirable make-up of Napoleon, spoke his lines with strong and telling effect. Mr. Cecil Wynne is the skilful stage-manager, and is, in addition, a very able Caulaincourt. Mr. Frank Powell and Mr. J. H. Twyford share honours as Colonel Guerin and Major Bron; Mr. Sidney Young is a definite and effective D'Albert; and Mr. J. Crowe is excellent as Bassompierre. Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner, strikingly handsome and beautifully gowned, holds the keenest interest of the audience, and is a great success; while Miss Margery Chard is a pretty, bright maid Agnes.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. H. Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Smith.—At the head of the varied bill offered here this week is Clito, whose turn is essentially artistic, very finely carried out, and very popular; Mephisto has one of the cleverest contortion acts ever seen here, and he is prettily assisted by Miss Marie. Miss Edie Anderson is a smart and expert dancer, who sings well; Mr. Bock Pylades gives very clever facial imitations of celebrities; Mr. Happy Attwood gets many laughs for his funny get-up and songs; Miss Lucy Coventry pleases in song and dance, and excellent new pictures complete the programme.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Mouillot's chief company is here again with that perennial fountain of gaiety, The Geisha, varying the week's programme with a change on Friday evening to A Greek Slave. Miss Louie Collier makes a charming representative, both vocally and dramatically, of O Mimosa San; excellent renderings of the several rôles of Juliette, Molly Seymour, and Lady Constance are given by Miss Violet Kenyon, Miss Florrie Saunders, and Miss Aubrey Ashton. Mr. Lionel Braham puts plenty of quiet humour into his personation of the imposing Marquis Imari; while the Wun Hi of Mr. Edward Carlton is, if possible, funnier than ever. As Reginald Fairfax Mr. Cyril Thompson sings and acts in a pleasantly unaffected fashion; and the other members of the company do full justice to their respective parts.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is appearing here this week in The New Aladdin. The piece owes much to the very capable comedians and vocalists who constitute the cast. Mr George Gregory, a clever actor, with an abundant sense of humour, is very droll as Tippin, the page; and that admirable artist, Mr. John Brabourne, is a really comic figure as the Lost Constable. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., acts and sings with neatness and ease. His song, "Waltz me round again, Willie," is loudly encored nightly, and his performance of the part of the Genie of the Lamp is one of the most agreeable in the play. Miss Cressie Leonard makes an undoubted hit in the character of Lally; there is a finish and completeness about the impersonation which would be difficult to surpass; Miss Ida Rene as the Princess acts with much charm, singing with expression and dancing with exceeding grace; Miss Irene Verona is distinctly funny, without being too farcical, as the Spirit of the Ring; and Miss Mary Fraser, in the Scotch part of Jennie, speaks the Doric well and acts with brightness; Mr. Ernest Mahar is excellent as General Ratz; and amongst others who contribute their share to the success of the play is Miss Nellie Lonnen, a lithe dancer, as Laolah; and Miss Jessie Lonnen as the Charm of Paris. The piece is tastefully mounted, and the chorus and orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Ernest Vousden, give general satisfaction.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The White Chrysanthemum has at last been brought to Edinburgh by the well-balanced company touring under the management of Mr. Charles Macdona, at whose hands the favourite lyrical comedy is acceptably rendered. Miss Muriel St. George is prominent in the cast as Sybil, and both her singing and acting commend her to the favour of the audience; Miss Wilmot Karkeek gains popularity by her dancing in the part of Cornelia; and the Betty Kenyon of Miss Dorothy Sephton is a pleasing performance. The leading male rôles are well divided among Mr. St. John Hamund as the Admiral, Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Reginald; Mr. H. E. Garden as Chippendale, Mr. Richard Telford as the amusing Sin Chon, and Mr Jamie Douglas as Perks, all of whom, in conjunction with an efficient chorus, work well together towards the success of the piece.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Crowded audiences have been attracted to the house this week, the programme for which is an excellent one in all respects. La Milo gives her beautiful poses representative of celebrated statuary, and Mr. Cruickshanks cleverly fills in the pauses with his lightning caricatures of prominent persons; Mr. Henry Cadle and company afford a good deal of amusement by their sketch The Casey Circus, in which must be singled out for special praise the felicitous skit by one of the artists of a well-known figure in the music halls; an admirable turn is supplied by Frank and Jen Latona, the lady showing great proficiency as pianist and singer; Lennie and Hast are seen to advantage in their fantasy The Sea Nymph; and Alice May and company acquit themselves well in their sketch Tranquillity. Mr. Allan Hanbury, a new comedian, who displays much promise; Frobel and Ruge, in a novel aerial act; Forest and King, in a smart acrobatic turn; Stephens and Rennion, in their masterly sand-dance sketch; and scenes by the bioscope complete the entertainment.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—At this house large audiences continue to be the rule. A capital programme this week includes the names of Lambeth and Robertson, in an amusing sketch Peace and Harmony; the Two St. Johns, clever dancers; Erneste, an expert mimic and pleasing siffleur; Miss Lil Hartley, a smart comedienne; the Sisters Hula, excellent dancers; Field and Lewis, in an ingenious act; Mr. Tom Gibson, Scotch comedian; and the Alhambrascope.

FOLKESTONE.—LEAS PAVILION.—The popular society entertainers, "The Gipsies and their Jester," under the direction of Mr. D'Arcy Clayton, make their welcome re-appearance here this week to delighted audiences. Miss Muriel Fan is heard to advantage in several songs; Miss Florence Croft sings in a pleasing manner; Mr. D'Arcy Clayton and Mr. Eric Davidson are the possessors of excellent voices; Mr. Robert Tattersall submits some novel conjuring and ventriloquial sketches, which cause much amusement; and Mr. Will Gane as the "jester" is no whit less successful as a mirth-provoker.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The Belle of Barcelona, a tabloid musical comedy, is at the head of the bill here. The trifle is much appreciated. The Schiavonis Troupe display clever gymnastics; Lady Julia, the ape with the human brain, is interesting; Martine and Son, American song illustrators, are popular; Cookson, a speciality ventriloquist, has numerous admirers; and Jack Heath, comedian; Daisy Silcott, burlesque actress; and the King's Pictures complete.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's company is presenting An Unwedded Wife here this week. Miss Van Praagh is seen to great advantage in the name-part; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes presents a polished Philip Blackstone; John Hawthorne has a capable exponent in Mr. Logan Darra; Mr. Valentine Henry submits a capital impersonation of Frank Armstrong; Mr. Wilton Bedford is funny as Kit; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne makes a charming Elsie Langham; and a humorous Caraway Crumpet is supplied by Miss Jessie Gillette.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smith.—Mr. Chas. March's company appears here in The Gamester of Metz. Mr. March himself figures in the rôle of Paul Baldot, and does the part full justice; Mr. Wilfred Prothero makes a powerful Captain Badaire; and Mr. J. W. Millar is seen to advantage as Du Basson; Miss Una Lane does well as Lucia; and Miss Zana St. George is successful as Gwendoline Pearson.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—This week we have A Royal Divorce, in which the part of Josephine is played by Miss Edith Cole, who gives a touching and impressive rendering of the badly-used Empress. The character of the Emperor is finely portrayed by Mr. Frederick Victor; while Mr. Charles Agnew is responsible for depicting the limping old statesman, Talleyrand. Miss Helen Richmond gives an excellent embodiment of vivacious Stephanie Beauharnais; while Miss Agnes Imlay gives a good rendering of the haughty Marie Louise. Miss Maggie Cardiff is charming as the little King of Rome, which she acts nicely and naturally; General Augeresu is ably handled by Mr. Alfred Grenville; and other well-sustained characters are Marshal Murat (Mr. St. George Frere), Marquis de Beaumont (Mr. Graham Woods), Grimaud (Mr. Geo. Hudson), Governess of the boy King of Rome (Miss Loyale Frere), Angelique de Varennes (Miss Violet Hudson), and Mother Lomas (Miss Helen Meadows).

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Downie.—This week Mr. Russell Rosse presents Mr. David James and company in the favourite comedy A Pair of Spectacles. The Benjamin Goldfinch of Mr. David James is a clever interpretation and receives well-merited applause; the part of Uncle Gregory is admirably handled by Mr. Norman Clark, who plays with vigour throughout; Mr. Charles Boult submits a capital reading of Dick; and Mr. Harry Ray does well as Percy. Miss E. Nolan O'Connor portrays the part of Mrs. Goldfinch with grace and charm; and the Joyce of Miss Hilda Blanche, and the Lucy Lorimer of Miss Margaret Frame are carried out in a finished manner. Lorimer has an able exponent in Mr. F. J. Hampson. The play concludes each evening with The Welsher Welshed, in which Mr. Joseph B. Montague is very amusing, and is ably assisted by Miss Alys Hardy and Miss Jenny Dysart.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The Beauty of Bath continues to draw crowded and enthusiastic houses here, and the charm of Miss Elialine Terriss's acting and singing, and the volatile freshness of Mr. Seymour Hick's humour, find hearty appreciation. Local playgoers note with pleasure the talent and versatility of Miss Sydney Fairbrother, who, in the homely pathos of the Two Little Vagabonds, the tragedy of The Darling of the Gods, or the eccentric comedy of Mrs. Goodge in The Beauty of Bath, seems equally at home. Messrs. William Lugg, Stanley Brett, Laurence Caird, J. C. Buckstone, and the veteran E. W. Royce, all ably help the fun along, and a word of praise is due to Master Valchera for his humour as the boy; Lemon Goodge. Miss Florence Lloyd as Mrs. Allington, Miss Maudi Darrell as St. Cyr, and Miss Lillie McIntyre in a neat dance, share the honours of the evening.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—Planquette's tuneful opera, Rip Van Winkle, is being given here this week by a clever young organisation, the Glasgow Amateur Operatic Society, the proceeds being devoted to charity.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting Manager, Mr. H. Murdoch.—Mr. Edmond Tearle's excellent production of Jeanie Deans is here this week, Miss Kate Clinton again giving an exceedingly touching impersonation of Scott's immortal heroine. The rôle of Effie Deans is still in the hands of Miss Mary Campbell, who also acts with great tenderness and pathos; Mr. Bernhardt Turner gives considerable finish to the part of the Duke of Argyll; the David Deans of Mr. Joseph A. Keagh is an impressive performance; to the part of Dumbiedykes Mr. Alfred D. Adams gives a decided touch of character; in the rôles of Geordie Robertson (Mr. Clifford Marle) and Reuben Butler (Mr. R. H. Lace), good legitimate work is done; Mr. Herbert Tawse gives due weight to the part of the Lord Justiciary; as the opposing Counsel, Mr. Saxon Thomas (Crown) and Mr. Neal Fitzwilliam (Defence) play their parts well; Mr. George T. Grieg gives force to the character of Ratcliffe; as the Queen, Miss Alice Fleming acts with considerable grace; while strong dramatic effect is given to the characters of Madge Wildfire and her mother by Misses Esther Tearle and Ellen Armor respectively.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—A decided attraction has this week been placed before the patrons of the Metropole in the introduction, by Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company, of Messrs. Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley's Two Little Vagabonds. Than Miss Edie Martin and Miss Josie Beltram no better "vagabonds" could be procured. Each does excellently, and is capitally received. Mr. Arthur E. Melborne and Miss Grace Heywood as George and Marion Thornton respectively, are before the "house" quite a time, and their efforts are highly appreciated; Mr. Sidney Vautier makes a splendid Captain Darvelle; Mr. Dunstan Haye does well as John Scarth; while Mr. Lionel Ellis gives an ideal portrayal of the Gaffer. To Miss Evelyn Shaw is due a word of praise for her clever impersonation of Biddy Mullins; and Miss Rosslyn Vayne is very taking as Barbara.

LYECUM.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Dickie Clare heads his own company in the musical farcical absurdity, Lucky 'Liza, which opened to very good business on Monday last. It is strong in pantomime element, and is a capital example of Fred Locke's writing. The fun and frolic, singing and dancing are never at a pause during the three acts, and the audience is convulsed with laughter and merriment throughout. Mr. Dickie Clare works hard, and sustains the triple parts of Silas Slim, the Judge, and the French Waiter admirably; as Peter Pettitoe and Barnaby Blatherwick Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. A. W. Thompson are responsible for much boisterous fun; while the parts of Paul and Biffins are excellently played by Mr. Syd Hynd and Mr. J. W. Forrest. As Marie Miss Bella Russell is quite acceptable; while the Misses Vesta and Madge Brownie act, sing, and dance with charming cleverness as Virginia and Lucky 'Liza respectively. The other characters are well placed, and a feature of the performance is the dancing of Miss Queenie Bell and the Sisters Mascot. The orchestra, under Mr. J. C. Maclean, gave some good selections during the evening.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—The major part of the programme here is occupied by Fred Karno's company in Dame Trot, a condensed version of the pantomime which was such a success at the Grand recently. Mr. Fred Kitchen, Mr. Harry Lappo, Miss Luna Love, and Mr. Fred Whittaker still play the same parts as they did then, and the fun waxes fast and furious. Miss Aggie Morris, Miss Ada Whittaker, and Mr. Herbert Landeck all distinguish themselves in their respective rôles. A novel turn is that of Mr. Hymack, the chameleon comedian, who made a decided hit; Kisbey, the call-boy, also contributes a distinctly clever item; the Four Flying Eugenes show some daring aerial flights; Charles Robinson sings well in illustrated songs; Frank Lynne is a comedian with a taking manner; and a clever selection from Benedict's Lily of Killarney is sung by Edward Arthur and company.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Sydney Bacon and company, in the musical comedy, The Duchess of Tooting, top the bill, and had a hearty reception, the performance from start to finish being marked with exceptional merit and humour; Arthur Lennard, comedian, is still a great favourite, his songs being up to date and witty claim the attention of the audience, and he was repeatedly recalled. A clever turn is submitted by Victor Newman, in impersonations of Mr. Beerbohm Tree as Svengali, and the late Sir Henry Irving's masterpiece, Matthias; while the musical sketch Her Birthday, by Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, was well received. The rest of the company include Marie Empress, comedienne; Corman's Juveniles, in novel scena, The Waif; Barbara Babbington, comedienne; Blanche Vincent, vocalist; Lizzie Fletcher, serio; and the Hippodrome Bioscope.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—The Savonas are still the leading attraction here, and this week they are giving their musical show at every performance, the overture to Tannhäuser being their principal item. Foreman and Fannan, from the Princess's pantomime, appear in the ship and circus scenes; and the Sisters Hall are also retained in their taking ducts; while Miss Ethel Hall appears with Foreman and Fannan in their burlesque scene. H. O. Wills is a most original and quaint comedian, and his songs take well; the Howards give a display of thought-reading which is most astonishing; Charles Ulrick, barrel balancer, gives a clever turn; Ruby Emmerson sings well and dances neatly; and Fred Herbert makes a decided hit as a topical vocalist.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A strong programme is presented this week. Messrs. Seeley and West, old Glasgow favourites, are as successful as ever in their instrumental comedy; W. J. Ashcroft, the original solid man, also makes a great hit; Arthur Rigby's company present with much success a musical comedy, entitled The Isle of Ooma (Mr. Rigby is assisted by a company of twenty clever artists); the Rhoda Brothers are a couple of very smart head and hand equilibrists; Rich and Rich, singers and dancers; the Æolians, in their drawing-room instrumental act; Elsie Roby, in a humorous sketch, The Slavey's at Home; Florence, a clever lady mimic; and Clarence C. Corrie's company in a musical episode, Heart Strings, in which appears Miss Gladys Hooley, the talented violinist, add greatly to the success of the general performance.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Hanvarr and Lee give an excellent turn of the comedy order in juggling and acrobatics. Coram, as a ventriloquist, is undoubtedly clever, and has originality; while Lena Brunton, in new and old impersonations, had a capital reception, and was encored. Barney Armstrong, a renowned local favourite, gives a long, enjoyable turn, and in song, dance, and patter, is even fresher than ever, his "Band Parts" song being very funny; the Sisters Cora are smart comediennes, and dance very acceptably; in The Messenger Boy Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie give a good musical comedy sketch, the second scene of which is quite novel; George Collins justifies the term "a quaint comedian"; and Arthur Aldridge makes a big success in several fine tenor ballads. Amusing pictures are given on the bioscope, and good houses rule.

Gaiety.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Cullen and Carthy (assisted by Little Cluly), eccentric comedians and dancers, top the bill, and provided an entertainment that was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience; T. C. Callaghan, Irish comedian, had also a good reception, and rendered several songs in his own artistic manner. The other artists include Jack M'Cormick, Scotch comedian; the Belmores, comediennes and dancers; Rene and Tich and other novel pictures.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company, in The 'Varsity Belle, is attracting large houses this week. Miss Josephine Ellis in the dual rôles of Mr. Paton and Gaye Sparkleton gives a unique performance, and scores with the song, "Those loving eyes"; Miss G. Sullivan as Eve Stoney also sings with telling effect "In Dreamland"; Miss Tessa Myers shines as Maud Stoney; Miss Emma Rainbow as Mrs. Barker does capital work; Mr. James Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney is most mirth-provoking; Mr. Edward Chester as Theocritus Ward Sparkleton portrays that eccentric character well; Mr. R. Harley West as George Barker, and Mr. Roy Barraclough as Albert Perin, submit good delineations of undergraduates; and Mr. Frank Lilliput is diverting as Runyard. The comedy is preceded by The Last Hour.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The programme is opened by Miss Daisy Lane, comedienne; and the Gregson Comedy Trio follow with their sketch, The Dummy; the Carvers provide a capital dancing turn; Kail Stern, comedian and dancer, proves very agile; Baker and Balfe are excellent xylophone players; the Walonells are clever and funny on the bars; and Messrs. Bell and Pearl's company present a neat little sketch called A Bit of String; Ferris and Farnley are a pair of amusing cross-talk comedians; the Llewellyns give well-rendered operatic excerpts; Harry Carmen, polyglot artist, gives a clever impersonation of various nationalities; and the Bioscope concludes.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—A great attraction this week is the comic opera, La Poupée, presented by Mr. Herbert Ralland's able company, which opened to a packed house on Monday. Mr. Arthur Cozens delights the audience with his clever impersonation of Lancelot; Mr. Fred Seymour is a capital Hilarius, who keeps the house in continuous laughter; Mr. Waller Balfour is highly successful as Father Maxim; and Mr. Fuller Allen is a dignified Baron Chanterelle. Mr. Arthur Dennis is well placed as Loremois; Balthazar finds an able exponent in Mr. E. Mooney. In the title-rôle Miss Mysie Devine gives a delightful performance, her songs and dances being taken up with great spirit; Miss Edith Hunter is a clever Mme. Hilarius; Miss Doris Dickens is a vivacious Henri; Miss Adeline Burgon is a captivating maid; and Miss Alice Roche a charming Gudaline. The chorus does admirable work, under the direction of Mr. H H. Shaw, and the scenery and dresses are excellent.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—An enthusiastic reception has been accorded to Mr. Martin Harvey and his company in The Only Way and The Breed of the Treshams. The play selected for Monday evening was the former, which was beautifully staged and excellently performed. Mr. Harvey's impersonation of Sydney Carton reached a high level of excellence, and during the course of the piece he was frequently and deservedly applauded. Miss N. de Silva in the rôle of Mimi is all that could be desired, and Miss Coleridge appears to great advantage as Lucie Manette. Mr. Leonard Craske makes the character of Charles Darnay an outstanding one, and Mr. Fred Wright, sen., is excellent as Dr. Manette. Others who contribute to the great success of the performance include Miss Mary Rorke, Miss Bessie Elder, Mr. Charles Glenney, and Mr. H. Blackmore.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—A good company here includes Richards and Salving, who present a clever equilibristic act, which wins loud applause. Arthur Boyne, comedian, causes a great deal of merriment. The Davis and Gledhill Trio, in their "Man and Motor" performance, are watched with much interest. A charming vocal turn by the Sisters Loftus gets well-deserved appreciation. King Alexander, comedian and mimic, obtains favour, and the Empire pictures are interesting.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Keen and Waller are here this week, and delight their audience with their clever and eccentric business. Gus Barra contributes a very enjoyable musical turn. A capital historical sketch, entitled My Lady Betty, is presented by Miss Nellie Stevens and company, and proves a great attraction. Jose Collins has a good voice, and uses it to advantage; and Sadie Simpson, comedienne and coon artist, is also successful. The Paviscope pictures are amusing.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Sunday is a delightful play, and, notwithstanding that the present is the third visit of Mr. Louis Calvert's company, it is drawing well. This time we have a new Sunday in the person of Miss Emilie Polini, who proves very fascinating throughout. The three stalwarts, Towzer, Davy, and Jacky (whose fidelity to Sunday is conceived with much tenderness), are realistically portrayed by Mr. Wm. Lockhart, Mr. Sidney Rennef, and Mr. Arthur Vezin; Mr. Cecil Yapp wins distinction as Lively; Mr. Leonard Pagden makes an admirable Col. Brinthorpe; and Mr. Ernest A. Douglas retains, with advantage, the character of the good-hearted Tom Oxley.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Winks.—An original fantasy is being successfully presented here under the title of The Musical Burglar, finely enacted by Mr. J. C. Piddock, of Lady Slavey fame, whose singing is enthusiastically received, as is Miss Ethel Negretti as Mlle. Nightingale. The Three Sisters Chester are always welcome; Boyd and Gilfain are very diverting; and Vasey and Ramsey, Tom Garrick, James and Alexander, Lorna Doone, and Ernest Torrence evoke applause.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Mr. John Tiller's picturesque Dick Whittington pantomime has proved a very attractive booking for this popular house. A dashing Dick is found in Miss Jessie Templeton, whose dancing and vivacious ditties are well received; Alice is prettily presented by Miss Gould. As Idle Jack, Mr. Will Lytton's quips keep large audiences in continuous mirth; and Teddy Gibbs and Barney Dixon give him every assistance.

HANLEY.—Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company opened here on Monday in the stirring drama, In Holy Russia. The piece is capitally played and is nicely staged. Mr. Cassidy is seen as Micky Nolan, and is the heart and soul of the piece, his humour being really clever; Mr. Arthur Stratton makes a capital Colonel Richard Forrest; as the Russian spy, Catski Lavotski, Miss Florence Creagh does remarkably well, the part being admirably sustained; as the Tsar, Mr. Robert Cockroft acts well, his impersonation being most telling; Mr. Frank Copeland is well placed as Sir Harry Berresford; Mr. Martin Sands as the Count Gregori Petrolski does remarkably well in the part; as Laurice Steragoff, Mr. Carl Rovinello is successful; and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy contributes a clever portrayal as Renée Rubinoff.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—The premier position this week is held by Gustave Fasola, whose illusions are first-class, most of his feats mystifying the large audiences. The Three Romas provide a turn which is clever, refined, and interesting, their feats of strength being displayed in quite a novel manner; Tom Wootwell returns in new songs, which are funnier than ever, and he is accorded a hearty welcome; Ryan and Hall prove a most amusing pair of comedians, the patter and acrobatic business being excellent; Cherry Lass is successful in her two items; Rastus and Banks in their sketch The Major and the Maid provide a smart turn, the acrobatic business of the male member being exceedingly clever; Miss Amy Russell has a nice voice, and renders her songs artistically; and the pictures are a good feature in the evening's entertainment.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—This week the theatre is occupied by Mrs. Morton Powell's company in When It Was Dark. Miss Elizabeth Watson appeared as Gertrude Hunt and made the most of her opportunities; Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee scored as the Rev. Basil Gortire; Mr. W B. Somerville gave a neat study of the character entrusted to him; and Mr. George H. Pitt was the millionaire, Constantine Schwabe. The comedy was in the hands of Mr. Arthur Murray as Sir Robert Llewellyn. Mrs. Morton Powell was good as Helena Byars.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The programme submitted this week includes those favourite cyclists, the Cumberlands, in their wonderful acrobatic cycle feats; Will Letters is irresistibly funny and as popular as ever; the Brothers Corcoran, "musical shipbuilders," are experts on brass instruments; the dancing by Ellis and Watts is exceptionally clever; skilful trapeze work is done by Cara Magda; the comedy and mimicry by Harry Lee is much appreciated; the Sages (Will and Jenny) in burlesque are great favourites; Winnie Arnetta pleases all with her ballads; and the pictures are very good.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—A visit is paid here this week by Mr. Charles Constant's company with the pantomime Blue Beard, which affords a capital evening's entertainment. Miss Isa Bowman, in the rôle of Selim, is very capable, her songs winning a full measure of applause and her dancing affording much pleasure; Mr. Chas. Lake is efficient in the name-rôle; a pair of excellent comedians are seen in Messrs. Alec Godfrey and Mac Stuart, who contribute a clever whistling and coster song; Fatima is a very fascinating impersonation by Miss Dorothy Dempster, who does pleasing coon songs and good dancing; Miss Cissie Thompson possesses a fine voice, and is an expert dancer; Mr. Johnny Clegg is very comic as Sister Ann; Little Felicia, who impersonates Ashphodel, sings in the first scene very effectively from a stage-box; the ladies of the chorus prove very capable; and an augmented orchestra is well directed by Mr. J. C. Hahn.

Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The farcical comedy, The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, is attracting good houses. Mr. J. D. Hunter and his smart and clever company are always favourably received. The twofold character of Captain Courtenay and Miss Brown as exemplified by Mr. Hunter has all the drollery that one would expect from so genuine a comedian; Mr. Herbert Maule gives a polished interpretation of Major O'Gallagher; as Miss O'Gallagher, Miss Blanche Bayley plays her part with a light and effective touch; as Miss Romney, Miss Eva Bayley's performance is of conspicuous ability; Miss Violet Graham as Angelina Brightwell acts with a great deal of brightness and cleverness; Miss Violet Agnew gives a perfectly admirable sketch of Euphemia Schwartz; the boarders at the Academy are all well represented by the three Misses Ashley; Mr. Charles Hawker gives an intelligent sketch of the solicitor; Mr. Howell Seguin is altogether satisfactory as the foreign music-teacher; and Mr. Charles Lloyd gives an excellent account of the rôle of Sergeant Tanner, which he plays with the soundest judgment.

Hippodrome.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman; Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas.—A good programme is offered the patrons this week. Mr. Cyril Carle is most impressive in his "dream" songs; a diverting duologue by Bayley and Solo provides an interesting turn; Mr. C. Vincent Adams introduces a laughable song and patter as a railway porter; among the attractive films seen on the Bioscope is the wreck of the Berlin; the Four Sisters Victoria, in their skilful musical act, are a decided success; some tasteful and pleasing songs are sung by Miss Winnie Wynne; Clifford and Monti introduce an exceedingly funny sketch, The Mad Actor; the droll manner of Mr. Tom Dunmore contributes a good turn to the bill; in the mesmeric episode, The Master-Mind, the efforts of Miss Diana Hope and company are watched with keen interest; and the exponents of burlesque-comedy, Moon and Morris, are a decided acquisition.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—A drama, entitled When Woman Hates is here for the week, played by Mr. Bulmer's company. The various situations are effectively presented by the capable cast engaged, which includes Miss Chrissie Dunbar as the arch-villainess Cora Daintry; Mr. Gordon Robey, her accomplice; Mr. Percy Horton, breezy as Fred Rokeby; Miss Ethel Whiteley as Marie; and Mr. Evan Roland as the witty O'Brien. The play is well mounted, both as to scenery and dresses.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—At the top of the bill are Ergotti and Kinghen's troupe of clever risley acrobats; followed by John Holland and company in sketch; Cumminger and Colona, a pair of expert dancers; Vetter Brothers in a most attractive gymnastic entertainment—a really artistic show; Johnson and Devere in speciality; Ted Cowan, comedian; the Brennans, clever clog dancers; Loudon Cameron, conjuror; the Stavordale Quintette of instrumentalists in a much-appreciated act; and the usual interlude on the Biograph.

HULL.—The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Florrie Gallimore, owing to her great success, stays on a second week, and has to sing four songs before the audience are satisfied; Lola Patey, an old pantomime favourite, takes well; and other artists include the Ladderites, the Sivronis, the Three Zaracs, Josie Delaine, and the Tally-ho Trio.

The Palace.—Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Van Biene appears in a striking little playlet, The Master Musician, in which he is well supported by Miss Lena Burnleigh. A couple of good turns are provided by Gwennie Hasto and Ray Maskell; Perette and Mona are smart in an original comedy; the Delevines are big favourites; Harry Lawson's songs cause much laughter; and Marion Fletcher and Harold Hughman complete an excellent bill.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—The star turn is provided by Harry Russell and Vera Reed in a laughable sketch, Bink's Blunder. Sandy and Carl give a clever display; Li-Chang-Hi is a smart conjuror; Flo D'Orville is a big favourite; Fox and Melville (American song illustrators) and Henriette and Selina (society entertainers) complete a good programme.

The Circus.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—A new set of animated pictures is drawing crowded houses.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Blanche and Diacoff, in a clever cycle act, are meeting with warm approval; La Rochelle is seen in interesting poses; Mlle. Vanda (globe walker, &c.), Flo Melville (comedienne), La Belle Tosca (wire performer), and Prof. Syrett's Bioscope also appear with success.

Queen's Palace of Varieties.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Doddy and Belle, in a musical absurdity, head the bill, and are well received; Yettmah, in Japanese magic, is again successful; Loo Byron (comedian), Staffo (the juggling butcher boy), Tessie Vandean (serio and dancer), Charlie Cowen (eccentric comedian), and Allen Amber (comedian) are the other turns.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Closed until Easter Monday.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—That exceptionally clever troupe of acrobats, the Craggs, quite aroused the enthusiasm of Ipswich audiences with their unique performances. The New Steward of the Channel Queen was the title of this entertaining sketch, and the vagaries of a raw country bumpkin as steward of a liner were brimful of fun and drollery, sending the spectators into fits of laughter. In addition to this the marvellous acrobatic feats of these artists elicited hearty and unstinted plaudits throughout. The other chief turns included Clemart, who well maintained his title of a "novel ventriloquist"; Howard and St. Clair, in a little sketch, Do You Want to Buy Any Coke?; the Norman and Leonard Trio, in clever instrumental business; Les Cabracs, French comedy acrobats; Rosie Archer, in neat imitations of some of our "stars"; Olive Rayne, dancer; and Johnny Gilmore, who calls himself the "Australian Nugget," with quaint ditties.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—This week Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. F. C. Somerfield's company is here with the drama The Tyrant. Mr. Roy Fortesque is excellent in the part of Angelo, while Mr. F. C. Somerfield gives a capital portrayal of the part of Homodei. Mr. Lionel Attwill is pleasing in the part of the Prince de Roma, and Mr. Alec Mayhew is well placed as Pan. Mr. Percy Brown and Mr. Albert Rogers do full justice to the respective parts of Victor and Nobbo, and Mr. A. Findlater is quite at home in the part of Lieutenant Taska. The part of Tisbe is cleverly handled by Miss Marie Dagmar; while Miss Millie Ford is charming in the part of Lady Katherine, and Miss Lallah Shelton plays the part of Eulie with great care. Miss Vida Haslewood is very good as Daphne, and the same may be said of Miss Olive Lloyd as Reginella.

KEIGHLEY.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—Dickenson and Johnson, ornamental swimmers, provide a very clever and novel entertainment, and are much appreciated here; the Donatos, one-legged acrobats, win rounds of applause; the Musical Keiths display musical ability of high order; Manton and Marlow supply a capital sketch; J. A. Reilly and May Templeton create much laughter; Eva Compton sings well, and Dolly Denver is a clever dancer.

KIDWELLY.—Town Hall.—Secretary, Mr. P. S. James.—Mr. T. R. Nugent and company occupy the boards here this week with The Streets of London, East Lynne, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and The Factory Girl. Mr. Nugent in the part of Badger in the first-named piece is highly to be commended. Miss Maggie Gardiner as Alicia Bloodgood was also very good. Master Sidney Nugent is a clever boy comedian and vocalist.

LANCASTER.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Martin.—"Every turn a winner" is declared at this week's programme. The Maningos, at the head, give a marvellous acrobatic performance; the Meymotts, in a mirth-provoking sketch, Semi-Detached, are paying a welcome return visit; the Two Dixons, bâton swingers and dancers, are smart; and the Two Jays are capital comedians. Zeta Gray and company, in a musical scena, The Lancashire Lass; Lilian Victoria, the Eton boy; Vera Mayne, vocalist; and the Hippograph with pictures are all well received.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—That fantastic novelty, The Little Stranger, is amusing good houses at this theatre. Master Edward Garratt, the diminutive comedian, supplies much exhilarating fun by his admirable presentment of the name-part; Mr. Charles Steuart is vigorous and convincing as the husband, Captain Allenby; his associate, Alec Howard, being impersonated with rare dash and go by Mr. Frank Hanbury; and Vronsky, the chief of the discomfited soul-hunters, has an effective exponent in Mr. Charles Doran. Miss Dora Hole admirably depicts the emotional wife "under a spell"; Miss Louie Tinsley distinguishes herself with a clever portrayal of the terrified nurse; and excellent work is also done by Mr. Stanley Lathbury, Miss Alice Ellestree and Miss Alice Green. Dream Faces proves an acceptable curtain-raiser.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Once again the boards are occupied by Mr. Fred Karno's excellent company with the evergreen farce His Majesty's Guests, and once again full houses are entertained by the drolleries of Sergeant Lightning, played by Mr. George Hester, who is quite as amusing as any of his predecessors. The remaining rôles are all in good hands, Mr. Frank Morton and Mr. Chas. Usher, Miss Lenora Castelle, Miss Kitty Brunton, and Miss Annie Wright, all old favourites, filling their usual parts with success.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Carl Hertz is an entertaining top-of-the-bill turn this week, his wonderful illusions effectively mystifying all. Mike S. Whallen, the clever raconteur, is very popular here; Billy Farrell, coloured dancer and eccentric, contributes a smart turn in his own inimitable style; a merry comedy episode is played by that talented pair, Kitts and Windrum; and some well-rendered vocal items are given by Gertrude Bradshaw; a comedy bar act by Mezzetti and Mora is diverting; the Celtic Comedy Trio are amusing; Frank Darwin proves a capital actor-vocalist; and Hettie Chattell, a popular burlesque actress, completes a strong programme.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The management of this palatial hall are making a big bid for public patronage, and the engagement this week of the famous Hackenschmidt has been rewarded by full houses twice a night. Various local champions are trying a fall with the redoubtable Russian, and some strenuous bouts have been witnessed. Holden's Mannikins are a popular bottom-of-the-bill turn; the Claymores combine jugglery and capital vocal entertainment; Tray and Rich are a smart pair of eccentrics and dancers; and a skilful instrumental act is subscribed by Little Salvino. The comedians are clever, and include such favourites as Fred Harrison, Harry Bold, and Fred Hallam; and Lottie Collard, an attractive comedienne, completes the list.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Arthur Prince is a leading line here, his clever ventriloquial act being, as usual, provocative of uproarious merriment; some artistic classical tableaux by the Modern Venus are interesting and effective; the Two Falcons perform comic acrobatics in clever style; a musical turn by the El Tampico Trio is much appreciated; and Meir and Mora, with a novel pot-pourri act, prove a popular line; Gertie Gitana is a favourite comedienne; Robbie Roy scores as a laughing comedian; Effie White is seen in an accomplished speciality dance; Nina Martino is a distinct success; and Dave O'Toole, the popular comedian, is also appearing.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Jack Pleasants leads the fun here, and his admirers accord him a big reception; Ike Scott and Son are a well-known and clever comedy pair, and do well; the Lavelle Bros. combine comedy and acrobatics cleverly; Burns and Bentley are talented vaudeville artists; a novel pot-pourri act by Penstone gets a big reception; and the Dancing Gilberts, Jas. Shingleton (vocalist), and Madeline Rossiter (comedienne) are also popular entertainers.

LEICESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction is provided this week by Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company, in the interesting military play, The Indian Mutiny, which is well staged. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton gives an excellent impersonation as Lieut. Manley; and as Captain Manley, Mr. Cyril Harrison is all that can be desired. Mr. Cecil Morand is mirth-provoking as Terry O'Brien; and both Mr. John Davidson as Major Ingleby and Mr. G. Birch as Ensign Blake are good. Mr. Villiers Stanley gives a capital sketch of Nebu Singh; Mr. Ernest Keand does well as Ra Goorga; Miss F. Melrose Millett deserves great praise as Ghuz-nah; and both Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby and Miss Lillie Grey as Mrs. Major Ingleby are a success.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—George Gray and company are the great attraction here this week, and are presenting a new sketch, entitled Prodigal Jack. It is exceptionally well staged, and is done full justice to by a capable company. Mr. Gray is seen to great advantage in the principal part, and at the close is accorded quite an ovation. At the other end are Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford, who keep the audience in a continual ripple of merriment with their exceedingly well played comedy sketch, Getting Even; the Trapnell Family of acrobats and tumblers give a clever show; the Kirbys are thoroughly amusing comedy artists and dancers; the Bros. Webb, the popular musical clowns, score a well-deserved success with a most enjoyable turn; J. H. Scotland gains a good reception for his singing of "In Happy Moments"; Bert Harrow is an entertaining comedian; and the Bioscope is a feature with the usual up-to-date films.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Carlotta de Yonson and her clever sketch company are retained over another week, and is presenting with the greatest success the well-written American detective dramatee, The Dandy Detective. The Lombarts, speciality acrobats and hand-balancers, score with a good turn; Tom Yorke, chorus vocalist, meets with a well-deserved success; Beau and Belle are good in their novel and artistic singing scena; and others who are responsible for entertaining turns are the Flying Peritas, Continental gymnasts; Ray Royal, American songstress; and Tom Dawson, the blind comedian. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is popular with "The Villain Still Pursued Her" and "The Grand National."

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Variety is the order here this week, and is supplied by Mr. Pardoe's company. Miss Lottie Holland's singing is a feature of the evening; Messrs. Ford and Hanson supply a good musical turn; the Bros. Hannaway, comedians and clog-dancers, are capital; the Marvellous Pardoes, in their comedy act, Uncle and the Cannibal, are very amusing; Mr. Tom Griffith, baritone, sings creditably; Mr. Tom Hulme, comedian, is loudly applauded, and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—An interesting Shakespearean week has been provided by Mr. F. R. Benson's Northern touring company, the répertoire including Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Macbeth, Romeo and Juliet, The Taming of the Shrew, As You Like It, and Richard III. The combination is a strong one, and excellent performances have been given. Mr. Henry Herbert in the leading rôles has won universal commendation; Messrs. Spencer Geach, Ross Shore, Charles Francis, Reginald Owen, and Gerald Ames, with others, have also proved themselves actors of undoubted ability and promise. Miss Dorothy Green's impersonations of Ophelia and other principal parts are characterised by much grace and charm, as well as deep histrionic instinct; and success has also marked the efforts of Miss Mary Webb, Miss Louise Graeme, and Miss Rosa Burgess in their less exacting rôles.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Liverpool was afforded another intellectual treat on Monday, when Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton presented in a charming manner The Taming of the Shrew. The reception given to these favourite artists was exceedingly flattering. The Petruchio of Mr. Asche was regarded as an excellent reading of that part; Miss Brayton's fine accomplishments were seen in all their strength and subtlety as the Shrew; capital humour came from Mr. Henry Kitts as Grunio, and Mr. R. F. Anson in the rôle of Biondello; a charming Bianca was submitted by Miss Agnes Brayton; Mr. G. Kay Souper afforded good support as Tranio; and other well-held parts were Gremio (Mr. Caleb Porter), Hortensio (Mr. R. Ian Penny), and Lucentio (Mr. H. R. Hignett). The play was preceded by the amusing sketch, The Induction, in which Mr. Asche took the character of Christopher Sly. The other works of the week were Othello and The Virgin Goddess.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Driven from Home, presented by Mr. Andrew Melville's combination, has proved an attraction here this week. Miss Beatrice Western acted with effect in the parts of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh, jun.; Mr. Felix Pitt made a good impression as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Leonard Aardale was an efficient Willie; and other characters sustained with credit were Walter Hatherleigh, sen. (Mr. Herbert Young), John Anderson (Mr. F. C. Imbert), Jabez Thomas (Mr. Harry Cornwall), Margaret Bailey (Miss Enid Wilde), and Polly (Miss Madge Muriel).

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Dr. Wake's Patient which first saw the light at this theatre, paid a return visit on Monday, and was thoroughly enjoyed. The company responsible was sent by Mr. Charles Macdona, and included Mr. Thalberg Corbett, whose Doctor was a distinct success; and Miss Fyfe Alexander, a most praiseworthy Lady Gerania. Mr. Allan Pollock acquitted himself well as Duff Wynterden; Mr. Ivan Cleveland was seen to advantage as the Earl; Miss Kate Osborne played the part of Mrs. Wake with every credit; and valuable help came from Mr. George Howard (Andrew Wake), and Miss Georgie Trewman (Countess St. Olbyn).

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—An excellent programme has drawn crowded houses nightly this week. George Leyton heads the list with a stirring and patriotic scena, a feature of which is the appearance of the buglers from the stranded S.S. Jebba and Suevic. The Woodwards are clever equilibrists, and fully deserve the applause bestowed; Minnie Cunningham is a delightful comedienne, her songs being greatly enjoyed; Nash and Noel are very laughable, and their dancing is good; and others who are well received are Johnny Dwyer, Molly Doon, and Silbon's circus of dogs, cats, and ponies, an excellent exhibition of animal training. This week's pictures include the Grand National and the football match between Everton and West Bromwich.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—For the first time in Liverpool A Soldier's Honour has been presented here during the week by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company. The drama, which was put on in a creditable manner, has been received with approval. Mrs. Kimberley played powerfully as Cora Lee, and earned much applause; a fine picture of the honourable Captain Deane was submitted by Mr. John B. Shinton; praise is deserved by Mr. Edward Warden for his excellent Captain Temple; Mr. Clavering Craig distinguished himself as Henry Thornton; and capital comedy was provided by Miss Edie Macklin (Jemima Eliza), Mr. Frank Howard (Percy Brattle), and Miss Dora Taylor (Gwendoline).

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Heading a long list of artists here this week is Kronau's military spectacle Our Boys in Blue, which has been much admired; the antics of Regan and Ryan, a funny pair of comedians, have aroused continuous laughter; pleasing singing and well executed dancing come from the Silver Tone Quartet; W. T. Ellwanger and company presented a smart comedy sketch, entitled The Peacemaker; the Crystals distinguished themselves as vocalists and dancers; some taking songs were rendered by Rosie Lloyd; Walter Emerson had some humorous patter and songs; and also in the list were Katie Marsh, vocalist and dancer; Charles Somers, comedian; Rose Elliott, a sweet singer; and Myra Love, comedienne.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Unknown; or, a River Mystery, has been played here this week by the Royal Stock Dramatic company. Mr. Percy Boucher held the comedian's part of Pat; Mr. Sydney Grant played with effect as Harold Merrybright; Mr. Harry Tresham afforded much satisfaction as Albert Stormking; and other principal rôles were impersonated by Mr. Robert Wilton (Arnold Tyson); Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Jack Salt); Miss Florence Palmer (Bessie Merrybright); and Miss Beryl Ravenswood (Louise).

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—An adaptation of East Lynne, by Mr. Percy Boucher, is being given here by the "Royal" Stock Dramatic company. The work has been given a careful interpretation, the principal rôles being held by Mr. Wallace Campbell (Archibald Carlyle); Mr. Frank S. Stickland (Francis Levison); Mr. Francis E. Wybert (Justice Hare); Mr. H G. Brandon (Mr. Dill); Miss Evelyn Kingston (Willie); Miss Gladys Walton (Barbara Hare); and Miss Lina Nazeby (Lady Isabel).

Park Palace.—Proprietors, Lancashire Vaudeville Syndicate, Ltd.—General Director, Mr. Walter de Frece.—The Stock Dramatic company here are this week producing Queen of the Night, by F. Thorpe-Tracy and Joan Berlin.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Arthur Alston and company top the bill here this week with their very amusing sketch Duck Hunting; another pleasing turn is that provided by Emma Dan and her combination of black and white comedians, who submit a capital vocal scena and execute smart dancing; some remarkable work as a contortionist is done by Wilfred Gregory; Harry Nelson has a deal of good patter; and Harry Cotton shows himself to be a comedian of ability.

Olympia, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Top of the programme here this week is John Lawson, who with his company has been pleasing everybody with the sketch The King's Minister; the always popular Poluski Brothers (Will and Sam) are as lively as ever; Billy McClain and company, incuding Mdlle. Cordelia, go through a neat scena, The Hottest Coon from Dixie; Theo Hardeen performs some remarkable feats with handcuffs; loud applause is bestowed upon the Four Royal Welshmen for their charming glee singing; Lidden and Hayward have a clever musical act; the Mayville's are particularly smart lilliputian artists; the Four Karnos supply a merry pantomime, The Dinner Hour; James Brady, comedian, also appears, and the bioscope shows an excellent picture of the Grand National race.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Foremost here this week is Millie Lindon, whose reception for her well-rendered songs has been very flattering; John Leopold's company has caused endless laughter with The House-Boat; some astonishing cycling has been shown by the Proveanies; Leslie Brothers as musical comedians proved exceedingly popular; Sylvesta, assisted by Miss Vera De Courtnay, gave a fine exhibition of conjuring; the Rinaldo Trio of comedy acrobats were smart and funny; the Brothers Lang, merry knockabout comedians, raised a deal of laughter; and Jeannie Mackay, a pleasing vocalist, and Charles Vincent, comedian, also appeared.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—This latest addition to the list of local places of amusement continues to enjoy hearty public support by reason of the good all-round programmes put forward. Top here this week is Arthur Roberts and company with The Woman Who Was, which has been richly enjoyed; Harry Grey, "the Australian Nugget," had a hearty reception for his humorous songs and patter; the Ettenas Trio presented an unique globe speciality; the singing of the Three Behans was much appreciated; Charles Sloman had some droll sayings; as a vocalist and dancer Ada Parker acquitted herself well; and others who appeared were A. E. Clifford, vocal comedian, and Sybil Armidale, comedienne.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwir W. Smith.—Harry Colden and company are here with the dramatic sketch Watch and Wait; or, Kindred's Claim; George Reeves has some popular songs; Frances Drew brings several pieces which meet with acceptance; and the comedy juggling of Frank Mark is much enjoyed.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The big attraction this week has been Pathé Frères splendid bioscope pictures on the Passion Play, which have proved exceedingly attractive. In the variety portion are Craig, Roze, and Craig, gymnasts; Ray and Miles, with their comedy juggling act; and Nash and Noel, vocal specialists.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; General Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—The chief attraction here for the week is the Parisian Animated Picture Co; all are thoroughly up-to-date, and a good two and half hours' enjoyment is afforded large audiences nightly; Miss Vi Eplett is exceptionally pleasing with her songs, "A Little Boy called Taps," and a Japanese song, "My Rickshaw Queen," in which she is assisted by four local comediennes in really good style; Mr. Ernest Ellerslie in his facial portraiture is above the ordinary.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Harry Graham's pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is being given here this week, with little Miss Mabel Howe, a charming and clever young lady, in the title-rôle. Miss Mabel Kessler is a fine Boy Blue, and sings, dances, and acts well; Mr. James Wood is capital as the Baron; whilst Mr. Harry Howe as the Dame is exceedingly funny. Messrs. Grant and Kelly as Johnny Green and Tommy Stout are very good; Miss May Wyatt and Miss Tessa De'Alberte as the Bad and Good Fairies respectively are deserving of much praise; as Prince Charming, Miss Dickie Fair is really charming; as is also Miss Grace Stafford as Mary Muffet and Miss Cissie Langdale as Margery Daw.

LOWESTOFT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Business here continues excellent, and the Hippodrome has become firmly established as the family resort of Lowestoft. The management have eliminated every display of rowdyism and tendency to interruption, and the best order prevails. A fine series of pictures has been submitted throughout the week, and The Florias; Jack Martin; and Martino, the Man Frog, have contributed to the programme.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond are here this week with their company in Home, Sweet Home. The rôle of Stephen Armitage, the hero fisherman, is in the able hands of Mr. Arthur Hinton; while that of his father, David Armitage, is ably portrayed by Mr. F. Hudspath; Mr. Travers Green is successful as Lucas Lyle, secretary to the Duke of Ancaster, a part which is well played by Mr. A. Lowey. Miss Lelia Zilwood as Joan, David Armitage's adopted daughter, is good; as also is Miss Jennie Clare as Sybil Fay, a music hall "star"; little Dolly Turner takes her part of Dora, Stephen's child, very well; Mr. W. Graham Arthurs is good as Dick Redmayne, the fisherman. The scenery and effects are effective.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. H. Galtey.—Mr. Broadbent Bell and company, in the musical comedy, Captain Blarney, are being well supported here this week. Mr. S. S. Wilford, in the title-rôle, depicts the Irishman in a spirited style; Mr. B. Lovatt is good as Frank; and Mr. B. Bell makes a capital Rev. Horatio Kneebone. Mr. F. Druary is amusing as Sam Brown; Miss Ethel Lovett gives a charming portrayal of Emily Banks; Miss Norah Coronne is graceful as Mrs. Emily Banks; and Miss Vera Cooper performs the part of Mary Ann to perfection; whilst Miss Louie Lonora gives a capital impersonation of Bella.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shirra—Mr. Geo. Edwarde's company appeared here on Monday in The Lady Dandies. The company is a strong one, and the piece has an air of its own, to which the character of the music contributes not a little. As Lodolska, Miss Anna Hickisch sings very well, and looks sufficiently charming; Mr. Eric Thorne as St. Amour has ample opportunities for the exhibition of his great talents as a comedian; and excellent work in the same line is added by Mr. Lennox Pawle as Tournesoi and Mr. Jack Cannot as Malicome; while Mr. Robert Hale figures well as Lagorille; and neat impersonations are given by Mr. Willie Ward, jun., Mr. George Curzon, and Mr. Harold Thorley. Mr. W. Talleur Andrews as Dorlic and Miss Deborah Volar as Illyrine sustain the heroic rôles most admirably, and great praise is due to both. Miss Vivian Talleur's dancing is also well worthy of note. Scenery and costumes are on a magnificent scale.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—One of the most successful dramas seen here for some time is presented by Miss Mary Austen and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company in Woman and Wine. Miss Cissie St. Elmo is excellently placed as Marcel Rigadout; and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds pleases everyone by his fine impersonation of Dick Seymour. Miss Violet Sims gives a delicate and sympathetic rendering of Mary Andrew; and distinctly good character sketches are added by Mr. Fred W. Goddard as Beaudet, Mr. John S. Haydon as Hugh Seymour, Mr. Frank Thomas as the Duc d'Arnac, and Miss Joan Pereira as La Colombe. Mumorous parts are equally well handled by Mr. H. Harrop, Mr. Geo. Child, Mr. G. P. Lester, and Miss Ethel Vinroy. The auxiliaries are numerous and the staging and dressing excellent.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Frank Bateman Dramatic Company are here this week in the popular drama No Wedding Bells For Her. The play is exciting, and illustrates theatrical life on and off the stage. Miss Lizzie Montague sustains the principal part of Lola Delaspierre with capital effect; Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherlegh is manly and convincing; Mr. Percy Shaw as Dick Delver makes a good detective; and Miss Dora Pass impersonates Doris Fane in clever style. Mr. Fred Vaughan as Tightfist (the manager), Mr. Will Skelton as Simkins (the nondescript), and Miss Bessy Franks as Peggy provide plenty of healthy fun, and all the minor parts are satisfactorily filled.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Sidney Dench presents here this week Miss Dora Dench and a strong company in Under the British Flag, of which a vigorous and effective rendering is given. Miss Dora Dench and Mr. W. Hall are both excellent in the heroic parts of Dora Faith and Arthur Fane, and they are well supported by Mr. Arthur Belfour as William Brady, Mr. Jack Sidney as Don Jose, Mr. Roy Cavendish as Mr. Faith, Mr. John Dorey as Peter Piper, and Miss Florrie Griffiths as Nancy Bell.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Emma Litchfield's principal company, under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland, are here this week in their smart novelty drama, A Clever Impostor. Miss Emma Litchfield is very fine in a trio of distinctive character parts; and Mr. Stuart Cleveland is excellent as Teixeira, the imposter. Mr. Hubert Evelyn makes a manly and heroic Captain Desmond; Mr. Robert Lord is capital as Bob Darnforth; Miss Maud Steeple answers all requirements as Margaret Grosvenor; and Miss Isabel Singleton is good as Maisie. Among the remainder of an extremely well-balanced and capable company, Mr. Edward Swinton and Miss Nora Waylett are commendable for their brisk and effective humour.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Lil Hawthorne, the popular comedienne, tops the bill here this week in a series of enjoyable songs. Prominent also is J. G. Grahame's company in The Yellow Fang, a grim and realistic episode in a 'Frisco opium den, finely staged and admirably acted. Capital turns are added by Fred Poplar, comedian; Gracie Moore, illustrated song vocalist; Burns and Burns, in a comic speciality; Marie Santoi and company in a Japanese scena; Lieut. Travis, in his well-known ventriloquial act; the Wurtenberg Brothers, novelty double-boot experts; and Kitty Wager, a pleasing comedienne. The Bioscope depicts the Grand Natonal.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The smart manœuvres of "the Boy Army" form an interesting part of the programme here this week. Alexandra Dagmar, charmingly gowned, delights with song and story; Florence and Lillian are extremely pleasing in their refined vocal and instrumental act; and the animal novelty introduced by Tschernoff is something above the ordinary. H. C. Barry, that sterling musical comedy comedian, contributes a song in his characteristic style; Edward E. Ford's facial imitations are received with deserved applause; the King's College Boys make a hit in harmony and song; and Edward O'Neill and company are particularly good in My Friend the Devil. Vocal items by the choir and the Grand National on the Bioscope complete.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The great attraction here this week is that popular eccentric comedian, Wilkie Bard, whose reception is extremely flattering. Luis Hardt, the boy Sampson, is well received in his artistic scena, "Flights of Imagination," showing how he emulated Sandow; and the Brown and Kelly combination make a hit in a screaming absurdity, The Butler Knows. Athas and Collins, a first-rate comedy duo, are exceedingly good; Jack Crawley is a capital vocal and instrumental mimic; Max Duffek, the Continental musical contortionist, is clever; Nellie Stratton sings pleasingly; and smart turns are also contributed by Blanche Holt, comedienne and dancer; and the Mozondas. The latest events are portrayed by the Palace pictures.

GRAND.—Jasper Redfern's pictures, with vaudeville interludes, are still the attraction here.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Mr. Charles Majilton and company, including Mr. Jim Bond and Miss Maddie Majilton, are seen to advantage here this week in a screaming farce, She Would be a Widow. The Napoli Sextette, including the tenor, Mr. John Lloyd, are very successful in their vocal scena, An Evening at Home; as are also the Ottawas in their delightful vocal and instrumental scena, After the Hunt. Excellent turns are also those of Eustace and Eyre, in novel ventriloquial act; Leon and Williams, clever and amusing comedians; Godfrey James, a sweet-voiced singer; Bert Danson, a capital comedian; and Little Tim, a quaint comedian and an eccentric dancer. A film depicting "The Polar Regions" is shown by the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Prominent in a good programme here this week is a smart and attractive musical sketch, entitled A Japanese Love Story, by Fred Cooper and Alf. Lezor. The play is bright and tuneful, the singing good, and the costumes pretty. The artists include Messrs. Stephen Hasland, W. S. Power, Fred Cooper, and Miss Tina Franks. The Days give a clever exhibition in second-sight; the Elsio Comedy Trio cause much laughter in their knockabout absurdity; the Three Coopers sing in a manner which calls forth the heartiest approbation; the Czar's Royal Russian Troupe dance exceedingly well; and the Bendons are successful in a song-scena. Mac and Hill (patter comedians), Jack Hylton (comedian), and Geo. Rapley (comedian) contribute pleasing items; and "The Dog Smugglers" are shown on the Bioscope.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Foremost comes Rachel Lowe, whose charming novelty songs are received with the utmost cordiality. Mlle. Sylvia du Barry also deserves the warm reception accorded her; and the Howes, in their highly successful mental telepathy act, complete a long engagement. Bennett and Martell, in their nautical scena The Lost Mariners, are good; and, in addition, satisfactory turns are given by Woolmer Young, vocal comedian; Flo Cecil, comedienne and dancer; the Sisters Temple, duettists; Gracie Bard, speciality artist; and Grant and Allen, burlesque comedians. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures are good, as usual.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Fanny Robina, the popular comedienne, and Florry Cooper, a pleasant vocalist, after a successful week at the Metropole Theatre, are delighting the patrons of this hall. W. L. Murray, Britain's ideal of physical culture, is a very fine specimen of humanity, and gives a good turn; La Petite Voltaire is very good in Dutch song and dance; Tony Iveson, at the piano, is excellent; Phem and Phem are well received in their musical act; and Henry Carlton and company are good in The Window Cleaner. Other enjoyable items are those of Billy Bint, vocal comedian; the Jollions, harmonising vocalists; and Fred Casburn, comedian. The pictures are interesting.

MANSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—During this week Mr. Edward McLean's company has been presenting The Hero of the Flag to good houses. Miss Gladys Vernon as Mabel Forrester, "the hero of the flag," plays very capably, and is applauded; Mr. Ernest Wingfield is well placed in the rôle of Paul Mansfield; Mr. Johnny McElroy as Johnny Truckle causes great merriment, as also does Miss Amy Randolph as Jenny Stubbs. Miss Lilian Beaumont gives a very powerful interpretation of the rôle of Ruth Clifford; Mr. Edward McLean is a merry, light-hearted Jack Lawrence; and Mr. Vernon Sansbury has a commanding presence as Captain Hilliard. All the other characters are capably sustained. The scenery is very effective, and the staging praiseworthy.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Cecil Clayton.—Variety holds the sway here this week, when Ginnett's Dick Turpin tops the bill. This sketch is received most enthusiastically, and is quite a success. The Royal Welsh Singers also provide an interesting turn, and are applauded. Ginnett's sketch, Rejected Remounts, creates unlimited merriment; and Mrs. Cecil Clayton is greatly appreciated for her singing; Steve Cooke, eccentric comedian, is applauded; Bert and Fay give an amusing skit, The Curate and the Slavey, in good style. The turn of the Sisters Clancy, vocalists and acrobatic dancers, is successful. Other turns are contributed by Alex Thomas and Jock Wright.

MARGATE. — HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Mr. Arnold Bell's company have extended their engagement into a second week, and have changed the programme by playing the sensational drama, The Mystery of a Hansom Cab. The piece has been well played, the members of the company doing excellently in their individual parts. Mr. D. Hardy gave a capital impersonation as Brian Fitzgerald; Mr. Roy Jackson scored as Roger Moreland; and Mr. Dane Clark was well to the fore as Mark Frettleby. Miss Minnie Langtry was much appreciated as Mrs. Sampson; and Miss May Hardy was successful as Dora Featherweight. Miss Mabel Studholm portrayed the unthankful part of Mother Guttersnipe in a lifelike manner; and Miss Lillian Earle was praiseworthy as Sal Rawlins. Other members of the company in the cast who have each acquitted themselves well have been Miss Kitty Douglas as Madge Frettleby, Miss Poppy Hammersley as Rosanna Moore, Mr. W. G. Gregory as Oliver White, Mr. Bert Morley as Counsel for the Defence, Mr. C. D. Pearson as Malcolm Royston, Mr. F. Wilmot as Counsel for the Prosecution, and Mr. J. Exley as the Judge.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—A large and appreciative audience was present on Monday to witness the production of The Sign of the Cross, by Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company. The part of Marcus Superbus was filled in an able manner by Mr. Frank E. Petley; Miss Marie Leonhard was pathetic as Mercia; the rôle of Nero had an able exponent in Mr. C. Yorke; and as Stephanus, Miss Dulcie Greatwich was admirable. The parts of Glabrio and Philodemus were capitally filled by Messrs. Frank Wood and Harry Jones; Licinius and Tigellinus were well sustained by Messrs. J. Wetherall and Charles Aldred; and as Poppœa, Miss Mary Newcombe was all that could be desired. Mr. Tom Cook was good as Viturius; and as Berenice, Dacia, and Ancaria, the Misses Gertrude Price, Cissie Carlton, and Lily Ward were excellent. Mr. Walter Fleet as Favius, Mr. Clifton Yale as Titus, and Mr. R. Chapman as Meles were each admirable in their respective parts.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Miss Ella and her group of lions top the bill here, and prove a great attraction; Whyley is very funny in his musical act; Le Warren is a clever ventriloquist; Titan's feats of strength are much admired; Miss Telka is a pleasing balladist; the Darias amuse with their comedy scenas; the Biograph is also a prominent feature in a most acceptable programme.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE. Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company is here with The Blind Foundling. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps gives a vigorous interpretation of Gerald Dalton; Mr. Frank Harvey is a natural Parson Ray; Mr. Bernard Webb a clever Jasper Waterford; Mr. Albert G. Fry makes the most of the character of Mark Redman; and Mr. Harry Tilbury is an amusing Dick Dobbins. Miss Belle Tilbury cleverly portrays Isabel; Miss Aline T. George is a charming Viola Waterford; and Miss Mabel Hall pleasing in the title-rôle.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. C. Imeson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here, in the drama, Honour Thy Father. As Gabriel Garth Mr. Walter M. Cameron stands out prominently. To Miss Mabel Coleman is entrusted the difficult rôle of Lillian Garth, of which she gives a most impressive rendition; as Sir Duncan Bly Mr. Howell Travis acts with much feeling, and Mr. Claude Merton, in the dual rôle of Job Merry and George Bloggs, is capital; Miss Kate Newton is a pleasing Gertrude Garth; and Miss Muriel Dean does full justice to the rôle of Mercy Merry.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—Kelly and Ashby, in a comedy acrobatic act, maintain their popularity here; and La Pia, who is here for another week, delights in her classical poses. Barton and Franklin take the house by storm in their clever vocal and instrumental turn; Lily Langtry provides a charming act; Will Musgrave, who is here again, has lost none of his popularity; and other most enjoyable turns are given by Pathy Lanbury, vocalist; James Willard and company, in a sketch, The Little Wonder; Stedder and Dunbar, vocalists; and Victor Courtney, comedian.

OXFORD.—Proprietor, Mr. A. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Miss Addie Dorina, the protean artist, heads the bill here, and delights large audiences in her sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients. Miss Madoline Rees, who has a legion of admirers, as the result of her success in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, provides a delightful turn; Eva Chadwick also meets with great success; and the other turns contributing to the programme are Harry Luck, comedian; the Pender Troupe, sketch artists; Welda and Wynne, speciality artists; Elton Peters, comedian; and the Continental Stilt-walkers.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—A play of strong human interest, Charles E. Clarke's A Broken Heart, is being performed here this week by Mr. Harry Foxwell's company. As John Barnard, the blacksmith, Mr. Henry Wolston scores a big success; whilst Mary Barnard, the erring wife, is touchingly delineated by Miss Vera Fordyce. Mr. Henry Earlesmere as Stephen Raylton makes a powerful villain; and his accomplice, Gash Gills, is cleverly acted by Mr. Charles Vivian. Mr. Will Lindsay in the amusing character of Tony Tibbets brings the house down by a really smart performance of the part; Mrs. Harry Foxwell makes a charming Miss Fanshawe, and is equally at home in the part of Mrs. Kellett; whilst Miss Florrie Sorsby very prettily presents Little Eva. The scenery and dresses are specially pleasing.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Business Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The pretty musical play Blue-Bell in Fairyland makes a first appearance in Newcastle this week, being played by a well-balanced company sent out by Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon. Miss Mamie Finbow does well in the title-rôle, her vocal efforts being a feature of the performance; while Messrs. Harry Douglas, Lawrence Emery, Frank Lennard, J. H. Bishop and Charles Resti make most of the chances afforded them in the comedy element. All the minor parts are well filled, the chorus is a powerful one, and the San Remo Girls figure in some pretty dances.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company appear here this week in the popular and powerful five-act play Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold, in the title-part, acts with much distinction; and Mr. Paul Belmore gives a clever impersonation of the well-drawn character of Kleschna. A sound actor, possessed of wonderful elocutionary power, in Mr. William F. Grant, takes the part of Sylvaine; and an excellent and convincing study of Raoul Berton is contributed by Mr. Hamilton Deane. Others in the cast are Messrs. Campbell Goldsmid, Roland Daniel, Bert Gunter, Bernard Rain, Aries Conway, Frederick Bannerman, Henry Buxton, Miss Ethel Russell, Miss Helene Belgrave, Miss Violet Thorold, Miss May Hamond, and Miss Edith Summers.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company produce The Span of Life here this week to good houses. Mr. R. S. Trelawney gives a manly interpretation of the hero, Richard Blunt; Miss Guinevere Sineton is forcible in the part of Kate Heathcott; and Miss Phyllis Hamilton makes a successful Mrs. Jelf; whilst Miss Phyllis Graham does excellently in the double characters of Cecil Jelf and Cecil Blunt. The brothers Stebbing, who make a breezy trio of Jack Tars, considerably enliven the piece by their smart sayings; Mr. Sanderson Moffatt is an excellent villain, Dunstan Leach; and the comedy element is admirably sustained by Messrs. Walter Dale and J. Jarrett as Nutty Brown and Joshua Garnet respectively.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—Tom Owen, the Welsh comedian, is the star here, and convulses the house with his funny patter; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire singing girl, meets with success; something new in jumping is presented by the Hartley Wonders; Tom Wood sings some excellent songs, illustrated by views; the Hadj Abdullah Troupe give a fine gymnastic turn; the Musical Jees (old favourites) come in for warm recognition; Chas. Norton is successful in mimicry; Ouida Macdermott, comedienne, does well; and the Bioscope shows pictures that are interesting.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—This week, Friday excepted, Mr. Charles Carey, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Wantage, has presented the musical comedy The Pick of the Bunch. Miss Sadie distinguishes herself as Nancy; Miss Madge Christopher is a pleasing Nellie, and Miss Eva Ellis is good as Ruth; whilst Miss Nellie James works hard as the Dutch girl. Mr. H. Buckstone Clair is very droll as Colonel Joseph Menit; and Mr. Charles Carey as Halliwell Menit, Algernon W. Lee as Martin, and Mr. Harold Wantage as Dick Seymour all do well.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred. H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Barrington's freak performances at the piano are deservedly applauded for their cleverness; the Sisters Denton please as duettists and dancers; F. S. Hulme is successful as a vocal comedian; Jack Rae is a smart and comic gymnast and hat manipulator; Mr. C. Vincent brings out a very laughable series of incidents on the bioscope; Vesta Fay appears as a male impersonator with effect; Mark Lane is another successful comedian; Bertha Winder, dancing marvel, provides a good turn; and Chas. Fisher's Pocket Opera Company finish the programme with excerpts from Maritana with appropriate scenery and dresses.

NORTH SHIELDS.—CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—Topping the bill here we have N. T. Kioto, equilibrist and juggler, who performs some very clever feats; Messrs. Clarke and Glenney, with The Haunted House, keep the audience in a happy mood; and Messrs. Drum and Major, comedy artists, are as popular as ever. Mr. Percy Maye is an entertaining impersonator; the Haverleys, song illustrators, introduce an enjoyable act; Moneta and Ford, comedy artists, are funny; and the Bio-Photoscope is still received with favour.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—A popular programme is presented this week, among the foremost being Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew comedians, who create much laughter. Walter Purvis and company are appreciated in their sketch, Cauliflower Joe; the Waldrons, in their comedy act, The Silly Burglar, are amusing; Mlle. Haydee and her miniature vaudeville theatre is a pleasing turn; the Four Jumels give a clever musical act; E. J. Sheldon, "the man in white," is very good; Little Mamie Iris is a pleasing singer and dancer; Alfred Chester is a versatile comedian; and the Hippodrome Biograph give some interesting pictures.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is appearing here in East Lynne. Mr. Alfred Beaumont combines fervour with judgment in his portrayal of Archibald Carlyle; as Lord Mountsevern Mr. Spencer Goodwin acts with restrained vigour; and Mr. C. C. Gratton endows the part of Justice Hare with the necessary sternness. Mr. Frederick Harker displays cool assurance as Francis Levison; and Mr. Harry C. Rutland neatly presents Richard Hare. Miss Julie Kennard gives the fullest expression to the emotions of the unhappy Lady Isabel; Miss Ethel Saville plays with nice discrimination as Barbara Hare; and Miss Ethel Hardacre does well in the character of Cornelia. Mr. Alfred Tate as the majestic Bullock gains hearty appreciation; and Mr. Cyril Hayward displays comedy ability as Dill. Miss Emily Frith makes a spirited Suzanne; and Miss Jessie Sydney an acceptable Joyce.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—An excellent American drama, Alaska, makes its first appearance here, being presented by Mr. Hilliard Vox's company. Mr. Percy Ballard, in the character of Skookum Jim, makes every point in telling style, and his manliness soon puts his audience in sympathy with him; Mr. H. Naylor Grimson succeeds in investing the part of Larson with the necessary villainy; and Mr. James Fox makes an excellent Father Bernard. Mr. Stenson Liddard possesses the conventional stoicism required as Baptiste; and Mr. J. Howarth is a dashing naval officer. Miss Muriel Vox, a charming Jessie Dalton, acts in a spirited manner; Little Polly Percival is altogether at home in the child-part; Mr. Arthur Ferris and Miss Maud Wilson as nigger coons have excellent opportunities, which they do not fail to utilise; and Miss Violet Crauford gives a clever representation of Alaska, a Red Indian maid.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The principal attraction this week is Mrs. John Lawson and company, with The Devil's Sunday, an intensely dramatic sketch, in which Mrs. Lawson does excellent work as Fay Faber. Another sketch, entitled Hello! by Frank Bernard and company, is provocative of much mirth; and the efforts of Miss Nellie Coleman, a comical little lady, cause no end of amusement. The Cambrian Trio of lady vocalists sing excellent ballads; and the rendering of "Sing me to sleep," by Mr. Andrew Roy, with accompanying lantern illustrations, makes an excellent turn. Dome causes laughter by his comical efforts in clay modelling; Tennyson and Wallis keep the audience convulsed; and the dashing style and lilting choruses of Miss Lily Burnand compel hearty and spontaneous outbursts of applause. Fanny Erris has a pleasing style; and some excellent films are shown on the Bioscope.

NUNEATON. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Prof. Chas. Morritt and his variety company occupy the boards here this week, and provide a good entertainment. In addition to Prof. Morritt's wonderful performance, some clever turns are given by Flemini, one-legged acrobat; Beulah, lady thought-reader; La Sylph and Brenda Leslie, dancers; Sylvester Stuart, boy vocalist; Charles Bradford, comedian; and Millie le Grand, comedienne.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—This week drama gives way to variety, and the principal attraction by the American Pictures is the Nelson v. Gans fight. Another attraction is provided by Haley's Prize Juveniles, including Dot and Spot, and they had a hearty reception. The Levans, in illustrated songs, also gained much applause for the capital manner in which they sang; George Russell, vocal comedian, was good; as were Farrell and Miller, comedians and dancers. The Theatrescope exhibited some capital pictures.

COLOSSEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Messrs E. A'Dell and Chabot's domestic drama His Sister's Honour opened here on Monday evening before a good audience. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell gave a manly delineation of the part of Frank Stanley; Mr. Gilson Brooke was excellent as Doctor Godfrey; Mr. Harry C. Robinson was very good as the villainous Sir Richard Redvers; Timothy Timid (with songs), as played by Mr. Sydney Dean, caused much laughter, and he was ably assisted by Miss Bessie Dean as Maria; Miss Kathryne Eckhart played Dora in a capital manner; and Miss Ethel Ashleigh, as Ivy Merton, was also very good; Miss Winnie Kennedy was smart as Gretchen (with song and dance); Messrs. Slater and Carston were good as Sergeant Lamon and Private Lopez respectively; and Mr. Harry Mitchelson was good as P.C. Worthie; as was Mr. John Leyland as Bill Buggins. Mr. A. Smith made a capital Johnny Bennett.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. H. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Trentanovi's mules, baboons, and dogs are a feature of the bill, and a very smart show is given by these well-trained animals; Alburtus the First and Jessie Millar, in A Scene at the Fair Grounds, create much amusement—Miss Millar is a capital cornetist. Ada Fawn had a hearty reception for her capital singing; the Huxter Brothers, acrobats, were a great success; Edwards and Espinosa are good musicians and dancers; Miss Mabelle May is dainty in her songs; Ian Colquhoun is a splendid baritone vocalist; Dan Conroy is a quaint comedian and dancer; and an amusing picture by the Dottoscope concludes the programme.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. H. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Ross and Lewis cause much laughter by their comedy, and display some excellent dancing; Zelda is an expert performer on novel instruments; Charles Santon is a fine male soprano, and gained much applause; Cribb and Cribb also caught on in an original scena; the Smarte Brothers are novel acrobatic eccentrics; and Joe Oliver is a good vocalist. Wal Owen, the comedy man, and new pictures by the Dottoscope conclude the entertainment.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Winifred Stuart and C. Watson Mill; manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is this week presenting The Soldier's Wedding here. As Jack Brown Mr. Wingold Lawrence is robust and manly, and gives a very pleasing rendering of the character; while Mr. Beresford Whitcomb is well suited as Col. James Graham; Mr. Frederick Biron is an able exponent of David Munro, and Mr. Fred Yarnold is very natural as Nathaniel Lee; Mr. Raymond Wood sustains Charles Courtenay in a creditable manner; Mr. D. J. Hennessey is effective as John Marks; Little Albert wins golden opinions as Teddy Munro; and Mr. A. Gambier Melford as Tommy Spratt proves a great favourite. Miss Marie McAuley makes a stately and convincing Julie de Beauvrais; Miss Maggie Burton is a success as Mrs. Hatherton; and Miss Ettie Carlisle is full of life as Lizzie Walker. Miss Georgie De Lara gives a sympathetic portrayal of Peggy Munro, and Miss Jessie Winter deserves high praise for her careful and charming rendering of Nancy Lee. The play is well dressed and mounted.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Edward Compton and his renowned comedy company, which is ably piloted by Mr. H. B. Fitzgibbon, are making their reappearance here, and are, as in former visits, meeting with a most cordial reception. On Monday they opened with the new play, written by the clever comedian's son, Mr. Montague Compton, viz., The Gentleman in Grey. Mr. Compton appeared as Charles Lovely, and his fine delineation of the character was an artistic triumph. Mr. Dennis Cleugh gave an excellent rendering of the part of Francis Vernon; of sterling merit was the interpretation of Sir George Repington by Mr. Henry Crocker; Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree played with manly force and vigour the rôle of Anthony Clare; Mr. Wallace Johnston submitted an interesting study of Tabrum; as Justice Gregory Moon, Mr. Montague Lane rendered admirable support; as did also Mr. Charles Rogers as Major Constantine Tarry; capital comedy came from Mr. Philip Gordon as Thomas; and praiseworthy were the assumptions of John by Mr. H. C. Brett, and the Dicky by Mr. Arthur Elsmore. Mr. Compton's daughter, Miss Mackenzie, was unable to appear through indisposition; but Miss Phyllis Relph, with conspicuous ability, charm, and grace acted the part of Phyllida. Miss Marie Hassell figured with great effect in her embodiment of Mrs. Courteen; Miss Barbara Pigot made Betty an interesting and amusing study; Mrs. Tabrum was ably represented by Miss Le Strange;

"BLACK & WHITE"
THE WHISKY OF WORLD WIDE REPUTE

and Miss Nellie Walters as Polly was excellent. At the conclusion of the play, Mr. Compton was enthusiastically recalled, and had to submit to demands for a speech. The other plays billed for the week were David Garrick, Edmund Kean, and The School for Scandal, the latter to be performed at a matinée to-day (Saturday), when the proceeds will be devoted to the fund for the preservation of the Auld Brig o' Ayr, immortalised by the poet Burns.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur D. F. Bostock.—The position of honour this week is allotted the Ten Loonies, who provoke endless laughter with their musical absurdity, entitled Dotty. Lord, Murray, and Lord entertain with an amusing gymnastic mélange; Austen and Cowan, vocalists, give every satisfaction; Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley are clever and amusing as comedy artists; a capital turn is that provided by Walter Wade, raconteur and mimic; Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne, gains applause; Kendrick and Laura score as society entertainers; and the Bioscope adds to the attractiveness of the bill.

PERTH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe is here this week with a powerful company, including Miss Ethel Griffies, and is delighting fair city audiences with pleasing productions of Lady Godiva, Robin Hood, Jane Shore, &c. In Lady Godiva Mr. Woulfe assumes the rôle of Tom of Coventry, in which he leaves nothing to be desired, ably sustaining the high place on the stage he has so creditably earned. Miss Ethel Griffies is entrusted with the title-rôle, to which she does full justice, and assists in no small degree in the success of the play. Miss Barnet's is a pleasing and able portrayal of Lady Aldyth; Miss Edith Lorraine's successful impersonation of Elfrida is received with hearty approbation; Mr. Cecil Renton gives a masterly idea of what is required of Edgar the Nameless, his talent being vividly pronounced; Mr. Bob Anderson is an amusing Robin Shackleton; Mr. E. Holland Day is seen to considerable advantage as Leofric, Earl of Mercia; as also is Mr. Clifford Rean as Elgar, the supposed Earl of Northumbria; Mr. G. Edward Dunstan ably sustains the important rôle of Unwolf Unwolfson. Other minor parts are suitably filled.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Morice Prendergast's company, in A Woman of Pleasure, is the attraction this week. Mr. Ernest F. Wallace makes a fine, manly Lord Carlingforth; Mr. Fred Kay takes the double part of Jim Deach and Commandant Deach, an officer in the Boer army, with considerable ability, his articulation being very distinct; Mr. Arthur Gilroy, as Major Barrows, performs the part of the villain exceedingly well; Miss Grace Carew proves herself a clever and graceful actress as Alice Deach and subsequently the Countess of Carlingforth; and Mr. A. E. Maskell is a characteristic Devonshire yeoman. Other parts are entrusted to Mr. H. Lewis, Mr. J. W. Brandt, and Mr. Fred Laws.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mr. Geo. French has a warm reception for his smart and catchy patter songs; the Montaldos present some well-trained performing parrots and pigeons; Tom Foy and company have a genuinely funny sketch in The Yorkshire Lad in London; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor perform some good dancing; Claire Greta is an attractive comedienne and Spanish dancer; Kent and Keith have an acceptable duologue act; and Bob Stephenson furnishes a breezy song and dance. Mr. Fred Villars and Vernon's Pictures complete the programme.

PORTH.—The Palace (late Opera House).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting and Stage Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping the bill here this week we have Captain Max Gruber and his marvellous performing animals, elephant, horse, and pony. Poole and Poole, comedy couple, in songs, patter, and pedestal dancing, are undoubtedly smart; Miss Annie Nelson, the Australian vocalist, posseses an admirable voice, and is well received; Renson and Waite, comedy duo, are responsible for much genuine amusement; Mr. Harry Bickley, a quaint comedian, scores a success; Mr. Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, deserves special mention for his singing, which is much appreciated; Miss Emmie Ames, comedienne, makes a big hit; Mlle. Lucretia, burlesque artist and speciality dancer, is accorded a warm reception. The Palace pictures are good, and Will Wye, comedian, is also a capital turn.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Farcical comedy of the most mirth-provoking kind is being presented here this week by Mr. J. B. Mulholland's production of The Electric Man. Mr. Bernard Copping, who undertakes the dual parts of Walter Everest and his double the name-rôle, depicted the highly-strung inventor most ably, and his quick changes from one to the other were effected most cleverly. The young physician, Jack Strang, was briskly and capably performed by Mr. Sydney Lynn; Mr. Legai Robinson did very well as the private enquiry agent Jobbins; Mrs. Everest was carefully and effectively played by Miss Dorothy Hullah; Mrs. Anderson, in the hands of Miss Amy Fanchette, was a most diverting landlady; Stella and Mary were gracefully sustained by Miss Gertrude Tate and Miss Isa Bellington. The play is preceded each evening by a pretty little curtain-raiser, Obliging a Friend.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod and company are presenting here this week the melodrama The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Garrod gives a characteristic and meritorious performance as the Rev. Tom Godley; Mr. Alfred Northway is most effective in his portrayal of the rascally Enoch Jaggins, and is ably backed by his brother Ben Jaggins, taken by Mr. William Hayward; Mr. T. Edward Evans, who stage manages, is very good as George Markby, a detective; Mr. Owen Remonde, as Phil Drive, is excellent, and in conjunction with Miss Lydia Hart as Gretchen von Craus, is repsonsible for the amusing side of the drama; Miss Gwen Stewart, as Fern Godley, does able and successful work; Miss Dot Russell, as Fraulein Korale, a dancer, shows marked ability; the blind child, Myrtle Godley, is portrayed by winsome and pathetic manner by Miss Violet Jeffreys.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The programme here this week consists of Miss Carrie Laurie's Juveniles, who create plenty of amusement, and are amply rewarded by applause in their kindergarten act; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, in scena, Fun at a Railway Station, are most diverting; the Three Hesses are distinctly good in their equilibristic acrobatic act; Daisy Dormer scores well as a smart comedienne; Conway and Garland in burlesque absurdity, Left in Charge, are a humorous pair, and give a capital turn; Billy Williams, "the man in a velvet suit from Australia," as a laughter-making comedian would be hard to beat, received a splendid greeting for his clever singing and patter. Also appearing with advantage are Will Cornish, in musical bell act; Starr and Jerome, speciality vocalists and dancers; Ida Ross, a taking soubrette; and Payne's Pictures are quite up to date.

REDHILL.—Market Hall.—Proprietors, Market Hall Co.; Secretary, Mr. A. Simmons. — Messrs. Harry and Fred Poole's myriorama is this week's attraction, presenting a strictly up-to-date programme. The pictures of the myriorama are marvels of scenic art, the set pieces being exceedingly pretty; the bioscopic views are of the latest, and elicit much applause. High-class varieties are furnished by George French's Troupe of acrobatic cyclists in a novel and daring act; Mr. Bert Gates, a clever ventriloquist; Mr. Harry Dowsett, a versatile and decidedly eccentric comedian; Learto, assisted by his clever dog Babs, in quite an original musical act; the Snow Family of expert skaters, in a charming ice palace scene; Miss Florence Hamilton, whose vocal selections delight everyone; and Houston, the Chinese magician, who thoroughly mystifies the audience. Mr. Charles Poole is the general-manager.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—A vaudeville company is in possession of the boards here this week. Mme. Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale, heads the bill; Mr. Leo Dryden is heard in character songs; and other artists contributing to the programme include Trippello, saxophonist; the Dunlops, cycle eccentrics; Mollie Nolan, comedienne and dancer; Los Rupertos, comic equilibrists; Harry Plowden, comedian; Lilian Savado, trapeze artist; Lytton and Bland, comedy sketch artists and dancers; Frank Dandy, comedian; Ford Jennings, in the sketch, Charlie's Indian, and Turner's animated pictures.

Circus and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—Stanley and Vandyke top the bill here this week with a clever sketch, entitled A Broken Promise; the Three Moxons, smart acrobatic comedians, create roars of laughter; Jack Truman, tenor vocalist; Wallie Croker, mimic and siffleur; Burnetti, musician; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic; Nellie Costello, vocalist; and Mons. Twisto, contortionist, complete a capital bill of fare.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Five Juggling Geraldos are retained after their most successful engagement last week; the Five Whiteleys make a favourable impression as acrobats; Sarah Berry, contralto, again appears, her selections being given with refinement and taste; Harry Levaine, comedian, finds favour with his amusing patter; and other attractions include Three Sisters Kilner, acrobatic dancers; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden, in Peculiarities; Mamie Cannon, trick pianist; Jimmy Shields, one-leg dancer; and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mrs. F. Wybert-Clive's company is occupying the boards here this week with The Conscript. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt is successful as Karl Truevitch, and Mr. Douglas Watson is seen to advantage as Ivan Manloff; Mr. Walter Steele scores as Count Paul Hardiski; and Mr. F. Strongbow is humorous as Tretch Trotoff, his songs being well received. Mr. Wybert Clive is smart as Maxim Fredka, and Mr. Murray Maude is deserving of mention as Lieut. Hardy; Miss Cissie Reenan is pleasing as Little Karl, her songs being highly successful; and Miss Olga Datre scores as Catherine; Miss Nellie Douglas is seen to advantage as Wanda, her song and dance receiving well-deserved applause; and Miss Florence M. Daly gives a clever portrayal of the part of Nadia Truevitch.

RUGBY. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs are this week presenting their pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Stanton as Sinbad is successful in every way, and received an enthusiastic reception; Miss Marie Santley as Princess Yazora gives much pleasure by her graceful acting and tuneful singing; Miss Ethel Errol is good as Captain Selim; and as Liza Miss Norah Neville scores a success. Mr. Bruce Green as Mrs. Sinbad keeps the audience in a continual roar of laughter all the time he occupies the stage, and is ably seconded in his efforts to amuse by Little Keeno, whose representations of eminent variety artists are excellent. Mr. Harry Josephs is very good as King Krusty, and Mr. Fred Derby as Captain Cuttle is exceedingly droll. The Athenæum Girls give an acceptable turn as vocalists and dancers; Whyman, trick skater, is marvellously clever; P. J. Durney, globe walker, is good; the Dereneys, in their wire-walking and tumbling act, do well; and Farrell and Gorman, musical eccentrics, are much appreciated.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Messrs. Beandyn and Livesey are this week presenting A Traitor Prince, and the No. 1 Company are well received by good houses. Mr. G. M. Montanini gives a fine performance as Prince Rao Vashti, and the snake-charmer is well-played by Miss Florence Delmar. A manly Lieutenant Frank Derrick is presented in the person of Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe. The comedy business has full justice done to it by Mr. D. Hallman as Billy Bright, Mr. T. Musgrove as Hon. Bobby, and Miss N. Mitchell as Pansy Blossom, with Miss Clara O'Grady as Mrs. Martha Blossom. Miss Rose Routledge as Lola Vane is charming, and excellent work is done by Mr. James Sherwin as Cara, and Mr. D. Wynton, who doubles the part of Richard Vane with that of Colonel Vane.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Miss Hetty King holds her own in her male impersonations, and deservedly gets much applause; the D'Oustas are filling in another successful week with their mental telegraphy; the acrobatic performance by the Borghetti Troupe is very smart; and an excellent programme also includes Rosa Tilley (comedienne), the Maros (triple-bar comedians), Johnny Worman (comedian), Madge Daly (burlesque comedienne), J. T. Macmillan (Scotch character comedian), and Martin Conway (eccentric).

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Venus, the model for some of the late Lord Leighton's most famous pictures, appears in a number of classical poses; Harry Russon, actor-vocalist, makes a good impression with his recitations; and George Hyam, eccentric comedian; the Elgars in their Irish song-scena; Les Valdos in their droll absurdity, The Eccentric Motor-'Bus; Gilroy and Gross, sand-dancing and comic patter; Belle and Broadway, dancers and duettists; the Simpsons in a clever musical act; Bowles and Bryan in their garden scena; and Nell Cotter, comedienne and dancer, also appear.

SCARBOROUGH. — People's Palace and Aquarium.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Curtis Leo, juggler, submits a capital programme; Saunders and Vincent give an excellent knockabout entertainment, with plenty of good patter; Medley Barrett, pierrot, sings popular songs well; Will Bereton is a comedian of many abilities; a sketch, entitled The Squire's Daughter, is submitted by Will Bereton, Mr. Fred Ramsdale, Mr. Frank Weatcroft, and Miss Ada Senior, and is much appreciated; Frank Senior also sings descriptive songs; Nellie Nora is a clever instrumentalist; and a film of Gunner Moir's great fight commands attention on the Bioscope.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Poole Pelham Troupe of Acrobats give an excellent performance, and their dancing is much admired; Keane Harker is a comedian with humour of various degrees; Miss Winnie Wentworth is a fine dancer and singer; The Lovelaces are very popular with their illustrated songs; and a capital series of pictures is submitted.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is doing well here this week with The Face at the Window. The Chevalier Lucio Delgado, alias Le Loup, receives a powerfully dramatic rendering at the hands of Mr. B. Hoggan Armadale, and Mr. T. W. Dunscombe merits great praise for his brilliantly successful interpretation of Paul Gouffet; Mr. Alfred Warne as Henry de Brisson, Mr. Gilbert Hall as Lucian Cortier, and Mr. George Phythian as Le Blanc are all equal to the demands made by their respective parts. The humorous section of the piece is well looked after by Miss Gladys Newcombe, as Barbette, and Mr. C. Alan-Hineson, as Peter Pottleberry. Miss Marie Barrett gives a pretty delineation of Marie de Brisson; and Miss Marie Tennant does full justice to La Pinau.

SHEERNESS.—The Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—A capital company here this week includes Mr. Nick Ohlson, the funny patter vocalist; Miss Josie Watson, a popular comedienne; and the Holroydes, in their laughable comedy act Baby; Miss Topsy Levane, the well-known comedienne and burlesque actress, is singing a new song, written by Mr. Reymond, entitled "The Ladies' Parliament," which causes great fun; Mr. Reymond, himself an excellent comedian, still continues a big favourite; the Kingston Co. conclude with a sketch, Billy's First Place, which is responsible for many a hearty laugh.

The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—A capital programme is presented this week at this popular house of entertainment. Lionel Vaughan's company in the comedy act In Trouble is productive of considerable amusement; Chummie La Mara is a pleasing and entertaining comedienne; the Firmans provide a capital comedy sketch entitled The Fire Station, which meets with approbation; Miss Emie Harlow contributes a couple of coon songs in pleasing style; Miss Laura Johnson gains sustained applause for her clever impersonation of Shakespearean characters; Will Sargent, comedian, is well received; and Charles Clark, character comedian, is also deserving of praise.

SHEFFIELD. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Throne of Terror, a drama of the French Revolution period, is being played here this week. Mr. William J. Miller gives a striking representation of the interesting character of Robespierre; the "Incorruptible" and other parts are carefully acted by that talented artist Mrs. Walter Bentley and a good all round company. The scenery is elaborate and the costumes correct.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay. — Those popular Alexandra favourites, Miss Winifred Maude and Mr. Victor Du Cane, are appearing to good houses in the sensational drama The Convict, supported by Messrs. Leonard Harrison, William Vane, W. Bradford, Alexander Garratt, W. E. Simpson, Mark Fenton, Bert Dexter, H. Johnson, Miss Marion Holly, Miss Ethel Tinsley, and Miss Jenny Hackett.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. Harry Ford, "a fellow of infinite jest," is again making the welkin ring with hearty laughter; and others who are doing good service in dispelling evil humours are Messrs. Carney and Armstrong, comedians, with original and clean ideas; the Dandies, in a smart drawing-room entertainment; Simms and Simms, two talented instrumentalists and laughter provokers; and the clever pair, Messrs. Drew and Alders, in a new whimsicality called The Coastguards. Miss Daisy Mayer brings down the house with her clever and novel quick-change and dancing act; Miss Lily Tiso is a handsome brunette with a captivating style; the Schenk Brothers do a clever head-balancing turn; and Mr. Herbert Shelley appears in a quick-change sketch called Dan the Outlaw. The Bioscope winds up an excellent entertainment.

Grand Palace.—Manager, Mr. R. Ralli.—A good array of talent pleased large audiences on Monday; the efforts of Miss Edie Endon, a smart dancer; Mr. J. B. Silph, comedian; the Custances, in a novel act; Fyne and Hurley; the Three Transfields; and the Lloyd-Phillips sketch combination meeting with general approbation. Some up-to-date animated pictures also proved very acceptable.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre.—Empire Theatre Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. George Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—An exceptional programme is given here nightly this week by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, whose Shakespearean plays are produced with complete success. Twelfth Night occupied Monday evening, and proved a thoroughly enjoyable performance. Romeo and Juliet was Tuesday's attraction, when the company was seen to great advantage. The scenery was both effective and good, while the costly dresses were an admirable feature. The title-rôles were taken by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, and their impersonations were of a studious and really clever nature, which gained repeated recognition. Mr. David Santley was interesting in the character of Friar Lawrence, and Miss Kate Turner was eminently suited as Nurse. On Wednesday Much Ado about Nothing was given, Thursday's play being The Taming of the Shrew. For Good Friday special artists were engaged at the sacred concert, including Mr. Murri Moncrieff (tenor) and Mrs. Walder-Wallis (ballad vocalist), when members of Miss Glossop-Harris's company gave assistance. To-night (Saturday) Carmen is to be given.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company is this week providing a capital interpretation of The Lion and the Mouse; Miss Nita Faydon submits an artistic portraiture of Shirley Rossmore; the part of John Burkett Ryder is depicted with great power by Mr. Leslie Carter, who merits unstinted praise; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is an admirable representative of Mrs. John Burkett Ryder; Miss Maude Townsend does exceedingly well as Mrs. Rossmore; Kate Roberts is capitally impersonated by Miss Margaret Nybloc; Mr. Martyn Roland assumes the character of Jefferson Ryder with excellent effect; and other good sketches are supplied by Mr. Herbert Chown, as the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley; Mr. Douglas West (as James Rossmore); Mr. Geoffrey Hill (as Alfred Scott); and Mr. John Wheatman as J. Whitmore Roberts, M.P.

Albert Hall, Winter Gardens.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting Manager, Mr. J. H. Meriz.—An attractive entertainment is provided here this week, the premier turn being supplied by the Tennessee Guards in their marvellous lightning drill and wall-scaling exhibition; other prominent items are contributed by the Wilfords, the wonders of human strength and physical development; Harwood's Juveniles in a novelty scena, entitled A Children's Christmas Eve; Ada Maud, contralto vocalist and burlesque actress; Agnes and Arthur Lynch in American picture songs; Jimson's novelty sketch, The Burglar's Surprise; Bert Bowden, quaint comedian; Cliff and Kean, vocalists and dancers; and the Bioscope with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The boards here are occupied this week by the popular domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, which is presented by Mr. Frand Lindo and company. Mr. Lindo is breezy and convincing as Stephen Armitage. The Joan of Miss Marion Wakeford is a charming performance. Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle is seen to advantage as David Armitage. Lucas Lyle, the villain, is well accounted for by Mr. F. Miles Hodgson. Miss Daisy Rochefort, as Dora, gains the sympathy of the house. Captain Gerald Gambler hits off the aristocratic duke in good style. The comedy element is ably sustained by Miss Ray Rochefort as Sybil Fay and Mr. Jack Patrick as the Hon. Percy, and Mr. George Overs is meritorious as Dick Redmayne.

Empire Palace Theatres.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—The top of the bill is occupied by one of Mr. Harry Cadle's "Casey Court" productions, entitled Mick Whittintun, which is full of fun and frolic, good songs and choruses. The Two Bostons are clever comedians, and evoke much merriment. Characters from Dickens's works are cleverly portrayed by Miss Arabella Allen. Good acrobatic artists are found in Goggin and Davis, and other excellent turns are submitted by Maud Vera (descriptive vocalist), Kitty Marion (comedienne), the Neilson Sisters (vocalists and dancers), and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Joseph Sweeney; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—A vocal scena entitled Visiting Day, submitted by the Lambert and Hands Quartette, is creating an impression; Dene and Dawson, in a sketch, Stage Aspirants, are responsible for much fun; Little Dot Moss is an exceedingly clever banjo-player and dancer; a good ventriloquial entertainment is presented by Cavalli; and the remaining popular items are Joe Sterling (comedian), Phil Mouat (the Stockton singing joiner), and the Tivoli Bioscope.

SPENNYMOOR. — Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is the attraction this week with Two Little Drummer Boys, which is making its third appearance here; Mr. Fred Emery, as the much-persecuted hero, Captain Carsdale, is a great success; Mr. Archie Helsby paints the vicious character of Captain Darrell in lurid colours. Miss Mildred Eversleigh submits a delightful sketch of Alma Kingsley, and Miss Kathleen Magee's impersonation of Margaret Rivers is remarkably good; as Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith, the name parts, Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie Douglas—the latter of whom is a sister of Mr. Collins, the respected manager of the Cambridge—both submit meritorious performances; Miss Lizzie Chambers, Mr. Harry Lyndon, and Mr. J. Magrath are a droll trio of comedians.

STOCKPORT. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company has given excellent representations here this week of In Sight of St. Paul's, which has interested fairly large audiences. Mr. Ernest R. Allen acts the part of Tom Chichester in manly style, and John Gridston is capably played by Mr. Herbert Cecil; as Bildstein Mr. Harry Gilpin is thoroughly effective; Mr. Herbert Colley makes an amusing Jim Palfrey; a pleasing character is Becky Vetch, played by Miss Sybil Hammersley; Miss Cissie Bellamy acts sympathetically as Aileen Miller, and Miss Gussie Everitt displays ability as Cynthia Dell.

Empire. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The chief attraction here is Le Diabelo in a daring feat of "Looping the loop." Among others are Mr. and Mrs. Kemp, smart quick-change artistes; the Two Daniels, negro comedians, clever clog-dancers, and bone soloists; Elton and Elma, an amusing pair on the horizontal bars; Lingos Serenaders in a pleasing entertainment; and Fred Cary, a comedian of ability.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. George Stainton.—Leicester Cooke and Co., in Zululand, are drawing crowded houses here; the Sisters Lytton are a duo of excellent vocalists; Andie Caine, comedian, is greatly appreciated; the Martelloni Troupe of female acrobats are an unusually good turn; Edie Gray and "the boys" score greatly; Grapho and Jackson are humorous in their sketch In a Restaurant; Edie Montefiore cleverly presents a sketch, The Little Colonel, introducing pathos, humour, and song; Rose Pink is a dainty little singer and dancer; and the Pictures are humorous.

Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—G. H. Elliot, the coon singer, heads the bill this week in his latest successes; the Primrose Quartette of male voices are greatly enjoyed; Verno and Voyce in their creation, Jack Sheppard, are interesting; The Four Aces are greatly appreciated in their acrobatic feats; Flo Hilton scores greatly as a song and dance artist; The Sisters Marion are favourites; Fred Land is a funny comedian; and Cosgrove and Burns cause great amusement as comedy duettists; the Pictures are humorous.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The bill is headed by Messrs. Norburn and Campling's company in a three-scene sketch entitled A Winter's Eve. Mr. Fred Norburn, as a miser, acts in powerful style; Mr. John Campling is seen in two of the parts, both of which are ably played; Miss Annie Clyndes and Mr. Chris Mason, in their respective rôles, do well; the Sisters Grovini provide an acrobatic turn which has but few rivals; Doody and Wright are a smart pair, the dancing of the male member being extraordinary; Speedwell contributes a lightning painting turn which is admirable; the Three Temples score their usual success; the Sisters Walmsley dress nicely and sing and dance well; Johnny Walker is a comedian with good songs; and Hector and Sultan provide a funny act, their upside down boxing being very funny.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Managing Directors, Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company is paying a welcome visit here this week. On Monday night Tannhäuser was presented in a fashion quite up to the traditions of the famous combination; the title-rôle was in the hands of Mr. Julius Walther, who was in excellent voice; Mme. Lucile Hill charmed her hearers by the brilliance of her delineation of Elizabeth; Mme. Marie Alexander, who has a sweet and cultured voice, ably filled the rôle of Venus; the part of Wolfram was sung in capital style by Mr. Dillon Shallard. The week's programme includes: The Merry Wives of Windsor, Carmen, The Bohemian Girl, The Marriage of Figaro, and Il Trovatore.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Miss Frances Delaval's company in The Biggest Scamp on Earth drew a crowded house here on Monday night. Mr. G. Olmond Frank works hard as Derrick Knight, and the same may be said of Mr. Fred Lillywhite as Vivian Wakefield; Mr. R. Stillwell makes the most of his opportunities as Sir Aubrey Knight; Mr. L. W. Halfpenny is well placed as Napoleon Hawke; Miss Clare O'Sullivan gives a refined rendering of Irene May; and as Namoi Belvedere, Miss Frances Delaval is excellent; Mrs. Edmund Lyons submits a fine character study as Mother Hawke; whilst Miss Carrie Johnson pleases as Bobby.

Palace Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Managers, Messrs A. Brown and S. B. Stringer.—Tom and Marie Moiramo, and their musical mélange, hold the place of honour this week; the Prinellas, in their farmyard scene, prove another excellent turn; the Picquays score by their clever drawing room entertainment; Beaty and Blanche, duettists; Stave, comedy artiste; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne; The Maples, comedy artistes; and the Palace Pictures complete the programme.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Cecil Clayton; Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—A welcome visit of Mr. Gilbert Payne and Co., in his musical, facical play The Honeymoon is being made here. As Nathaniel Noodle, Mr. Gilbert Payne is irresistibly funny; Mr. Leslie Erle plays Jack Armstrong in good style; as Col. Vandyke Brown Mr. Alvin Sawyer gives a spirited and comical performance; Mr. Fred Fulton is a good Archie; and Miss Patty Fairley a charming Madge Armstrong.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Closed during Passion Week.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Dolly, Agnes, and Maude, described as factory nightingales, possess pleasing voices and win applause; the Two Volbecques, character comediennes, prove popular; Miss Henriquette Maude, the Daily Mirror's little New Zealand girl, describes her trip round the world, assisted by illustrated pictures; a clever turn is given by Lea, ventriloquist; Andrews and Thompson, American operatic comedy couple, sing well; and Reed and Lerne, comedians, also contribute to the programme.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The principal feature of the programme here this week is the musical mélange entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, which is played by Mr. Harry Roxburgh's company. The piece is exceedingly humorous, and meets with a warm reception. Other items include James Kurry, comedian; the Royal Delomes, duettists and dancers; Redmond Brothers, comedy patterers; Eadie and Ramsden, in the musical pot-pourri Charlie's Visit; Mdlle. Ameda, speciality artiste; and Belloni's Cockatoos, in a remarkably clever performance.

Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H, Westwood.—Mr. A. B. Cross and company are appearing here in The Manxman. Mr. A. B. Cross is cleverly representing Pete, as usual; Mr. Frank Etheridge makes a capital Cæsar Cregeen; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns is well placed as Philip Christian; Ross Christian finds a capable exponent in Mr. Maurice Yorke; Miss Minnie Waterford charmingly portrays the part of Kate Cregeen; Miss Nellie Freeland is successful as Nancy; and Miss Hazel Dent is good as Miss Christian.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Horace Wheatley had a great reception here on Monday, and the true exponent of Hibernian humour scored a big hit. His latest success, "Do you know MacIntyre?" has caught on immensely. The Tan Kwai Troupe of Chinese conjurers and contortionists supply a remarkable entertainment; Lily le Breton is a graceful gymnast; and Zanfretti and Napio are heard to advantage in a novel musical turn. Ted Waite is an up-to-date comedian; and Tiny Arnold an exceedingly smart, diminutive comedienne. J. P. Carroll scores with the tambourine; and the pictures are good.

Parr Hall.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. H. E. Barnes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Brandon Blake.—Unfortunately for the promoters, Datas, the man with the wonderful memory, was unable to appear at this house, owing to illness; the Mahatmas are a capital star turn, and are really remarkable exponents of telepathy; Barton and Ashley are a pair of rare comedians; and the Henres, smart jugglers and club-throwers. The Sisters Edwardes delight all with their singing; and George Bendon is a capital coon artist. Brull and Thursby cause much mirth with their sketch, Fun in a Music Shop; Peters' pictures are a charming assortment; and Williams and Warden are amusing cross-talkers.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Mr. Bulmer's company in Sentenced for Life is paying a return visit here this week. Mr. R. Brancepeth Nevill does exceptionally good work as Sir Wallace Stillwell; Mr. Tom Robertson is responsible for an able rendering of Captain Paul Derrick; the portrayal of Lieut. Roy Stillwell is left to the safekeeping of Mr. Ernest Dare; Mr. Geoffrey Sutherland scores a decided success as the Rev. Martin Orris; Henry Beckwith, by Mr. Howard Keane, is all that can be desired; Mr. Dan Agar's interpretation of Percy McGentile creates roars of laughter; the rôle of Adele Gray is artistically played by Miss Hilda Merrilese; as Kate Rennel, Miss Blanche Hill makes the most of her opportunities; and Miss Muriel Martin displays marked ability in the representation of Lady Stillwell.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Charles Watson Mill's company, in the picturesque melodrama, A Wrecker of Men, which is well mounted. The part of Jim Murley is exceedingly well played by Mr. Eric Campbell; Mr. Milner Noble acts in a characteristic manner the part of Pharosaphus; Mr. Millar Anderson is all that one could desire as Railton; Mr. Stanley Champion does well in the character of Guise Strange; Mr. Harry Dunning gives a smart rendering of Reggie; Mr. Charles Earl submits a clever impersonation of Ezekiel Isaacs and the Mummy; Eric Melville is well played by Mr. T. Carruthers; Miss Gwendoline Talbot does herself justice as Marion Isaacs; and Miss Ruth Zillwood as Risca Mallison well deserves the applause given her for her superb acting.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—The Morton Comedy Trio are the attraction here this week, and gain repeated encores for their very clever rendering of the various glees; Mlle. Sylvesto presents some marvellous feats; a return visit of Fred Dunstone is well received; Rita and Roma contribute good singing; the Leonards are accorded a warm reception; Wheeler and Wilson submit a clever acrobatic act; Miss Florrie Green sings pretty songs with great success; a screaming comedy is that of Vesta and Minnie Pine's, entitled Maggie's Night Out; and interesting pictures of the great fight between Gunner Moir and Jack Palmer is received with delight.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. H. E. Feather.—A return visit of As Midnight Chimes, played by Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company, is the attraction this week. Mr. Dalrymple, in the rôle of Dave Stannard, acts in masterly style; Luke Dezzard has an able exponent in Mr. Herbert Belmore; Mr. Herbert Pearce, as Ezra Gamble, is excellent; Mr. James Salter is a great favourite as Tat Spavin; Miss Madge Beresford makes a vivacious Suzette; Miss Marion Ryder does well as Little Davy Stannard; and Mary Stannard is creditably depicted by Miss Maud Hastings.

Palace. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Matweef Huguston Troupe of Russian singers, dancers, and acrobats, perform some startling and clever feats; the Three Royal Dreadnoughts (Lilian, Vera, and Major Charles) give an astounding exhibition of rifle triloquism; John Macauley makes a decided hit in his character ballads; Violet Nunn earns good opinions for her coon songs; Kerr and Koe, cross-talk comedians, Smith and Johnson, coloured comedy duo, and some very amusing films are also included in the menu.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Ediscope and Barnum's electric animated pictures are here this week. The following artists also appear:—Vic Varney, whistling comedian; Stilvo, stilt performer; Mons. Reni and his wonderful dog; the Oldham Singing Mill Girl; the Ver Vains, clever dancers; Queenie Vane, a smart comedienne and dancer; Mlle. Corlettie, the famous American songstress; the Cédrics, comedy artists; and Vela, in a sensational wire act.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; General-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—The programme this week includes Cavern and Cave, in a capital comedy trifle; Mr. Arthur Wade, a versatile baritone vocalist; Bros. Carney, a clever pair of comedy artists; and Barry and Yelrichs, a refined pair of comedians. The Vicoscope features are up to date.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Mr. Frank Ayrton's company is paying a return visit here in the drama, The Power of Gold. Mr. Geo. Lyttleton has a strong part in Hadji Zambra, and plays it well; Mr. R. F. Stacey is good as Paul Judson; and Mr. R. Harris acts effectively as Mark Harley. Mr. F. Ayrton as Sammy, and Miss Madge Seymour as Norah, are both well received; and Miss Amy McNeil is powerful as the adventuress, Lady Brandon.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Mr. Robert Perris's company is here this week, under the direction of Mr. Karl H. Edwards, in the American drama, A Fight for Millions. The scenic effects are a remarkable feature of the play. Mr. William McCready is a capital Tom Manley; Mr. Alex. G. Grant is very powerful and convincing as Richard Dudley; Mr. Karl H. Edwards repeats his capital character-sketch of Willie Neverwork; Mr. J. Schofield is a satisfactory Hudson Rivers; Mr. Harold Turner presents a fine portrait of Solomon Moses; Mr. Nicholas Conway is an excellent Harold Hobbs; Miss Winifred Symons wins the hearts of all by her acting of Pearl Rivers; Miss Elma Turner as Helen Dudley plays a well-written part with decided ability; Miss Dorothy Wilkinson's Little Madge is charming; and Miss Rosie Kearns does good work as Mag Brady. Minor rôles are well filled.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Prince of Pilsen has been witnessed by large and appreciative audiences here. The play is handsomely mounted, and the fullest justice is done to the piece by Mr. Baron H. Harris's talented company. The part of Hans Wagner is admirably delineated by Mr. R. Sidney; Mr. Harry Kilbarn as the Cincinnati brewer is admirable; Miss Sophie Harris as Mrs. Maddison Crocker deserves very warm praise; Mr. Frank Crimp as the Prince of Pilsen does capitally; and Miss A. Nixon (Alice Wagner), Mr. B. Russell (Earl of Shrimpton), and Mr. E. Gifford (François) are seen to advantage in small parts. Mr. Harry Kilburn brings out the humorous features of the rôle excellently, and keeps his audiences in unconstrained merriment throughout. Mr. Frank Crimp as the Prince of Pilsen has a fine and commanding appearence, and sings the song "A Passing Cloud" very artistically; Mr. Bernard Russell as Rosemoss, the insipid dude, portrays the character realistically, and Mr. Ernest Clifford is a typical concierge as François. Mrs. Maddison Crocker has a prepossessing and able exponent in Miss Sophie Harris. Miss Ada Watson as Edith Adams, Miss Alice Nixon as Nellie Wagner, and Miss Connie Leon as Sidonie also win unstinted admiration.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Members of the Royal Gipsy Company, who introduce songs, dances, and patter, fill the bill this week.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—The popular melodrama, The Worst Woman in London, is proving attractive this week. The rôle of the adventuress is cleverly impersonated by Miss Olga André, who created the part; and Mr. P. Barry-Lewers proves an able assistant in her manifold villainies. Mr. G. Gainsford is a manly hero; and Miss E. Watkins as his sweetheart plays with perfect sympathy. Mr. W. Garvey introduces some clever comic business; and amongst the other noticeable members of the capable cast are Messrs. H. W. Monte, A. Rushen, F. V. Travers, and L. Booker, and Miss P. March.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—The great Ashley animated pictures and vaudeville entertainments are here this week. Musical Stunto is thoroughly entertaining in his clever act; Molly Dent proves herself a highly capable comedienne; Bob Gates delights the audience with his big boot dancing; Lallah Delmar possesses a fine voice, and uses it to advantage; the Sisters Hypatia, duettists and dancers, are a good turn; Billy McKeever and Ada McGovern are capable ball punchers; Dutch Sid is an excellent comedian and sabot dancer; and Yank Murphy capably portrays the art of Ju Jitsu.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week the Danbys, comedians and dancers; and the Dunvilles, in their up-to-date comedy act, Les Domestiques de la Maison, proved big attractions; Miss Nita Carman, a comedienne and dancer, was very pleasing; Mr. Dan Biglow, comedy patterer, was good; and Miss Minnie Moran sang and danced well.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company are here this week, and on Monday The Heart of a Hero proved a great attraction, and delighted a large audience. As Jem Resdale, Mr. Charles Draycott was at once a popular favourite, never missing an opportunity; Miss Muriel Thompson was very sympathetic as Nell; and a wonderfully clever impersonation of the miser, George Winston, was given by Mr. H. Scratchard. As the unscrupulous Wilfred Marl, Mr. E. J. Fare did well; whilst the comedy element was in the safe hands of Mr. Will White and Miss Nellie Warden.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Yvette de Laabe's posing has drawn crowded houses during the week; Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe, in My Burglar, present the smartest sketch seen here for some time; Denton and Rowland's Punch and Judy Girl is a favourite item; and the rifle shooting of Winona causes wonder. Ray Wallace gives a neat turn at the piano; and Phil Rees is a capable vocalist. Francis O'Flynn, banjoist; Derenda and Green, funny juggler; and the MacDonald Trio complete the list.

ALFRED LESTER
AT THE PALACE, LONDON.

A FEW PRESS CUTTINGS.

A RESTAURANT EPISODE.

Times, March 20, 1907.

"Palace Theatre.—Mr. Alfred Lester, well known as the melancholy scene-shifter, who explains the story of 'Hamlet,' appeared at the Palace on Monday for the first time in a new part, that of the melancholy waiter. Mr. Lester is always melancholy, and the more melancholy he is the more he makes his audience laugh. It is a very cheap restaurant at which he has been waiting (for a rise) for sixteen years. Everything is always 'off.' There are dead flies in the 'claret,' and the proprietor is careful to go elsewhere for his own meals. And Mr. Lester is the very spirit of the melancholy, seedy, inefficient place. His only customer is a young actress who is on her way to rehearsal, and after ordering your eighteen-penny table d'hôte, comes down to a glass of 'claret' and a biscuit, for which she leaves without paying, and Mr. Lester treats her with the same fatherly melancholy freedom which the scene-shifter used to show to the walker-on in the theatre. A melancholy, hilarious turn."

Morning Post, March 19.

"Another Palace favourite who reappeared last night is Mr. Alfred Lester. He is no longer the gloomy scene-shifter with original views as to the brightening of Hamlet nor the 'lost policeman' of The New Aladdin, but a waiter. The waiter, like the scene-shifter, is a disappointed and morose man. When his only customer, a lady of the musical stage, complains that she has been waiting for five minutes, he mournfully informs her that he has been waiting for sixteen years. The restaurant at which he waits is very ill-furnished with provisions, and one of the waiter's duties is to devise shifts to conceal the fact. He advises the lady not to dine table d'hôte, but to order Irish stew, as that way she will get all the table d'hôte at once. A great deal of fun is got out of his ignorance of the French terms appearing on the menu. At the end he finds himself balked, his attempt to overcharge her is foiled by her having no money, while the card she gives him turns out to be a tram-ticket. Much of the sketch went with a roar, and those parts which did not go so well can easily be worked up or cut. Mr. Lester was excellent in his own peculiar joyless fashion; he was quite sincere, natural, and unaffected."

Daily Mail, March 19.

"ACTOR AT TWO THEATRES.

"The Palace Theatre, to an already very strong programme, added several new attractions last night. Chief of these was Mr. Alfred Lester and Miss Lily Mills in a comedy duologue, entitled A Restaurant Episode. Mr. Lester is known to playgoing London as the lost policeman in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety Theatre. Last night he doubled his work by appearing at both theatres. The Palace sketch, in which he plays the part of a waiter getting lunch for a chorus-lady, is full of the quaintest sayings, delivered with a droll humour that kept the audience in constant laughter."

Daily Telegraph, March 19.

"Mr. Lester brings with him a new and amusing sketch, called A Restaurant Episode, in which he plays the part of a waiter with that gentle air of melancholy and of sorrowful resignation which served so to endear his now celebrated portrait of the 'Lost Policeman' to the British public. His new sketch starts most divertingly, and when he has elaborated the fun of the last few minutes its success from start to finish is assured."

Referee, March 24.

"Mr. Alfred Lester, whose Lost Policeman is perhaps the funniest feature in the now moribund New Aladdin at the Gaiety, presented a duologue sketch, entitled A Restaurant Episode. In this Mr. Lester represents a love-lorn waiter, who, in the course of waiting upon a lady customer—smartly played by Miss Lily Mills—contrives to muddle everything up, including the wildest of topical references. Mr. Lester plays the part as though he had absorbed the dictum of Dickens' waiter—'Don't think as how you can take up the waitering; you must be born to it.'"

Daily Graphic, March 18.

"Seldom does one hear more hearty bursts of laughter than those which frequently interrupted the playing of the duologue A Restaurant Episode. Mr. Lester has some very funny lines to deliver, and he says them in his own peculiarly humorous fashion. It is a sketch that is well worth seeing twice; in fact, it will probably get even better."

Daily Chronicle, March 19.

"Mr. Alfred Lester aroused roars of laughter by his quaint humour."

Standard, March 20.

"The 'turn' is much above the average. It is evident that Mr. Lester can act. He has a keen sense of character, which should carry him far."

Tribune, March 27.

"Easter will see many changes in the Palace programme, but I am glad to note that Mr. Alfred Lester will still retain his place. His study of a weary waiter in a cheap Soho restaurant is a delightfully clever and effective piece of acting. It is so quiet and so restrained that you wonder whether it will 'carry' throughout the huge house; but you have only to look at the audience to see that they revel in it from first to last, and do not miss a single point. The sketch itself is nothing but a rambling duologue between the waiter and the one customer who comes in to try the famous eighteen-penny-fifteen-course lunch, and at the end has no money wherewith to pay, and it is a curious jumble of old jokes and new humour. But Mr. Lester is essentially a new comedian. There is none of the old-fashioned buffoonery and vulgarity about him. He is a finished actor. He does not sing, he does not dance, but with an air of weary pathos he tells you his troubles, and also with an air of melancholy pride gives details about his sister who is on the stage: 'At least, she isn't exactly on the stage, but she sweeps the pit out at Terry's Theatre, and they think so much of her there that there's talk of her understudying the cloak room lady.'"

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"ALLERSEELEN,"

Play, in Three Acts, by Hermann Heyermanns, Produced at the Kleines Theatre, March 12, 1907.

Rita	FRAULEIN SOMARY
Nansen	HERR LETTINGER
Krankenschwester	FRAULEIN GOERIKE
Jacoba	FRAULEIN BUENGER
Bronk	HERR LICHO
Jannetje	FRAULEIN FRIED
Langebier	HERR ABEL
Dr. Geert	HERR NOELET
Van Dalen	HERR HEINICH
Der Mann	HERR EVERTH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, March 21.—The famous Dutch dramatist has somewhat disappointed us this time. It cannot be laid to the fault of the translator—whose name, by the way, does not transpire—that All Souls is a distinct falling-off upon the well-written plays Die Hoffnung and Ora et Labora, which proved so successful at the same theatre a year or two ago. Allerseelen is monotonous and gloomy in the extreme, while the long religious and moral discussions between two pastors are most wearisome. The reception was respectfully cordial, and the stage-manager appeared at the close of the second act on behalf of the absent author. A few words will be sufficient for the narration of the plot. The scene is laid—as is always the case with Herr Heyermanns—in a village on the Dutch coast. Rita—a young woman about to become a mother—arrives at the village one stormy night to find the house whose shelter she is seeking closed, and the old woman who owned it dead. The poor girl, for she is little more, is desperate, and is found unconscious in the storm before the door of Pastor Nansen. The good man takes her in, and his housekeeper attends to her wants. Here Rita's child is born and given into the care of a rough nurse, with the result that some time afterwards it dies. Rita is disconsolate, and can scarcely be prevailed upon to leave the little corpse. The whole of the village now rises up against Nansen for taking the waif-and-stray into his house; but the pastor is more charitable than his flock, and will not turn her out. A brother clergyman, Herr Bronk, a fanatic, comes and argues with him, but all in vain, and finally the unfortunate philanthropist is asked to resign. Now an astonishing turn is given to events. We learn that Rita is not the lost soul everyone suspects her of being, but a respectable married woman, whose husband's return from sea has been unavoidably delayed. The old woman whom Rita came to the village to seek before her trouble was no other than her mother-in-law. Thus the villagers have expended their vituperation and the audience their sympathy in vain, and Heyermann's motives remain obscure. Rita's husband comforts her for her loss of the babe by prospects of a happy future, and as they are both young and love each other there seems no reason why their union should not be blessed. The piece was remarkably well acted, an artist new to Berlin—Fräulein Somary—creating a very favourable impression as Rita. Excellent renderings, too, were those of Fräulein Goerike, Herr Licho, Herr Abel, and Herr Lettinger. An interesting feature of the performance was the first appearance of Fräulein Fried in a dramatic rôle. The clever young artist was a favourite star of the halls under the name of Frid-Frid until quite recently. She has determined to undertake more serious work in future, and her impersonation of the peasant woman Jannetje was so good as to leave little doubt as to her success in the new departure.

HERR JOSEF KAINZ is still drawing crowded houses, his season at the New Schauspielhaus proving—as was only to be expected—an unqualified success. As a change from the classics the famous actor appeared in two modern plays last week—the versical one-act drama Der goldene Schlüssel, by Max Bernstein, and Hermann Bahr's drama, Der arme Narr. Both made their mark, the latter creating the more profound impression. It is the story of two brothers, one of whom—his father's favourite—passed his life in the gay path of "Wein, Weib, und Gesang"; the other, who was always envious of his younger brother, has attained to the position of a wealthy and honoured merchant, but his life has been one of work and dull prose. The men meet now that they are old, and the merchant has to acknowledge with some sadness that the gayer life has been the more enviable after all. Herr Kainz gave a magnificent impersonation of the comedown genius, and the support afforded by the company of the New Schauspielhaus was of excellent quality.

CONTINUING the Ibsen cycle, the Lessing revived on Saturday Die Stützen der Gesellschaft ("The Pillars of Society"). The cast was a brilliant one, and the reception was as enthusiastic as any manager could desire. Dr. Brahm's theatre has ever been the Ibsen theatre par excellence of Berlin, or—it may be said without exaggeration—of Germany, and this performance was another well-merited triumph for artists and manager alike. Herr Bassermann—who has refused the most tempting offers to return to the Royal Schauspielhaus—gave one of his most successful renderings in the rôle of Consul Bernick, and Fräulein Lehmann was equally fine in the part of Lona Hessel. Other characters were admirably sustained by Herr Marr, Herr Sauer, Herr Grunwald, and Fräulein Wuest. Every seat in the house was filled, and the play will certainly run a long time.

AT the Central Theatre a new operetta, entitled Der blaue Klub, has been produced, meeting with a cordial reception. The composer is Karl Kapeller—the head kapellmeister of the Karl Theatre at Vienna—and the book is by Herren Alexander Engel and Horst. The "Blue Club" is a card club in Venice, called thus on account of the exclusive blue-blood of its members. A commoner, Cesare Dolabella by name, is black-balled, to his great annoyance, but a friend of his, the Marquis San Felice—whose hobby it is to "adopt" wealthy parvenus—gets him through later on. Cesare is a child of fortune in many ways, his luck at cards being very great. From Signor Tarramonde—a thorough-paced gambler—he wins a fortune and a castle; and, finally, Tarramonde sets his daughter's hand as the prize. Here, too, Cesare is the winner; he does not know Marietta, but has heard much of her beauty and charm. It is a matter of course that in the end the two love each other, but this consummation is not reached until many obstacles are defeated. The acting was bright, and the singing for the most part satisfactory, while the mounting was very effective.

ONE of the most recent productions of the "chamber plays" of the Deutsches Theatre was Ibsen's Hedda Gabler, with Frau Gertrud Eysoldt in the name-part. It was not altogether a success, Frau Eysoldt being more suited to exotic rôles like Salome, Electra, and the heroines of Wedekind. Hedda's rival, Thea, on the other hand, was splendidly played by Fräulein Höflich, and Herr von Winterstein gave an excellent account of Tesman. This work of Ibsen's has never been a great favourite here, and, personally speaking, the reasons, I think, are obvious. It will scarcely take anything like a firm hold in the bill.

THE booking for Mr. Tree's season has commenced, and is already—at raised prices—very brisk. There is no doubt that Hamlet is proving the greatest attraction at present to the Germans.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE PHANTOM EARL."

A Sensational Costume Sketch, in Two Scenes and a Tableau, by Arthur E. Pringle, produced at the Regent Theatre, Salford, on Tuesday, March 19.

Lord Geoffrey Stevedale	MR. WILLIAM GARRETT
Raymond Yorke	MR. JAMES DILLON
Landlord Wells	MR. HARRY LLOYD
Sophie	MISS WHYCABY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The first scene represents a lonely spot near Bury St. Edmunds, where Lord Stevedale dismounts from his horse to rest after a long ride on his way to the King, being the bearer of a secret mission. From a sealed packet which he had been requested to open on his journey he discovers that he is the heir to the Earldom of Glenthorpe, and his journey is to claim his rights and present his papers to the King for confirmation. Raymond Yorke, a notorious adventurer, appears, and overhears enough of Geoffrey's words to convince him that he is worth robbing, so he enters into conversation and picks a quarrel. They draw swords, and Stevedale is killed. Raymond then takes possession of a large sum of money and the documents. The second scene is the interior of the village inn late at night. The landlord and his daughter are complaining of the slackness of trade in consequence of a heavy snowfall, and are preparing to retire when a loud knocking at the door causes the landlord to ask who it is. Yorke thereupon demands admittance in the name of the King as Lord Geoffrey Stevedale. He enters, and after ordering refreshment for himself and his horse, "Coral Wreath," tells his host to leave him to find his bedroom himself. He is brooding over what he has done, and, feeling nervous, locks the door and pockets the key. Then he peruses the papers, and is disturbed by a knock at the door with a demand for admittance in the name of the King. He is startled by this request, but knowing the door is locked, makes himself comfortable at the table. The door opens, and Stevedale's apparition glides in and confronts Yorke, demanding the papers. Yorke is about to strike with his sword when Stevedale points to the bloodstain on his breast, and Yorke's weapon drops from his hand. Yorke takes the papers from the table, and Stevedale tells him that he will follow him wherever he goes. He then vanishes. Yorke rushes to the door, and finds it locked, just as he had left it, and tries to unlock it, but the key will not turn. He goes to the window and endeavours to escape, but finds that also fast. Finding himself thus a prisoner, he raves and rings for assistance. The landlord enters, and Yorke tells him he has just seen the phantom of the real Earl, and that he himself is the notorious adventurer Raymond Yorke. Then he falls dead from the excitement and fear. The tableau takes us back to the first scene, showing the Earl lying on the ground as when first killed.

The scenery has been specially painted for the sketch, and the first scene, a moonlight night in the snow, brought a round of applause. The costumes and staging show the period as the seventeenth century. Mr. William Garrett as Lord Stevedale and Mr. James Dillon as Raymond Yorke did exceedingly well, and deserved the unstinted applause which they received. The other parts were fittingly sustained. The whole was under the personal supervision of Mr. J. Fred Watson, manager of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton.

LONDON ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Monday evening, March 21, the London Academy of Music, at their branch, the Hampstead Conservatoire, gave a highly successful orchestral concert, which attracted a large audience. The programme commenced with the concert overture, "Youth," by Arthur Hervey, and it was at once evident that the Conservatoire orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. René Ortmans, had been most thorough in the matter of rehearsals. In Beethoven's Symphony No. 8 in F major the orchestra produced a full, rich tone, and greatly distinguished themselves by their spirited and correct playing. Other successful performances of the band were in the overture "Die Meistersinger" and in Tschaikowsky's Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor (first movement), in which Miss Ada Petherick (pupil of Mr. Carl Weber) cleverly gave the piano solo. Among the vocal items, Mme. Windsor Locke received much applause and a most hearty recall for her admirable singing of Handel's song "As when the dove," and Miss Dorothy Webb may be warmly praised for her skilful rendering of Giordani's song "Caro mio ben." This concert—the second of a series of three—is in connection with the Scholarship Fund in aid of free scholarships. The fund will be in the hands of Basil Champneys, Esq., and F. F. Atkins, Esq., who have kindly consented to act as trustees. The concert was a great success, and the London Academy of Music may be congratulated on the ability displayed by their students.

THE Leyton Urban District Council invite tenders for band of twenty performers, with bandmaster in addition, to play on three evenings a week at places within the district decided upon by the Council. Performances are to be given on Monday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings, from June 3 to August 10 inclusive. All information is obtainable from the office of the Surveyor to the Council, Town Hall, Leyton.

THE Princes of the House of Brunswick have been all, more or less, partial to theatrical entertainments. George II. frequently visited the theatre, and this monarch was at Drury Lane when the Culloden despatches were presented to him from the Duke of Cumberland, commonly known as "The Butcher." Prince Frederick of Wales possessed a taste similar to his father, and was very fond of instructing his children at an early age to repeat moral speeches out of plays. When his family were still very young, the Prince had plays at Leicester House, in which the children of His Royal Highness sustained the principal characters. These juvenile performances were under the direction of the celebrated actor, Quin.

AT the beginning of the eighteenth century play-bills were about the size of ordinary note-paper. About 1730 they grew to the size of letter-paper, 10in. by 8in., and to 2in. or more in length by the close of the century. The paper they were printed on was of a rough, hard texture, with heavy black type. No synopsis of "scenery" was given, or of the incidents, merely the name of the play to be performed, the date, a list of characters, with the actors' names, the time of the performance, and the prices.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 25, the Comedy, by Mrs. Henry de la Pasteur, entitled "PETER'S MOTHER."

Quite a hit has been made at the King's this week by the advent of Peter's Mother, one of the most delightful personages it has been our lot to see represented on the stage. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is an excellent one. Miss Ruth Mackay as Lady Mary Crewys is entitled to pride of place. Miss Mackay makes a complete and absolute success in a part in which she is seen and heard to great advantage; Mr. Charles Harley invests Sir Timothy Crewys, Bart., with the necessary austerity in admirable fashion; Peter Crewys is excellently rendered by Mr. Percy Hutchison; well acted in every respect is the John Crewys, Q.C., of Mr. Eille Norwood; Mr. William Mallalieu provides a delicate touch of humour as Canon Birch; and Mr. Drew Mackintosh's Dr. Blundell is an impersonation of much merit. Miss Mary Griffiths sustains the rôle of Lady Belstone with remarkable skill, and is highly amusing; and Miss Crewys has a praiseworthy representative in Mrs. Mallalieu. Miss Ethel Royale is a capable Mrs. Hewell; and Miss Hilda Honiss is a bright and fascinating Sarah. The farce by Mr. Eille Norwood, entitled Chalk and Cheese, is also given, in which Miss Ethel Royale, Miss Hilda Honiss, and Mr. Drew Mackintosh cause much merriment. The scenery, appointments, and dresses are in excellent taste.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 25, the Comedy, in Three Acts, "THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

Expectations have been keen respecting the coming of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, including Miss Mabel Love, in The Freedom of Suzanne, and we are well within the mark in saying that the highest have been realised. The audiences on the opening night and throughout the week have been most enthusiastic. Miss Mabel Love, in the part of Suzanne, almost reaches perfection. It is an extremely smart performance, and her good work is often rewarded with hearty applause. The light-heartedness and "don't care" sort of disposition of Suzanne were well brought out by the charming actress. The haughty imperiousness of Lady Charlotte Trevor is well exemplified by Miss Annie Stalman; and Miss Violet Ley, with a fine stage presence, gives a delightful portrayal of Lady Isabel Bury. The part of Charles Trevor is entrusted to Mr. Templar Powell, who plays the unhappy husband in a very commendable manner. Mr. Gerald Alexander scores with quiet effect as Sir Horace Hatton; and Messrs. J. Hastings Batson, Townsend Whitling, and Richard Neville are each well placed as Lord Datchett, Captain Harry Cecil, and Tommy Keston, three of Suzanne's ardent admirers. The Fitzroy Harding of Mr. F. G. Thurstan is full of ripe comedy, and justice is done to the broad humour of the character, especially in the first act. Miss Florence Harwood affords considerable amusement as Miss Fanny Minching; and Miss Dorothy Lart is admirably suited in the rôle of Mrs. Tustail. Considerable amusement is caused by Miss F. Turner as the charwoman, Mrs. Putman; and Mr. Montgomery (Budd), Mr. Bruce Smith (Mason), and Mr. J. Young (Porter) complete a cast it would be difficult to improve upon. A charming curtain-raiser by Rosemary Rees, entitled Her Dearest Friend, is capitally enacted by Miss Violet Ley, Miss Annie Stalman, and Mr. Richard Neville. The incidental and entr'acte music is well treated by the Marlborough orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Chas. Elcock, and Mr. Townsend Whitling is responsible for the excellent stage direction.

CORONET THEATRE.

"THE INTERLUDE OF YOUTH."

This week the English Dramatic Society have been giving performances of Old Morality plays, including The Interlude of Youth, Everyman (with Miss Wynne Matthison in the cast), and The Redemption of Agnes. Every care possible has been taken in the reproduction of the mediæval methods, and a laudable attempt to breathe the true spirit of their meaning and moral significance, as conveyed to the audience of earlier years, has been shown. The dresses have been designed by Miss Jennie Moore from pictures and MSS. of the period, while the music has been arranged from modes and folk songs of the fifteenth century. The Interlude is produced under the direction of Mr. Nugent Monck. The Interlude of Youth was first printed in 1554, but the play itself is of much earlier date. Its great rarity may account for the fact that hitherto it has escaped general notice, as only two or three copies of the original edition are existent. Briefly, the argument is this:—Charity comes from Heaven to plead with Youth, who will not go with her, but rather turns to his friends, Riot and Pride, who lead him to Lady Luxury. Now, when this little company would make merry at the tavern, Charity again approaches them, but they in jest chain her to the whipping-post, leaving her with a drunken song. Then Humility comes and releases her, and they, together, plead with Youth to forsake Riot and Pride, "and do after their counsel." Youth is so touched by their words that he leaves his evil ways, vowing to lead a new life of good ensample. There being no programme available, no names are given, but chief praise is due to the representatives of Youth and Charity.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 25, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE GAY PARISIENNE."

The frivolities of The Gay Parisienne have not yet lost any of their attractiveness for the theatre-going public, and Kennington Theatre has resounded this week with merriment as the devious shortcomings of Ebenezer Honeycombe have been revealed. The piece is produced by Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company, a combination of versatile comedy artists who are fully capable of presenting the play in its best light. Much of the business has been brought down to date, and there are some new songs, so that no one to whom this particular form of entertainment appeals has any cause for disappointment at the performance. The staging is very good, the hotel scene in the second act being a pretty set; whilst the chorus is strong and well-balanced, and the concerted numbers are all rendered with effect. As Ebenezer Honeycombe Mr. Will Harman acquitted himself with considerable credit, and his amusing antics in Scottish costume in the second act delighted pit and gallery, whilst he made a big hit in the "Tweedledum and Tweedledee" duet with the Gay Parisienne, and the comic quartette in which he participated with Mrs. Honeycombe, Julie, and M. Pompier, at the end of the first act. Miss Lilian Talbot made a vivacious and sparkling Julie Bon-Bon, singing and dancing admirably, and making love with a fascinating abandon which was quite irresistible. She won an enthusiastic recall for her duet with Ebenezer, "First class and third." Mr. Squire Day was the most explosive Major Fossdyke that could be conceived, and worked hard to keep the fun both fast and furious. As Norah, Miss Nance O'Neill was both graceful and charming, and in the love scenes with Tom Everleigh (Mr. Phillip Moore), she shone with advantage. Mr. Moore made a manly and sturdy Tom, whose song, "Last night I lay a-dreaming," was finely rendered. Mr. Clifford Snyler was immense as the French dandy Pompier, presenting the extravagances of that character to the life, and receiving a great ovation for his rattling song, "Gertie on the go." Miss Holford Beringer was first-rate as Mrs. Honeycombe, and the successful manner in which she first impersonated the dominant partner, and afterwards the sorrowful widow, showed she possesses histrionic powers of no mean order. Miss Madge Soutter's amusing interpretation of the part of Ruth, the servant, secured for her appreciation without stint from the gallery. Mr. Douglas Howard was undeniably good as Amos Dingle; and Mr. Harry Bedbrook made an intensely humorous lovesick Algernon Ducie. The masculine quartette of Major's daughters were efficiently presented by Miss K. O'Malley, Miss E. McHardy, Miss G. Davies, and Miss L. Donati. Mr. J. FitzJames made up excellently as Hans, the German hotel proprietor; and the Fritz of Mr. Ned Dennis deserves mention. Quite one of the best features of the show was Mr. Cecil Lawrence's clever whistling medley in the second act, and the audience were not slow to indicate their approval of his efforts. The quartettes of Messrs. Dennis, Rose, Moore, and FitzJames always went well; and the augmented orchestra was under the direction of Mr. E. Lewis.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 25, the Farcical Comedy, "THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

Once again we have a welcome visit from The Private Secretary, which is being played by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company, and is proving as great a laughter-maker as ever. The sorrows and misfortunes of the Rev. Robert Spalding, with his "goods and chattels," are a never-ending source of merriment, and the house fairly rocks with laughter. As the reverend gentleman, Mr. Donald Price-Evans is most diverting, his dry manner and quaint expression exactly suiting the part, of which he hits off the eccentricities without exaggeration. Mr. W. Hargreaves appears again in his old character of the irascible Mr. Cattermole, playing it with rare humour, and keeping the fun going whenever he is on the stage. Mr. J. P. Hussey makes a good Harry Marsland; Mr. Randolphe Read gives an admirable portrayal of the lively Douglas Cattermole; Sidney Gibson, the tailor who longs to be in society, is amusingly presented by Mr. Vivian Gilbert, who is particularly good in this part. Miss Dorothy Shawe is a charming and elegant Edith Marsland; and Eva Webster is portrayed in a captivating manner by Miss Beth Elliott. A fine sketch of the old Squire, Mr. Marsland, is given by Mr. W. T. Elworthy; and Mrs. Alfred Davis is most entertaining as Miss Ashford. The comedy is preceded by an amusing trifle by James Streete, entitled My American Admirer, which is smartly played by the Misses Elliott and Wade and Messrs. Elworthy and Hussey.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On March 25, the Drama, by Horace Stanley, entitled "THE 10.30 DOWN EXPRESS."

The week before Easter is scarcely considered to be a favourable one for theatrical business, but, nevertheless, very fair audiences have assembled at the Crown to witness the above drama. The production has now been seven years on tour, which fact is sufficient evidence of its lasting popularity. Mr. Horace Stanley's company render an excellent account of themselves in the piece. Mr. George Beverley is a light-hearted and buoyant Lieut. Jack O'Malley, and acts with genuine dramatic force in the more emotional passages; Miss Elsie Capell is a prepossessing Bessie Leigh, and acts very sympathetically; Mr. Horace Stanley caues roars of laughter as the jolly Jack Tar, Sam Wagstaffe; Miss Kate Kilpack ably helps to keep the ball of fun rolling as his sweetheart, Peggy Potts; Miss Evelyn M. Walton is very amusing as the amorous spinster, Letita Leigh; Miss Josephine Lee plays with power as Olive Coombes; Mr. Charles Burdon gives a clever study of incisive villainy as James Inderwick; Mr. Tom Roydon plays well as the broken-down Seth Coombes; Mr. Edwin Clarke is an alert Detective Mason; and Mr. Alaric Burton is an aristocratic Cuthbert Leigh. Mr. Arthur E. Francis does well as the unfortunate man-in-possession, Blaggs. There are some very effective sets, and the stoppage of the express train by the heroine in the third act is most realistically managed.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama, entitled "A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

Once again a large audience assembled at the Grand, this time to renew acquaintance with Mr. Walter Melville's powerful drama, A Girl's Cross Roads, and the social sermon the author preaches again made an effective appeal to the audience. Mr. Charles Franmore as John Meadows submitted an artistic study of the old farmer, his acting throughout being of a very high standard of merit. Mr. Wilson Gunning as Jack Livingstone played the sorely-tried husband with conviction and power; Mr. Cyril Vernon as Dr. Weston was good in a rôle of small opportunity; Mr. Gerald Jordan played the heavy part in the accepted manner; Mr. Fred Withers as Ramsden was commendable; Mr. Fred Ingram as Toby was responsible for much laughter, and found a valuable ally in Miss Mabel Scudamore, who played brightly as Tilly Vane. Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade submitted a cleverly conceived study of a woman who is the slave of drink. The part, which is a heavy one, makes great demands on the resources, both mental and physical, of the lady, but the difficulties are all surmounted with ease, particularly good being the pantomimic business in the third act, and the delirium scene which causes her death in the last scene of the play. Miss Florence Zillwood as Nellie Meadows, who played a woman of a certain type, is also worthy of praise for a sound performance. Miss Jessica Black as the unsophisticated Constance was good, and the numerous smaller parts were all in good hands. The scenery and mounting are very lavish, and Mr. Reeves' incidental music is accorded a good performance by Mr. Gliddon's orchestra. Mr. Tom H. Taylor is the courteous acting-manager for the Messrs. Melville.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama entitled "THE LONDON FIREMAN."

Messrs. Shirley and Conquest's fine play, The London Fireman, is this week interesting Dalston Theatre audiences. Hal Curtis, the young fireman, has a forcible representative in Mr. J. Forbes Knowles; Ida Curtis, the hero's wife, is played by Miss Nellie Shirley, who acquits herself well of her arduous duties; Mr. G. Herbert Humber is the supposed Viscount Fleming; Mr. Lionel Thomson plays with effect in the trying part of the blind Abel Fortnum; Mr. Walter Wilby is the Joe Bluener; and "Ratty" Curtis, the returned convict, is vigorously represented by Mr. Edward L. Garside. Miss Nellie Waddington gives the customary touch of hauteur to the character of the Countess Fleming; and Miss Beatrice Sinclair as Grace Curtis acts with sympathetic effect. Others taking part in the representation include Messrs. Philip Renouf, Fred Monney, W. Burgess, Joe Rockley, Edward Wishaw, A. Maxwell, and J. Herdman, and Miss Nellie Garside.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 25, the Comedy, entitled "OUR FLAT."

Mr. Rollo Balmain's company, in the evergreen Our Flat, has been playing here for five nights. Mrs. Musgrove's little play, with its strong human interest, its natural humour, and its satire on the hire system of furnishing and living on credit, maintains its popularity, and does not fail to produce abundance of hearty laughter. Mr. Sydney Leyton enacts the rôle of Reginald Sylvester very successfully, and is well backed up by Mr. Lawrence Edward as Clarence Vane. Mr. Harry F. McClelland put vigour into the part of the stony-hearted father-in-law, Mr. McCulkum. Mr. Wilfred Compton as Pinchard, Mr. Edward Lewis as Stout, the porter, and Mr. John Randall as the Furniture Foreman, are all satisfactory. As Nathaniel Glover, the eccentric theatrical manager, Mr. Richard Purdon scores one of the successes of the evening, his study of that eminent personage being full of rich humour. Miss Miriam Holt is charming as Lucy McCallum; and Miss Ruth Wallace makes the most of the part of Mme. Solant. Little Miss Ethel Townley plays the part well as the child, Clara Pryout. Another very successful impersonation is that of the maid, Bella, by Miss L. West; and Miss Sara Mignon acts well as Margery Sylvester. Our Flat is preceded by another old favourite in the shape of the immortal Box and Cox. In this, Mr. Langford Reid as Box, Mr. Wilfred Compton as Cox, and Miss Wallace as Mrs. Bouncer, all play with great spirit, and make the old piece go excellently.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama, by Frank Harvey, entitled "SHALL WE FORGIVE HER?"

The attraction at the Terriss this week is Mr. Frank Harvey's well written, emotional drama, Shall We Forgive Her? which formerly enjoyed a successful run at the Adelphi Theatre. The piece contains less of the sensational and more of the dramatic element than we are accustomed to here, but it is none the less welcome on that account. Miss Marion Denvil makes a great success as Grace West, and her final restoration to her husband, home, and child is greeted with much enthusiasm. Mr. Ernest E. Norris plays sympathetically the part of the hero, Oliver West; and Mr. Ashley Page gives an admirable depiction of the rôle of the calm, yet brave and resolute, clergyman, Paul Elsworth. Mr. J. C. Aubrey is well placed as the ne'er-do-well and vagabond, Neil Garth; and Mr. John Sargent gives a good character-study as the Scotch eye-specialist, Dr. McKerrow. Mr. David Noble is good as James Stapelton; Miss East Robertson portrays the rôle of the hard-hearted housekeeper, Joanna Lightfoot, with unflinching realism; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale and Miss Mattie Everett ably supply the comedy element. The piece is mounted with the care and completeness which every production at this theatre receives at the Messrs. Melville's hands.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama, entitled "THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Another of Walter Melville's successful dramas, The Girl Who Lost Her Character, is being presented here this week by Mr. Douglas Bruce. Excellently staged and acted by a really capital company, the piece, on Monday evening, was received with unstinted applause. Miss Ethel Bracewell was pathetic as Molly Vernon, to which she imparted a winning grace and sweetness, and acted with distinct ability; Miss Lydia Mannington as the adventuress, Marion Franklin, played with considerable skill and power, and Miss Emmie Barton was satisfactory as Rose Seymour; Miss Daisy Meynard created a good impression by her clever delineation of the dressmaker, Isabella Jones. Mr. Stanley S. Gordon in the rôle of Jack England gave an earnest and convincing portrayal of the character, and was received with applause; Mr. Frank Adair presented a careful study of the scheming Captain Caversham; and Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Punch made the most of his opportunities, and kept the audience well amused. Mr. Geo. Mitchell contributed a capital embodiment of the repentant forger, James Sutton; and Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle submitted a manly rendering of the Rev. Robert Everton. Mr. C. Franklyn capably sustained the part of Detective Weathersby, and the minor rôles were satisfactorily acted. Mr. E. de Hague Body is the acting-manager for Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama, entitled "THE EXECUTIONER'S DAUGHTER."

A good audience witnessed on Monday the performance here of Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's drama, The Executioner's Daughter, which was produced in a highly successful manner by Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's capable company, end evoked continuous and hearty applause. An excellent rendition of Mons. Roche, the Executioner of Paris, is presented by Mr. J. B. Murray, who left nothing to be desired, while an admirable Tom Holmes was found in Mr. Syd T. Russell. Too much praise can hardly be bestowed on Miss Nelly Howitt for her fine playing as the Executioner's daughter, Annette, much power and pathos being displayed. Mr. Hugh Mewburn adds considerably to his reputation by his clever portrayal of Felix Marius; and Mr. G. S. Rhodes makes a hit as Vivian Ormonde. An interesting impersonation of the crippled Christian is seen in Miss Nellie Moore; and Miss Constance Stow is pleasing as Helene Marie. Mr. W. Ruddle Brown gives substantial proof of his ability by his fine exposition of Paul Revel; and an intense and earnest reading of Kretch is given by Mr. W. Matthew. Miss Nita Langdon acts with dramatic distinction the unthankful part of Felice; and Miss B. St. Ruth is painstaking as Sally King. Mr. William Le Blanc is effective as General Le Maire; Mr. G. Arthur Lloyd is well in the picture as Parie Abbe; and capital support is given by Mr. Fred Lunn as Ferrand, Mr. George Smith as Jean, Mr. Louis Scott as Sergeant Meunier, Mr. Edward Hill as Barrel, Mr. James Abbey as Captain Guillardt, and Miss Flora White as Mme. Claun. The piece is mounted in a complete manner, reflecting great credit on all concerned. The general-manager, Mr. Harry Lyons, is courteous and assiduous in looking after the comfort of his patrons.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 25, the Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Weedon Grossmith, entitled "THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY."

Whole-hearted and unrestrained laughter has been heard at the Kingston playhouse every night this week on the occasion of the performance of Mr. Grossmith's highly diverting comedy, which is being produced under the author's personal direction. From the rise to the fall of the curtain there is scarcely a moment that there is not a broad grin on the faces of the audience. Mr. Sib Smith, in the part of Mr. Crosbie, is responsible for most of the fun, and makes the most of his many opportunities. Mr. Douglas Munro makes an admirable Flambert. Excellent impersonations of their parts are given by Miss B. Mervyn as Lady Hampshire and by Miss Lilian Williams as Paulina. Miss Florence French acquits herself well as the gipsy Vandelier. Others who do good work are Mr. Ernest Rivarz as Alderman Hargen, Mr. Frank H. Denton as Mr. Frank Frayne, Mr. Eric Forth as Sir Charles Hampshire, and Mr. Stanley Arthur as Mr. Bogle.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 25, Balfe's Opera, entitled "THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

The last week of Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera season at the Standard was commenced on Monday with a performance of The Bohemian Girl. Although the répertoire of pieces undertaken by this company is extremely large, every opera is carefully mounted and staged, and much praise is due to Mr. Turner and his excellent body for the excellent representations given. The rôle of Thaddeus was played by Mr. F. J. Hargrave with marked success. Throughout the evening he maintained a high standard of excellence. Mr. John Ridding displayed considerable ability in his delineation of Count Arnheim, his acting at times being full of pathos and his singing all that could be wished for. He gave a capital rendering of "The heart bowed down"; Mr. Sidney Clifford scored a great success as Devilshoof, his singing being much appreciated; Mr. P. Newton ably supported the part of Florestein. Miss Jessie Dennis sang her music well, and altogether rendered admirable service as the Gipsy Queen; and the part of Buda was brought into sufficient evidence by Miss Maud Esdale. The rôle of Arline fell to Miss Christine Gomez, on whom there is nothing but praise to bestow. Her singing was most capable, and she was heard to great advantage throughout this opera. The chorus and orchestra worked well under the able guidance of Mr. T. Lawton. Other operas for this week are The Daughter of the Regiment, Il Trovatore, Satanella, and Faust.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 25, the Play entitled "A BUNCH OF VIOLETS."

The regular dramatic season was resumed here this week with a visit of Mr. Russell Rosse's company in Sydney Grundy's pretty comedy A Bunch of Violets. An excellent company includes Mr. Walter Maclean, who gives a very fine impersonation of Sir Philip Marchant, his acting being really good, notably in the third act, in which an admirable display of histrionic ability is given. Mr. Charles Goold supplies a finished performance of the bluff but good-natured Yorkshireman Mark Murgatroyd. The leader of the Sons of Toil and the Nonconformist Conscience has a capable representative in Mr. Dennis Bryan, who gives a powerful impersonation of Jacob Schwarz. The rôle of Mrs. Murgatroyd is undertaken with distinct success by Miss Eleanor Delaporte, an actress of considerable ability, and it would be difficult to obtain a more capable exponent of the character. Mr. W. Burgess Barratt presents a careful study of the crafty and cunning secretary Harker. Lady Marchant is sympathetically and conscientiously played by Miss Maude Abbott. Lord Mount Sorrell has a capable representative in Mr. George Bellamy, and the Hon. Harold Inglis is made the most of in the capable hands of Mr. Archie Selwyn. Miss Winifred Ingham is a sweet and charming Violet. The principal piece is preceded by a new musical comedietta by William Drew, entitled The Gold Cure. The land of the Zuyder Zee just now occupies a prominent position in dramatic favour, and it is in that picturesque country that the author has laid the slight story of his new sketch. The scene is the exterior of a hut in a village in Holland, where a jolly Dutchman courts the fair Gretchen. Hans, however, is too much addicted to schnapps to please his sweetheart, who finds in a book a recipe that claims to cure of the love of intoxicating liquors. She prepares the mixture according to the directions, and administers a dose to Hans. The result is alarming, Hans going through a series of agonised contortions that terrify the girl. Hans, who has had previous possession of the bottle and replaced the drug by a draught of his own favourite beverage, has, however, only been shamming, and presently bursts into hearty laughter. Gretchen is reassured, but produces a marriage certificate and a teetotal pledge, and declares Hans shall not sign one without the other. The Dutchman at length consents, and the playlet is felicitously ended. Mr. Charles Goold gives a characteristic assumption of the burly and jovial Dutchman, and his paroxysms of pain are very grotesque. Miss Emelie Holt makes a comely Gretchen, and sings a song incidental to the part in cultivated style.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 25, for the First Time in London, the Romantic Play, in Four Acts, by Richard A. Greene, entitled "THE ANGEL OF UNREST."

Napoleon I.	Mr. Alec Flood
Papa Bompasse	Mr. Henry Belding
Paul Brandt	Mr. Creagh Henry
General Renaudot	Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice
Colonel Bernaise	Mr. Richard A. Greene
Captain Lemesnil	Mr. Alexander Bradley
Captain Leblanc	Mr. George Chase
Captain Beaupre	Mr. L. P. Danks
Mons. Lepine	Mr. Laurence Vining
Herr Kolsch	Mr. James Chippendale
Herr Grondwetter	Mr. Gerald Clarke
Hugle	Mr. James Chippendale
Jurgons	Mr. Dudley Walton
Tugot	Mr. Fred Stone
Mme. Renaudot	Miss Patti March
Lisette	Miss Rita Imeson
Julie	Miss Florence Tressilian

Mounted on a scale of magnificence seldom equalled by a travelling company, The Angel of Unrest, a story of 1812, has reached the metropolis within a month of its provincial production. The striking title of the play has reference to the tireless energy and desire for conquest of the First Napoleon; but though his personality dominates the piece, it is peopled with characters which give it a definite and connected story. No appeal is made to the sensations by abnormal effects, but a number of thrilling episodes stimulate interest and engross the attention throughout. Details of the plot were given in our correspondent's notice of the first production at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on March 4, but a brief recapitulation of the leading incidents may not be amiss. The period of the play is that of 1812, the time when Napoleon entered upon his futile Russian campaign. Bonaparte has given orders for the capture of Mons. Lepine, the President of the League and Council of 33, which has for its object the removal of Napoleon. The first act is laid in Mons. Lepine's house, where preparations for celebrating the marriage of his daughter Lucie with Captain Lemesnil, an officer of Napoleon's Army, but a member of the League, are in progress. The wedding ceremony over, the bride and bridegroom return from the church, and Lepine is warned by Paul Brandt, a young Bourbonist in the English Naval Service, that Napoleon has given instructions for his arrest, and the President immediately seeks safety in flight. Subsequently orders come from Napoleon demanding the attendance of the newly-made bridgroom, and the youthful bride is left in tears. The second act takes the audience to Russia, where a farmhouse near the Borodino is occupied by the temporarily victorious French Army. Lucie and her maid Lisette have been taken care of by Brandt, whose liberty is also threatened. Lemesnil, to whom the capture of Lepine has been entrusted, is subjected to a vigorous cross-examination by Napoleon, during which he declares that he married Lucie in order the more easily to secure Lepine, and a highly dramatic scene is reached when the Emperor confronts Lemesnil with Brandt, who denounces the former as a spy. Brandt resolutely refuses to reveal Lepine's hiding-place, and Napoleon orders his arrest; but just as Lemesnil is on the point of effecting his capture, Brandt skilfully draws his assailant's sword from his scabbard, and has him at his mercy. Brandt is suddenly taken from behind, and Lemesnil is about to kill him, when "Papa" Bompasse, a veteran of the Imperial Guards, and a faithful friend of Brandt, rushes forward and despatches the spy with his bayonet, Julie entering at the moment and attributing the deed to Paul. The escape of Brandt is effected, but in the third act Napoleon takes a subtle means for capturing him. Julie has found refuge at the house of General Renaudot at Moscow, and thither Napoleon repairs and tells her that Brandt's fidelity to her was prompted by an unholy love, and that the death of her husband was accomplished in order to further his own purpose. Julie believes the statement, and, acting under the Emperor's directions, sends a message to Brandt to visit her at midnight. Brandt duly arrives, and is received with scorn by Julie; but Bompasse, in a stirring speech, bears witness to the true facts of the case, and declares that it was his hand that delivered the fatal thrust. Julie is stricken with remorse, and advises flight; but it is too late, for Napoleon is at hand, and Brandt is seized. Suddenly, however, flames break out on all sides, and the city is seen to be on fire. Napoleon, hurriedly giving orders for the execution of Brandt, leaves the building, and Bompasse, knocking up the levelled revolver of an officer who is about to shoot Brandt, releases the latter and gets him away in safety.

The last act deals with Napoleon's inglorious retreat from Moscow, hotly pursued by the Russians. In the depths of the forest the Emperor laments the destruction of his hopes, and prepares to return to France. Hardly has he departed than Bompasse disposes of the sentry, and makes the way clear for the meeting of Brandt and Julie, between whom a mutual love has arisen. Meanwhile, Bompasse has received a stray bullet in his breast, and dies in the arms of his friends.

The opportunities for an effective setting have been taken full advantage of with an utter disregard of expense. The apartment at General Renaudot's quarters is sumptuously furnished, and the effects of the burning city are obtained with remarkable reality. Equally admirable is the forest set, with its lanes of snow-laden trees, and the flames and smoke mingling in the distance. The costumes, too, are elaborate, the splendid uniforms and rich costumes of the ladies making an imposing display. No less meritorious is the acting of Messrs. Alec Flood and Aubrey Fitzmaurice's company. Mr. Alec Flood, by whom the piece is produced, comes as near to the likeness of Napoleon as historical research permits, and his assumption of the hauteur and dignity of the Emperor is very fine. Mr. Flood seizes upon every opportunity for facial play, and his acting is pointed and expert. Mr. Henry Belding adds another to his series of triumphs in the part of the veteran, "Papa" Bompasse, who, with grizzled features and military bearing, is the very embodiment of a member of the "Old Guard." The thrilling lines of the part owe much of their effect to his fine delivery, while there is a grim humour about the impersonation which proves very welcome. Mr. Creagh Henry is a chivalrous Paul Brandt, his erect bearing and well-marked elocution giving a finished character to the part. A constant call is made on the dramatic skill of Miss Florence Tressilian, who makes a comely Julie, and is captivating alike in smiles and tears. Her acting is instinct with delicacy and grace, and her ability in the portrayal of emotion is evident throughout. Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice makes a soldierly General Renaudot, and displays a firmness of touch in dealing with the character that makes it prominent in the working out of the play. The recreant Captain Lemesnil is imbued with the requisite characteristics by Mr. Alexander Bradley, who cleverly avails himself of every chance presented in a difficult part. Mr. Richard A. Green is also well adapted to the rôle of Colonel Bernaise; and Mr. Laurence Vining acts with great ability as Mons. Lepine. Miss Patti March represents Mme. Renaudot with refinement; and Miss Rita Imeson is a coquettish Lisette, her pertness toward "Papa" Bompasse being highly relished. Mr. George Chase and Mr. L. P. Danks share the responsibilities of two officers; Mr. James Chippendale satisfactorily combines the parts of a Russian peasant and of a burgher of the City of Dantzic; a fellow burgher being ably sustained by Mr. Gerald Clarke. The curtain had to be raised at the end of each act in acknowledgment of the applause, and the attitude of the large audience at Stratford pointed to the probability that The Angel of Unrest, a fine play perfectly produced, is destined to have a long and victorious march, under the general managership of Mr. F. Martin Morris.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 25, the Drama, entitled "MONTE CRISTO."

The version of Alexandre Dumas's famous novel introduced to the Broadway frequenters this week is a clear and well-arranged adaptation of this well-known story, a very difficult one to dramatise effectively. The name of the adapter does not appear on the programme, but he must be complimented on his success. The audience follow the development of the plot with interest, and reward the various situations with loud applause. Mr. Booth plays Edmund Dantes with earnestness and vigour; while Miss Lallie Forsyth ably supports him in the trying rôle of Mercedes. Miss Amy Manfree is a charming Sophie Danglars; and Miss Alice West presents an excellent character-study as La Carconte. Mr. Agustin Bowerman is very good indeed as Baron Danglars; Mr. Beckitt gives a capital rendering of the character of Nortier; Mr. C. W. Crowe's exposition of that of Fernand Mondego is admirable; Mr. Walter Huron is good as Villefort; Mr. Leonard Marshall as Albert is well placed; Mr. Walter Martin is an impressive Abbé Faria; and Mr. H. G. Griffin is commendable as Morel. Mr. J. W. Braithewaite is a clever and amusing Caderousse, his quaint humour being very welcome among so many serious parts. Mr. Sydney White as the Inspector, Mr. A. Braithwaite as Henri, and Mr. Sam Elton as Pierre, all contribute their best efforts to the success of the performance.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The students of the Royal Academy of Music gave an orchestral concert on Tuesday afternoon at Queen's Hall, the programme commencing with Sir A. C. Mackenzie's "Marcia Funebre," from Coriolanus, in memory of the late Sir August Manns, who died March 1, 1907. During the performance the large audience remained standing. The orchestra also most ably supported Miss Elsie Comley in her neat and finished performance of Dvorák's Andante Sostenuto and Finale (Allegro con Fuoco) from Pianoforte Concerto in G (Op. 33). In Max Bruch's "Ave Maria" Miss Mary Fielding greatly pleased the audience by the fervent manner of her singing, the young students in the orchestra in no way overpowering the vocalist. One of the most interesting and successful features of this concert was the admirable clarionet solo of Mr. Herbert Stutely, who was heard to great advantage in Mozart's Adagio and Rondo (Allegro) from Concerto in A, in which the good tone and finished execution of the young performer was justly rewarded by the hearty applause of the audience. A Scherzo (MS.) for orchestra written by Mr. Percy A Bowie proved a bright and attractive composition, the young composer being at the close cordially recalled to the platform. Miss Gwladys Roberts in scena, "Hymn to Aphrodite" (Sappho), by Granville Bantock, deserved praise for her endeavour to impart dramatic feeling to her singing; and Miss Pitt Soper sang the air "Singt dem göttlichen Propheten" from Graun's Der Tod Jesu with considerable skill and intelligence. Chopin's delightful Romance (Larghetto) and Rondo from Pianoforte Concerto in E minor was admirably executed by Miss Catherine C. Matthews, although somewhat overpowered by the orchestra. Other clever performers were Miss Audrey Whitaker, heard in "Kol Nidrei" violoncello solo (Max Bruch); and Mr. Hubert Baker, who sang Mozart's air "Dalla sua pace." The orchestra, which was conducted by Sir A. C. Mackenzie, concluded the concert with a spirited performance of Sullivan's "Overture di Ballo."

A smoking concert was held on the 19th inst. in the large Assembly Rooms of the Crown and Dove Hotel, Bristol, for the benefit of Mr. Herbert Somerville (conductor-pianist), late of Dare-Devil Dorothy, Trip to Chinatown, and other companies. Mr. Harry Hare, who arranged the concert, occupied the chair, and the programme was contributed to by the following:—Messrs. Charles Goodman (comedian), Glover (baritone and pianist), Arthur Abbott (coster comedian), Fred Lapham, Frank Elliston (ventriloquist), Siddo (boy juggler), F. Edward Cook (conjurer), Carlton Howard, George Atkinson, Harry Inch, Bert Symons (dancer), Herbert Pockson, Wallace Arney, Jack Aubrey, Harry Belding, Syd Carter, Frank Thorne, Arthur English, Jack Leonard, Fred Smith, and Will Hollister (instrumentalists). Mr. Hare's orchestral band played selections from popular musical comedies, under the conductorship of the beneficiaire.

DRAMA AT THE LYCEUM.

CHAT WITH MR. ERNEST CARPENTER.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

This evening the Lyceum Theatre will open under the management of Messrs. Ernest Carpenter and Mr. Henry R. Smith. We obtained the ideas of these gentlemen in an interview with Mr. Carpenter the other day.

"What we intend to do," said Mr. Carpenter, "is to cater for a public in the West of London that we consider has been neglected for some years, and that is, the real lovers of drama of the class that used to support the best of the Princess's and Adelphi dramas in the old days. Our productions will be carried out on a superior scale, in spite of the fact that our prices of admission will be less than half those of any other West-end theatre. In fact, these prices would be only possible at such a playhouse as the Lyceum, with its capacity for accommodating four thousand people. When Mr. Smith secured the lease of the property and approached me, I found that his views were very much in accord with mine. I have been engaged during the whole of my career in playing in and producing dramas, and we are both convinced that the secret of successful catering to-day is to give the public good stuff at popular prices.

"Our plans are to make first-class productions of romantic and picturesque drama, as distinguished from the ordinary sordid transpontine melodrama. We have got in our safe plays by all the leading authors of to-day, awaiting production. On Saturday we open with a romantic play of The Prisoner of Zenda type. It is by Mr. Walter Howard, and is called Her Love Against the World. Then we have in reserve a play to follow on, dealing with the period of the French Revolution, and written by Messrs. Arthur Shirley and Benjamin Landeck. We shall engage a special company for each piece, so that the actors and actresses will be chosen to fit the parts. In the first production, Mr. Norman Partriege will play the principal male rôle, and Miss Nora Kerin will be the leading lady. Others in the cast are Messrs. Eric Mayne, Scott Craven, Fred Grove, Fredk. Ross, Harry Barford, Gus Oxley, Edmund Waller (son of Mr. Lewis Waller), and Misses Valli Valli, Marie Rignold, and Lulu Loudén. The old traditions of the Lyceum will be maintained as to the scenic 'effects.' Scenes have been painted by Messrs. Ryan, Helmsley, David Young, and W. R. Cox.

"In order to produce big dramas effectively, we have had to reconstruct and rearrange the whole of the electric lighting apparatus, as it was not fitted for theatre work. The house has been redecorated from top to bottom, inside and outside, and a new fireproof curtain has been provided.

"I may add that we hold a five years' lease, and have come here with the determination of making this the home of drama in the West-end of London. We shall produce an old-fashioned pantomime at Christmas."

Although his managerial control of the Lyceum Theatre is his first venture in the Metropolis, Mr. Ernest Carpenter's name has long been known in theatrical circles. For nearly twenty-five years he has been engaged in producing and running plays, and latterly in managing theatres. Mr. Carpenter was leading man to Miss Deering at the age of twenty. He was Romeo, Orlando—in fact, he tells us that he played every kind of part, from Hamlet to Perkyn Middlewick. His first theatrical ventures were in Lancashire. There proving successful, he began operations in the Potteries, where again fortune was pleased to smile on his efforts. Then he invaded Bristol and Brighton, and in the latter town converted a failure into a striking success. His one exploit as a theatre builder, in the literal sense, took place at Swindon. There he erected the Queen's Theatre. It was there, too, that he gained his first experience of municipal life, being elected as an alderman of the first Swindon Town Council. To-day he has a seat on the Brighton Town Council.

TOURING MANAGERS' MEETING.

An encouraging report was presented at the first annual general meeting of the Touring Managers' Association, Ltd., which was held in the admirably-appointed rooms of the Managers' Club, Savoy Mansions, on Wednesday. Mr. E. Lockwood presided, and amongst those present were Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Mr. G. M. Polini, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon, Mr. Rollo Balmain, Mr. Fred J. Little, Mr. Herbert Ralland, Mr. Alfred Paumier, Mr. Lionel Glenister, Mr. Reginald Burch, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. Arthur Gibbons, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. Leslie Moreton, Mr. J. Forbes Knowles, and the hon sec., Mr. G. B. Lambert.

Mr. Lockwood congratulated the Association on the continual increase of business, and prophesied greater prosperity in the future. He spoke in high terms of the work of Messrs. Polini, Bannister Howard, Balmain, and Weatherby. It was announced that a deputation from the Actors' Association had been received, and terms arrived at with regard to payment for rehearsals. Questions relating to the interests of travelling managers were discussed, and it was resolved that the Association would support any reasonable action taken by a manager affected, the premises and staff of the Association being put at the disposal of touring managers, whether members of the Association or not, for a meeting to discuss the matter. It was contended that the small drama men who really "feed" the theatres all the year round are so taken advantage of that they are unable to live. Every touring manager was urged to back up the Association in their efforts to obtain fair and equitable terms. The shares in the Association amounted to a thousand, and if managers would take up a few more they would find their investment a very profitable one.

A paragraph in the report stated that "the club at the present moment shows a promising aspect for the future. The call for membership, together with the administration as at present, points to most favourable results, and your directors trust that, in the near future, the Theatrical Managers' Association, together with the Suburban Managers' Association, may see their way to amalgamate with this Association in order that theatrical business will be arranged and transacted from one common centre." It should be added that the position of the club has materially improved since the issue of the balance-sheet. Subscriptions since received, and due from newly-elected members, amount to a considerable sum, and furnish the satisfactory balance of nearly £400.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected:—Mr. E. Lockwood (president), Mr. E. Graham-Falcon (vice-president), Mr. J. B. Howard (hon. treasurer), Mr. G. B. Lambert (hon. secretary), Messrs. Muskerry, Tilson (hon. solicitors), Messrs. Bryden, Fedden, and Co. (hon. counsel), and Mr. Clifton Alderson, Mr. Rollo Balmain, Mr. Milton Bode, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. Lester Collingwood, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. C. St. John Denton, Mr. Geo. Edwardes, Mr. R. Glenister, Mr. Wm. Greet, Mr. W. H. Hallatt, Mr. Chas. Harrington, Mr. W. W. Kelly, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. Leslie Moreton, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot, Mr. Norman V. Norman, Mr. G. M. Polini, Mr. A. Paumier, Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips, Mr. Herbert Ralland, Mr. Bertie Shelton, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, and Mr. John Tully were elected members of the committee.

A RECORD in dramatic dates is evidently aimed at by Mr. Alfred Calmour in his forthcoming play for the Scala Theatre, which takes us back to the Court of Pharaoh at the ancient city of Memphis, some 4,000 years before Christ. The production of a work dealing with so remote a period of the world's history is assisted by the results of recent Egyptian researches, of which Mr. Calmour has no doubt availed himself to the full.

The game of "hidden treasure" is interestingly played in the drama which Mr. Charles Hannan has founded upon his novel, "The Coachman with Yellow Lace," brought out at the Hammersmith Lyric on Monday. The wealth alluded to was deposited in various country houses belonging to an old miser, who left behind him a chart giving a key to the hiding-places. A duplicate chart comes into the possession of an adventurer named Villon, who compels his daughter, posing as the Duchess of Balcarra, to gain admission to the houses and purloin the treasure. Consequently, when Shirland Dane, the miser's son, who has inherited the property, goes to take possession, he finds it gone. Under an assumed name the young man has met and fallen in love with the Duchess, who returns his affection. He is induced to join in a game of cards at the Duchess's garden, where the play opens, discovers he is being cheated, and denounces a "gentleman of fashion" named Sir Oval of Belvedere, as the culprit, a duel being prevented by the exertions of the Duchess. Shirland Dane, and his friend, Philip of Eldon Towers, visit the Duchess in the second act, and the latter sees in the lady's coachman a remarkable likeness to a girl he had formerly met and loved. The "coachman" is, in fact, the girl in question, who wears the Duchess's livery in order to assist the deception. A diamond brooch belonging to the Duchess which Shirland had found during his quest at Kingston, and which he accidentally leaves on the Duchess's drawing-room table, is restored to the owner by her servants, and when Shirland revisits the house he recognises the trinket. In order to account for its presence in the house at Kingston, the Duchess says that she had been lured there by Sir Oval, and Shirland immediately concludes that it is he who is the thief, and accuses him of it on his arrival. A duel is again imminent, but the Duchess once more interposes, and declares her intention of holding a court of inquiry in her own garden. The trial duly takes place, and Sir Oval is adjudged innocent. Time is thus obtained by the Duchess, who has determined to induce Villon to restore his ill-gotten gains to their various hiding-places, so that Shirland may discover them on another search. Villon, however, is a confirmed gambler, and has lost all the money at cards to Sir Oval of Belvedere, and the Duchess is in despair. The course of true love is smoothed out in the last act, for there is still one remaining house that has not been sacked, and Shirland takes possession of what is left of his inheritance, makes light of the Duchess's share in the thefts, and finally gets rid of Villon.

Stirring scenes and much poetic sentiment are to be found in the new play, the dialogue of which contains many a neatly-turned phrase. The "curtains" are not so effective as the author of The Electric Man and the adaptor of The Cigarette-Maker's Romance might be expected to contrive, and the allusions to the neighbouring suburb of "Shepherd's Bush" proved a little unfortunate. A large audience was, nevertheless, well pleased with the performance, to which the company at the Lyric, in the chief cases, did complete justice. Mr. C. F. Collings, who plays the part of Shirland Dane, is particularly to be praised. He was courtly in his manner, commanding in appearance, natural in his love-making, and vigorous in speech. His plumed hat and brave costume became him admirably, and the cheers he awakened were loud and enthusiastic. Miss Sylvia Morris tackled the difficulties of the part of the Duchess of Balcarra with determination, and succeeded in giving a portrayal in which dramatic strength and emotional ability were evident. The despair of the young girl when she realises that it is her lover whom she has been the means of robbing was effectively expressed, while her share of the love passages were treated with delicacy and grace. Miss May Day looked comely in the gold-embroidered livery of the title-rôle, and her sympathetic delivery added greatly to the effect of the character. Mr. H. Hewitson had a suitably repellant appearance as the unscrupulous Sir Oval of Belvedere. He assumed a lowering scowl, spoke in deepest tones, and laid the sinister colours thickly upon his impersonation. The gambler, Villon, was impressively presented at the hands of Mr. H. H. Barrington, whose passionate utterances were strikingly delivered; and an admirable impersonation of Philip of Eldon Towers was given by Mr. A. P. Kaye, whose elocution is greatly to be commended. Miss May Seton, Miss Nell Gilmore, and Miss Florence Lovel, as a trio of maids in the Duchess's household, who make desperate love to the coachman, combined to present the droller side of the play. The piece is laid in the period of George II., and every opportunity for picturesque display in costumes is taken.

A VAST programme has been arranged for the thousands of holiday-makers who will visit the Crystal Palace on Easter Monday. The variety shows given at intervals will include Les Kyasyas, Brilliant and Brilliant, the Brothers Ethairien, the Bounding Pattersons, and Horace and Doras; while in the theatre afternoon and evening performances will be given of La Poupée. A Southern League match, Crystal Palace v. Watford, will be played on the football ground at 3.30; Mr. Spencer will make a balloon ascent at 2.30; and at the same time there will be a great athletic and cycling meeting. No one, moreover, should miss the ostrich farm, where the novel sight of a lady riding an ostrich is to be witnessed, in addition to a beautiful collection of feathers. The mental telepathy séance of Mr. Howard Crispin and his daughter will take place in the Egyptian Court; Messrs. Noakes and Bell, the well-known conjurers and entertainers, will be found in the Electric Theatre; and Kirk and Saraski's ladies-under-water acrobats in the North Tower Gardens. Other attractions include the "Queen of Sheba," Maxim's flying machine, fairy archipelago, water chutes, rapids, electric canoes, topsy-turvy railway, mazes, helter-skelters, Old English fair, panorama, boating, dancing on the lawns, a grand evening concert by massed bands, and a display of fireworks by Messrs. C. T. Brock and Sons.

AT Brompton on Monday, Mr. Frank Curzon, lessee of Wyndham's Theatre, was sued by Mrs. Ellen Cooper, to recover £200 damages in respect of serious injuries said to have been sustained at the theatre through falling down the stairs leading to the ladies' retiring-room, the lighting of which it was alleged was defective. Evidence was given by the electrical engineer at the theatre to the effect that the lights were in good order in the room in question on Aug. 29. The Judge told the jury that they would no doubt take into consideration the fact that the plans of the stairs had been passed by the London County Council, the body whose stringent requirements were no doubt often considered in excess of what was really necessary by theatrical proprietors. The jury awarded plaintiff £40, and judgment was entered accordingly, with costs.

A CHAT WITH MR. STANLEY COOKE.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"So you have really left off playing Charley's Aunt at last?"

"Yes. I was very loth to say good-bye to the dear old lady; but one never knows, it may only be au revoir again this time, as it was before. Of course, Charley's Aunt will never stop running, and although Mr. Brandon Thomas wished me to continue, I thought it better to take breath, and with it a change. I do not think it good for an actor to become too much associated with one character, as managers are apt to get an idea one can play nothing else, and if one waited for Charley's Aunt to reappear in other plays it might entail some rather lengthy vacations. No, I do not believe in "vacations"—at least, not enforced ones. Last year, at Terry's Theatre after playing Babbs twice a day for four weeks, Mr. Thomas very generously gave me a week's holiday—on the salary list. He was good enough to say I deserved it.

"I celebrated my 2,000th performance of Charley's Aunt last May at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, and in all have played the part 2,275 times. I played Dick Whortles in The Lady of Ostend over 600 times, and Lord Cyril Garston (The New Clown), under my own management, for a year. For the time being I am an "Electric Man," which in the nature of things should have a long 'life,' for, according to the best authorities, 'electricity is life.' When, however, his course is run, I hope the next long run I shall enjoy will be in my new three act farce, which expert opinion has predicted to have staying powers. It is now waiting the psychological moment for production.

"I certainly think the music-hall has done much to injure theatrical business in the country, but not so much as the feeble theatrical productions themselves. In my opinion the crux of the matter lies in the bad performances so frequently given by inexperienced people, whose only recommendation is that they are cheap, and generally they have not even had the advantage of proper coaching, in consequence of the incompetence of the stage manager or producer. How often do we find this person a bumptious, overbearing individual, who, dressed in a little brief authority, makes a point of bullying the most inexperienced, knowing full well that he will be too nervous to resent it. Thus by slow degrees the goose with the golden eggs (i.e., the playgoer) has been killed, and he, having lost the habit of going to the theatre, spends his evenings playing bridge, and patiently awaits the advent of the London actor-manager and his carefully rehearsed company in the autumn. The real playgoer's attendances at the local theatre become confined to some five or six weeks a year instead of one night a week when the theatre is open. Oh, yes, the local manager is also to blame—in many instances he does everything possible to hinder the travelling manager from doing his best to give a decent performance. Bad local scenery and still worse properties, the travelling partner to the contract being told that if he doesn't choose to have unsuitable properties, &c., he must find others. Even in the most ordinary things, "Hang the art, give me the money" principle has never yet paid in theatrical affairs, and never will. Yes, I have a suggestion as to the remedy. I believe that in the large cities the playgoer could be wooed back to regular attendance at the theatre by a stock company of really competent players playing sound plays produced as in a West End theatre. In Manchester, Liverpool, or Glasgow a good play should run as long as a pantomime. There are, I believe, plenty of good actors, but we lack good stage managers. Many a good play has been ruined for the want of an embryo Pinero to produce it. In the smaller towns I advocate a modified form of stock—a company playing say four pieces and staying a month. What is saved in travelling expenses could be expended on the company and productions. This plan would also minimise the expense of pictorial printing, and the play would once more become 'the thing.'

"Yes, I was recently playing in the music halls. Why not? The music-hall artist comes to the theatre, why should not the theatre return the compliment? The conditions of the music hall are certainly better than many of the theatres, and the audiences generally are both numerous and appreciative.

"It may interest you to learn that I have recently taken up golf, and am an enthusiast, but my present average for 18 holes is 140."

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The concise descriptions that we give below of recent patent applications are specially contributed by Messrs. Howard and Co., Patent Agents, 57 and 58, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will assist readers in all patent matters:—

22,685. Theatrical appliances. B. J. B. Mills. Southampton-buildings, London. Relates to double or multiple stage arrangements to facilitate the changing of scenery, &c. A double front stage is mounted on wheels on transverse rails, so that one half is opposite to the proscenium opening, while the other half is in a side chamber out of sight. The stage carrier framework supporting suspended scenery and lower rails for carriages, which move in slots in the stage and support the non-suspended scenery. Fixed side-floors just below the level of the stage are slotted to allow for the passage of the rails, and a fixed stage is arranged at the back of the movable stage. A series of slotted girders for suspended scenery are arranged at right-angles to one another at the back of the stage, and communicate with one another and the guides, so that the scenery can be turned, reversed, or moved on rollers into the back corners of the stage for storage.

DEATH OF ANNIE GOWARD.

Miss Annie Goward, who was a niece of the late Mrs. Keeley, and the wife of Mr. Charles Fawcett, died on Thursday, the 21st inst. She was the daughter of Mrs. Keeley's youngest brother, Alfred Goward.

Miss Goward made her first appearance at the Alexandra, Liverpool, under the management of the late Mr. Edward Saker. Thence she migrated to a then little known spot on the map called Paignton, but now quite a fashionable watering-place, about two miles from Torquay. The Bijou Theatre was run on first-class lines by a local magnate named Dendy. His whole heart was in his little theatre, and his great delight was to work the limelights—often with disastrous results to himself. As he practically owned the village, he was in a position to make miniature productions on a lavish scale, principally for the delectation of a few visitors from Torquay, and an audience mostly made up of the fisher-folk from the adjacent village of Brixham. Mr. Singer, of sewing-machine fame, would occasionally occupy the stalls, with his family of twenty daughters. He had had four wives.

At Paignton, Miss Goward gained considerable experience as chambermaid, Mr. E. M. Robson being the low comedian. It is said that the trial performance of The Pirates of Penzance took place at the Bijou, Paignton. It was at Paignton that Miss Goward met her fate and changed her name to Fawcett, Mr. Fawcett being a member of the company.

Miss Goward's next engagement was at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, where she was engaged for the stock company by the late Mr. Mercer Simpson. Mr. Edward Compton was the leading man. Here she had a varied experience, notably in Shakespeare, playing with the late Adelaide Neilson in The Winter's Tale, &c. With the same company, on tour, she also played a round of parts with the late Charles Mathews. Upon the occasion of a special performance of Ici on parle Français, by the late Mr. J. L. Toole, before His Royal Highness the then Prince of Wales, Miss Goward was the Anna Maria. At the close of the performance His Highness graciously handed her his buttonhole, and congratulated her on her performance. Needless to say, the souvenir was carefully treasured.

Her next engagement was under the management of Mr. John Douglas at the Standard, Shoreditch. Here she played and toured for several seasons. Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Pateman, and the late Charles Harcourt frequently starred at Mr. Douglas's theatre. Miss Goward was a most versatile actress; but perhaps the part that will be best remembered by the public will be her Bella, the servant in Our Flat, which she created and played for over 700 nights at the Strand Theatre, under the management of Mr. Willie Edouin. Her husband, Mr. Charles Fawcett, also played Reginald, the disappointed author. Having been associated for some years with Mr. Edouin, many parts fell to her lot, notably Mrs. Plumper in The Lady Killer, Jane, the cook, in Beauty's Toils, and Mrs. Fluffy in Katti, all the three pieces being from the pen of her husband, Mr. Fawcett.

She also played in pantomime at the Prince's, Manchester, under the management of the late Mr. John Hollingshead. The three sisters, Misses Ada, Edith, and Addie Blanche, were engaged at the time for the principal parts. Her husband was resident stage-manager at the time.

Her next London engagement, after the run of Our Flat, was at the Comedy, under the management of Mr. Charles Hawtrey. Here she was highly successful in The Sportsman; as Cleopatra in The Mummy, with Mr. Lionel Brough in the title-rôle; and in Miss Clo Graves' clever comedy, The Mother of Three, in which Mr. Cyril Maude, Miss Rose Leclercq, and Miss Fanny Brough also appeared. Miss Goward, who played the slavey "from the home," who used to sleep with her head "under the sink," will be remembered for one line alone which convulsed the house, on being asked if she had any morals, replying, "Yes, ma'am, two. One to wear, and one at the wash."

The interment took place on Tuesday last at Hendon Park cemetery, in the presence of a few friends. Many beautiful flowers adorned the coffin, among which were wreaths and crosses from her old and valued friends, Mr. Albert West, Miss Laura Sedgewick, Mrs. Clara Campbell, and Miss Nellie Campbell. There were other beautiful wreaths sent from Manchester by Miss Ada Blanche, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Rignold, and the members of the company of What the Butler Saw, in which, quite recently, she made her last appearance as Mrs. Hake.

PORTABLE THEATRES ASSOCIATION.

At the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, on Wednesday afternoon last, the proprietors of portable theatres held a meeting for the purpose of forming themselves into an Association. The chair was taken by Mr. A. E. Drinkwater. Amongst those also present were Messrs. E. Ebley, Alfred Denville, G. Gilbert, G. Austin, J. Johnson, W. Haggar, jun., J. Langley, F. Blake, Douglas Newell, Lalla Newell, Viola Jennings, — Hudson, H. Whitmee, and J. F. Graham. There were elected as members: Mesdames Mitford, Bond, Sinclair, Vickars, and Poulton, and Messrs. West, Hodson, Allworth, T. Allen, Beale, Davis, Leland Jones, Chas. Weight, King, Holloway, and De Marr.

MR. DRINKWATER having alluded to the object for which the meeting was assembled,

MR. DENVILLE read telegrams of sympathy from Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. John Hare, and Mr. Alexander.

MR. DUDLEY NEWELL proposed that the entrance fee to the Association should be half-a-crown, and that in one month from date it should be raised to half-a-guinea.

MR. AUSTEN seconded, and the resolution was carried.

MR. DENVILLE then proposed that Mr. Drinkwater should be elected chairman of the Association.

MR. WHITNEY seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

MR. NEWELL proposed that Mr. Denville should be elected secretary. The motion was seconded by MRS. GILBERT, and carried.

The SECRETARY read a letter from Mr. William Webb, manager of the North-Eastern Banking Co., Ltd., Morpeth, who consented to accept the treasurership of the Association. On the proposition of MR. GEORGE AUSTIN, seconded by MR. FRED BLAKE, it was resolved to appoint Mr. Webb to the post.

Messrs. Hudson and Newell were elected auditors. Those present were formed into a general committee, and Messrs. Newell, Blake, and Langley were chosen as an emergency committee. The subscription of membership of the Association was fixed at five shillings per month.

The Secretary having read letters from the Copyright Play Protection Association saying that it was determined to put a stop to the piracy from which authors suffered in regard to portables, Mr. DENVILLE said he had written in reply stating that the members of the Travelling Theatre Managers' Association would pay half-a-crown each performance for inferior pieces, and up to five shillings for the better ones, and use their original manuscript.

MR. DRINKWATER said if the Association could secure the right to play a piece, say, fifty times in the course of a year, and could allot that amongst the members of the Association, they would get better terms if they would guarantee that each would play it a certain number of times.

It was agreed that the secretary should be authorised to negotiate with the Copyright Play Protection Society.

In a discussion which followed, it was explained that the Association would make charitable grants in deserving cases, and would support a member in the event of his being involved in litigation in respect of professional usage. It was settled that no one should become a member of the Association until he had been elected by the committee by a majority of two-thirds. Dealing with the question of liability under the new Workmen's Compensation Act, the SECRETARY said they had obtained counsel's opinion to the effect that an actor or actress was similar to a domestic servant, and managers were therefore liable. Lloyd's offered to take insurances at 10s. per cent.

MR. DRINKWATER made a strong appeal on behalf of Actors' Day. He hoped all present would support Actors' Day Fund as far as they could, and try to induce the members of their companies to do so.

MR. DENVILLE thought they should combine and send up fifty per cent. of their takings to the Fund.

After further discussion, the meeting separated.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

A vocal recital by the pupils of Madame Eugénie Joachim was given on Monday afternoon in the concert room. The recital might almost be termed a sacred concert, as the works performed were, with only two exceptions, of that nature, therefore the organ accompaniment by Dr. Warwick Jordan (Professor) was appropriate. Four of Mme. Joachim's pupils were heard in examples from the great oratorios, and although the students at first seemed slightly nervous in singing to the organ, they nevertheless acquitted themselves ably. All wind instruments are difficult to sing to, and next to the flute, the organ is a severe test of the vocalist's purity of intonation. Miss Katie Tucker and Miss E. Barwell-Holbrook sang the duet, "The Lord is my strength," from Handel's Israel in Egypt, but were far more successful in Mendelssohn's duet, with chorus, "I waited for the Lord," from the Hymn of Praise. Miss Rita Milner was heard in "The Spirit Song," by Haydn, and recit. and arioso, "And he journey'd," "But the Lord is mindful," from Mendelssohn's St. Paul, which Miss Milner sang with care and expression. In Handel's recit., "O let eternal honours," and aria, "From Mighty Kings" (Judas Maccabæus), Miss Katie Tucker was much overtaxed by the difficult florid music, although she may be credited with intelligent singing and the neat execution of several shakes. These examples from the great oratorios require great singers. At all our principal music schools the students seem to have a fixed idea that the more difficult the music the greater the success will be to the singer, and this is a pity, as there are many fine voices among the pupils that otherwise would be heard to much more advantage. Miss Gilderoy-Scott was much applauded in Schubert's beautiful "Litanei" and Lully's "Bois Epée"; and Miss E. Barwell-Holbrook has considerable success in "Ave Mavia," by Cherubini, and Gounod's "Jerusalem." Miss Dorothy Holden presided at the pianoforte, and not a little of the undoubted success of the recital was due to the care and skill of Dr. Warwick Jordan in the organ accompaniments.

The students' orchestral concert given at the City of London School on Wednesday evening attracted a large audience. Dr. Cummings conducted the orchestra, which was first heard in Gounod's overture "Mirella." A first performance of a Concertstück (MS.) for pianoforte and orchestra, by Mr. L. A. Collingwood, was also included in the programme. In the new work the young composer has, as all students do, attempted too much; there is some clever writing for the orchestra, and the wind instruments are skilfully introduced, but the absence of any consistent theme for the pianoforte portion and the mass of diffuse detail for the orchestra were against the good impression the Concertstück would otherwise have made. What little part the solo instrument had in the new work was ably performed by the composer, who received a hearty recall at the close. Mr. Collingwood ought to re-write and simplify his Concertstück, and give more importance to the pianoforte part, as the work deserves it. In Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor, Misc Dadine Sutherland was particularly successful, giving quite a brilliant performance of the rapid finale the orchestra most ably seconding her efforts. The vocalists were Miss Elsie F. Haughton and Mr. Robert Carr. The latter, who possesses a musical and well-trained baritone voice, was somewhat handicapped by the loud accompaniment of the orchestra in his two songs, "Son of mine" and "The Rebel," by Wallace. The young vocalist, who sang with capital dramatic expression, was loudly applauded. Miss Elsie F. Haughton made a favourable impression on the audience by her singing of Max Bruch's "Ave Maria." There has been at students this week quite a run on this particular "Ave Maria." The orchestra, which were in good form, and the wind particularly so, concluded the programme with an excellent performance of Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" overture.

On Wednesday afternoon the second organ recital, on this occasion by Dr. C. J. Frost, was given in the concert room of the Guildhall School. The programme commenced with J. S. Bach's delightful Fantasia and Fugue in G minor, followed by the Adagio non troppo, Allegro, and Finale from Josef Rheinberger's Sonata No. 5 in F sharp major. Two charming examples of Chevalier Lemmens' Allegretto in B flat and Fantasia in A minor were given, and Dr. Frost also played a musicianly Postlude in C of his own composition, and in the florid passages in "Hommage à Mozart" (Morceau Symphonique), by J. B. Calkin, the organ was heard to great advantage. Dr. A. L. Pearce's Concert Fantasia in B flat minor and major, and Sir Edward Elgar's popular march "Pomp and Circumstance" concluded an interesting recital, in the course of which the organist was warmly greeted.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you permit me to correct a little inaccuracy which crept into your paragraph of last week, in which you stated that I had sold Mr. Charles Macdona some of my pieces? It is quite true that I have disposed of the rights to him of A Country Girl, The Duchess of Dantzic, Veronique, The Girl from Kay's, and The Cingalee, all of which he takes over immediately. The Little Michus I have also sold to him; but he does not take it over until next Christmas. The Beauty of Bath and The Catch of the Season he has also acquired from me, but not until the end of next spring.

I trust you will find space for this explanation, because managers who have booked the three latter pieces for the coming autumn have written respecting the contracts which they hold with me.—Yours faithfully, GEORGE DANCE.

17, Shaftesbury-avenue, W., March 28, 1907.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham arrived home on Sunday from his holiday trip to Egypt, and immediately began rehearsals for the revival of The Liars, travelling up from Brighton, where he is at present staying, every day for the purpose. Sir Charles and Miss Mary Moore will both appear in their original parts in Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's comedy, which is due at the Criterion on or about April 10.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has found the desire to witness his double bill, consisting of The Red Lamp and The Van Dyck, so strong that he has practically decided upon continuing it at the close of the Shakespeare Festival. Subsequently the new play, written by Mr. Louis N. Parker, on the subject of Joan of Arc, may be expected, with Miss Viola Tree as the heroine, and probably Mr. Tree himself and Charles VII. of France. In September Mr. Tree starts on a short tour, during which the first opportunity of seeing the famous actor as Macbeth will be afforded.

Mr. Martin Harvey has been playing throughout this week to large and enthusiastic audiences at the Alexandra Theatre, Greenock. Mr. Harvey has also been making the utmost of the exquisite neighbourhood about the Clyde-side hive of industry, and though as a motorist he has no desire to figure as a record-breaker, being content with record-breaking in another sphere of enterprise, he, with Mrs. Martin Harvey (Miss N. de Silva) and friends, have within the last few days enjoyed some wonderful runs, and viewed some no less fine scenery. Miss Muriel Harvey, we are glad to state, is now practically restored to health, and her parents are now happily relieved of anxiety concerning her. On Monday Mr. Harvey, Miss de Silva, and the company appear at the Royal, Newcastle.

Mr. George Edwardes suspended the performances at Daly's during the week, in order to give the artists, who have been playing without intermission for over 150 performances, a much-needed rest. Mr. Edwardes is of opinion that it is fairer to the public to adopt this method rather than weaken the cast for a prolonged period by giving the artists their holiday in rotation while the play is running. The performances of The Lady Dandies will be resumed on Monday with the full strength of the company.

Mr. William Mollison will be seen in his impersonations of Shylock, Macbeth, and Richard III. for the first time in London, at the Shakespeare Theatre, next week. The attractions will also include the St. James's productions of As You Like It and Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, so that the playgoers of Clapham and neighbouring suburbs are assured of a dramatic feast for the Easter holidays.

At the annual general meeting of the Birmingham Theatre Royal Company, Limited, held on Tuesday, the directors reported a trading profit of £1,973 5s. 10d. on the year ending December last. After writing off the sum of £593 11s. 2d. for depreciation on equipment, and setting aside the sum of £165 for redemption fund, there remained a balance of £1,209 14s. 8d. net profit in part redemption of the deficiency standing in last year's accounts. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said they were glad to be able to record a substantiad improvement on the trading of the first year. Their greatest difficulties had been the dearth of first-class touring attractions and the fact that for three months in the summer it was impossible to open the theatre without incurring a loss. He firmly believed that there must be a reduction of capital, and was strongly opposed to a drifting policy, preferring to deal with the deficit at the earliest possible moment. If they wiped out the deficit and wrote down the shares to their fair value there was every hope of the company being able to pay a dividend.

Mr. Ernest Wintour, who died at Wealdstone last Sunday, after being incapacitated by a long and painful illness of nearly two years, was a well-known and clever comedian. His last London engagement was with Miss Kitty Lofting at the Savoy Theatre. By the generosity of his brother, Mr. William L. Dobell, of La Comédie Anglaise, he had every necessary comfort and attention, and was devotedly nursed to the end by his fiancée, Miss Mabel Luxmore. The deceased, who was forty-nine years of age, was buried at Wealdstone Cemetery on Thursday.

Mr. H. E. Bellamy has sent a cheque to the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund for £17 13s. 3d.—less 40s. disbursed in emergencies—collected from the members of the D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Opera Company. Mr. Cecil Paget has forwarded £2 2s. 9d. gathered by means of the fund's box at the Crown Theatre, Peckham; and Mr. Wilfred Stanford has forwarded a further sum of £1 19s. from the Camden Theatre box.

Mr. Reeves-Smith, on behalf of a well-known American firm, has signed contracts with Mrs. Humphry Ward for the production of The Marriage of William Ashe in England. An adaptation of Mrs. Ward's book, by Miss Margaret Mayo, was performed all last season in America, with considerable success, Mr. Reeves-Smith playing the part of William. Mr. Reeves-Smith opens on Monday, the 8th prox., at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, with The Last of His Race, afterwards visiting Liverpool, Manchester, and Hull. Should the play realise expectations, it will be produced in London in September.

The complete cast of The Palace of Puck, which is to be produced at the Haymarket on Tuesday, will consist of Mr. Frederick Kerr, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Beatrice Terry, Mr. H. V. Esmond, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. H. Marsh Allen, Mr. E. W. Tarver, Mr. M. Elphinstone, Mr. Harry Norton, Miss Miriam Clements, Miss Mona Harrison, and Miss Vera Cockburn. The action of the play takes place in France, and the period is the present day. Compromising Martha will continue to serve as a curtain-raiser.

At the usual fortnightly social gathering of members of the Actors' Association, which was held this week on Thursday afternoon, a dramatic reading of Othello was given in place of a lecture and debate. It was rather unfortunate that the attendance was meagre, for the speeches of the different characters were delivered with fine effect and with a due appreciation of the meaning of the great poet's lines. Mr. Acton Bond read the directions, Mr. F. H. de Quincy appeared as Othello, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave as Iago, Mr. Edwin Holloway as Cassio, Mr. Reginald Maurice as Roderigo, Mr. Wm. Dexter as Brabantio, Mr. Thomas Holding as the Duke of Venice and Montano, Mr. John Beamish as Lodovico, Miss R. Mayne Young as Desdemona, Miss Barbara Fern as Emilia, and Miss Marian Bird as the Messenger.

The Managers' Club will have the last Social of the season on Sunday evening, April 14, when the chair will be occupied by Mr. Frank Weathersby, who has undertaken the programme. So extremely successful have the Ladies' Socials proved that the committee have determined that the club's last function of the season shall also be graced by the presence of the fair sex. Morning dress will be de rigueur.

Mr. Ernest Leicester has sailed for Melbourne, where he opens as leading actor on April 28. Mr. Leicester, whose virility and dramatic resource are sure to speed him quickly in the favour of Australians, for some time played the lead in the stock company at the Surrey Theatre, and like other of Mr. Conquest's principal actors, migrated afterwards to the West-end.

"The Senior Partner" is the title chosen for the play, by Louis N. Parker, with which the Vaudeville will inaugurate its season of comedy pure and simple. Miss Billie Burke will have the principal part, which has been specially written for the present charming "Belle of Mayfair." Another important engagement is that of Mr. Charles Hawtrey, now happily recovered from the effects of the recent operation which prevented him taking up his part in the new play at the Haymarket. The story of The Senior Partner is laid in Boston, U.S.A., during the period of the Tea Riots in 1773, which immediately preceded the American War of Independence.

Mr. Henry Watson has been engaged by Mr. Wentworth Croke for the part of Oscar Stephenson in his autumn tour of The Prodigal Son.

A great gloom was cast over the closing stages of the pantomime at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, by the not unexpected but astonishingly rapid fatal termination to the illness from consumption of the musical director, Mr. Gill, on Tuesday night. The deceased gentleman leaves a young widow and infant child. Their immediate wants have been seen to by the generosity of the Cinderella company and a few unprofessional friends in the locality.

Mr. Bernard Copping will, on Saturday, terminate a successful fourteen weeks' tour, under the management of Mr. J. B. Mulholland, in the dual rôle of Walter Everest and the automaton in Charles Hannan's clever play The Electric Man. The performance of the piece at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, this week, has been witnessed by a number of the officers and men from the Russian battleships visiting our shores, and, judging from their hearty laughter, the difficulties of following a performance in a foreign language did not prevent them from realising the amusing complications to which the inventor's electric monstrosity gives rise.

Baron Harriss's No. 1 Prince of Pilsen company, with Miss Sophie Harriss, Mr. Frank Crimp, and Mr. Harry Kilburn, supported by a powerful cast, has been secured as the Easter week attraction at the Opera House, Harrogate. The success which has attended the tour has been almost phenomenal, return dates at most of the theatres visited having been booked at increased percentages.

The installation meeting of Yorick Lodge of Freemasons, No. 2,771, was held recently at the Trocadero, when Mr. George Robins was placed in the chair as successor to Mr. Clarence Sounes. Mr. J. Bannister-Howard was appointed Director of Ceremonies.

The first visit of Mr. Ian Maclaren and his répertoire company to the Theatre Royal, Brighton, gave playgoers of "London-by-the-Sea" an opportunity of passing their verdict on a new exponent of Shakespeare, and their opinion was recorded in no uncertain fashion. On the opening night Hamlet was presented, when Mr. Ian Maclaren's enactment of the Prince met with such favour that he was honoured by repeated recalls at the conclusion of each act. Other Shakespearian plays presented were The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, and As You Like It, in all of which Mr. Maclaren further advanced in favour by his performances of Shylock, Malvolio, and Orlando. The climax of Mr. Maclaren's success was reached, however, in Othello, when the curtain had to be raised six times on the last act. The week's programme was further varied by David Garrick and She Stoops to Conquer. Mr. Maclaren, who has the advantage of being supported by a well-selected and talented company, has arranged for a return visit to Brighton next spring.

Mr. Mark H. Lindon, the highly-esteemed managing-director of the Theatre Royal, West Stanley, has been again returned as a member of the Stanley Urban District Council. Mr. Harry Masterman, the popular manager of the Theatre Royal, Castleford, who has served on the Urban District Council for the past eleven years, was also re-elected on Saturday last by a large majority.

"What the Butler Saw" has just finished its third week at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, and the enthusiasm of the audience on the last night was equal to that displayed on its first production there. This entertaining comedy by Judge Parry and Mr. Fred Mouillot has been revised and improved in many particulars, several scenes being rewritten and the part of the Butler being greatly strengthened. Its drawing powers have been so great in every town visited that Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche are now negotiating for a West End theatre with a view to its revival in London this June.

Mr. Bannister Howard's well-known company in La Poupée is assured of a hearty welcome at the Crystal Palace Theatre, where it opens with a matinée to-day and an evening performance, and will continue at the Palace throughout next week. The excellent cast includes Mr. Gus Danby as Hilarius and Miss Cissy Wade as the Doll.

Mr. W. Maycock is a contributor of one guinea to the fund for the relief of the widow of the late Charles Garthorne.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly (Miss Edith Cole) gave an "At Home" at the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, on Wednesday, when the elegantly appointed theatre looked at its best. A numerous gathering assembled to honour the occasion. The entertainment provided was recherché in every respect, and host and hostess are to be congratulated on the success of the very agreeable function. During the early part of the week the ordinary theatrical entertainments have been suspended, the Moody-Manners Operatic Company commencing a brief season with a sacred concert on Good Friday.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has a nephew at the Oxford Preparatory School who is showing unmistakable signs of inheriting a share of his uncle's great talents. Young Claude Beerbohm last week produced Oliver Twist in the great hall of the school, and played Fagin with an intensity and finish that were surprising. Young Beerbohm, who had drilled the other youthful players into quite respectable performers, met with a great reception. The dresses were lent by Mr. Tree.

The first of the "Suffragette" plays is a "dramatic tract," in three acts, and is entitled Votes for Women. The new piece, which is by Miss Elizabeth Robins, will be produced for a series of matinées at the Court Theatre on the afternoon of April 9. The cast will consist of Messrs. Athol Forde, Aubrey Smith, E. Holman Clark, P. Clayton Greene, Percy Marmont, Lewis Casson, and Edmund Gwenn, and Misses Maud Milton, Frances Ivor, Jean MacKinlay, Gertrude Burnett, Dorothy Minto, Agnes Thomas, and Wynne Matthison. The entire action of the play is comprised within the limits of six hours, from noon on Sunday till six o'clock the same evening.

The Commissioners Committee's monthly meeting, fixed for Monday last, was not held owing to the number present being insufficient to form a quorum. The next meeting is fixed for Monday, April 29, at 3.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee of the Actors' Association held a meeting on Monday last, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, Lewis Casson, H. Athol Forde, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Mr. Henry Ainley was elected a member of this committee. The committee recommended the appointment of Messrs. Haydon and Haydon, of 32, Great St. Helen's, E.C., as hon. auditors of the Actors' Association. The committee resolved that a suggestion should be made to the Council that the list of "unpaid" subscriptions be submitted to the Council on the 2nd prox., with a recommendation that the names of members who were not abroad and were in arrear should be removed from the register.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday last, when there were present—Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (solicitor), Misses Carlotta Addison, Georgina Hamilton, and Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Henry Ainley, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, H. Athol Forde, C. V. France, Frederick Morland, Kenyon Musgrave, Frederick Volpe, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). The hon. solicitors reported progress in several matters, and that they had advised members on points submitted.

Miss Fanny Brough was elected a member of the Council to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Quinton McPherson. The Council accepted the recommendation of the Finance and General Purposes Committee, and appointed Messrs. Haydon and Haydon, of 32, Great St. Helen's, E.C., as hon. auditors of the Association. The Council also adopted the recommendation of the Finance and General Purposes Committee as to the "unpaid" subscriptions, and instructed the secretary to place before them a list of members in arrear so that the matter might be dealt with at their next meeting.

A case of alleged insufficient ventilation at a provincial theatre was under consideration. The secretary referred to a letter from the management, and the explanation given was deemed satisfactory. Dr. Gairdner, of Ayr, and Dr. Henry, of Govan, was elected hon. medical officers to the A.A. Margery Chard, Wilson Gunning, Lallie Forsyth, and Elizabeth Robins were nominated for election, and a former member was nominated for reinstatement. The Suggestion Book was considered and an entry made. The offices of the Association will be closed on Easter Monday.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), Henry Ainley, J. Cooke Beresford, Lewis Casson, A. E. Drinkwater, H. Athol Forde, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). The draft of a suggested circular-letter to theatrical managers dealing with the question of the comfort of actors and actresses in the way of dressing-rooms, &c., and of the necessary conveniences in connection therewith was considered at considerable length, and ultimately it was agreed that all the absent members of the committee should be supplied with copies of the suggested letter in order that they might express their views on the subject before the letter was submitted to the Council for their approval. Certain expenditure in connection with the "social" meetings was authorised.

The Subscription Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), Henry Ainley, J. Cooke Beresford, Burton Cooke, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Proposed amendments concerning the method of payment of subscriptions were considered, together with the Articles of Association governing the subject and the revision suggested in those Articles to meet the case. The secretary reported that if the changes were made the insurance company had arranged to adapt the payment of premiums to the altered circumstances.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Homewood (Miss Joan Blair) will be back in England in the middle of April, after an absence of more than thirteen months—a break of twelve days at home en route from South Africa to Canada excepted—during which they have been playing important parts in two répertoire companies, those of Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler in Africa, and Mr. E. S. Willard in Canada and the United States. Mr. Homewood thus completes his fifth, and Mrs. Homewood her third, visit to America, but notwithstanding the long spell of hard work, they are eager for more.

Messrs. Barr, Moering, and Co., Transit House, Jewin-street, E.C., have been honoured by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree with the order for the removal of his scenery, requisite for the performances at Berlin before H.M. the Kaiser. The weight is about sixty-five tons, and it is the largest quantity ever shipped from England at one time. Half the ship was taken up, and a special train will be necessary from Bremen to Berlin and back.

Miss Dorothy Cacey, who has recovered from her recent severe accident at Brighton, will shortly revive Mr. H. V. Esmond's comedy, When We Were Twenty-one. A first-class company is being engaged, and it will include, besides Miss Cacey, Mr. Riddell Robinson and Miss Mildred Hodson. The tour will be under the experienced direction of Mr. Frank Nelson.

A new three-act comedy, entitled The Giftie, by Margery Stanley Clark, will be produced by the Edward Terry Dramatic Club on Thursday, April 18, at Ladbroke Hall. The performance will be in aid of the Chiswick branch of the League of Mercy.

The Brixton Theatre, which shows every sign of returning popularity, will have a powerful Easter attraction in Mr. Weedon Grossmith's laughable farcical comedy, The Night of the Party, in which Mr. Sebastian Smith will appear as Crosbie. The following week Conan Doyle's stirring work, Sherlock Holmes, will be presented. Mr. R. W. Allum is making every endeavour to bring back prosperity to the theatre, and is securing a list of well-tried successes that should help him materially.

Interesting engagements have been made for Messrs. Herbert Leonard and Walter Slaughter's new light romantic opera, to be produced at the Shaftesbury on Saturday, April 27. In the cast will be found Messrs. Courtice Pounds, Walter Passmore, Johnny Danvers, Powis Pinder, Arthur Playfair, Ivor Foster, Algernon Newarth, and Oscar Adye; Misses Kitty Gordon, Claudia Lasell, and Marie George.

Mr. Sidney Bacon entertained the inmates of the Gateshead Workhouse on the 20th inst. to a performance at his theatre of Messrs Levy and Cardwell's pantomime. The men were also made happy by presents of tobacco, and tea was given to the women.

"The Finding of the Sword," a new play, by the Countess of Cromartie, is to be produced at three matinées, on April 30, May 2 and 3, at the Playhouse, in aid of St. Vincent's Home for Destitute Children. The cast will include Mr. Matheson Lang and Miss Edyth Olive.

The cast for The Judgment of Pharaoh, to be produced at the Scala about April 22, is being rapidly formulated, a number of sterling artists having already been engaged. Miss Nora Lancaster, who has lately been playing in the provinces with such gratifying results, has been secured for one of the leading characters, while others have been allotted to Mr. James Fernandez, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Mr. Edmund Gurney, and Miss Cecil Cromwell.

The Hicks Theatre, where My Darling is captivating large audiences, is to be the scene of the production, about the end of April, of an American comedy entitled Brewster's Millions, adapted by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley from a story by George Barr McCutcheon, which was produced on the last day of the year at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. The interest of the play lies in the efforts of the chief character to secure a large fortune, bequeathed by his eccentric uncle, on condition that he gets rid, within a year, of every dollar formerly left him by his grandfather. Brewster, who is debarred from giving the money away or indulging in reckless gambling, tries all legitimate means of relieving himself of the cash, but every speculation only serves further to enrich him, until at the end, by a stroke of luck, he finds himself penniless. The chief part will be played by Mr. Gerald Du Maurier.

Mr. William Lockhart has been fortunate in the matter of long engagements. During his eighteen years of stage-life he counts twelve years of steady employment under only five managers, viz., Mr. Herman Vezin, Mr. Wm. Greet, Mr. Louis Calvert, and Mr. Gordon Starkey. Mr. Lockhart finishes his engagement with Sunday at Poplar on April 20.

Miss Louisa Peach, who achieved such popularity as leading lady at the Britannia during the late Mrs. Sara Lane's management, has joined Mr. Morton Powell's company to play her original part of the Countess Natalie in The Woman Who Gambles. The rôle is an exacting one, and Miss Peach's success this week at the West London has been well won.

"Les Cloches de Corneville" will constitute the Easter attraction at the Marlborough, matinées being given on Monday and Thursday. The company, which is that of Mr. E. St. Alban, numbers many well-known artists, including Mr. William Everard, who has achieved 500 performances as the Marquis; Mr. Fred Dark, to whose credit stands 100 renditions of the Bailie; Mr. Richard Martin, who has played Gobo on 1,500 occasions; Mr. Charles Ross as Grenicheaux; and Mr. E. St. Alban, who has represented Gaspard, the miser, over 800 times. Miss Marion Ayling will appear for the 200th time as Germaine; and Miss Madge Roberts will repeat her impersonation of Serpolette, a part which in her hands has also run into some hundreds.

"Tales of Hoffmann," the Offenbach play with which the German Comic Opera Company of Berlin reopens the Adelphi Theatre on Monday, April 15, will have the advantages of all the original costumes, properties, and artists from the Komische Oper, where the work was produced in the autumn of 1905. Herr Gregor will also bring over from Berlin a chorus of sixty voices, the entire orchestra of sixty performers, together with the stage-manager, machinist, and electrician.

Mr. Alfred Lester, the lost policeman of The New Aladdin, has added to his achievements by his assumption of the waiter in A Restaurant Episode at the Palace Theatre, and a chorus of praise on all sides has testified to the completeness of his triumph. Mr. Lester's air of melancholy and resignation is deliciously comic, and every line of the part is invested with unctuous effect by his droll method of delivery. People who laughed over the comedian's "scene-shifter" and roared at his "lost policeman" will grow still more hilarious over the weary waiter.

Artists touring in India can always rely on seeing a copy of The Era at Mr. Jack Gunn's rooms at the Frere Hotel, Bombay. When a company visits the town, Mr. Gunn sends the paper to the theatre for the convenience of the visitors.

At a dinner given in his honour at the Royal Yacht Hotel, Jersey, on the 21st instant, Mr. C. Robert Perkins, the retiring lessee of the Jersey Opera House, was the recipient of a handsomely illuminated address and a half-hunter watch, suitably engraved, subscribed for by his patrons, together with a rose-bowl, presented to him by his co-directors in the New Channel Islands Entertainment Company. Amongst the guests was Mr. Edward Marris, the new lessee, who reopens the Opera House to-night with his own company in The Dandy Doctor. Mr. Wybert Rousby, who was also to have been a guest, was unable to be present owing to ill-health.

At Bow-street Police-court, on Monday, Thomas Martin, a scene-shifter at Drury Lane Theatre, was charged with stealing clothing. A long series of thefts at this theatre, it was stated, had baffled detection. Twenty new costumes, each worth £10, were taken recently. On the 22nd inst. the door of one of the ballet-rooms, containing stage property worth £2,000 to £3,000, was forced open. The wardrobe mistress afterwards made the door secure, but on Saturday it was again broken in. The management obtained the services of a detective, who concealed himself in the ballet-room, and, after waiting half an hour, saw the prisoner enter and switch on the electric light. Then he appeared to hear footsteps, listened intently, and withdrew without touching anything. When leaving the theatre he was detained, and a parcel containing two articles of clothing belonging to the theatre was found upon him. The prisoner was remanded for inquiries.

At the conclusion of the Easter term of the Royal College of Music on Wednesday the following awards were made:—Council Exhibitions—Pianoforte, Dorothy I. Greenway, £10; singing, Jessie R. Patey, £10; Florence M. Atkin, £10; violin, Gladys Raymond, £10; Lorna G. S. Downing, £10. The Charlotte Holmes Exhibition (£15), Adina J. Newton (violin); the John Hopkinson Gold and Silver Medals for pianoforte playing went respectively to Ellen C. Edwards and Winifred Gardiner; the Council Prize, value £3 3s., for organ extemporising, to Harold W. Rhodes; the Challen Gold Medal for pianoforte playing to Ellen C. Edwards; the Scholefield Prize (£3) for string players to Charles Warwick-Evans; the Clementi Exhibition for pianoforte playing, value £28, to Adelaide E. Bonnar; the Henry Leslie (Herefordshire Philharmonic) Prize (£10) for singing to Maria Yelland; the Arthur Sullivan Prize (£5) for composition to Frank H. Tapp; the Dannreuther Prize (£9 9s.) for the best performance of a piano concerto with orchestra to James Friskin. The Royal Amateur Orchestral Society's Scholarship for singing was awarded to Beatrice L. Lewthwaite.

A large audience assembled at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, on Thursday evening, when Miss Bessie Butt, the popular Cinderella of the pantomime, took her benefit. There were numerous floral and other tributes, and the event was specially noticeable for the presentation of a handsome diamond half-hoop ring won by Miss Butt in a local beauty competition. The well-known "Owl" cake is this evening to be presented to Miss Butt, who has won for Mr. Lester Collingwood his first distinction in that direction.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Lines to the Lily.

That delightful author and essayist, Mr. Richard Le Gallienne, while waiting recently for the other guests at a farewell supper to Mrs. Langtry at the Hotel Belleclaire, New York, knocked off a poem to the Jersey Lily. It began:—

I do not bring you flowers,
Or singing birds,
To say farewell,
Nor even words;
Nor to the altar of your eyes
Do I bring sighs;
Such antiquated tribute
To the youth
Of the eternal Spring
I do not bring.

After enumerating a number of other things which he did not bring, Mr. Le Gallienne mentioned what were his tributes, amongst others his "little hoard of star-dust."

The Playhouse Booking.

Mr. Alfred Turner, Mr. Cyril Maude's manager, tells the Morning Leader that Mr. Maude's booking experiment means more work, more letters to answer, and a larger staff to maintain; but from the point of view of the public the conveniences considerably outweigh the added labour. Every seat at the Playhouse is booked until halfway through April. The management have not had one complaint from a playgoer, and have just ordered a complete set of new costumes for Toddles.

Mr. Tree as Mr. Morgan.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, says Tit-Bits, is a great practical joker. A certain member of his Twelfth Night company combined "starring" with keeping a picture shop in the West End. One afternoon, when the play was running, Mr. Tree was in the company of two ladies and a gentleman, and suggested that they should enter this particular establishment. A nervous shopman was in charge, and as the quartet walked round inspecting the paintings, Mr. Tree addressed his friend, who understood the joke, as Carnegie. Mr. Tree posed as Pierpont Morgan. The shopman became flustered, and was in the depth of despair when they left without making a purchase. The same night Mr. Tree met the actor-picture dealer at the theatre. "I heard you had a visit from Carnegie and Morgan this afternoon," said Mr. Tree casually. "Yes, and my fool of a shopman let them go without inducing them to purchase anything." "Hard luck," said Mr. Tree; "what kind of chaps are they?" "My man says that Carnegie's a gentleman, but Morgan is a beastly wretch!"

Shaw on Our Dramatists.

Mr. Bernard Shaw's opinions of English dramatists, when he was critic of the Saturday Review, were peculiar. Mr. Pinero, he said, is no interpreter of character, but simply an adroit describer of people as the ordinary man sees and judges them. . . . There is a sense in which Mr. Jones's plays are far more faulty than those of most of his competitors, exactly as a row of men is more faulty than a row of lamp-posts turned out by a first-rate firm. His qualities are creative imagination, curious observation, inventive humour, originality, sympathy, and sincerity; and the risks of trusting to these are, like the rewards, very great. Mr. Barrie . . . has no eye for human character, only a keen sense for human qualities.

Actresses and Matrimony.

The question "Should Actresses Marry?" has been answered in several ways in the Express. Miss Edna May thinks every woman should marry, actress or otherwise; Miss Marie Studholme hopes nobody will insist on actresses marrying dramatic critics; Miss Sybil Arundale opines that the luckiest thing an actress can do is to marry a man who can keep her, so that she can leave the stage; Miss Eva Moore replies, "Marriage is a purely domestic and private affair, and nothing whatever to do with the stage"; Mr. Cyril Maude considers that an actress would be most happy in her married life if her husband were an actor, because their hours would be similar, and they could be more together; and Mr. James Welch wishes the kindly-intentioned friends of the stage who meet to discuss more or less intimate matters concerning actors and actresses would leave them and their private lives alone.

A Theory of Acting.

Mr. Bernard Shaw's Saturday Review criticisms, which have just been published, in two volumes, by Messrs. Archibald Constable and Co., contain a vast amount of quotable matter. The following remarks on the art of acting occur in a "notice" of The Chili Widow.

"The actor's walk is addressed to the spectator's sense of grace, dignity, or strength of movement, and his voice to the listener's sense of expressive or beautiful tone. . . . Now, the power of complying with artistic conditions without being so preoccupied by them as to be incapable of thinking of anything else is hard to acquire, and can be perfected only by long practice. Talma estimated the apprenticeship at twenty years.

"The habit can never become as instinctive as keeping one's balance, for instance, because failure in that for even an instant means a fall, so that the practise in it is life-long and constant; whereas the artistic habit lapses more or less in the absence of an audience, and even on the stage can be forgotten for long periods without any worse consequences than a loss of charm, which nothing may bring to the actor's attention. The real safeguard against such lapses is a sense of beauty—the artistic sense—cultivated to such a degree of sensitiveness that a coarse or prosaic tone, or an awkward gesture, jars instantly on the artist as a note out of tune jars on the musician.

"The defect of the old-fashioned system of training for the stage was that they attempted to prescribe the conclusions of this constantly evolving artistic sense instead of cultivating it, and leaving the artist to its guidance. Thus they taught you an old-fashioned stage-walk, an old-fashioned stage-voice, an old-fashioned stage way of kneeling, of sitting down, of shaking hands, of picking up a handkerchief, and so on, each of them supposed to be the final and perfect way of doing it. The end of that was, of course, to discredit training altogether. But neglect of training very quickly discredits itself; and it will now, perhaps, be admitted that the awakening and culture of the artistic conscience is a real service which a teacher can render to an actor."

A Word for Rayner.

Mr. Laurence Irving is strongly in favour of there being some degree in the infliction of punishment for murder. "Rayner," says Mr. Irving in the Daily Express, "under stress of hunger and its attendant miseries, having pawned everything, down to his woollen muffler, and then being refused assistance, shoots William Whiteley. Then he shoots himself. And can anyone question that in those moments when he lay moaning on the floor, asking only to be allowed to die, and in the succeeding days and weeks, when that sad, wrecked, loathsome thing, his life, was being given back to him—can anyone question that in that interval he suffered all, and far more than all, the pangs of hanging?"

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

"LES HANNETONS."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by Brieux, Translated by H. M. Clark, and Produced at the Imperial Theatre on Monday, March 25.

Brochot .....MR. EDMUND GWENN
Pierre .....MR. CHARLES V. FRANCE
Charlotte .....MISS MABEL HACKNEY
Isabelle .....MISS DORA BARTON
Langlois .....MR. H. ASHETON TONGE
A Gentleman .....MR. NIGEL PLAYFAIR
Phrasie .....MISS FLORENCE ADALE
Lady from the Fourth Floor..MISS L. DUNCAN
The Waterman .....MR. KENNETH RIVINGTON

M. Brieux is an all-round satirist. In Blanchette he attacked popular education; in Ménages d'Artistes, art; in L'Evasion, science; in L'Egrénage, universal suffrage; and in Les Bienfaiteurs, he "went for" charitable effort. Les Hannetons is devoted to the exposure of the folly of endeavouring to "shirk" the troubles of marriage by the practice of concubinage. When a middle-aged man has lived with a mistress for a year or two, she becomes, as the Gentleman says in Les Hannetons, "a habit." To go without her would be like going without his pipe; in fact, it would be worse. "If he have caught the Benedick," says Beatrice in Much Ado About Nothing, "it will cost him a thousand pound ere he be cur'd." Pierre, the professor of natural history in Les Hannetons, has "caught the Charlotte," and he is incurable. He thinks he has arranged his life so as to be free from all annoyance. His future is assured by a pension; and, in order to avoid the worry of a wife and family, he has "set up housekeeping" with a young work-girl. They have not a taste in common. Pierre's hobby is botany; Charlotte worships a pet poodle. Her only amusement is quarreling with her protector and making it up again with amorous effusions. Pierre meets by accident an old schoolfellow, Brochot, now become a veterinary surgeon. He also is a ardent botanist, and they seem likely to become warm friends. Charlotte immediately objects to Brochot; and, when Pierre insists upon going to keep an appointment with the "vet.," she locks the door of the flat, and throws the key out of the window. In its descent, the key hits the hat of a passer-by, who happens to be a Gentleman who occupies a lower floor of the house, in company with a "little friend" of the opposite sex. The Gentleman comes up to remonstrate, and demand an apology; not that he wants one, but he has to satisfy his "little friend's" demands. The two men realise that they are fellow-sufferers; and, in pity and sympathy, Pierre allows the Gentleman to bully him aloud for the benefit of the little friend who is listening below. Charlotte, who not only lives on the whirlwind, but revels in it, and enjoys the storm as well as directing it, keeps the game alive by pretending to leave Pierre. He, utterly worn out by her temper, determines to let her go, and get rid of her. But his passion is revived by the information, which comes from the Gentleman from the fourth floor, that Charlotte has been false to him with Brochot. The two men have a scene, in which Brochot confesses that Charlotte has "gone wrong" with him, but assures Pierre that she still loves her protector passionately. Pierre hesitates between the physical attraction which Charlotte still has for him and the prospect of liberty and peace. But Charlotte does not intend to let him escape. She gets up a sham suicide from the Pont Neuf, taking care to jump into the Seine when rescue is at hand in the shape of a waterman in a boat. She returns to Pierre's lodgings to change her clothes; and a whole battery of argument and reproach is directed on Pierre, who has to pay the waterman a hundred francs for "saving the lady's life." Brochot, the Gentleman from the Fourth Floor, Isabelle, a young and mischievous kept woman and a friend of Charlotte's, the concierge and his wife, and the Gentleman's little friend—a lady palpably rouged, with dishevelled hair and slovenly attire—all join in urging Pierre to resume his bondage. When his Circe returns from her bedroom, nicely dressed, and employs her usual methods of persuasion—throwing herself on his breast, weeping, and kissing and hugging him—Pierre is completely conquered, and the curtain descends on his abject surrender and submission. To-morrow it will all begin again, and so on till one or other of the combatants expires. Death only can release the Professor from his slavery.

For those who like this sort of piece, Les Hannetons is just the sort of thing they would like. The members of the Stage Society who were present at the Imperial Theatre on Monday stood the extremely outspoken dialogue and the unmistakeable physical frankness of the play without turning a hair. Not a blush was seen, not a murmur heard, when Pierre and Charlotte discussed whether he was the first to possess her person; and when, after kissing him on a particular spot on the back of the neck, she proceeded to still more intimate demonstrations of passion, the details were taken quite as a matter of course, though some may have felt as if they owed an apology to the characters on the stage for "assisting" at such an essentially private conference. Let us hope that the production of Les Hannetons will "do good," and that any members of the Stage Society who may be thinking of forming connections outside the bonds of wedlock may change their minds after seeing the piece.

The comedy was acted with a completeness of finish without which the performance of such an essentially realistic work would have been vain and offensive. Mr. Charles V. France as Pierre was admirably well made up, and played the part throughout with an ease which was never lax, and a composure which never degenerated into indifference. A more thoroughly satisfying and illusive interpretation of the rôle could not have been desired. Mr. Edmund Gwenn put plenty of bright and alert energy into his impersonation of Brochot, and dealt discriminately with what may be called a "serio-comic" character—for we suppose Brochot's expressions of feeling in the last act must be taken as genuine? Miss Mabel Hackney realised very skilfully the character of Charlotte; and the vigour of her violence and the acerbity of her "nagging" were irreproachably effective. Miss Dora Barton depicted the impertinent shallowness of Isabelle simply and naturally; and Mr. Asheton Tonge supplied a neat bit of character-acting as the Concierge. Mr. Nigel Playfair, with a big beard and a gold pince-nez, was irreproachable as the Gentleman; and Miss Florence Adale made a useful contribution to the cast as Phrasie, Miss Lola Duncan, looking the Lady of the Fourth Floor well; and Mr. Kenneth Rivington being commendable as the Waterman. The play had evidently been well rehearsed, Miss Janet Achurch being responsible for its production.

DEATH OF VAL VOUSDEN.

To the men of my generation the death of Val Vousden will come to some degree as a surprise, and to a larger degree as a pang. He had disappeared from public view so long that many of us thought he had died years ago; and now that we know that he survived so many years, and that those years were so darkened by the vicissitudes of fortune, there comes back the surging recollection of all he was to us in the days of his prime. For Val Vousden was an artist that you loved instinctively as a man, altogether apart from his great gifts. He was a showman of the old school in every sense, the good and the bad. He was entirely self-made and self-trained. His music, his songs, his whole entertainment were all created by himself, and were all learnt in the hard school of professional experience. He did not step from the drawing-room or the college, or even the dramatic school, into an engagement, but was almost born on the stage; and beginning as a child in that fascinating but perilous world, he knew all its ups and downs, and was one of the few who survived from that almost prehistoric time when the travelling actor went from town to town, amid many frowning faces and many shut doors.

He was, as I have said, almost born on the stage; he was certainly born just over the way from the stage. Old Dubliners remember the once-famous Hawkins-street Theatre. The father of Val Vousden lived opposite this theatre, and among the father's customers were naturally many of the stock company which then belonged to that theatre. Matthews, the chief scene painter, one of these customers, took a fancy to the bright little lad, and thus it was that at eight years of age Val Vousden appeared as one of the fisher boys in Masaniello, and so started his stage career. He had a pretty voice, a fine figure, great grace, and thus was able to play many parts with success, to sing well, dance well, impersonate different characters with great rapidity of change. He was one of the first of the quick-change artists.

While still a youth he got engagements in England, pricipally as a dancer. Then he went to Burslem, in Staffordshire, and found some success there as a teacher of dancing, and there also found his wife, Miss Hawthorne, who was the reigning belle of the town. It was during the Exhibition of 1851 that he first conceived the idea which was to lead him to large fame, and for many years to large fortune. Struck by the differences in manner, appearance, and habit of the different nationalities that then crowded the streets of London from all parts of the world, he conceived the plan of an entertainment in which these different nationalities would be represented in turn.

After his marriage he had returned to his native country, was harlequin in the old Queen's Theatre in Brunswick-street, and was in receipt of what was then considered a big salary. But he longed to appear for himself, and thus it was that he started the entertainment known as "The Unity of the Nations." I saw it when I was a child, and often and often afterwards, and perhaps my memory of it is clothed with the light of imaginative and enthusiastic youth; but, even allowing for these things, I can think of it still with enthusiasm as a very beautiful, finished, and artistic performance. No man ever appealed to the pubilc more boldly on his own artistic merits. He had nothing on the scene but a simple curtain and a piano; but with his charming voice, figure, and versatile facial expression, with the skill and practised art he put into everything, he was able to hold the attention of his audience for two whole hours. And it is a high tribute to the excellence of the performance that he was able to perform this achievement almost every night for year after year, for decade after decade—I had almost said for two whole generations of men and women.

As I remember the performance, Val Vousden's voice was not strong, but he managed it with such skill, he had so thoroughly mastered his art, and was in such complete command of his resources, knowing both their range and their limitations, that you thought the singing perfect. And his songs, written always by himself, were full of kindly feeling and toleration, and appealed to one's charity and indulgence for erring, weak, and unsuccessful humanity very eloquently and very persuasively. There is one song in particular, the echoes of which still ring in my ears more than forty years after I first heard it. It was called, "Let each man learn to know himself," and though the words have escaped me, I remember the sentiment as an appeal to broad and generous charity to all men.

I have said that he was a showman of the old school in the bad sense as well as the good; that is to say, he had the power to make several fortunes but not to keep one. It was partly because he was without thrift, but it was largely because he was so full of heart. I remember one of my fellow reporters on my first paper went to Val Vousden once to ask him for a small subscription for some brother who had fallen on evil days. "Will five pounds be enough?" was Vousden's immediate reply; as a matter of fact, half a sovereign was more like the sum he was expected to give, and was all that he should have given. It was thus that after earning as much as £3,000 in a year, and doing so for many years, poor Val Vousden found himself penniless in his old age. And that led to a painful episode in his career. I borrow from the Irish Packet a small extract from an article written by "J. B. H.," a well-known Dublin dramatic critic, in which this episode is told touchingly. The article bears the title, "From Stage to the Workhouse: Valentine Vousden To-day." It says:—

To-day the guardian of the poor or the visitor to the weekly meetings of the North Dublin Union may occasionally, as he passes to the boardroom, see on the righthand side, close to the male inmates' quarters, a figure apart from, and yet one of, that motley and melancholy gathering of the poor. With all the weight of his more than eighty years, he stands still upright and firm, save for the occasionally depressed head and melancholy gait. His fine, clean-cut features and still bright eyes mark him out as one you cannot pass unnoticed, and a wealth of long white hair forms a kind of silver glory around the really sweet and amiable face. It is Valentine Vousden! And you will hear him humming a little air in almost childish simplicity as he passes quietly up and down the courtyard.

This article, published as far back as 1903, had the good effect of producing a change in the condition of the once popular and prosperous favourite. He was taken out of the workhouse, and put in a home in Bexhill, and there he died this week, happy, or at least resigned, after all these vicissitudes, and with his weight of eighty-five years, spanning an epoch in which there were as many transformations in his beloved profession as in his own chequered career. And with him dies one of the last, if not the last, of the old race of monologue entertainers.

MISS CAMILLE CLIFFORD remarked on leaving the International Hall of the Café Monico on Monday night, when the workers on the different papers owned by Edward Lloyd, Ltd., brought a successful "smoker" to a conclusion: "If you journalists always spend your time in this manner, I should like to write for the press." It was truly a night with the stars. Mr. Neil Turner, general-manager of the Daily Chronicle and Lloyd's News, was chairman, and Mr. J. A. Collings stage-managed.

GENEE AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

A matinée, under the auspices of the Duchess of Somerset, and distinguished by much aristocratic patronage, was given by the kind permission of Mr. Cyril Maude at the Playhouse, in aid of the funds of the Alexandra Hospital for Children with Hip Disease and the Southwark Invalid Kitchen. The chief novelty of the bill, which was largely musical in its attractions, was the production of The Dryad, a dance-play, in two tableaux, by Miss Dora Bright (Mrs. Knatchbull). The story sets forth the love disappointment of a wood nymph. A certain Dryad, who queens it beneath the slumbering moon, has subdued all mortals to her loveliness and the magic of her dancing, thus rousing the envy of the implacable Aphrodite, who caused her to be imprisoned in an oak tree, only granting her freedom to come forth once in every ten years, between sunset and sunrise, until she should find a mortal faithful to her during the allotted term. A shepherd passing through the wood on the night of her freedom, sees her dancing beneath the moon, and is lured to love her, and vows eternal constancy. When the dawn breaks she bids him farewell, gives him flowers, and re-enters the tree, which closes round her. After ten years have passed away, the Dryad comes forth again, seeking to allay the longing she has kindled; but her lover has not been constant, and the wood is empty. She dances through the night, and, glancing at her beauty in a translucent pool, deludes herself with the hope of human constancy. When the dawn breaks the shepherd is seen wandering through the grove with another. He has forgotten a passing fantasy, and the wood nymph's charms have faded from his memory. The authoress is responsible for a dainty musical setting, which is scored for pianoforte and orchestra. The piece has been most artistically treated, the blending of horns, wood wind and muted strings being very pleasant to the musical ear. The Dryad, apart from its story, is quite a pastoral symphony in its way, reminding one now and then of Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream music.

A great feature of the performance was the appearance of the incomparable Genée as the Dryad. She told the story of the wood nymph's love with the sweetest eloquence of movement and gesture. Her joyous dance when the Dryad is assured in the first tableau of the Shepherd's love was in strong contrast to the restrained and saddened movements in the second, and the storm of applause at the conclusion caused the curtain to be lifted several times, Mr. Gordon Cleather, who sang the Shepherd's song so sweetly, sharing in the honours, as well as the authoress. We should hear of The Dryad again. Why not at the Empire?

In the early portion of the programme, after the overture had been played by the New Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Beecham, Miss Rosina Filippi's Eastern episode, Abdullah's Garden, was given. It will be remembered that it was originally performed recently at Terry's Theatre by Miss Stella Patrick Campbell and other pupils of the authoress. Miss Campbell repeated her interesting representation of Lala, and the song sung in Abdullah's garden (composed by Mr. Hubert Bath) was well rendered by Miss Laura Urquhart. Mr. David Bispham then sang "Drink to me only" and "Quand 'ero paggio," from Verdi's Falstaff, after which the curtain rose on the Dressing-room Scene from The Clandestine Marriage. Mr. Cyril Maude again amused us by his perfect representation of the tetchy and ancient Lord Ogleby, the impersonation being as finished as it was droll. Mr. Eric Lewis's services were fortunately available in the part of Canton, the Swiss valet, a most interesting realisation; Mr. King Fordham was well placed as Brush; and Miss Alexandra Carlisle was altogether demure, dainty, and coquettish as the Chambermaid.

The Follies were announced in a selection from their répertoire, but it was explained from the stage that Mr. Pelissier was suffering from laryngitis, and that therefore the famous pierrots could not appear. Mr. Lewis Sydney, however, kindly stepped into the breach, and with anecdotes and a piano sketch kept the fashionable crowd highly amused.

THE SAD CASE OF GRACE BALMAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have received letters from several correspondents in reference to the sad position in which the widow of my late friend, Dick Mansell, has been left. It comes, I might say, as a shocking discovery to poor Mansell's many friends that he died practically destitute. He was a man of very great pride and self-respect, and he would rather starve to death than make appeals for assistance to friends, and even to a relative, who loved and was always ready to help him. And thus it was that he died in poor lodgings, and without any of the little comforts, almost without the bare necessaries of the living, much less of the dying. He had, amid the black disaster in which his once prosperous career ended, one great consolation, and that was the unstinted devotion and attention of the loyal and faithful woman who was his wife, known professionally as Miss Grace Balmain. To the last hour she respected his wishes in keeping silence as to his position and hers, preferring to starve with him than disobey him; was ready to sacrifice herself for him, even to deny herself food, rather than that he should want; and I have heard a touching story of his last hours illustrative of this noble devotion, which is too sacred and too poignant to publish, even to the eyes of friends. In such a case, the members and the lovers of the dramatic profession have one which especially appeals to their generosity. I therefore ask you to open your columns to an appeal in Miss Balmain's behalf. Some gentlemen have already been kind enough to become members of a committee to look after the appeal, and others doubtless will join later on, when the case becomes known. Meantime, the following gentlemen have consented to act: Sir William Bull, M.P., Mr. George R. Sims, Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Mr. Austin Melford, and myself. Mr. G. M. Polini, of the Managers' Club, has kindly consented to act as secretary, and Mr. Pedgrift, of The Era, as treasurer of the fund.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

T. P. O'CONNOR.

THE Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company again repeated on Monday evening at the Pavilion Theatre J. Lateiner's play, Satan in Paradise, in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Natansohn scored a striking success by their artistic impersonations of Yossele and Henele. During the week The Rich Beggar, The Polish Boy, Max and Devil, The Exile, and Holy Sabbath have been performed.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice last week of the performance at the Burnley Empire, your correspondent says: "The Merrinos give a merry turn." The name should be, yours truly, THE MERRIONS (Will, Harry, and Fred).

"THE GIPSY GIRL."

A New Musical Play, in Two Acts; Book and Music by Claude Arundale, Lyrics by Follett Thorpe, Additional Numbers by Claude Arundale and Tom Hefferman, produced for the first time in London at the Waldorf Theatre, on Friday, March 22.

Florette .....MLLE. ANDRÉE CORDAY
A Waitress .....MISS KITTY MACKAY
Katrina .....MISS SYBIL ARUNDALE

The gipsy maid, whether in a novel or a play, is invariably surrounded by an atmosphere of romance and mystery. And so Mr. Claude Arundale, the author and composer of the new musical play at the Waldorf Theatre, has but followed the ordinary course in giving a romantic colouring to the simple story of his wandering heroine. Katrina travels the country as a member of the company of a showman, known as Horatio Victorious. The caravan pulls up at "The Jolly Ploughman," on the road to Huntington, and here Jack Willoughby first meets the pretty gipsy maid, and quickly falls in love with her, much to the disgust of his father, the strait-laced Prof. Willoughby, and his equally proper mother. Then, of course, he has a rival in Pedro, a young gipsy, whose passionate pleading has not in the least softened Katrina's heart towards him. His suit being rejected by her, he plans and duly carries out a scheme to gratify his revenge. He steals a bangle from the inn, and gives it to Katrina as a present he has purchased for her. The loss having been discovered the gipsies are accused of the theft, and when the bangle is discovered on the girl's wrist, the case against her seems clear enough. Jack declares his love, and the right to defend Katrina, the chorus of accusing villagers bringing the first act to a conclusion.

The scene of the second act is Huntingdon Fair, giving a realistic representation of the various shows. The police have a warrant for Katrina's arrest for theft, and she disguises herself as a boy, Marion, Jack's sister, taking her place as a dancer in the show run by Victorious. Wearing a mask, Marion has an interview with her sweetheart, Freddie, who makes certain disparaging remarks concerning her, which he has reason to regret when he discovers who the lady really is. The police are baffled, and eventually Katrina's innocence is proved, and, moreover, the discovery is made that she is the daughter of the Squire, Colonel Charlton, having been stolen in her infancy by gipsies, and brought up by them in ignorance of her real parentage.

The book does not count for much in a modern musical play; considerably more importance is attached to the music, and Mr. Claude Arundale has supplied melodies, which, if not distinguished by originality, possess the merit of being, for the most part, spirited and pleasing, this description specially applying to the concerted numbers. For the lyrics, Messrs. Follett Thorpe, Claude Arundale, and Tom Hefferman are responsible, and they have done their work well.

If The Gipsy Girl, which was first seen at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on May 15, 1905, takes rank amongst the successful productions of the season, it will be principally due to Miss Sybil Arundale for her performance of the leading rôle, Katrina. As actress, vocalist, and dancer, Miss Arundale worked untiringly, and with the most gratifying success. Her first songs, "Sing on, little gipsy maid" and "The Ideal Lover," proved the excellence of her voice and her cultured style. Later she took part in a pretty duet with Mr. Gordon Cleather, the representative of Jack Willoughby, and made a decided hit by her rendering of the ditty, "If only I'd been born a boy." Miss Arundale in her disguise made a capital boy; she also presented a charming appearance in the conventional white skirts of a ballet dancer; and in the first act she evoked quite a storm of applause with a Polish dance. Mr. Gordon Cleather was a fine, handsome Jack Willoughby, and made excellent use of his baritone voice, more particularly in his rendering of the tuneful ballad, "Love is a golden crown." Mr. Fred Eastman gave a good character-sketch of the showman, and in the second act appeared in several well-known stage characters, including Romeo and Julius Cæsar. His ditties, "It makes you open your eyes" and "The troubles of a showman," were capitally rendered. Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald did all that was possible with the part of the dude, Freddie, who yearns for poetic honours, and has an odd cackling laugh. He scored with his song, "Steady, Freddie." Mr. Percy Clifton was well placed as Prof. Willoughby, and Mr. John M. Hay was eminently satisfactory as the host of the country inn, with the song, "The home-brewed ale." Mr. Laurence Wensley deserves a word of praise for his embodiment of the vindictive gipsy, Pedro; and Mr. Leonard Russell was good as Colonel Charlton. Miss Grace Arundale was a bright and pleasing Marion Willoughby; and her song, "On the shelf," with a spirited chorus, was very favourably received. Mlle. Andrée Corday was a very animated Florette, a French barmaid, and her songs, "The gay Grisette" and "C'est le premier pas qui conte" (with chorus), were greeted with much applause. Able assistance was given by Mr. George Stone as an old-fashioned farmer; Mr. Joseph Bruce, as an inspector; and Mr. Vincent Earne, as a rural policeman. Miss Annie Esmond was a fine-looking Mrs. Willoughby; and Miss Kitty Davis as the innkeeper's daughter and Miss Kitty Mackay as a waitress were acceptable representatives of those parts. There was a capital chorus, and Mr. Arthur Wood had the direction of an admirable orchestra. The play was produced by Mr. Harry Bishop, and its reception on the first night was of an enthusiastic character.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The orchestral concert at the Royal College on Friday evening, March 22, began with Beethoven's Overture and Incidental Music to Goethe's "Egmont," the solos being sung by Miss Gladys Honey. An excellent performance of the Overture was given by the young students under the bâton of Sir Charles V. Stanford. The orchestra also greatly distinguished themselves in the entr'acte after Act IV., and in the music accompanying Clara's death; while the playing of the wind instruments in the orchestra deserves special praise. Miss Honey gave Clara's song, "Die Trommel gerühret" with spirit, and was much applauded in her second air, "Freudvoll und leidvoll." The English extracts were taken from Bell's Modern Translations by kind permission of Messrs. Bell and Sons. In memory of Sir August Manns, the "Marcia Funebre sulla morte d'un eroe" (which Beethoven arranged for orchestra from his piano sonata, Op. 26), was played, the band producing a full, impressive tone. The orchestra also ably supported Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans in his violoncello solo of E. von Dohnanyi's "Concertstück," and were heard in Mozart's Symphony in G minor (1788). Miss Maria Yelland, the only vocalist at this concert, displayed a fine voice to great advantage in Handel's recitative and air, "Ombra mai fu," being recalled several times to the platform.

"PEER GYNT" IN NEW YORK.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Richard Mansfield's embodiment of Ibsen's fantastic rover, Peer Gynt, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, is a notable achievement, and considered merely as a feat of mechanics, the placing of Ibsen's striking dramatic poem on the stage is an undertaking to excite wonder and admiration. Mr. Mansfield's acting version abridges the original text by curtailing the scenes in the desert, omitting the incidents in the Cairo madhouse altogether, and shortening the rest of the dialogue wherever it has been possible. What remains consumes more than four hours in the acting. Five acts are required, and eleven elaborate, spectacular scenes. Of speaking characters there are forty-five, besides two score dancers, and as many more mute figures. For the most part the rôles are small, but some of the smallest are of much significance. Peer Gynt, of course, is the dominating figure, and he is on the stage almost continuously. We see him at first in his youth, a lazy, uncouth, shiftless product of wild Norwegian huntsman life. He is a creature of utter selfishness, a victim of weak surrender to the impulse of the moment. As he repeats throughout the play, "he is himself." He will ever "go round about," never "through." Thus he goes forth into his world, conquering all obstacles by avoiding them, compromising ever with difficulties, living for the attainment of material pleasure. At the outset of the play he concocts a romantic story of how he has been spirited away on the back of a wounded reindeer, the lie being designed to explain to Ase, his mother, his long absence from home. He carelessly tosses off her reproaches, flings her on the roof of the mill-house, and, learning that a wedding is in progress at Hegstad Farm, slouches down the mountain to mingle with the guests. Shortly afterwards he is found lying on his back behind a wall, reading strange shapes into the drifting clouds, and listening to the scornful bantering of his name by the merry-makers. At last he joins the throng and meets Solveig, the woman who for ever is destined to remain his ideal of purity, loveliness, gentleness, and trustfulness. They fall in love, but again yielding to his weakness, Peer gets drunk, brawls, and ends by kidnapping the bride and running off up the mountain with her on his back. Now it is morning in the mountains. Recollections of the pure Solveig have quickly tempered Peer's passion for Ingrid, the bride, so he "realises himself" by abandoning her, and, worn out by his excesses, sinks into slumber. Before his distorted imagination rise the Dovre King's daughter and fairies of Norse folk-lore, who lead him to the weird court of the King of the Trolls. The imps receive the boy into their realm, and he straightway announces his intention to be one of them, and wed their Princess. But when they prepare to slit his eyelids, so that he can never again see the actual world, he cries out, and they vanish, leaving him in darkness. Out of the gloom sounds the voice of the Great Boyg, Spirit of Compromise, bidding him again to "go around," and he awakes to find Solveig watching over him. She disappears, and again he is left alone. The scene changes to a hut in the mountain, which Peer has built in order to live the life of a hermit. But the faithful Solveig once more seeks him out. This dream of happiness is scarcely begun when the Green Clad One, a hideous she-demon, symbol of sensual pleasure, and her Ugly Brat, a hairy, misshapen offspring, typical of Consequences, begotten in Peer's evil thoughts, rise before him. Conscience stricken, he again departs on his round-about way, bidding Solveig to wait. Now comes Peer's return to his mother's cottage in search of comfort, and her death scene with the reckless son soothing her last hours. In the fourth act thirty years have elapsed, and Peer, in his pursuit of material pleasure, has prospered. He pictures himself the coming Emperor of the World, but suddenly finds himself penniless and forsaken, marooned on the coast of Morocco by his false friends, who run away with his yacht. Then he wanders into the desert, encounters the sensuous Arab maiden, Anitra, and her dancing attendants, and sets himself up as a prophet. In the final act, preceded by a vision of Solveig, now grown old, waiting in the cottage, Peer reappears in a shipwreck off the coast of Norway. His disillusionment has set in, for now he is beginning to ruminate upon the emptiness of material joys. Yet he will still "go around," even when he meets in the fury of the storm the Silent Passenger, a symbol of death's messenger. Peer, the egoist, is again weak enough to allow others to drown as he saves himself from the wreck. A festival is in progress when, unrecognised in his rags and wrinkles, he at last approaches his old home. The Dovre King, in the form of an old man, again confronts him, and points out that, in spite of himself, he has lived his life according to the motto of the trolls—"to thyself be enough." At the first cross-roads he meets the Button Moulder, Death, who dooms him to the melting-pot, there to be reminted. Peer begs off for a time from the Button Moulder, and finds the loyal Solveig awaiting him at the cottage, faithful to her promise, and still steadfast in her understanding of his true, ideal self. "Then tell me what thou knowest," he asks. "Where was I as myself, as the whole man, as the true man? Where was I with God's stamp upon my brow?" "In my heart, in my hope, and in my love," she answers. The eyes of the selfish visionary are opened at last. He discerns the true Peer Gynt in the ideal built by the woman's faith. The Kaiserdom of the World, which he sought afar, has existed all along in the cottage on the mountain, and in a woman's loving ideal. As the final curtain falls, Peer sinks to rest on the bench beside the cottage, with Solveig watching over him, her lullaby mingling with the voice of the Button Moulder heard in the distance, who warns him of the final meeting, when he will go into the melting-pot, the dross of his nature to be separated from the pure metal.

MR. LESTER COLLINGWOOD, of the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, entertained the principal members of his record Cinderella pantomime company at the Woolpack Hotel on Sunday. After a sumptuous repast, many toasts were proposed and acknowledged, Mr. Collingwood alluding to the great success won by Miss Bessie Butt as Cinders and the Brothers Obo as the Ugly Sisters. Mr. and Mrs. Bushell, of the Gaiety, and Mr. Bert Wilson, of the M.H.A.R.A., were among the specially invited guests.

THE status of the super has been defined by Judge Lynn of New York, who on Wednesday dismissed the actions of Sylvestre and Giovanni Milano, who had been engaged at the Metropolitan Opera House as the populace, army, vassals, &c., and had shaved off their moustaches in anticipation of a prolonged engagement, but were discharged. In the address to the jury the Judge said:—"These men are not artists, are not men of any talent, are not singers or painters. Supers are simply men who go on the stage to make a group. It requires no particular talent that I know of to be a super other than probably that they must have size and width. They claim because they have had their moustaches removed that therefore the contract must be for seventeen weeks. Some men are better looking without moustache. I do not know that the taking off the moustache is conclusive proof of a contract for seventeen weeks."

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE ERA"

SHILLING FUND

FOR THE

MUSIC HALL HOME.

Mr. Barrasford and Miss Vesta Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES

THE CANTERBURY.

"A primrose by the river's brim, A yellow primrose was to him, And it was nothing more," wrote the greatest of the Lake poets; but to the poetic souls of Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott Lord Beaconsfield's favourite bloom suggests verse and song, and at the Canterbury "Primrose," of Primrose Farm—a charming play-title, by the way—has been winning the hearts of the Lambeth folk. She is courted and serenaded by that sweet-voiced and cultured singer, who for the nonce is the romantic Lubin of the storyette set forth by librettist and composer. From behind the creeper-clad wall of the farmhouse, Primrose shyly hides herself; but the melody of the "neighbouring swain" moves her to show herself, and love will out. Miss Lea then doffs her fanciful dress as the lad, and puts on a pretty frock to sing "Banish sorrow," the brilliant waltz song from the opera of Princess Toto, which she gives with a brio and abandon that bring down the house. She further displays her versatility in Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's number "I'm going back to the Fatherland," wearing the roomy knicker-bockers adopted by the juveniles of the sterner sex dwelling in the Netherlands. She is supported by Miss Millie Moore as a Dutch girl. Her great triumph comes with "Queen of old Samara," written and composed by Mr. J. F. Lambe, and sung with immense success by Miss Lea in pantomime. The song has a pretty, captivating melody, and Mr. George Adney Payne made a special arrangement on Wednesday whereby Miss Lea was supported by an excellent chorus, and the number went with a bang. Miss Lea looked very dapper and neat in a principal boy's dress, and showed herself to be a capable actress.

The dramatic novelty of the bill is The Unbidden Guest, a short powerful play by G. W. Appleton, which takes us to the land of diamonds—South Africa. Bess, the loyal and devoted wife of Dick, is in despair at the ill-luck of the latter, who will lose a "claim" for the sake of a few hundred dollars. His luck is dead out, and despair reigns in the little shanty. The arrival of a stranger diverts the thoughts of the united couple from their trouble, and the newcomer is invited to shelter himself, and also asked to have a cup of tea. He had been drinking heavily, and asks for whisky. While Dick goes to fetch the remaining bottle from an inner room, "the unbidden guest," with mad stupidity, endeavours to kiss Bess. Dick, who returns at this moment, in his rage avenges the insult to his wife by striking the stranger to the ground with the bottle. The prostrate body does not move, and the horrified pair think that they are looking on a corpse. Dick has no sooner dropped it in the river than Bess discovers in the stranger's coat pocket 1,000 dollars. They both agree not to touch the dead man's gold, and have just made up their minds to leave their dwelling, when there by the window stands, "ghost-like," the form of the man supposed to be killed. He is glad to discover they are honest folk, and he also recognises in Dick an old schoolfellow, who will now, we need hardly say, have a "lift" that will bring him within measurable distance of prosperity. Miss Alice Yorke acted with a strength and intensity that held the house in thrall, and the humanity of the whole thing forcibly appealed both to gods and stalls. We should hear a good deal more of The Unbidden Guest.

Miss May Mars, who appears early in the bill, makes a big success as the "Queen of the Nile," in the song "In the Shade of the Pyramids." Miss Mars looks superb, and sings admirably. Other attractions in the Canterbury bill include Miss Teresa de Sylva; the Carlyles, whirlwind dancers; Mr. J. P. Ling, comedian; the Ten Dixie Girls, in The Silver Coon; Mr. David Poole, ventriloquist; Diamond and Beatrice, in musical speciality act; the Piccad American Pantomime Company, with The Burglars of New York; Miss Abbie Mitchell, creole singer; Mr. Harry Champion, comedian; and Miss Lottie Lennox, the popular singing comedienne.

THE BEDFORD.

As usual, Mr. B. P. Lucas has an excellent company at this comfortable house in Camden Town, and he is nightly able to see very large audiences enjoying the excellent fare provided. Sketches invariably meet with much approval here, and great receptions nightly have been given to That Brute Simmons, which, it will be remembered, was originally produced at the New Theatre in St. Martin's-lane. It is not often one encounters a play from a West End house, and the innovation has much to commend it. The clever little piece, which was written by Messrs. Arthur Morrison and H. C. Sargent, is being produced under the guidance of Mr. F. W. Purcell, who has certainly shown enterprise in placing it before a music hall public. Audiences are extremely amused over the troubles of Simmons, who has married a supposed widow, with nagging ways that are hardly conducive to happiness. Her first husband, who was thought to have been drowned, appears after five years' absence, and there is the amusing scene between the two men as to which shall go away, but which ends, after a very fiery interview with Mrs. Simmons, in both decamping and leaving the good woman to her own devices. The little comedy is capitally acted. Mr. Tom Mowbray is excellent as the henpecked Simmons; Mrs. Simmons is played quite in the right spirit by Miss Ethel Stalman, while Mr. George Elliston as the lost husband, Bob Ford, puts into the character plenty of clever comedy. That Brute Simmons is presented with a finish and smartness most creditable to all concerned.

That old comic favourite, Mr. Charles Austin, is as quaint as ever, and his coughing song brings forth much laughter, while he also creates mirth as a widow who sings of her husband, "Mr. Perkins." Miss Madge Osmond, a clever young lady, is making her name as a male impersonator, and does so with some catchy songs. Miss Eva Hope and company appear in duologues from the works of Charles Dickens. On the night of our visit she gave Jo, the crossing-sweeper, the Marchioness, and Nancy. As the companion of the brutal Bill Sikes she is seen at her best, and plays the part with tremendous force, while Mr. Jack Wayho gives a vigorous portrayal of Bill. The selections are well received, and Miss Eva Hope meets with a hearty reception. A lively turn is provided by the Californian Girls, four clever young people endowed with some bright and catchy songs. They wind up their turn with some neat dancing, and their "cartwheels" secure for them great applause. Prentice and Brite, an amusing couple, contribute a clever comedy act, and Mad Jasper is the title of a dramatic episode presented by Messrs. Charles D. Wright and company.

A clever turn is that of Mr. Montague Biggs, who designates himself as a speciality artist, but he really is a female impersonator. When he first steps on the stage in black evening dress the audience almost believe that they have got the wrong number displayed, so complete is his disguise. Mr. Biggs' first song, "The trickiest girl in Mayfair," is very catchy, while he finishes off with a good impersonation of the one and only Marie Lloyd in her "Coster Wedding" ditty. Mr. C. Randolph King displays his talents as a quick-change artist, and his various changes into yokel, sailor, Chinaman, and other characters are done in the shortest time imaginable. He finishes with a very clever sketch of a miser, which shows him to possess considerable dramatic skill. The Gamanos present an acceptable musical turn; and Miss Sadie Stanley is a chic comedienne. There are also some fine pictures of the race for the Grand National shown on the Imperial Bioscope. Mr. A. F. Lovesey is ever on the alert to attend to the comfort of the Bedford patrons.

EALING HIPPODROME.

The reappearance of the "stars"—after the great eclipse—has been particularly welcome at Ealing. This week Mr. E. W. James provides a full budget of attractions. Little Agnes Tina, "the wonderful child mimic," aged 10, is certainly a phenomenon. Pleasing features in her presentation are her perfect enunciation, a fresh young voice, and a captivating personality. In addition to her first number, the ballad "Lovey-dovey," Miss Tina gives a song in French, à la Fougère, and a German rendering of "In sheltered vale," and concludes her unique performance with impersonations of some favourite artists, including Miss Vesta Tilley, Mr. H. Lauder, with "Stop your tickling, Jock," Mr. Fred Wright in his Geisha song, and Miss Marie Lloyd. It is hardly necessary to add that this clever little maid has half a dozen recalls. Bosanquet, the popular virtuoso, is happily associated with the sweetest melody-making, while his Bosanquephone or vox humana, almost speaks. Excerpts on the violin from the schools of Kubelik, Sarasate, and Paganini are equally successful.

Mr. Alec Kendall is a laughter-provider of the first order, and the most frigid of audiences would be compelled to storms of merriment by his quaint and witty patter; the artist's song, "Geography," fairly catches on, and the ear of the house is charmed and tickled with his funny tales and patter. The Glen Roy troupe of characteristic dancers and speciality performers give a fine display of national dancing, England, Scotland, and Ireland being each represented by the clever troupe. The gem of their performance is the "Three Highlanders," coupled with a triangular duel with claymores; an ensemble song, "Boys of Britannia," is spiritedly rendered, and the Glenroys conclude their acceptable performance with an Irish jig in which the five members of the troupe join.

Lambert and Glover have an amusing episode in their comedy duo, The Birthday. A gentleman is about to celebrate his natal-day when his chambers are invaded by an unknown lady of dashing—not to say, commanding—appearance. Without ceremony she proceeds to "lay down the law," the while she smokes, drinks, and plays all sorts of pranks; but, in the end, under the influence of hypnotism she becomes more docile, and promises amendment in the future. As a medium for merriment the scena gains its end, and is well received. Nothing more genuinely comic than the "humorous darkie" of Mr. Will English can be imagined. This delightful "darkie" possesses a tuneful morsel in his song, "Daisy," while his manipulation of hat, stick, and match is a comedy in itself. Mr. Fred Clements contrives to be very funny in his two catchy numbers, "Studying the face" and "Presence of mind." Mr. Clements' popularity is never in doubt, and he scores a distinct success. Miss Maudie Ford has a tuneful refrain in her song, "Barbados"; she is, besides, a dainty and winsome sand-dancer. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope displays fine series of films incidental to hippopotamus hunting on the great Nile lakes, and the finish of the Grand National is also illustrated. The overture, a selection from Carmen, is admirably rendered by Mr. Kennedy Russell's capable band, which has thoroughly settled itself to its duties. Mr. L. Westcott Hicks, the acting-manager here, continues to direct his department with skill and courtesy.

THE FORESTERS'.

Lew Lake and company are here once more with their farcical absurdity, The Bloomsbury Burglars, and Mr. Lake is treating East-Enders to his comical and lively representation of Nobbler, the burglar. The little piece seems to create as much merriment as it has done on former occasions when presented before practically the same audience. Mr. Bob Morris as the impudent window-cleaner, Mr. Ernest Webb as the imperturbable flunkey, and Miss Kitty Wilmore as a "fickle jade," ably assist Mr. Lew Lake in the production. Milstead and Bell are seen and heard to advantage in a musical comedy act, the singing of "My Arizona maid" being particularly pleasing. Mr. Tom Moore shows his talents as a vocal comedian by his delivery of a song on the subject of "Temptation"; and Mr. Richardson Taylor creates a feeling akin to wonderment at his ventriloquial feats, his whistling and mimicry being specially commendable.

Miss Josephine Colona and her company, under the management of Mr. Arthur St John, appear in the detective drama The Master Hand. In this there is plenty to thrill even the blase sensation hunter. There is, for instance, a great murder syndicate, the heads of which conspire to bring about the death of anyone to whose existence they happen to take an objection. They are not men who will be content with half measures in carrying out their fell designs. However, there is opposed to them a master mind—rather, he is called a "master hand"—in the person of Detective Nelson Keane, a gentleman of daringly original ideas, and sufficiently bold and reckless to accomplish them. Against this subtlety of intellect and physical bravery are matched the collective mental capabilities and stop-at-nothing dare-devilry of the Great Murder Syndicate, and, of course, it looks like a case of Greek meeting Greek. But the detective has a certain advantage. His sweetheart is in the company of the conspirators. She is supposed to be the daughter of the chief of the gang. What happens hereafter need not be told—it can be guessed. The playlet is extremely well acted, Miss Colona charming everybody and gaining universal sympathy for her representation of the heroine; and Mr. Arthur St. John acquitting himself creditably in the rôle of the detective. There are suitable exponents for the other rôles.

A turn which must commend itself to all lovers of high-class and refined vocalism is that of Blanche and Powell, whose interpretation, to organ accompaniment, of "Il Bacio" and "The Lost Chord," created a most favourable impression in the minds of the hearers. Mr. Will Lear proves exceedingly entertaining with his "Fireman" song; and the Treshams make for merriment with their comedy act, Roads Up. A descriptive comedian of considerable merit comes along in Mr. Phil Rabey, whose ditties, "Whatever was I to do?" and "Auld Lang Syne" are features of the programme. A laughable story is that entitled "The Haunted Hotel," told in vivid pictorial fashion by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

APOLOGY.

To the Reverend FRANK HEATH, and Messrs. GREET and ENGELBACH.

I admit that I have without any authority or justification, performed your copyright play, entitled "The Sign of the Cross," at Alexandria.
I very much regret having infringed your rights, and apologise to you for having done so.
I hereby undertake not to perform, or cause to be performed the said play, or any substantial parts thereof, nor to use in connection with any plays announced or represented by me, the title, "The Sign of the Cross," or any other title, in such a way as to be calculated to deceive persons into believing that the play so announced or represented is the play, "The Sign of the Cross," written by the late Wilson Barrett.
I further agree that you shall be at liberty to publish this apology and undertaking, or the substance or effect thereof, in "The Era," and a leading Scottish newspaper.
I also agree to pay four and a half guineas for damages, the cost of summons, and the cost of advertising this apology and undertaking.
Dated this 14th day of March, 1907.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 30, 1907.

THE NEW AND OLD LYCEUMS.

The opening of the Lyceum Theatre this evening with a return to theatrical entertainments revives a host of IRVINGITE memories; but quite as interesting, in its way, is the early history of the house from its original establishment. The Lyceum is one of the London theatres—the list is being steadily diminished by successive demolitions—which possess "histories"; and the name is connected with the curious conflict between the old patent theatres and the so-called "summer" establishments—a conflict which led to the eventual victory of the latter. The matter has been most ably and extensively dealt with by Mr. WATSON NICHOLSON in his book, "The Struggle for a Free Stage in London," which has recently been published by Messrs. ARCHIBALD CONSTABLE and Co., and should find a purchaser in everyone interested in the drama. The ground on which the present Lyceum Theatre stands was once occupied by Exeter House, the town residence of CECIL, Earl of EXETER, son of the great Lord BURLEIGH. The first building which bore the name of the Lyceum was erected in 1765, from the designs of an architect named JAMES PAYNE—who had obtained a lease of the property—for the exhibitions of the Society of Artists. In 1768 the Royal Academy was established at Somerset House; and the Lyceum was tenanted successively by a conjurer named FLOCKTON; CHARLES DIBDIN, with an entertainment; PHILIP ASTLEY, with equestrianism; a "phantasmagoria"; and other shows. As early as 1794, Dr. ARNOLD, the composer, turned a portion of the structure into a theatre, but was prevented from obtaining a licence by the opposition of the managements of the patent houses. Eventually, by his influence as organist to GEORGE III., ARNOLD succeeded in getting a licence for the summer months only. In 1809, after the burning down of Drury Lane Theatre, the company appeared at the Lyceum; and at the expiration of his season ARNOLD announced that he would open for the summer with a new comic opera and a grand ballet. For seven seasons the Lyceum, or English Opera House, as it was called, progressed prosperously, and ARNOLD announced the opening of a season in 1816, which was to continue throughout the year. The proprietors of Covent Garden and Drury Lane lost no time in petitioning the PRINCE REGENT against such an invasion of their rights, and the proposed season ha dto be abandoned. Performers engaged at Drury Lane who had filled up the time while the great patent house was closed by appearing in the Opera House, were threatened with forfeiture if they went to the Lyceum. This prohibition was the origin of the actor-manager system, the minor concerns adopting the policy of making their best actors managers and proprietors, so that the patent houses could not buy them off.

The contest came to a climax. The "winter theatres," which in GARRICK'S time only opened for 160 nights in the year, were now open all the year round, with the exception of six or seven weeks in August and September. In 1822, after the accession of George IV., the winter and summer theatres came to an arrangement. The summer theatres were allowed a four months season without interference from the winter houses. In 1830 the old Lyceum was burnt down, and in 1832 an eight months' season was granted to the new house.

In 1834 the present building was opened to the public. By 1835 it was generally reported that ARNOLD had lost four thousand pounds since he began business in his new establishment, and the management became a commonwealth. In 1838 a drama was produced, called The Queen's Command, in which "Mr. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, the author of the piece," made his first appearance in London as the representative of the great dramatist whose name he bore. The play was withdrawn after eight nights, and a succession of experimental lessees followed. But there was "no luck about the house" till 1860, when FALCONER became the manager, and made a tremendous hit with his drama Peep o' Day. FECHTER'S season was also successful, at the beginning; and then came more brief essays, ending in Mr. BATEMAN taking the house in 1871. In the November of that year The Bells was produced, with results that are firm in the memories of all playgoers.

The Lyceum has, indeed, as CARLYLE said of the National Convention, "heard the chimes at midnight." FREDERIC LEMÂITRE has trodden its boards in Robert Macaire; and the management has offered "to all ladies and gentlemen, on paying for their seats at first prices to the boxes, private boxes, balcony, and pit, an excellent iced cream or water ice gratis." BALFE has produced an opera within its walls; and in a farewell speech has said: "I am exceedingly sorry, ladies and gentlemen, that I was ever such a fool as to became manager of an English theatre, and I solemnly promise you that I will never again appear in such a capacity." The Lyceum has been taken by the great unacted for the performance of their works, and has been occupied by MUSARD with promenade concerts. It has re-echoed with laughter evoked by the KEELEYS and with applause evoked by PLANCHE'S graceful extravaganzas. RISTORI and CHARLES DILLON have both been seen on the Lyceum stage; and Mr. BANDMANN as Narcisse, and a Japanese troupe imported by Professor RISLEY, have enjoyed its hospitality. Miss NEILSON has been admired there in Life for Life; and the Brothers MANSELL have tried their luck with Chilperic. Mrs. STIRLING has won plaudits in a drama about Lady Mary Wortley Montague; and CARTER, the "Lion King," has given his performances with the King of Beasts. Few playhouses have had such varied experiences; few are connected with such glorious achievements. The Lyceum is exactly the theatre at which the experiment of melodrama at moderate prices may be tried without being interfered with by tradition; and we wish the experiment every possible success.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Maintaining that high standard of excellence which characterises this hall, the management present to their patrons this week a programme of exceptional variety and interest. The premier place is held by Miss Vesta Tilley, the magnetic influence of whose name is quite sufficient to ensure crowded audiences throughout the week. Miss Tilley, on the evening of our visit, gave three songs, the first, "I'm a jolly young bachelor," enabling her to portray with genuine effect the young man-about-town. Her second, "Here's jolly good luck to the girl who loves a soldier," secured her appearance in the smart uniform of a private. The last item, "King Baby," which was given as an encore, permitted her to make a bid for popular approval in a somewhat new line of business with complete success. All three songs served to display once again Miss Tilley's inimitable gifts, and not the least noteworthy feature of her act was the irreproachable manner in which she was attired. Mr. King Kingston, the Australian tenor, displays a good voice in "Doreen" and "Somebody," the effect of the turn being enhanced by some beautiful pictures. His reception is cordial.

Mr. Frank Leslie, who opens the programme, does well with "I've been dreaming." A particularly smart act is that presented by the Macarte Sisters. Their playing and dancing, together with their tight-wire act, are alike excellent, while the novel serpentine dance in mid-air brings a clever show to a brilliant conclusion, a well-earned call being the deserved result. Messrs. Frank Bertram and company appear in a comedy sketch, The Chaperon. The plot, similar in nature to that of the ever-famous Charley's Aunt, turns on the non-arrival of a mother at her son's chambers to play propriety during the visit of her prospective son-in-law, with the result that the son, in desperation, has to get his man to get into her clothes and assume the rôle. Of course, the scope for fun fast and furious is unlimited, and of their many opportunities Mr. Bertram and the lady and gentleman who support him take full advantage. Constant laughter rewarded their efforts, Mr. Bertram as the supposed mother being really amusing. A coon artist of great ability is Mr. Thomas E. Finglass, his song of a plaintive nature being cleverly rendered, and the dance very smart.

Miss Rosa Loader, a musical mimic at the piano, makes a good impression. In the guise of a servant describing the vocal efforts of the guests at a party given by her mistress the night before, she utilises the opportunity to satirise familiar types of amateur musicians. A good call rewards her efforts. On the night of our visit Mr. Dion Wade was indisposed, and Mr. T. W. Rowley appeared as a substitute. In his first song, "The bally wedding," he did well, but in his second, "It's no business of mine," in which he appeared as a dame, he made an unmistakable hit, very loud applause being accorded him at the end of his amusing act. The bottom of the bill this week is occupied by Alexandre and Hughes, two very capable entertainers. In their cross-talk they provoked considerable amusement, while the musical side of their turn is of a high order. Their success was complete. The American Bioscope retains its reputation for up-to-date subjects, the films shown embracing both the Grand National and one of the football matches in the Semi-final for the Cup last Saturday, both of which appeal strongly to the sporting instincts of the audience. Unqualified praise must be accorded Mr. Walter Johnston and his excellent orchestra, the selection from My Lady Molly being admirably rendered as an overture, and their assistance throughout the evening being very valuable. Mr. John Christie and Mr. D. E. Charles courteously attend to the front of the house.

"BAMBOO FLOWER" is the name of the four-year-old daughter of Chung Ling Soo, the famous Chinese wonder worker, and, despite her tender years, she is already an accomplished conjurer and illusionist, but the regulations of the L.C.C. preclude at present her performance being seen by any but a favoured few.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS COMMITTEE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had elected Mr. H. J. Greenwood to be their chairman and Mr. Jocelyn Brandon to be their vice-chairman for the ensuing year. They had also elected Mr. Greenwood as their representative on the General Purposes Committee.

THE PALACE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a drawing, submitted by Mr. J. Emblin-Walker, showing certain works in connection with the stalls seating proposed to be executed at the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Shaftesbury-avenue, with a view to complying with Nos. 44 and 45 of the suggestions made by the Council for the structural improvement of the premises; and they recommended that Mr. Emblin-Walker be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by him, provided the angles at the bases of the pillars at the back of the stalls be rounded off to the satisfaction of the Council.

Agreed to.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The Committee having considered a drawing submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing the proposed method of improving the sighting of the gallery at the Putney Hippodrome, recommended that Messrs. Matcham and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by them.

Approved.

WYNDHAM'S THEATRE.

The Committee reported that they had considered a drawing, submitted by Mr. E. Lytton, showing the proposed method of installing automatic drums for working the flies at Wyndham's Theatre, Charing Cross-road. They recommended that Mr. Lytton be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by him, provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with—that all details in connection with the electrical and other arrangements be carried out in a satisfactory manner and in accordance with the regulations of the Council; that the moving parts be efficiently guarded; that a system of emergency switches be installed at various points by means of which the whole apparatus can be immediately brought to rest; and that, should the Council at any time hereafter consider it necessary, a man be stationed in the fly while the apparatus is at work, so that prompt aid may be available in case of accident.

The recommendation was approved.

OLYMPIA.

The Committee also approved, provided that certain conditions be complied with, of drawings submitted by Mr. E. D. Robbins, showing the arrangements in connection with the Office Furniture Exhibition proposed to be held at Olympia from July 11 to 13, 1907, and a drawing submitted by Mr. F. H. Payne of the lift proposed to be erected at the premises in connection with the forthcoming International Building Trades Exhibition.

At the close of the meeting the Council adjourned for the Easter recess.

THE EUSTON.

There was little chance of standing-room at the palatial theatre of varieties in the land of the great railway termini last week, for from the northern heights came solid cohorts of admirers of the one and only Marie Lloyd, to welcome that popular little woman in a way that has something of special British heartiness about it. Like the beautiful Queen whose blandishments enslaved the triumvir Marcus Antonius, custom does not stale Miss Lloyd's infinite variety. She revived last week her great success, "In country—in town," for the chorus of which the celebrated Parisian melody, "La Mattchiche," provides a most alluring setting. She then describes the customs (mostly matrimonial) of various countries, referring incidentally to such distant parts of the globe as Samoa, Persia, and Hottentot land. Was it not Robert Louis Stevenson who inveighed against the American lady missionary obsessed with anxiety to fetter the Samoan maidens with corsets and skirts? The author of "Treasure Island" roundly asserted that they looked the perfection of grace with the simple blanket thrown over their shoulders. Miss Lloyd winds up her triumphant turn by singing of the ways of Sunny Spain—"The land of King Alfonso, where men and maids go on so"—and has some difficulty in getting away to her other engagements.

Miss May Henderson always finds a very large number of admirers at the Euston, who applaud the dusky comedy queen in a manner that emphasises that youthful lady's popularity. As a nigger gal with eccentric proclivities and with primitive notions as to frocks—her skirt being made of sacking, à la Topsy—May lets herself go in a dance which is particularly smart. She is also blessed with a tuneful coon ditty with a striking chorus. Mr. T. E. Finglass also dons the livery of the Ethiop to sing a pretty lilt concerning "The black sheep of the family," who apparently has learnt how to dance very gracefully. There is much more than ordinary cleverness in this turn. We have had many parodies of "In the shade of the old apple tree"—the fruit always lends itself to comedy—and Mr. Ernie Mayne sings in unctuous style many humorous lines that elicit demands for an encore. Miss Gladys Huxley has a successful number in "Au revoir, my little hyacinth," which, it will be remembered, was one of the successes of The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych Theatre, when it was sung by Miss Ellaline Terriss. Miss Huxley does the song complete justice, and is heartily received.

A graceful athletic show is presented by the Athlones, whose muscles are finely developed on the Sandow principle; and Miss Abbie Mitchell, the Creole plantation singer, is an interesting turn. Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene are playing here in their powerful dramatic episode, At the Stroke of Twelve, in which the lady introduces her famous sleep-walking scene, as played by her in all the principal theatres of Australia and the East. The actress is both intense and powerful. As a concluding item we have Mr. John F. Preston's company in Saved from the Harem, a music-hall version of Max Goldberg's piece, Secrets of the Harem, a scene of which formed the groundwork of the dramatic entertainment given during the strike at the Scala Theatre. The Union Jack, a sailor bold, and tars, ever ready to succour a captive maiden imprisoned in the harem of an unamiable caliph, provide all the necessary excitement, and the varieties introduced into the harem scene add to the interest evoked by the production.

MR. ARTHUR HENDERSON has forwarded one guinea as his subscription for 1907 to the Showmen's Guild. Will many more showmen please forward their subscriptions, recollecting that the more they financially support the Guild, the more it can do for the interests of the showmen in preserving their fairs and liberties? The hon. treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, will be pleased to acknowledge all subscriptions forwarded.

THE Midland Railway's new Sunday service will be invaluable to companies whose way lies between the North of England and South Wales and the West of England. The new service begins on Sunday next, and a reference to the advertisement in another column will show the facilities afforded.

"HALF-A-DOLLAR."

A Farcical Sketch, in Two Scenes, by W. A. Haines and Alan Borthwick, produced at the Granville, Walham Green, on Thursday, March 28.

Harry Hilton ..... MR. ALAN BORTHWICK
Kate ..... MISS MARY MACKENZIE
Nelly ..... MISS GLADYS ERSKINE
Harry Hutchins ..... MR. W. A. HAINES

The question of mistaken identity, "doubles," and remarkable resemblances have been responsible in many instances in actual life for awkward and absurd situations, and that experiences of the kind should be used, perhaps in exaggerated form, for stage purposes seems but natural. We had a very successful example of it in the play Tom, Dick, and Harry, and we could quote many more. In the amusing sketch Half-a-Dollar, which the authors, Messrs. Haines and Borthwick, produced on Thursday night at the Granville, the principle of the likeness between two persons and the predicaments that arise therefrom has received somewhat original treatment. A young lady going to a fancy dress ball alights outside the establishment where that function is being held. Her cabman demands a sum of money which she thinks is in excess of what is due to him. That sum is half-a-crown, or what would be called by the average Jehu "'arf-a-dollar." The lady indignantly walks away, dropping her ticket for the ball, which the cabby promptly picks up, and for which his natural astuteness is not long in finding a use. He follows his fare, and for the moment we see no more of him. Next we see a young gentleman, who is also going to the dance. He is dressed as a cabman, and there is a great similarity in height, figure, and general outward appearance with the genuine driver who has preceded him with the object of securing his fare. It is not necessary to detail what happens in the dancing hall. Suffice it to say that the "fancy dress" cabman is mistaken for the genuine article, and the same amusing contretemps occurs in the case of two young ladies who are also gowned alike and look alike.

The little company work extremely well. Mr. Alan Borthwick as Harry Hilton, the sham cabman, shows that he can assume the manners of a gentleman at one moment and of a cockney Jehu the next. Mr. W. A. Haines is to be commended upon his portrayal of the real cabman, his dialect being capitally sustained and his intoxication being well simulated. Miss Mary Mackenzie and Miss Gladys Erskine are seen and heard to advantage in their rôles of the two young ladies.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Notwithstanding the fact that the present week is limited to five working days in the amusement world, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, with all that liberality which has invariably marked his management here, presents a programme which, without exaggeration, may be described as brilliant. The result, as might be expected, is business of an exceptionally satisfactory description, while cheers and laughter vie with each other for the ascendency from beginning to end. A tuneful beginning is made by the orchestra, under the artistic direction of Mr. H. Petersen, the overture being very finely rendered. Mr. Ernie Mayne, "the Simple One," whose personal appearance is sufficient in itself to ensure him a warm reception, is heard to the greatest advantage in a couple of really clever parodies—"The Zuyder Zee" and "The Old Apple Tree"—and is loudly acclaimed for both. Bright, pretty, and well costumed, Miss Ella Retford immediately ingratiates herself with the house, and is vociferously cheered, especially for her rendering of a good song about "Fatherland," and for the subsequent neat dance she executes in sabots.

An artist who made herself immensely popular here on her first appearance a few months ago is Miss May Henderson, the coon comedienne, who, on the present occasion, enhances, if possible, her reputation as one of the liveliest and most original performers. The haunting song in which she encourages the gallery boys to join in her wild "whoop!" fairly takes the fancy of the audience, who assist her with gusto. Miss Henderson is simply brimming over with infectious gaiety, and her high spirits soon communicate themselves to her hearers. Another dainty little lady who never fails to bring Walthamstow to her feet is My Fancy, whose wonderful step and sand dancing seems to increase in merit every time she appears, working with unflagging energy every moment she is on the stage. The admirers of My Fancy would fain have more did time permit. An instantaneous success is made by that mysterious gentleman, "Mr. C.," who appears to be possessed of two distinct voices at the extreme opposite ends of the register. Mr. C.'s singing, for example, of "Killarney," in which he produces at one moment notes of a very high soprano and immediately afterwards is revelling in the deepest bass, is simply astonishing. The gentleman's very funny patter also keeps his hearers in constant amusement.

Another welcome "first appearance here" is made by Mr. T. E. Dunville, who, on Monday night, came, was seen, and conquered without a moment's hesitation. The extraordinary elasticity of the "lone comedian's" facial muscles keep the audience in a perpetual roar of laughter, while the singing of "That's extra" is followed by an equally amusing rendering of a ditty about swimming, both being inimitable. Mr. Dunville may be congratulated on having jumped at a bound into a prime place for favouritism with Mr. Barclay's patrons, who will look eagerly for his name in future bills. As usual, Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope shows a series of clever and interesting pictures.

Two sketches, widely dissimilar, but equally good of their kind, make up the remainder of this complete and liberal programme, the first being the dramatic episode, At the Stroke of Twelve, produced by Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene and company. This is a cleverly-constructed little piece, telling of a mysterious murder committed "at the stroke of twelve," for which a man, who declares himself innocent, stands condemned to death. A lady, however, haunted by a guilty conscience, takes to sleep-walking, after the manner of Lady Macbeth, and, to the horror of her husband and a detective, re-enacts the murder scene over again in her sleep, and proves herself the culprit. Mrs. Royston-Dene as Isabel Trevelyan, plays the difficult rôle with a tragic intensity seldom to be seen on the variety stage, and holds the audience spell-bound by the force of her acting. Loud and prolonged cheers reward the talented actress for her rendering of a part that must be a great tax on her strength. Mr. Royston-Dene is dignified and firm as the husband, speaking with good emphasis throughout. Mr. A. Field-Fisher is quiet and forceful as the detective, Martin Grainger; and Miss Sheelah Desmond as Grace looks charming and plays agreeably. The other playlet is the well-known sketch, The Night Alarm, which has been seen on these boards before, but is none the less welcome. Mr. Ernest Ball as the intrepid fireman plays with abundant dash and vigour, and is applauded to the echo. The chief actor is supported by an efficient company, while the mounting of the piece is very realistic.

MR. JOHN MITCHESON writes:—"Permit me to thank you for the paragraph you inserted in The Era on my behalf during my misfortune in failing health and loss of eyesight, the result of which has brought me voluminous letters of condolence from all parts of the United Kingdom. The kindly-worded letters of sympathy from my brother agents has afforded me great gratification."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Ada Reeve, who has been taking a long rest at her charming house at Chideock, near the sleepy old seaside town of Bridport, has completely recovered her health and spirits, and will again delight her legion of admirers—this time at the Empire, where she will appear on Monday in new songs and new dresses. A warm welcome awaits this incomparable comedienne.

The event of the week was the marriage on Thursday of Miss Marie Courtenay, Miss Marie Lloyd's (Mrs. Alec Hurley) only daughter, to Mr. Harry Aylin, the popular jockey. The ceremony took place at the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, Avenue-road, N.W., at 1.30. At Granville Lodge, the charming residence owned by them in King Henry's-road, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Hurley were at-home to a number of friends of both the contracting parties. The bride is in her eighteenth year.

Mr. Gus Elen has now decided to accept the terms offered him by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger through Mr. George Foster, and in September will sail for New York. His salary will total that of several Cabinet Ministers.

The case for the music hall artists in connection with the arbitration was opened by Mr. G. R. Askwith on Thursday, the 21st, by Mr. W. H. Clemart, who dwelt principally upon the barring clause, though he dealt with the artists' case in general prior to his closing statement. The proceedings were continued on Friday, and then adjourned until Tuesday, when Messrs. Joe O'Gorman and Wal Pink were heard on various points connected with the case for the artists. At the conclusion of the sitting on Wednesday an adjournment was made over Easter. Among the witnesses called were Messrs. Albert Gilmer, Walter de Frece, Jesse Sparrow, Sam Poluski, Ella Retford, Walter Munroe, Geo. Gray, Harry Blake, and C. C. Bartram.

The company of artists who sailed to Las Palmas on board the Sekondi as guests of Sir Alfred Jones opened on Monday, March 18, at the Teatro Perez Galdos as the "Compañia Inglesa de Variedades," and scored a tremendous success. Motoring "went" as well as it did at the Oxford, and Mr. Harry Tate also scored in his Golfing, and in the song, "Holding hands." Mr. Malcolm Scott gave "Smiles" and "Touchee Foot"; Mr. Edgar Romaine opened the bill with his song, "Soldiers"; and Miss Claire Romaine, who took the place of Miss Fanny Fields, submitted with her customary vivacity "Don't mind me." Mr. M. R. Morand obliged with the romanza, "Sally."

The programme was printed in English and Italian. Mr. Walter McEwen was the manager, and Miss Theresa Foote accompanied. All the English visitors loyally supported the company, and the house was packed. Every consideration was shown to the artistic crowd by the Spaniards, who took a very great interest in the venture. The wanderers return to England to-morrow, after a delightful holiday, many of them being due to open on Easter Monday.

The Russian petty officers and men were driven to the Hippodrome on Tuesday, where a cordial welcome awaited them, the whole audience rising and cheering in the heartiest fashion. Mr. Fred Trussell, during the entertainment, welcomed them in the name of the directors in a very pithy speech.

In the evening the boys of the Russian fleet went to the Alhambra, where Mr. George Scott had prepared one or two special items for their delectation. Programmes were printed in Russian for their benefit, and a special troupe of Russian dancers regaled them with snatches of their native songs. In a private box were the Russian Ambassador, Lord Tweedmouth, Sir Edward Grey, and Admiral Fisher.

The Mysterious Howards, now at the Palace Theatre with their silent mental telepathy act, appeared on Sunday at a little party given by Mr. Alfred de Rothschild. Among the many articles given for description in strict silence was a curious watch, enclosed in a 20 dollar piece, belonging to Mr. Pierpont Morgan. This was described minutely, and the millionaire could only ejaculate "Wonderful." The Japanese Ambassador was also present, and personally tested the pair with some curious coins of his country. At the conclusion of the entertainment, Mr. Rothschild asked whether a Bank of England note's number could be transmitted, at the same time producing one. It contained eight figures, and was given out without the slightest hesitation.

It will be remembered that a part of the Howards' entertainment is to offer a new pack of cards, and allow the audience to open it and select a card which will be written down on a blackboard on the stage. A lady in the little gathering on Sunday night was rather sceptical, and offered a card from a neighbouring table. It presented no difficulty, and was at once transmitted. Mr. Rothschild, in company with his guests, expressed their wonderment at the remarkable feats that had been displayed.

Sir Edward Ward, Permanent Under-Secretary of State for War, has written to the Howards, on behalf of Mr. Haldane, thanking them most warmly for the wonderful and interesting entertainment that was given on the occasion of the British War Office dinner held recently.

In the Easter bills for the Canterbury and Paragon we find the name of Miss Nellie Beacon, a charming young actress with a powerful voice. This lady is making strong headway under the direction of Alfred Saker and Co., in whose hands she has placed her entire business.

The Magic Circle, an association of professional conjurers, which was instituted rather more than twelve months ago, held its second annual grand séance at St. George's Hall on Tuesday evening. During the evening an interesting little ceremony took place. Mr. Leipsic, the American conjurer, was formally presented by the president, Mr. Nevil Maskelyne, with the society's "Jewel of the Inner Circle," a medal which he was enjoined to wear at all entertainments in which he is professionally engaged. The performances were received with marked favour by a large audience.

Dr. F. Osmond Carr, who is composing the music for the next ballet at the Empire, has the distinction of being a musical graduate of both Oxford and Cambridge. A native of Bradford, where he was born in 1858, he will be remembered as the composer of Joan of Arc (1891), In Town (1892), Blue-Eyed Susan (1892), Morocco Bound (1893), His Excellency (1894), and Biarritz (1896). Dr. Carr's first work was the comic opera Faddimir, which dates from 1887, and the libretto of which was written by Mr. "Adrian Ross," then a Cambridge tutor. The theme of the new ballet relates to Sir Roger de Coverley's visit to Vauxhall Gardens.

The programme at the Islington Empire this week consists of a series of Animated Pictures, lasting throughout the whole performance.

The Florodora Girls are appearing this week at the Middlesex with great success in their novel comedy scena, Two's Company, Three's None. By their introduction of a boy from the gallery they cause screams of laughter.

Mr. Ernest Dottridge, of Oldham, writes:—"In your last week's issue, in the 'Variety Gossip,' you have a paragraph stating that Mr. Farrell, of Farrell and Wilmott, would open the Empire Theatre on Monday next. Please allow me to contradict this statement. They are simply a turn engaged with a variety combination who are at the said theatre this present week. The Empire Theatre is, and always has been, owned by the Oldham Empire Theatre of Varieties Co., Ltd., and is under my management."

Mr. Frank Wilson, the acting-manager of the Paisley Hippodrome, severed his connection with that establishment on Saturday. He has faithfully discharged his duties as Mr. E. H. Bostock's representative in Paisley since the opening of the house, and he leaves with the general regret of many patrons and friends.

Certain changes are to take place in the staff of Moss' Empires from April 18. Mr. Alan W. Young, at present district manager for Liverpool, Manchester, and district, goes to the head office at Cranbourn Mansions to superintend the various departments there, excepting those dealing with accountancy and finance. Mr. W. S. Gordon Michie, the chief accountant of the company, superintends these departments. Both are Scotchmen from Aberdeen.

Mr. Young is well known to the profession, and was acting-manager of the Sheffield Empire for five years. He was acting-manager for the new Olympia, Liverpool, for eight months, and has been district-manager for Liverpool and Manchester districts for the past eighteen months. During the latter portion of these eighteen months Mr. Young has acted as chairman of district-managers at their meetings. This position he will still retain. Prior to coming into this profession, Mr. Young served his apprenticeship with Mr. Moss's solicitors, becoming assistant to Mr. Thomson, the secretary of the company, so that, directly and indirectly, he has been connected with the company over twelve years.

Mr. Albert Bulmer, acting-manager at Olympia, succeeds Mr. Young as district-manager. Mr. Bulmer, previous to his appointment to Olympia, was for seven years manager at the Tower, New Brighton, and prior to this was connected with the Carl Rosa Co.

Mr. Ernest Wighton, the assistant at Olympia, succeeds Mr. Bulmer as acting-manager. Mr. Wighton is a brother of Mr. David Devant, of Maskelyne and Cook, and has been a number of years with Mr. Keller in America as manager. Mr. Wm. Agnew, another Scotchman, succeeds Mr. Wighton as assistant at Olympia.

The New Royal Hippodrome, Belfast, opens on Easter Monday next under the direction of Mr. Will Sley (Manchester) and the management of Mr. Harry Downs, formerly of New Alhambra, Belfast. Mr. Edgar Haines has been appointed musical director, Mr. George Dobler advertising inspector, and Mr. J. Quick, stage-manager. The new building is the largest and most sumptuously-furnished theatre of its kind in Ireland, and it will be conducted on temperance principles. It is situated in Great Victoria-street, at the corner of Grosvenor-street, by the side of the Palace, and is capable of holding about three thousand people. Miss Lydia Yeamans, the famous mimic, will have the honour of heading the opening bill at the new theatre.

The Blackpool Hippodrome was to be reopened on Thursday, the 28th, under the management of Mr. T. P. Dingnan, a gentleman well-known and highly respected at the Brighton of the North. Matinées will be given to-day and on Easter Monday.

Mr. J. H. Whittaker, chef d'orchestre, Empire Palace, Birmingham, completed eight years of admirable service at that establishment on Wednesday, the 20th, amid the congratulations of numerous friends, who, for his many admirable qualities, voiced the hope that his services may be long retained under the same regime.

The death has taken place at Bexhill-on-Sea of Mr. Valentine Vousden, aged 85 years. He was in his early days a very popular entertainer. One of his most successful sketches was The Unity of Nations. The idea of this was suggested by the vast crowds from all parts of the world who visited the London Exhibition in 1851, where he was then performing. He wrote all his own songs, the best-known of these being "Let each man learn to know himself." Ill-fortune overtook him in his old age, and about four or five years ago he became an inmate of the North Dublin Workhouse. His friends removed him, however, to a home at Bexhill, where he spent his last years in comfort.

Mr. Frank Keegan, the well-known comedy cyclist, during the first house at the Palace, Cork, on Saturday night, met with a serious accident, dislocating his hip. He is now in the North Infirmary of the town, and is having every attention. Mr. Henry Kemble, the popular manager of the Palace, Cork, is showing much solicitude regarding his welfare.

Miss Florrie Gallimore and Josie Delaine have been secured by Mr. Ernest Dottridge for his forthcoming pantomime, Dick Whittington, at the Empire Theatre, Oldham. Miss Gallimore will be Dick, and Miss Delaine, her pretty and charming daughter, will be second girl.

By reports from Nottingham it is evident that Mrs. John Lawson has made more than her usual success with The Devil's Sunday. The local Press all speak in the highest terms of this clever lady's reading of the leading part. Next week this episode is the main attraction at the Holborn Empire.

Miss Marie Kendall, at the Palace Theatre, Bradford, on Tuesday evening, introduced to the audience her younger sister, and claimed in dulgence for her maiden effort in song and dance. Although obviously suffering from nervousness, the charming young débutante made a promising effort, and the audience heartily encouraged her.

Miss Ethel Ra Leslie concludes to-night at the Shepherd's Bush Empire five weeks' London season. This popular lady has been the lucky recipient of several beautiful bouquets, and at New Cross Empire one very lovely shower bouquet bore the inscription, "From a few admirers. Welcome back!" Miss Ra-Leslie opens on Monday a seven weeks' tour at Cardiff.

Mr. J. H. Milburn and Mr. J. W. Hall have been working together for the first time in seventeen years at the Palace, Dundee, and in celebration thereof the plastic-featured one relaxed as he presented his brother comedian with a handsome diamond ring. Mr. Hall suitably acknowledged the gift in a humorous speech in the Yorkshire dialect through the phonograph on which Milburn loves to take records of old and new favourites.

Great Yarmouth beach has many advantageous sites for open-air concerts, Christy minstrel entertainments, and the like, and Mr. Herbert Tinkler has been instructed by the Corporation to let by auction for terms of five years, at the Star Hotel, Great Yarmouth, on Monday, April 8, a concert-ring opposite the coastguard station, and a ring for minstrel entertainments. Mr. W. Edgar Stephens, the Town Clerk, will give further particulars.

At the Paragon, by kind permission of the directors, a special grand matinée will be given by Mr. H. H. Wells on Thursday, April 18, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Cripple Children's Fund. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in state.

At the Granville, Walham Green, on Thursday, was produced by Messrs. Haines and Borthwick, a new and original farcical sketch in two scenes, entitled Half-a-Dollar (by W. A. Haines and Alan Borthwick), with the following cast:—Harry Hilton, Mr. Alan Borthwick; Kate, Miss Mary Mackenzie; Nelly, Miss Gladys Erskine; Harry Hutchins, Mr. W. A. Haines.

Messrs. Richard Warner and Co., Ltd., have entered into an arrangement with Signor Rossi, formerly Maitre de Ballet of the Alhambra, to open an academy for the purpose of teaching all kinds of dancing, and to supply complete ballet troupes and choruses. One of the novel features introduced by Signor Rossi will be chorus ladies in special graceful dances up to date. Messrs. R. Warner and Co., Ltd., have also opened a special branch for supplying first-class artists and orchestras for public, masonic, and private dances, at homes, fêtes, &c.

"If yer can't get work yer can't get the sack, is an argymint that's sensible and sahnd," from Mr. Gus Elen's point of view. This celebrated coster comedian may be seen at the Hackney Empire next week in his latest contribution on the unemployed question. Gus is a man who has commanded widespread admiration, and to-day his name is as popular as it was when "'E dunno where 'e are," "Never introduce your donah to a pal," "If it wasn't for the 'ouses in between," and "It's a great, big shame" set the world talking

Living at Clapham Common in a delightful villa residence, crammed full of souvenirs of his theatrical career, the famous coster comedian is an enthusiastic gardener, and takes a great interest in fruit and flower growing, in pheasant breeding, and in poultry raising. He is, likewise, a skilful angler and shot, and in his magnificent car, which cost over £1000, he has covered thousands of miles.

Mr. Arthur Newton mentioned before Mr. Denman at Marlborough-street a summons that was heard a week ago against Mr. William Edward Clery, who is also known as Mr. Austin Fryers, of Hengler's Circus, Argyll-street, W., accusing him of having obtained credit for over £20 without disclosing the fact that he was an undischarged bankrupt. Mr. Newton said that facts had come to the knowledge of prosecutors that there was a syndicate—the British Sports Syndicate—running the entertainment, and the account for the printing had been paid by that syndicate. It was clear that Mr. Clery did not order the printing for his personal benefit, and he (Mr. Newton) would now ask the magistrate in the circumstances to allow the summons to be withdrawn. Permission was granted.

Mr. John Lawson has definitely decided to produce The Unwritten Law at the Holborn Empire on May 6. The production had to be temporarily abandoned owing to the difficulty of getting a young lady to create one of the leading parts. This, however, has now been overcome, and the necessary preparations are well in hand.

When Dr. Bodie was at Liverpool some time back, a little girl was taken to him, but she was either too young or in such a condition of general health as to be unfit for immediate treatment. Dr. Bodie suggested to the mother that she should see him with the girl on his return to Liverpool, and at the same time he gave the child a post-card photo. of himself. When in due season Dr. Bodie again visited Liverpool, the patient, with the post-card photo. in her hand, awaited him at the hall where he was appearing. The doctor took her on the stage and cured her, and when she ran off the first words she said to her mother were:—"Mammy, God has heard my prayer, and sent Dr. Bodie to cure me, and he has cured me now." It was an incident that brought tears to many eyes.

Dr. Bodie opens again in London on Monday next at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, with his own company. He is packing the Empire, Bristol, to the doors nightly this week, despite the fact of its being the slackest of the year.

Miss Anna de Grey, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, acknowledges with many thanks the donations of clothing from Miss Bertha N. Graham, Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Mrs. Harry Bawn ("My Fancy"), Mrs. and Miss Collins. Mr. W. Manning has also sent her £1.

The daily Press of Friday in last week chronicled the breaking-out of a fire on the previous night in Liverpool-road, N., at what is known as "The Times Laundry," and a curious incident in connection remains to be told. Mr. Charles Coverdale, the well-known comedian, happened to be leaving the Islington Empire at eleven o'clock on the night in question, when he noticed a fire-engine rattle by. He followed in its wake, and made the unpleasant discovery that it was his own property which was on fire. The house, 14, Liverpool-road, was completely gutted, and it is therefore not surprising to learn from the comedian that the contents of the laundry were "badly scorched."

The family of Mr. Coverdale own eleven other shops adjoining; but the damage was confined to No. 14 through the prompt action of the fire brigade, which, as Mr. Coverdale points out, "collared and cuffed the fire, the shop afterwards presenting a very bad front, and looked very dicky. The fire gave it socks."

In reference to the summons for assault granted by Mr. Denman at Marlborough-street to Mr. Clive Darril, the Australian giant, for an alleged assault on him by Mr. Fred Trussell, we need only say that one reporter of a halfpenny journal at least has made many statements that are based on the unsubstantial fabric of his own imagination. A very different complexion will be put upon the case when the magistrate adjudicates upon it. Mr. Trussell has no aspirations to be considered a gladiator, and has really much respect for giants.

Miss Lois du Cane and her clever company, in the finely-acted sketch, A Prodigal Wife, written by Frederick Maxwell, will be one of the chief attractions at the Bedford during the holiday week.

The Variety Artists' Federation on the 21st inst. became a Registered Trade Union, with a number. The publishing of a newspaper as one of the objects of the Federation has been agreed to by the Registrar.

Mr. Frank Roy will present a new dramatic episode, entitled The Rebel, from the pen of Clare Shirley, at a special matinée, to be held at the London, Shoreditch, on Wednesday next.

Mr. Stafford Smith, who was associated with the late Wilson Barrett, is about to send out on tour a dramatic sketch, Across the Continent. With all its exciting incidents it only occupies thirty minutes for its performance. The special new scenery is being painted by Mr. F. H. Bull; and the costumes are being supplied by John Hyman and Co., of Leicester-square. Richard Warner and Co. have the bookings.

Mr. Arthur Conquest, having just concluded a most successful pantomime engagement at Drury Lane Theatre, commences his vaudeville season on Monday next at Balham, in The Sioux, with the Syndicate halls to follow. He returns to Drury Lane Christmas next

The 505th meeting of the Executive Committee was held at the offices of the M.H.A.R.A. on Wednesday. Mr. Pat Carey was in the chair, and also present were Messrs. Geo. Smythson, Chas. Pastor, Chas. Coborn (vice-president), Harry Wright, Fred W. Millis (vice-president), J. Alexander, Jeff Vendome, Harry Blake, Jack Collinson, C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), and Douglas White (treasurer). Mr. Goddard, proprietor of the Osborne Arms, Reading, was appointed agent in that town, and the agency at West Bromwich was transferred from the Theatre Vaults to the Oddfellows' Arms, opposite the Hippodrome. The offices of the M.H.A.R.A. will be open for the issue of vouchers to-day as usual.

Miss Millie Howell returns to town this week after a ten weeks' successful provincial run, opening on Monday at the Stratford Empire for a long engagement on the Stoll tour.

Miss Jeannie Bodie, daughter of Dr. Walford Bodie, has just taken a leading part in a French play at Macduff. The performance was given in the large music room of the Manor House, Dr. Bodie's Highland home, by Miss Bodie, her French governess, and several young ladies of Macduff, including the Misses Kitty and Mary George, daughters of Colonel J. J. George, V.D., the Town Clerk. The play was a great success. Miss Bodie is only fifteen, and will most likely adopt the stage as a profession. She speaks four languages fluently, has a fine voice, and is quite an accomplished musician.

The treasurer of the Music Hall Home Fund returns his thanks to the energetic collectors who sent in their cards this week, which has been the means of sending up the Fund to over 2000 shillings. He hopes that other collectors will make up another thousand during the coming week. It is for such a good cause—the relief of the aged and unfortunate members of the variety profession.

Hercat's popular sketch, Her House in Disorder, bottoms the bill, and is going strong at the Crouch End Hippodrome this week. Miss Hetty Lane now plays the landlady.

Mr. Bates Maddison, over whose sketch, What the Butler Did, all Richmond grew hilarious last week, brings another of his sketches to the Standard, Pimlico, on Easter Monday. It is called Charley's Uncle; or, What Has She Got? and is played by an excellent cast of comedians, including Mr. Frank Hill (a principal comedian of Criterion comedy companies), Mr. Bert Phœnix (lately Mr. Geo. Edwardes's companies), Miss Ella Danecourt (at one time leading juvenile to Mr. Lawrence Irving), and Miss Beatrice Fisher (late Mrs. Brown Potter's companies).

Messrs. B. F. Keith, F. F. Proctor, and Percy G. Williams, the principal members of the new vaudeville "combine," have expressed the utmost satisfaction with the present vaudeville outlook in America, and the members of the "opposition," Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, are exceedingly optimistic. According to a leading American newspaper, the performers take the same rosy view of things, and agree that the golden age has arrived at last. Such artists as Miss Vesta Victoria, Mr. Henry Lee, Mr. Tom Nawn, and Miss Josephine Cohan were "bubbling over with satisfaction" when they were interviewed on the subject.

Vesta Victoria, who had just responded to eight encores of "Poor John," at the Alhambra Theatre, said:—"It's just as it should be. There must be competition, or pretty soon there won't be anything left for either the performer or the public, and in the end even the managers would suffer equally. I don't care what they say or promise, I know that sooner or later, with one or two men controlling the variety field, salaries would go down. Artists would be discouraged. The quality of the performances would deteriorate sadly. The public would gradually drop away from the variety theatres, and then what would we all have? Nothing.

"Now, I am not speaking so much for myself as for the native talent here in America. I can make a good living on the other side, no matter what might happen here. But at the same time, where would I be at if I wanted to come to America and there was only one man to talk to about making a contract? Wouldn't I have to accept the price he offered or stay away? Of course I would. For years I had to sing in London at practically the same figure, in spite of the fact that I was worth a lot more money, because I was drawing a lot more patronage."

Miss Josephine Cohan, who in private life is Mrs. Fred Niblo, declared that the new order of things was "just lovely."

The Spanish Moor, Zaid, whose novel speciality on the rings, assisted by Orienta, has awakened such intense interest at the London Pavilion, where he has been rebooked, makes his fourth return visit to the Gaiety Theatre, Birmingham, next week. This interesting speciality will be a leading feature of the Great Shrewsbury Fête in August.

Mr. Henry Kemble, the general-manager of the Palace, Cork, has commenced agency business, and intends opening offices in London in June. He will retain the management of the above house, for which he will have the exclusive bookings.

Mr. George Bastow's friends will hear with considerable pleasure that the famous exponent of "Varmer Giles" is rapidly approaching the period of convalescence after his illness.

At Bow County Court on Friday, March 22, before Judge Williams, Mme. Estelle, of the Excelsior Quartette Company, sought to recover from Messrs. Dan Thomas and Fred Clements, comedians, the sum of £7 for salary, and £1 10s. 4d. in respect of railway fares, said to be due under an agreement. The plaintiff's case was that in December last she entered into an agreement with the defendant whereby she and the other members of her troupe were to receive £7 a week to appear in a pantomime which defendants were producing and sending to various towns in the country. The plaintiff alleged that Mr. Thomas agreed to pay railway fares out of London and on the return journey, but said this agreement was afterwards disputed, and, after journeying to Sheerness, Stalybridge, North Shields, Hartlepool, and elsewhere, the company found themselves stranded at Ilkeston, and had considerable difficulty in getting back to London.

The defendants emphatically denied having entered into any agreement as to the paying of railway fares for the plaintiff's troupe, and pointed to the contract, in which no reference to fares was made. Mr. Thomas did not dispute that £7 was owing to the plaintiff for salary, but he called a Mr. Linton, who stated that Mr. Thomas gave him £7 to take to Mme. Estelle, but the lady refused to accept this unless the money which she alleged was due to her for railway fares was also paid. His Honour said there was certainly no reference in the signed contract to fares being paid, and judgment would therefore be only for £7 admittedly owing for salary, without costs.

The Four Harrys are in Paris enjoying the sights. They include Harry Lauder, Harry Tich, Harry Randall, and Harry Fragson. There is also with them one George—Foster.

Mr. Tom Hearn, the laziest juggler on earth, opens on the Keith Circuit, New York, on Monday. Before starting for America he handed to the hon. treasurer the sum of £2 17s. collected for the Music Hall Home Fund.

In view of the peasant rising in Roumania, which possibly foreshadows a far graver political crisis, Mr. Charles Urban, at the Alhambra, will supplement his forthcoming Easter "Trip to Palestine" by a recently taken series of scenes in Bukarest, secured only by the courtesy and special command of the Roumanian Minister for War. The three films, which illustrate the infantry of King Charles drilling in the barrack-ground, a turn-out of the splendidly-horsed field batteries, and a march-past of the Lancers, give a complete epitome of the Roumanian Field Forces, and are therefore of paramount interest at the present juncture.

Camilla D'Alberg, who, as we have already stated, is due to appear at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, New York, on June 17, has received a cable asking her to start her performance on June 3, so she will be leaving England the middle of May. Notwithstanding the absence of the actress-manageress in America, her comedy company will continue to play in In at the Finish in England and abroad.

Mr. Herbert Shelley has turned his thoughts bull-dogwards, and has bought Our Sammy by Bravo Billy from Midnight by champion Prince Albert. This is as it should be, for he is none other than the grandson of that old bulldog fancier who was the contemporary of Lamphier, Tom Turton, Jesse Oswell, and other old-timers, and owned such dogs as Duchess by Spring, Druid by Dan—a dog weighing some 60lb., which was sold by Bill George for £100, in those days considered a tall figure.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1½; Empire (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ord., 4¾; London Pavilion Pref., 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss Empire, 5; Moss Empire 5 per cent. Pref., 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 6; Varieties Consolidated Theatres, 9-16.

Mr. Charles Dare's No. 1 company of famous minstrels will tour this summer as starring engagements at the principal halls have been booked into 1908. His No. 2 company of twenty-five performers is exclusively engaged for Douglas Head, Isle of Man, from May until the end of September; and his No. 3 company will be at Colwyn Bay. Who says the taste for burnt-work comedy and minstrelsy has died out?

Rich and Rich created a unique record last week in Southampton by playing complete performances at both the Palace and the Hippodrome there on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Les Frasettis leave on Sunday for Holland to play a return tour, and to assist in the promotion of the Anglo-Dutch entente.

Vesta Tilley, who has been appearing at the Hackney Empire this week with immense success, was born at Worcester, but spent the greater part of her early days in Birmingham. Her present permanent residence is in London, a charming house at Tulse Hill. Miss Tilley is the daughter of the late Harry Ball, and she recently told the writer how she got her stage name. "I was, until about twelve years of age, always appearing in male characters. People were in doubt whether I was really a boy or a girl, there being nothing in my name, 'The Great Little Tilley,' to indicate. I was at this time fulfilling a long engagement at the old Royal, when the manager suggested to my father that my name should be altered to 'Lady Tilley.' My father, however, ran over a few words in an old dictionary lying on the table, and selected 'Vesta,' which I also liked. The two titles, 'Vesta' and 'Lady' were then put in a hat, and I was commanded to take one out, which should be my stage name. I did so, and was happy to find it was 'Vesta.'

"Up to two years ago," says Miss Tilley, "I was frequently ailing, and long journeys—for the matter of that, short ones, too—were a source of much dread to me. The motor-car has given me the fresh air needed. I have had no serious accidents. Our worst journey was from Newcastle to Birmingham in a recent snowstorm. We had to stop several times on the way to have the snow cleared off the front of the car. I can stand the worst kind of weather now, whereas two years ago such an experience would have killed me." Miss Tilley's pet idea is to establish "Vesta Tilley" cots in children's hospitals in as many of the large towns as she can. At the present time she renders a good deal of service to charitable objects by requests for modest donations in return for her autograph, which is so persistently demanded and so cheerfully given. She would raise a part of the money requisite to the establishment of each cot by benefit performances, and the remainder of the money would, of course, have to come out of her own pocket.

EAST HAM PALACE.

A treat is provided this week for the patrons of this very pretty and comfortable palace of amusement, which is being numerously patronised. Miss Jeannette Hall, ballad vocalist, gives two numbers, her rendering of "Angels are near thee" being especially good and displaying her fine voice to the utmost advantage. The audience are quick to show their appreciation of the lady's efforts. Mr. T. E. Dunville, who is "hanging here for a week," is a great favourite, and very funny are his songs, "That's extra" and "Recipes," especially the latter, in which the eccentric one gives advice on any or every matter under the sun, much to the amusement of all. The pantomime Aladdin has a place in the bill. Mr. Dan Thomas is very funny as Widow Twankey, and keeps the house in roars throughout the piece. Miss Daisy Yates is a very dashing Aladdin, and promptly wins the hearts and applause of all. With the assistance of Mr. Thomas, the couple give a very amusing skit of the popular music hall performances, which is not only funny but clever, and receives the unstinted plaudits of the audience. Miss Amy Bellwood is delightful as the Princess Badroulbadour, and makes the most of her opportunities. Mr. Arthur Jenner is an ideal Emperor (on the rocks), and sings his number, "In Lotus Land," with effect, the chorus ladies assisting admirably. Mr. Chas. Dore succeeds in getting any amount of fun out of his part of the Vizier. Messrs. Haverley and Homer are droll Chinese policemen, Slip and Slod, and work hard throughout, their dancing being especially clever. Mr. Arthur Mordant appears as Abanazar the Magician with success. Miss Marie Lewis makes a first-rate Genie of the Ring; Miss Minnie Saunders is pleasing as the Slave of the Lamp; and the same remark applies to Miss Cissie Ford in her part of Catchee and Miss Emmie Ford in her portrayal of the Vizier's son. A special word of praise must be given to the Four Dandies Quartette of dancers, who do some very finished dancing, which is much appreciated. The ladies of the chorus add much to the success of the production. The dresses are very pretty, and the scenery and effects are excellent. Ruffell's Bioscope brings the entertainment to a close with a very clear film, showing the race for the Grand National.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. CHAS. AUSTIN is featuring with great success his funny new song, "The late-lamented Mr. Perkins, written and composed by Chas. Collins and W. H. Wallis. The publishing rights have been acquired by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co.

"WHAT you can't get you can always do without" is the ascetic title of Mr. Chas. Whittle's latest philosophical number. The words and music are by Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, and the song will shortly be produced in their popular sixpenny edition by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Co., Ltd.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co. have just secured the publishing rights of two bright numbers, both written by A. A. Bagley, and composed by J. Chas. Noore, entitled "Does my tiara shine?" and "How-do-do, Mr. Black, I'm back," both of which will shortly be produced by Miss Amber Austa.

MESSRS. CHARLES COLLINS and Fred. E. Terry have written and composed for Mr. Charles Deane a very catchy song, entitled "Follow the girls," which has been accepted by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MESSRS. JOHN P. HARRINGTON and Jas. W. Tate have just accepted a commission from Mr. W. Selkirk, the producer of big naval and military spectacles, to specially write and compose for him a new and original spectacular military production, in two scenes, which will first see the light on the Stoll tour, in Sheffield, on May 6 next. It will be produced on a scale of great magnificence, and will embrace four speaking parts and a veritable host of supernumeraries.

MR. J. F. LAMBE'S idyllic song, "Queen of old Samara," with which Miss Lilian Lea has been so phenomenally successful, at the Canterbury this week, will shortly be introduced into Miss Marie Santoi's Japanese Tea-Garden sketch, on tour. Mr. C. St. John Denton is also having it specially "featured" in his production of Kitty Grey. The same ubiquitous song has also been secured for Mr. Fred W. Warden's Goody Two Shoes Easter pantomime, at Belfast.

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRANCE, AND GIFFORD'S latest successful song, "I'm going back to the Fatherland," is being eagerly inquired for and snapped up for seaside exploitation by pierrots for the forthcoming season, which is little to be wondered at, considering the truly wonderful success which this Monte Carlo Co.'s publication has achieved nightly in the hands of Miss Lilian Lea, at the Canterbury, Talbot and Pearce, at the Metropolitan, and Miss Ella Retford, at Walthamstow, to say nothing of charming Miss Lena Verdi, on the Stoll tour.

THE clever author-composer of "Queen of old Samara," Mr. J. F. Lambe, is to be congratulated on having found another big "winner" in his delightful Irish ballad, "Kitty Brady, my Irish lady," which, in the hands of Miss Madge Temple, has been winning "golden opinions from all sorts of people" in the provinces, and will have a West End production very shortly. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have this number in the press.

"MY CHATEAU ON THE RHINE," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford is now being specially "featured" by Talbot and Pearce and has "caught on" immensely everywhere. Mr. Donald Hall is also producing this "goey" German song. It is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

REHEARSALS of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate's new Jap-coster sketch, Cockneys in Japan, which these prolific writers have specially written and composed for Mr. Alec Hurley and his talented company, are now being pushed forward with all speed, and we may expect a West End production of this important thirty-minutes sketch at an early date. Report speaks most highly of the music, particularly of a number entitled "My little gal across the sea," which will, of course, be published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in due course.

A RECENT number of the New York Music Trade Review contains an article on the popular songs of the day, in which category, of course, Miss Vesta Victoria's "Poor John!" holds a place in the very first line, and speaks thus of a popular number by Jerome and Schwartz, which is published by the energetic firm:—"My Irish Rosie" is at present doing a great business for Francis, Day, and Hunter, both with the performers and the trade. It is one of the best Irish songs on the market to-day. Pierce and Roslyn have made a big hit with it at Proctor's, Newark, N.J., house; Cora Routt scored greatly with it at the Metropolis, New York, Sunday last; Kathryn Miley took three and four encores after singing "My Irish Rosie" on Sunday at the Dewey, New York; Katharine Trayer, of Libby and Trayer, is making a big success with it at Pastor's; Mabelle Darr, of the Gay Masqueraders, is booming merrily with the same song; Hattie Williams, in the Little Cherub, is taking three and four encores nightly; and Bonita, in her great imitation of Hattie Williams, is doing exactly the same. It is also the song hit of Wine, Woman, and Song company.

MISS MABEL GREEN, the charming and dainty artist of Little Michus fame, will introduce at her forthcoming engagements, commencing at Manchester on April 9, Charles Wilmott and H. E. Darewski, jun.'s, "Humpty and Dumpty," which quaint cameo of a song has been published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

AMONG the many purchases of the week made by Messrs. Francis and Day are included "Why don't you leave it alone?" (sung by Johnny Danvers), by Fred Murray and George Everard; "My baby, sleep," a pretty lullaby, by Charles Wilmott and S. H. Gambrell; "With your kiss on my cheek," by F. J. Barnes and R. P. Weston; "On a see-saw with you," by Lawrance, Mellor, and Gifford; "The lily in the vase of gold," by R. P. Westbarr and H. E. Darewski, jun.; "Follow the girls" (Charles Deane), by Fred E. Terry and Charles Collins; "Drinks" (Wallis Arthur), by C. J. Winter; and "Aida," a graceful dance, by Celian Kottaun.

MISS EDITH BLANDE is producing a new sketch, entitled Love in Short Frocks, at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday.

A MESSAGE of dire distress reaches us from Miss Amy Blanchard, once well known as a burlesque actress and vocalist, who, through illness and bereavement, is practically homeless and without friends. Miss Blanchard, who has worked in both branches of the profession for upwards of fifty years, has reached the advanced age of 64, and appeals to her brother and sister artists for help to start a small business with which to gain a livelihood. Miss Blanchard's present address is 37, Sidney-street, Brighton

THE position of bandmaster to the Corporation of Brighton for a season of twelve weeks, commencing July 1, is now open. Candidates must have had experience elsewhere in conducting large military bands, and must possess an extensive and up-to-date library of music. Application is to be made prior to 10 a.m., on Wednesday, April 10, to Hugo Talbot, Town Clerk, Brighton.

MARRIAGE OF MARIE LLOYD'S DAUGHTER.

Thursday, with its bright sunshine and pleasant breeze, was quite an ideal day for a wedding, and much interest was taken in the nuptials of the well-known young jockey, Mr. Harry Aylin and Miss Marie Victoria Courtenay, the daughter of Miss Marie Lloyd (Mrs. Alec Hurley). The ceremony was performed at the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, Avenue-road, N.W., the Rev. F. Betts, the Vicar, being the officiating minister. The service was fully choral. The arrival of the numerous wedding party was witnessed by a large crowd, which had gathered outside the church, and the sacred building was also well attended. The bride, who is only seventeen years old, arrived in a carriage and pair, accompanied by her mother and grandfather, Mr. John Wood, who gave her away. As she walked up the aisle, leaning on the arm of her grandfather, the young bride, petite and pretty, was the cynosure of many admiring eyes. She looked charming in an Empire gown composed entirely of Valenciennes lace, with a long silk sash, caught at the back with a large pearl butterfly. Her ornaments also included a pearl and diamond necklace and pendant, the gift of her mother; and diamond earrings, the gift of the bridegroom.

There were six bridesmaids—Miss Maudie Wood, Miss Ada Martine, Miss May Wood, Miss Mollie Poluski, and Miss Billie Israel. The first two wore hyacinth-blue ninon and quaint Norwegian bonnets, adorned with flowers, and the three little ones had frocks of frilled Valenciennes lace and pretty "Sans Gêne" bonnets, tied with pale blue strings.

Miss Marie Lloyd, attired in a chiffon and lace dress, headed the procession up the church. The bridal gown and the bridesmaids' dresses were all designed by Miss Marie Lloyd, who is exceedingly clever in the millinery line, and always designs the costumes she wears on the stage.

Mr. Bernard Dillon was the best man. On the completion of the ceremony, the usual custom of signing the register in the vestry was duly carried out.

A reception was afterwards held at the house of the bride's mother and step-father in King Henry's-road.

The long list of invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Stoll, Mr. and Mrs. G. Adney Payne, Mr. Frank Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Wal Pink, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. S. Poluski, Mr. and Mrs. J. Corney, Mr. and Mrs. G. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. H. Masters, Miss Rose Hamilton, Mrs. C. Mitchell, Miss Marie Loftus, Miss Daisy James, Miss Victoria Monks, Miss May Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tennyson, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan, Mr. and Mrs. F. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Walter de Frece (Miss Vesta Tilley), Mr. and Mrs. J. de Frece, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Hyams, Mr. and Mrs. Bon Sayers, Miss Alice Hewitt, Miss Cora Hine, Mrs. Alice J. Wilson, Mr. C. Blythe Pratt, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Fred McEvoy, Mr. and Mrs. Page, Mrs. G. Le Brunn, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hyams, Mr. William Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. "Pony" Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. T. McNaughton, Mr. and Mrs. C. McNaughton, Miss Amba Austa, Miss Madge Lessing, Miss Clarice Mayne, Miss Amy Clevere, Mrs. Maud Wilson, Mr. Leon Zetland, Mr. and Mrs. E. Romaine, Miss Fanny Fields, Mr. and Mrs. Jousiffe, Mr. and Mrs. G. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lotto, Mr. and Mrs. George Fuller (Miss Katie Lawrence), Mr. H. J. Didcott, Mr. B. Doyle, Mr. S. Joel, Miss Ruby Celeste, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyons, Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. Arthur Collins, Miss Lucy Weston, Mr. Jas. Tate, Mr. J. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Courtenay, Dr. Jackson Lang, Mr. F. Fredericks, Mr. and Mrs. Abrahams, Mr. and Mrs. Edelstein, Mr. J. L. Graydon, Miss Lottie Graydon, Mrs. Ellis, Mr. Clyde Aylin, Mr. Monti Aylin, Mr. Geo. Aylin, Mr. Kempton Cannon, Mr. J. Cannon, jun., Miss Ray Hartley, the Sisters Pine, Miss Nettie Le Comte, Mr. and Mrs. O. Madden, Mrs. Levey, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morell, Mr. Orlando Powell, Mr. H. Ray Keen, Mr. D. Maher, Mr. C. Elphinstone, and Mr. J. Brown.

On the lawn in the rear of the house the portraits of the bride and bridegroom were taken, and other interesting groups were also photographed. The health of the newly-wedded couple was drunk in bumpers of champagne, and to the accompaniment of a selection of music played by an excellent orchestra. The wedding presents, which were very numerous and handsome, included a gold chain purse-bag and a cheque from Mr. Alec Hurley. The wedding cake was of charming design, and on two flags attached to it were the names of the bride and bridegroom—"Marie" and "Harry."

Later in the afternoon the newly-married couple left for Brighton en route for Germany, where the honeymoon is to be spent.

Miss Marie Courtenay, daughter of the well-known comedienne, Miss Marie Lloyd, and Mr. H. Aylin, the clever jockey, who were married at the Church of St. Stephen the Martyr, Avenue Road, N.W., on Thursday last.

"THE CRUISE OF H.M.S. VICTORY," a perfect little music comedy, is this week being played by Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and company, at the Surrey Theatre. Since its original production at the Empire, Camberwell, it has been in request all round, and MR. WATSON is rapidly getting his date-book filled up. The sketch, which, by the way, is from the pen of Miss Flo Stanley, goes north to Salford and Liverpool for a couple of weeks, and then returns to town, opening at the Stoke Newington Palace.

MR. ALEC KNOWLES, the well-known Press representative of the Empire Theatre, is retiring from that position, and the directors of the company, as an appreciation of his seven years' service, have presented him with a cheque for fifty guineas.

EASTER VARIETY CARNIVAL.

The coming of the daffodils coincides with the return of the stars, who rejoin London's irregular forces of variety after coquetting with the theatre stage in pantomime. Eastertide therefore is marked at the Palaces and Empires by a general strengthening of the programmes. At the ballet houses the spring festival at one time was chosen as the period of new productions; but Queen of Spades at the ALHAMBRA has not been long produced there, and The Débutante at the Empire, with Adeline Genée in the leading part, is still in the height of its success. Many of the outlying halls, however, will introduce into their Easter bills new sketches, dramatic or otherwise. One thing is certain, that variety in its widest interpretation, and in its most attractive guise, will be found everywhere, and though fine holiday weather is predicted, there will be plenty of amusement-seekers left in this overgrown metropolis of ours to appreciate the excellent programmes that are here briefly summarised.

To the novelty at the LONDON HIPPODROME we have already drawn attention. The Typhoon will undoubtedly be another revelation of the newer developments of stage mechanism and theatrical realism; and a very big attraction is the Tyrolese Giantess.

The Easter programme at the PALACE contains well-varied and cosmopolitan turns. Fred Niblo, the American raconteur, will return to the scene of his initial success on this side; Mlle. Juliette will submit a new exhibition of the training of sea lions; Kartelli will perform some extraordinary feats on a slack wire; and La Belle Tortajada, and Alfred Lester, with his "tired" waiter sketch, will remain in the bill. Josephine Cohen, the well-known American burlesque actress, will also make her first appearance in Europe with a new sketch, A Friend of the Family.

At the Alhambra Mr. Alfred Moul and Mr. George Scott present an Easter programme with, as the main attraction, the two ballets, L'Amour and The Queen of Spades. Among the variety turns are the Four Golondrinas, including Miss Anita Manuela, the Spanish nightingale, who makes her first appearance in England; Miss Kitty Traney, in her juggling and sporting act; De Biere, the mysterious; Mlle. Bresina, French soubrette; and the Millman Trio are other attractions.

The EMPIRE will present an Easter programme full of variety, and illumined by the lustre of great names. Miss Ada Reeve, who has been induced to forgo a long rest, appears in new songs and new dresses, and is sure of a great welcome after her enforced absence from the stage. Mr. Bransby Williams introduces a new sketch, in which he gives us life-like imitations of "stars" past and present. Those who have not yet seen the ballet, The Débutante, in which the incomparable Mlle. Genée appears, should on no account miss it, as a new ballet, Sir Roger de Coverley, is soon to be produced. A new series of living pictures is being presented; while the Sisters Hengler and the Great Lumars are also in the holiday bill.

The OXFORD announces a grand combination of bright particular stars for their Easter company on Monday, when a special matinée will be given with full evening attractions. George Robey, Marie Lloyd, the Poluskis, Dan Crawley, Mark Sheridan, Cinquevalli, T. E. Dunville, Carlotta Levey, Phil Ray, Fred Earle, Ella Retford, the Stella Troupe, Tom Wootwell, Ike Scott, and Ruffell's Bioscope form a very strong programme.

Mr. Frank Glenister, at the LONDON PAVILION, again presents Mr. George Mozart, with his brow crowned with American bays, in new descriptive monologues by Albert E. Ellis and Chris Davis. Other popular contributors to the Easter variety will be John E. Coyle, Marie Dainton, Hal Forde, May Henderson, Jordan and Harvey, Will Edwards, Florence and Lilian, Francis, Howard and Collinson, Frank Maura, Kit Keen, Les Fleurs Polonaises, and others.

The TIVOLI holiday bill is claimed by Mr. Joseph Wilson to be the strongest ever presented at a West-End hall. It includes Little Tich, Harry Lauder, Fragson, George Robey, T. E. Dunville, the Poluskis, Harry Tate, Alexandra Dagmar, Abie Mitchell, Madoline Rees, and others. It is interesting to note that there are four "Great Harrys" in the programme, viz., Lauder, Tich, Fragson, and Tate.

Mr. George Robey, Mr. Harry Tate, Mr. Tom Dunville, the Poluskis, Phil Ray, and Sam Mayo form a wonderfully strong contingent of comedians at the CANTERBURY, where Mr. Fred Miller will also present the Great Northern Troupe, the Stella Troupe, Madoline Rees, Nellie Beacon, Juan D'Alberti and company in V.C., the Sisters Wingrove, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

At the head of the CHELSEA PALACE bill will be found the Six Brothers Luck in Blazes. Brett and Orford will exploit the humour of Mixed Bathing; and the funny men will be headed by Tom Woottwell and G. W. Hunter. George D'Albert, the Three Sisters Chester, Elsie Steadman, Lilian Elfreda, Jeapes's Animated Graphic, and Lieut. Travis, will be also among the attractions.

At the ROYAL STANDARD Mr. T. S. Dickie's Easter company will include Bransby Williams, John E. Coyle, Ross and Grayson, Peggy Pryde, Billy Williams, Harry Pleon, Cissie Lupino, the Fimans, in The Fire Station, Bates Maddison's company in Charley's Uncle, Steeley and Dowton, Chas. Sloman, Nina Gordon, Blanche Marion, Reed and Wright, Amy Lloyd, Metz and Metz, Dave Laird, and the Edisonograph.

All the London suburban houses of the Moss-Stoll circuit put out strong inducements for Easter patronage. At the HACKNEY EMPIRE Mr. Gus Elen's latest "argymint" in song, "If yer can't git work yer can't git the sack," will be heard. The hit of the bill at the HOLLOWAY EMPIRE should be Mr. G. P. Huntley's sketch, The Punchbowl. Fresh from his South African triumphs, Eugene Stratton will star at the STRATFORD EMPIRE. At the NEW CROSS EMPIRE the backbone of the bill is made up of My Pal Jerry, Syd May, Ruth Lytton, Mark Merry, and Carter Livesey. The SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE will rely on Vesta Tilley as its star attraction.

The one and only Chirgwin will head the SOUTH LONDON bill, to which the other contributors will be Ernie Mayne, My Fancy, the New York Nippers, Jessie Nesbit, Archy Cray, Jeanette Hall, the Tatlers, Ernest Ball, Ruffell's Bioscope, and Fred Winn's company in The Light at the Window.

The GRANVILLE'S Easter attractions include Ethel Arden and George Abel's company in Three of a Kind, Fred Earle, Ross and Grayson, Percy, Vernon's Bioscope, Three Laurels, J. W. Kenway, May Marton, Florrie Forde, Daisy Dormer, Maud Levin, Keen and Waller, Howard and Collinson, That Brute Simmons, and George Mozart.

The holiday bill at the BUSTON is headed by Harry Lauder. Miss Clarice Mayne makes her first appearance at the house, and Benson and Geoffreys, Lilian Lowe, Norman and Leonard Trio, Madoline Rees, the Golden Graces, Nat Clifford, the Lancashire Lads, and Ruffell's Bioscope provide the other attractions.

The big names at the PARAGON are Joe Elvin, Little Tich, and Harry Tate. Other favourites in the holiday scheme are Mark Sheridan, G. H. Elliott, Nat Clifford, the Doreen Girls, Lilian Lowe, Ella Retford, Nellie Beacon, Idalia May, and several more.

The METROPOLITAN has a programme of exceptional strength. Mr. George Robey, who will be particularly busy on Easter Monday, returns to a house where he is enormously popular; and the incomparable Cinquevalli will also be among the stars retained by Mr. Jack Edgar.

The CAMBERWELL PALACE will present John Lawson in the thrilling sketch Sally in Our Alley, Mark Sheridan, Duncan and Godfrey, Austin Rudd, Lawrence Barclay, and Harry Ford will head the comic forces. Carlotta Levey, Daisy Dormer, Percy Curry, Vernon's Bioscope, Five Bogannys, and Marba and Verity will also be among the attractions.

Mr. Albert Gilmer, at the PALACE THEATRE, Stoke Newington, relies on the following well-assorted programme for the Easter holidays: The Sousloffs, Frank Boyce, Crissie Cross, Chas. Deane, Burt Shepard, Edie Gray and Coons, Forrest Combination, Esta Stella, Dolly Denton, Atlas and Vulcana, Ten Dixie Girls, Kurkamp, John E. Coyle, and Palace Pictures.

"THE TWO MARY ANNS."

Sketch, in One Scene, produced for the first time at the Shepherd's Bush Empire, on Wednesday, March 27.

John Buncom ..... MR. H. DE SOLLA
Ella ..... MISS STROUD WILSON
Lord Hersee ..... MR. GERALD CLIFFORD
Mortimer Perkins ..... MR. O. E. LENNON
Mary Ann ..... MISS RUSHHOLME

This amusing novelty, produced by Messrs. Ferdinand Conti and R. M. Harvey's company, is a variation of an old theme, but proved to be most acceptable. The plot is embellished by several musical numbers of the musical-comedy type, and the sketch would make a very attractive item in any music-hall programme. At the opening of the piece we learn that old John Buncom, rescued from a wreck some eighteen years ago a baby girl. This child was never claimed, the only clue to its identity being a locket found on its neck. The child was adopted by Buncom, and has grown into a very pretty young lady. It appears that the old seaman has advertised a yacht called The Mary Ann for sale, and down from town comes Lord Hersee with a view to purchasing it. His lordship is well known to the old man as plain "Mr.," he having only recently succeeded to the title. The young lord had written to Buncom informing him of his intended visit; but when he arrives it does not occur to the old man that this is the Lord Hersee who has communicated with him. The young fellow apparently knows the history of Ella, the sea-child, and is very much in love with her. Shortly afterwards arrives a little Cockney tailor and his "young lady." The tailor, Mortimer Perkins, is at once taken by the old seaman for Lord Hersee, and as soon as they are alone he proceeds to describe the boat he has for sale. It happens that Mortimer's sweetheart is also named Mary Ann; and then, of course, there is the usual talking at cross purposes, one character speaking of a boat, the other thinking it is his sweetheart who is being discussed. Mary Ann, learning of the mistake, is very disgusted; and she and Perkins quarrel. However, all ends happily, with the prospect of a couple of early weddings. The sketch was excellently mounted and capably played. Prime honours must go to Mr. O. E. Lennon for his amusing impersonation of Mortimer Perkins. Mr. H. de Solla played the part of the Old Salt excellently. Both Miss Stroud Wilson and Miss Rushholme played and sang well; and Mr. Gerald Clifford was extremely good as Lord Hersee.

At the same performance was also played for the first time a new sketch by Eileen Guilbert, entitled

"ALL THROUGH YOU."

Kitty Lonsdale ..... MISS EILEEN GUILBERT
Mabel Ferrars ..... MISS JENNY LYNNE
Percival Burnaby Burton .. MR. F. HULME SHARP

This little farce has one or two musical numbers by J. Nuremberger. The scene is the sitting-room used by a couple of bachelor girl friends, both in love with the same fellow, a noodle of a familiar type. One of the girls, in order to find out which of them the "dude" is really in love with, makes up as a maiden aunt, and discovers her friend and the fellow in circumstances which leave her no doubt upon the point. This sketch is quite neatly written and constructed, and with more vigorous playing and a little elaboration of the purely comic business would become a really entertaining item.

"WHAT THE BUTLER DID."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As the business representative of Mr. Bates Maddison's sketch companies, I should greatly appreciate the favour of an insertion of this letter in the columns of your justly-esteemed journal.

I produced (for Mr. Maddison) at Richmond Theatre, on March 18, an original comedy sketch, written by Albert Voyce, and entitled What the Butler Did; or, The Man with Two Wives. The sketch was an immediate success, as the accounts in your own and other professional and local journals proved.

During the week Mr. Ivan Gore announced that he had also written and sold a sketch with the same title.

Mr. Bates Maddison has produced his sketch, and registered the title. He has spent considerable time, energy, and capital on the purchase and production, and is assured by Mr. Voyce that he took every care to ascertain that the title had not been previously used.

I myself searched the registers on Mr. Maddison's behalf.

Under these circumstances, Mr. Maddison feels justified in claiming the title in question, and he wishes to inform all whom it may concern that he intends to protect his claim.—Yours faithfully,

ROGER ALWYN.
(Manager for Mr. Bates Maddison.)

MR. CHARLES URBAN, of the "Urbanora" firm so famous for its animated pictures, was elected a Fellow of the Zoological Society of London at its recent meeting.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD ANNIVERSARY.

Troops of friends and a large contingent of the public that loves to seek its recreation at the music halls came to the Oxford on the evening of the 22nd to assist at the fourteenth celebration of the anniversary of the famous variety house, which was somewhat belated in consequence of the strike. Mr. C. Blyth-Pratt, who has succeeded to the management since last year's celebration, quite rose to his responsibilities, and made excellent arrangements for presenting one of those gigantic programmes that are customary on festival occasions. The house was very artistically decorated for the occasion, and flags and flowers added to the architectural beauties of its interior, the box-fronts being singled out for a special scheme of embellishment that displayed considerable taste. No less than forty-seven turns were listed. The stars beamed brightly. Mr. Harry Lauder came to sing in his own pawky way of "Ma Lassie." "Ma Laddie" afterwards appeared in the person of Jessie Preston, who treated the character in uproariously comic fashion. Mr. Morny Cash amused us in a Lancashire dialect song; Mr. Wilson Hallett mimicked the little ones in their untutored efforts at reciting, and in effective fashion reproduced the ballad, "Daddy," as it might be sung by a little girl of the mature age of five or six. The reception accorded to Miss Clarice Mayne, comedienne and mimic, proclaimed that she is rapidly growing in popular estimation. Mr. Bransby Williams temporarily returned to the scene of his earlier triumphs to recite two pieces. Miss Bessie Slaughter, a new comer, displayed culture and charm of voice in her rendering of "The Lost Chord." There was laughter in plenty for the amusing equivoque to be discovered in "I shut my camera," delightfully rendered by Miss Kitty Loftus; and the dancing of the Great Northern Troupe fetched the house.

Miss Marie Lloyd was a favourite with old Oxford audiences, but her position in the affections of the public was never higher than now, and never more firmly established. "The custom of the country" and "Tiddly-om-pom" are spicy examples of the London diva's power and eloquence of diction, and her reception had all the heartiness that loyal cockneys invariably mete out to their favourite stars.

The spindle side of the programme was also distinguished by such names as Miss Madge Lessing, who gave "Henry Klein"; Miss Queenie Leighton, who sang the Drury Lane Theatre version of "Is London like it used to be?"; Miss Victoria Monks, who had a rousing welcome in "Won't you come down and open the door?"; Miss Amber Austa, who was applauded in "Oysters and Clams"; Miss Alice Hollander, who came from the Hicks Theatre to sing Angelo Mascheroni's "Ave Maria"; Miss Gladys Huxley, who reached the hearts of the melody-loving gallery with "Au revoir, my little hyacinth"; Miss May Henderson, with the lively lilt, "You shall have a lovely home, Joanna"; and Miss Maggie Carr, who made one of her rare appearances to sing "I'm gwine to break away."

A neat comedian, with a style peculiarly his own, was found in Mr. Marriott Edgar, who easily scored in "On the sands"; Tom Leamore, always a prominent leader of comedy at the Oxford, was well fitted with a medium for his drollery in "What a friend!"; Harry Champion was responsible for "I see you've got the old brown hat on," a number quite in his most characteristic vein; and Dan Crawley fetched the house with "I finish 'em off." Kurkamp sang his usual solo from Il Trovatore, and the pretty melody "Loveland"; and other turns appearing were the Borellis, Sisters Ernesto, Sisters Caselli, Dorothy L. Clarke, Billy English, Charles Mildare, and James Stewart. After the National Anthem had been played at the conclusion of a long and most interesting programme the films of the Grand National—the cross-country Derby, which had been run at Aintree in the afternoon—were projected on the screen by Ruffell's Bioscope, but most of the audience had departed.

THE HIPPODROME.

Though this is what is generally termed in the amusement world an off-week, when managers are content to mark time while waiting for the arrival of the Easter carnival, the directorate at the Hippodrome is presenting a programme having both interesting and startling novelties. Mariedl, the Tyrolese giantess, who has left her father's farm and much useful work behind to become the cynosure of all eyes, is introduced at every performance by a gentleman who speaks of her religious devotion and her love of children. Her great height is her heritage from a distant ancestor, and neither her parents nor her sister, who accompanies her, measure more than the normal number of inches. Her smile as she shakes hands with the occupants of the stalls betokens placid content; but occasionally there is a wistfulness steals over her features, and one thinks that the thoughts of Mariedl are far away among the peasant folk of her native mountains, and that the sound of the ranz des vaches across the fertile valleys is echoing in her heart.

The sensation of the bill is Kearney P. Speedy—well named, indeed, when one considers the nature of his lightning descent through space from a ladder above the Hippodrome into the arena tank, 130ft. below. Nobody knows when Speedy took to swimming and diving. His first great feat was accomplished at Jefferson City, Missouri, when he was a boy, over a bluff that hid the river 96ft. below it. In his own words: "I got playing baseball down the main street one day, when I saw father coming up. He got a little ahead of me, and was going like a Red Indian. I started off like another Red Indian for the bluff. He thought that would hold me. I went over that 96ft. fall. That made a bit of a sensation." After appearing with certain minor shows he joined Cole's Circus some ten years ago. Something happened to the ballooning man, so Speedy took his place. He wasn't content with the usual parachute descent, but must needs get himself and his parachute shot out of a cannon tied to the balloon. He once fell over 1,300ft. before the parachute condescended to open, but came down all right. Speedy never goes deeper than 18ins., he says, and the whole of his back is never wetted despite the tremendous fall. He always strikes the water with the top of his head. If he struck anywhere else—"Well, they'd just walk slowly after me, that's all. There's no 'if' about this thing. You come out with a smile on your face—or they dig you out"—which is a very effective and very American way of putting the matter.

On Tuesday both Mariedl and Speedy had a very special audience, the Russian sailors who had come to London being present at the invitation of the Hippodrome directorate, upon whose behalf Mr. Fred Trussell welcomed them. Other turns in the bill are Sam Elton, whose unique entertainment with plates is a revelation of quiet and ingenious fun; and A. D. Robbins, whose cycling feats on tandems are as intrepid as they are clever. There is no such word as fail in the lexicon of this remarkable bicyclist, who has a spice of humour in his composition. Tina Clementina's sporting act is a clever display of canine and equine training, the dogs of all sizes including a fox-terrier who not only "loops the loop" with wonderful nonchalance, but even repeats the feat after the fall of the curtain. The Mezettis manage very cleverly not only to sustain, but to increase the humour of their horizontal-bar show; the Piccolinis are particularly versatile in their Lilliputian variety act, showing themselves to be expert cyclists, shots, and acrobats. Clever work is also done by Prince Kokin, Japanese juggler;

the Renard Trio of acrobats; Genaro and Theol, contortionists; Hélène and Emileon, athletes; the Lukushimas, with a Japanese pot-pourri; the Chrono-Megaphone, the latest invention in animated photography; and Lavater Lee, the Hippodrome droll, who is always worth seeing and hearing, is a particular favourite with the youngsters.

THE SURREY.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten has a distinctive clientele to cater for at this time-honoured theatre, and so well has he gauged the tastes of his patrons that, no matter what the season is, this spacious house is packed twice nightly by an enthusiastic audience, quick in their appreciation, and liberal in their applause. The most novel item on the programme is Leoni Clarke with his unique collection of performing cats, rabbits, rats, monkeys, mice, and birds, which together number some hundreds. Among the many interesting items of this performance is the spectacle of a file of pretty cats treading their way along a row of rats, mice, and birds, and not attempting to molest them in the slightest degree. The Blondin Monkey is a queer, but intelligent little chap, walking the tight-rope and turning somersaults with an ease and assurance quite human. The cats are not to be outdone, one Carroty Tom playing the tin whistle and blowing a horn with marvellous energy; while a handsome tabby climbs a rope to the dome of the auditorium, gets into a miniature parachute car, and comes down gracefully on to the stage. In the concluding act numbers of rats of many colours come out of their home and board a miniature train, which whirls them around at lightning speed.

Arthur Watson and his merry crowd are here in that pot-pourri of fun and frolic, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory. Set in two excellent scenes of Portsmouth Harbour and on the deck of the Victory, we find the Admiral Lord Teasum and his wife at cross purposes while in search of their long-lost niece. The admiral enlists the services of one of the crew, Dick Hatchway, to find out all he can about his wife; and Lady Teasum engages another member of the crew, Jack Marlingspike, to discover any little intrigue the admiral may be engaged in. When these two worthies compare notes, complications ensue that keep the ball of fun rolling merrily to the end, when the admiral and his wife become reconciled, and their long-lost niece is found in the charming young waitress at the Harbour Hotel. Most of the fun and frolic falls to the share of Mr. Arthur Watson as Jack Marlingspike, and Mr. Harry Watson as Dick Hatchway. Miss Flo Stanley as the niece Polly is very chic and charming; Miss Nellie Grant invests Lady Teasum with a bright modernity; and other parts are well filled by Mr. Bob Leardo as the admiral, Mr. Joe Burley as Trotter, the hotel waiter; and the dances of the three Sisters Dudley evoke great applause.

In direct contrast is the exciting little drama, The Call to Arms, a story of the Peninsular War, admirably played by the Vaudeville Comedy Company. Produced under the direction of Mr. John Rintoul, the company work loyally together, and make the most of the parts assigned them. Miss Helena Walbeau as Lenoria acts with deep feeling and power; Miss Gracie Fordyce invests the part of the pretty betrayed Elsa with delicacy and refinement; as the Colonel, Mr. Herbert Pearson is manly and earnest; Mr. Ernest Percy as Lenoria's brother has little to do, but does that little thoroughly and well. As the scheming renegade, Hector La Roche, Mr. J. G. Leighton gives a capital character-study; and Mr. Charles Ludlow does excellently well as the money-lender, Orlando Orpinton.

Little Zola has returned to the home of his many former triumphs, and once again a Surrey audience follow the little comedian with rapt attention and vociferous appreciation. His song, "Four foot two and a bit," is very funny, while his topsy-turvy nursery rhymes are simply irresistible. Miss Rhoda Paul is an acceptable "extra," and both as a male impersonator and in the rendering of her song, "Oh, girls, men beat you every time," proves herself to be a talented young artist. Florence Yayman is a happy coon caricaturist, her gollywog dancing having a style entirely her own. Raby gives a clever parody on the coon songsters, and a doleful ditty, "Yes, they're very kind to me." Walker and May are a welcome addition to any variety theatre programme, their dancing and singing being of the best; while the sympathies of the audience are completely won by the skill and precision of the blind dancing comedian. Laurie Wallis is chic and smart, and in her quick-changing international dances and skipping exercises displays a pleasing animation. Raymond's Bio-tableaux has a most interesting film in "The Hooligans of the Far West." The admirable order maintained in every part of the house is eloquent of the high efficiency of Mr. Charles Craig, the acting-manager, and his loyal staff.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

As a change from the ordinary programme, a series of Bioscope pictures are being presented at the Islington Empire this week, and care has been taken to secure as much variety as possible in the films exhibited. The Suffragettes have not been overlooked, and a most unattractive representative of the ladies who are clamouring for the right to exercise the Parliamentary franchise is seen apparently addressing a crowd, and she is followed by an elderly dame, who one would have supposed, from her venerable aspect, belonged to a generation that had no sympathy with the Suffragette movement.

Those who have not had an opportunity of visiting "Bonnie Scotland" are able to gain a knowledge of an interesting portion of that country by a series of pictures taken from a locomotive travelling on the railway which runs through Rossshire. There are also illustrations of the method of washing linen practised by the Scotch women; while another film shows a shooting party with a lady doing great execution among the birds, those brought to the ground being taken charge of by a retriever dog. Presently, going farther afield, we take a trip to far-famed Niagara, and are enabled to obtain numerous views of the wonderful Falls, just as if we had joined the party of excursionists whom we see on the way there. "Climbing the Dolomite" very vividly illustrates the difficulties and obvious risks of mountain climbing, an adventurous traveller undertaking the dangerous journey skywards, piloted by two guides who display remarkable agility and sure-footedness in their ascent of the mountain.

A highly interesting home subject is the "Race for the Grand National," which was run on the 22nd inst. We behold the winner, Eremon, being saddled for the great race, the jockey springing into the saddle, the big jumps where several of the riders came a "cropper," the exciting finish, and finally the winning horse again with its trainer, who is being congratulated on the result of the race.

What may be termed the domestic drama is powerfully and pathetically illustrated by "The Law of Pardon." A man discovers his wife in the act of writing a letter in reply to one just received from her lover, and, despite the intercession or their child—a pretty little girl—he resolves to have a separation. The necessary legal proceedings are taken, and by the decision of the Court the wife is separated from her husband. The child falls dangerously ill, and is visited by a Sister of Mercy—France is the scene of the story. The mother, hearing of the illness of her little one, gains admittance to the house, and persuades the good Sister to allow an exchange of costume, so that thus disguised she can tend her ailing child. In the end the erring wife is forgiven. "The Village Witch" is another dramatic story told by means of pictures; and the good old English sport of fox-hunting finds fitting illustration, the films representing every phase of a meet in the country.

There is also an abundance of comic relief, notably "The Early Bird," the adventures of an inebriated young man in evening dress, who is conveyed home by the milkman; "How to Make Time Fly," showing how a mischievous little girl plays pranks with clocks; "Rich for One Day," "Funny Faces," and "The Villain Still Pursued Her," the dream of a dramatic author. On Good Friday the living pictures, entitled "Christ Among Men," were shown.

The Empire orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Alf. Petersen, plays a capital selection of music, opening with the overture descriptive of "A Voyage in a Troopship." With Mr. George L. Wilson as manager and Mr. Harry Blight as acting-manager there is no lack of careful supervision in front of the house.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

Very good business is being done here this week with the excellent company of artists arranged by the genial and energetic general-manager, Mr. Jack Woolf, and the patrons of this comfortable establishment can rely with confidence on enjoying a pleasant and entertaining performance. The Alaskarno Trio are well to the front in their line of business as Risleyists, with various clever and daring tricks, the boy member being warmly applauded for his comedy efforts, which are really smart. The Lurias (Frank and Alice) create much laughter in their droll, up-to-date extravaganza, Cinders, in which they introduce some good patter, and Mr. Frank Luria sings with effect "The same old church." Miss Irene Meldon, a young and talented comedienne, makes a distinct hit with her songs, "Dear little girl" and "I want my Loo Loo"; and the child soprano, Miss Elaine Chantler, is accorded a flattering reception. A brilliant electrical and carpet-spinning act is given by the Four Spanish Goldinis, who are to be highly commended for their successful manipulation of heavy carpets, while the effective dance by the child member of the troupe, on a pedestal charged with electricity, is provocative of great applause. Genuine amusement is caused by Mr. Charles Ashdowne, whose eccentricities and leg-mania business are keenly relished; and Miss May Henderson, described as the "Dusky Comedy Queen," fairly brings down the house with her excellent songs and characteristic dancing.

The prominent feature of the programme is the presentation by Mr. Fred Storey and company of Rip Van Winkle, which is exceedingly well staged and finely acted. Mr. Storey gives a splendidly-finished portrayal of Rip Van Winkle, playing with power, earnestness, and intensity. Full appreciation of the requirements of the part makes the performance of Gretchen by Miss Lilian Holmes almost perfect; and Mr. A. Maitland Stapley is successful as Derrick. The children, Heidrich and Meeni, are prettily rendered by Master Reginald Connor and Miss Norah Thornton, and well depicted in the later scenes by Mr. Keith Fraser and Miss Gwendolin Burney. The Bioscope pictures, "At the Seaside" and "The Wicked Stepmother," complete a thoroughly good bill. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Fred Venton, contribute some excellent music, notably, "The Ningara March" and "The Gazeka Lancers"; and special mention must be made of the kindly courtesy and attention always ready to be given towards the comfort of the patrons by the assistant acting-manager, Mr. Morris Abrahams.

FUNERAL OF MISS BONNIE GOODWIN.

Miss Bonnie Goodwin, whose death we recorded last week, was laid to rest on Monday afternoon in the beautiful grounds of the London Necropolis Company, at Brookwood. A service (Episcopalian), conducted by Canon Warpole, was held at ten o'clock in the morning at St. Mary's Church, Lambeth Palace, and a few minutes before noon the mourners assembled in the waiting-rooms of the London Necropolis Company's private station at Westminster Bridge-road, and started on the sad journey by train to Brookwood, Mr. T. G. Jenner having charge of the party. There were Mr. Samuel George Lyon (husband of the deceased), Mrs. Pauline Whitford (mother), Miss Marie Lyon (daughter), Dr. Robert G. Reid, Nurse Bilson, the five little black boys who were known as Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies, and Mr. H. Harrigon.

[Photo by Hand.

THE LATE BONNIE GOODWIN.

The ceremony at the graveside was performed by Canon Skelton, whose magnificent delivery of the service was strikingly impressive. The grave had been prettily decorated at the surface with fragments of Scotch fir, and the sides of the grave were lined with bracken. The coffin bore the inscription:—

Bonnie Lizzie Barnard Lyon
(Bonnie Goodwin),
Born July 9, 1866,
Died March 19, 1907.

After the coffin had been lowered—the company's patent device being employed to accomplish this—a Stars and Stripes was reverently dropped upon it, along with Mr. Lyon's wreath. The flag had been presented to the deceased lady some considerable time ago by a friend, Mrs. Fanning, who also sent a floral tribute on the present occasion. The husband's wreath took the form of a harp composed of arum lilies, white chrysanthemums, and maidenhair fern; and another pretty floral emblem was "In loving memory, from Marie" (daughter). The five piccaninnies each carried a bunch of white flowers, which were thrown into the grave at the conclusion of the service. Other wreaths were received from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. Fred Miller, Nurse Bilson, J. Heeley and W. F. Heeley, Mr. and Mrs. Pete (Pete and Juno), "Deepest sympathy, from Virginia," Curtis and Vanity, Dr. and Mrs. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Fanning, Mrs. Jenny Wren, and Mr. and Mrs. Dippel.

ACTORS' ACRE AND BROOKWOOD.

The other day it became the sad duty of a member of our staff to attend the obsequies of a well-known member of the variety profession. The funeral arrangements were carried out by the London Necropolis Company, and while waiting for the special train which was to convey the mourning party from Westminster Bridge-road to Brookwood, Mr. J. B. Walker, the general-manager of the company, showed us over the magnificent premises in which this great funeral business is conducted. Here—at Westminster Bridge-road—will be found the Necropolis private railway station, in which are several waiting-rooms, furnished with light oak, the floor being laid with choice parqueterie. On the right-hand side of the platform is a pretty private chapel, with a handsome oak catafalque in the centre and oak stalls for the clergy and congregation. Private mortuaries are provided on the ground level, where bodies can rest until the time of interment.

Going on to Brookwood, we took an opportunity, under the interesting guidance of Mr. George Bennett, who has been superintendent of the cemetery for forty-one years, of renewing our acquaintance with the many natural and artificial beauties of this City of the Dead. We could not imagine a more pleasing resting-place for the bodies of those who have "passed on" than these five hundred wooded acres of the London Necropolis. Trees of every kind flourish here. Silver birches and copper beeches add beauty with their contrasting foliage, and cypress trees and shrubs galore give warm welcome when the winds are cold, while stately wellingtonias stand like giant sentries, keeping a lonely vigil over the sleepers. In addition, there is the splendid show of flowers on every side, many of the graves being a mass of glowing bloom. Indeed, there is not a more beautiful cemetery in the whole world. Wandering about the cemetery, one is constantly met with names that, in their time, were regarded as household words. Here lies Lord Sherbrooke, one time "Bob Lowe," Chancellor of the Exchequer; there a Chitty, formerly Lord Justice, and not the least famous of a great legal family; here, again, a most potent peer of the realm, there a famous soldier, a doctor, or a divine.

We turn to a large plot of ground which is called the Actors' Acre. It holds many who were once the public favourites, and among them may be mentioned three of the Renad family—Fredk. Harwood Cooper, who lived to be seventy-eight, Emily Cooper, and Jeanne Juliette Renad Cooper, wife of Mr. Charles Renad; the Cooke family, the Clarksons, Mr. Samuel May, the famous costumier, the Renwicks, Samuel Forster and Samuel Johnson, Mrs. Jane Stephens, who reached eighty-three years, and who was affectionately nicknamed "Grannie," the Empson and Guyer families, Rebecca Francisco Isacchi, and John William Anson. The latter was the founder of Actors' Acre, and a memorial, erected by numerous friends, stands to his memory on a portion of the ground belonging to the Dramatic and Musical Sick Fund, of which, too, he was the founder.

The writer was much impressed on Monday at Miss Goodwin's funeral with the excellence of the arrangements. Everything worked smoothly and in perfect decorum. Particularly was this noticeable at the graveside, where, in place of the old and often rather distressing method of lowering the coffin by ropes, a device called the "National Burial Device" was in use, and, controlled by the funeral director, acted automatically when the time for committal arrived. In different parts of the cemetery private waiting-rooms are provided, where mourners can await their return train, and refreshments can be obtained if desired. In a hundred other ways those who use the Brookwood Necropolis will find their convenience studied by the company. The business of the London Necropolis Company (whose address, by the way, is 121, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E.) extends to everything that pertains to the burial of the dead, from embalming, cremation, the making of coffins, the provision of mortuary chambers and chapelle ardente, conveyance with hearse and carriages, to the interment and the very gravestone itself. During our visit Mr. Bennett was good enough to take us round the various workshops, and a most attractive half-hour or more was spent witnessing the different operations in the preparation of monumental masonry, the sawing of the rough block, the rubbing and polishing, carving and letter-cutting, designing, &c. There are several greenhouses in the grounds, and a farm adjoins. Altogether, we can hardly imagine a more delightful way of spending a fine day than in this picturesque estate, the loveliness of which seems to put a new aspect upon death.

THE PALACE, STOKE NEWINGTON.

Despite the proximity of the holidays, excellent audiences are being drawn to the Palace, Stoke Newington, this week by the attractive programme which Mr. Albert Gilmer sets before his patrons. It is essential in the programme of a theatre of varieties that the items which go to make up the entertainment should be varied, and it is, no doubt, to Mr. Gilmer's happy knack of presenting a well-contrasted series of turns that much of the success of this hall is due. The principal feature of this week's performance is the wonderful exhibition of animal-training by Captain Taylor's (late Lockhart's) elephants. The animals go through their work with a sagacity that seems almost human, and appear to vie with their two-footed colleagues in the bill to obtain the approbation and approval of the audience. Nothing could be funnier than their antics in the dinner scene and in their orchestral performance, and a special word of praise to due to the bulky quadruped that concludes its performance by riding round the stage on a tricycle. Of trick cyclists there are many, but none excel and few equal the clever and original business presented by the Marsumas in their all too short act, which is one of the best of its kind before the public. Not only are they daring and skilful riders, but they supplement their feats with a quaint humour that adds materially to the attractiveness of the performance.

Mr. Charles Austin is always sure of a warm welcome, and his never-failing fund of fun and resourceful methods keep his audience convulsed the whole time he is on the stage. He knows how to put his audience in a good humour the moment he steps from the wings, and he is on the best of terms with them throughout. He possesses no mean powers of mimicry, and he might with advantage develop this branch of his art. A very popular turn is that provided by Mr. W. H. Downes, the coloured vocalist, who appeared some few years ago at the Gaiety in the musical comedy My Girl with considerable success, and his reception in the North of London is no less enthusiastic than it was in the West.

The Lorrisons contribute an amusing turn, consisting of some lively patter, and the dance with which they conclude finds much favour. In the sketch furnished by the Compact Comedy Four there is some excellent singing, and opportunity is provided for one of the company to exhibit his powers as a comedian. Miss Mignon Tremaine sings a very taking coon song, but it is her pretty and graceful dancing that wins for her the greater part of her success. There is plenty to laugh at in The Topsy-Turvy School, presented by Collinson's Combination, especially when the gentleman who impersonates Johnny Green calmly submits himself for castigation at every mention of his name. Some smart dancing is executed by the young ladies of the troupe, and the concertina solo executed by one of them should not pass without a word of recognition. Miss Blanche Marion's vocal efforts are received with every sign of favour, and the Palace Pictures remain a special and attractive feature of the programme.

"A TEST OF FRIENDSHIP."

A Sketch, by Percy Ford, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, March 25.

Dick Maynard .....Mr. Henry Bentham
Jack Foster .....Mr. J. Dunlop

Of strong dramatic interest, this powerful sketch, elaborately staged and admirably acted, was received on its production here on Monday evening with great enthusiasm. The little piece was suggested by a story written by Major-General Baden-Powell, and is a stirring episode of the Matebele War. Dick Maynard and Jack Foster are officers in the same regiment. The latter is seriously wounded, and his close friend Dick refuses to leave him to the mercy of the savage hordes which surround them. Dick makes Jack as comfortable as possible by the camp fire, and mounts guard. While they are awaiting relief Jack asks his comrade why he always wears a gloomy expression, and Dick says he is always thinking of his faithless wife, whom he still loves in spite of her wrongdoing, and says he only wishes to live to find the man who took her from him. Jack urges his friend to forget and forgive, and in order to divert his thoughts talks of their days at Eton when their friendship first began. At length Jack grows weaker from his wounds, and, thinking he is dying, confesses that it was he who stole Dick's wife. Dick's first impulse is to leave his false friend to his fate, but the sound of firing is heard, and a horde of savages surround them. Dick stands by his prostrate comrade, and successfully repels the attack till help arrives, when the friends clasp hands with Dick's remark, "Friends once, friends always." Messrs. Henry Bentham and J. Dunlop are deserving of the warmest praise for their sterling work. They succeeded in conveying to the audience all the author had intended, and the approbation awarded was unanimous and enthusiastic. The producers were Messrs. Philip Reid and Percy Ford, and a special word of praise is due to the pretty set by Mr. Bingham Sedgwick and the incidental music by Mr. J. C. Moore.

Other excellent items in the current programme are Miss Agnes Molteno and company in the song-scena An Old-time Story; or, A Dolly and a Coach; Leonard Barry and company in a new edition of The Mouchers' Walk; Reginald Leyland in his burlesque scena A Visit to the Italian Opera; Miss Edith Glenfell in her monologue A Would-be Star; Freda Grenfell, a dainty comedienne; Peggy Primrose, chic and smart; and Jeape's Animated Graphic.

Proprietor—Mr. Walter Gibbons. Tooting Hippodrome. Architects—Messrs. Frank Matcham & Co.

Mr. Walter Gibbons is the proprietor of the newest Hippodrome, which is shortly to be erected on a very important site in Tooting. The new building will be worked in conjunction with other important halls under his control, and also with the new one being erected at Willesden.

The house has been designed by Messrs. Matcham and Co., for two shows a night. The width of the auditorium is 90ft., with accommodation for over 4,000 people, the means of access and exit being so arranged that no clashing will occur between the patrons leaving and those entering the building. To make the scheme of ingress and egress more perfect, waiting-rooms fitted with every comfort and convenience are to be arranged for early comers.

There will be a deep stage, with the usual property and dressing-rooms attached, and an uninterrupted view of the former will be given from all parts of the building. The theatre will be of fire-proof construction, and supplied with an asbestos safety curtain, with hydrants and appliances, in the most desirable positions for the extinction of fire; will be heated with hot water pipes and coils; in fact, the safety and comfort of the audience has had every consideration. The ventilation will have special attention, a sliding roof being introduced. The decorations are quiet but effective, and the whole building will be carpeted and furnished in a luxurious style. Electric light is to be installed everywhere, and there is no doubt when Mr. Gibbons opens the doors of his new house it will be found worthy to rank with the best in London.

Mitcham Awake.

When the story is fully told of the awakening of the people of Mitcham to the knowledge of their civic rights, no little credit will be given to the Showmen's Guild. The rousing manifesto issued on behalf of the people of Mitcham and protesting against the filching of public rights, guaranteed by charter, without any appeal being made to the people of Mitcham, was so gross an example of class legislation that indignation speedily manifested itself, and the result of that arousing of public interest in civic matters has led to a revolution on the District Council.

The People's Will.

Not only were the people of Mitcham indignant over the filching of their fair rights, but they had many other reasons with which showmen are not directly concerned, in revolting against the rule of the self-chosen oligarchy that had hitherto ruled the Parish Council. The crowding of the people of the great City over the border into Mitcham and the opening up of great residential districts, near to the railway and tram termini, brought a great multitude of new settlers in the old village of Mitcham. This new and populous quarter has been for years past without an articulate voice in the management of public affairs.

Why the People Won the Election.

First and foremost, because the people felt that the old members of the Council, although most excellent men, did not interpret the spirit of the times, nor did they endeavour to serve the poor and to understand their needs so well as they served the rich, and identified themselves with preserving the privileges of the well-to-do classes. The old Parish Council had not protected the people's rights with regard to their old charter fair, nor had they put any effective pressure upon the Conservators to induce them to allow the use of another portion of the common for the carrying on of the fair.

The Hopeful Outlook.

The election has resulted in a great victory for the people, and the new Parish Council is known to contain a decided majority in favour of continuing the fair under local control on another portion of the people's common. From the very first it was well known that the movement to abolish the fair was entirely promoted by a very small minority of the people of Mitcham, and engineered by a small clique of men interested in exploiting building estates close to the common lands. This narrow-minded clique tried to justify their selfish proceedings under the plea that the fair was in some sort of way a disgrace to Mitcham. They forgot the deep love of the toiling classes for their old-established fairs. Whilst making a pretence of being the people's representatives, they refused to consult the people, but determined to impose their autocratic will without as much as "by your leave."

The New Conditions.

We have now a majority on the Parish Council at Mitcham who are pledged to look after the interests of the whole of the people, and not one class or section only. Democratically chosen and popularly elected, these men will carry into the Council chamber a new spirit, and will interpret the powers they possess in accordance with the mind of the people. Realising the importance of the election, the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, acting for the Showmen's Guild, went down to Mitcham on the eve of the election and seized every opportunity of getting into personal touch with a number of the candidates; they attended committee meetings of the various groups, and the final open public meeting of the old candidates, who have suffered so serious a diminution in their numbers. Acting entirely without party bias, Messrs. Horne and Pedgrift did extremely useful work, and they have every confidence that when the request is made to the new Parish Council to strengthen the demand of the people for the removal of the fair to a more suitable site on the people's common lands that the matter will be more favourably entertained. In various interviews the Guild delegates drew attention to the facilities afforded by the London County Council in order that the people of London may have popular fairs at the Bank Holidays, and that this good work was about to be extended by the opening up of two new fairs on Clapham and Wandsworth Commons.

London's Great Example.

It cannot be too often stated that the London County Council sets a bright example to all public authorities in providing for the open air amusements of the toiling millions. On the breezy open spaces of Hampstead, Wormwood Scrubs, and Blackheath (and now, we understand Clapham Common and Wandsworth Common are to be added to the list), the people of London, rich and poor alike, can have popular amusements in the open air provided by the showmen and open-air entertainers. It is no small argument to say that where London leads other towns—particularly the outlying towns of the great City—may safely follow. This has been the argument that has had telling weight during the recent contest at Mitcham, and we therefore anticipate that when the time of the fair comes round again the showmen will be welcomed on a new site on Mitcham Common, and the old fair, under newer and better conditions, will supply the people's needs.

Woburn Fair.

Threatened fairs live long, and Woburn is an interesting example of this truth. For many years past efforts have been made to do away with the fair, and all sorts of hindrances have been brought forward by the local authorities to prevent its occurrence. Elections have been fought and won on this question of the fair by the champions of the people's rights, and now there is a sweet calm, and everybody goes to the fair to show that, although its enemies have lost, yet they cannot refrain from its enjoyment. The amusements at the March Fair were entirely in the hands of the local showmen. Mr. Christopher Smith supplied the galloping horses, steam swings, and throwing games, Mr. Short exhibited bottle batteries and variety stalls; there were numerous small concerns—confectionery and toy stalls—by local caterers, and the fair was, from a business point of view, very successful.

Retford Fair.

The principal concerns here were supplied by Councillor Tuby, of Doncaster, the celebrated Yorkshire caterer. The splendid cinematograph theatre was, as usual, a big success, the motor-cars and galloping horse sets were the principal machines, and Mr. Tuby's other novelties included Winchester ranges, rifle saloons, and swings. The other amusement-providers were Messrs. Hunt, Gillat, and Illingworth, whose well-known concerns constituted the minor varieties of the fair.

Charity Begins at Home.

Showmen are proverbially charitable. It is no unusual thing for them to give a benefit for local charities during one of the fair days. We think this trait of the showman's character is altogether admirable, for it shows that although for the time being he may be only a visitor to any particular town, yet he recognises that charitable institutions have a claim upon him just as much as though he were a resident. At the annual committee meeting of the Showmen's Guild at Manchester, a proposal was discussed for raising money for the working funds of the Society, and the suggestion that benefits should be organised for the defence work of the Showmen's Trade Society was received with the greatest enthusiasm and unanimity. It was felt that showmen as a class had been liberal in giving benefits to help other classes, and that the time had now arrived when "charity should begin at home." Reference was made to the handsome donation to the Society's funds received year by year from the Bolton Ball, and also the extremely satisfactory result of the united fairground benefit at the last Rotherham Fair. This effort, although organised at a few hours' notice, resulted in £25 for the Guild funds. At the committee meeting a number of influential showmen and fairground lessees were present, and several gentlemen promised a benefit on one of the fairgrounds they controlled during the coming season. Amongst these were Messrs. P. Collins, John Collins, G. Green, T. Hurst, and J. H. Geoghegan (jointly), J. Whiting, W. Mitchell, and W. Holmes.

Queen's Road Fair, Manchester.

The Organising Chaplain of the Guild hopes to inaugurate this scheme of self-help amongst showmen at the coming Manchester Fair during Easter week, and in order to strengthen this excellent scheme the chaplain proposes to hold a meeting of showpeople on Easter Sunday on the fairground, and also to bring the claims of the Guild before the general public by conducting a Guild service in the evening in one of the shows. At the showmen's meeting the official reply of the Home Secretary with regard to the Chester County bye-laws will be read, and the bearings of the Rawtenstill Corporation Bill will be placed before the meeting. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance of members from the other Lancashire fairs.

Hanley Wakes.

The movement to interfere with Hanley Wakes has fallen through. At last week's meeting of the Hanley Council it was agreed that the spaces for shows in the Market-square should be let as usual for the Wakes week in August.

Wanstead Flats Fair.

We hear rumours of a disquieting kind concerning this extremely popular and well-managed fair. Petitions are said to be in circulation for signature in favour of abolishing the fair. Whatever may be the motives of the promoters of these petitions, we can assure them that every effort will be made by the showmen tenants to defend their trade interests, and we feel quite certain that for every signature against the fair a hundred and more can be obtained in its favour. The City Corporation is the deciding authority, and we feel sure that their enlightened policy of providing amusements for the people at holiday times will not be reversed by the petition of a few narrow-minded people who object to the open-air amusements of the working classes.

Shrewsbury Spring Fair.

P. Collins provided the principal attractions of this fair—the theatre of animated photography, the racing motor set, the helter-skelter, and other concerns. Minor novelties, stalls, &c., were by Messrs. Humphries, Hall, Hughes, Chaplain, Fossett, Greatorex and Co.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION.

BY THE HON. CHAPLAIN.

The work of the Church of God amongst travelling showmen is a striking example of the adaptation of means to an end—in other words, specialisation that so distinctly marks the age in which we live.

It is the purpose of this article to show the growth of an extremely interesting and important branch of specialised work, touching the educational and religious needs of a large class in the community. It is significant that, until quite recent years, this large and industrious class of people were almost entirely misunderstood by the great mass of the people to whose very necessities at holiday times they so effectively ministered.

Although not a village or town in the United Kingdom was without a visit some time in the year from a number of those itinerant entertainers, yet almost next to nothing was known about them as a class in the community. It was not until eighteen years ago, when the showmen were obliged to combine and organise themselves for trade defence purposes, that the people of England began to realise the importance of the show and fairground industry. Almost from the beginning of this movement of trade defence the Church has recognised the importance of definite work amongst showpeople. The present Archbishop of York, when Bishop of Lichfield, took part in work on the fair-grounds in connection with the Evangelist Brotherhood. The parochial clergy in various parts of the country took advantage of the fair to carry on evangelistic work, not only amongst the showmen, but also the crowds of people who came on the fair-ground on the Sundays of the fair. Amongst other places where this work has been done, special mention must be made of Longsight, Manchester; Holbeck, Leeds; Hull, Gloucester, York, Norwich, Wrexham, Bolton, Huddersfield, Rotherham, Nottingham, Killamarsh, and King's Lynn.

For many years past the mission priests of the Society of St. Andrew, in the Diocese of Salisbury, follow the fairs with a church van, and minister to the spiritual and educational necessities of the showpeople in their diocese.

The writer of this article has been associated with the work of the Showmen's Guild from its inception in the year 1889, and has acted up to the present year as its honorary organising Chaplain. He has given most of his holidays and free time to distinctly spiritual work amongst the showpeople, conducting services in co-operation with parochial clergy at great centres of show life—at St. Agnes', Birch, Manchester, at Rotherham, Hull, and Gloucester Fairs; at King's Lynn; at Farnworth; Treorchy and Porth, Wales; and has enlisted the active co-operation of the following clergy, who have undertaken honorary local chaplaincies in connection with the Guild :—The Revs. Howard Swinstead, Berwick Salome, Oxford; R. De C. Thelwall, Burbage, Wilts; H. Norburn, St. Agnes', Birch; H. S. Butler, Preston; A. Dixon, Denton; H. Greenway, Northfield, Rotherham; R. Gordon Roe, King's Lynn; F. J. Metcalfe, Killamarsh; J. J. Luce, Gloucester; E. W. Legg, Diocesan Missioner, Salisbury; W. Thomas and G. Francis, Porth, Wales; T. Tissington, Treorchy, Wales; A. Huddle, St. Nicholas', King's Lynn; G. Smallpiece, Hempton, Norfolk; N. J. Devereux, St. Mary's, Hoxton; and J. Thomas, Brentwood.

The plan of work has been entirely controlled by the parochial clergy, the Showmen's Chaplain only supplying the special details that long experience amongst showpeople has taught him. Both at King's Lynn, Treorchy, and at Porth the plan has been for the church choir to procession from the Parish Church to the fairground, and there, by arrangement, to take possession of one of the show booths, and the Guild service, a very simple form of Church service, with a selection of hymns from the Durham Mission Book sung by the choir, the vicar of the parish officiating, the sermon being preached at his request by the organising chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne.

At Longsight Wakes, Manchester, for many years past, at the request of the rector, the Rev. H. Norburn, the Chaplain has preached at the Parish Church (within easy reach of the fairground), and, then, after evensong, a special Guild service is held in the schoolroom on the fairground, and largely attended by the showpeople. At this service short addresses are given by the Rector and the Showmen's Chaplain. A special feature of the work, both at King's Lynn and at Longsight, is the systematic visitation of the vans by the parochial clergy, and the invitation to the children of the vans to attend the Sunday schools. In addition to this, opportunity is afforded the mothers of the fair to bring their little ones to Holy Baptism.

Very similar work to the above is carried on every year at Holbeck Feast, Leeds, by the parochial clergy. Hearty mission services are held in one of the show-booths; the choir, headed by Cross-bearer, walk from the church through the fairground, and every use is made of the opportunity that the fair affords for mission work amongst the showmen and also the crowds of people drawn by curiosity to the fairground. A very special feature of the work at Holbeck is the help rendered by the showpeople in giving the use, not only of their booth, but of cinematograph apparatus for the display of sacred pictures. Here, too, the vans are visited, and the unbaptised sought out.

At Gloucester Fair the plan adopted was—a sermon at morning service at the Parish Church of St. Nicholas by the Showmen's Chaplain, and a mission service on the fairground at night after evensong, the singing being led by the Evangelist Choir, and addresses given by the Chaplain.

The above instances of definite Church work on show-grounds demonstrate the growing importance of this special branch of the Church's work. So conscious of its importance is the Organising Chaplain that he has surrendered his fixed work in London, and is arranging an itinerary that will include the principal fairs in the United Kingdom. He proposes (with the approval of the parochial clergy concerned) to conduct services on almost every Sunday from Easter to Advent in various parts of the country where the showmen are known to be fixed up and stationed for the Sundays.

As at present arranged, the itinerary will include centres like Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Gloucester, Hull, Bradford, Rotherham, Halifax, York, with centres in Wales at Porth, Treorchy, Wrexham, and Neath; in the West of England, at Exeter and Penzance; in Scotland, at Glasgow and Ayr, with, possibly, other centres as opportunities are afforded.

With the full approval and blessing of the Bishop of London, and the active co-operation of the parish clergy, the Chaplain began his work in January by conducting Sunday services in the circus arena at the celebrated Fun City, Olympia, and a bright catechetical service for children at the World's Fair, Islington. This work was blessed with signal success, and lasted the whole of the time (seven weeks), during which these huge fairs were held.

Following this work (which must always be a feature of his enterprise), the Chaplain journeyed to King's Lynn, and on the Sunday of the fair, after preaching in the Parish Church in the morning, conducted service in a show booth, which was attended by practically the whole body of showpeople on the ground. As regards the Diocese of London, as already said, the Bishop is in the fullest sympathy with the Chaplain's work. The very important centre of show life is the great industrial Diocese of Manchester, and the Bishop of Manchester has given the Chaplain authority to act as Chaplain to the showmen in his diocese.

The Bishop of Gloucester not only expressed cordial approval, but has given a promise to take part himself, if possible, in the next effort that is made at Gloucester Fair.

The Bishop of Lincoln, in an encouraging interview with the Chaplain some time back, also expressed the keenest interest in the work of the Guild, and desired to help it in every possible way in his diocese.

The above somewhat fragmentary account of the work already accomplished is only the outcome of what the Showmen's Chaplain has been able to do from time to time as opportunity was given him, and practically limited to the periods covered by his annual holiday and occasional week days and Sundays, when the urgency of the work justified the break from his fixed clerical duty.

With regard to the showmen themselves, it is of importance to remember that they are quite able and ready to support this work, and that no appeal will be made towards this mission to the outside public.

The Warden of the Guild, the veteran showman, "Lord" George Sanger, is a liberal contributor to its support, and the Guild Executive Council comprises the most prominent showmen in the world of shows.

The Rev. Thomas Horne preaching to the Showmen at Olympia.

The Guild Chaplain will be glad to hear (before finally making up his itinerary) from the clergy in whose parishes large gatherings of showmen occur. Letters may be addressed to him at the offices of the Guild, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and, at the outset of his work, he wishes it to be clearly understood that, without the consent of the clergy, and, wherever possible, their active co-operation, he will not enterprise any work. This is a Church Mission and not "free lance" work.

In parishes where there are only small gatherings of show folk the Chaplain will readily supply the local clergy with the Order of Service, and will put them in communication with members of the Guild taking the local fair.

In a general way, the following hints may be useful to the clergy anxious to carry the Church's message to the fair-ground :—

(1) Do not attempt a service until you are quite sure the bulk of the show folk are staying over the Sunday. At small fairs it is sometimes necessary for the show to pack up and move away on the Sunday

(2) Visit the vans, just as you would visit houses in your parish; but do this at a time when you see they are not engaged at their business. You will find them always appreciative of this attention. If you arrange a service, unless your church or schoolroom is near at hand, always get a show booth in which to hold it. You will not find any difficulty if you go to the principal proprietor or lessee of the ground.

(3) Invite the children to the Sunday school; tell the mothers if they wish to bring their little ones to baptism you will suit their time, and that you not only understand the difficulties of their work but that you are prepared to bring the church to them on the fair-ground if they cannot come to the church.

It cannot be too widely known that, in addition to the movable dwellings in which they follow the fairs, most of the showpeople have permanent homes, where the children are left to be educated until they are past school age, and of necessity come under the Church's influence at these fixed centres of their life. It is the greatest of all mistakes to imagine that they are gipsies, and that their moving life keeps them out of the circle of the Church's influence. It is quite true that from Easter to Advent the adult showpeople are very little at home, and it is the recognition of this fact and its practical bearing on their life that has led to the organisation of the Guild.

A NEW list of Paul's films, containing particulars of the latest successes, "His First Topper," "Saved by a Sailor," "The Knight Errant," and many others is now available. 33⅓ per cent. discount, it should be added, is to be allowed from the list price of 6d. per foot.

LORD GEORGE SANGER AND THE HOME SECRETARY.

AMENDED BYE-LAW GRANTED.

Our Lancashire and Cheshire showmen readers will be glad to hear the result of the petition sent by the Showmen's Guild against the proposed bye-laws of the Cheshire County Council. It will be seen that the Home Secretary has insisted on the saving clause being added, and thus the showmen have won the day.

Whitehall, March 25, 1907.

SIR,—With reference to your letter of Dec. 10 last on the subject of certain bye-laws made by the County Council of Cheshire dealing with steam organs, &c., and music near houses, I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that he has been in communication with the Council on the subject, and the bye-law dealing with steam organs has been amended, so as to except from its operation any fair, feast, festival, or wake lawfully held. A copy of the amended bye-law is enclosed herewith. —I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

HENRY CUNYNGHAME.

G. Sanger, Esq., President of the Showmen's Guild, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

(Copy.)

COUNTY PALATINE OF CHESTER.

BYE-LAWS.

For the good rule and government of the administrative County of Chester (excepting the municipal boroughs situate therein), duly made by the County Council of such county, under Section 15 of the Local Government Act, 1888, on the fourteenth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and seven.

ORGANS.

(1) No person shall in any street or public place, or on any land adjoining or near to any street or public place, use or play, or cause to be used or played, any steam organ or other musical instrument worked by mechanical means, to the annoyance or disturbance of residents or passengers, provided always that such bye-law shall not apply to any fair, feast, festival, or wakes lawfully held.

MUSIC NEAR HOUSES.

(2) No person shall sound or play upon any musical or noisy instrument, or sing in any street or public place, within one hundred yards of any dwelling-house or office, to the annoyance of any inmate thereof, after being requested to desist by such inmate, either personally or through his servant, or through a constable: Provided that this bye-law shall not apply to properly-conducted religious services, except where the request to desist is made on the ground of the serious illness of any inmate of the house.

MUSIC NEAR CHURCHES.

(3) No person shall sound or play upon any musical or noisy instrument, or sing in any street or public place, within one hundred yards of any place of public worship, or public entertainment, or other place of public assembly in which persons are for the time being assembled, to the annoyance or disturbance of any person or persons so assembled, after being requested to desist by any constable, or by any person so annoyed or disturbed, or by any person acting on his behalf.

MUSIC NEAR HOSPITALS.

(4) No person shall sound or play upon any musical or noisy instrument, or sing in any street or public place, within one hundred yards of any hospital, infirmary, convalescent home, or other place used for the reception or treatment of the sick after being requested to desist by any constable, or by any inmate or officer of such hospital or other place, or by any person acting on his behalf.

PENALTIES.

(5) Any person who shall offend against any of the foregoing bye-laws shall be liable on summary conviction for each offence to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Sealed with the Common Seal of the County Council of the Administrative County of Chester, this fourteenth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and seven, in the presence of

(Signed) GEORGE DIXON,
Chairman of the Council. L. S.
(Signed) REGINALD POTTS,
Clerk of the Council.

CINEMATOGRAPH PATENT.

These particulars have been supplied by Messrs. Hughes and Young, Patent Agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all matters relating to the protection of inventions, designs, and trade marks.

Mr. R. R. Beard, of 10, Trafalgar-road, Peckham, Surrey, has invented new improvements relating to kinematographs. Means are provided for readily bringing the film into longitudinal register by adjusting the dog, or beater, which draws the slack film down after exposure, a corresponding adjustment being imparted to the shutter, so that the light is cut off during the movement of the film. The beater is carried by two discs, the spindle of which is carried by a frame, which is pivoted so as to turn co-axially with the main shaft. The beater is adjusted by a handle, carrying a toothed sector, engaging a rack carried by a frame. The beater spindle is geared to the shaft, which carries the operating-handle and the feed drum. A balance weight may be fixed to the outer end of the spindle. The shutter is adjusted by gearing, connecting it to the pivoted frame. A pinion is mounted on a pivoted arm, carrying a toothed sector, engaging a toothed sector fixed to the pivoted frame.

Pendlebury.

The concerns here were Kemp's "Dreamland," Haydn's temple of occult mystery, Priest's dime museum, Ball's novelty booth, the riding and other machines of Messrs. Wm. Mitchell, T. Hurst, Harrison, Richards, and Shuttleworth, shooting ranges and throwing games by Messrs. Jewel, Henshaw, Sedgwick, Black, Booth, Jones, Brannan, Tallis, Edwards, Wright, and Gilmore.

Film Novelties.

SHOWMEN will do well to consult the advertisements of the leading cinematograph firms in the current issue of The Era, as many novelties are advertised. We refer to the Urban, Pathé-Gaumont, Vitagraph, Walturdaw, Paul, New Bioscope, Ruffell's, and the Sheffield Photo Co. productions.

A GRAND fête will be held in the grounds of Eccleshall Castle, by kind permission of G. W. Carter, Esq., on Wednesday, July 24.

A GRAND theatre fête and gala is to be opened on May 18 at Pendarren Park, Merthyr Tydfil. Application for spaces for roundabouts, swings, novelties, &c., which will be strictly limited, are to be made to Mr. A. Jackson, of 57, Chancery-lane, W.C.

MRS. REBECCA DROOKO writes from Liverpool :—"The following amounts were collected last week at the Empire, Liverpool, to enable me to purchase an invalid chair for my husband, and we both tender our grateful thanks to the following gentlemen for their kind assistance :—Ryder Slone, 2s. 6d.; E. A. E. Ford, 2s. 6d.; 3452 V.A.F., 2s. 6d.; Burns and Burns, 2s.; Willie Benn, 2s.; Tschernoff, 2s 6d.; Warner, 1s.; J. C. Taylor, 2s.; H. C. Barry, 2s.; and Boy Glen, 1s."

JOCK MCNAB, the famous Scotch comedian, has been engaged at a large salary for America, with his Scotch sketch, The Egyptian Mummy. He opens after his pantomime season.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

COLLINS'S.

A new comedy sketch, entitled My Wife's Husband, by Mr. G. D. Lynch, which had a trial-trip at the Middlesex some time ago, has been one of the most attractive items in the programme at Collins's this week. It is briskly played by Mr. Douglas Cox and company. The plot turns upon the compulsory marriage of a young Englishman in Cuba with a Spanish girl, who takes this step to avoid wedlock with an objectionable native suitor. As a matter of fact, the Englishman is an unwilling party to the marriage, but the alternative is exceedingly unpleasant, not to say deadly. However, after the ceremony has been duly performed, he is permitted to take his departure, and at once sails for England. Five years elapse, and he is leading a gay bachelor life in London, when he one day receives a telegram informing him that his Spanish wife has discovered his address, and is on her way to claim him as her husband. Mr. Adolphus Dove makes a confidant of his manservant, Simpson, and tells him the story of his strange marriage. And now what is to be done? Adolphus has an idea, which he proceeds to carry into immediate effect. While a loud and repeated knocking at the front door announces the arrival of the lady from Cuba, he quickly exchanges coats with Simpson, and instructs that astonished individual to play the part of Mrs. Dove's husband. It is the old device of the master and man exchanging places, Adolphus's intention being to get rid of his wife at any cost. The lady then makes her appearance, followed by her husband carrying her valise in the assumed rôle of the valet. Mercedes is surprised to find that the man she married in Cuba five years ago has apparently grown shorter, and that his beard has disappeared. The supposed husband plaintively admits that he has "shrunk," and having only a scant knowledge of what happened in Cuba, he makes rambling remarks which surprise the lady and induce her to ask him what he is talking about. She also shows a disposition to be jealous, and, producing a neat little revolver, gives evidence of her skill in the use of that weapon. Then, over a glass of champagne, she informs Simpson that the rejected suitor for her hand is in London, and will no doubt call him out. Finally Simpson confesses that he is not the man she wedded in Cuba; but it appears that the couple played the leading parts in a Scotch marriage, and Adolphus, apparently regardless of legal complications, gets rid of his Spanish bride by liberal gifts of bank-notes to her and to his "wife's husband." Mr. Douglas Cox plays his part with a keen sense of humour, and he has excellent support from the lady and gentleman who complete his company, but whose names do not appear on the programme.

Amongst the comedians appearing here this week is Mr. Arthur Reece, who scores with the song "Send us a few more girls" and another ditty. Mr. Edwin Boyde, deputising for Mr. Michael Nolan, who is indisposed, continues to meet with success; Sidney and Maud do exceedingly well as duettists and dancers; and the Wyffs cause considerable merriment by their performance in a farcical absurdity, entitled The Parson's Mishaps in a London Flat, the comical incidents recalling to mind the adventures of another reverend gentleman who was responsible for the once-popular saying, "I don't like London." The New York Nippers in Bedtime give a brisk and varied entertainment; and Orpheus plays upon a variety of musical instruments, to the evident delight of the audience. Other contributors include Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, comedienne; Rogers and Weston, comedy artists; Mr. Ben Albert, comedian; and Miss Marie Paroli, comedienne. The pictures shown by the L.C.C. Bioscope are also interesting. The orchestra here, conducted by Mr. Kopski, is composed of ladies, who do their work exceedingly well. Mr. F. F. Wade is the energetic manager at this hall.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The exceptionally attractive programme that Mr. Nelson Francis, the popular manager of this house, is presenting is meeting with the hearty approval of Brixtonians, and considering the proximity of the holidays audiences have been large. One of the many strong items in the bill is Paul Cinquevalli, the world-renowned juggler, who more than sustains his wonderful reputation. Some of his tricks are really astonishing, and his manner of execution is neat and facile in the extreme. Amongst many other feats, that of balancing two billiard balls on the top of a cue, and then keeping the temporary column upright with his chin as the plinth, shows what a complete master he is of the art of jugglery. The success of his performance is greatly added to by the comicalities of his assistant, who provokes much laughter. Professor R. Dunning is responsible for a clever ventriloquial show, which is going as well as ever. With the aid of his many puppets he causes immense laughter, and is the recipient of generous applause.

Geoffreys and Benson are presenting a sketch, entitled Spoofed, which is meeting with a very good reception. Although the plot is certainly one that is not new, the situations evolved from it are amusing. Husband and wife are arranging to present Romeo and Juliet for the approval of invited friends. The scene is the final rehearsal. The husband, after many breakdowns have occurred, informs his wife that he considers her Juliet absolutely hopeless, but at the same time takes care to tell her that he considers his Romeo perfection. The result is a scene, which ends in the wife retiring. After a while the supposed new servant, who has only recently arrived, enters, and by her clever acting completely succeeds in deceiving her supposed master. After causing much laughter by their nonsense, the end comes by the new comer turning out to be the much-maligned wife. Hence the title.

Arthur Slater, a whistling comedian, can certainly be placed in the front rank of sifflеurs. He gives many clever imitations of birds and animals, and brings his performance to a conclusion by whistling that popular overture, "Poet and Peasant." A most prominent part in the evening's amusement is played by Sam Mayo, the immobile comedian. His woebegone appearance and general make-up are excellent assets, and so deafening is the applause awarded him that it is some time before he is allowed to depart. Kahn and Kahn are mystifying all with their sleight-of-hand tricks. The Royal Korries are giving a novel and interesting show, the singing and dancing of the lady especially being much admired. Willie Gardner, described on the programme as America's champion skate-dancer, certainly dances like a champion. He seems quite at home, whether on roller or ice skates, and his exhibition of buck-dancing on skates is really wonderful.

A very pretty turn is that provided by Bert Coote's Yankee-Doodle Girls, whose singing and dancing leave little to be desired. Although only quite young, they perform quite like old hands, one member especially showing herself to be a dancer of considerable ability. The Three Sisters Sprightly have a little sketchlet written around the game of golf, and bring their turn to a conclusion with some clever dancing. Miss Lottie Govell displays hereditary ability in a couple of numbers, both of which are very well received. She also proves herself to be an expert dancer. The Panhards have some amusing jokes, which cause much laughter, and the male member shows himself to be a possessor of an excellent voice. The attractions of a most enjoyable entertainment are completed by some excellent pictures on the Bioscope. Mr. Francis Winchcombe, Mr. Nelson Francis' most able aide-de-camp, does everything possible for the comfort of his patrons.

"THE SHPIELLER."

A New Sketch, in Five Scenes, by Ivan Coherney, with incidental music by Sam Aarons, Produced at the Paragon, Mile End, on Monday, March 25.

Characters in Reality.

Marcus Judah ..... Mr. Ivan Coherney
Leah Judah ..... Miss Kathleen Russell
Mr. Goldstein ..... Mr. Harry Jackson

Characters in Dream.

Michaels, Litter, Hoppy ..... Mr. Sam Lee
Abrahams, Constable Longears, Diamond Dick, Inspector Truman ..... Mr. Alf Collins
Browney, Goldberg, Karnopski ..... Mr. Harry Jackson
Joe Finkle, German Mike ..... Mr. Philip Hartley

Those who are well acquainted with London are aware that the East End possesses characteristics that distinguish it from all other parts of the great city; and Mr. Coherney, the author of the above new sketch, produced on Monday, appears to have had the intention of presenting certain aspects of life in the busy, thickly-populated neighbourhood in which the Paragon is situated. The first scene is Marcus Judah's home in Brick-lane. The man was at one time in a good position, but the once thriving manufacturer is now getting a bare living as a tailor's machinist. The secret of his fall is the love of gambling; and though he owes his ruin to indulgence in this vice, he still entertains visions of regaining his former position by the same means that cost him his fortune. Then Marcus falls asleep and has a strange dream. He draws a winning ticket in a lottery and becomes possessed of £500. The gambling fever reasserts itself, and in his dream Marcus has some thrilling experiences. The third scene represents Aldgate on the day of the Grand National, and the following scene is the Shpielling Room in Whitechapel, in other words, a gambling den. However, the dream brings home to Marcus the evil fate of the desperate gambler; he is taught a salutary lesson, and all ends happily. Mr. Ivan Coherney, the author of the sketch, gives an excellent embodiment of Marcus Judah, the gambler; and Miss Kathleen Russell is well suited as Leah, his wife. Mr. Harry Jackson undertakes four characters with satisfactory results; and other parts are ably played by Mr. Sam Lee, Mr. Alf Collins, and Mr. Philip Hartley. The dresses and scenery leave nothing to be desired.

The Paragon company this week includes Rezene and Robini, Mr. Albert Setine, Miss Lottie Govell, Mr. Jack Camp, Miss Daisy Jerome, Miss Margaret Parker and company in Sunshine, Mr. J. P. Ling, Miss Clarice Mayne, the Three Demons, Mr. Herbert La Martine, and Miss Lillie Soutter. The selection from Chilperic given by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Grimmett, is much appreciated. Mr. Chas Beecham continues to give careful supervision in front of the house.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Monday, March 25, a New Japanese Musical Episode, in Two Scenes, Written by Michael Ring and Composed by E. W. Rogers, entitled "CHERRY BLOSSOM."

Mr. Bradley ..... Mr. Cyril Dane
Kamakura ..... Mr. Arthur Budd
Ninko ..... Mr. Johnnie Schofield
Cherry Blossom ..... Miss Raynor Golden
Saucee ..... Miss Noel Gordon

We are back again in the land of the merry little Japs, with all the dainty embellishments of colour and gaiety of the East. After a spirited opening chorus, Cherry Blossom, a geisha girl, confides to the audience that she is in love with an Englishman, one Bradley; but a Lord High Somebody has also fallen a victim to the charms of this dainty divinity, and is enraged when he discovers that Mr. Bradley has succumbed to the charms of Cherry Blossom. Anon a full contingent of merry Japs appear, warbling "We want to vote." With the Japs comes Ninko, the keeper of the tea house, who has been touring in England, and has picked up many European habits and not a few experiences. His hopeless confusion over a simple conundrum was one of the funniest hits of the evening. Another was a song in which he related the adventures that overtook him as the tutor at an English ladies' school. Ninko discovers Cherry Blossom and Mr. Bradley together, and overhears the latter propose to his pet geisha. A duet and full chorus, "Say, must it be?" was here a happy interpolation. Finding it impossible to gain possession of Cherry Blossom by fair means, Mr. Bradley offers to buy her from Ninko for a thousand yen, but she has already been disposed of to Kamakuro. An altercation follows, and a duel is arranged for the following morning. During the interval, Mr. Bradley enters and offers Ninko the price of Cherry Blossom, and Kamakura receives from the Emperor the polite hint that his services are no longer required. The episode, produced by Mr. Michael Ring, was lavishly mounted, and went with a swing from start to finish. The scenery and dresses are superb, and the music is dainty and tuneful. Of the interpretation, premier honours go to Mr. Johnnie Schofield as Ninko; he was paradoxically a perfectly delightful old vagabond, and his witticisms, drolleries, and dances were all clever. Mr. Cyril Dane did well as Bradley; and Miss Noel Gordon proved a pert and pretty Saucee. Kamakura, an unthankful rôle, was capitally played by Mr. Arthur Budd; and the title-rôle, Cherry Blossom, found a fascinating exponent in Miss Raynor Golden. The production was further enhanced by a bevy of pretty Japs, who danced, coquetted, and warbled to the entire satisfaction of the audience. At the fall of the curtain the author did not take the call, but a delightfully officious old duck, which had figured in the performance, waddled out from the O.P. side, and stood before the footlights, dimly conscious of its own importance. Having received the "call," the bird was promptly whirled off by an astute stage-hand. But Cherry Blossom is charming.

Of the other good things in a well-crammed bill, eccentric comedy found a capable exponent in Mr. Chas. Lilburn, who confided to the audience that he "Thought they would like to know"; and, later, he appeared in a suit of pyjamas, and caused a lot of fun with a ditty dealing with the results of various gentlemen who slipped into oblivion by reason of a broken heart. There is a good deal of humour in The Burglar and the Première Dancer, as interpreted by the Two Jagos. Although the burglar's object is apparently felony, he soon wins the friendship of the lady artist, and together they give a representation of a "Coon Band" on the piano. Their ability was further evidenced in variety business, new and old. An old favourite here, Miss Nellie Chandos, sings her coon ditties with unflagging vivacity, and creates a success in a lyric, entitled "I wish I were you." Her dancing won for her a unanimous verdict of approval. Mr. Max Guy's clever orchestra did admirably in a pot-pourri of the popular airs of the season; it proved quite a refreshing item. The poses of Michel Nero were sufficiently realistic to win applause, and physically he seemed peculiarly adapted for the rôles he assumed. His weight-lifting demonstrated his strength in a marked degree; as an athlete, too, Nero has nothing to be ashamed of, on the contrary, his skill is wonderful. Mr. Charles Cardow boasts considerable mimetic ability; his "Scene at a Railway Station" was one of the best things he did. His representation of a modern melodrama afforded him a further opportunity to display his versatility; it was excellently done. The Bioscope is an apt finish to a more than excellent bill.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907. 1s. "Era" Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. Once again this useful publication comes out with its useful tabular information concerning things dramatic, such as the date of the production of new plays and important revivals produced at the London, provincial, and Paris theatres. In addition are many portraits and short stories given over the signatures of many prominent theatrical and music hall people, and a variety of other interesting matter.—Financial Times, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That invaluable annual, "The Era" Almanac, has just made its appearance for 1907. In addition to its usual record of the important productions and revivals of the past twelve months in London and Paris, there is a series of bright contributions by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and other well-known members of the profession.—Sunday Times, Jan. 27.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is, if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland, and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That welcome little book, "The Era" Annual, has just appeared for 1907, issued from the offices of "The Era," and costing, as usual, 1s. It is always worth a welcome, and is as good this year as ever. In addition to the usual pages of theatrical statistics, there are a number of stories and sketches by well-known actors and actresses, signed with their autographs and illustrated with their photographs. The first, and one of the best, is a description by Miss Ellen Terry of an average day in her busy life. Most of us have, at one time or another, in our artless way, sighed for the glory and triumph the popular actor and actress enjoy. Alas! Miss Terry gives us a peep behind the scenes which takes the gilt off the gingerbread with a vengeance. If this describes the average day of a great actor or actress, better, a thousand times better, to be a man of no importance!—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
A compendium of great value to all interested, professionally or otherwise, in music and the drama is "The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual, the issue for 1907 of which has just been issued (London: 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, 1s.). Especially attractive are the stories told by some twenty artists, whose photographs and autographs are included.—Glasgow Herald, Jan. 31.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 will be cordially welcomed by the profession, as well as by all who are interested in the modern theatre and concert-hall. It contains some racy little sketches by Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Pollie Emery, Mr. Charles Collette, and other well-known artists; much useful information and many illustrations.—Leicester Daily Post, Jan. 23, 1907.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG.
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING.
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON.
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON.
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA.
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS.
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

Pioneers of the 4D. per foot, nett.

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

THE RUNAWAY MOTOR CAR.

Code Word, CHIFFON.

A couple of bad boys start a motor-car in the chauffeur's absence. The car goes off at a great speed; travels all over the country; only stops for a cripple. It is extraordinarily funny to watch the antics of the populace trying to stop the car.

320ft. The Subject £5 10s.

BOXING MATCHES.

Code Word, CAROTIDE.

Historic fights between English, Irish, Welsh, and coloured champions. Very interesting.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER.

Code Word, CAMPHRE.

He buys a camera; insists on taking everybody and everything; constantly gets in hot water; very droll and keeps the observer amused all the time.

248ft. The Subject £4 2s. 8d.

THE BRIGAND STORY.

An old man sets out on horseback to carry some valuables in bags; imagines he is being pursued by brigands and has some very comical adventures in an inn at which he stops.

297ft. The Subject £4 19s.

JAPANESE WOMEN.

Code Word, CAGE.

Depicts them at play; their hair being dressed; quaint dances; novel games and sports. Perfect quality.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

Coloring 18/- extra.

LOOKING FOR LODGINGS.

Code Word, CAMPEMENT.

A dissatisfied couple give up their lodgings, numerous explorations for others, which fail in one particular or other, and they find themselves back again at their old domicile.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE ELECTRIC BELT.

Code Word, CANAPE.

The husband has a bad pain in his back. His wife gets an electric belt; puts it in his overcoat; it makes him jump all over the place and want to kiss every woman he meets. He is arrested; the magistrate accidently puts on the coat and goes through the same performance; many amusing complications follow. This is one of the most humorous films we have ever produced and is bound to be a large seller.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

BABY'S FIRST OUTING.

Code Word, CHICANE.

The careless nurse takes baby out and speaks to many people on the way, and keeps on colliding with various obstacles. Eventually a naughty boy ties the pram to a dog, who rushes off with it, followed by an interested crowd of spectators. Finally the pram is precipitated into a pond, but baby is unhurt, and is brought back to her parents in triumph by a kindly policeman.

Fine quality and really amusing.

478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

CINDERELLA.

Code Word, BUFFLE.

An extra good film. Everything is represented as in the Fairy Tale. There is little Cinderella, Ugly Sisters, Fairy Godmother, and the Prince, together with the Pumpkin and Rats which form Cinderella's beautiful Carriage and Escort. Beautifully mounted.

About 974ft. The Subject £16 4s. 8d.

Colouring £1 11s. 6d.

THE GOLDEN BEETLE.

Code Word, BUREAU.

An old wizard succeeds in capturing a golden beetle, which he casts into a melting-pot, from which there immediately appears a most beautiful form, succeeded by fountains of water and displaying lovely girls. This water then throws off splendid coloured effects, rising higher and higher, eventually turning into a regular cascade, the centre of which is a glorious fairy.

Splendid trick film, beautifully coloured.

165ft. The Subject £2 15s. Colouring extra £2 2s.

A VISIT FROM A MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Code Word, CHIC.

The young husband determines that as he does not want his mother-in-law to stay with them, he will get rid of her quickly. Bribes the servants, and they each, without seeming to do so, cause her some trouble. Finally, he takes her out in his car, and bumps her out. She, in disgust, returns home again, to the intense joy of the husband. A very amusing subject, and some very funny effects.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.

THE COSMOPOLITAN DANCERS.

Code Word, BURINEUR.

A series of rapid changes in costume and dancing made by two dancers, who exhibit the styles of Jack Tar, Spanish, French, Japanese, Italian, Russian, &c. Beautiful colouring effect.

280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

Colouring extra, £3.

WE ORIGINATE.

OTHERS TRY TO IMITATE,

BUT FAIL.

Re THE WONDERFUL ELECTRIC BELT.

We find that one of our contemporaries has considered this film worth copying. Imitation is the surest flattery, but we are the original producers of this film, which was put on the market some three weeks ago.

SALOMÉ.

A Bible Story Beautifully Staged. A Reproduction of the East Graphically Portrayed.

Herod, the King of the Jews, is unlawfully married to Herodias, his brother Philip's wife. John the Baptist openly rebukes both Herod and Herodias for their unlawful union and ungodly life. Herod has John the Baptist imprisoned. Herodias pleads for the head of John the Baptist, but Herod is secretly afraid of his prisoner, and puts her off. Herodias has a very beautiful daughter, Salomé. She is an accomplished dancer. During a feast she dances before Herod, who is so fascinated by her that he makes the extravagant promise to grant her any request she might make, even to the half of his kingdom. Herodias, her mother, tells her to ask for the head of John the Baptist. She does, and Herod has to keep his rash promise and grant her request. Salomé brings in the head of John the Baptist on a salver to her mother. Her end gained, the vengeful woman suffers from great mental unrest.

1st Scene.—John the Baptist denounces Herod and his Court.
2nd Scene.—John the Baptist reproaches Herodias for her life of luxury and love of pleasure.
3rd Scene.—Herodias asks in vain for the head of John the Baptist.
4th Scene.—(1) Herodias makes her daughter Salomé dance before Herod.
(2) Salomé obtains the head of John the Baptist.

EASTER EGGS. Code word, "EGGS."
An amusing comic film. The adventures of two tramps, who, observing a notice to supply 10,000 eggs to a grocer, go to rob a poultry farm. Two men attack them. The tramps throw eggs at them. Get away. Fetch the police. The wrong men are arrested, much to the joy of the tramps. 300ft. £7 10s.

WHEN WE WERE BOYS TOGETHER. Code word, "BOYS."
The recollections of two old men of the days of their youth. The tricks they used to play, the fights they used to have, etc. One sees all these, and the expression of the old men at these recollections is delightful. Perfect quality. One of the most attractive films of the season. 415ft. £10 7s. 6d.

URBAN PRODUCTIONS

A SPLENDID PICTURE FOR THE EASTER SEASON.

A TRIP THROUGH PALESTINE.

Eastern in its sunny brilliance, its typical bazaar scenes, gorgeous processions, panoramic views illustrating manners and customs, its pastoral episodes and picturesque detail, this sublime and exquisitely photographed series will command universal appreciation. Amongst other Subjects introduced are:— Beautiful views as the train leaves Jaffa for Jerusalem, passing along the valley of the river Jordan. Jerusalem, with quaint pictures of Eastern Life, market and street scenes. Bethlehem, with women at the well. Temple of St. Sepulchre, Jerusalem: procession of devout Greeks. Damascus, from the heights; a grand subject. A Muezzin calling the Faithful to Prayer; close and unusual view. An Eastern Harem: a picture procured with difficulty. The women and children of the household are congregated on the roof. Grand Procession of the Holy Carpet on its way to Mecca: an immense concourse with bands, symbols and quaint ceremonial. Street Scenes in Damascus: typically Eastern bazaars, with pedestrians of all countries. An Oasis in the Desert: beautiful groves of palms, in the shade of which camels are bought and sold. Numberless beasts, every class of camel passes in front of the camera, or, peacefully reclining, munch their evening meal.

UNHACKNEYED AND WONDERFUL SUBJECTS, GRAPHICALLY PORTRAYED. FOR TASTE IN REPRODUCTION, AND FOR THE DELICATE EASTERN TRUTH AND FRAGRANCE THEY BREATHE, THESE PICTURES ARE UNSURPASSED.

- - THE SPY. - -

We see the interior of the Confederate general's tent, where a consultation is being held by the army officers regarding certain secret movements of the army. Outside, the long lines of tents stretch away into the darkness; the men are sleeping around their camp fires and the entire camp is wrapt in slumber, with the exception of a sentry, who paces to and fro. Cautiously, a Union spy, who has stolen through the enemy's lines, approaches the general's tent, and slipping behind it while the sentry's back is turned, cuts a slit in the canvas and overhears the plans being discussed for to-morrow's movement. The officers leave the tent and the general sinks into an exhausted sleep on his cot. The spy cuts his way into the tent, steals the despatches, and is making good his escape when in the darkness, he stumbles across a Confederate soldier, who instantly gives the alarm. The spy slips away in the darkness, pursued by a squad of infantry. He is captured in a nearby woods and dragged back to camp, where a drum-head court-martial is held, and he is sentenced to death. In the guard-house the spy bribes one of the soldiers to take a letter to his wife. We see the letter delivered, and the wife's joy at receiving it turns into excessive grief when she reads its contents. She reaches the camp and appeals to the commanding general for mercy. He refuses her plea, but allows her to see her husband for a last farewell. The spy and his wife are left alone, and she prevails upon him to change clothes with her. She puts on his big overcoat and slouch hat, he donning her overskirt, shawl, and old-fashioned poke bonnet and veil. In this disguise he escapes. The wife is led out to be shot, but the husband, fearing that some harm will come to her, reappears just as the firing squad is taking aim. He flings himself in front of his wife, and just at this moment the Confederate camp is attacked by the Union army. Several of the firing squad are shot down, and the lives of the brave spy and his devoted wife are saved, forming an intensely exciting and pathetic story with a thrilling climax.
